CAUCUS OF REPUBLICAN SENATORS HELD ON THE VETO OF CAPITOL BILL

Decide To Pass It Again and Party Lash Being Applied.

Laybourn Primary Election Bill Is Again Saved From Defeat.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, March 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—All doubt about the Horton bill putting the new capitol in the hands of the capitol commission for the next two years being a political measure was eliminated today when the Republican senators called a caucus to consider the governor's veto and decide what action shall be taken. The call was signed by one senator from each congressional district, Senator Hawkins signing it for the Eighth. It called for an executive caucus. Senator Schaller, Democrat, facetiously moved the adoption of the resolution, and Senator Dart, also Democrat, moved that it be amended to include the eleven Democratic senators. The caucus was held directly after the noon adjournment.

At the caucus it was decided to pass the bill placing the care of the state capitol in the hands of the capitol commission over the governor's veto. Whilst the house may not concur, the party lash is being applied, and that body may repass the bill.

The election committee's primary election bill was again saved from defeat by postponement today, and incidentally Senator Samuel Lord of Dodge county received his first formal mention as a candidate for governor in 1906. Senator Laybourn, who is the author of the committee bill, talked in favor of it, and moved that the committee of the whole recommend it for passage.

Senator Calhoun moved as a substitute that the bill be indefinitely postponed, and said it was the worst folly he ever heard proposed.

Senator Lord then moved, as a substitute for all pending motions, that the committee report progress on the bill.

Senator Calhoun wanted to know what was the use of monkeying along with the bill, and eSnator Laybourn said that, "at the request of the next candidate for governor," he withdrew his motion and consented to leave the bill where it is. This was done.

* * *

Senator Fitzpatrick, a Democrat from Winona, and one of the most brilliant orators in the legislature, made a strong talk against Representative Hugo's bill, permitting Bethels to consent to the adoption of children in place of the mothers. The bill had been passed, and Senator Fitzpatrick made his talk in support of his motion to reconsider the passage, which prevailed. He said that it was not proper to give any society the right to overrule the wishes of a mother, and that if it passed poodle dogs and cows would be in better shape, legally, than children.

* * *

There was a bit of debate in the senate on Senator Frater's bill creating a third state fish hatchery to be located at Deerwood, but the senate in committee of the whole recommended it to pass, though, as it carries an appropriation, the finance committee has still to consider it.

* * *

The house put in a good deal of the morning session in debate of L. H. Johnson's resolution, providing for seven senators and ten representatives to arrange for the proper entertainment of the Wisconsin legislature when it comes over this week to look at the new capitol. Some of the statesmen feared that the proposition might involve an expense to the state, and they protested bitterly, but the resolution prevailed.

* * *

The Stone bill providing for negotiable mileage was given new life by A. L. Cole's motion to reconsider the vote by which it was defeated in committee of the whole day before yesterday, which motion prevailed. The bill goes back on general orders, and Mr. Cole said he would propose an amendment to the effect that it should not apply to the present interchangeable 2,000 mile books, thus overcoming the objection the travelling men urged to the measure.

* * *

On motion of R. J. Wells, the house reconsidered the vote by which the bill increasing the state fire warden's salary from $1,200 to $1,500 was defeated, and sent the bill to the special committee to investigate the salaries of state officers.

* * *

The St. Paul Globe this morning spoke of A. C. Weiss of Duluth as a probable successor to Col. C. H. Graves on the capitol commission. Col. Graves, on account of his appointment as minister to Norway and Sweden, will have to resign from the capital commission shortly and Governor Johnson will have the appointment of his successor.

A petition signed by thirty-two Duluth shippers came in against the W. A. Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill.

NO EXTENSION OF THE PRIMARY ELECTIONS

To State Officers, the House Having Killed All Five Bills.

Laybourn Grand Jury Bill Wins In House Judiciary Committee.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, March 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Extension of the primary election system to state officers?

Not this session.

Nor will there be any modification of this plan or any substitute therefor.

There will be state conventions in 1906 to nominate state officers, just as there were in 1904, and there will be the same opportunity for disgraceful results as there was then.

The house yesterday afternoon killed all of the five different propositions that were before it, and definitely went on record against any change in the present system.

There is just one bill now living and in a position to be considered before the thirty-fourth session of the Minnesota legislature, and that is practically the same as one of the bills killed by the house yesterday.

That is the bill by Senator Laybourn of Duluth, offered in the senate as an elections committee bill, providing that the state conventions shall select three candidates for each vacancy on the state tickets, to be voted for by the people at the primaries. The senate has already shown so hostile a disposition toward this bill that it has been put over from day to day by its friends, who know that if it were brought to a vote it would be killed.

* * *

The house yesterday afternoon had all of the five different plans that have been proposed as changes in the present system of nominating state officers before it upon special orders.

One after another, in one-two-three order, were killed, coffined, and the lid nailed down upon the coffin.

It took all of the afternoon, and the house did not do another thing.

It appeared to be well satisfied with its afternoon's work, too, though the people may have another opinion of it.

At the opening it was decided to give the authors of the different bills ten min-

CHINA IS PREPARING A BIG ARMY

Victoria, B. C., March 29.—Mail advices received from Pekin by the Empress of Japan are to the effect that high officials of China recognize that China will have to pass through a grave crisis, threatening the very foundations of her independence and integrity at the close of the war, and that to avert anarchy and chaos the empire must be well armed and ready. The Manchu civil and military authorities are accordingly rearming the various banner organizations, Manchu, Mongol and Chinese. To the end of February, twenty-eight battalions over and above the 7,000 Manchus, equipped with good arms in 1902, had been provided with either Mannlicher or Mauser magazine rifles. Factories are working to provide 30,000 more for the Chinese forces at Pekin. These forces will form the nucleus of a modern Chinese army, to be organized without delay. An army of 500,000 men is expected to be ready, well-armed, for defense of Pekin, before June.

COL. DUGGAN WILL SUCCEED FUNSTON.

Chicago, March 29.—Col. Walter T. Duggan, First infantry, United States army, will succeed Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston as commander, temporarily, of the department of the lakes, with headquarters in Chicago. Col. Duggan is now at Fort Wayne and will come to Chicago within ten days. Gen. Funston, who has been transferred to the command of the department of California, with headquarters at San Francisco, will leave for the West next Saturday. Lieut. E. C. Long and Lieut. B. J. Mitchell, his aides-de-camp, will accompany him.

TO ELABORATE THE REFORMS

Czar Issues Order To the Governor General of Poland.

St. Petersburg, March 29.—Emperor Nicholas has instructed M. Maximovitch governor general of Warsaw, to elaborate the reforms necessary for prosperity in Poland.

In a rescript to the governor general, the emperor says:

"Since the radical revival of civil life in the Vistula territory during the past forty years, a series of needs has developed, upon which the government is now bestowing especial solicitude. Enemies of the existing order are seeking to provoke disturbances, thus hindering the calm discussion of the reforms for which the country is ripe, and at the same time some sections of the Polish population are putting forth exorbitant claims concerning limits in the employment of the state language, to which there must remain assured throughout the empire the high importance due to it, but without any superfluous or unjust exclusion of local languages."

The emperor accordingly directs the governor general, while lawfully and firmly suppressing artificially supported distrubances to "Proceed to the elaboration of the reforms found to be necessary for the prosperity of the territory inseparably connected with the other parts of the Russian state."

TRAIN BURNS 120 FEET BELOW EARTH'S SURFACE

Motorman Loses Control Of Cars In the New York Subway.

New York, March 29.—There was a heavy explosion in the subway tunnel at One Hundred and Sixty-eighth street and Broadway today, where the tunnel is 120 feet below the surface of the streets. Fire apparatus and extra police were summoned. The explosion took place at a point beyond that to which the trains are run at present and near the American League baseball park.

An uptown subway train which had been emptied of passengers at One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, and was run to One Hundred and Sixty-eighth street, to be switched across to the downtown tracks, got beyond the control of the motorman and ran into a pile of construction material in the One Hundred and Sixty-eighth street station. The cars jumped the track and caught fire. It was reported that some loose powder which was to be used in digging the tunnel was ignited and exploded. For some time it was not known whether or not the train crew had escaped. An attempt was made to operate an elevator running through a shaft from the tunnel to the street, but it could not be moved. Some of the employes in the tunnel ran through the tube to the One Hundred and Eighty-first street station and reached the surface at that point.

The firemen passed the hose down into the tunnel and fought the blaze of the burning cars.

It was reported that the conductor and guards of the train and gang of twenty-five laborers employed in the tunnel had escaped by way of the shaft at One Hundred and Eighty-first street station.

The firemen made desperate efforts to get to the burning cars, but were unable to do so as the tunnel was filled with smoke on both sides of the station where the accident occurred. And the firemen were driven back each time they essayed to reach the scene. The only way they had of reaching the fire was to lower hose through the shaft and pour water indiscriminately into the tunnel below, in the hope of flooding the fire.

It was ascertained that the train had run against a heavy bulkhead, which had been built across the tunnel and that the wood was set on fire after the collision. There were two explosions, and both were later said to have been of dynamite cartridges used in blasting. One occurred soon after the collision, the other occurred much later.

COLUMBIA TO CARRY REMAINS.

Washington, March 29.—The cruiser Columbia which has been selected by the navy department to carry the remains of the late Mexican ambassador from the United States to Vera Cruz left Pensacola today for New York.

JAPANESE LOAN RAPIDLY TAKEN

London, March 29.—The portion of the Japanese loan of $150,000,000 alloted to London was well over subscribed within an hour of the time of the opening of the banks this morning. For an hour before the doors opened throngs crowded the vicinity of the issuing houses and throughout the morning a steady flood of applicants among whom were many women taxed the extra staffs of the banking establishments engaged to deal with the rush. The first post brought in many thousands of applications and the enormous subsequent deliveries gave evidence of public interest in the loan.

Subscriptions to the loan closed at 2:30 p. m., when it had been many times over-subscribed. An interesting feature was the fact that a considerable number of applications were received from the continent, indicating a change of views regarding Japanese financial stability. It is said that large subscriptions came from Germany.

New York, March 29.—Subscriptions to the American half of the new $150,000,000 Japanese loan were formally opened today. The syndicate managers found themselves overwhelmed with applications. Wherever possible preference will be given to small investors whose applications have come by mail and telegraph from all parts of the country.

BOYS ROBBED EIGHTEEN STORES

Chicago, March 29.—Ten boys of Harvey, a suburban town, have confessed to the robbery of eighteen stores, three churches, two school houses and a railway station. The plunder consisted of candy, gum and pennies, and it was too free a distribution of the candy at school that at last enabled the police to capture the band, who had led them a merry chase for months.

"We started it just for fun," sobbed one of the culprits, "but when we got into it we could not stop. We just had to go right on stealing because there was always some boy that did not have what he wanted."

The boys whose ages range from 12 to 15 years, are all of respectable families. Their hearty repentance, added to the pleadings of their parents induced Judge Mack to release the prisoners on probation.

WITNESS IN BEEF CASE ARRESTED

Chicago, March 29.—John E. Shields of Brooklyn, N. Y., a former employe of Armour & Company, was arrested today by a deputy United States marshall. Shields is a witness in the federal grand jury investigation of the beef trust and is alleged to have been tampered with by Thomas J. Connors, general superintendent of Armour & Company. Connors was arrested last night on a bench warrant, but was at liberty today on bail. Shields' arrest today was to make sure of him as a witness against Connors. Shields later was released on $1,000 bonds, until the July term of court when it is expected the charges against Connors will be tried before Federal Judge Humphrey.

WARM WEATHER KILLS TWO MEN

Pittsburg, March 29.—Two mill workers have died, several are in a serious condition, and many have been forced to quit their work in the mills in this city and vicinity, owing to the excessive heat of yesterday. The temperature registered 78 deg., and it was the first time within recollection that so much suffering has existed among mill employes on account of warm weather in March.

DOMINICANS PLEASED

By Acceptance of Proposition By United States.

San Domingo, Republic of Santo Domingo, March 29.—The news of the acceptance by the government at Washington of the proposition of the Dominican government that the government of the United States assume control of the finances of this republic with the view of setting aside a portion of the revenues for the payment of its debts pending definite action on the part of the American senate, has had a most favorable effect here. The opinion is expressed that the action taken by the authorities at Washington will change the situation completely.

RURAL CARRIERS.

Washington, March 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following rural carriers have been appointed: Browntown, Route No. 3—George R. Butler, carrier; Ceylon C. Ward, substitute. Dunnell, Route No. 2—Albert Johnson, carrier; Clarence Johnson, substitute. Madelia, Route No. 3—Frank S. Jessop, carrier; Charles C. Austin, substitute. Sacred Heart, Route No. 3—Henry Manderson, carrier; Christ Pedersen, substitute.

ENGINEER DIES OF INJURIES.

Des Moines, March 29.—L. Hotchkiss, engineer on the Rocky Mountain limited, which Eric Kutzlevin says he wrecked near Homestead, a week ago, died today of injuries received. Kutzlevin will probably be held for murder, pending an investigation of his sanity.

BOSTON MAN ENDS LIFE.

New York, March 29.—William H. Hammond, one of the most prominent real estate men of Boston, committed suicide at the Hotel Astor, here, today by shooting. Despondency, due to ill health, is supposed to have been the motive.

RUSSIA ACTUALLY TAKES STEPS LOOKING TO PEACE

MISSION BOARD WILL ACCEPT THE $100,000

But Postpone Final Action In Deference To Protestants.

Boston, March 29.—The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions announced today that its prudential committee had accepted a report of the sub-committee, recommending the acceptance of the gift of $100,000 by John D. Rockefeller, but that final action on the matter had been postponed for two weeks. The report of the sub-committee in the language of a statement issued by the board today "was received and accepted as expressing the utmost judgment of the prudential committee and the executive officers," and was to the effect that the committee could not accede to the protest of those who objected to the acceptance of the gift.

The report also stated that the gift was offered by Mr. Rockefeller and unanimously accepted by the prudential committee on Feb. 14 last. It says that in accepting the gift the committee followed the universal custom of the church in the past, "in receiving upon its altars the gifts of all who were moved to lay them thereon."

The report holds that the acceptance of a gift involves no expression of opinion on the part of the committee as to the character of the givers and to intercept a gift made to others in order to express an opinion seems unwarrantable."

The reason for deferring final action is given as follows: "Inasmuch as the protestants have requested delay, the committee will hold final action in abeyance for two weeks."

Summing up the arguments, the report says they practically declare that the donor of this gift is believed to be identified in a conspicuous way with a great evil in this country, and that therefore the board should refuse the gift in a conspicuous way, thus striking a blow at the evil. "We feel," says the report on this point, "that the protestants have other ways of making their views known, and that the blow should not be struck at the expense of the peoples in the non-Christian world."

MAKES AN INDIRECT PROPOSAL TO JAPAN

Contains Negative Conditions Upon Which Peace Can Be Made.

No Reply From the Japs Has Yet Reached Russian Government.

St. Petersburg, March 29.—The Associated Press is in a position to announce that a step in the direction of peace actually has been taken. Russia has indirectly made known to Japan the negative conditions upon which peace may be concluded, namely no cession of territory and no indemnity, leaving Japan to determine whether negotiations can be begun upon that basis. No reply from Japan has yet reached the Russian government.

Paris, March 29.—All the official information relative to peace is of a negative nature. At the same time the official view is now strongly optimistic that peace is not far distant. This view is not due to exact information, but is the result of Russia's present predicament. However, the foreign office refuses to credit the various reports that France is taking a hand in the negotiations or preliminaries and specifically denies the report from a northern capital that Russia has asked Foreign Minister Delcasse to act as intermediary. Another report displayed in the Echo De Paris today says the United States "is about to make a coup de theater by initiating peace."

This likewise is not credited in high quarters as letters just received from Ambassador McCormick says Russia has not made any advances through him. Moreover, Mr. McCormick's departure for St. Petersburg tonight is regarded in diplomatic circles as indicating that there is no imminence of the United States playing a decisive role. On the contrary, the general view is that Japanese official opinion is pessimistic concerning peace being realized. This indicates that the preliminaries have not made appreciable progress or else that Japan does not intend to interrupt her successful campaign. It is even intimated in a high quarter that it makes no difference what St. Petrsburg decides relative to asking for peace, as it will remain for Tokio to accept or reject it. Therefore, it is maintained that the peace situation has shifted from St. Petersburg to Tokio, which now holds the key to the peace question.

Although official information is lacking, it is asserted in well-informed quarters that Japan has permitted Russia to learn that the peace conditions will be severely rigorous and will not be responsive to the recent sentimental plea to Japan's magnanimity.

In particular it is said that Japan's indemnity figure is $800,000,000, and that this stupendous sum has proved so staggering to Russian diplomacy that it is the chief cause why the peace preliminaries do not advance to a decisive stage.

St. Petersburg, March 29, 2 p. m.—Russia's attitude was described today by a prominent diplomat as follows:

"The government is now for peace, but continues to prepare for war."

The whole situation with reference to the prosecution of the war is being carefully considered from every viewpoint by a commission sitting under the presidency of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, inspector general of cavalry, and consisting of Minister of War Sakharoff, Vice Admiral Avelyan, head of the Russian admiralty department, Minister of Finance Kokovsoff, Minister of Railroads Hilykoff, Foreign Minister Lamsdorff, Gens. Grodekoff and Kamaroff and several others. Every phase of the situation, military, naval, financial, transportation, Siberian and diplomatic, is being considered. The commission's report, which is expected to be completed in ten days, will be prepared by Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaivitch and Gens. Grodekoff and Kamaroff for submission to the emperor.

DISASTER FEARED

By Absence of Dispatches From the Front.

London, March 29.—The Times' St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs as follows:

"The entire absence of private and press telegrams from the front, together with a laconic message from Gen. Linevitch last night, dated Harbin, and saying 'No reports from the armies,' evolves fears that communications have been cut and the Japanese have turned the Russian positions."

JAPS LOST 57,000

In Recent Battles, According To Lowest Estimate.

Tokio, March 29.—Twenty thousand Russian prisoners captured in the battle of Mukden have already arrived in Japan.

A revised unofficial estimate of the Japanese casualties in the battles of Mukden and Tie pass place the number at 57,000. Flags captured at Mukden have been presented to the emperor.

Gen. Mayeda, who was wounded at Mukden, is dead.

JAPS ARE ADVANCING.

St. Petersburg, March 29.—A telegram from Gunshu pass, dated March 28, says the Russians have evacuated the railroad station at Chaoumiaodzi, forty miles below Gunshu pass, and that the Japanese are advancing.

NO CHANGE AT FRONT.

St. Petersburg, March 29.—Chief of Staff Karkevitch telegraphs from the front today that no change has taken place in the positions of the armies.

Russian sharpshooters, March 26, were in conflict with a force of Japanese infantry and cavalry at Khouanchiline.

The commander-in-chief, Gen. Linevitch, has inspected the second army and found the troops to be in excellent shape.

CONDITION IS CRITICAL

Amos Shephard Has Turn For the Worse—Is Delirious.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the condition of Amos Shephard, who sustained a fracture of the skull yesterday by falling to the floor in the Kitchi Gammi club, was very serious. He was considerably improved this morning, but during the forenoon grew worse and became delirious. He is very restless and the gravest of fears have been aroused by the turn for the worse which his condition has taken.

WESTERN SECTION

Of the Presbyterian Alliance Mee s At Nashville.

Nashville, Tenn., March 29.—The Western section of the Alliance of Reformed Churches holding the Presbyterian system began its annual convention here today. About fifty members of the section are present.

The treasurer's report showed that money had been raised for a testimonial to be presented to Dr. George D. Matthews, the general secretary of the Presbyterian alliance. The presentation will take place at London in May.

The section reaffirmed its approval of the conference of representatives of all Protestant churches to be held in New York in November.

RAISULI SI INVITED TO MEET EMPEROR

Tangier, Morocco, March 29.—The governor of Tangier has dispatched an invitation to Raisuli, the brigand chief, to come in with the principal tribesmen to meet Emperor William. It is understood that the German legation has guaranteed Raisuli against any interference on the part of the Moorish government.

DOLPHIN LEAVES HAVANA.

Washington, March 29.—The navy department was advised today of the departure of Secretary Morton and party on the Dolphin from Havana to Fernandino, Fla. From the latter point they will proceed by rail to Washington.

SUICIDE AT HOSPITAL.

St. Louis, March 29.—Gustave Haeber, 80 years old, for many years manager of the Western Reserve Life Insurance company, died last night from a bullet wound. Mr. Haeber had been a patient in the Lutheran hospital since his retirement from active business, about a year ago. The hospital authorities are preplexed over the presence of the revolver in Mr. Haeber's room and are investigating the matter.

TROOPS KILLED BY NATIVES.

Berlin, March 28.—An official dispatch from Windhoek, German Southwest Africa, today announced that eleven men of Kerchner's detachment were killed and twenty-two were wounded in a fight with natives, March 10 and 11, at Kosis and Gelbanes.

MASONIC EVENTS

Public Opening of Temple Right After Easter Dedications.

Other Affairs In Masonic Circles Tabulated For Near Future.

Since the housewarming of the new Masonic Temple given last Friday night, considerable inquiry has been made as to whether or not there will be a public opening of the building so that those who have not entered the mysteries may go through the building and view it. It can be stated that such an opening has been considered and determined on, but it will not take place until after Easter.

During Easter week Scottish Rite Masonry will be in full swing here, a large class being arranged for, and besides that, there will be elaborate dedication ceremonies for the Scottish Rite theater of the Temple. As soon as this furore will have quieted down the public opening will take place.

The date is not yet fixed, but on the day when the opening will take place the reception of the public will begin about 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon and continue until 9 or 10 at night so that the ladies may see the Temple during the day and the men may go in the evening, after their business hours are over. Further big Masonic events are slated for the near futuro and will be announced later.

FLAATEN TESTIMONIAL.

Sunday's Band Concert Will Be For Director.

As a fitting tribute to Director J. H. Flaaten, for whose painstaking and energetic efforts the success of the winter season of concerts at the Lyceum theater is due, the Third Regiment band, will render a special testimonial benefit concert for its leader next Sunday evening.

The members of the organization decided last Sunday evening without consulting their director, to tender him a benefit testimonial. Each is enthusiastic over the plans for the entertainment and will make greater effort to present such a program as will eclipse all former concerts. The full band, mustering fifty people, will be present at the concert and several features will be included in the program.

Charles Helmer, concert soloist, who is such a favorite will render a new selection, "The Commodore," which will afford him ample opportunity to display his fine talent. The number selected by him includes several of the difficult triple-tongue passages which proved so pleasing to his auditors in the solo "Remembrance of Liberati" which has been rendered at former concerts.

Several other special numbers are being arranged for the affair and it is assured that there will be little room remaining for late comers when the curtain rises next Sunday evening.

MINER KILLED.

Virginia, Minn., March 29.—Otto E. Kohlm, a miner at the Commodore, was killed Monday night, being struck by an underground car. Deputy Coroner Crowe was called and will conduct an inquest.

PUZZLE TO SOLVE

Health Department Confronted With Serious Problem.

City Has Dire Need of New Dumping Grounds.

During the course of the annual spring clean-up which will be commenced within the next two or three weeks, the city health department is going to be seriously handicapped for lack of proper dumping grounds unless arrangements for a new site can be made by the health commissioner.

By the time the work is commenced the city will probably be without a dumping ground in the central part of the city, and will have no place to deposit the rubbish that is collected in all the district from Eighteenth avenue west to the eastern limits of the city.

The city is still using the ground at Ninth avenue, but the health commissioner has been warned to discontinue dumping there, and an injunction suit is threatened if the warning is not heeded.

The old dumping ground at Eighteenth avenue is still being used and there is one at West Duluth which takes care of all refuse collected in that part of the city. If the city is compelled to stop using the Ninth avenue dump, there will be no place east of Eighteenth avenue west where garbage and ashes can be deposited.

At Lakeside some of the vacant land of the Lakeside Land company has been used for the purpose, but the company naturally objects, and has warned the city to discontinue making use of the land in this manner. Dr. Murray is now making arrangements to secure a piece of land in Lakeside which can be used as a dumping ground for that part of the city, and also a part of the East end, during the spring clean-up.

Just what disposition can be made of all the refuse collected from the central part of the city during the next two or three months, is very doubtful. Some new arrangement will have to be made or the department will be compelled to make the long haul to the West end or still farther to Lakeside.

Meanwhile the enabling act before the legislature, allowing the city council to purchase a garbage incinerator, is making good progress towards its final passage, and there is now little doubt of it becoming law. It will solve the question of dumping grounds for all time to come, as it will take care of the garbage, and there is always a demand for clean ashes to fill up low lying ground.

This does not make the problem any easier for the next two or three months, however, as the crematory could not possibly be erected before August or September.

GRAFT WAS OBJECT

Of Colorado Miner's Strike, Says Walter Wellmen.

Chicago, March 29.—Walter Wellman, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says: Now that bitter war is on between trade unionism and socialism in the labor ranks, and the American Federation of Labor has officially forbidden its membership to contribute any more funds to the Western Federation of Miners, because the latter organization is trying to destroy trade unionism and commit American organized labor to socialism and radicalism, it is an opportune time to reveal a secret concerning the origin and motive of the great strike in the Colorado gold fields last year. It is about as black and ugly a story as one would care to read of men who are presumably respectable.

In conversation with the writer at Denver last summer, William D. Haywood, secretary and moving spirit of the Western Federation of Miners, said:

"When John Mitchell started his strike in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania he had only $9,000 in his treasury. When the strike came to an end he had a million dollars. Why can't we do the same?"

Thus was disclosed the real animus of the great strike in the Cripple Creek and Telluride fields—a strike when led to untold loss and suffering on the part of Haywood's dupes, and to many violent deaths. There never was any valid excuse for this strike. It was a strike brought on by Haywood and Moyer for the simple purpose of emulating John Mitchell's example in raising an enormous fund from generous and sympathetic work people throughout the country.

MALLORY RETURNS.

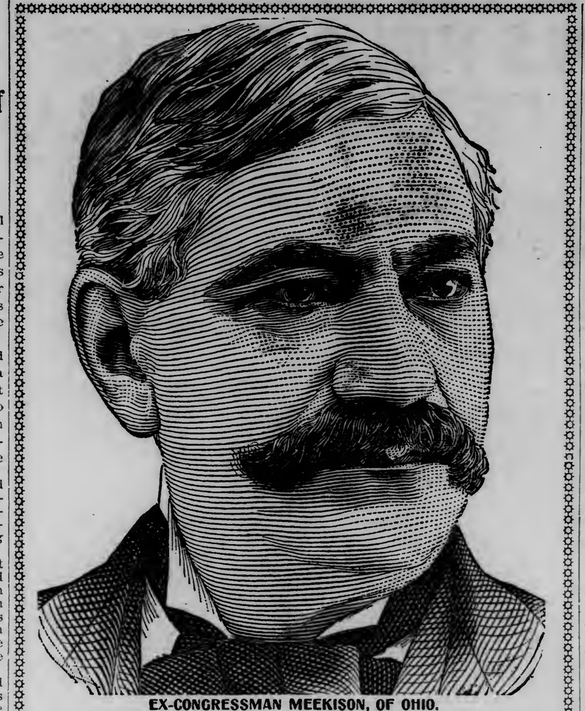

Deputy Marshal Back From Trip To Coast.

Deputy United States Marshal George J. Mallory returned yesterday from Port Townsend, Wash., where he went in company with Deputy United States Marshal William M. Grimshaw Jr., taking with them four Chinamen who are to be deported to China for violation of the immigration laws. Mr. Mallory says that in the United States jail at Port Townsend there are thirty-five Chinamen held for similar offenses and most of them are slated for deportation. A few have appealed from the decision of the commissioner and their fate is still problematical.

Of the four Chinamen who Mr. Mallory and Mr. Grimshaw took to the coast, three are satisfied to go back to China, one particularly being very much pleased over the prospect, but one, who Mr. Mallory says is a bright young fellow, feels very gloomy over being fired out of the country. This Chinaman thinks the United States is good enough for him.

HAD CATARRH THIRTY YEARS.

Congressman Gives Praise to Pe-ru-na for His Recovery.

EX-CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON, OF OHIO.

Hon. David Meekison, Napoleon, Ohio, ex-member of Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth congresses, writes:

"I have used several bottles of Peruna and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."

Hon. David Meekison began his political career by serving four consecutive terms as mayor of the town in which he lives.

He was elected to the Fifty-fifth congress by a very large majority, and is the acknowledged leader of his party in his section of the state.

For thirty years he waged unsuccessful warfare against this personal enemy.

At last Peruna came to the rescue, and he dictated the above letter to Dr. Hartman as the result.

Hon. Samuel H. Mitchell, 1 Baldwin Place, Brighton, Mass., member of council and house of representatives for ward 25, Boston, writes:

"I have never before found a medicine which would break up a cold so readily as Peruna, and it is also effective in curing catarrh.

"I began using Peruna and in a few weeks the catarrh had vanished."

Neglected Colds Lead to Catarrh—Neglected Catarrh Becomes Chronic.

The fact that catarrh will continue to afflict one person for thirty years shows how chronic the disease really is.

When catarrh has once fastened itself upon the human system, it shows a disposition to remain.

Catarrh is not self-curative nor self-eliminative. It continues as long as it is allowed to remain.

Catarrh is naturally a chronic disease and continues to grow worse, not better.

For thirty years Congressman Meekison had catarrh, and yet he experienced a cure by the use of Peruna.

Surely, if Peruna will cure a case of catarrh that has run thirty years, it will cure more recent cases.

There are probably ten millions of uncured cases of catarrh in the United States alone.

What a multitude of victims this is! What an ocean of discouragement and unhappiness! What a Niagara of anguish and suffering!

In all probability Peruna would quickly cure every one of these cases. Taken according to the directions, Peruna rarely fails to cure any case of chronic catarrh.

Indeed, if it ever fails, it is because of some complication entirely one side from catarrh.

Mrs. William Mann, 595 Comley Ave., Niles, Mich., writes:

"After having been troubled with catarrh all my life, Peruna cured me.

"I was so bad that I had lost the sense of smell when I was about fifteen years old. My head and nose were continually filled so that I had to breath through my mouth.

"There was a constant dropping in my throat. My general health was miserable. I felt tired all the time.

"About two years ago I began to take Peruna and I feel like a different person. Now I can breathe through my nose without any trouble, and the soreness in my throat is all gone.

"Peruna has done so many wonders for me that I gave it to my little daughter who had bronchitis and it helped her. I cannot praise Peruna enough for what it has done for me."

Used Pe-ru-na as a Catarrhal Tonic.

Hon. W. E. Andrews, ex-congressman from Nebraska, writes from the treasury department, Washington, D. D., as follows:

"I can cheefully recommend your preparation, Peruna, as a healthful tonic, and a successful remedy for catarrh in its various forms."

We have on file thousands of testimonials like those given above. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving for Peruna.

CHICAGO FIRM LOWEST BIDDER

For Construction of New Federal Building at Superior.

Washington, March 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids were opened yesterday afternoon in the office of the supervising architect of the treasury for the construction of the new postoffice, courthouse and customhouse at Superior, Wis. There were fifteen bidders, the lowest being Charles W. Gindele & Co. of Chicago at $168,668. The other bidders follow:

Newman & Hoy, St. Paul, $169,200; O. H. Oleson, Stillwater, Minn., $169,900; W. J. McAlpin, Dixon, Ill., $171,600; William H. Maxwell, Pierre, S. D., $172,942; Butler Bros., St. Paul, $174,738; P. M. Hennessey Construction company, St. Paul, $175,000; Schmidt Bros., Superior, $177,733; Northern Construction company, Milwaukee, $178,000; McCarthy Bros., Chicago, $185,825; E. A. Dahl & Co., Superior, $184,274; George H. Lounsberry, Duluth, $185,211; McLeod & Smith, Duluth, $186,000; John Donlin, Superior, $199,743; Barnett & Record company, Minneapolis, $224,500.

PREMIER HONORS

At Athletic Meet Won By Chicago Association.

Chicago, March 29.—The Chicago Athletic association won premier honors in the first annual meet held under the auspices of the New Illinois Athletic club at the Coliseum here last night. The First Regiment Athletic association was second and the University of Chicago was third. The feature event, the one mile relay universities, went to the University of Wisconsin. Time 3:56 2-5. The meet was given for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital, and was a great social event, boxes in the mammoth building being occupied by many of Chicago's leaders of society.

Mayor Carter H. Harrison fired the gun that signalized the commencement of the program. The widely heralded contest in the 16-pound shot put between Ralph S. Rose, the world's champion, and W. W. Coe, Jr., of Boston, proved an easy victory for Rose. Coe dropped out of the contest at 45 feet. 1½ inches. W. A. Draper of the Chicago Athletic association, was second in this event. Rose failed to equal his former record of 48 feet 7 inches by over a foot, the farthest he could hurl the shot tonight being 47 feet 6 inches.

The sixty yard dash was won by Archie Hahn, of the Milwaukee Athletic association, with R. W. Albertson, of the First Regiment Athletic association, a close second.

THE "HILLSIDE" SYSTEM.

Manager Case Answers Criticisms of Reservoir Site.

To the Editor of The Herald:

For the information of the public, will you please publish the following extract from the report submitted to the council last Monday night in regard to the "hillside" system:

"This plan includes the establishment of a permanent reservoir at some available point to supply the whole middle system, and I have selected as such point the block between Sixth and Seventh streets west and Fourth and Fifth avenues, because the elevation required can be reached at this point at a shorter distance from the pipe system than at any other. * * * Should we be unable to obtain the required depth without blasting at this location, I should advise some other locality to be selected, where it can be obtained, as it is much cheaper to lay pipe than it is to excavate rock, if it is to be done to any extent."

I wish to add that I shall make no further public recognition of the scurrilous attacks that are being made upon me.

If my life for over six years in this community, coupled with the memory of their experiences seven or eight years ago, with a service that was outrageous and with water and gas rates that were burdensome, together with the knowledge of their present service, with both water and gas rates less than one-half, if these things are not a sufficient refutation to the people of Duluth of the charges made upon me of incompetence or extravagance, I shall make no other. Yours truly,

L. N. CASE.

Duluth, March 29.

WOMAN MYSTERIOUSLY KILLED IN SANITARIUM.

Ottawa, Kan., March 29.—Mrs. Caroline Jones, aged 72, was attacked at a sanitarium during the night by some unknown person and fatally wounded. The mutilation of the body was similar to that in the Nikum murder case in Topeka, last year, when Mrs. Nikum, who conducted a boarding house, was mysteriously mutilated and her body fearfully slashed. No motive for the attack upon Mrs. Jones is known and there is no clue.

WRESTLER THROWN FROM THE STAGE.

Lima, Ohio, March 29.—After forty-five minutes of the most exciting wrestling ever seen in this city between Al Ackerman of Fostoria, and Eddie Barr of Cincinnati, the contest last night was suddenly ended by Barr being shoved from the stage by Ackerman and so seriously hurt that he was accompanied to his hotel by a physician.

Ackerman was working to release himself from a dangerous hold which Barr had on him and during the struggles of the two men Barr was sent flying into the orchestra circle, falling six feet, and fracturing two ribs. Referee McDonald declared the bout a draw.

DOLPHIN AT HAVANA.

Washington, March 28.—The Dolphin, with Secretary Morton's party, arrived at Havana from Guantanamo today. William A. Smith, who is accompanying the secretary, is ill with typhoid fever and has been placed in a hospital at Havana.

MADMAN KILLS MONK.

Accused Priest of Being His Sister's Betrayer.

Rome, March 28.—A deadly duel was fought last week in the famous old Carmelite monastery at Florence between a madman and a monk. Father Bernardo, the prior, was lying ill in his cell talking with a monk named Cellerini, when Giuseppe Vigozzi, a regular attendant at the monastery church, rushed in, and shouting "You are my sister's betrayer; defend yourself if you are no coward," threw a poniard at Cellerini's feet. Cellerini, who was forced to fight, received a fatal thurst, and as he fell dying upon the floor his assailant uttered a shriek of triumph and rushed from the cell along the subway connecting it with the church, which he entered while service was in progress. Before he was overpowered he stabbed another monk to death.

BOYS GIVEN GIRLS' NAMES.

Others Registered Dead To Escape Military Service.

Vienna, March 28.—A great recruiting swindle has been discovered in Northern Hungary. The number of young men available for military service fell off so heavily during the last few years that the government sent a commissioner to take inquiries. Some astonishing revelations are the result. He has found that the birth registers were, for a consideration, systematically falsified, and that the names of boys were either turned into the feminine by adding "a" at the end, or that they were entered as dead. Nearly 10,000 youths thus escaped being enrolled in the recruiting lists. Those who avoided military service by fraudulent means will now have to serve five years instead of three, and the registers are to be prosecuted for forgery.

Many attempts were made to obtain suppression of the facts. To bribe the commissioner $100,000 was subscribed, and when this failed an attempt was made to poison him.

BON AMI SAILS

To Leave For Grand Marais On First Regular Trip.

Ice Rotting in Lake and Bay—Open Water in Latter.

The Booth company's steamer Bon Ami will make her first north shore trip tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, going to Grand Marais and back. It is hoped that she will make regular trips from now on and Manager Coventry believes she can. He does not look for much impediment from ice for it is in very bad shape and he believes can be easily plowed through.

The Bon Ami will be in charge of Capt. J. C. Hector, one of the best north shore captains in the service.

Regarding the ice, Weather Forecaster Richardson says today that the prevailing off-shore wind is doing all kinds of things to the ice in the harbor and in the lake. But, Mr. Richardson says, the wind is likely to switch around tomorrow and blow from the northeast again, which will drive the ice back this way. However, he believes that the west wind has rotted the ice so that it will not recover and a break-up is to be expected soon.

The lake is now practically free from ice with the exception of small floating fields, for as far as the eye can see.

In the bay there is open water on this side of the harbor as far west as Ninth avenue and it extends pretty well out into the bay.

WINSTON CHURCHILL,

Author of "The Crisis," Is Facing Arrest.

Manchester, N. H., March 29.—Winston Churchill, author of the "Crises" and a member of the New Hampshire legislature, faces arrest by Sheriff Nathaniel Doane of Hillsborough county.

The sheriff has tried to be nice about serving the process on the celebrity, sending the papers to him several times by registered mail, but invariably the package was returned unopened.

Investigation showed Churchill to be an involuntary "side stepper," all because he is suffering from being famous. Pursued by autograph hunters, who have adopted the registered package dodge by which to procure his signature, he has directed his secretary to return all registered mail.

Now the sheriff is on his trial and says that if Churchill doesn't assist in the matter he will be subjected to process like any ordinary person. The suit concerns a defunct newspaper in which Churchill was interested.

INCREDIBLE BRUTALITY.

It would have been incredible brutality if Chas. F. Lemberger, of Syracuse, N. Y., had not done the best he could for his suffering son. MISS HOPPER SCORES

In Fight For Stepfather's Big Estate.

San Francisco, March 29.—The first score has been won by Edna Wallace Hopper in the fight for a share in the $7,000,000 estate of the British Columbia coal king, Alexander Dunsmuir, her stepfather.

James Dunsmuir, a brother and sole devisee, had planned to get possession of the estate by filing the original will in Victoria, where it is not necessary to give notice or have the will proven by the subscribing witnesses, and then institute auxiliary proceedings in San Francisco.

Judge Coffey has declared null and void all proceedings taken in his court in May, 1904, because the original will was not filed here. The document must now be brought here and filed, thus insuring a contest on the part of Miss Hopper and her mother, Mrs. Olive Dunsmuir. Never before has such radical action been taken in a California court. The ruling will affect other estates involving millions.

FIRES AT DOGS

Gun Play Causes Scare Among Union Depot Loungers.

Owner of Gun Loaded With Weapons And Money.

When Frank Willard cut loose with a 6-shooter on a couple of dogs which were tangled up in a fight this morning in the crowd of station loungers outside of the Union depot showed the scattering powers of a Russian general.

In just thirteen seconds the street was as deserted as Tower avenue in Superior.

The bullets spattered against the cement sidewalk, but as long as the dogs remained the target of the gun play, they were safe. All they had to fear was that Frank would tire of practising on them, and begin blazing away at some other object.

The cannonading attracted the attention of the policeman on the Bowery beat. Soon he hove in sight around the corner of Fifth avenue, and before Frank knew what had happened he was a prisoner.

When searched at police headquarters he proved to be a perfect mine and a traveling arsenal combined. In addition to the gun which the police confiscated, the officers dug out of his hip pocket one of the little sleep producers known as a "billy." It is one of the inoffensive little leather sacks loaded with shot which policemen carry, and when swung from a leather strap about the wrist will put a kink in any healthy man's ambitions quicker than a dose of prusic acid.

Out of one of his side pockets the officers took a pair of steel "knuckles." When in a playful mood you can don a pair of "knuckles" and tapping your companion behind the ear with them can make him fall into a deep sleep from which he may awaken in a few hours and may not. It all depends on how hard you tap him.

After Frank had been disarmed, the police began to forage for his money. Frank was simply reeking with wealth. He had paper bills plastered all over him under his clothes. Rolls of fives, tens and twenties were unearthed on all parts of his anatomy and from all the seams of his raiment. The search made you think of one of the acts of Herman the Great. When the police got through and counted up the spoils they found it amounted to a little over $36.

Frank was then taken before Judge Windom and fined $15 and costs for discharging firearms within the city limits. The police confiscated the gun, and the billy and the knuckles and $17 of the roll, and then turned Frank loose.

"Talk about meat for the grafters on the Bowery," said one of the officers, as he watched him walk out of the door. "He ought to have a guardian appointed. If some of those fellows down on the Bowery see him coming they'll feel like going and hugging their grandmothers."

* * *

James Duncan was in court this morning for stealing a watch. As the complaining witness stepped on to the witness stand, Judge Windom recognized an old acquaintance from Ashland, whom he had known when he was a struggling young attorney.

"Why, hello, Jimmy," he said. "What are you doing in Duluth?"

"Well Judge, I guess I was here before you were," was the answer of the witness.

"Jimmy" evidently was in a lenient mood, for he interceded for the prisoner. Judge Windom let him off with a $25 fine and the alternative of spending thirty days in jail.

ROYALTY IN THE ORIENT

The Prince of Wales Will Hold Levees In India.

London, March 29.—The king has approved of the appointment of Sir Walter Lawrence, K. C. I. E., to be head of the staff during the coming visit of the prince and princess of Wales to India. Their royal highnesses will be received in India by his excellency, the viceroy, as the representative of the king. It is the intention of their royal highnesses to visit, so far as the time at their disposal will permit, the principal cities of British India, and the more important native states. During the tour his royal highness will receive the prices and chiefs who rule under the paramount protection of the king-emperor, and will hold levees at which will be presented to him the principal personages of his majesty's Indian dominions.

Although the prince and princess of Wales visited a large number of the British possessions across the seas, in the memorable tour of the Ophir, which lasted from March to November, 1901, India was not included in the extensive itinerary of that occasion. Outward-bound, it is true, the vessel touched at Colombo, where their royal highnesses went ashore, but time only permitted of a journey to Kandy, and much else that they would like to have seen in the island of Ceylon had to be foregone in order that the passage to Australia should not be delayed.

It will be just thirty years next November since the king, then prince of Wales, landed from the Serapis at Bombay, and was enthusiastically welcomed by the hundreds of millions of people of the vast peninsula, who now acknowledge his sway. Poona was next visited, with a stop en route to Kirkee, where was fought the momentous battle which decided the fate of the Mahratta empire and established British rule in India. At Baroda, the capital of a native state, where, of course, the receptions were purely native and Oriental, the young Gaekwar Gaekwar magnificently entertained his illustrious visitor.

Ceylon was touched on the way round to Madras, and thence forward, at every city visited—Calcutta, Benares, the sacred city of the Hindoos; Lucknow, with its memories of the mutiny; Cawnpore, the scene of a great tragedy; Delhi, the ancient city of the Mogul empire; Lahore, Jaypore—went on an incessant round of stately and elaborate ceremonies, which

Seven Year Old Boy Horribly Mangled By An Engine.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Valley City—Ross Lance, 7 years old, son of P. R. Lance of Grand Forks, while playing around one of the Northern Pacific engines here, fell under the wheels and had one leg cut off close to the body and the other mangled. Physicians give no hope for his recovery. Railroad employes had warned him a short time before the accident.

Grafton—Seeding throughout Walsh county will be general this week. Many farmers has started the work. The value of farm lands is steadily increasing. Dr. Suter, formerly of Cavalier county, has disposed of his farm of 196 acres near Crystal for $9,000, or about $46 an acre.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The father of Frank Ritter, a prominent Bon Homme county farmer who was found dead at his home last January under circumstances which, it was thought, indicated suicide, has arrived in South Dakota from Iowa for the purpose of investigating the death of his son.

In a note found near the body, written in the handwriting of Ritter, he stated among other things that "a man with buggy and team forced me to drink." In view of this and other recent discoveries the father of the dead man came to South Dakota for the purpose of having the body exhumed and examined for traces of poison.

The arrest of a pedler on the theory that Ritter had committed suicide as the result of humiliation resulting from an alleged transaction between himself and the man in custody may lead to the clearing up of the mystery regarding Ritter's death.

Vermillion—While expressing a very friendly feeling for Hon. John Holman of Yankton, members of the Vermillion bar do not take kindly to the announcement that it has practically been decided to give him the judgeship of the First circuit when Judge E. G. Smith is elevated to the supreme bench. In filling this vacancy, which it is said will be made, the local members feel, in common with the attorneys of other counties in the district, that they ought to have something to say in regard to the matter. They have not been consulted in the least, and do not expect to be, since it is already given out what is to be done.

Samaritans Attention!

SALARY

New York, March 29.—A definite statement was made on Wall street yesterday that John D. Rockefeller receives only $20,000 a year as president of the Standard Oil company, in which he owns capital stock to the amount of $40,000,000, and which has a market value of $248,000,000. To this statement was added another, that few employes of the Standard Oil company receive much more than $5,000 a year.

As most executives in the company, however, have grown to be millionaires within the last fifteen years, it is supposed the valuable advice they get for investments and the opportunities they have in getting in on the ground floor of corporations and enterprises in which the Standard Oil group of financiers figure, have more than compensated them for the small salaries they have received from the economical administration of the great monopoly.

Notwithstanding Mr. Rockefeller's small salary, it is said his total income is between $38,000,000 and $40,000,000 a year.

TO SHOW THE FLAG.

American Squadron To Visit South American Ports.

Washington, March 29.—A new system has been adopted by the navy department, upon recommendation of the general strategical board, to display the American flag in South American, African and European waters. A squadron of four vessels, with the armored cruiser Brooklyn as flagship, will leave early in the summer for a cruise to last until next fall.

The squadron will touch various ports in Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina, and its commander will make official calls upon the presidents of those republics. If American interests are menaced, the ships will, of course, be available to provide protection. This squadron will not touch Venezuelan ports.

From South America the squadron will proceed to Africa and then north to Europe, and will return in time to participate in the great fleet evolutions next winter.

LOOK FOR RUSH

Ore Movement Expected At Docks By April 15 At Latest.

Trains Loading at Mines Now and Other Preliminary Work Doing.

Preparations are making at present at the ore docks for the opening of the season, and it is expected that by April 15 at the latest ore will be moving from the mines to the docks. The preliminary work is now on at both mines and docks. Trains are being loaded and sidetracked here in preparation for the opening. Then when everything is ready the rush will begin and the ore will be dumped into the docks rapidly.

It is believed that before long the boats will be in readiness for loading, and it is more than likely that as soon as the lake ice permits of it, there will be a large fleet of loaded ore carriers going down the lakes.

The work on the new portion of the ore docks is progressing fairly well. Everything possible to rush it is being done, but there is some delay about certain kinds of timber arriving, for instance, maple for lining the pockets.

LACK OF CROSSING

In Zenith Company's Yards Causes Protest to Aldermen.

There is considerable kicking about the entry from the streets and avenues to the blast furnace yards at West Duluth. A formal kick has been received by Alderman Barnes from people who are affected by the crossing, or rather lack of crossing, at Fifty-sixth avenue. Formerly a walk and steps were in at this point, but last fall the furnace company pulled them out, and now the workmen and others have to jump down from the roadway and wade through the mud or go around quite a distance to another entry.

Mr. Barnes said today that he will look the matter up and see what could be done, but believes the workmen and others having business with the furnace company should have adequate approaches to the company's yards, or it may be up to the city to condemn a strip of land in the yards and make a roadway.

PLANS ARE OFF.

Plans for a social session next Thursday night after the annual business meeting of the Western Curling association of West Duluth, are off. The club talked the matter over last evening at J. A. Scott's office and decided that the business meeting would take too long as there is a great deal of business to come up for discussion besides the election of officers.

A review of the club's first winter proves very encouraging for coming winters. There are forty-two members and the club is in excellent financial condition. It has a long time lease on the property on which the rink is built and has a good rink with fine ice sheets.

The annual meeting will take place as per schedule Tuesday night, but there will be no festivities. It is planned to have these later and already the matter is under way.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Ed McCullough is back from Saginaw, Mich.

John Perry and Mrs. Pauline Lamar were married one day last week, much to the surprise of their friends, and they are now out of town on a wedding trip. On their return they will live at 19 Fifty-sixth avenue west for a time, but it is expected that they will soon move to Northwestern Canada.

Fred Putvan and Theodore Tobarge came down from Virginia yesterday.

Fred Thraub has returned from Maple, Wis., where he was working for the Hines Lumber company.

Arthur Blamay, who sprained his ankle in Proctorknott a few days ago, is now able to be about.

Spring shoes at Lauermann's.

Oliver Olson of Fifty-eighth avenue west and Ramsey street is laid up with a sprained back, which he got while working at the Clyde iron works.

George Govette and Ernie Coughlin will wrestle at Great Eastern hall Monday night.

Robert McKeever and some friends came down from Scanlon yesterday to visit in West Duluth.

Mrs. J. A. Brotherton of Fifty-first avenue west is entertaining her niece, Mrs. Joseph Marcy of Minneapolis and Mrs. Dr. Johnson of Cloquet.

Joseph Faulkner is building himself a two-story residence on Forty-ninth avenue. It will present a neat appearance when finished.

W. W. Metcalfe has rented the Chicago house, on Fifty-second avenue and Gosnold, and will run it as a boarding house.

The street commissioner is cleaning up Central avenue and has it in more presentable condition now; in such a condition that one may walk across it without becoming bogged. If a few loads of crushed rock were rolled into the paving soon the street would be in pretty fair shape.

C. E. Pelcher of the Merrill & Ring row is laid up at home, having run a rusty nail into his foot a few days ago. The wound gives him considerable pain, but no serious consequences are looked for.

John Fox is down from Hibbing.

The Westminster Presbyterian church congregation will hold its annual meeting at the church Thursday night, at which trustees and elders will be elected and the business of the pastorate transacted. The church is free from debt and will begin the new fiscal year on an unimpeded basis.

Dr. Osler's Theory Wrong! Age of Man 150 Years

Dr. Lyman Beecher Sperry Says Good Health and Activity for Century and Half Are Possible.

There Are Over 4,000 Men and Women in the United States Over 100 Years Old, Who Have Retained Their Faculties, Vigor and Usefulness By Using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as Their Only Medicine.

STEPHEN JOYCE, OF WACO, TEXAS, WHO BY THE RECORDS IS 149 YEARS OLD, SAYS:

"I find that with advancing years a stimulant such as Paul recommended to Timothy prevents the infirmities of old age. My only Medicine is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

The startling statement made by Dr. William Osler in a recent address delivered in Baltimore, in which he advanced the absurd theory that men cease to be at their best after the age of 40, and that their usefulness had entirely departed at 60, has called down more adverse criticism than any proposition ever formulated by the medical profession.

Had Dr. Osler taken the trouble to probe a little deeper before making his rash statement he would have discovered that during the past fifty years nearly 4,000 hale and hearty old men and women have reached and passed the century mark, and in nearly every instance their vigorous health and continued usefulness in old age are due to the regular use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. During the same period the unequalled record has been made of over 4,000,000 cures throughout the world wherein the most prominent doctors of every school have prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as the greatest tonic stimulant known to medicine.

In proof of this statement there are given herewith a few extracts, picked at random from many thousands of testimonials from doctors, ministers of the Gospel and old men and women who have been kept hale and hearty by the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey:

Rev. M. N. Houghton, D. D., Bradford, Pa.:—"I want to go on record as saying that I regard Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as one of the greatest gifts that God has made to man."

Francis Burton, Buffalo, N. Y., 114 years old:—"I walt on myself and with the continued use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey believe that I am good for 25 years more."

Major General Alexander Hamilton, Tarrytown, N. Y.:—"I can never forget what your grand medicine has done for me."

Dr. E. H. Bowne, Kingston, N. J.:—"I have successfully prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for more than 25 years, and my patients never fail to respond favorably."

Mrs. Louisa Cox, Harrington, Me., 105 years old:—"By the aid of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey I keep in excellent health and am enabled to attend to all my domestic duties."

Hiram Cronk, Ava, N. Y., 109 years old: "By the aid of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey I can brave the severest weather and take extended tramps."

Mrs. D. M. Roberts, La Grange, Ill., 100 years old:—"It is a wonderful tonic-stimulant and by its use I keep healthy and can see to thread a needle."

Mrs. William Pratt, Chelsea, Mass., 91 years old:—"It is a grand medicine and has sustained and comforted me after all else failed."

Mrs. Lydia Couch, 95 years old:—"Thanks to Duffy's my appetite and digestion keep good. I sleep well and my health is excellent."

CAUTION.—When you ask for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. Unscrupulous dealers, mindful of the excellence of this preparation, will try to sell you cheap imitations and malt whiskey substitutes, which are put on the market for profit only, and which, far from relieving the sick, are positively harmful. Demand "Duffy's" and be sure you get it. It is the only absolutely pure medicinal whiskey, and is sold by every reliable druggist and grocer in the country, or direct in sealed bottles only. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and be certain the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1 per bottle.

CITY BRIEFS

Lawyers' briefs. North Land Printery.

The Womens' Mission society of the Hope church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. E. Barth of 714 Lake avenue south.

Contracts for supplies, excepting coal, for the federal building have been bid on and the bids were opened yesterday in the port collector's office. They will be forwarded to Washington.

Joseph S. Schindler, a laborer of Sauk Rapids, Minn., has field a voluntary petition asking to be adjudged a bankrupt. His assets amount to nothing except his household goods and his wages from the Great Northern road, which are claimed to be exempt, and his liabilities foot up to $871 consisting of personal expenses and accounts with mercantile firms.

Judge Morris ordered A. Stuller released from bankruptcy yesterday.

Mrs. Josie Swensk, who keeps a restaurant at 346 Lake avenue south, was fined $15 and costs in the municipal court yesterday afternoon for selling liquor without a license. The woman sold two quart bottles of beer to a customer yesterday and the police say that two cases of beer bottls were found on the premises.

PERSONALS

G. A. DeWilde of Sheboygan, Wis., is the guest of Oscar Fleer of 411 East Fourth street.

Mrs. Frank P. McNierney of Chicago, is at St. Mary's hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. McNierney was before marriage Miss Springer, and is a neice of M. S. Burrows.

Mrs. J. D. Zein left for Milwaukee today.

M. Deutsch leaves today for Omaha.

O. C. Hartman has gone to St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. O'Donnell of Milwaukee are in the city, called here by the death of Mrs. O'Donnell's mother, Mrs. Amanda Porter.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Hartford, Conn., March 29.—Col. Jacob L. Greene, president of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, died today of apoplexy at his residence here. He was born in 1837. He had been president of the company since 1878 and had written many authoritative articles on financial topics. He lived for many years in Michigan.

San Francisco, March 29.—Isaac L. Requc, ex-president of the Central Pacific railroad, a position he held for many years, and also a director in other Huntington lines during the lifetime of the late C. P. Huntington, is dead. He was born in Tarrytown, N. Y., eighty years ago, and came to California in 1850. He engaged in mining with success, and at one time was superintendent of some of the more important mines on the Comstock lode. His death is attributed to nervous collapse, which his advanced age could not withstand.

Louisville, Ky., March 29.—Col. Frederick De Funiak, capitalist and distinguished citizen, died at his residence here today. Col. De Funiak was born in Rome, Italy, sixty-five years ago and was a veteran of Garibaldi's army. He was a long time chief engineer of the Louisville & Nashville railroad.

NO LAWS VIOLATED

By Dealings With Equitable Company, Says Schiff.

New York, March 29.—Jacob H. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., made a statement today with reference to the charges made yesterday, in a petition presented to the state attorney general at Albany by Senator Brackett. These charges alleged that Mr. Schiff, who is a director of the Equitable Life Assurance society, had received commission on bonds worth $5,000,000 sold to the society by his own banking firm, and that therefore he had violated the law forbidding in such transactions Mr. Schiff made the following statement:

"It must not be expected that I shall dignify by any defense of my firm's position the wild allegations made and which have no basis in fact. Suffice it to say that my firm has recently submitted to different eminent counsel the transactions it has made heretofore with the Equitable, and has been advised by all of these counsel that in their opinion no reason exists why these dealings should be discontinued and similar transactions as heretofore not be made in the future by the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. with the Equitable Life Assurance society."

At the office of James Hyde, vice president of the society, it was said that Mr. Hyde had nothing to say in reference to the charges made against him to the effect that funds of the society had been used by Mr. Hyde to pay for entertainments given by him.

APPENDICITIS CURED.

But She Thinks No Knife Was Used.

London, March 29.—American society, particularly the parents of American duchesses and peeresses, are warned not to get excited when her grace, or ladyship, announces that she has to go to an institution for appendicitis, to be operated on. Since Princess Victoria had a real case, every woman in high society who respects her position imagines that she has another, and the doctors wink good-naturedly at the deception.

An American countess who had the disease, or rather the semblance of it, and was cured, described the mode of treatment to a friend as follows: "To begin with, I was taken under medical surveillance for the period of a week—had to lie still and live on soft food, which did me a world of good. The doctor insisted that I was taking the cure, but I have no recollection of it. Next the crucial moment arrived and I was told that I must be operated on. I was given an anaesthetic, and when I awoke I was most artistically bandaged up, while both the doctor and nurse cried that it was the most perfect operation ever performed on any human being. The bandages were removed daily with great minuteness and, after two weeks, I was told I might be removed to my own house as cured. But I am quite sure the doctor never used a knife on me, not even a pin. Still his bills couldn't have been larger if he had removed my stomach and arms and legs in addition."

ENTERTAIN LADIES

National Biscuit Company Representatives Hold Large Reception.

Armory, Where Demonstration Takes Place, An Animated Scene.

This afternoon the armory is the headquarters of the National Biscuit company and is flying that concern's purple flag. There is a reception to the ladies of Duluth and vicinity going on within, and for their enjoyment Flaaten's archestra is playing some of the prettiest airs in its repertoire. The squadron of fifteen good looking young men sent out by the National Biscuit company to do this sort of thing, and known professionally as "the demonstration squad" takes good care of the many ladies who are visiting the display of the company's articles of manufacture. The reception is largely attended.

Royal purple is the prevailing color for it is the color which the company has adopted as representative, the "Uneeda biscuit" having been first put out in royal purple boxes. The flag on the armory is purple, the youths who open the door for you on the street are in uniforms of purple hue, the ushers who meet the ladies and conduct them to the booths and tables prepared for their service are dressed in purple and the young men who look after the visitors after they are inside wear ascot ties of the same color. The decorations which have been put up are of varied colors but purple prevails. And the color scheme is pretty.

Speaking of the dress of the young men of the "demonstration squad" the same uniformity is observed as is found in every other feature of the display. The young men are attired according to vogue for an afternoon reception, wearing black cutaway frock coats, black vests with white edging at the collars, striped trousers and are otherwise in regulation garb except for the ties which are as has been said, of purple.

The armory is prettily decorated, there being banners and pennants in plenty bearing the advertisements and designs of the National Biscuit company, building of the various colors used by the company extends from a center piece to the corners and sides of the armory and along the ends and sides of the building are conspicuously arranged the stands of biscuit boxes tastefully arranged in various designs, much on the principal of block building taught children but on a more elaborate scale of course. These box arrangements will be left here to be displayed in store windows as advertisements. Among the handsomest designs is that of a grandfathers' clock made up wholly of biscuit boxes.

Chocolate was served from the booths, together with the products of the company, which were of great variety, including biscuits, crackers and wafers suitable for any requirement from oysters to dessert.

Beginning with Uneeda biscuit, which has come to be regarded as "the staff of life," in millions of homes, the guests were served with many other delicious products of the baker's art, among them being oysterettes, butter thin biscuit, graham crackers, social tea biscuit, Zu Zu ginger snaps and others. All these were served direct from their packages, which by excluding all air, dust and moisture, not only keep their contents fresh and preserve goodness, but do away with all handling or exposure to dust in their journey from the oven to the consumer's table. Every lady will be interested in knowing that all this goodness is assured to her by the trade-mark of the National Biscuit company on each end of a package of biscuit, crackers and wafers.

The object of the National Biscuit company in giving this reception was to impress upon every guest the nutritive value of their products. Of these Uneeda biscuit is easily the leader in popularity. As far back as history traces, crackers in one form or other have been valued as an article of food. Only, however, in Uneeda biscuit, has the cracker attained perfection. Made from the finest material the world affords, they are richer in muscle and fat elements, and tissue-building properties than any other article of food made from flour.

Nabisco sugar wafers and festino almonds were served as dessert. These confections are two of the most delicious products of the National Biscuit company.

DELAY ONLY TEMPORARY

Bridge Car Stopped For Adjustment of the Drum.

"There is nothing broken on the bridge," said J. K. Lowery, the superintendent of the construction work, in explaining the reason why the car is tied up today.

"One of the drums on which the cables run needs to be adjusted properly, that is all. We should have done the work before starting the car at all, but we were anxious to get running as soon as possible. We noticed then that it was not adjusted properly, but thought that the friction would wear the cogs away a little and make everything all right. But we find now that it should be fixed, and I have written to the factory at Waukesha to ask them what they think is the best way to remedy the defect. It will be a day or two before I get an answer, and the car will not probably be running again for two or three days. I can't say just when it will start, but there is nothing serious at all and nothing broken. I am sorry we didn't fix it before we started up at all, as any delay of this kind always tends to cause more or less talk."

To Dr. A. E. Walker belongs the credit of driving the first horse and buggy over the new bridge. He made the trip across and back yesterday afternoon, and was followed by a team belonging to Oulette & Baxter, which took a wagon load of lumber across to Park Point.

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY RETALIATES

Topeka, Kan., March 29.—In a spirit of what is believed to be retaliation for the anti-discrimination law passed by the last legislature, the Standard Oil company has discontinued giving jobbers and wholesalers in Kansas concessions in price on refined oil and gasoline. The effect of this order will, it is said, be to take the business of handling kerosene away from the wholesalers, who now will have to pay the retail price for these commodities.

SHIPMENT OF ORE

First of the 1905 Season Arrives At Two Harbors.

The 1905 ore shipping season for the state of Minnesota opened in a small way yesterday, when the first ore to be moved this year from either the Vermilion or Mesaba ranges to Lake Superior docks was hauled from the Adams mine on the Vermilion range, over the Duluth & Iron Range tracks to Two Harbors.

No regular ore train was used in the transportation of the ore, which was loaded into ten cars and made a part of a freight train. Regular daily shipments from the Adams mine will be made henceforth until the end of the season. Within the next few days ore trains will be running regularly over the Duluth & Iron Range, and it is expected that by April 5, or possibly four or five days later, the season's operations will be in full swing. The improvement work on the yards and docks at Two Harbors will be completed by April 5.

Probably the first shipment of ore over the Missabe road will be made next week, and active operations on the Great Northern ore road will begin about April 10. The office force at the Superior docks have orders to report for work on the latter date. The repair and improvement work on the Missabe docks, Nos. 1 and 2, at Thirty-third avenue west, will be ready for business by the time the season's operations have gotten well under way. Some ore will be loaded into Missabe cars at the mines this week, but none of it will be moved before the latter part of next week, the time for the beginning of shipments depending a good deal upon weather conditions.

All of the ore carrying roads have a large number of extra men employed on new track work. The Missabe has about 600 men working on the tracks, improving, double-tracking and extending the lines. This is exclusive of the force at work on the ore dock repairs and improvements, which numbers more than 200 men. Not more than 150 of the entire 1,000 are what might be called regular employes. The work they are doing is all extra, in preparing things for the shipping season.

The Duluth & Iron Range employes at the present time have in the neighborhood of 400 men on its tracks, the big majority of them being extras. The biggest work of this road is at the Fayal mine, where a total of eight miles of new track is being laid, with thirty-five new switches. Another big job is the raising of eight tracks at Two Harbors, approaching the new dock. The tracks had to be raised a distance of fourteen feet. Trains are at work night and day filling in these approaches, and gravel is being hauled and dumped there at the rate of 230 cars every twenty-four hours. This job will be completed by April 5. The Duluth & Iron Range is laying three miles of double track, while the double track work of the Missabe will extend for thirty miles.

The Great Northern also has a large number of extra men on the range branch.

ANTI-CIGARETTE BILL PASSES

Wisconsin Legislature and Goes To the Governor.

Madison, Wis., March 29.—The Wisconsin senate today after a long debate passed the Evans anti-cigarette bill. The bill absolutely prohibits the sale or manufacture of cigarettes or cigarette paper has already passed the assembly and now goes to the governor.

The joint resolution for the return of the Alabama battle flag taken by the Fifteenth Wisconsin regiment was today amended so as to provide for concurrence by the Wisconsin G. A. R. encampment which meets in La Crosse in June.

A bill prohibiting legislative paid lobbyists from attempting to influence legislators except in open committee of legislative meetings passed in the assembly.

LITTLE BUSINESS TALKS.

You will "know things" about real estate in this city if you read the ads. carefully every day—and you won't if you don't!

Some people pay rent who could well afford to own homes—because they have a drop and a half of Gypsy blood in their veins. If it's "time to move" with you, read the ads. and find that "right place" for which you have so long looked.

You are a "successful author" if you have written a few dozen effective want ads.; and you "know your little book" if you are a regular Herald want ad. reader.

There may be a want ad. today whose errand is to find you. Look for it—you will recognize it when you see it.

To find a friend in a crowd you must scan every face in it—until you see the one you are looking for. To find the want ad. which spells "opportunity" for you it may be necessary to read all of The Herald want ads. regularly.

Arkansas City, Kan., March 29.—There are several Eastern attorneys in Arkansas City taking depositions in the case of George C. Rankin, receiver of the First National Bank of Niles, Mich., vs. New York Life Insurance company, now pending in the federal court at St. Louis. During the hearing of the depositions several sensational statements were made by the attorneys on both sides, heralding one statement that George A. Kimmel, who disappeared from Kansas City, could be produced. Kimmel in 1898 was cashier of the Farmers' State bank. July 29 of that year he went to Topeka to register $19,000 in bonds issued by Creswell township. He registered the bonds and they were left in a place of safety for the bank here. From Topeka he went to Kansas City. He told one of the correspondents of his bank there to leave $620 at his hotel for him. They did so, and he drew the money and disappeared.

When Kimmel disappeared he had a $25,000 life insurance policy. He had, it is said, put this up as collateral with his uncle, C. A. Johnson, cashier of the First National Bank of Niles, Mich., for moneys loaned. Johnson has since been sentenced to the house of correction on charges in connection with his bank methods. After Johnson's sentence Georg. C. Rankin was appointed receiver, and in settling up the affairs of the bank brought suit on Kimmel's life insurance. The case was compromised once and the life insurance company agreed to pay $7,000 for a receipt in full, but Ed O'Brien, an attorney for the insurance company, advised it not to pay, hence the suit. Unless the $7,000 is paid it is the intention of the receiver to wait until the seven years required by law is up and then sue for the face of the policy.

Improved Service to Kansas City and California.

Through palace sleeping cars will leave St. Paul at 9 a. m., Minneapolis, 9:35 a. m., except Sundays, making connection in Kansas City Union depot with the "California Limited" and the "Golden State Limited" trains. This is the only line operating sleeping cars connecting with the California Limited trains. For ticket and berth reservations, call at Minneapolis & St. Louis ticket offices.

CREDIT IS GOOD

Large Number of Inquiries Received For Bond Issues.

Local Investors May Take Majority of the Bonds.

Chances appear to be bright for the disposal of at least a large portion of the $240,000 bond issue, which will be sold on April 10, to Duluth investors.

The issue of $100,000 of bridge bonds, and the $140,000 issue of water and light bonds, will be placed on sale at the same time. They have been advertised for some time past, and bids will be received and opened by the council on April 10.

City Clerk Cheadle stated this morning that there had been many more inquiries than usual, and that the prospects were that the city would secure a small premium from the sale, although it is not likely to be large.

Bids will be received for any amount of the bonds, from $1,000 up, and if any preference can be shown it will be given to local bidders.

Two local investors are known to be bidding on the issue, one seeking to invest $20,000, and the other from $40,000 to $56,000.

If it is possible to do so, one of the bond issues will be disposed of entirely to the Duluth investors, and if enough local bids for the other issue are not received it will be sold in a block to outside bond buyers.

The water and light bonds have thirty years to run and the bridge bonds twenty-five. Both issues draw interest at 4 per cent.

Bids for the bonds can be sent in until 2 o'clock on April 10. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for 1 per cent of the face value of the amount of bonds bid for.

But a very small proportion of the city's bonds have been sold to local investors. Several issues have been disposed of through N. J. Upham & Co., but it is very seldom that city bonds have been actually disposed of in the city. The banks have at times offered to take portions of different issues, but their bids generally conflicted with bids for the entire issue, and were not accepted.

The large number of inquiries that have been received is a good indication that the credit of the city is still unimpaired among bond buyers, in spite of the large amount of comment on the city's heavy bonded indebtedness.

LENTEN LECTURES.

Rev. Charles A. Payne at Pilgrim Congregational Church.

Rev. Charles A. Payne of Milwaukee, who is delivering a series of three Lenten lectures at Pilgrim Congregational church, has delighted all who have heard him. Lectures were given Monday and last evenings. He illustrates his talks with stereopticon views that are said to be the finest ever shown here. These give an added interest to the lectures, but Mr. Payne's discourses are of such excellence as to really need nothing more to add to their strength. While they are denominated lectures they are really lecture sermons and are uplifting and stirring to the Christian spirit. Last evening's talk was on Rome and the Christian martyrs and the views presented the ancient splendor of Rome and the modern conditions.

This evening the final lecture will be delivered and it will be on "The Master's Life," and will be illustrated with some of the finest of the famous Hoffman pictures of Christ. No admission is charged.

NOTICE!

Mr. N. H. Murray has taken charge of the Nicollet Restaurant, opposite the Union depot, on Michigan street, and would be pleased to meet all his friends and patrons. Mr. Murray is prepared better than ever to supply first-class meals at the lowest possible prices, and will make a specialty of 15, 20 and 25-cent dinners.

FORMER SERVANT

Travels 3,000 Miles To Pay Conscience Debt.

Kokomo, Ind., March 29.—A railway journey of 3,000 miles to pay a $5 debt as a conscience fund is the unprecedented record of an unknown woman who arrived in Kokomo this week from Southern California.

Thirty-three years ago this woman was employed as a domestic in the home of Dr. and Mrs. William B. Cooper of this place. One evening when Mrs. Cooper was a guest of honor at a neighboring function, the "model maid" disappeared. The domestic, on leaving, took with her jewelry and clothing valued at $30 by her mistress. Detectives were employed to pursue the fugitive but they reported she could not be found. The servant, gray had stopped, is again in Kokomo, and today was a caller at the Cooper home. Mrs. Cooper herself answered the door bell, and the former mistress and maid stood face to face.

Mrs. Cooper was surprised. The incident had long since passed out of her mind.

"I still owe you $5," said the woman. "I gave the officer who captured me at Tipton $25, as you know, and thought at the time I gave him all, but learned differently afterward. The officer had never reported the recovery of the property, and he had disappeared. Mrs. Cooper was too considerate to mention this fact to her visitor.

Mrs. Cooper refused to disclose the name and residence of the conscience-stricken maid of thirty-three years ago, but it is understood that she is a member of a wealthy and honored family of the Pacific coast. After remaining a few hours at the Cooper home she departed as suddenly as she came for her Western home. She traveled in all nearly 6,000 miles to pay a "conscience debt" of $5.

BOULIGAN HEARS JEWS.

St. Petersburg, March 29.—Interior Minister Bouligan today received a Jewish deputation which urged that the Jews be represented in the projected assembly and expressed the fear that such would not be the case unless special action is taken as the Jewish element is almost unrepresented in the zemsvos and nobles and peasant organizations.

AN INVESTIGATION

Would Be Welcomed By Commissioner Richards.

Omaha, March 29.—W. A. Richards, the commissioner of the general land office, passed through Omaha today enroute to Wyoming to visit his daughters. Respecting the report from Washington that his office was to be investigated with regard to promotions of clerks, he said he had no knowledge of any thing of the kind, but would have no objection to it. During his administration of the land office promotions had been made solely on merit, in accordance with the requirements of the civil service. Some clerks had been reduced because of their inability to earn the salaries which they were receiving and some of these were probably responsible for the false report of an investigation.

DENMARK ADOPTS TREATY.

Copenhagen, March 29.—The Danish parliament today adopted the Russo-Danish arbitration treaty.

SPORTS PROHIBITED ON MEMORIAL DAY.

Lincoln, Neb., March 29.—Both houses of the legislature have passed a bill prohbiting sports on Memorial day an dthe governor will sign it. Horse racing, baseball games and other sports not permitted on Sunday, in this state, must not be engaged in on Memorial day and penalties are provided, including fines and imprisonment.

Last Saturday we kept the high-priced stores busy refunding deposits made on covert coats. To our positive knowledge there were four instances in which ladies who had made deposits on covert coats in one of the other stores got their money back and bought their coats here because they could get the same garments $5.00 to $10.00 cheaper.

And their stories of "how the merchant talked quality, style, workmanship and yet finally offered to take less money for the coats, would have done you good—and opened your eyes.

Think of being offered $4.00 reduction on a $19.50 garment rather than let the customer go. But "go" she did.

And she bought her coat here, for $12.50, which she claims was the same jacket, exactly. Our garment dept. shows and sells more suits, skirts, jackets, waists, than any 3 other stores at the Head of the Lakes. We employ expert department managers who thoroughly understand their respective lines. "Jacks-of-all-trades" are not to be found here, and the growth of this house proves it.

Doesn't it amuse you, if you read the pretended "news items" some of these cloak and suit dealers try to palm off on you as written by some disinterested reporter and paid for at so much per line? They carry the evidence of "buncombe" in every phrase, so that even a child could see into the authorship. It's simply a reproduction of their store methods. "Look out for them."

Coming next week

Millinery Opening.

2,000 trimmed hats will be offered for your inspection.

Most exquisite creations of Parisian, New York and Chicago artists—no two alike. Including 500 hats from our own workrooms, of which we are proud, for they demonstrate that in securing the services of Miss Dahl as head trimmer we drew a prize. Her hats have that "air of refinement," that "touch of exclusiveness" which will be a revelation to you. WAIT FOR THE OPENING—NEXT WEEK.

NO PRIMARY LEGISLATION.

There will be no extension of the primary election system by the present legislature. That matter was settled by the house yesterday, when all the primary bills were either defeated or indefinitely postponed.

While the Lund bill, proposing to extend the direct nomination system to state officers, met the general fate, it is some satisfaction to know that the other hybrid and mongrel measures were voted down by much larger majorities. While Lund's measure was defeated by a vote of 67 to 30, the Rider monstrosity only received 6 affirmative votes, while 81 were recorded against it.

Threfore, it is settled that the next nominations of state officers will be made by the old convention system. A majority of the members of the legislature appear to have learned nothing from the experiences of last fall, when the Republican convention nominee for governor was so ignominiously defeated at the polls. They have learned nothing from the experiences of other states, where the question of direct nomination of state officers has been submitted to the people and carried by immense majorities. They have not profited by the fact that nobody outside of defeated politicians has found fault with the direct nomination system in this state.

The people of the state should acquaint themselves with the names of the members of the house who voted against the Lund bill. This will be valuable information to possess at the next election.

THE FOOD ADULTERATORS.

The New York board of agriculture has been analyzing and examining food products on the market. The results are somewhat startling, or would be if so many reports of the same kind had not already been made. Ninety per cent of the samples analyzed by the official chemist are found to be corrupted by inert or injurious material. Candy is found to contain paraffin, glucose, arsenic and aniline; of sixty-nine ketchups all are colored artificially, except one, and in each case benzoic acid is present; maple sugar contains only a tenth part of maple; honey is largely composed of cane sugar and glucose.

With so many manufacturers engaged in the practice of poisoning and defrauding the public, it is not surprising that the United States senate is slow to pass a law that will prevent or punish these practices. The desire for the almighty dollar will often lead men to do many criminal and unrighteous things, but it would seem that the conscience of manufacturers of prepared foods is exceptionally dull when 90 per cent of the foods on the market are either adulterated or doped.

There are very few men who will commit deliberate murder in order to obtain money who do not hesitate to injure people by poisoning their food, and that is little better than taking human life, while there are many others who would hesitate to steal from a man's pocket who deliberately plan to rob the public by false pretenses.

It is difficult to understand the action of both federal and state governments which refuse to provide adequate punishment for such crimes, and the only reasonable assumption is that members of these legislative bodies are beneficiaries of this system of wholesale fraud.

WOULD LEGALIZE LYNCHINGS.

In an alleged effort to prevent mob violence, a peculiar bill has been introduced in the Arkansas legislature by Senator Toney. The bill has already passed the senate. It provides that the sheriff, upon the commission of a crime calculated to provoke mob violence, shall notify the circuit judge, who shall at once repair to the county wherein the crime has been committed, open court and proceed with a trial of the accused. Ten days is the limit allowed the sheriff and the judge, who are heavily fined for a failure to obey the law, and in case the sheriff refuses to act, seven citizens may summon the judge to his duty.

This bill is based on the erroneous theory that delays in trial are the cause of lynchings. It is sheer bloodthirstiness that is the cause. Delay in trial is simply given as an excuse. If such a measure becomes a law it will in effect be an admission by the state that there are certain crimes which justify mob violence, and would in effect place the courts of the state in command of the mob.

If it were not for his pronounced antagonism to the negro race as a whole, the election of one governor, like Vardaman of Mississippi, would do more to suppress mob rule than the passing of a bushel basket full of laws like the Toney bill. When the people of Arkansas, or any other state, are in earnest in their desire to suppress lynchings, it can be done very simply and easily. To pass such laws as the Toney bill would simply encourage the mob spirit. A legal lynching is no more justifiable than a lynching by the mob. This bill simply provides for legal lynchings.

A GREAT REPEALER NEEDED.

Many a politician in this country has made a reputation for himself as "the great objector," or as "the watchdog of the treasury." His work has been of value to the people, both in the halls of congress and in the different state legislatures. But it remains for some bright American politician to create undying fame for himself by becoming "the great repealer."

There are too many laws on the statute books that are not enforced, and were not placed there with the intention that they should be enforced. This creates a disrespect for all law.

In a recent address, Governor Folk of Missouri gave it as his opinion that all laws should be rigidly enforced, so that those conflicting with public opinion would be more rapidly wiped off the books. There is merit in this idea, but such a course would be practically impossble.

For instance, there are laws in Minnesota that nobody wants enforced, and nobody but a crank or an unbalanced person would attempt to enforce. A consistent and persistent attempt to enforce all these laws throughout the state would quickly result in their repeal. But it is impossible to get all the executive officers of the state to act together on such a plan. Therefore, it is impracticable.

The average legislator knows that there are a lot of such laws that ought to be repealed. But he is afraid to make a move in that direction for fear of offending some of his constituents.' So they are permitted to cumber the pages of the statutes, while their non-enforcement breeds a contempt of all law.

The evident solution is to give to the voter the power of inaugurating and vetoing legislation, and to give to the people of the different communities the right to regulate their own affairs. It would be but a short time thereafter until all these non-enforced laws would be abolished.

ANOTHER VIEW.

The current number of Collier's Weekly contains an effective drawing by Kemble representing "another view of race suicide." It shows the father of a large family where there has just been an addition, soliloquizing, thus: "Out of work and another to support."

It is a rather striking coincidence that on another page of the same issue is given a picture of Judge Dunne, the Democratic candidate for mayor of Chicago, and his family, which consists of a wife and ten children, all happy, healthy and contented-looking, seated on the lawn in front of their beautiful home.

In turning first to Kemble's doleful picture and then to the other one sees conditions that actually exist in many a workingman's home, and conditions that should and could exist in every American home if justice were done and the doors of opportunity opened to all alike. There is no good reason why any man in this country should be out of work. There is no reason why any healthy and able-bodied man should not be able to support a family and do it well.

A Ladies' club of New York recently declared that poor parents who bring a large family into the world deserves no sympathy, because they know that poverty and improper education is to be the lot of their children. For shame to these women that they should make such an admission, and place the blame upon the parents. If they find that the families of poor parents suffer from the lack of the necessaries of life, while a few accumulate millions that they cannot use, they find conditions which place the blame for the improper rearing of children on the government and the predatory rich. It is there that the censlre should lie, not on the heads of the parents, who may be too poor to support their families properly because the few are permitted to take more than their share.

Despite the refusal of the senate to confirm the proposed receivership of Santo Domingo, President Roosevelt has decided to go ahead and make this country receiver of the custom house funds of that nation, pending the final decision by the senate. The president generally finds a way to do as he wants to, whether or not his will conflicts with the constitution. What now becomes of the claim made by Secretary Hay that there was no intent on the part of the administration to take charge of Dominican finances in advance of action by the senate?

Says Governor General Lamithe of Cochin, China: "I spent four months in the Philippines studying the results of American control. I was struck with the enormous progress made in such a comparatively brief period. The natives are being educated, are receiving the benefits of municipal and provincial liberty and are rapidly acquiring the spirit of republican institutions. France can take a most beneficial lesson from the splendid results of the American colonial system." Perhaps all this is true, and yet the fact remains that the prominent Filipinos sent to this country as commissioners to the World's fair at St. Louis united unanimously in an appeal for political independence of their country.

The newly-elected senator from Missouri, Major Warner, has given the public an idea of who he is and what he stands for in these words: "The burning issue of the day is that of setting proper metes and bounds to corporate power and the suppression of the unlawful encroachment upon the rights of the people by organized capital. The just and equitable solution of these problems will tax the experience and wisdom of the legislative and executive departments of the government. If in the solution error is made, the error should be on the side of the people." That is just about as good Democratic doctrine as any Democrat could promulgate, and if the new senator lives up to these principles the Democrats of Missouri will have little reason to regret the loss of Senator Cockrell.

The city authorities have done a good job in cleaning the pavements throughout the city. Now if the citizens will do as well with their back yards and alleys as soon as the weather makes the work possible, Duluth may expect to be a particularly healthy place the coming summer.

Hotel Gossip.

"Russet shoes will again be in the height of fashion for summer wear this year, and probably for two or three years to come," said D. B. Cole, representing a large Brockton, Mass., shoe house, at the Spalding. "They are very popular with the people, especially in the country to the South and East, where the summers are longer and warmer than they are here. They are much more comfortable in hot weather than patents or plain blacks, and about two-thirds more of them than patents were sold for the 1905 season.

"We are now taking orders for fall and winter lines. In men's shoes the tendency is again getting toward broader toes, and some of the styles are extremely broad. The pointed toes are not at all popular, and there is little demand for them. Patents are also losing in favor, and not nearly so many of them are worn as formerly. The men are reaching a stage where they want comfort above all else in shoes, and there is no getting around the fact that patents are not so comfortable as the plain leather footwear. The military heel is still the fashion. In ladies' footwear an attempt is being made to create a demand for lower heels, but as yet the demand is not a very heavy one. It is criminal to allow the wearing of some of the high-heeled shoes now on the market, but the dear girls want them, even though they walk on their tiptoes to have the pleasure of wearing them, so what are you going to do about it? The instructions for obtaining the hour-glass figure, which was favored at the recent dressmakers' convention in Chicago, tell the women who would be in style, among other things, that they should walk on their toes, or something to that effect, and from this I suppose one is to infer that high heels will be even more popular than ever for some little time to come."

"The passage of a bill this month by the Maine legislature for the strict enforcement of the prohibitory law, resulted in the cities and towns of the state going dry," said G. N. Tostevin of Portland, Me., at the St. Louis. "When I left Portland a little over a week ago the city was as dry as a bone. Following the passage of the bill the sheriffs of the various counties began to make their preparations for its enforcement, and very shortly they had closed every place in the state that had been hitherto selling liquor. All day St. Patrick's day loads of liquor were passing through the Portland streets on their way to Boston and other places, and all day long steamers were loading with cargoes of intoxicants.

"The dealers were given only a short time to get their wet goods out of the state, and an awful hubbub was created. Teams worked even during the night hauling liquor to the wharves, and noon on St. Patrick's day saw thousands of dollars worth of liquor piled high on the wharves in casks and cases. It was a sight to make the drinkers weep."

"Probably there are few men living today who have not at some time or other in their life had a narrow escape from death," said A. S. Jones of St. Paul at the Lenox. "Mine came in the form of dodging bullets. In my younger days I belonged to a militia company down in Wisconsin, and did a good deal of shooting for practice. In fact, I had the reputation of being one of the best shots in the company.

"In the same bunch was another fellow who was always a close rival of mine in medal shoots. We were the best of friends, however, and it was through his agency that I joined the company. One year the captain was very anxious that the boys should make as good a showing as possible when they went to camp, and so gave instructions that each member should put in all the time he could practicing on the rifle range, giving us all ammunition so that we could go out at any time. My friend lived only a short distance from my own home and so we went out together with our guns frequently. One evening we went to the range after supper. The sun was getting low, but we could still see to shoot.

"We agreed that each should mark ten shots for the other on the 500-yard range. Dave, my friend, marked first, coming out from the brush after each of the first two shots, and then at the end of every three shots, to let me know what score I was making. The target was the regulation standing figure, drawn to represent a man, but was not fitted with a pit and markers like they have today.

"I fired my ten shots and then relieved Dave, the understanding being that I was to follow the sambe rules in marking shots as he had done. By that time the sun had disappeared over the hill, and it was getting a trifle dusky around the target. I marked the target after the first two shots all right, and one of them was a bullseye, too, but in a fit of absentmindedness, instead of remaining under cover for the next three shots, I again walked to the target after the firing of the first of the series, and stood directly in front of the proper figure, trying to find the bullet hole. Dave was loading his gun as I walked out, and had no idea that I had left the brush to the side of the target, so he up and fired at me, thinking, of course, that I was the painted figure. I heard the report of a gun and the singing of a bullet at about the same time, but before I could realize what had happened the heavy bullet tore through the paper about two inches from my body and landed with a dull thud in the big stump beyond. I made a flying leap to one side. Dave saw me jump and thought he had killed me sure, but I soon relieved him on that score."

Lopped Rockefeller's Income.

New York American: John D. Rockefeller is not the dull, dry lecturer at his Sunday school as some would believe. He likes a good story and he tells one well. When he essays the Irish dialect, if hid behind a screen from his auditors they would believe he was a true son of the Emerald Isle. On his last visit to his class he told of a Celt who had heard of his (Rockefeller's) enormous wealth. A man was telling him about it.

"'Why, do yon see that clock?' pointing to an eight-day afair that was ticking away on the mantelpiece.

"'I do,' says Pat.

The Weather.

United States Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time), March 29.—The barometer is low over the western Lake region, Mississippi valley and far West, and high over Atlantic states and the extreme Southwest. It is cooler in districts lying between the Mississippi river and Rocky mountains and generally warm east of the Mississippi, especially over the Ohio valley. Rain fell over Pacific districts and in states lying between the 85th and 100th parallels, heavy at New Orleans and Little Rock.

Following were the minimum temperatures recorded during the past twenty-four hours:

RIGHTS THAT BRING DUTIES

From "The Public Conscience," by President Hadley of Yale in the Independent: The difficulty of keeping our standards of business and of politics pure today is, I think, greater than it has been in any previous generation. The task of convincing people in a democracy that liberty brings duties as well as rights is harder than the corresponding under an aristocracy.

A privileged class has received so many special favors that you can appeal to the common spirit of justice among its members to show them that they should accept self-imposed obligations of duties in return for these favors. But when you make that appeal to a man who has taken his chance with every other man in the hard struggle of life, and who has had less than his share of power and privilege, you have no such basis upon which to work.

There is a tendency at the present day among those who have benefitted by the outcome of business competition to believe that this is a part of the moral order of the universe, and there is a tendency among those who have secured the suffrages of a majority of the people to believe that the vox populi is in this instance the vox Dei. But any sane man, whatever his attitude toward social questions, must see that there are a great many cases where these assumptions prove erroneous.

He must see that there are instances where business struggle results in the survival of the unfit instead of the survival of the fit, and where those who obtain temporary control of political power use it for purposes just as arbitrary and tyrannical as if they had never been compelled to appeal to their fellow-citizens for the form of an election.

Our industrial machinery and our political machinery are both excellent in their way, but no industrial or political machinery, however good, can take the place of public spirit and self-devotion. And when the existence of such machinery is made an excuse for letting public spirit and devotion go unused, it constitutes a menace instead of a safeguard to the future of the body politic.

THE FARM IS THE THING.

Hibbing Tribune: The Tribune is watching with much interest the very rapid settlement of that most excellent agricultural territory which lies only a few miles north of Hibbing, around the beautiful Sturgeon Lake and along Bear River. During the winter months many homestead filings have been made upon lands in this territory and dozens of people who had previously filed have taken advantage of the sleighing to tote in their equipment for farming, and are now comfortably established in their homesteads. In this territory, which but little more than a year ago was a wilderness, are now dozens of comfortable homes, around which strong and determined men have cleared many acres of land, which with the coming season will begin to yield the wealth that will in time make the owners independent, and the country famous.

And curious as it may seem, a large percentage of the settlers are strangers to this locality. Our own people do not seem to realize the wealth that lies within a day's journey of them and that can be had almost for the asking. All is mining here now, but the day will come when the mines will become exhausted, and then we shall have to look to the farmer entirely for business. And even now, with mining at its best, there is many a man struggling for his daily bread in Hibbing who could be immeasurably better off on a farm.

The man who is the possesor of a piece of land has the game in his own hands. There is no promotor or stock gambler who can jeopardize his investment. Where it is purchased with judgment, land is always worth the money paid for it and it is bound to increase in value. It can not be destroyed or carried away. It requires only industry to make it profitable and productive. It constitutes a source of independence in any condition of the money market and amid all the mutations of speculative enterprises.

The greatest hindrance to home building in this locality at present is the condition of the roads, but this fault will soon be remedied. If Hibbing people do not awaken to the advantage of providing good roads some other town will, and the settlers will not long be deprived of a market place.

Queer Request of Maine Town.

Kennebec Journal: There was a unique article in the Palermo town warrant. It was this: "To see if the town will accept of Thomas Dinsmore the sum of $100 as a trust fund, the interest of same to be applied as follows, to wit: To celebrate the memory of the signers of the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America, also the lives of the pioneers of the towns of China and Palermo, once in every ten years at Branch Mills, China. The first celebration to occur on the fourth day of July, 1915, and each succeeding ten years thereafter."

Not Old Age.

London Daily Mail: "Weel, John, how are you today?" asked a Scottish minister, on meeting one of his parishioners.

"Gey, weel, sir; gey weel," replied John cautiously; "gin it wasna for tae rheumatism in the richt leg."

"Ah, John, be thankful, for there is no mistake you are getting old, like the rest of us, and old age doesn't come alone."

"Auld age, sir," returned John, "I wonder to hear ye. Auld age has naething tae dae wi't. Here's my ither leg jist as aul; an' it's soond and soople yet."

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Philadelphia Bulletin: The teacher was describing her encounter with an impertinent tramp.

"And then," she said, "I fainted."

Philadelphia Press: "Dear," said the melancholy wife, "if you die first you will wait for me there on that far shore, won't you?"

"I guess so," replied her husband, wearily. "I've always had to wait for you everywhere I go."

Houston Post: "Doctor, what does it mean when a man hollers when you dig into a tooth?"

"That he has lost his nerve."

"And when he doesn't holler?"

"Hem! That also means he has lost his nerve."

New Yorker: Ethel—Frank was desperately in love with Priscilla. Why, he used to send her the most expensive flowers and presents nearly every day for nearly three years!

Mabel—Did he finally win her?

Ethel—No, he earned her!

Yonker's Statesman: A New Yorker was visiting in Boston. Seeing a parrot in a cage he asked:

"Does Polly want a cracker?"

Detroit Tribune: "Too bad about Dingman going wrong, isn't it?"

"Yes; but I haven't been grieving much about it. My wife always held him up to me as a model."

RESULT OF GREED.

Kansas City Star: The examination of Mrs. Chadwick in the bankruptcy hearing yesterday furnished additional evidence that some of the kind-hearted gentlemen who lent her money were not actuated by motives of pure gallantry or philanthropy.

Thus, she testified that Mr. Newton of Brookline supplied only $78,000 for which she promised to pay $190,000—the difference of $112,000 between the two amounts representing this trifling commission for accommodating her. Then there was a benevolent Pittsburg man who lent Mrs. Chadwick $75,000 himself and secured additional loans of $150,000 for her. For this bit of service she agreed to pay him the slight bonus of $75,000. There are known to have been many other similar cases, which were not mentioned yesterday.

The men who took part in these proceedings had a reputation for business shrewdness. Yet they "sold out" as readily as the most unsophisticated youth in buying a gold brick.

Two inferences are possible. Either they supposed Mrs. Chadwick, though a wealthy woman, was "easy" and knew nothing about business, or they suspected that the loans were dangerous, but hoped to get out without being caught, as many dabblers in get-rich-quick schemes expect. Policy may claim which motive they prefer. There is small choice between them.

In any event, the public has the satisfaction of seeing the disastrous results of an over-reaching greed for money.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Albert Lea Tribune: Some of the Simon pure Republicans of last autumn are worrying lest Governor Johnson be a hard man to defeat, but if he proves what is wanted in the state, why defeat him? The steel trust, the Standard Oil monopoly and the pine timber thieves must not be permitted to dictate who shall or shall not be governor, even if they have the able assistance of the mergerites. If Governor Johnson continues to perform his duties satisfactorily and vetoes some of the legislative woodchucks when they reach him, he will earn the gratitude of the state and he will be "a hard man to defeat."

Two Harbors News: Stillwell H. Bingham, legislative correspondent of The Duluth Herald, has all the other fellows skinned. His reports contain more boiled down and reliable news of the work of the law tinkers than appears in any other paper in the state. He is next to all transpiring.

St. Cloud Times: People who rush through Minnesota in search of lands and settle in Dakota, Montana or Canada, are making "the mistake of their lives."

Isanti News: The session of the legislature is drawing to a close, but time should be taken to pass a law requiring a better grade of kerosene. Minnesota is far behind other states in this matter, and something should be done immediately.

Border Budget: Representative Miller's state homestead bill died a natural death in the committee room, having been declared unconstitutional, and now he has revived it as an amendment to the constitution. The original bill will have to have several patches basted on before it will interest anyone on this side of the swamp.

EARLY RESULTS.

Detroit Tribune: President Roosevelt's strong argument before the National Congress of Mothers, in which he expressed a decided approval of the scriptural injunction, "Increase and multiply," has borne fruit with a promptness hardly hoped for.

It is only about two weeks since the president made his famous plea to the mothers of the land, arguing that "no piled-up wealth, no splendor of material growth, no brilliance of artistic development, will permanently avail any people unless its home life is healthy, unless the average woman is a good wife, a good mother, able and willing to perform the first and greatest duty of womanhood, able and willing to bear and to bring up as they should be brought up healthy children, sound in body, mind and character, and numerous enough so that the race shall increase and not decrease."

And now from Homestead, Pa., comes a dispatch that should give the president a keen sense of triumph. It seems that several departments of the Carnegie steel plant at Homestead were closed the other day on account of the absence of workmen. Industrial peace prevails in that section, there is neither strike nor lockout, and the health of the community is as good as usual. The superintendent of the plant was puzzled and began an inquiry. To his amazement he discovered that the stork had been visiting the families of thirty-one workmen, and that the population had been increased accordingly.

News of this sort ought to give Roosevelt the highest satisfaction. Coming at the time it does, it proves that his earnes pleas against race suicide have tremendous power.

Though his persuasiveness with the senate is not great, his influence upon the women of the country is most extraordinary.

And it is greater to control the women and cause the production of children than to control the senate and cause the production of treaties and laws.

WAYS OE WOOING.

Cleveland Leader: The "Dolly-Dialogue" style of hero and heroine conduct thear wooing in this sort of sparkling repartee:

Her—You're just like all other men—you want the earth!

Him—I acknowledge it—you're all the world to me, and I want you!

Her—As a piece of real estate I may come higher than you can afford to go.

Him—At any price you'd be dirt cheap.

Parmela—You must pardon my ignorance, sir, if I appear to misapprehend the drift of your expression of regard; I cannot but think, however, that you presume too much in thus addressing me at so early a period of our acquaintance.

Leonardo—Believe me, dearest madam, when I say that if I seem to impudence it is only that the depth of my feeling overcomes my natural regard for the conventionalities. Ah! do not turn aside, fair maid—my heart and fortune are lying at your feet!

But in real life would not a phonograph reveal something like this?

"Why, Jack Peters, how dare you?"

"Aw, now you're not going to get mad about it, are you? Honest, Sade, I couldn't help it!"

"Well, I'll have you understand that I'—

"Now, what's the use? You know how I feel, and you've known it all along, and you can't bluff me. You love me, don't you? Cut that talk out and quit jerkin' away!"

Thus Runs the World Away.

One comes with kind, capacious hold,
But through his fingers slips the gold;
He with the talons, his the hands
That rake up riches as the sands.

One fats as does the ox unbroke;
Never on his red neck the yoke.
The pale, stooped thing, with heart and brain,
On him, the weight of toil and pain.

One longs, she with the full warm breast,
But no babe's head does on it rest;
So some stand a fool thought fair
Love's boon is thrust, and suckled there.

Wireless Telegraphy in Africa.

The natives on the West coast of Africa have little need for wireless telegraphy, according to a story told by a missionary of the headquarters of the Presbyterean foreign board. Talking of the susceptibility of the native African to rytlm, he told this incident: The African always calls the people together by means of a drum. The drum varies in size, but is always made by hollowing out a section of a log. The drum not only tells the people of the meeting, but its purpose as well. The needs which may be thus sent is astonishing. On one occasion a missionary was in the palavar house at Etulen, at some distance from his home. A rainstorm came up and he had no umbrella. A drummer, learning his need, tapped a message to a friend and in a short time the latter appeared with an umbrella. The natives have no alphabet and an umbrella is not usually in the requirements of a palaver. How, then, did the drummer make himself understood?

LOVE.

Milwaukee Sentinel: love is the beginning of marriage if the beginning ain't munny. love is what makes the world go round and it keeps going round until yu git in a flat and have to live there without no steam. when you cant eet maybe yu are in love and maybe yu have a week stumick. yu cant always tell the diferens. I hoap when I gro up I wont be in love vary often, its all rite to be in love wunst in a while but sum fellers I kno is always in love with sumbody and sumtimes 2 or 3 gurls at the saim time and that is pretty nice till thay ketch on and then thare is trubble about it.

sum grate people who have been in love are Mark Antony and Cleopatry, and Lilian Russell lots of times and Venis and Adonis thay had quite a case too but Adonis he had lots of sense and he said o her Well you look pritty good to me but i only git a small salary and if I marry you i am afrade I'll have to quit smoaking & drinking, so i guess we better call it off. Venis she felt cheap and so she went and married a undertaker and they buried Adonis when he got killed by a wild bore and dident send his foalks no bill.

love is of different kinds, for instens i love my teacher and thats all rite but if Pa loved my teacher thare would be sumthing doing at hoam. i doant love no gusl, most of them is too much stuck on themself to have anyone love them. i love my dog best of all. When you love a girl you git married and when yu love a dog yu only git fleas.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When a girl marries a man with a past she hasn't any future.

If a man can't get enough trouble to suit him in any other way he can always try to raise a vegetable garden.

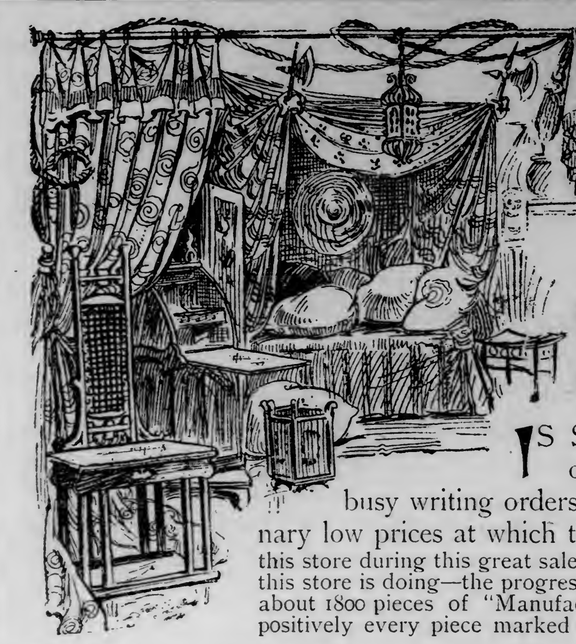

There is hardly anything more foolish than to teach a girl languages when she could have much more fun and be much more useful learning how to manage a house.

Maharatti Model Wives.

The Maharatti women of Western India have the reputation of being model wives. They have solved the problem of domestic peace. There are three things in the world that they have thought for. Because of this necessarily simple life they find themselves looked upon as ideal wives. First, a Maharatti woman thinks of her husband. She worships him. He is her god, her priest, her religion. Second, she loves her children. Third, she takes interest in her jewelry. These three and no more. This is her life. No wonder she is sufficiently amiable to be called ideal.

HAVE NOT HELPED

Northern Loggers Contribute Nothing For Camp Missionary Work.

Claimed That They Have Little Interest In Matter.

The claim is being made that the Minnesota loggers who a few years ago protested so vigorously against a bill in the legislature that made provision by which the loggers were compelled to pay their employes on demand, on the ground that it would have a tendency to make their woodsmen unreliable and would increase the cost of logging, have rendered very little assistance the past winter to the movement that has been started by charitably inclined persons to improve the morals of the logging camp.

One of the most prominent camp missionaries in the Northern Minnesota logging district is Rev. F. E. Higgins of Bemidji, formerly of this city, who has made a systematic campaign, with four assistants. Rev. Mr. Higgins and his assistants have in the past winter, it is claimed, sent five tons of good reading matter to 100 camps between Bemidji and Kouchiching. They have preached in 75 of these camps with more or less regularity and in 50 of the camps services are said to have been held regularly every two weeks.

In the support of this work a number of church societies in the state are said to have contributed $400. From the woodsmen themselves, there has been collected $90 so that at the end of the season about half of the amount given by the churches was returned to them.

During the winter it is claimed that not a dollar for the aid of the cause has been donated by the logging operators themselves, in whose camps the missionaries have been working and to which the literature has been sent.

In the past winter Rev. Mr. Higgins has driven twice from Bemidji to Kouchiching and has walked hundreds of miles between camps, accompanied only by his dogs, pulling a toboggan load of books and other reading matter for the camps. Mr. Higgins is also said to have taken good cheer to the sick and preached to the well.

The people who are earnest in their efforts to reach the camps, for the betterment of the woodsmen, claim that while Rev. Mr. Higgins and his co-workers have accomplished something that has been worth thousands of dollars to the lumbermen, the latter have not offered one iota of encouragement.

The work of the camp missionaries, it is explained, is not alone that of preaching and distributing tracts, but they endeavor to instill in the minds of the woodsmen that there are other forms of amusement besides drinking, gambling and general dissipation. The aim has been to substitute for the old forms of amusement so commonly found in camps, new diversions of a healthier character.

A few logging contractors in the North, it is said, have tried the experiment of providing reading rooms and reading matter and have endeavored to establish rules that would improve the comfort of the men. The success of these few experiments, it is claimed, has demonstrated that the same plan would be a paying proposition to loggers if it were followed more generally.

While there are some exceptions, the general condition of logging camps has been to ask two men to live where there should be but one. Ventillation is poor, the atmosphere being loaded with the odors of tobacco and steaming clothing.

An instance is cited of one Minnesota logging contractor who regularly employs 800 men and who has had 5,000 names on his pay roll this past winter. The reason for the evident spirit of unrest among the men is claimed to be the stronger allurements of the saloons and other places in the cities which have drawn the woodsmen away from the camps, after they have acquired a little money.

The people who are back of the movement to better the conditions in the camps claim that the employers of the men could, by contributing a small proportion of the amount they are annually losing because of this spirit of unrest, to just such a work as Rev. Mr. Higgins and others are doing, do a great deal toward ameliorating the conditions for which they are, to a large extent, responsible.

DRUNKENNESS A TERRIBLE DISEASE.

In every large city the mission superintendents are brought closely into contact with the terrible results of drunkenness, and realize what a fearful curse it is to humanity. W. C. McMichael, superintendent of the People's Mission in Washington, says: "I am superintendent of the People's Mission, a recognized Christian organization that is doing a world of good. One of our people who had been drinking a pint of whiskey a day for a great many years was put on Orrine, and I am happy to say that a cure was effected within ten days from the time the first dose was given, and he is now restored to perfect sobriety. I have no way to thank you for the valuable specific for this terrible disease, drunkenness."

Orrine No. 1 is given secretly in any food or drink, while No. 2 is for those who are willing to be cured. Either form is $1 per package. Orrine is a guaranteed cure for the liquor habit, and is sold and recommended by F. W. Kugler, 108 West Superior street, Duluth.

ENGINEER GIVES LIFE TO SAVE PASSENGERS.

Sullivan, Ill., March 29.—Engineer Bowe was killed, a fireman, name unknown, was fatally injured and a score of passengers were badly bruised in a head-on collision yesterday between a southbound express and a northbound freight on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad.

The freight was taking a siding for the passenger train and failed to clear in time. But for Engineer Bowe's bravery the wreck would have cost many lives. He had an opportunity to jump in time, but bidding the fireman to save himself, clung to the engine until the crash came and was caught under the wreckage.

PASSES BOGUS CHECK HERE

Bemidji Man Comes To Duluth and Cashes Forged Paper.

Bemidji, March 29.—James Rumley, formerly employed at the E. L. Naylor furniture store in this city and who is well known to many Bemidji people, has forged a check upon his former employer and made good his escape to Canada. The check came back from Duluth some time ago, but in interest of the law the matter was kept secret for a short time.

Rumley left Bemidji two weeks ago, saying to Mr. Naylor that he was going to Cass Lake to solicit insurance for a company, the agency for which he received some time ago. It is supposed that he went straight to Duluth, however, as he presented a check at the store of Stack & Co. the amount being $153. He purchased some clothes and received the money, the check being signed "E. L. Naylor, by R. J. Albrant." The name which he represented himself as bearing was S. J. Stevens.

The check was held at the store for a few days before it was placed in a bank, but upon receiving the check from Duluth, Cashier Brooks of the Lumbermen's State bank in this city knew at a glance that it was worthless, and returned it to Duluth.

A vigilant search is being made by the officers to locate the forger, whose home is at Brantford, Ontario, but as yet no trace of him has been found, and it is thought that he has escaped to Canada.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT

On Rockefeller Gift Not Yet Given Out.

Boston, March 29.—Dr. James L. Barton, secretary of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, upon arriving at the board rooms today said the promised statement with reference to the action of the Prudential committee of the board upon the John D. Rockefeller gift at yesterday's meeting could not be given out yet. He could not indicate, he said, when it would be ready. It is understood that the officials wish to allow sufficient time for a copy of the statement to reach all members of the committee who protested against the acceptance of the gift, by mail, before making it public.

BIG TRAINLOAD OF LUMBER.

San Francisco, March 29.—A record-breaking trainload of lumber has left this city for Buffalo, N. Y., marking the beginning of a new phase of a California industry. The train which was made up of twenty-five cars, was entirely of dressed redwood, curley and straight grained, and designed for interior finishings. In each car there were 20,000 feet of lumber.

INFLUENCING WITNESSES

Charge Brought In Indictment Against Manager For Armour.

Chicago, March 29.—The federal grand jury last night returned an indictment against Thomas J. Connors, general superintendent of Armour & Co., on a charge of interfering with a witness summoned to appear before the jury. Mr. Connors was arrested on a bench warrant by a United States deputy marshal and brought to the grand jury room, where he was released on a $5,000 bond. After his release Mr. Connors refused to discuss the matter. The indictment charges that John Edward Shields of Brooklyn, who testified in the so-called beef trust investigation, was approached, favored and entertained by Mr. Connors and specifically states that on March 25, the offense upon which Mr. Connors was indicted, occurred. It is also charged that Shields was given the use of Armour & Co.'s offices at 205 La Salle street to transact his business while in Chicago, and also the use of a private telegraph wire in the office of the packing company.

Another allegation is that Shields was entertained by Connors and that Connors suggested to the proposed witness that he should testify favorably to Armour & Co. and not to tell all that he knew concerning the matter under investigation.

The second count of the indictment charges that Mr. Connors did not limit his attempt at influencing witnesses to Mr. Shields, but that other witnesses, who have not yet appeared in Chicago, have been approached by him and attempts made to influence them as to the nature of the testimony they would give before the jurors.

The section of the statutes under which the indictment was drawn, provides that any person who interferes with a witness in a federal case shall be subjected to a fine of $500 or imprisonment for three months, or both.

R. Budaz, department manager for Armour & Co., at Omaha, and Edward Welch of Armour & Co., at Kansas City, were the only other witnesses, besides Shields that were heard yesterday.

MADE A MILLION IN ONE DAY, NOW A BANKRUPT.

St. Louis, March 29.—Thomas J. Cleague, Jr., prominent grain commission man of St. Louis, who has several times cornered the market, and is reputed to have at one time made a million and a quarter dollars in one day, was declared a bankrupt by Referee in Bankruptcy Walter D. Coles. The finding of Referee Coles was filed in the United States district court. The bankruptcy proceedings were begun in 1903 against Mr. Cleague. In the finding, claims were allowed for about $25,000.

In his defense Cleague contended that he could not be held responsible for these accounts, for the reason that they were not bona fide "transactions" but simply "betting on the rise or fall in the market price of grain," and that no grain deliveries were executed on the contracts.

HOLINESS CLASS STRANDED ON ROCK.

Chicago, March 29.—Duke M. Farson, Chicago banker and religious enthusiast, and forty members of his Metropolitan Holiness class, are stranded on a big rock in the middle of the Illinois river valley, with no means of communicating with the rest of the world except by telephone. The usual residence of Farson and his followers is Holiness home, Franklin boulevard, this city. In the home at present are ten suspected smallpox cases, closely watched and guarded by the police. The church does not believe in medical aid, and when the authorities of Ottawa, Ill., were notified that Farson and forty of his adherents were on the way to Buffalo Rock farm, near Ottawa, prompt action was taken to head off the band. The pilgrims avoided a conflict with the Ottawa authorities by stopping the train a mile from town and walking across the country. Two of the disciples were sick and went in wagons. A strict quarantine has been established about the farm, and the Rock Island road has been notified to stop no trains either to discharge or receive passengers.

FORTY SKELETONS DISCOVERED IN CAVE.

Victoria, B. C., March 29.—News was received by the steamer Queen City from the Vancouver island coast of the discovery by prospectors of a cave on the seashore between Quatsino sound and San Jose bay at the north end of Vancouver island in which forty skeletons were found. The prospectors found most of the skeletons intact. Some of the skulls were broken. It is possible that the cave was the burail place of an Indian tribe, once numerous in that district.

BOARD TO MEET

County Commissioners To Have Session Next Week.

Are Likely To Decide On Downtown Site For Courthouse.

The next meeting of the board of county commissioners, which will occur April 6, one week from Thursday, is being awaited with more than the usual amount of interest, and the prospects are that there will be quite a large attendance of citizens.

At the March meeting of the board a resolution was passed against the selection of a downtown site for the new courthouse, following which there was a determined effort made on the part of a delegation of St. Louis county people to secure, through legislative action, a courthouse commission, the idea being that the commissioners already have enough work to attend to and the commission would relieve them of a great deal of responsibility in the matter.

After various changes and amendments, so that the measure provided that the district court judges should appoint on the commission three members of the county board, and two other taxpayers in this county, the bill passed the senate. It is still before the house for action.

Since the last meeting there is said to have been a change of sentiment among some of the range commissioners, one of whom, Commissioner Nell McInnis of Eveleth, has gone on record as stating that he is willing to vote for a downtown site.

It is understood that another resolution, to the effect that a downtown site for the new courthouse be selected, will be introduced by one of the local commissioners at the meeting next week, and that the resolution is now assured of a passage.

The opposition of the range commissioners, at least two of them, to the former resolution for a downtown site, is said to have been based on the probability that an effort would be made to have a combined city hall and courthouse building, an idea that the range commissioners have been strongly opposed to from the first.

The idea of a combined building has been given up not only by most of the county taxpayers who gave it consideration, but by those in the city as well, and it is claimed that Mr. McInnis, and possibly one of the other range commissioners, are now willing to change their vote on the site proposition.

With a reasonable assurance that the commissioners will at the next meeting vote to build on a downtown site, together with the fact that the proposed special commission will have in majority three members of the county board, it is expected that the new courthouse building proposition is likely to have smoother sailing from now on, there being a better understanding all around.

ASH MOVES FOR VERDICT

Asks Court to Instruct Jury In His Favor.

The testimony was all in and the attorneys in the personal injury case of Andrew K. Love against C. R. Ash, were ready to argue to the jury, this noon, when Mr. Ash, through his counsel, made a motion that the court direct the jury to return a verdict in his favor. The jury was excused while the argument on the motion was begun. The action is one which Mr. Love started to recover damages in the amount of $5,000 for injurtes received while a sawyer in the Ash mill at Virginia. It has been on trial several days.

In Judge Ensign's room, the court is still hearing evidence in the civil action of Mrs. Kaiser Wilkson against John Maki to have set aside a deed by which a 40-acre farm a few miles west of West Duluth, was transferred to Maki.

The cases brought by Sam Larson and George Jenson against the Power-Simpson company, to recover wages alleged to be due, were submitted to Judge Cant, on the evidence, yesterday afternoon.

The April term of district court in Carlton county will begin next Tuesday. One of the judges of the St. Louis county district court will preside.

LANSDOWNE'S STATEMENT

Concerning Macedonia Well Received In Vienna.

Vienna, March 29.—The statement made by the British foreign secretary, Lord Lansdowne, in the house of lords yesterday, on the subject of Macedonia, was read here with great interest today, in official circles, where the opinion was reiterated to the Associated Press that the Meuresteig (Austrio-Russian) reform program has come to an absolute standstill, and is inoperative. Lord Lansdowne's suggestion of the necessity for a project of further reforms, including the financing of Macedonia, was well received in official circles, but little hope is entertained of successfully carrying it out, primarily because the opinion prevails that if this is attempted, Germany will withdraw from the existing union of the reform powers and use her influence because of her various interests in Turkey, to counteract with the porte any further reform measures proposed by Great Birtain.

SAW MANY WARSHIPS.

Durban, Natal, March 29.—The British steamer Dart which arrived here today from Rangoon, Feb. 28, reports having passed March 19, thirty warships and four colliers steaming eastward 250 miles northeast of the island of Madagascar.

RAILROAD NEWS

C. D. Thompson May Leave Employ of the Great Northern.

Eye on Position of Great Western General Agent In Duluth.

According to the St. Paul Dispatch, C. D. Thompson, general agent of the Great Northerl road at Duluth, will become, April 15, the general agent in this city of the Chicago Great Western road, having charge of both the freight and passenger business.

When asked concerning the report today Mr. Thompson denied that any definite arrangements had yet been made. He said the Dispatch was a little premature in its announcement, but it was to be inferred from his remarks that the change might very likely be made. He stated that he would know for certain next week, and said that he had not yet resigned his position with the Great Northern.

If the Great Western establishes such an office here it will be a new agency of the road, which has heretofore had no special representative at the Head of the Lakes.

It is not known who will be likely to succeed Mr. Thompson in the Great Northern office. He has been general agent of the road here for about six years past. His father is at present special agent in St. Paul for the Burlington road.

FIX MINIMUM

Weight on Grain Products 30,000 Pounds to Car.

G. M. Smith, agent of the Omaha in Duluth, has been notified that at a meeting of the Western Trunk line committee it was decided to make the minimum weight on grain products throughout the entire Western Trunk line territory 30,000 pounds to the car.

There will be no change on the present minimum weights on business destined to points in the Central Freight association or Central Trunk line territories. The date for the putting into effect of the new rule is set several weeks in advance so as to give the millers ample time to adapt themselves to the change.

Under conditions as they exist at present the minimum weight as charged for in the freight bill depends on the capacity of the car in which the grain is shipped. The minimum amount which may be charged for in the freight bill is gauged by the figures denoting the capacity of the car. In fixing the rate an amount 10 per cent less than the capacity is figured, no matter if the car is no more than half full.

New Road.

Articles of incorporation of the Chicago, Wisconsin & South Dakota Railway company have been filed with the South Dakota secretary of state. The capital of the corporation, which will have Pierre as headquarters, is given as $1,000,000. The purpose of the company, as set forth in the articles, is the construction of a line from Viroqua, Wis., to Pierre, S. D., to be 767 miles in length. The incorporators are A. S. Hendricks, Sidney Hendricks and Charles S. Hendricks of Chicago, and L. L. Stephens and F. A. Stephens of Pierre.

Railroad Notes.

All of the telegraph wires of the Northern Pacific road westward from a point near Windsor, N. D., a station sixteen miles west of Jamestown, were reported down yesterday as a result of a severe sleet storm.

ATTEMPT BURGLARY.

Store Window Is Broken By Unknown Thieves.

Burglars attempted to enter the store of the Keystone Loan company, on West Superior street, early this morning. With a stone and a board they smashed the plate glass window in the front of the store and attempted to reach some revolvers lying in the window. The proprietor lives above the store, however, and he was awakened by the noise. When he reached the store from his rooms the thieves had fled.

MANUFACTURERS' ANNIVERSARY

SALE OF BOXBAY SILK

FREE
100 Souvenir Mirrors
For the First Purchasers of Boxbay Silk Tomorrow.

TO CELEBRATE the anniversary of the second year that Boxbay Nevertear Silk has been tested, tried and thoroughly proven by the customers of this store, the makers have authorized us to present, tomorrow, to each of the first 100 purchasers of five yards or more of Boxbay Silk, a handsome Anniversary Souvenir Mirror of heavy plate glass with chipped beveled edges, mounted in an attractive easel frame of Venetian iron. We will supplement this very liberal offer of the makers by reducing the price of Boxbay Silk during the Anniversary Sale to—

50c a yard for 19-inch Boxbay Nevertear Silk, selling regularly at 58c a yard.

$1.00 a yard for 36-inch Boxbay Nevertear Silk, selling regularly at $1.25 a yard.

BOXBAY TAFFETA bears a guarantee plainly printed on the selvage—and how thoroughly the maker's confidence in the strong qualities of Boxbay is merited is evidenced by the fact we have never had a single yard of Boxbay silk returned. Women like it because it will not tear, split or stretch; because it is of absolutely pure dye and dependable wear; because it can be washed and still retain its silkiness. Test it with any other trade-mark silk—then you'll appreciate how good Boxbay is.

New Easter Ribbons.

CUSTOMERS tell us our showing of Easter Ribbons is best—it's certainly bewitching. Every new shade and quality that you'll want to wear this season has been provided.

Warp print and Pompadour Ribbons in entirely new effects—from ¾ to 12 inches wide—priced from 10c to $4.00 a yard.

REMNANTS of satin taffeta, plain taffeta and fancy ribbons of all kinds, in lengths of one to two yards. Short ends of ribbons that sold up to 35c a yard—all go in at this one small price—the yard..... 15c

WASH RIBBONS selling up to 12½c a yard, in lavender, pink, old rose and yellow. Ribbons that are wanted for underwear and cluster bows—just for a few days we shall sell them at the yard..... 5c

15c Dress Ginghams 8½c.

Many mothers want to make their daughters' frocks, yet don't know the right combinations and stuffs. This Zephyr dress gingham can't be bettered for work-a-day and school use and the price tomorrow will be 8½c instead of 15c. Here's some suggestions as to the styles in which they would be becoming.

RUSSIAN EFFECTS—straight with a belt, can be made with checks and set off with a little hand embroidery, would be charming.

BLOUSE DRESSES, with yoke and deep cuffs of Hamburg embroidery, would make a frock of this Zephyr gingham exceptionally becoming.

10c Cambric for 6c.

To make Thursday a busy day, we will sell a 10c quality of 36-inch snow white cambric at 6c a yard. Only 20 yards can be sold to one customer.

$1.25 Bedspreads for 79c.

Large size crochet bed spreads—no dressing and pretty designs—can use both sides—you would be willing to pay $1.25 for them—tomorrow 79c—limit of two spreads to a buyer.

NOT TO BUILD AT PRESENT

Owners of Superior Street Corner Contemplate Improvement.

J. L. Cromwell, local agent for the Massachusetts Real Estate company, an outside corporation that has large holdings in business and residence property in Duluth, says the report that the company will erect this summer a modern business block, several stories in height, on the southwest corner of Superior street and Fourth avenue west, is unfounded.

Mr. Cromwell says that the idea has been considered, but that the real estate company does not feel that conditions are just ripe for such a project as contemplated, a modern building that would compare in point of construction with any other in this city, including the Wolvin building on First street.

"If the Massachusetts Real Estate company," said Mr. Cromwell, this morning, "was assured of a tenant on a long term lease for the whole building, it would go ahead with the construction of a fine structure on the corner mentioned, but there is hardly a call for that class of building now. Conditions may bring about a change in the near future that would make it desirable to build, but they are not such now that the building could go up now, except at the expense of some of the other buildings.

"The Massachusetts Real Estate company would have no trouble in selling the two corners that it owns at Superior street and Fourth avenue west, if it would put a price on them. I have recently submitted some offers for them, but these were not considered. I have, in fact, advised that from the present indication and the outlook for this season and the coming years, the company would do well to let go some of its holdings in other cities and invest its money in acquiring more Duluth property.

"The Massachusetts Real Estate company does not at present contemplate any more building enterprises here this year. It has been quite active in the past two years in the residence and flat building line, having this spring completed for occupancy several houses at Seventh avenue east and Fourth street."

We cordially invite the ladies of Duluth and Superior to inspect our large and well-assorted stock of ladies' and misses' imported and domestic Spring and Easter hats, commencing Thursday, March 30.
Respectfully,

BULLFIGHTING AN ART.

Spanish Council of State Legalizes Sunday Exhibitions.

Madrid, March 28.—The council of state has now declared that Sunday bull fighting is legal, thus reversing a previous decision. They base this opinion upon the grounds that the toreadors, matadors and others employed are not in need of Sunday rest, as they are seldom occupied during the week.

A second reason given for reversing the position of affairs is that bull fighting is not manual work, but an art, as much as acting and similar professions which are not forbidden on Sunday.

SECRETARY HAY IS IMPROVING DAILY.

Gibraltar, March 29.—The White Star line steamer Cretic from New York, March 18, for Naples with Secretary of State Hay and Mrs. Hay on board arrived here this morning. In an interview Mr. Hay said he felt much better than when he left New York. He thoroughly enjoyed the trip. Although Secretary Hay has improved he has by no means recovered his health.

Washington, March 29.—A cablegram to the state department from Secretary Hay dated Gibraltar today says that he is improving daily.

Croup instantly relieved. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Perfectly safe. Never fails. At any drug store.

TO DETERMINE CAUSE

Of Boiler Explosion, An Inquest Is Begun.

Brockton, Mass., March 29.—The inquest was begun in police court today into the cause of the boiler explosion at the shoe factory of R. B. Grover & Company, on March 20, when nearly three score of lives were known to have been lost in the destruction of the plant by fire. A number of persons are still missing. District Attorney Asa P. French of Plymouth county conducted the inquiry, which is designed to show whether any responsibility for the explosion attached to the state, the city, the boiler insurance company, the owners of the factory, or employes.

Suffering soldier tells his experience with Eczema

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

D. D. D. Co., Chicago.

Gentlemen: In 1898 I enlisted in the 9th U. S Infantry, and in 99 was transferred to the 20th U. S. Volunteers, and was in active service before Santiago. I then went to the Philippines and then to China at the time of the Boxer trouble. While there I contracted a skin disease that first appeared as Tilgeria and then developed into regular "dobie itch" (a form of eczema). For three years I suffered horrible tortures, and my skin from the top of my head to the soles of my feet was one mass of sores D. D. FINDS HEAD OF HIS COW

Animal Was Taken By Mistake To Slaughter House.

Complaining that his cow had been stolen from the barn at 519 East Eleventh street, A. Mackowski appeared at police headquarters yesterday afternoon.

Two of the detectives accompanied him to the slaughter house and here the first object that met Mackowski's gaze was the head of his cow, which was just being thrown into the tallow kettle.

The tag attached to the beef showed that the cow had been purchased from Louis Polinski, a butcher. Mr. Polinski was located and he stated that a mistake had occurred. He said he had purchased a cow in the vicinity and had sent a man after her, but that the man had entered the wrong barn.

Makowski threatens to sue for damages for the loss of his cow, which he says yielded over eleven quarts of milk a day.

NEILS LUMBER COMPANY

Has Started Its Sawmill At Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The J. Neils Lumber company's sawmill, (the operation of which constitutes one of the principal industries and means of livelihood for this community) has commenced sawing timber for the season of 1905, and the yards present a very busy appearance. The mill was first started on Wednesday morning of last week, when the machinery was thoroughly tested after having been overhauled during the winter just passed. Everything worked satisfactorily, and the following day business was started in earnest. It was necessary to cut the ice away from the pond and to keep a stream turned into the water through a hose, in order to operate the sluice and put the logs into the mill.

SLEEPING CARS

Evidence of Unfair Prices Being Gathered By Congressmen.

Rivalry For Committee Places In the House Becoming Keen.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, March 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The efforts of Senator Grady of New York to secure legislation in Albany to regulate the price of accommodations in sleeping cars has attracted some attention here among members of congress still remaining in Washington. That the present tariffs for such accommodations are unjust and unfair to a degree has long been recognized and it is more than likely that when congress takes up the subject of railroad rate legislation the sleeping car companies will come in for attention. Years ago, soon after the creation of the Interstate Commerce commission, efforts were made to bring these companies under the jurisdiction of that commission, but it was held that sleeping cars are simply hotels on wheels and that the companies are not common carriers in the meaning of existing law, and that the commission had no jurisdiction whatever.

Evidences of the unfair tariffs are being gathered by some members of congress who propose to introduce bills next winter to regulate sleeping car charges. A few unfair instances are cited. One of these is the rate charged between this city and Chicago. If a passenger destined for the Windy City choses to break his journey at Pittsburg and to remain over twenty-four hours he can do so at a saving of 50 cents, notwithstanding that he will thereby occupy a berth for two nights instead of one. That is to say he can buy a berth from Washington to Pittsburg for $2. Then he can buy another from Pittsburg to Chicago for $2.50. If, however, he buys through to Chicago the cost is $5.00.

Another injustice is cited in the matter of a berth from the top of the Alleganv mountains eastward. The sleeping car fare from Oakland, Maryland to Washington, a distance of 209 miles is $1.50. The rate from Washington to Philadelphia is $2.00, although the journey is but 136 miles. Again the rate from Rochester to Harrisburg is $2.00. But if a passenger desires to ride through to Washington in a sleeper he may do so for the same rate. If he should stop over a day at Harisburg and then continue on to Washington the following night he would be compelled to pay $2.00 additional. These are but a few of the peculiar discriminations of the sleeping car companies which have been discovered right here in Washington. Scores of others are to be found, and it is probable that when the committees get ready to take up the subject they will produce a great deal of interesting testimony which may convince the public that the sleeping car rates are quite as susceptible to congressional revision as the freight rates of the railroads.

Already the members of the fifty-ninth congress are commencing to "jockey" for committee places. Every new congress brings days and days of worriment to the speaker and heart-burnings to the members. In the senate conditions are somewhat different. There a committee on committees of the dominant party makes the committee assignments and if there are any criticism to be made they are made to the members of that committee. It is pretty generally thought that the vice president forms the committees but nothing like that occurs. The vice president is a delightful gentleman whose only province it is to preside over the "Millionaire Club," interpret the rules of the senate and vote when there is a tie, a situation that has not occurred for many years. The last time was when Vice President Morton broke a tie by voting "Aye" upon a motion to adjourn in order that the senate might attend a matinee performance given for the benefit of the Press club. That club died years ago and in consequence a similar opportunity will not come to Vice President Fairbanks.

The vice president hasn't anything more to do with the make-up of committees than you have. That matter rests solely with the senators who usually select nine men to prepare a committee list. After giving all the fat places to the Republicans, the autocrats sitting as a court of last resort condescendingly call upon the minority to name senators for minority places. This done the complete committee list is presented to the senate, is adopted and the "American House of Lords" is organized and ready to do business.

While the rivalry for committee places is keen in the house, it is much keener in the senate. They play politics in that body, although there are no surface indications that anything is disturbing the serenity of the senatorial mind. The older senators do little scheming to secure better committee assignments. They are taken care of by their friends of the committee on committees. It's the "first termers" and the new senators who pull and haul to secure places which will bring them influence. The new senators who will have to be assigned to committees when congress meets in the fall are: Bulkley of Connecticut, Burkett of Nebraska, Carter of Montana, Flint of California, Hemenway of Indiana, Nixon of Nevada, Piles of Washington, Sutherland of Utah, and Warner of Missouri, all Republicans; and Frazier of Tennessee and Rayner of Maryland, Democrats. In addition to these La Follette of Wisconsin has been elected, but it is thought he will not qualify. Instead, it is thought that after the Wisconsin legislature adjourns he will appoint Isaac Stephenson, who has been credited with financing all of La Follette's campaigns against the railroad interests of the Wolverine state, and who frankly admitted once upon a time that the campaigns had cost him $200,000.

Under these circumstances there are a round dozen senators now on the list who will shortly be engaged in a hand to hand struggle for the choice places on senate committees, made vacant by the retirement of a like number of members of the upper branch of congress.

The big committees will in the main, so far as chairmanships go, remain intact. But here and there a vacany occurs in an important committee, which is bound to excite a "scrap." Senator Warren is tired of the committee on claims and will go to the head of public buildings and grounds, which is made vacant by the election of Fairbanks as vice president. Senator Proctor will become chairman of the military affairs committee, a position which he has filled since Gen. Hawley's illness began, over a year ago. This will take him from the head of agriculture and forestry, which he has filled for a number of years. Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota is the ranking member on agriculture, with Proctor gone to military affairs. It is thought that Hansbrough prefers to remain as chairman of his present committee, public lands, in which event Dolliver of Iowa will become chairman of agriculture.

By reason of the retirement of Senator Stewart, who goes back to Nevada to attempt to make another fortune in the mines at 78, Senator Clapp of Minnesota becomes the chairman of the committee on Indian affairs. There will be no change in the chairmanships of the following committees: Appropriations, Allison; audit and control, the contingent expenses of the senate, Kean; Canadian relations, Fulton; civil service and retrenchment, Perkins; coast defenses, Knox; commerce, Frye; Cuban relations, Burnham; District of Columbia, Gallinger; enrolled bills, Ddyden; finance, Aldrich; foreign relations, Culiom; immigration, Dillingham; interoceanic canal, Mitchell; interstate commerce, Elkins; judiciary, Platt of Connecticut; manufactures, Heyburn; naval affairs, Hale; pensions, McCumber; postoffice and post roads, Penrose; printing, Platt of New York; private land claims, Teller; privileges and elections, Burrows; public lands, Hansbrough; railroads, Clark of Wyoming; rules, Spooner; territories, Beveridge.

Millard and Burkett of Nebraska are both pulling wires, one for a better committee, the other to secure some committee in which the people of Nebraska are interested. Millard is tired of being at the head of a committee which has never had a meeting during his chairmanship or to which a bill has been referred. As there are a half dozen changes in the census committee, Millard hopes to succeed to this committee, although he is not a member of that committee at this time. Burkett would be overjoyed to get irrigation and reclamation of arid lands, but three members on the Republican side of the table are remaining and they are well provided for on other committees. Burkett is young, with boundless activity and an irrigation promises to be one of the very great questions of the future, the junior senator from the Antelope State sees in the irrigation committee opportunities for good work and a place in which to make a record.

Washington people are very proud of the frequently published statements to the effect that this is the best governed city in the world. And yet a careful perusal of the local columns of the daily newspapers show plainly that Washingtonians have to submit to exactions and unjust laws which would not be tolerated in any city in the country enjoying the right of franchise. At the present time the city authorities are preparing to collect the annual taxes. So far as real estate is concerned there is little cause to complain, but the personal tax law of the District of Columbia is about the most outrageously unjust statute to be found anywhere on earth. Under this law books, pictures and wearing apparel are exempt, but tools of trade and office furnishings are taxable. The wealthy resident of the West end, who owns $100,000 worth of paintings, and a library worth as much more, pays not one cent of tax upon them, but the poor negro in the alley who owns a spavined horse and a rickety wagon with which he tries to earn a living by hauling ashes, must pay 1½ per cent tax upon the value of his outfit as assessed by the authorities.

Household furniture to the value of $1,000 is exempt. But if the householder rents a desk room in the business district and moves to his "office" a desk and a few chairs, he must pay taxes upon them, because they are used "in gainful operation." A day or two ago two men appeared in the assessor's office. One had been assessed $2,000 on his household property. He explained that aside from his books, wearing apparel and musical instruments, all exempt, his household effects would not bring $1,000 at auction. His assessment was annulled. The other was a negro carpenter, his work bench and tools had been appraised at $130, and $20 were added because he failed to make a sworn return within the time specified. He attempted to secure exemption, but was compelled to admit that the tools were used in "gainful operation," and he must pay a tax of $2.25 or his tools will be seized.

Again, congress enacted a law designed to compel householders to remove the snow from the sidewalks in front of their houses. There were scores of arrests for failure to comply and the poorer delinquents paid fines of $1 to $5 each. But one person, a large property owner who could afford to test the constitutionality of the act, appealed to the higher courts, holding that as the title to the sidewalk is vested in the general government it is "up to" the government to keep these sidewalks free from ice and snow.

The courts sustained the contention, but those who have paid their fines cannot recover.

In the matter of penalties for violating the law the most flagrant partiality and the most peculiar differences in punishment are frequently noticed. A woman has been fined $10, with an alternative of sixty days in jail for stealing a quart of milk and a man on the same day was mulcted in $5.00 only for a murderous assault on another in a drunken row. This week the keeper of a third rate hotel was sentenced to pay a fine of $2,000 and to serve two years in the penitentiary for buying $8.00 worth of stolen railroad tickets. The man who stole them escaped with a moderate fine.

The propaganda in behalf of the parcels past is in full blast once more and the incoming mails to newspaper offices and congressmen are loaded with printed arguments in favor of this radical departure. Because in England a large parcel can be sent through the mails at a small cost it is argued that the same privileges should be extended to America. The principal advocates of the parcels post are the owners of department stores and "mail order" establishments in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago. These people have succeeded in working up a widespread sentiment in favor of the proposed change in the postal laws. But the department officials are opposed because a "parcels post" would quadruple the annual deficit and its establishment would serve to postpone indefinitely the reduction of letter postage to one cent, for which reduction there is a constantly growing demand.

While theoretically a parcels post would prove highly beneficial, and especially to the small order houses, it would actually result in great harm to every community in the country, outside the large cities. Already the big mail order houses of Chicago have made serious inroads into the business of the retail dealers of the Western states and are gradually extending their operations as far east as Maine. If these great houses can deliver their sales to purchasers at a tithe of the present express cost they will soon be able to monopolize a third of the rural trade of the country. Storekeepers in every hamlet in the land are interested in fighting the enactment of a law which threatens them with business ruin and yet the advocates of parcels post find little difficulty in obtaining signatures indorsing the proposed legislation from the men who will suffer most by its enactment.

Thus far no disposition has been evinced by any considerable number of members of congress to acquiesce in the manufactured demand for legislation which will enable the department store in New York or Chicago to deliver a bill of goods in Oregon or Arizona as cheaply as the local dealer can secure his supplies by freight.

No Knife Needed

Piles can be cured by internal treatment. To get at the cause—that is the secret, and that is why Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific is so universally successful in its results. It increases the flow of digestive juices in the stomach—accelerates the action of the liver. With congestion of the liver removed and constipation relieved, the two chief and distinct causes of piles are reached and conquered.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific

The Internal Remedy

For dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, catarrh of the stomach and kindred ailments it is the greatest remedy that has ever yet benefited mankind.

Certain in its results, this remedy will cure the most obstinate case of Piles.

utes to explain them, and to limit the remarks of others to five minutes each. It did not take long. The authors mostly contented themselves with explaining what their bills proposed, and there was very little discussion outside of that.

At one time it looked as though the house really meant to do something, because there was a fight over the question of having the primary elections in June or September.

The country wanted the primaries in June, because the pursuit of agriculture, it appeared, interfered with a proper attendance of the farmers at the polls in September, while in June they had plenty of time to go out and vote. The city members, on the other hand, said that the June primaries made too long a campaign, and besides, they would come too soon after the primaries and general election of cities that elect their officers in the spring.

This whole question, however, simply arose over a printer's error in the Lund bill, providing for the direct extension of the primary election to state officers, and the error was corrected without a decisive vote being taken on the proposition.

* * *

The bills before the house, five in number, were explained by their authors after this point was put out of the way.

John G. Lund of Minneapolis spoke first on his bill, which simply provided for the extension of the primary election system to state officers, without any other change in the primary election system.

Next came H. A. Rider of Little Falls, who told the house that his bill provided for the election of delegates to the state convention at primary elections to be held on the last Tuesday of June.

Ole Peterson explained his bill, which is practically the same as the Laybourn bill providing for the selection of three candidates for each state office at the state conventions, to be voted upon at the fall primaries.

Burdett Thayer of Fillmore county told the house that his bill provided for the election of delegates at the primaries to the county conventions that elect delegates to the state conventions.

John Selb of St. Paul described his bill, which provides for the election of instructed delegates to the state convention at the primaries. But he moved the indefinite postponement of his bill, and declared himself for the Thayer bill. Then there were four bills only before the house.

P. A. Gandrud of Kandiyohi county moved that the Lund bill be amended so as to provide for June primaries instead of primaries in September. The country voted for the amendment, the city voted against it, and the amendment was adopted.

R. S. Bennett of Fosston tried to get the bill amended so as to provide for a single column primary election ballot, like the general election ballot, instead of dividing the candidates in two columns, but his amendment was defeated.

R. J. Wells of Breckenridge, a staunch defender of the direct extension, moved that the Lund bill be given its third reading and be placed on its final passage which was adopted.

Then the vote was taken, and the Lund bill was lost, 20 for and 67 against, Lewis, Saari and Skinner of Duluth voted against the bill, and Dowling, Hugo and Miller did not vote.

The next vote was on the Rider bill, and only six voted for it, while 81 voted against it.

Ole Peterson moved the indefinite postponement of his bill, and the motion carried.

The Thayer bill got one more vote than the Lund bill, the vote being 31 to 65, but it was defeated, too.

This killed all of the bills. Motions to reconsider the vote by which the several bills were defeated were made and lost, thus completing the interment. Each and every one of these five bills is thoroughly dead.

If the city folks were not fooling, the Thayer bill might have got more votes if it had not been for the fact that it required all primaries to be held in June.

This would have made it awkward in cities like Duluth that hold their city elections in February, as it would have made no provisions for primaries except that they would have to be held in the preceding June. John Selb of St. Paul tried to fix this by an amendement, but it was lost.

* * *

Robert C. Dunn of Mille Lacs county, former state auditor and Republican candidate for governor at the last election, was considered to be the author of the Thayer bill, and during the discussion he occupied a seat near Mr. Thayer on the floor of the house.

The house judiciary committee has decided for the Laybourn bill abolishing the grand jury as a regular thing in the proceedings necessary to place criminals before the court.

The vote was close, 10 to 8, and rather unexpected. A sub-committee to which the bill was referred had decided against the bill and recommended its indefinite postponement. There were friends of the measure on the committee, but it was not thought that fhy were strong enough in number to put it through.

The bill will have rather harder sledding in the house than it had in the senate but it is hoped that it will pass. The hope is not strong enough to be a belief, however.

* * *

The house committee of the whole yesterday paid some attention to Mr. Ware's bill making 2½ cents a mile the maximum charge for passenger rates in this state, and providing for negotiable and interchangeable mileage at 2 cents per mile. In view of the action of the house on the Stone bill, Mr. Ware cut out the mileage part, and talked in favor of a rate of 2½ cents a mile. J. G. Lennon of Minneapolis talked against the bill, saying that as the state had already struck the railroads with an increase of one-third in their taxes, it was too soon to push a reduction in their rates.

Others took part in the discussion, and the committee rose with the bill still before it.

The senate railroad committee yesterday afternoon started hearings on the W. A. Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill.

The friends of the bill began their side of the case, but did not conclude it. Another meeting will be held Thursday, after which the railroads will be given a hearing against the bill.

The arguments on both sides have been threshed out before the house committee, and there is nothing new in them.

E. J. Cannon of St. Paul, representing the shippers, and W. E. Lee and A. L. Miller of Long Prairie, were the speakers in behalf of the bill yesterday afternoon.

THE COLONEL'S WATERLOO.

Colonel John M. Fuller, of Honey Grove, Texas, nearly met his Waterloo, from Liver and Kidney trouble. In a recent letter, he says: "I was nearly dead, of these complaints, and, although I tried my family doctor, he did me no good; so I got a 50c bottle of your great Electric Bitters, which cured me. I consider them the best medicine on earth, and thank God who gave you the knowledge to make them." Sold, and guaranteed to cure, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Kidney Disease, by all druggists, at 50c a bottle.

HART GETS THE DECISION

In a Twenty Round Bout With Jack Johnson.

Woodward's Pavilion, San Francisco, March 29.—Marvin Hart was awarded the decision over Jack Johnson in a 20-round contest last night that went the limit, but he came far from demonstrating that he is qualified to meet Jim Jeffries. Johnson's much-vaunted cleverness did not count for much. While he was able to hit Hart frequently, his blows did not seem to damage the white man from Kentucky. The sympathies of the large crowd were openly with Hart, who was the short-ender in the betting, and every lead he made at Johnson, whether he landed or not, was greeted with yells of joy. Hart did manage to deal the only effective blow in the eleventh round when he landed a right swing on Johnson's jaw that staggered the black man and nearly knocked him over.

Referee Greggains stated that he gave the decision to Hart because all through the fight Hart did all the forcing and leading. According to Greggains, if Hart had not pursued his tactics there would have been no fight, as Johnson merely contented himself with countering.

The general opinion of those who witnessed the fight was that neither man would stand any chance with Jeffries. The champion could probably beat them both in the same night.

Jabez White, who arrived Monday from England to fight Jimmie Britt, was introduced prior to the main event.

Battling Nelson also appeared and said that he would fight Britt at any time. Britt did not appear.

TWO SUICIDES IN CLEVELAND

Men Believed To Have Agreed To Die At the Same Time.

Cleveland, March 29.—Henry L. Woodward, said to be a well-known attorney of New York, and a brother of Judge Woodward of the circuit court, was found dead in a room at the Hollenden hotel here yesterday, with a bullet wound believed to be self-inflicted, through his head.

Thirty minutes after the body of Woodward had been found, the hotel employes discovered that another guest, Charles Brousea, a salesman for the National Supply company of Toledo, had committed suicide by shooting himself through the temple in his room. It is believed that Woodward and Brousea agreed to end their lives at the same time.

Cards were found in the dead man's clothes bearing the name of Henry L. Woodward, representative of the Bank Law Publishing company. Other papers showed him to be a member of the firm of Cumming & Woodward, No. 21 Liberty street, New York city.

According to the hotel management, Woodward had been at the hotel for three weeks. He was about 35 years of age.

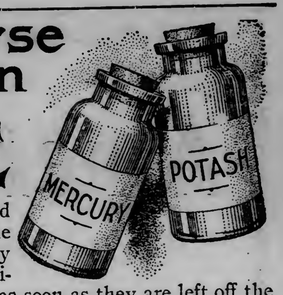

New York, March 29.—Henry L. Woodward formerly had an office at 31 Liberty street, this city. At that office it was stated this afternoon that Mr. Woodward left there some time ago and that nothing had been heard from him since that time. No reason could be given for his act.

Mr. Woodward formerly practiced law in Albany, whence he came to this city. He was a brother of Judge Woodward.

BOILER EXPLODES.

Chicago, March 29.—One man was fatally scalded and several others painfully burned yesterday by the explosion of a boiler at the car shops of the Illinois Central Railway company at Burnsides, a suburb. Judge J. E. F. Dunne, Democratic candidate for mayor of Chicago, had finished an address to the workmen and had left the buildling only a little before the explosion occurred. It is the opinion of the officials that the accident was caused by the accumulation of too much steam in the boiler while the workmen were away from their posts listening to Judge Dunne.

The "CURE" worse than the DISEASE

Even if Mercury and Potash could cure Contagious Blood Poison, the condition in which these strong minerals leave the system would make the cure worse than the disease. But they cannot cure the vile disorder; they can only cover up the evidences for awhile, or mask the disease in the system, and as soon as they are left off the symptoms return in all their hideousness, and the sufferer finds he has wasted valuable time, and in addition has ruined his health through the use of these harmful drugs.

Mercury and Potash eat out the lining of the stomach and bowels, produce dyspepsia by drying up the gastric juices, affect the bones and muscles, cause the teeth to decay, make spongy gums, and completely break down the constitution. In most cases after dosing with these minerals for months, and sometimes years, the patient finds he is left with Mercurial Rheumatism, the worst and most abhorrent form of this disease, and the Contagious Blood Poison for which he has so long taken this destructive treatment, has not been cured. Mercurial wrecks all over the country, whose lives are lives of misery and suffering, with no hope for future health, are best witnesses that "THE CURE IS WORSE THAN THE DISEASE."

A LONG STRUGGLE WITH BLOOD POISON.

I struggled for four years with a most desperate case of Contagious Blood Poison. I took Mercury in different forms, with Iodide Potash almost continually from the time I contracted the disease, but instead of improving I was growing weaker all the time, and the sores broke out on my body in such numbers and were so severe and offensive that the doctor while treating me used rubber gloves. Finally he told me to get another doctor; that he could do nothing more for me. This was the latter part of last summer, and I then wrote for your Home Treatment Book on Blood Poison and began S. S. S. I have been taking it according to directions, and it is with great pleasure I have to report a perfect cure. There is not a mark on me, and I now weigh 136 pounds; my usual weight was 110.

No other disease is so vile and destructive as Contagious Blood Poison. When the virus enters the blood the entire circulation becomes poisoned, and in a short time the symptoms begin to appear. The mouth and throat ulcerate, the hair and eyebrows fall out, the glands in the neck and groin swell, copper-colored spots appear on the flesh, and in severe cases sores break out on the body, the finger nails drop off, and the sufferer finds himself diseased from head to foot with the most hateful and humiliating of all poisons.

Being in this diseased condition, the system should not be dosed with powerful mineral medicines that further add to the burden, but should be treated with a remedy that while removing the poison will at the same time build up and strengthen the entire body in its fight to regain health. S. S. S. is the only known antidote for Contagious Blood Poison—the only remedy that is able to get at the root of the disease and force out every particle of the poison so that there are never any signs of its return. It is purely vegetable, being made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, and never leaves any bad after-effects, but instead, tones up the stomach and digestion, and builds up every part of the system while it is eradicating the poison from the blood.

S. S. S. GUARANTEED PURELY VEGETABLE.

S. S. S. will also drive out any lingering poison that may be in the blood from the use of Mercury and Potash. It is the only safe cure for Contagious Blood Poison, whether in its incipiency or advanced stages. Thousands have been cured by it after trying the mineral treatment, Hot Springs and everything else. Do not complicate the disease and add another poison to the blood, or risk permanently ruining your health by using these harmful drugs, but begin the use of S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers, and let this remedy of nature remove the virus promptly. We have a standing offer of $1,000.00 for proof that S. S. S. contains a particle of mineral of any kind. Write for our special Home Treatment book on this disease, and for any medical advice you wish. We make no charge for either.

ABDUCTION CASE

Before the Courts Has Stirred the Canadians Greatly.

Cantlie Was Incarcerated and $250,000 Secured By Brother.

Ottawa, Ont., March 28.—The Cantile abduction is the sensation of the day in Montreal in consequence of the prominence of the Cantlie family and the astounding nature of the allegations made. George S. Cantlie and William A. M. Cantlie are brothers. The latter was in Europe when he received a communication from George to return to Montreal, where he was seized and placed in the lunatic asylum at Verdun.

During his incarceration, it is alleged in the papers filed in the case, George visited the asylum with a notary and presented a paper for William's signature, pledging himself that he should be liberated on signing it, but otherwise would continue to be deprived of his liberty. William says he was ill, and without investigating signed the paper.

On receiving his freedom, and the circumstances coming to the knowledge of friends, legal advice was sought. It was discovered that the document he had signed was a deed handing over property worth $250,000 to his brother and another man, Alex Stewart. An action was instituted to set aside this deed. George contests the action on the ground that his brother, being interdicted, can take no legal proceedings except through his curator himself. The case is now before the courts.

High society is much exercised at a sharp attack by a pastor who caters to one of the wealthiest congregations in the capital, the Rev. Dr. Herridge, an exceptionally eloquent and gifted man. Mr. Herridge in uncompromising terms has denounced the fashionables who, while professing to give up society during Lent, in reality do nothing of the kind. The pastor said the society columns in the daily papers have been full of announcements that such a person had a small card party, but owing to the Lenten season the function was only informal, the notice concluding with the usual list of guests.

Mr. Herridge denounced not only the hypocritical pretenses of Lenten observances which are not observed but the lamentable decay of the domestic virtues and the family affections as the inevitable result of the constant pursuit of worldly pleasures. Men and women alike have their thoughts so concentrated on and become so infatuated by the rounds of fashionable entertainments that the innocent children in many families, once the center of homelike simplicity and affection, are beginning to be looked upon as a nuisance and are left to be brought up in a manner which is likely to tell seriously on future generations.

Mr. Herridge asked those of his congregation who are opposed to the fashionable excesses of the day to wake up and assert themselves and no longer refrain from the expression, of their real feelings.

The Northwest mounted police are making inquiries into statements that polygamy is extensively practiced among the Mormons. The number of "aunts" attached to most Mormon homes in the territories long has been a feature of the Mormon settlements which the police have thought it well to take particular notice of. It has been difficult to obtain evidence to prove that these aunts stand in the relation of wives of the Mormon male settlers, but proof sometimes has been secured, and in these instances the Mormon heads of families have been promptly warned and the aunts have disappeared.

A late issue of the MacLeod Gazette states that wholesale prosecutions of Canadian Mormons on the charge of polygamy are contemplated at Raymond. A well known resident of Magrath brought to Canada two wives, whom he married in Utah. He claims he maintains no relations with one of his wives. Nevertheless he has been given the choice to leave the country of be prosecuted for polygamy.

John G. Foster, United States consul general in Canada, has done good work for the people on both sides of the boundary line in an address he delivered at the last luncheon of the Canadian club at the capital. He spoke on "Some American Problems of Interest to Canada." For years, he said, he had wished that Americans would become more familiar with Canada, her people, institutions, and resources, and that Canadians should understand Americans a little more than they do at present. The average Canadian citizen knew more about the United States especially her geography, than the average United States citizen did of Canada.

There are serious evils that endanger the republic, he said, but the situation is one that suggests an optimistic view. The people are earnestly united to suppress abuses and evils, and never before have they been more devoted to public affairs for solely patriotic reons. He dealt with the trusts, and said all were not necessarily harmful or objectionable, though the results were often monopolistic and oppressive. An investigation was under way as to the legality of the beef trust, and the whole situation seemed to justify the hope that all capitalistic combinations soon would be completely under federal control.

Sir William Mulock's special committee to inquire into the telephone question has commenced work. A report on the municipal telephone system in the United States, compiled by one of the officials of the postoffice department is being prepared for the use of the committee.

One of the objects Sir William has in view is to establish groups of ten or a dozen subscribers in farming districts who can have telegraphic communication without a central station. He favors the machinery for rural telephones being furnished by the municipalities in co-operation, the charges being placed on the regular tax bills. Some members of parliament wish to see the inquiry extended to the telegraph companies, with a view to the government, which is already a large owner of telegraph lines of its own construction, ultimately acquiring the ownership or control of the telegraph as well as the telephone systems of the country.

Two important departments of the United States and Canadian governments have been brought into closer touch by the visit to the Canadian capital of Dr. Charles D. Walcott, director of the United States geological survey, and Dr. O. H. Tippman, superintendent of the coast and geodetic surveys of the United States. The boundary commissioners were accompanied by Messrs. C. H. Sinclair and J. A. Flemer of the United States coast survey and G. S. Bernard of the United States geological survey. They came to Ottawa to meet Dr. W. F. King, Dominion astronomer, as Canadian boundary commissioner, for a consultation in connection with the delimitation of the international boundary.

Charges of land grabbing in the province of Ontario under the late Ross government, constituting a "scandal of no ordinary character," are being investigated by the Whitney administration. It is charged that whole townships in New Ontario, with the exception of the claims held by half a dozen bona fide settlers, are found to have been given away to friends of the late government for practically no consideration.

These valuable lands are today held at high prices by men who have never performed settlement duty or done anything to legally entitle them to the grant, and can only be had by intending settlers by buying from the holders on the latter's terms. It is intended to investigate every case where land is held by non-settlers, and the prospects are hundreds of thousands of acres will be restored to the public domain and opened for settlement.

BETRAYED BY HIS VOICE.

Horrid Man Caught at Lady Artists' Dance.

Vienna, March 28.—Three thousand women in fancy dress were dancing at the biennial "Lady Artists' fete," last week, to which no person of the male sex was supposed to have been admitted, but during the evening there was a sudden wild cry of "Man!"

Disguised as a Japanese girl, but betrayed by his voice, the interloper was severely scratched and pummeled before being hustled out of the building. Scarcely had the confusion subsided and the dancing been recommenced, when another "wolf in sheep's clothing" was discovered. He was also severely handled, and had to be rescued by the ladies' committee from the angry dancers. It appears that he was a prince disguised as a Chinaman, but his name has not been divvulged.

VALUE OF REALTY

Enhanced Not Only In New York, But Everywhere.

Building of the Panama Canal Great Aid To South.

New York, March 29.—One of the most noted of financiers of this country was interviewed a few days ago and expressed the opinion that vast sums if money were being invested in real estate, and that the tendency of investment for the immediate future was in that direction.

He is undoubtedly correct in this statement, for information from all cities and all parts of the rural districts shows many changes in ownership of lots and of tracts of land, and that the majority of recent purchases are at prices far advanced over those prevalent even two years ago.

During the past ten days I have conversed with leading business men from the North, South, East and West, and from the central portion of the country, and they each and every one report activity in realty and prices of city and agricultural properties very much higher than of late years. Men from Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and Nebraska report farm lands steadily rising in value, and, strange as it may seem, these states being 1,000 miles from the Gulf of Mexico, one of the strongest and most potent causes of the recent rise in values of farm lands in the states named was the widespread belief that the completion of the Panama canal was sure to be of the greatest benefit to the farmers of the Central West.

No one questions that the canal will cause the greatest activity in the gulf states and up the Mississippi to its headwaters, but the keen intelligence of the shrewd population of the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains has not failed to grasp the advantages the canal will give to them.

They are right in this view, for the grain of Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri and the Dakotas, by way of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, or even by rail to the gulf ports of Texas, can be delivered in Asia or to the western coast of South America, as cheaply as grain of Manitoba or the states on the western slope of the Rocky mountains.

Then, again, all through the mountain states, from Idaho and Montana south to Arizona and New Mexico, there is a tremendous activity in mining operations of all kinds. Copper, gold, silver, lead, coal and iron properties, asphalt propositions, and oil discoveries are being developed by strong capitalists and men of more moderate fortunes, but every shaft sunk, every tunnel run, every mill erected, every well drilled, every furnace or smelter put up, every process tried brings additional population, attracts men and their families to districts heretofore sparsely populated and in many instances uninhabited five years ago. The population of these mountain states certainly numbers not less than 1,000,000 of persons more than it did in 1900, and this increase of consumers of agricultural products, of course, increases the nearby demand for farm products of the West.

They, as a rule, live well and patronize merchants in the most liberal manner. In active, wide-awake, live mining communities business of all kinds flourishes, and a Western mining town of 5,000 population will consume more agricultural products than a New England city of twice that number of people. The remarkable growth of the mining population in the mountain states, the great and growing prosperity in mining communities, is therefore a decided advantage to the agriculturists of the valleys and plains of the adjoining states.

The higher prices for lands in the mountain states and their neighboring agricultural states are therefore justified by present conditions, and will be still farther advanced by assured future development of that portion of the union. From Maine to California there is but one expression as to the future of the Gulf states, now that the Panama canal is to go through. Indeed, the expression can be extended, for English capitalists are willing now to place their money in Southern properties and enterprises, and at the present time Texas, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia or Florida railway stocks and bonds can be as readily placed in England as those of Northern or Western roads. Many English manufacturers, merchants and vessel owners, familiar as they are with cotton statistics and cotton production and shipment, are not backward in asserting that the cotton crop is the surest, safest and most profitable of all crops of the world, and for those reasons cotton lands are the best to purchase and to own.

There will be very few acres unplanted in the South five years from now, for the demand for cotton will grow immensely greater with every year, and the neglected lands of the South will be as high priced as the best lands of Illinois, New York or Iowa, for the very good reason that they will produce as much money per acre as the Northern lands will.

The South has paid usury on capital for three generations. The South has in 40 years rebuilt from the destruction of the war, financially, politically, socially and commercially. The South has at last mastered all these difficulties, and the energies of her people will no longer be spent in the waste that usury brings and entails, but will now produce results permanent and beneficial to themselves and to the Southland, for they have liquidated the hundreds of millions of dollars borrowed at home and abroad after the desolation of the Civil war.

The people of the South were never so free of debt as they are today. The lands of the South never were so strong financially as they are today. The lands of the South never were worth so much as they are today, and the population of the South never was increasing as it is today. The lands of the South are more desirable to farmers and planters than they ever were, for the best of all reasons that their production can be made very profitable.

Active business men of the North are availing themselves of the natural resources of the South, and are putting millions of new capital into the development of them. This new blood is bound to stimulate and increase the recent activity throughout the South and will change the entire business of the Gulf states and the adjoining states to their Northern boundaries.

The city of New York has had for five years an unprecedented rise in real estate values and in investment movement of many millions of dollars, yet the last 30 days' sales have surpassed all prior records.

This week a city lot was sold for the extraordinary price of more than $500 per square foot.

If the entire surface of the lot had been covered with United States notes of the denomination of $50 each laid side by side by the purchaser he would still have to have added thousands of dollars to make up his payment at the price he gave. This will give some idea of the present value of ground in the heart of New York.

It is not only downtown in New York that real estate purchases are being rapidly made. I know of one broker who has dealt in options only, the greater part of them being on lands in the outlying district known as Washington Heights, who has closed deals netting him since January 1, 1905, $80,000 in profits, while his investment was not a single dollar.

The movement of realty in New York city since the opening of the present year has been so great, so extensive, and is of such importance, not only locally but as a part of the great general movement of realty over the country, that it can only be fairly treated in a separate and distinct communication.

House Work

Need Not Wear Her Out

The drudgery of house work seems never ending to tired-out, dispirited women who suffer from female complaints or irregularities. Inflammation and ulceration of the womb and ovaries cause fearful bearing down pains which are aggravated by much standing on the feet, and lifting necessary in house work.

But let no woman despair of relief from this torture. That famous tonic reconstructor of diseased or disordered female organism, has cured more than one million American Women, and it will cure you. When monthly periods are painful or irregular, when backaches and headaches drive out all ambition, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will bring back health, strength, and happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

It Gave Me New Life and Vigor

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last spring, while we were moving, I did considerable more work than my strength permitted, and, having mental trouble at the same time, my health broke down completely and I found myself unable to rest or eat. My nervous system became shattered and I was pale and emaciated and had to take to my bed.

My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, although I had no faith in patent medicines, I was so miserable that I would take anything for relief, I found that it made a complete change for the better, inducing appetite and restful sleep and imparting new life and vigor to my entire system.

I gained nearly fourteen pounds, my complexion looked fresh and clear, and my best friends were surprised and pleased at the change and could hardly credit the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had accomplished it.

LOVE STRONGER THAN PAROLES

Romance Behind Escape To Russia Of Three Officers.

Vallejo, Cal., March 29.—An international episode that has caused perplexity to the American and Russian governments has just come to a happy ending. Several weeks ago Lieutenant Peter Michaeloff, Lieutenant Andrew Kyra Dynjan and First Engineer Sergeant Kapatzin of the Russian cruiser Lena, lying at the Mare Island navy yard, violated their paroles and returned to St. Petersburg.

After negotiations between the two governments it was said that the three young officers have been degraded and ordered to report to Captain A. Berlinsky at Mare Island.

It now appears that Lieutenant Michaeloff had been engaged before the breaking out of the war to the daughter of a prominent solicitor in the Russian capital. After the Lena came to Mare Island, Michaeloff took his two friends, Lieutenant Dynjan and Engineer Kapatzin, into his confidence. He found that their hearts were also given to maids in the Russian capital. The desire to return became too strong to be resisted, and so the three young officers, leaving their uniforms and personal effects behind, stole away from San Francisco.

Michaeloff's sweetheart was awaiting him when he arrived in St. Petersburg, and the marriage was celebrated forthwith. The two other men were taken prisoners before their marriages could be solemnized. When the cases were explained to the minister of war he ordered all the young men back to America, but imposed no other penalty.

CHICKEN BROODER

Used to Save Lives of Twin Babies.

Springfield, Ill., March 29.—A Tallula couple, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Bast, have adopted the novel experiment of attempting to save the lives of their infant children by the use of a chicken brooder in lieu of a baby incubator.

Two daughters were born to them Thursday night. The birth was premature, and as Tallula is far removed from any point where there is a baby incubator, all hope of saving the lives of the twins was despaired of until some one suggested the use of a brooder. One was prepared and the children were placed in it under the direction of the attending physician. It is now believed the babies will live.

MURDER NOW SUSPECTED.

Iron River Man's Strange Death Investigated.

Washburn, Wis., March 29.—Sheriff Conlin is making an investigation of the death of Burt Conchran, who was found on a railway track near Pratt last Tuesday, supposedly killed by accident. It has been discovered that Conchran started for a walk to a logging camp with three men, who have not been seen since. Justice Slaytop, it is charged, summoned a jury, but examined no witnesses, and shipped the remains, found by a woman returning from a revival meeting, to Iron River.

NO PLACE FOR PEDDLER

In Jerusalem, Says Simon Harris, a Centerarian.

New York, March 29.—Simon Harris, who is 104 years old, and who for nearly seventy-five years has been peddling dry goods all over the face of the earth, came back to New York Sunday from Jerusalem, where for a little more than two years he continued his trade as peddler. Last night the old man, who arrived on the American liner Philadelphia, and who is still hale and hearty, and he was mighty glad to get back, since, as he expressed it, "the peddling business is awfully dull in Jerusalem."

Mr. Harris has a daughter, Mrs. Brooks of 75 Columbia street, Brooklyn, his only remaining relative. With her he expects to spend the rest of his days.

The aged peddler said that since he became a peddler he had traveled in every state in the Union, had toured South America, from Caracas to Buenos Ayres, had been from one end of Mexico to the other, visited every country in Europe and Asia, and all the larger cities of Northern Africa and Australia, as well as many islands.

"Two years ago," he said, "I concluded to try my luck in Palestine. I went all over the country, working in Bethlehem of Judea, Nazareth, the country around the Mount of Olives and Mount Sinai. It is mighty dull in that country. Jerusalem, so far as trade is concerned, is the deadest place on the face of the earth. I did not make enough there to buy a can of sardines. Nobody there has any money, and, strange to say, they don't appear to have the slightest desire to possess any."

Mr. Harris came to America forty-seven years ago.

We often refer to the doctors. Why?

Because we make medicines for them. We give them the formula for Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and they prescribe it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption. We trust them; they trust us. Ask your own doctor about taking this medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

OPENS HIS LABORATORIES.

PROVES MEDICINES PURE.

For the purpose of showing the purity and honesty of his medicines, the "Favorite Prescription" and the "Golden Medical Discovery," Dr. R. V. Pierce has thrown open to public inspection his laboratories and works in Buffalo.

These guides explain the detailed and scientific work of the skilled chemists and just how and of what the modern "patent medicine" is made.

To every visitor is also explained the system by which every user of Doctor Pierce's medicines receives individual care from one or more specialists.

Dr. Pierce was a member of Congress where he served with honor. He is a splendid specimen of manhood with a frank countenance, inspiring confidence, and great personal magnetism.

For forty years Dr. Pierce has been actively engaged in the manufacture of his prescriptions. His fully-equipped laboratory has grown and expanded until now it is the largest and most complete one known.

Dr. Pierce's success is real. There is a steadily increasing demand for his medicines, proving conclusively that they are not nostrums, but reliable remedies for diseases.

Specially educated for the medical profession, he early supplemented his studies by extensive and original research in its several departments. In these specialties he has become an authority and recognized leader. Many of his remedies have been adopted and prescribed by leading physicians in their private practice.

This success, of course, has not grown without awakening criticism and arousing comment. A man who has the courage to break away from the narrow ethics of the medical profession and advertise broadcast his medicines for men and women is sure to be assailed.

These attacks have been all met with dignity by Dr. Pierce. It was only when definite charges of fraud were made by a leading periodical that Dr. Pierce retaliated by instituting a suit for $200,000.00 damages.

Upon the filing of this suit, an investigation was made by the defendants, and a retraction was printed in a subsequent issue of their paper.

A visit is worth while if only to witness the excellent methods by which each applicant for aid, whether he be correspondent or a patient at the hospital, receives the care of eminent specialists in medicine and surgery.

When these things may be personally inspected it must be acknowledged by even the most skeptical that the "patent medicine" businesses are not frauds but distinct advancements in medical science.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Gentlemen—Although I have never used a remedy of any kind, never having been sick, I can most conscientiously endorse Dr. Pierce's remedies as prescriptions of the highest order. I am in a position to make the endorsement, for the reason that in my experience of thirty-one years in the drug business, I have sold the remedies daily, and, while I have heard them spoken of continually in the highest terms by users of the medicine, I have never heard one complaint. I have sold many thousand duplicate orders of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and the other remedies. The high reputation of the World's Dispensary Medical Association's Sanitarium and of Dr. Pierce's remedies are justly deserved.

The general reputation of Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Dr. Lee H. Smith, Vice-President, and Dr. V. Mott Pierce, Secretary of the Association, are known to me to be of the highest order of professional merit, and the fruit of their labor is a great public benefaction.

Yours truly,

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Escanaba Man Assaulted and Robbed Late at Night.

Escanaba—With his face and head a mass of bruises and all of his money missing Henry Wirth was found on upper Ludington street at Escanaba at a late hour at night after having been severely beaten and robbed but a few minutes before. According to the story told by Wirth he was walking on Sarah street when some one approached him from behind and struck him several blows about the face and head with a heavy club, until he lost consciousness. The identity of the hold-up man is unknown.

With the breaking up of the camps Escanaba is being frequented by large numbers of lumberjacks, parties of as high as fifty men coming in at one time. The lumberjack is still a good "spender," but he is not the brainless prodigal of other days. He has managed to pick up some slight modicum, at least, of good sense. According to the Escanaba banks the checks cashed show that the lumbermen made better money this season than last.

Fayette—John Devet, Jr., of Fayette, Delta county, accidentally shot himself on a snowshoe trip a few days ago. He was carrying a loaded rifle and in losing his balance, he rammed the gun into the snow with sufficient force to pull the trigger. He was seriously injured and may die.

Ontonagon—Captain John G. Parker of Ontonagon, one of the oldest and best known residents of the upper peninsula, enjoys the distinction of being the oldest living navigator on Lake Superior. He is nearly eight-five years old and notwithstanding his advanced age, is, at present, enjoying good health.

Menominee—The residence of Emil Baumlet, located about four miles east of Talbot, menominee county, was totally destroyed by fire last week. The fire started near the chimney and when discovered had made such headway that the occupants had scarcely time to make their escape, and very little of the contents of the dwelling was saved. The savings of the family, about $80 in currency, and which had been placed in a cigar box, went up in smoke.

Joseph F. Shemer of Faunus turned over to the Menominee county clerk three wildcat scalps, and secured the bounty thereon. Bounty has been paid on seventeen wildcats in Menominee county within the past few weeks. Mr. Shemer asserts that the woods in the northern part of the county are pretty well overrun with the animals.

The Riverside Golf club has purchased the clubhouse of the Polo club at Menominee and will move it to the links as soon as the weather permits. The Polo clubhouse will replace the golf clubhouse recently destroyed by fire. The structure will be improved after it has been moved.

WAS DRUGGED BY WHISKY

Crookston, Minn., March 29.—Sheriff Possberg of Marshall county spent the night in the city en route home to Warren, having in custody Elias Lofstrom, who is charged with having sold the whisky which John Bjorklund drank the evening he disappeared last December, after having visited at the home of Nels Braadlodt's place, near Lund postoffice, in Marshall county, not for from Holt, on the Greenbush extension north of Thief River Falls, on the Great Northern. Lofstrom is accused of having, in company with a partner, conducted a blind pig in that neighborhood last fall, which had been frequented on the night of Bjorklund's disappearance by Bjorklund and a companion. They left the blind pig late in the evening after drinking considerable, and took a bottle with them. After proceeding a short distance, Bjorklund's companion fell by the wayside and Bjorklund could not arouse him.

Bjorklund, to protect his companion, built a fire beside him, and he slept on for about four hours, despite Bjorklund's efforts to arouse him. Finally the fire communicated with his shirt and ate its way through to his breast, and the pain at last aroused him from his stupor and the two men continued to the Braadlodt home, where they remained for a time and finished the bottle. Bjorklund's companion remained there for the night, but Bjorklund started for his home. That was on Dec. 14, and was the last seen of him till his remains were found a few days ago by a searching party organized by neighbors. All previous efforts were futile, as a heavy snow fell the morning after his disappearance and covered his tracks effectively, baffling repeated efforts to find him.

When found the remains were badly disfigured by wolves, which had eaten away a portion of his face. As soon as the remains were found, interest in the case was revived, and Sheriff Possberg, armed with a warrant, started a search for the blind piggers who had sold the whisky, with the result above stated. The remains of Bjorklund were found about a mile from Braadlodt's house.

County Attorney Brown of Marshall county went to St. Paul Sunday with a sample bottle of the stuff Lofstrom and his companion are accused of having sold for whisky. It is said to contain wood alcohol and some poisonous coloring matter, and will play an important part in the prosecution of Lofstrom and his companion, if the latter can be found. The settlers in the vicinity of Holt are much wrought up over the case, and it will make the life of a blind pigger in that vicinity rather a hazardous one in the futiure.

Bjorklund was single, but was a very popular homesteader.

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Home and Foreign Presbyterial Missionary society, held yesterday at the First Presbyterian church, closed last evening with an address on "The Mormon Problem," by Dr. Wishard of Utah. In the afternoon the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. I. I. Gorby; first vice president, Mrs. Mary Whipple; second vice president, Mrs. T. H. Cleland; third vice president, Mrs. Farries; fourth vice president, Mrs. M. T. McGaughoy of Two Harbors; recording secretary, Mrs. G. M. Smith; treasurer of Foreign society, Mrs. W. L. Johnson; treasurer for Home society, Mrs. W. H. Burris; contingent secretary, Mrs. S. F. Pierce; secretary of literature, Mrs. W. J. McCabe; secretary of Young People's work, Mrs. Murdo Gibson; secretary of Freedmen's work, Mrs. A. J. Bryan of Two Harbors; auditor, Mrs. J. A. Waugh; corresponding secretary of Home society, Mrs. H. B. Sutherland; corresponding secretary of Foreign society, Mrs. W. H. Brocklehurst.

Dr. Wishard spoke vigorously against the Mormon idea, with which he shows a thorough acquaintance, as well he may, for he has been in Utah fighting it as a Presbyterian missionary for fifteen years. He was one of the witnesses against Congressman Roberts, a few years ago, and is now taking a keen interest in the investigation of United States Senator Reed Smoot. Dr. Wishard said that since the publicity given in the Roberts case more decency is attained in Utah, and he is in hopes that these investigations will cause a destruction of the Mormon power in Utah. He declared that in Utah the priesthood is supreme above all other powers; that no Mormon recognizes the United States constitution or laws as greater than the church, nor nearly as great, and that every act is guided, not in observance of the civil laws, but in observance of the laws of the church.

Polygamy and the rest of the Mormon doctrine was attacked by Dr. Wishard. The tenets of Mormonism teach that God is none other than Adam, and that He is living in polygamy, and that our spirits are the result of His relations. It teaches that Jesus Christ is the offspring of Adam and Mary, and that man has had a previous existence. Sin, as a necessary evil, is countenanced, and the Mormons believe that man's accounts of sin and good works will be balanced when he comes to die, on a debit and credit basis, and a balance struck.

School Garden Committee.

The school garden committee of the Women's council met yesterday and a letter asking the co-operaton of the principals of the different schools in the plan was prepared. This will be submitted to Superintendent Denfeld for his approval and if it is satisfactory to him, will be presented to the principals at their regular meeting this afternoon.

The members of the committee are convinced that the plan can be made successful and that it will be of much benefit to the pupils, giving something to intereest them profitably.

Of Social Interest.

Monday evening Mrs. J. Stubler was pleasantly surprised by a large number of her friends and was presented with a handsome music cabinet. The evening was spent in playing games and music. Head prizes were won by Miss Libbie Carrier, Miss Laura McNamara, Wilber Forsyth, Claud Jeromus and Angus Gustafson, Al Ringsred, John Stubler and Frank Goodson. The following were present:

Messrs. and Mesdames—
E. S. Kromroy, F. H. Goodson.
W. LaHay,

Misses—

THE HELP PROBLEM.

New York Organization That Fills Wants Temporarily.

There is a saying that like all proverbs, has more or less truth in it, to the effect that one can purchase anything he needs, or thinks he needs, in New York city, if he can pay the bill that the demand incurs. Now and then some new demand develops, and some one steps to the front and devises means to meet it, says the Business Woman's Magazine.

The Woman's Domestic Guild of America has stepped in and offers to "make good" in the direction of one woeful lack. It meets a phase of the servant girl and cook question in a manner that furnishes relief in an hour when it is most needed.

It has opened a department for the supplying of temporary help in households, in emergency cases. Only members are permitted to share its advantages, but any woman who has kept house in New York for a year or so will not hesitate long before enrolling her name on the list of members.

If the member finds herself short of help suddenly, and especially in an hour when she most needs it, all that she need do is to telephone to the office of the guild and the help asked for will be forthcoming. It may be for a week, or a day, or an hour. All she is called upon to do is to state her needs, and a cook, or waitress, or chambermaid is sent direct from headquarters as swiftly as the cars will carry her; or if the hostess is in dire straits, and is willing to stand the expense, the relief expedition reaches her house in a galloping cab.

The manager of the guild relates a case in point that, while it is extreme, illustrates the domestic storm that may befall even the best regulated household. At 5:45 p. m. of Wednesday last the telephone bell rang. The manager answered. There came in piteous tone over the wire a wildly hurried message, "Is this 988 Domestic Guild—no, I mean is this 988 Madison Guild—988 Madison?"

"It is, madam; what can we do for you?"

"You can save my life or reason. I am Mrs. Blank of 99 West End avenue. Can you send me a cook—a competent cook—in fifteen minutes?"

"We can send you a cook, but it will take a half hour to get her there, even though it be an emergency call. Is it?"

"Good heavens, man, you take it too cool. Is it! You would think so if you were in my place. Can't she fly? Why don't you get her started? Why don't you get her moving?"

"I have already sent word to one of our best cooks. She is getting her things together now. What is the trouble?"

It was a flood of troubles—taken at the tide, so far as the woman at the other end of the line was concerned. The manager listened attentively and sympathetically, and this is about what he heard:

"The Young Women's Christian association, you know. They said she used to, but had quit—began because of headaches, and kept it up because she liked the taste. I said I would try her, if she really wanted to reform. I think she wanted to. Yes, Central, I am still talking. She went two months all right. Then tonight of all nights, when Mr. Blank's partner and his wife and two others are coming to dinner. The partner's wife is always telling about what a model cook she has. That she should take tonight to get drunk—no, not the partner's wife, but my cook, Y. W. C. A. reformed model! You don't get any more reform work done in this kitchen. She is leaning over the kitchen table now crying over a brother who was drowned in 1877, and singing about a harp and Tara's halls. There goes a dish on the floor—it was the smell of brandy for the pudding that set her off. There comes the policeman ——" There was a sharp ring off, and the rest of the tragedy was left to the imagination.

Optimism As a Fad.

One of the most wholesome fads that has been prevalent among society at large is the newest of all—optimism.

For it is no longer the fashion to go about looking as though you bore the burdens of the world upon your devoted shoulders. But, instead, you're expected to look blithely upon the old world and its troubles—and your own troubles, too.

Perhaps it is our free, outdoor life that has developed the quality. Perhaps it is only a new pose—for public opinion must have its poses like every individual.

Surely, it should make happier, healthier communities out of our cities and states. Good cheer is more or less of a habit—pretend to have it and you suddenly wake up to find you've really got it, and, too, have created a more joyous atmosphere for yourself that gradually grows necessary to you.

The happy habit is a good one—much better than the tragic-faced, world-weary type that preceded it.

A GOOD DEAL OF NONSENSE.

About "Blood Purifiers" and "Tonics."

Every drop of blood, every bone, nerve and tissue in the body can be renewed in but one way, and that is, from wholesome food properly digested. There is no other way and the idea that a medicine in itself can purify the blood or supply new tissues and strong nerves is ridiculous and on a par with the fol-de-rol that dyspepsia or indigestion is a germ disease, or that other fallacy, that a weak stomach which refuses to digest food can be made to do so by irritating and inflaming the bowels by pills and cathartics.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure indigestion, sour stomach, gas and bloating after meals, because they furnish the digestive principles which weak stomachs lack, and, unless the deficiency of pepsin and diastase is supplied, it is useless to attempt to cure stomach trouble by the use of "tonics," "pills" and "cathartics" which have their only effect is to give a temporary stimulation.

One grain of the active principle in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat, eggs and similar foods, and experiments have shown that they will do this in a glass bottle at proper temperature, but of course are much more effective in the stomach.

There is probably no remedy so universally used as Stuart's Tablets, because it is not only the sick and ailing, but well people who use them at every meal to insure perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

People who enjoy fair health take Stuart's Tablets as regularly as they take their meals, because they want to keep well, prevention is better than cure, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do both; they prevent indigestion and they remove it where it exists. The regular use of one or two of them after meals will demonstrate their merit and efficiency better than any other argument.

Patent and Proprietary Medicines.

A REPLY TO MR. BOK.

I am not a maker of patent medicines, nor have I any interest in the sale of them. I am simply a user, like the rest of you.

Patent medicines are friends of my youth, and friends of my family. They have helped me when I needed help; and if they need help now, I feel like defending them. It is only fair reciprocity.

The fact is that the term "patent medicines," as applied to advertised remedies, is a misnomer. Very few of the remedies advertised to the laity are patented. The real patent medicines are advertised to physicians alone. They are brought into use almost solely through physicians' prescriptions.

Practically all the synthetic chemicals produced in late years are protected by patents. The most valuable products used by modern physicians are patented. The coal tar preparations which are most widely used, and the most effective germicides, are among them. All physicians prescribe these remedies, yet they know that their owners control a monopoly.

The largest pharmaceutical houses are not those which make remedies advertised in the newspapers. They make the remedies which are advertised to physicians alone, and they control those remedies absolutely by a patent or trademark. If the medical profession ceased to use these patented remedies, half the prescriptions which are written would need to be altered.

This does not bear out Mr. Bok's theory that the discoverer of a remedy of real value gives it freely to the world. The custom of those who invent such remedies today is to patent them and control them, just as does the man who invents a new machine. And the medical profession recognize and approve the method, for every modern physician prescribes patented remedies more frequently than any others. And enormous enterprises are built solely on this fact.

The mere fact, therefore, that a man controls a remedy, either by a patent or trademark, does not argue against it. It is rather evidence that the man has something which he considers worth controlling.

If the man, in addition, spends large sums in advertising, whether to physicians or to the laity, it forms to me further evidence of value. Nothing is more certain than the fact that a worthless article cannot be advertised profitably.

Those who know advertising know that the cost of selling a bottle or package to a new user is several times the profit made on it. The only hope of profit comes through continued use; and, without merit, continued use cannot be expected. When a man has made a success in advertising a medicine, it is to me the best evidence possible that he has something good.

A physician may put up a prescription for some individual case without giving much thought to it. But if that physician is going to spend a fortune on advertising, with no possibility of getting his money back unless he satisfies millions of users, he is naturally going to put up the best prescription he can make. If he is wise he will get the best prescriptions for his purpose that any man can make.

Then there is the question of alcohol which Mr. Bok seems to consider such a perilous one. All the fluid extracts and tinctures used in medicine must employ alcohol as a solvent and preservative. Prohibit a physician from using alcohol in his prescriptions and you would make the practice of medicine impossible. If a physician must use alcohol in certain prescriptions, shall we complain that a ready-made medicine employs it for the same purpose?

If we are going to avoid the use of alcohol we must banish the extracts and essences used in our kitchens. Fluid extracts, whether they are medicinal or culinary, cannot be made or preserved without alcohol.

The use of alcohol in medicine is approved by the pharmacopoeias of all nations. It is in accord with the practice of all medical authorities in the world.

The abuse of alcohol is another matter, but the cost alone is enough to prevent abuse. Alcohol costs about $2.60 per gallon. It is too expensive for any medicine maker to use more than he needs of it. And he cannot hope that people are going to take the medicine because of the alcohol, when good whisky can be purchased for one-fifth as much.

A dose of medicine which contains even 20 per cent of alcohol does not seem to me a very dangerous matter. That means one-fifth of a teaspoonful of alcohol at a time. Physicians do not hesitate to give brandy to a child in teaspoonful doses, and brandy is half alcohol. When one compares medicine with wine or beer, he should also compare the dosage. One takes more alcohol in a glass of wine than he takes in a great many doses of medicine.

Mr. Bok is also most unfair in his reference to poisons used in proprietary medicines. It is true that some medicines contain poisons in small percentages, but the use is not nearly as general as in physicians' prescriptions. A great many drugs which are recognized by every physician as helpful in small doses are poisonous when taken in excess.

An elderly druggist told me a few days ago that he had personally examined more than 100,000 physicians' prescriptions, and, by actual count, 70 per cent of them contained an opiate. Yet analysis shows not a trace of opiate in the largest sellers among the proprietary remedies.

Strychnine is another dangerous drug largely prescribed by physicians. It is used as a tonic and stimulant. Yet this is a drug rarely found in proprietaries.

The maker of a proprietary medicine must be more careful about the use of any poison than the physician. The physician is in a position to direct his doses and to watch the results. He is able to take chances which no maker of a general remedy will take, for fear that the directions on the bottle will not be adhered to.

There are thousands of physicians whose interests are opposed to proprietary remedies. They are ready to denounce a ready-made remedy at the slightest evidence of harm from it. Yet how seldom we hear of any harm from proprietaries. I have myself never heard of a single authenticated case.

It is the lack of poison, rather than its presence, which forms the real objection to proprietaries. It is by using a poison which the medicine maker avoids that the physician often secures a greater effect. The maker of a remedy has too much at stake to use anything which will result in occasional harm. And this caution leads him often to omit ingredients which he knows to be valuable.

Proprietary remedies are used not alone by the poor who cannot afford to call a physician. They are employed by those to whom expense is of no importance. And in ordinary ailments, when a physician is called, he prescribes a ready-made remedy. Proprietary remedies are at some time taken by all of us. They are found in nearly every home.

And I know of no business where fraud has less chance of success than in medicine. A worthless remedy is very quickly found out. A sick person will not long continue a remedy which does not help. The lack of merit in a food may remain long undiscovered, but if a medicine lacks virtue the fact is at once apparent.

When I need a remedy for any ordinary ailment, my choice goes to a remedy so good that it made its maker rich.

A DEFENDER.

Tuesday.

Dear Billie: Your letter of June 26th reached me ages ago at St. Petersburg, but I have been so very busy that I have had no time for reply.

It is very good of you, I am sure, to think of me.

So you are settled in your quiet, married life. Requiescat in pace.

What a rover I have become! Now here, now there. The Wandering Jew is a veritable stay-at-home in comparison with my peregrinations, and I marvel how I was ever content in the monotonous rut in which I lived when I loved you. That was before I knew anything of life or of men, and when you vowed you loved me and would love me always, and I believed you, how my very credulity must have bored you. Gullibly is so very unattractive—so very gauche.

You were indeed self-sacrificing to give me so much of your time and so many of your kisses. The contact of your lips the warmth of your caresses and the electric bond that united us constituted my heaven and I could not tell you how deeply I loved you, nor could I make sacrifices enough for you. How very bourgeois. You were very patient to tolerate me so long as you did. But then first love is always foolishly sincere, and its very honesty and depth bring their own reward—desertion.

I see myself as I was then—half-formed—undeveloped. And how lonesome I used to be. What fool things I did and said and believed. And when you left me without one moment's warning, I wanted to throw away this life—to speed it to unknown worlds. How cruel. I know now that life is full of interest, ever changing, ever new scenes. I have run the gaumet of all known emotions, and out of the conflict has come power.

Knowledge, experience, contrast—what a trinity of power. How splendid to have the world at one's feet—to chose where one was once a supplicant. This freedom, 'tis glorious. What power has a woman o'er the whole world after she has awakened. I thank you, dear Billie, for having awakened me.

Truly, it is the unexpected that happens and you wish to become a part of my life again. My cher ami, you are too late. Much too late. I have something more interesting to do just now, besides the husband of another woman can never attract me.

'Tis strange how many things come to a man after he is married. You have gained your ambition—you have married wealth and position and yet you say heart aches, you sigh for love and that memories of happier days haunt you. I will turn counsellor—marvelous the change in me, is it not?

Hearts are but encumbrances to be cast aside when ambition beckons. Do not allow your heart any hearing.

As for love. What is love? Meaningless signs relegated to femmes des chambres and valets. For people of knowledge, love does not exist.

As for memories, pooh, they are but the nightmares of a disordered brain. Take a tonic.

We learn all these things after the disenchantment of reality has come.

You were amused, and for two years—so you told me—what more can you ask? Amusement comes not back again, and old toys, even though they be regilded, show their dents here and there. So let the old toys remain in the dust heap of departed yesterdays.

Then trot along, Billy dear; enjoy all the happiness and comforts marriage has brought you. Stray not back again o'er the days of old—days of lost illusions, days when we dared be sincere; days before the refinement of advanced civilization caused us to wound and wound and wound.

One is so foolish to remember. The opening of closed eyes may have caused pain at the time of the operation, but when the vision becomes clearer and the brain can analyze and contrast, we thank God for having made the operation necessary and we can forget or remember, just as we choose.

I have chosen forgetfulness. Do you likewise. Do not let remorse bother you. I had to learn and you were a proficient teacher. I have long since written finis to our chapter, and the school books have been sold to a second-hand dealer in experience.

I am in excellent health, thank you. Every moment of life reveals new joys. I am never ennui. Yours very truly,

BETTINA.

Tuesday.

Dear Jack: Days and nights have I sat here alone endeavoring to convince myself that I could grant you the wish of your heart, but I cannot.

Did I know less of love—its possibilities and its disappointments, I might accept your offer and become your wife.

Wife! How sweet sounds the word. Time was when I would have bartered my soul for the tiny hoop of gold the few words of a priest entitled woman to wear. How I loved in those days, and I experienced those exquisite emotions revealed only to those who can love but once.

The memory of that love is upon me now. I dash away the tears, ah, dearest of friends, how scalding are the tears born of love unrequitted. Memories refuse to be silenced, and some thoughts are wounds that can never heal. Go where I will, do what I will, his face is ever before me, and even though he married another, my thoughts are all of him.

I tell you this, because I know that you will understand. I feel that you love me and are sincere in your wish to try to make me happy. Would that you could, but 'tis so long since I have been happy, that I have forgot the word's meaning.

The world considers me a flirt—a coquette. I care not, but I could not bear the thought of your joining in that opinion, so I have opened the wound and now night and day shall I pay an added penalty.

In those days of love, I imagined that a great love would attract and hold a great love. But I have learned the sad lesson of life. Love tarries just so long as there are sweeter depths to discover, newer delights to enjoy. Pardon me, dear friend, for my candor, but I can but speak of love as I found it.

Lord Byron knew the heart of woman. Read what he says:

"Alas, the love of woman! It is known
To be a lovely and a fearful thing;
For all of theirs upon that die is thrown,
And if 'tis lost, life hath no more to bring
To them but mockeries of the past alone.

"They are right; for man so oft unjust,
Is always so to woman; one sole bond
Awaits them, treachery is all their trust."

I am capable of but one love. For your sake I wish it were otherwise. I know what it is to love and to long for a loved one—to stretch out one's arms and to clasp thin air. But better thin air than the body of flesh, to later discover deceit and treachery.

There are other things I wish to say to you, but I cannot. These love memories strangle all other thoughts—my eyes burn and refuse to perform their duty—my hands are as ice, and I must sit here a prey to mockeries of the past.

You are a man—it is given to you to forget, woman never forgets.

I thank you for the great honor you have tendered me. May God bless you, and may you love and marry a woman who can love you as you deserve to be loved. Yours most sincerely,

BETTINA PERCIVAL.

Paul Gilmore appeared at the Lyceum last evening in "The Mummy and Humming Bird," before an audience of fairly large proportions. It was the second time Mr. Gilmore had appeared here in the play, his first visit being about a year ago. The satisfaction which his play and company gave was quite as general as upon the first visit. Mr. Gilmore is a young actor of fine talent and attainments. He is graceful, easy, good looking, reserved, and in the reading of his lines is delightful. As Lord Lumley, the young scientist, so in love with his work that he unconsciously neglects his wife, believing that to provide her with fine things and let her go about as much as she likes, is all that she needs to make her happy and nearly wrecks her life and his own, but pulls up in time, he is charming and convincing. He does not strike a false note throughout but is captivating in every way.

The support is very good. Theodore Terry is an excellent Signor D'Oreili, the "humming bird," an unprincipled scoundrel who tries to ruin Lumley's home. John Martin as Giuseppe, the organ grinder, with a vendetta, is clever, and especially so in the first act. Miss Agnes Williams make a satisfactory Lady Lumley.

"BUSTER BROWN."

"Buster Brown" drew another large audience at the Metropolitan last evening and bids fair to break the record for large attendance at that house. This afternoon a matinee performance drew a large crowd and tonight the final performance will be given.

"ALPHONSE AND GASTON."

Beginning with tomorrow evening, "Alphonse and Gaston," a musical comedy that has been a winner everywhere will open at the Metropolitan to fill the remainder of the week. The two comical Frenchmen are known to every reader of newspapers and they have made all kinds of merriment for the reading public. They are said to be making no less for the theatergoing public and the production is everywhere recognized as a great fun maker.

GRANDSON

Of Barnum Sells Tickets In a Show.

New York, March 29.—Herbert Barnum Seeley, grandson of P. T. Barnum, the showman, and inheritor of $444,000, has a job as ticket seller at the Hippidrome and says he is glad to get it. Seeley was the host at the once famous "Seeley dinner" at Sherry's, where "Little Egypt" is said to have danced a risky dance and Capt. Chapman broke in with a squad of police and declared Seeley ought to be ashamed of himself.

Seeley said the show fever seemed to be in his blood and he wanted to get back into the traces in which his grandfather hauled fame and riches. He didn't care, he said, what he did, so long as he had a chance to learn the business.

SHOOK FIST AT SENATOR

Mayor of Breckinridge and Senator Clapp In Quarrel.

St. Paul, March 29.—Howard Dykeman of Breckinridge, Minn., created a scene at the Merchants hotel Monday evening when he advanced towards Senator Moses E. Clapp and shook his fist dangerously close to the senator's nose.

Senator Clapp said nothing and turned away, ignoring the menacing fist.

Dykeman made no effort to strike the senator and contented himself with a torrent of verbal abuse.

As there were no blows struck, no attempt was made to interfere by the crowd of senators and representatives that was soon attracted.

Dykeman is the mayor of Breckinridge. The origin of the quarrel could not be learned.

GIRL PENNILESS.

Went From Southland to Chicago to Wed.

Chicago, March 29.—Alone in Chicago, and penniless, and declaring that she was deserted by her fiance on almost the eve of their wedding, Miss Henrietta Newman, who says she is a niece of Governor Hogg of Texas has been forced to accept aid from the city authorities.

Subsequent to the sudden disappearance of her fiance, whom she came here from a Southern city to wed, the girl says she was prostrated by the discovery that the man, Harry V. Martin, was already married.

She is being cared for in Beulah home.

"Harry had made arrangements to rent a little home for us," said Miss Newman. "My preparations for the ceremony were complete, and I was, oh, so happy, when suddenly Harry disappeared, leaving me penniless."

WHEAT IS LOWER

The Market Has Another Break, With Northwestern Markets Weakest.

Armour Interests Circulate Bearish Interview On All Grains.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 29.—In the early part of the session today wheat was pounded severely, but later it had a recovery of about 1c. The Northwest was much weaker than Chicago where the May option showed a gain of ⅜c and the July a loss of only ¼-¼c. In Duluth both options lost ⅞c and in Minneapolis May ⅜c and July ⅝-¾c. New York May fell ¼c and July the same.

Mr. Valentine of the Armour interests was out with a very bearish interview this morning on wheat, corn and oats, and this was widely circulated and had much to do with the flood of selling that was experienced early in the day. The Armour interviews usually are followed by recoveries and the rule was followed today. His prediction was that Chicago May ought to sell down to 95c, July to 86c and September to 75c.

The Liverpool market closed ⅞@1d lower, London ¼d lower, Berlin ⅜c lower and Budapest ¼c higher.

Northwestern receipts were again very large. The weather map showed lower temperatures all over the country with general rains in the Northwest and Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Oklahoma, with the heaviest fall at St. Louis.

Car receipts at Duluth were 9 against 37 last year and at Minneapolis 211 against 223 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 220 against 260 last year. Chicago received 20 against 14 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 328,703 bus, last year 334,800 bus. Shipments 205,-630 bus, last year 274,680 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 148,693 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ¼d lower. In the Chicago market May corn closed ⅝-⅜c lower. May oats closed ¼c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 795,000 bus, last year 257,000 bus. Shipments 852,321 bus, last year 186,-276 bus. Clearances were 396,866 bus.

In the Duluth market trading in wheat was active and the market weak. The May option opened ¼c lower at $1.05½ and fell to $1.04⅝-¾ at 9:55. It rallied to $1.05 at 10:35, fell to $1.04¾ ten minutes later and advanced to $1.05¼ at 11. It then slumped to $1.04⅝ at 11:45 and rallied to $1.04¾ at 12:05. The rally finally carried it to $1.04⅞ at 12:45, and it closed at that price, a decline of ⅞c for the day. The July option had the same loss, closing at $1.02¾.

Cash wheat trading is slow, the receipts being very light. No. 1 northern continues at 1c under May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was very dull. The May option sold 1¼c up to $1.39 and then fell to $1.37½ and closed there, a loss of ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—In arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.03⅞. On track—No. 1 northern, $1.03⅞; No. 2 northern, 97¾c-$1.01⅜. Durum No. 1, 92c; No. 2, 91c; May, $1.04⅝; July, $1.02¾; Sept., 85¾c. Flax on track, $1.39; May, $1.37½; Oct., $1.26. Oats to arrive, 38½c; on track, 38⅝c. Rye to arrive 7c; on track, 77c. Barley, feed, 32@37c; malting, 37@44c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Good Weather Gives Wheat An Easy Undertone.

Chicago, March 29.—Influenced largely by continued favorable weather conditions in the United States, the wheat market here today had an easy undertone. Sentiment was also affected to some extent by lower prices at Liverpool. Commission houses were moderate purchasers of July, but trading showed little animation. July opened ⅜c lower to ¼c higher at 88⅜c to 88⅝c and steadied around 88¼@⅝c, after touching 88⅜c. May opened unchanged to ¼c lower at $1.11⅜@1.12, and held around $1.11⅜. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 240 cars, against 154 cars last week and 274 cars a year ago.

On scattered selling of July the market became quite weak. July declining to 87⅝ and May to $1.11⅜; late in the day a substantial rally occurred on covering by shorts. At the close the May option was firm, final quotations being up ⅝c at $1.12⅜. July closed ⅛@¼c lower at 88½@⅝c.

Predictions of wet weather had a steadying effect on the corn market, offsetting liberal receipts and a slow cash demand. May opened unchanged to a shade higher at 47⅞c to 47⅝@48c. After selling at 47¾@⅞c, the price rallied to 48c. Local receipts were 255 cars, with 2 of contract grade.

Liquidation of an enormous line of May by a leading long caused a sharp break in prices. May sold off to 46⅝c. The close was weak with May off ⅜@¾c at 47⅛@¼c.

Covering by shorts held oats steady in the face of selling by pit traders, resulting from an increased movement. May opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 29⅛c to 29⅜c and sold up to 29⅝c. Local receipts were 119 cars.

Notwithstanding liberal receipts of live hogs, the provisions market was steady on moderate buying of lard by a local packer. The volume of business was very small. May pork was up a shade at $12.70. Lard and ribs also were each up a shade, at $7.12½ and $6.95 respectively.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.12⅜; June, 95¼c; July, 89⅝@89⅝c; Sept., 83½@83¾c. Corn—March, 46¾c; May, 47⅛@47¼c; July, 47⅝c; Sept., 47⅝c. Oats—March, 29⅜c; May, 29⅜c; July, 28⅜@28½c; Sept., 28⅜c. Pork—May, $12.67½; July, $12.82½. Lard—March, $7.02½; April, $7.02½; May, $7.12½; July, $7.25@7.27½; Sept., $7.40. Ribs—May, $6.92½@6.95; July, $7.12½; Sept., $7.27½. Rye—March, 78¼c; May, 78½c; Sept., 60c. Flax—cash, northwestern, $1.37; southwestern, $1.24; March, $1.24; May, $1.24. Timothy—March, $2.40; April, $2.90. Clover—March, $13.50. Barley—cash, 40@48c. Cash wheat—2 red, $1.12@1.14 ;3 red, $1.04@1.11; 2 hard, $1.10@1.12; 3 hard, $1.06@1.10; 1 northern, $1.12@1.14; 2 northern, $1.09@1.12; 3 spring, $1.03@1.11. Corn—2, 47@47c; 3, 46½@47c. Oats—2, 29½@¾c; 3, 29¼@29c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

B E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat was under more or less pressure early, as nothing had occurred over night to interfere with the favorable crop prospects. The selling became more urgent as corn declined, but the recovery later was sharp, nearly making good the early loss in the deferred deliveries.

The May seemed wanted on the decline and closed higher than last night. There was very little news of any description, hte market acting in accordance with pit conditions and local sentiment. Receipts here today were 20 cars with 23 estimated for tomorrow.

Corn—The selling fever, which has possessed local traders for some little time past, attacked the corn market today with force enough to cause general liquidation, and a decline of 1½ cent a bushel in the May delivery. The trade was tremendous for a time. The last hour the selling seemed to have spent itself, in a large degree, and some recovery followed. Realizing has been pretty general in short selling popular, and we think prices low enough and advise the purchase of corn at these prices. Country movement is small, local receipts moderate, and the export demand improved on the break. With some business worked, pending the action of the futures. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 325 cars

Oats—There will be further liquidations in oats with the uneasiness in corn and new low records created, the May delivery selling at 29 cents. Covering by shorts caused a partial reaction. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 109 cars.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Wheat reached a new low record for the crop today and for a time was subjected to severe pressure. For a time the market held very firm in the face of extreme weakness in the corn pit but finally gave way under an avalanche of selling. The market closed at almost one cent advance from the low point and it is the first time for several days that it showed any such substantial recovery. The rally from the low point seemed to suggest that the market was approaching the point of an oversold condition. Trade is still nervous and very much unsettled, but a covering movement on the part of the leading bears desiring to take their profits or caused by an unfavorable turn in the weather could easy bring about a sharp rally in this market.

Corn—Big and little bulls let go their lines of corn in today's market and while the close showed quite a rally from the low point the market was very nervous and unsettled. The large receipts and continued slow cash markets seem to be telling against the corn market. Undoubtedly a bearish interview by a prominent local interest which was given wide circulation, contributed to the unsettlement of today's market. Confidence is very much unsettled, with the bulls on the defensive. We feel that the present slow cash demand must improve vastly to bring about sustained higher prices.

Oats—Trade was on an enormous scale in this market. Undoubtedly the weakness in corn was responsible in part. We still feel this department of the trade must show better form before any sustained improvement can take place in the speculative market.

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—Lower cables and continued favorable weather and crop reports from the Southwest were followed by the gradual letting go of long wheat and the bears took encouragement from this and again hammered prices there except for Chicago May which is now regarded as so thoroughly under the control of the Wall street interests as to be cornered. While statistical news was not considered, we feel that the time is near at hand when it will be. The quick rally due to the absence of offerings is strong evidence that the decline is over. We are not going back to cheap prices for grains so long as everything indicates a great shortage in wheat supplies. There has never been a time in the past three years when long wheat did not show good returns if carried. We believe this the case at the present time. The action of the market is most encouraging and the dip in prices today offered an excellent opportunity for buying wheat that should be held for a good healthy reaction if not a strong bull market.

Chicago Record-Herald: Harris Scotten's Buenos Ayres cable in response to an inquiry about the Argentine exportable surplus of corn, placed it at 70,000,000 bus. There are now three estimates out; 50,000,000 buse by Inglis, 70,000,000 bus by Harris Scotten, and 100,000,000 by Rosario people.

IRREGULAR CLOSE

To Stock Market, But At Nearly the Best Prices.

Opening Inclined To Be Weak, But Tone Became Better.

New York, March 29.—Opening prices in the stock market today were well above the previous close. This was particularly noticeable in the Pennsylvania group and the Western stocks. Purchases of many of the representative leaders were in blocks of a thousand shares or more. Northwestern advanced 2 points and Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, New York Central, Sugar and Copper 1 to 1¼.

Speculative operators were bewildered by the action of the market. After the stron gopening heavy offerings came from all quarters and St. Paul, B. & O., Missouri Pacific, Ontario & Western and Rock Island declined a fraction under yesterday's closing. Extensive buying was begun at the lower range and the market rose rapidly again eclipsing the opening figures. Pennsylvania and Union Pacific were taken in enormous blocks and the general inquiry seemed urgent. St. Paul, Minneapolis & Sault Ste. Marie, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific were added to the earlier gains of a point or more. Lackawanna jumped 6½.

Realizing began at 11 o'clock and the market became quiet.

Active bidding forced Canadian Pacific and its controlled stock caused a rise of 1½. Canadian Pacific, 1 in Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, 2¾ in the preferred, 4 in Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo and 2¾ in the preferred. This demonstration was ignored by the general market, which sold off steadily on an increasing volume of offerings. The Canadian group then reacted. Sharp pressure against Tennessee Coal, which lowered it almost 2 points and the maintenance of a stiff 7 per cent call money rate contributed to the depressing factors. The morning's advance in a few stocks was wiped out but the general market retained a fraction of the rise. St. Paul preferred and Realty yielded 3 and Rubber preferred and Toledo, St. Louis & Western 1. Bonds were slightly irregular at noon.

Pressure was not continued and the market hardened slowly. Union Pacific got back to its highest and United States Steel and Reading sold a trifle above their best prices of the forenoon. Other stocks ruled within measurable distance of the previous close.

Continued hardening of prices carried the average higher than before. The United States Steel stocks, Reading, Erie, Ontario & Western and Atchison got a fresh spurt of strength for the first time. Union Pacific extended its rise to about 2.

The failure of call money to show any flurry encouraged buying strongly. Union Pacific advanced an extreme 2¾. Northern Pacific 3½. Wabash preferred 2¾. New York Central 2⅜. Delaware & Hudson 2¼. St. Paul 2, Canadian Pacific 1⅞. Pennsylvania 1⅝. Gains of 1 to 1½ were fairly general. There was a buoyant rise of 4⅞ in Wabash debenture "B," bonds on large transactions. Profit-taking checked the rise. United States Express fell 5¾. The closing was irregular and rather dull.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market closed strong. In the early dealings the entire list, excepting the Steel stocks, seemed to hesitate but under revival of rumors late in the day concerning New York Central and Union Pacific causing a general buying movement in these issues, stimulated the entire market. The general market seems to give evidence that it is a two-sided affair. The short interest is large and it takes but little in the shape of deal rumors to cause a covering movement and after the shorts are in, market has a bad way of sagging back. It clearly does not show its former snap. It still seems to us a trading market.

Grier to B. E. Baker: The buyers of Ontario & Western feel very confident the stock will be guaranteed 3 per cent by New York Central. They certainly talk as though they were confident this would be done.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today at the opening was irregular and inclined to be weak. There was not very heavy trading and the commission house business very light. Before the close prices were bid up and the shorts were forced to cover. Prices became very strong and the tone of the market much better. The close was at nearly the best prices and with traders taking a more hopeful view of the situation.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The copper market was much more quiet today, there being few demands for stocks. Range held up well throughout the session. A few market orders in Osceola depressed the price to 98¼, but the closing was 99¼. One house had a good-sized selling order in Mass and there were very few buying orders until the price reached 101¼. The same support noticed for some time is still being given to United States Mining and Utah.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, March 29.—Close: Money on call, strong, 3½@4 per cent; closing bid, 3¾c; offered at 4; time loans, firm; sixty days, ninety days and six months, 3½ per cent. Sterling exchange, steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.85@4.85.90 for demand, and at $4.83.90@4.84 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.84½@5 and $4.86½@7; commercial bills, $4.87¾@⅞. Bar silver, 56¼c; Mexican dollars, 43½c. Government bonds, strong; railroad bonds, steady.

OFFICERS HAVE CHASE

Man Wanted For Larceny Tries To Elude Them.

While endeavoring to arrest Harry Mitchell in a Superior street hotel early this afternoon, Detective Irvine and Officer Toewe were given a merry chase.

Mitchell was wanted for the theft of a suit of clothes from Edward Fitzgerald, and Detective Irvine located him in his rooms. He called upon Mitchell to open the door, which was locked, but Mitchell refused to open, threatening to shoot, according to the claim of the detective.

Officer Toewe was then summoned to assist in the capture, and he mounted on the detective's back to look over the door and find out if Mitchell had a gun. He saw that the man was unarmed, and Mitchell was then told to open the door or it would be broken down.

While the officers were speaking, Mitchell opened the window onto the skylight which furnished light for a saloon below, and running across it he entered another room, emerged in the hall and ran downstairs.

The officers had noted the flank movement, and they anticipated Mitchell's flight. They ran down the stairs ahead of him, not knowing which room he had entered, and guarded both entrances to the hotel. Mitchell came running down and as he attempted to pass out, Officer Toewe seized him.

Pieces of the suit were found in his room, and he is said to have admitted cutting the clothes into small pieces, fearing that he would be arrested and have the clothes found in his possession.

He will be arraigned in the municipal court on a larceny charge.

NO INTERFERENCE.

Will Be Tolerated From Dominican Revolutionists.

Washington, March 29.—Secretary Taft made no declaration today about the alleged revolutionary movement at Monte Cristi, Santo Domingo, but said that an American agent was at that port collecting the revenues, and intimated that it was not likely that this government would allow any disturbance to interfere with his duty. This refers to Commander Leper of the Detroit.

It is said at the department that the next step in the execution of the department's plans, relative to San Domingo, cannot be taken until President Morales has formally concluded the arraignment with the foreign creditor powers, two of whom up to yesterday had not acted. When the president has secured the necessary signatures to his agreement, and has so informed Washington, the secretary will at once nominate to President Morales the person who is to act as chief collector, and perhaps the sub-collectors at the minor ports, though it is possible the designation of these will be left to the chief collector.

Hygienic Value of the McCray Refrigerators

Hundreds of physicians and health institutions, after long trial, have given our system the highest praise. The Battle Creek Sanitarium of Battle Creek, Mich., a large institution known the world over as very strict as to hygienic principles and rules, writes us as follows: "We have had in use for some time two of your cooling rooms, and they have given the best of satisfaction. We would not know how to suggest any improvements that would make the cooling rooms any more suitable to us. Your refrigerators have proven to be economical in saving ice, thoroughly sanitary, and in many ways are superior to ordinary cooling room."

The McCray refrigerator will last a lifetime, and will save its cost in ice in a short time. It is sold entirely on its merits.

RULES FOR FERRY

Major Potter Issues Regulations For Operation Of New Bridge.

These Are Approved By Chief of Government Engineers.

The regulations for the operation of the aerial ferry at the Duluth ship canal, prepared by Maj. Charles L. Potter, United States engineer in charge of the Lake Superior district, and approved by Brig. Gen. A. MacKenzie, chief of engineers of the war department at Washington, were issued today. They were approved by Gen. MacKenzie, March 22, 1905, at which time they became effective.

Under the terms of the license given the city to operate the aerial ferry, provision was made that the regulations were to be prepared by the government engineer in charge of the harbor. The regulations follow:

Lights—The car shall carry at night two red lights, in a vertical line, one over the other, not less than six feet apart, and located over the center of the car, at a height such that the lower light will be twenty-six feet above the water, and of such character as to be visible all around the horizon, for a distance of at least one mile.

Gong or Bell—There shall be maintained on the car a loud sounding gong, or bell, under control of the operator, such as can be heard distinctly at the distance of half a mile. A stroke on the gong shall be given one-half minute before starting from either side of the canal, and two strokes just before starting. When the car is in motion during thick weather, three strokes will be given as frequently as every fifteen seconds. If at any time the car should come to a stop over the channel, from failure of the motor or other cause, the gong shall be sounded continuously until the car shall be clear of the waterway. In case the signal lights should for any reason be extinguished, the operator will use the gong signals prescribed for thick weather, until they are again relighted.

Right of way—The car shall be run so as to give clear channel to vessels, and shall always keep out of their way. No special signals will be required of vessels on account of this aerial ferry, but it is advised that when approaching the ferry in thick weather the whistle be sounded more frequently than one minute apart as prescribed by the existing rules of navigation, so that the car operator can more correctly locate the vessel. Vessels are not expected to turn out for the car except in case the car should be detained over the channel, by accident. The car shall not start on a trip across the channel when an approaching vessel, which is moving at a moderate speed is within 500 feet of the car's course. In case the vessel is believed by the operator to have a speed of eight miles an hour, or greater, this distance should be increased to 600 feet or more, so as to make ample allowance for safety. On the other hand in case of a tug towing a raft at the usual very slow speed, the interval may be less than 500 feet. The car shall in no case attempt to pass between two vessels of a tow.

Revision of Rules — These regulations are subject to revision as may be found necessary, due notice of which will be given previous to their taking effect.

Motive Power Prescribed—The car is propelled by an electric motor which is placed under the floor of the car and turns a drum from which cables lead up to the overhead truck and then along the bridge to either tower. The motor is in duplicate, and two independent sources of electric current are available, either of which can be turned on quickly in case the other fails. There is a controller at each end of the car, and the operator is stationed at the forward end of the car. The time required for crossing the channel is expected to be about 1½ minutes, but it may be run across in one minute or less, judging from preliminary tests.

There is an additional and independent hand gear for propelling the car in case of a failure of the electric motor. This moves the car much more slowly, and will be used only for the purpose of getting the car away from the channel in case of a breakdown.

KNITS WAISTCOATS

To Show Her Devotion to the Millionaire.

New York, March 29.—A London cable to the World is as follows:

J. Pierpont Morgan has left for a cruise in the Mediterranean. A woman admirer of his has been pursuing him everywhere, even in the privacy of his own house. Although he does not go out in society much, preferring his own immediate circle of friends, she manages to see a great deal of the millionaire, and shows her devotion by knitting wonderful woolen waistcoats, which she presents to him herself whenever she is lucky enough to meet him.

Mr. Morgan has not bought much in the way of curios lately. A gorgeous pair of old vases was found a short while ago by a dealer, who sent them to Princes Gate, with a bill ready for receipting. Mr. Morgan, indignant that it had been taken for granted he would buy, sent them back with a cool note.

JAPANESE WARNED

To Beware of Offers of Mediation From Any Government.

Should Insist On Direct Negotiations With St. Petersburg.

Washington, March 29.—It is stated here that Japan has received an urgent warning from a neutral power to beware of all offers of mediation from any government and to insist upon direct negotiations with St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, March 29.—Through what channel or channels Russia has indirectly communicated with Japan, the Associated Press is not in a position to state definitely, although there is reason to believe that it is through the United States.

It is practically certain that France and possibly Great Britain, as the two allies of the belligerents, and the United States as the country acting for Japan, have been apprised of Russia's position. Last night's rumors that President Roosevelt had tendered his good offices to both parties are incorrect. The president's friendly disposition and perfect willingness to undertake to open negotiations, however, are well understood here, and without asking directly that they be communicated to Japan, Russia could make known to President Roosevelt, through Ambassador Cassini, the conditions to which she could not agree, while thus giving Japan an opportunity of knowing officially what the basis of the peace negotiations must be. Russia avoids the attitude of suing for peace or actually submitting proposals and besides places the United States and Great Britain and the powers generally in a position where they could offer Japan advice as to the reasonableness of the proposed basis. Having been apprised of Russia's position, Japan has two alternatives, either to decline absolutely to open negotiations on such a basis or indicate her own attitude. If the negotiations are opened Russia probably will be prepared to make broad concessions on collateral issues as stated by the Associated Press.

DODGES THE QUESTIONS

Mrs. Maybrick Shows Skill In Avoiding Direct Answers.

Washington, March 29.—The testimony of Mrs. Florence Maybrick in the taking of depositions in the case of her mother, Baroness Von Roques against David W. Armstrong and others, involving valuable tracts of land in Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky was concluded today.

Mrs. Maybrick displayed marked capacity for avoiding direct answers to the rigid questioning which she was subjected. She declared with respect to the signing of certain papers in prison which were brought to her by Counsel Potter, that she was so imperfectly informed as to the communications that passed between Mr. Maybrick and her mother that she simply signed the documents without any clear knowledge of the transactions. Upon being pressed for a more direct answer, Mrs. Maybrick insisted that when she signed the papers she did not know the nature of their contents.

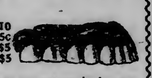

Counsel for the plaintiff objected to a question if Mrs. Maybrick had received a pardon from the British government, but the witness nevertheless cautiously replied that she had papers in her possession given her by the British government. Asked if she was willing to produce them, Mrs. Maybrick responded, with equal caution, that they were not permitted to be produced except at the request of the American government. On redirect-examination, which was confined to one question, Mrs. Maybrick detailed the circumstances, under which she acquired an interest in the property in dispute, saying that at her marriage her mother gave her as a deeded gift one-third of her property in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia and later assigned the same in writing.

PRODIGAL PLODS

Son of President of Cornell Is a Day Laborer.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 29.—Wielding a heavy sledge in the blacksmith shops of the Groton Bridge company, Groton, and scouring iron which are brought hot from the molds, Robert Schurman, Cornell '06, son of President Jacob Gould Schurman of the university, is working with the most common of the workmen of the shop to earn a living.

President Schurman, his wife and daughter are traveling in Mexico, enjoying the balmy South as though there was no person in the world of the name of Robert Schurman.

Cut off from family, placed upon his mettle and dependent upon himself entirely, young Schurman will work his way in the world until he is able to concentrate his energy upon study and win recognition from his instructors in the university of which his father is the head.

He found difficulty in devoting his time to books, and was decidedly averse to "digging." His scholarship dropped accordingly, and he found trouble in passing his examinations. His sophomore year found him more averse to work with his studies. Refusing to heed the counsel and finally the orders of his father, he found himself hopelessly stranded in his work at the end of the first term and no helping hand was extended to guide him through the troublesome examination work.

President Schurman then determined to make an example of his own son, and young Schurman was ousted from the university. He was further placed upon his own resources by his hitherto lenient parent. He drifted about the country for a short time, then applied for a position at the Groton bridge works.

He was inexperienced in every line of the work which lay before him, but when offered a position at the very bottom of the ladder, the need or an honest livelihood made it necessary to accept. Since that time he has been subjected to many privations and has subsisted upon his earnings of 75 cents a day. Life apparently is not one of peaceful dreaming for young Schurman now. The ridicule of his companions over his mistakes and the drudgery of his labor makes the work more than ordinarily disagreeable.

He is popular among the workmen, however, for his genial good fellowship and unselfish disposition soon won friends where financial support might have promoted him to a position of general popularity. He has made many friends among the social leaders of the little town and is bound to succeed, his friends say, despite his aversion to books.

Young Schuman is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. He was unusually popular among the student body when in the university. Although he never entered any line of athletics, he was prominent in class politics. His preparatory school course was taken at the Ithaca high school, where he was a fraternity member and popular student. Should he decide to return to his home with a determination to study, his forgiveness is certain.

BURGLAR WAS SMOOTH

But Did Not Get Away Quick Enough.

New York, March 29.—Three women appeared at a police station to charge Richard Lenders with burglary. They had aided the police in capturing the culprit, but seemed to regret it.

"It's a pity such a nice young man had to be a burglar," said the women. All of the women live at 415 East One Hundred and Twenty-third street. They are Mrs. Thomas Reilly, Mrs. Margaret Noble and Mrs. Scanlon. The women returned from shopping to see Lenders leaving the Noble apartment.

"Good gracious!" gasped Mrs. Noble, alarmed.

"Don't get excited, Mrs. Noble," said Lenders, who had learned her name from the doorplate. "I am a friend of your husband and have been waiting for him."

Then he chucked her baby under the chin and went on: "You don't seem to remember me, Mrs. Noble. What a lovely baby. You are better looking now, and this sweet baby looks just like you. I don't think I can wait for Mr. Noble. I may be back."

Lenders then petted Mrs. Reilly's baby. "What are you doing in this building?" demanded Mrs. Reilly.

"Oh, that's all right, Mrs. Reilly," called Mrs. Noble over the banister. "That gentleman is a friend of my husband."

Lenders hurried to the street. The three women entered their flats, found them ransacked and dashed out after Lenders. A crowd joined them, and after a long chase a policeman caught the fugitive.

A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

To draw the fire out of a burn, or heal a cut without leaving a scar, use DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A specific for piles. Get the genuine. J. L. Tucker, editor of the Harmonizer, Centre, Ala., writes: "I have used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve in my family for Piles, cuts and burns. It is the best salve on the market. Every family should keep it on hand." Sold by all druggists.

ST. PAUL MAN'S TROUBLES.

In Bad Tangle Over Proceedings In Washington.

Washington, March 29.—In the supreme court of the District of Columbia, Justice Anderson is hearing a rather peculiar case in bankruptcy against Charles T. Barber, who claims to have been a prominent and successful business man in St. Paul two years ago. According to the testimony brought forward at the hearing, Mr. Barber, at one time owned or controlled the Home Fire Insurance company of Omaha.

He went from Omaha to St. Paul, and came from St. Paul to Washington, after selling his interest in the insurance company for $115,000.

Several Omaha creditors having judgments aggregating $25,000 brought suit against Barber here, and on their petition he was placed in the custody of the United States marshal at Washington, but later he was paroled and left in charge of his counsel, William E. Ambrose.

Mr. Barber admits that he is a bankrupt and that he lost all he had except about $50, which he now has in cash and offers to turn that over to creditors. His offer has not been accepted. It is contended that Mr. Barber never reported the full amount he received from the sale of his interest in the insurance company, and that he had left St. Paul to avoid payment of his creditors. He claimed that as far as he could he had paid his debts.

FIRE AT MORTON

Destroys Building Valued At Three Thousand Dollars.

Morton, Minn., March 29.—At 4:45 yesterday morning fire broke out in the building occupied by W. P. Clynch as a saloon and before the conflagration could be brought under control the structure fixtures and stock were practically destroyed. Adjoining buildings and the flour mill were for a time considered in great danger, but through the efforts of the local department the fire was confined to the one building. The building was owned by John McIntosh. Loss on building about $3,000; insurance $1,400.

SENATE PASSES HORTON BILL OVER VETO AND THE HOUSE TO FOLLOW SUIT

House Caucus Votes, 69 to 10, to Do Likewise.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, March 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—By an almost strictly party vote of 43 to 13, the senate this morning formally ratified the action of the Republican caucus of yesterday, and passed the Horton capitol bill over the governor's veto. The eleven Democrats in the senate voted against the bill and they were joined by two Republicans, Senators Nagesth and Wood. Senators Buck, Cole and Pugh were absent, and Senator Johnson did not vote.

Senator Horton called up his bill and moved its passage notwithstanding the veto.

Senator Schaller, Democrat, said there was nothing in the condition of the building to prevent turning it over to the governor. To be sure, grass has to be grown on the lawn, but it will grow just as well under the governor's direction as under the capitol commission. He hoped that their votes today would not result in preventing any of the senators from being back here later, after the grass has grown up.

Senator Witherstine, Democrat, made a plea for fair play.

Senator McGill of St. Paul made a statement for the Republican members. He said their action was not due to personal pique or party feeling. The capitol is not finished, and the legislature believes the capitol commission should keep it until it is completed. The governor's opinion is entitled to no more weight than that of the legislature, and they were surprised that he should have seen fit to exert his veto power in this case. He used it without fair consideration for the rights and prerogatives of the legislature.

Senator Schaller said there was no politics in it, of course, though yesterday there was a call of the senate to listen to the announcement of a Republican caucus on this matter.

The vote was taken and the announcement of the success of the Republican policy was received without applause or stir.

The house Republicans went into caucus immediately after the noon recess, on a call signed by members from each congressional district. Representatives Hugo, Lewis and Wyman signed for the Eighth district. N. F. Hugo was elected chairman and P. E. Dowling of Eveleth was made secretary. The session was executive.

The house caucus voted, 69 to 10, to pass the Horton bill over the governor's veto. Five of those present were excused from voting. Eighty votes are required, and it is said the additional votes will be forthcoming when needed.

* * *

The house in committee of the whole recommended for passage A. K. Ware's bill making 2½ cents the maximum charge for carrying passengers one mile in this state. There was no discussion whatever.

* * *

The Perley board of control bill is a special order for this afternoon. It will probably pass the house.

* * *

P. E. Dowling of Eveleth got the governor's consent to introduce a new bill providing for water, light and power boards in cities and villages owning their own plants in counties over 75,000 and less than 150,000. This is designed for Hibbing and Eveleth.

* * *

The house in committee of the whole took up the immigration committee's bill providing that the state auditor shall advertise within and without the state sales of state lands and shall collect and distribute statistics about the resources of the state.

A. L. Cole of Walker made a fight for the bill. It carried no appropriation, though one is hoped for from the appropriations committee.

A. J. Reckne of Zumbrota offered an amendment making an appropriation of $5,000, but this was fought both by the friends of the bill and its opponents. The bill was laid over till tomorrow without action.

* * *

The following committee has been appointed to receive the Wisconsin legislature when it comes over to see the new capitol: Senators Wilson, Laughen, Schaller, McNamee, Alley, McGill, Colester, Representatives Johnson, Hugo, Perley, Flower, Morse, Armstrong, Frazer, Ridir, Stone, Klein.

* * *

The house this morning refused to concur in Senator Coller's memorial to congress asking for the repeal of the bankruptcy act, the bill failing of passage, 44 for and 60 against.

* * *

Mr. Roberts' bill prohibiting the handing out of cards in cities over 75,000 within 300 feet of the polls on election day was passed. So was the peddlers' license bill, 70 to 25.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

BELLEVUE HOSPITAL GETS CASE OF LEPROSY.

New York, March 30.—A patient's illness, which has been diagnosed as leprosy, has been received at Bellevue hospital. When the doctors had satisfied themselves as to the disease, the man was handed off to an isolated ward on Blackwell's island. It was the first case of the kind received at Bellevue in years. The victim is a Russian, who has been in America only a short tme.

IRON ORE UNDER THE LAKE AND RIVER BEDS

State Auditor Iverson Says the State Should Assert Its Right.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, March 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house took a recess yesterday afternoon to hear State Auditor Iverson explain the Hugo bill giving the state the right to issue mining leases on the beds of meandered public lakes and rivers.

No action was taken on the bill, but from the manner in which many of the members went after Mr. Iverson with questions, it was evident that some of them believe that the present system of leasing mineral lands belonging to the state is not giving the state money enough.

When the bill is reached in committee of the whole, the element in the house that takes this view of the matter will endeavor to take advantage of the fact that the bill recites most of the old law on the subject to amend the provisions now in force.

The Herald has already stated what some of these amendments will be, and others may be offered. The principal thing that agitated several of the members was their belief that the royalty of 25 cents a ton now secured by the state from its leases is not high enough.

Mr. Iverson said that Mr. Hugo had introduced the bill at his request, and that the reason he wanted the measure put through was to have the state assert its right to the iron ore under the waters of meandered lakes before somebody else gets hold of it. An attempt has been made to get the opinion of the courts on the question of the state's rights in the premises.

METROPOLITAN'S ADDRESS TO PEASANTS MOST DANGEROUS

St. Petersburg, March 30, 12:30 p. m.—In view of the peasant agitation throughout the country, some of the newspapers are seriously alarmed at the effect of the recent pastoral address of the metropolitan of St. Petersburg, M. Antonius, as being a direct incitement to the ignorant peasants to begin a war of extermination against the entire educated class and the papers are demanding that the metropolitan and the holy synod, whose mouthpiece it is assumed Antonius was, take immediate measures to counteract the effect of his statements. Prince Meschienki, editor of the Grasdinin, denounces the sermon as the most dangerous utterance of the century and pictures the inevitable impression produced on the ignorant religious-minded peasants of a damnation from the altar of the intellectual," as being the foes of Russia, "bloody wolves and followers of the anti-Christ of the West, who would destroy holy temples, place sacred bones in anatomical museums and wean the people from their chance of entering the kingdom of heaven."

M. Onereshkovski, the famous Russian author, declares that to call on the faithful to fight with the cross to the last drop of their blood for the salvation of Russian as the home of Christ, and to cut off the rotten branch is nothing short of a toesin for the religious uprising——an appeal to the most fanatical and the most uncontrollable of human passions.

"The fire once started," he says, would produce a world of historic conflagrations, which neither the government nor the intellectuals can stop." In effect, he affrms that Antonius' address was an appeal to the peasants to tear out from Russia all European culture and put the country back to the state in which it was in the Middle Ages and from that standpoint it was more radical than the doctrines of the most radical revolutionaries.

NEW YORKERS THINK THEY ARE BEING ROBBED FOR LIGHTING

New York, March 30.—The investigation of an alleged monopoly of New York city's supply of light and of charges of exaction of extortion at prices by a combination of lighting companies was begun by a committee of the legislature today. Mayor McClellan, City Comptroller Grout, and other city officials having anything to do with the awarding of city lighting contracts, as well as more than 100 officials of the lighting companies were expected to be witnesses before the committee. The sessions of the committee began at the city hall.

Bills for lighting the city for a portion of 1903 and amounting to nearly $5,000,000 are still awaiting payment, a previous administration having declared they were about $2,000,000 too high. Suit has been brought to compel the city officials to continue to refuse to pay the bills and the city government has taken steps to build a municipal lighting plant.

WOMAN BRUTALLY KILLS HUSBAND

Pittsburg, March 30.—Michael Novackovich, an Austrian laborer, was murdered at his home while he lay sleeping in a bed in his room at 3015 Smallman street, early today, by his wife, Annie. The crime was a brutal one, the woman using a hatchet. It was discovered an hour later by a boarder, who notified the police. The woman and seventeen foreigners were arrested and locked up in the Penn avenue station, where the police later obtained a confession from Mrs. Novackovich. The motive for the crime is not known.

CONDITION IS IMPROVED

Amos Shephard Now Has Excellent Chance To Recover.

It is believed that Amos Shephard, the Hibbing man who suffered a fracture of the skull Tuesday as a result of a fall on the tile floor at the Kitchi Gammi club, has an excellent chance for his life. He was reported to be resting easily this afternoon, and there was a marked improvement in his general condition. Dr. W. H. Magie, the attending physician, says that unless there is a turn for the worse within the next twenty-four hours he will look for the ultimate recovery of the patient.

W. N. Shephard of Whitewater, Wis., a brother, arrived yesterday in response to a telegram informing him of the accident.

PACKING PLANT DESTROYED.

Winnipeg, Man., March 30.—A portion of J. V. Griffin's pork packing house, including abattoirs, icehouses and storerooms, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The loss is $25,000. The blaze was fought in a howling blizzard. An engineer and two night watchmen were seriously injured by the flames, while trying to use the factory hydrants.

MOVEMENTS OF SQUADRON

Paris, March 30.—Admiral Rojestvensky, in the course of an authorized interview with a Matin correspondent at the island of Nossibe, March 4 said the future movements of the squadron depended on the arrival of coal and military developments.

"The slow arrival of colliers," he said, "becomes a serious question when a fleet consists of sixty warships. If coal is abundant it may go to meet the third division."

Admiral Rojestvensky received a telegraphic summary of the decision of the international commission of inquiry into the North sea incident and said: "I am glad the admirals approved of my conduct, but owing to doubts concerning the incident I shall always feel a certain measure of moral responsibility. However torpedo boats were certainly there, my ships were endangered, I was obliged to save the flagship and I succeeded."

COMPANION SAVED

Foreman Gives His Life For a Fellow Fireman.

Fatal Cave-in Occurs In the New York Subway.

New York, March 30.—Foreman Samuel Lillie was killed and several other firemen were injured by a cave-in in the subway at the One Hundred and Sixth-eighth street station, which was burned yesterday. Lillie and four others had been sent into the tunnel to wet down the smouldering embers of the fire when a portion of the roof fell and crushed Lillie. The others were only slightly hurt.

Lillie lost his life in saving the life of one of his companions.

Both Lillie and a fireman named Cavanaugh, who were working side by side, saw the cave-in as it started. Both were directly underneath the falling mass and both would have been crushed had not Lillie thrown his whole weight against his companion, pushing Cavanaugh out of the way just as the mass fell. Lillie was crushed to death in an instant.

HEAVY BUYING MAIN FEATURE

Of the Iron Market, Says the Iron Age.

New York, March 30.—The continued heavy buying of material of all kinds by railroad interests is still the main feature of the iron markets, says the Iron Age. It is reflected in quite a steady flow of small additional rail orders, in a very heavy demand for plates, and in the buying of considerable quantities of structural material.

The Pittsburg market for pig iron for steel manufacture is pretty bare, it having been impossible to squeez out 10,000 to 15,000 tons of Bessemer pig for the Cleveland district for immediate delivery.

The Steel corporation, it is estimated, will need about 40,000 tons for April delivery which has not yet been contracted for. The general jobbing foundry trade is still quite slack.

TO GO TO HAYTI.

The Cruiser Brooklyn to Be Ordered There.

Washington, March 30.—The cruiser Brooklyn, due at Guantanamo today will be ordered upon her arrival there to proceed to Port au Prince, Hayti, in response to the request of the state department after receiving a cablegram from Minister Powell saying that trouble was impending there. The sailing of the Newark from Guantanamo for Monte Christi under previous orders prevented the department from carrying out its intention of sending her to Haytien waters.

SPECIAL SESSION

Of Congress May Be Called Oct. 15.

Washington, March 30.—Senators who called on President Rosevelt today to consult him as to the probable time of the reassembling of congress were informed that it is likely that a special session will be called for October 15. This will enable members of congress going on the Philippine trip to return in time for the session.

VERY VALUABLE

Is Recent Discovery of Fossil Ichthyosaurian.

Berkeley, Cal., March 30.—A valuable fossil ichthyasaurian recently discovered in the middle Tressic limestone of Nevada is announced in a new geological bulletin from the university press. It shows the anterior half of the vertibral column, one side of the pectorial arch complete, the first two segments of a pectoral limb and nearly the entire skull. It is said that the type of limb in the present specimen is "more primitive than any yet discovered," a fact which makes the discovery one of the greatest interest to geologists all over the world.

KING OF ITALY TO DINE AMERICANS.

Rome, March 30.—King Victor Emmauel in the throne room today received Mr. Meyer, the retiring American ambassador, in a farewell audience which lasted half an hour. The king expressed great interest in the ambassador's mission to St. Petersburg, his regret at the fact that he was leaving Rome and his hope that Mr. Meyer would return to Rome some day. The king invited Mr. Meyer and the other members of the American embassy to be his guests at dinner tonight, adding that he anticipated much pleasure in meeting the Americans.

The duke of Aceta, eldest cousin of the king, having suddenly been called out of Rome, called upon Mr. and Mrs. Meyer this morning to bid them farewell.

LARGE SHIPMENT OF TOBACCO.

Portland, Or., March 30.—When the Portland and Asiatic liner Arabia sails for the Orient today she will carry a shipment of 920 hogsheads and 235 tierces of leaf tobacco and 375 cases of cigarettes. The value of this portion of the steamer's cargo is almost $200,000 and is said to be the largest single shipment of tobacco ever made from a Pacific coast port. The destination of the tobacco is Kobe and Yokohama.

ALL EYES ARE TURNED TO WASHINGTON AND PARIS FOR PEACE INDICATIONS

MAKES CONCESSIONS TO THE FINNISH DIET

The Czar Grants Two Points In the Petition of the Finns.

St. Petersburg, March 30, 4:25 p. m.—The emperor has given an answer to the petition of the Finnish diet asking that all imperial decrees since the diet of 1899, which it is claimed are in contravention of the organic law of Finland, be withdrawn or submitted for the approval of the diet. These included the military conscription act, the manifesto of 1899 placing the imperial interests in Finland under the Russian authorities, the language manifesto of 1900 providing for the use of the Russian language in the principal departments, the irremovability of judges, the employment of Russians in public departments; the restriction upon the senate's part in the administration and the concentration of the executive power in the hands of the governor general. The emperor in his decision concedes two points—the suspension of the conscription act until 1908, when the whole question will be submitted to the diet and in lieu of military service Finland will have to pay a contribution of $2,000,000 in the same way as the Mussulmans of the Caucasus pay $264,000 instead of furnishing recruits. In this matter the emperor went beyond the recommendations of the Russian senate, to which the petition was submitted and acted upon the advice of Prince John Obolensky, the governor general of Finland, who favored a concession to Finnish public opinion. The emperor also conceded the point of the irremovability of judges. His formal reply is expected to be promulgated in the form of an imperial rescript to the governor-general for communication to the Finnish diet.

Helsingfors, Finland, March 30.—The telegraphic report giving the nature of the emperor's reply to the petition of the diet is only partly satisfactory to the Finns. The diet took the position that unless the whole petition was granted it would decline to proceed with legislation. For the past three months the sittings of the diet have been purely formal and as the term of the diet expires in the middle of April, should it decide to proceed, only a fortnight remains for actual work in connection with local legislation most of which is pressing. The imperial decision is regarded by the constitutionalists as being a temporary makeshift to relieve the present tension. It will probably remove the possibility of a serious disturbance next month when the conscription levies are scheduled. Although 190 men were to be taken for the Finnish battalion, the law required that 28,000 youth submit themselves at the levy of conscripts from which number the 190 were to be chosen by lot, the Russians thereby compelling recognition of the right of conscription. This year there has been an extensive agitation against the edict, the young men everywhere advised to resist the conscription and it is believed that not more than 10 per cent would have responded.

COMMISSIONER O'BRIEN TAKES CHARGE OF INSURANCE COMPANY

St. Paul, March 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Insurance Commissioner O'Brien has taken charge of the affairs of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company of Minneapolis. This action followed an investigation of the company's financial affairs, which were found to be in a serious condition, according to Mr. O'Brien's report to Governor Johnson. Commissioner O'Brien says, however, that with proper management the company can survive and avoid bankruptcy.

At the direction of Commissioner O'Brien, President W. F. Bechtel, First Vice President A. F. Timme, and Secretary and Treasurer T. J. Sackett have resigned and a committee of Minneapolis citizens composed of Mayer Jones, Former Governor Lind, Lucien Swift, B. F. Nelson and F. A. Carle, have been appointed to select their successors.

The Northwestern National Life company recently built the Minneapolis Auditorium building on the promise from a number of citizens to secure $2,000,000 worth of business for the company.

"AMERICA FOR AMERICANS" THE HOBBY OF DYNAMITER

New York, March 30.—Gessler Rosseau, the convicted dynamiter, may be subjected to an investigation as to his sanity. When Rosseau was found guilty of sending an infernal machine to the Cunard line steamer Umbria, after a trial several days ago and confessed that it was he who attempted to blow up the statue of Frederick the Great at Washington, it was announced that sentence would be pronounced tomorrow. It was said today, however, that Recorder Goff, before whom the case was tried, is not satisfied to pass sentence without first learning more about the dynamiter, and has decided to defer sentence pending an investigation into the prisoner's antecedents, the history of his life and his character, the state of his mind and health.

Rosseau was very reticent about his past and his family when he was on the stand during his trial. He was questioned by both the recorder and counsel, but little was elicited from him. He said that his mother died several years ago leaving him and a brother a fortune, and that his share has been consumed in the pursuit of his hobbies. His principal hobby, it appears, is the promulgation of the doctrine of "America for the Americans," and he is said to be very intense in his belief in it. It is believed that his acts of violence, both against the Umbria, and the statue at Washington were prompted by his strong belief in these doctrines.

ORDERS NOT OBEYED.

New Light on Supercession of Gen. Bilderling.

St. Petersburg, March 30.—An interesting fact throwing light on the supercession of Gen. Bilderling from the command of the Third Manchurian army has been brought out by a Russian dispatch from Gunshu pass, describing the retreat from Mukden.

According to the plans of retreat, as outlined, each division of the Third army was to retire by the Mandarin road and roads to the eastward of that highway. Instead it moved for some reason along roads to the west of the Mandarin road, leaving between the first and third armies a breach of which the Japanese took advantage. The correspondent says the wagon trains were ordered north three days before the evacuation, but their departure was delayed, causing confusion in the withdrawal.

Discussing the battle of Sandepu, the correspondent says he personally saw a map made from observation by balloon on Jan. 20, showing the redoubt at Sandepu, on which the attack was shattered, but of the existence of which the attacking force first learned during the attack," an unimportant detail, but one which cost us 10,000 men and the success of the operation."

During the same battle, the roads were blocked for a long distance with wagons, conveying pontoons that had been ordered southward. This was in spite of the fact that the rivers were frozen so solidly that the Cossacks were obliged to chop the ice almost to the bottom in order to water their horses. The correspondent expresses the belief that a large share of the trains for the army are needless, as he declares that the army can live to a much greater extent on the country and fare better, if instetd of draught horses and wagons, an equal number of bayonets are sent over Siberia.

AFRAID OF JAP YOKE.

Russians Are Called on to Support the War.

Moghilev, Russia, March 30.—Proclamations have been scattered broadcast here calling on the people to support the war in order to escape a second Mongolian yoke, the Japanese being described as worse than the locusts of Egypt. It is added that once they establish themselves in Asia they will not only possess Manchuria and Korea but will swarm over and drive out the Russians from Siberia.

TWO YEARS IN JAIL

And $5,000 Fine Sentence of Los Angeles Millionaire.

Chicago, March 30.—A dispatch to the Tribune from San Francisco says: Griffith J. Griffith, the Los Angeles millionaire, who three years ago attempted to kill his wife, must spend two years in state prison and pay a fine of $5,000 according to the decision of the state supreme court, which has affirmed the sentence of the lower court. Griffith gave a park of 100 acres to Los Angeles and was named park commissioner.

WILL NOT GO TO UTAH.

Washington, March 30.—Senator Burrows, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections which investigated charges aginst Senator Smoot of Utah, today disposed of the story that the committee would visit Utah during the summer to take additional testimony. The senator said that he did not intend to leave his front porch in Kalamazoo, Mich., all summer.

Russians Scan American Dispatches With Especial Eagerness.

Believe Peace Negotiations Have Been Opened By President.

Japanese Are Now Administering Affairs of Manchuria.

St. Petersburg, March 30, 6:05 p. m.—There was no further peace news today. All eyes are centered on Washington and Paris, where developments are anticipated. The Washington dispatches are scanned with especial eagerness. The reports of President Roosevelt's conferences with Minister Takahira and Ambassaders Jusserand and Von Speck Sternberg, in spite of official denials, are believed in diplomatic circles here to relate to the opening of negotiations. The foreign office continues to maintain that Russia has taken no official step, which certainly is literaly true. There is an important admission, however, that Ambassador Jusserand, upon his own responsibility, may have given President Roosevelt the French idea of Russia's position. The French embassy also insists that it has no knowledge of what move, if any, has been made.

AFFAIRS OF MANCHURIA

Are Now Being Administered By the Japanese.

Gunshu Pass, March 30.—Chinese merchants arriving here after a circuitous flight from Mukden relate that the Japanese have taken over the administration of Manchuria. They have installed Japanese officials in place of the Chinese, have taken possession of the Russian administrative buildings and have established a Japanese police force at Mukden.

The work of converting the railroad from Dalny to Mukden into a narrow gauge road has been completed giving the Japanese three railroad lines of supply, from Seoul by way of Fengwangcheng, from Port Dalny to Mukden and over the Sinmintin road which the Japanese are reported to have leased.

Fresh Japanese troops are reported to be arriving at the front.

St. Petersburg, March 30.—A telegram from Sitjasa, Manchuria, under today's date, says:

"The Chinese report that a Japanese column, which is probably carrying out a flanking movement, has been seen twenty-seven miles northeast of Sipinghai (seventy-four miles north of Tie pass). Snow has fallen heavily here."

CONGRESS OF PEACE

Does Not Find Favor With the Germans.

Berlin, March 30.—The suggestion that an international congress might be called to arrange the Russian-Japanese terms of peace finds no favor at the foreign office here, where a full settlement between the belligerents without the interference of other powers is much preferred. An international congress would mean a derangement of the present equilibrium of interests because those undertaking to settle peace would seek advantage for themselves as a proper brokerage on the transaction. The strongest obstacle against peace appears to be the influence of the Russian military body which still stands resolutely for a continuance of the war.

ANOTHER BATTLE

May Be Fought Within a Week or Less.

St. Petersburg, March 30.—Another duel between the two opposing armies in Manchuria may be on the program for the coming week. The Russians, according to the Associated Press's Harbin correspondent, are now strongly fortifying their positions at Sipinghai, against which the Japanese are reported to be gathering in force. The reported Russian retirement from Sipinghai to Chaomiaodzi was incorrect, due to a telegraphic error, in the confusion of Chaoumiaodzi with Shuamyaotzi, south of Sipinghai, whence the Russian advanced force retired to the fortified line at Sipinghai. The Japanese followed to some extent, but a border of twenty miles of debatable ground still remains between the two armies, over which the Japanese will probably not advance until they are ready to attack.

Equally important news is that a column of Japanese is moving against Kirin, perhaps with the intention of turning the position eastward and striking at the Vladivostok line of communication, with the double purpose of isolating the fortress and separating Gen. Linevitch's army from a valuable base of supplies, the Usuri district.

THREE KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

Huntington, W. Va., March 30.—Three men were killed and one fatally injured in an explosion of the boiler of a portable sawmill near Matawan today.

TIPS TOTALED THOUSANDS.

A Chambermaid in Summer Hotel Leaves $11,000 Estate.

Great Barrington, Mass., March 30.—That the country summer hotels must be reckoned with in the matter of tipping statistics is evident from the inventory of the estate of Nora Kelly of Lenox, just filed in the probate court. Miss Kelly left an estate of more than $14,000 in personal property after working 40 years as chambermaid in the Curtis hotel at Lenox. She was 70 years old and never during her service at the hotel did she receive more than $8 a month from the management. Up to six years ago she was the mainstay of an invalid brother and his family. Twenty years ago Miss Kelly received a bequest of $4,000 from a relative. Outside of this her fortune was accumulated from tips received from Lenox summer guests.

STORY NOT TRUE

Trials of Blind Woodsman Were Very Much Exaggerated.

Fred Gulke Was Not Football Between Poor Departments.

According to a story printed in the St. Paul Dispatch, yesterday, Fred Gulke, a blind man has been made a sort of football to be passed back and forth between the county poor departments at Duluth and Minneapolis, but an inquiry at the office of A. P. Cook, secretary of the St. Louis county board of poor commissioners indicates that the story is exaggerated, and that Gulke has not had the hard time accredited him.

The article in the St. Paul Dispatch read as follows:

"In the last two weeks Gulke has been carried back and forth between Minneapolis and Duluth several times by the poor departments of those cities.

"Gulke, who once lived in Duluth, came to Minneapolis, about a year ago to be treated for his blindness. The attention of the poor department being called to his case, he was sent back to Duluth, where his stay was not long. The poor department of Duluth sent him back to Minneapolis as soon as they discovered he was in town. He has now made the trip from one city to the other several times. The poor departments of both cities refuse to care for him.

"Last Monday Gulke was taken before Judge Waite of Minneapolis, and was sent to the workhouse for ten days. This, however, was only for the purpose of giving him some place to live while the poor departments of Duluth and Minneapolis could decide which of them should take charge of him.

"As neither city wants him there seems to be no way out of the matter except to turn the case over to the state board of control."

When shown the above article, Secretary Cook said:

"That is entirely wrong. The facts in the matter are as follows: Gulke was picked up by the Duluth police about the 26th of 27th of this month at which time my attention was called to him. Gulke told me that he had been furnished transportation to Duluth by the poor board at Minneapolis, although he told them he did not want to come here. The man is a woodsman by trade and has worked out of Minneapolis and Stillwater for years, in the logging camps, having been a resident of Minnesota a long time. He has also worked in Wisconsin.

"Gulke said he had been in Duluth a few times but never to stay any length of time. Previous to coming here he resided in Minneapolis for 14 months.

"This county furnished him transportation back to Minneapolis as soon as the facts were learned in his case and he has not been up here since. Neither has there been any communication between the poor authorities in the two cities relative to the matter."

RECORD OF OPENING

A number of the steamship companies expect to have their steamers running by April 15 at the latest but the impression prevails at the Head of the Lakes that the start will be made before that date as every indication points to an earlier opening of navigation.

The Bon Ami opened local navigation today, March 30, which is pretty early. Last year local navigation did not open locally until May 8 at which time the Bon Ami arrived from Grand Marais. The year before that, 1903, local navigation did not close until Feb. 8 and reopened March 2. In 1902 the steamer Hunter made her last trip from Two Harbors on March 15 and reopened local navigation on March 30. On March 15 and reopened local navigation on March 30. On March 15 of that year the Hunter was nine hours getting through the three miles of ice which had packed into this end of the lake.

Last year interlake navigation was opened on May 12 by the arrival of the steamer Mary H. Boyce; in 1903 it opened April 11 by the arrival of the steamer Captain Thomas Wilson; in 1902 the Buell arrived from Chicago on April 6 which is the earliest date for the opening of interlake navigation on record at the weather office. The average date for opening is May 1.

APRIL WEATHER.

What the Month Has Done in the Past.

H. W. Richardson of the weather bureau has compiled a statement of April weather as shown by the records of the office for thirty-four years and finds that the normal temperature of the month is 38 degrees above zero. The warmest April on record is that of 1900, when the thermometer averaged 45 degrees, and the coldest month was in 1874 which averaged 33 degrees. The highest temperature recorded for any one April day was 81 degrees on April 29, 1891, and the lowest was 3 degrees on April 1, 1885.

The average precipitation for the month is 2.42 inches, and the average number of days on which there is a fall of 1.01 of an inch is 10. The greatest monthly precipitation was in 1894 when the fall was 5.85 inches, and the least was in 1873 when it was .30 inches. The greatest amount of precipitation recorded in twenty-four consecutive hours was 2.23 inches on April 14 and 15, 1886. The greatest amount of snowfall in any twenty-four consecutive hours since the winter of 1884-5 was 62 inches on April 26, 1893. The average number of clear days in April is 9, partly cloudy, 11, and cloudy, 10. The prevailing winds are from the northeast and the average hourly velocity for 18 years is 9.7 miles. The highest velocity of the wind recorded was on April 2, 1904, when it was 60 miles an hour and from the northwest.

The Mental, Moral or Physical Wreck Has No Place in the Business World.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS.

The man who hesitates, whose eye is dull, whose step is slow, whose mind is sluggish, whose hands tremble, is not the man whom an employer seeks. It is the bright man, the man with the clear eye and brain, the active man, full of energy, life and vigor, whose very manner and presence breeds success that is sought for and snapped up as soon as seen, and it seems almost pitiful that the first class, victims of excess of some sort, should exist, when it needs but a thorough course of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to round them into the old-time feeling of physical, intellectual and manly vigor again.

Mr. Fred Hoyt of No. 724 6th Ave., New Brighton, Pa., Says:

"I used to have a hand so steady I could write the Lord's prayer on a twenty-five cent piece—then as a result of overwork and overstrain my eyes gave out and my hands and nerves generally became trembly. I was restless and could not sleep. I certainly was in bad shape and lost my ability to write—could just scrawl. I heard of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got some and they took hold immediately. I began to sleep—gain strength—my nerves grew steady—and my eyesight improved greatly. Today I feel finely and can again write as well as ever, and that means a very steady nerve." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Company, Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. THE SALT TRUST.

Michigan Senate Will Look Into Combine's Methods.

Lansing, Mich., March 30.—The senate has adopted a resolution to investigate the transactions of the salt trust, and for this purpose a committee will be sent to Chicago in a few days to procure evidence. It has recently been discovered that salt was being shipped in bulk from Manistee to Chicago, barreled after leaving the state and labeled "Saginaw salt," which sells at a higher price on the market than salt from Western Michigan. This salt barreled in Chicago is said to bear the mark of the Michigan inspector, whose investigations have resulted in legislative action. Senators Peck, Baird and Kane were appointed a committee to conduct the investigation.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE HAS BILL BEFORE ASSEMBLY.

Madison, Wis., March 30.—In the assembly today a new bill was introduced by the judiciary committee prohibiting the unauthorized publication or presentation of any dramatic or musical work. Mrs. La Follette, wife of the governor, was instrumental in having the bill introduced, her daughter being an actress and urging such a law for the state.

RAILROAD NEWS

The Locomotive Engineers Will Hold a Union Meeting In Duluth.

Duluth Will Be Greatly Benefited By the Portland Fair.

About 500 members of the brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers from the states of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Michigan will be in Duluth Saturday and Sunday to attend a union meeting of the organization. W. S. Stone of Cleveland, chief, will also be present, and will deliver an address on matters of interest to the brotherhood at the Lyceum theater Sunday evening.

The convention will be a good deal in the nature of a social gathering, although several business matters will be considered. It is expected that the majority of the engineers will bring their wives along with them. All the railroads in the five states will be well represented.

The meeting is directly in charge of the Duluth, Superior, Proctor, Two Harbors and Ashland branches of the order, and the officers from these cities, with large delegations of members, will be on hand.

The sessions will be held in Elks' hall and the Lyceum. Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning there will be executive sessions in the hall, and Sunday evening there wil be a musical and literary program at the Lyceum for members, their friends and a limited number of invited friends. The feature of the evening will be the address by Grand Chief Stone, who has the reputation of being an interesting and eloquent speaker. Plaaten's orchestra will furnish music for the occasion. The regular Plaaten concert, instead of being in the evening, as usual, will be in the afternoon.

DULUTH BENEFITED.

Many Will Go to Portland Via Great Lakes.

"Duluth will derive as much benefit, probably more benefit, than any other one city, exclusive of Portland herself, from the Lewis & Clark exposition this year," said W. L. Hathway of Minneapolis, district passenger agent of the Rock Island, who is in the city today.

"The fair will be largely attended by people from the extreme East, and a great many of them are planning to go west via the lakes and Duluth, transfering from boat to train at this point. The majority of these Easterners intend to stop at California points as well as in Portland, and will either go or return by the Southern route, in this manner seeing pretty much of the country on one trip. An agreement has been made by the several railroad and boat lines whereby a person may go by one route and return by the other at a rate much less than the regular one-way fare.

"The lake and rail route will offer interesting variety, and will doubtless prove to be very popular. You may look for a record-breaking number of transients in Duluth this summer, and a corresponding increase in many lines of business.

"All of the railroads which will be in any way affected by the exposition travel are looking for a good business this season. From present indications the success of the fair is already assured, for it will certainly be well attended. Just now the Rock Island is enjoying a fine patronage, especially in travel from the West to the East."

CHANGE SATURDAY.

Transfer of Omaha Officials to Eau Claire.

Saturday, April 1, the change of the headquarters of the Wisconsin division of the Omaha road from St. Paul to Eau Claire will be made, which will also mean the transfer of several employes from Itasca, Wis., to Eau Claire. Among the latter will be Assistant Superintendent Nash; W. J. Maloy, chief train dispatcher; J. B. Elliott, F. D. Crossen, D. A. Appleman, dispatchers, and F. E. Furhman, P. Mills, D. R. Canfield and A. Dodge, clerks.

Those going from the St. Paul office will be Superintendent T. W. Kennedy, Chief Dispatcher T. B. Seeley, four dispatchers and ten clerks.

REFRIGERATING CHARGES

By Armour Line to Be Again Investigated.

Washington, March 30.—The interstate comerce commission has entered an order re-opening the inquiry into the icing charges by the Armour car lines under authority of the Michigan Central and Pere Marquette railway companies on fruit shipped from points in Michigan to points of various destinations and has set the hearing for Chicago, on May 9. It is the intention of the commission to make inquiry into the duties and obligations of railway companies and car line companies concerning the refrigerating service and charges therefor and also to determine the extent of the alleged unreasonableness and injustice of the refrigerating charges.

In the decision heretofore rendered in the case the refrigeration charges on fruit from Michigan to Boston, Dubuque and Duluth were held unreasonable and unjust, and the railway companies and car lines were allowed time to readjust the charges involved. The commission having not received any notification of such re-adjustment, has now ordered a further inquiry with a view to a full investigation.

BARNEY SCIENCE HALL. IS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Newark, Ohio, March 30.—Barney Science hall of Dennison university at Granville burned today entailing a loss of nearly $100,000. The hall was erected by Eugene Barney of Dayton twelve years ago and cost $45,000. The scientific appliances in the hall were worth about $45,000. There is an insurance of $25,000 on the building and $15,000 on contents. The origin of the fire is unknown.

West Duluth

SPORT IS AFOOT

Launches Are Owned By Many West Duluthians.

Rod and Gun Club Is About to Be Formed.

The coming summer promises to be a good one for pleasure and sport in West Duluth, and even this early preparations are making for outings and paraphernailia that will be necessary. West Duluthians will furnish to the bay and river a large fleet. A number of them have had for several years launches of every type, but this year the getting of launches seems to be epidemic.

One of the finest yet obtained is that which arrived a few days ago for Henry Gifford. The hull was built by Pearson. It is twenty feet long and of torpedo type. It will have gasoline power and is expected to knock off nine miles an hour with ease. Other people of this end of town are getting new launches and there promises to be plenty of fun one the river.

A number of West Duluthians are banding together in forming a rod and gun club. A petition is being circulated at present for membership and a large number are signing it. It is expected that a meeting will be held Monday night to perfect the organization.

PASTOR'S SUIT RUINED.

Child Empties Liniment In Pocket Causing Trouble.

A West Duluth preacher is mourning over the ruin of a new suit of clothes caused by the thoughtlessness of a child. Said preacher had purchased himself a suit of clerical style and looked quite handsome in it. Even a preacher is likely to have human failings and he felt rather proud of his smart appearance in the new apparel. One evening he donned it and called at the home of one of his parishioners and there met several attractive young women. They were evidently pleased with his appearance and all chatted pleasantly and had a good time. The baby of the house got hold of a bottle of liniment somewhere and dropped it in the preacher's pocket with the cork out. Pretty soon the minister's new suit was greasy all down one side, but its condition was not discovered for some time until he arose to offer some attention to one of the young ladies and she noticed it. The result was embarrassment and another new suit.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Daughters have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Louis King of 616 South Fifty-ninth avenue West, Mr. and Mrs. Delton Saunders of 111 South Fifty-seventh avenue West and Mr. and Mrs. William Arbour of 214 North Fifty-second avenue West.

I. Deatherage is the man to see for your papering or painting. 303 Central avenue. Zenith 'phone, 3100.

A number of ladies of the G. A. R. of Duluth went to West Duluth yesterday afternoon and held a meeting and supper at Gilley's hall in an endeavor to rejuvenate the G. A. R. ladies organization in West Duluth. Other meetings will be held with the same object in view.

John Morgan was in Barnum yesterday on business.

Lauermann is sure to give you a fit. Call on him for your next shoe fit.

C. L. Goodell, the road machinery man, was in West Duluth yesterday.

The ladies of the Calendar circle of the Westminister Presbyterian church met yesterday afternoon and listened to annual reports. A pleasant social time was enjoyed.

The West Duluth Republican club will hold a meeting Saturday night and will hear a report from Alderman Barnes regarding the president's inauguration in Washington on March 4, to which Mr. Barnes was sent as a delegate by the club.

Mrs. McConnell of 612 North Fifty-eighth avenue West has as her guests her mother and sister, recently arrived from Norway.

Hand made work shoes for men and boys $1.35 to $3.00—The Great Eastern, West Duluth.

An effort will be made by the West Duluth aldermen to have another patrolman added to the West Duluth force in order that Grand avenue may be patrolled all the time. Lieut. Briggs is anxious to have this done and he also feels that a man at headquarters steadily is necessary.

The regular meeting of St. James court, No. 614, C. O. F., held Tuesday evening in Gilley's hall was well attended and the meeting was quite interesting. The society will attend divine service in a body some time about Easter and a committee was appointed to take charge of the matter and arrange with the pastor of the parish, Rev. Father Feehley. A strong effort is being made to add members to the lodge roll and a number are now prospective. The court is the second in point of membership in the city and has the honor of having as a member the state chief ranger of the order, P. H. Martin.

GREASON CASE IS POSTPONED.

Reading, Pa., March 30.—The Berks county court was to have heard argument today on the question of giving Samuel Greason a new trial for the murder of John Edwards nearly four years ago. Both Greason and Mrs. Edwards, who is also under sentence of death, were brought into court. Counsel for Greason was not ready and the case was postponed until Friday.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Sentence Will Soon Be Imposed on Murderer Rooney.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The end of the career of John Rooney, the murderer of Harold Sweet, seems to be in sight. The state supreme court has certified the record from the United States supreme court to the local court and the sentence will soon be imposed. As soon as the motion is made Rooney will be brought from Bismarck to Fargo for resentence, and then taken back to the state penitentiary for his execution, which cannot take place until after six months have elapsed. There is now no hope for the life of the brutal murderer. In all the trials and appeals of his case Rooney has withheld the names of his pals in the crime. He still maintains that one of the other men stepped up behind and shot young Sweet while the victim and Rooney were struggling.

The commissioners in all the counties along the Red River valley will hold meetings next week, when it is expected those that have not done so will make an appropriation to assist in the government survey of the Red River valley. Grand Forks and Walsh have taken favorable action. Traill, Pembina, Cass and Richland are all interested, as much drainage work will be done. Some of the counties objected because they understood the survey would be only ten miles back from the river, but Engineer Elliott writes that the survey will extend as far inland as co-operative drainage will be beneficial and possible.

A lady field secretary will be engaged by the board of the North Dakota Children's home to canvass the state for funds.

At Denhoff, a row between B. Baker, an employe of a hotel, and George Fuchs, a harness maker, resulted in Baker being shot through the shoulder. The matter was adjusted and the shooter will escape prosecution.

Alfred Nordby of Colfax had an arm torn from the socket while being employed around a feed mill. He died the following day from the shock.

Near Harvey Conrad Tebellius, a 10-year-old youth, was thrown from a wagon in a runaway and his spine broken. Death resulted in a few minutes

Grand Forks—An effort is to be made to secure the release of C. H. Foster and R. C. Hicks, serving terms of seven years and a half and eight years and a half respectively, in the penitentiary.

Several days ago an argument for a new trial was made before Judge Fisk, and he has denied the motion. From this George A. Bangs, attorney for the sentenced men, has appealed to the supreme court, and the case will be argued at the Bismarck term in April.

Foster, who lives in Minneapolis, and Hicks, who says Chicago is his home, were implicated with G. H. Bradford, who is serving a term of nine and a half years for the robbery of J. E. Perry, a passenger bound to Montana on the Great Northern overland flyer. This was on Aug. 16, and when one of the men asked Perry for change for a $20 bill another one grabbed it and the third held Perry until the other had gone into another car. The conductor was summoned and finally the money was returned to Perry.

The state university will open next Tuesday for the spring term. The winter term was one of the most successful in the history of the institution. One of the features was the teachers' school. Special courses were given those who could only be back for the winter term, and the results were very gratifying.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Lee Sing of Sioux Falls and Lee Wah June of Elk Point are to be deported from the United States as a result of their preliminary examination before D. J. Conway, United States commissioner in this city. They were arrested on the charge of being in the United States in violation of the terms of the Chinese exclusion act. They have been granted ten days in which to appeal. Lee Sing alleged that he was born in San Francisco in 1885, and that in 1887 himself and parents returned to China, where they remained for eleven years, returning to the United States in 1898 with some acquaintances, his parents remaining in China.

Lee Wah June testified that he had been admitted to this country on a merchant's certificate. He offered as an exhibit an affidavit from the United States commissioner living on the Pacific coast, in which it was stated in substance that the defendant was a member of a Townsend, Wash., mercantile firm. As this had no bearing, it was not admitted in evidence.

The preliminary examination in the case of W. J. Bailey, agent in this city of the Val Blatz Brewing company, arrested on the charge of embezzlement, preferred by officers of the company, has been continued until April 5.

It is impossible to secure definite figures but the alleged shortage is said to amount to over $2,000. In the claimed shortage, it is stated, in behalf Mr. Bailey, is included several bad accounts and the shrinkage in the bottles and cases.

When the defendant came to Sioux Falls it is further stated, he discovered that the Blatz company was not securing its share of the local business. To remedy this it was necessary to spend money, and Mr. Bailey finally found that his allowance of expense money was not equal to the demand made upon him and he went over the limit.

It is believed in some quarters that the difficulty between Mr. Bailey and the company will be adjusted prior to the date set for the preliminary hearing.

Deadwood—Several Black Hills men recently went to the new mining districts in Nevada in the vicinity of Tonopah and Bull Frog. Letters have been received from them and they advise Black Hills citizens to stay at home. The last letter received was from a prominent Deadwood man who states that every boarding house is filled to overflowing and that high prices are being charged for beds and meals.

Goldfield has no payroll at present and it will be several months, the letter says, before there will be any work for the thousands that are coming into the camp. Everything in the Goldfield district is staked for miles around, and town lots with a twenty-five foot front are selling for $2,000 each. The camp will be dead until the railroad arrives, when there may be some shipments of ore to the outside smelters.

TWO PERISH

In Fire at Winnipeg Started By Gasoline.

Winnipeg, March 30.—As the result of a horrible accident John Thompson, aged 64, and wife, lie at the morgue.

Neighbors discovered her almost nude and shrieking on her doorstep for some one to help her husband. She died yesterday morning. The brigade was called, the fire subdued and Thompson's body found in the hall near the door, where he had been suffocated, while trying to escape.

BUSINESS PART BURNED.

Paynesville, Minn., March 30.—Fire destroyed part of the business portion of Hawick, a small station on the Great Northern west of this place. The buildings burned were a geenral store occupied by B. Pond as a residence, and the building used by John Johnson as a dwelling and by O. M. Thompson, dealer in agricultural implements. Insurance, $800 on the Pond residence, $2,000 on the Thompson stock, and $3,000 on the John Anderson stock.

PEASANT OUTBREAK AT CASENO.

St. Petersburg, March 30.—A telegram from Bachmut, Bassarabia, reports a peasant outbreak at Caseno against the German settlers there. The peasants threaten to forcefully take possession of things, unless the Germans voluntarily give up possession. Cossacks have been hastily dispatched to the scene.

WILL HELD VALID.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 30.—Judge Frankberg has made a decision in the Carl C. Formo will case, which has been in court here for five months. Mr. Formo left a will bequeathing the bulk of his estate, valued at about $6,500, to his little grandson, Cady A. Formo, and two of his children have been endeavoring to have the will set aside on the ground that he was of unsound mind. Much contradictory testimony has been introduced, but the court holds that the will is valid and should be admitted.

SUPERVISION OF RAILROADS

Advocated By Mellen, But Says Action Should Not Be Hasty.

Hartford, Conn., March 30.—President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, appeared today before the committee on railroads of the Connecticut general assembly to advocate certain proposed amendments to the charter of the Consolidated Railway company, the holding corporation of 400 miles of trolley lines owned by the New York, New Haven & Hartford company. During the course of his argument, Mr. Mellen discussed the question of corporate control, saying, in part:

"The demand which has resulted for a strict supervision of railroads in the interest of the public welfare is the issue of the hour. It is right it should be had. There has grown up great abuses without doubt, and it is is time they were laid bare and stopped.

"A railroad enjoys great privileges from the public. It performs a public service; it imposes a tax which should be alike to all who use it and if it cannot handle itself without discrimination between persons and places and treat all alike fairly it is time for the public which created it to supervise it and control it.

"But it is not a project to be entered upon hastily. You do not want to make the cure worse than the disease, nor should those confessedly guilty be permitted to prescribe rules and regulations to be observed by those who have behaved themselves, if such there be. This is not a case for the dilettantis or theorist, or crank, but for the men of affairs, the jurist of repute, the man who puts his citizenship above other considerations. Give it into their hands and give them time and do not make another blunder like the interstate commerce law, and establish a tribunal that will be so anxious for more power, it will neglect to use what it has."

CONTINUE WAR

Will Be the Report of the Imperial Commission.

Board Finds Nothing To Prevent Its Further Prosecution.

St. Ptersburg, March 30.—It is understood that the imperial commission under the presidency of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, which has been considering the question of prosecuting the war has completed its preliminary report which favors a continuation of the war, finding nothing in the present situation either financial or military to prevent its prosecution.

It is reported on high authority that Former Viceroy Alexieff will be appointed governor general of Moscow succeeding the late Grand Duke Sergius.

CITY BRIEFS

Lawyers' briefs. North Land Printery.

Accused of stealing carpenter tools belonging to his fellow-lodger, Murdock McKenzie was arrested this morning by the police and will be arraigned in the municipal court this afternoon on a charge of petty larceny. It is claimed that McKenzie has been in the habit of purloining the tools from time to time and pawning them for money with which to buy liquor.

Articles of incorporation of the Gamble Mining company were filed today with the county register of deeds. The incorporaters are A. W. Hartman, C. A. Luster and R. P. Dowse, all of this city. The company is capitalized at $100,000, and purposes to conduct a general exploring and mining business.

CUMMINS IS AN ASPIRANT

For Dolliver's Seat In the United States Senate.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 30.—Governor Cummins, according to authority which is not disputed in political circles, will soon announce his candidacy for United States senator to succeed Jonathan Prentiss Dolliver of Fort Dodge.

From the statehouse it is declared that Senator Warren Garst, said by many to be the governor's favorite candidate to succeed to the executive chair, will launch in the next session of the legislature an anti-pass bill, a family ticket bill and a stock-shippers' bill to be approved and suported by the governor. These bills will be introduced in the hope of gaining radical railway reforms.

It is still possible that in lieu of these proposed reforms the governor and his friends in the legislature will take a step farther and sanction a 2-cent fare bill. At any rate the Cummins end of the next fight in Iowa is to be an anti-railway fight. Signs point unmistakably to it.

At first glance over the political situation in Iowa it appears that the governor cannot easily beat Dolliver. It is, however, asserted that the junior senator is far from popular in the southern portion of the state, where the anti-Cummins forces are strongest and best organized. The claim is made by men close to the governor that many politicians from the "Burlington reserve" personally importuned Governor Shaw four years ago not to appoint Dolliver, as it would mean a fight some day to keep him in the seat. Cummins' friends expect to take advantage of this disaffection.

Cummins' men count on the tenth district, the third, fourth, eleventh, seventh and second. They will fight hard for the fifth, despite the personal antagonism of "Bob" Cousins.

As the situation now appears, Cummins is the strongest opposition that Dolliver could have in the anti-Cummins sections of the state. On the other hand Dolliver is not as strong anywhere as he is in the country towns in the northern Iowa districts where he first earned his reputation as an orator and where the farmers have not forgotten his brilliancy.

ELABORATE RECEPTION

Awaits Emperor William on His Arrival at Morocco.

Paris, March 30.—Chancellor Von Buelow's speech in the reichstag yesterday on the subject of Morocco has not provoked any commotion here. The officials, press and public discuss the matter calmly and it was not mentioned in either branch of parliament today. A semi-official statement in the Temps says:

"If Germany makes known her point of view through the usual diplomatic channel, it will be assured a satisfactory answer. There is no thought of the question getting beyond diplomatic limits, although the prominence Germany is giving her Moroccan policy arouses resentment in some quarters."

Dispatches from Tangier give elaborate details of the preparations being made for the reception of Emperor William, who is expected there tomorrow. The sulton of Morocco has sent a special embassy to Tangier to present Arab horses to the emperor.

Great interest attaches to the expected arrival at Tangir of Paisula, the brigand chief who captured Ion Perdicaris and Cromwell Varley and who will head the native cavalcade.

If Constipated Do This.

This offer may not appear again. There is no catch about it. If Mull's Grape Tonic does not positively cure Constipation you are out nothing, as you may have the first bottle free. If it cures, which it will, tell others, that is all we ask. No remedy has ever before been known to cure Constipation permanently. Mull's Grape Tonic is not a physic. It is unlike anything you have ever used. It cures Constipation. If it did not this offer would ruin us. The process is gradual, but sure. You know from your own experience that physics like Pills, Salts, Castor Oil, Mineral Waters, Injections, etc., make you worse.

Where can Mull's Grape Tonic be had? Your druggist sells it. The $1.00 bottle contains nearly three times the 50c size, but if you will write today to Mull's Grape Tonic Co., 207 3d Ave., Rock Island, Ill., and give druggist's name, you will receive the first bottle free with full instructions. This gives us a chance to prove to you AT OUR EXPENSE that it is a wonderful remedy and leaves you under no obligation to invest a penny. Only tell your friends about it.

DO NOT LIKE MR. BOWEN

Venezuelans Would Prefer a New Minister From U. S.

Washington, March 30.—Dr. Jose De Jesus Paul, special representative of President Castro, had an interview today with the president respecting the issues that have arisen between Venezuela and the United States. Dr. Paul appears to believe that these issues might be settled by change in the American legation at Caracas in view of the strained relations between President Castro and Mr. Bowen. As an impression apparently prevails to some extent not only in Venezuela, but in this country, that Minister Bowen has incurred the ill-will of President Castro by an excuse of zeal in the presentation of the American claims against Venezuela, it may be stated that official inquiry from Washington has developed the fact that Mr. Bowen merely presented to the Venezuelan government the precise instructions sent to him from the state department relative to arbitration that he did not add to or take from those instructions in the slightest degree, but in fact, effaced himself, so the fact is, the state department, and not Mr. Bowen, is responsible for this presentment which has so stirred the Venezuelan government.

In view of the statement from Dr. Paul touching Mr. Bowen, it can be added upon the highest authority that in the view of the administration the doctor has no official standing, and whatever communication he makes to the president or state department cannot have any weight or bearing. If President Castro is dissatisfied with Mr. Bowen, he must have recourse to the regular diplomatic channel and communicate the fact formally to this government, which cannot receive representations on a subject from other sources.

BIG COFFIN FOR GIANT.

Everything About Funeral on Very Large Scale.

Paris, Ky., March 30.—Joseph Craig, the Bourbon giant, died at his residence at Plum of erysipelas, after a short illness. Craig was conceded to be the largest man in the state and for years was the giant man with the great Barnum circus. He was 65 years of age. He measured a little below the seven-foot mark and weighed over 400 pounds, though he was almost as active as the average man. At the time of his death he had retired from active life and was living at his home in Plum. The undertaking establishment of Keer Bros. of North Middletown took charge of the remains and found that they had no casket in their establishment large enough in which to bury the deceased. They then took measurements of the remains and ordred from a Cincinnati firm a special casket which was eight feet in length, forty-four inches in width and forty inches deep. The grave is almost twice as large as an ordinary grave.

Craig was related to the famous Howard family of Bourbon county, which was noted for its size. In this family there were seven brothers and four sisters, all of whom measured from six and a half to seven feet.

The deceased is survived by one brother, John Craig of this county.

BRAND NEW GRAFT.

Iowa City, Iowa, March 30.—A brand new graft has been sprung in Iowa City, and the local police say it was practiced here Tuesday for the first time in the history of the state. Warnings have been sent to the police in other cities, as it is believed the perpetrator will try to make a haul in every other city in Iowa.

The man who works the game secures the names of various prominent citizens. Then he retires to his room in a leading hotel, sets up a little hand-printing press, issues calling cards bearing the names of the citizens noted. Armed with these, he calls at the homes of the respective owners and presents the proper card in each case.

"I am here from Mineapolis," explains the man, "waiting for letters containing large remittances which my house is to send me, but, singularly enough, nothing has arriced. At the postoffice they told me that your name is the same as mine, as my card shows, and the postmaster think you may have received my mail by mistake."

Of course, the owner of the house has not the bunko-man's letters, but equally, of course, the prominent citizen feels sorry for his "name-sake," who is well and cleanly-dressed, looks like a gentleman and talks as sauvely as a political orator. As a result the citizen reaches for his purse and loans the stranger a few dollars, "until the draft comes."

A half dozen of the foremost citizens of Iowa City were fleeced before the police learned of the new graft, and by that time the rascal had left the city.

LEE WING FLEES

To Chicago With His Mortgaged Bride, Ah Moy.

Hair Pulling at First, But Pledge Finally Redeemed.

Chicago, March 30.—Lee Wing, a rich Chinaman from San Francisco, is in Chicago with his bride. They will stay away from home till High Low Young, another rich Chinaman of San Francisco, digests his spleen and puts away his hatchet.

The girl, Ah Moy, was the prettiest girl in Chinatown. Her father, Mat Get, a poor man with a big family, was employed as a clerk in the shop of High Low Young. He hoped to become a partner when his daughter come to marrying age. He had promised her to his employer, and the merchant agreed to pay her dower, $4,000, in stock of his business.

The merchant was old and ugly and fat and had five wives. Pretty little Ah Moy tried to run away and become a Christian. She got taken home sternly, to wait till the birthday. The stupid white devil law would not let her marry till she was 16.

Lee Wing saw her as she tilted up the steep street of Chinatown with the latest baby brother in its case on her back and half a dozen other little ones flocking around her, running on errands for her shut-in mother.

He would not so insult her as to address her, but he bought flowers for the baby. Also he began to scheme. He knew it was useless to ask Ah Moy's father for her, even though he paid a larger dowry than High Low Young, for a Chinaman will keep his word with a Chinaman.

Man Get, the girl's father, was little and ugly, so Lee Wing complimented him for his comliness and asked him to come and play with the little brown beans—fantun. Man Get was flattered. He played fantan. He lost.

"Are you not my friend? It does not matter," Lee Wing said, and asked him to play often. He played.

Lee Wing laughed at the losing, but the wife of Man Get warned:

"It is not for good that a rich man gambles with a poor man who is not smart," she repeated and reiterated.

"Will I not be a partner of the rich High Low Young in a few months?" Man Get replied, and angry, he lost what little sense was left and more games of fantan. He did not keep the score.

At New Year's time a Chinaman must pay his debts. Otherwise he may not write up his name in the Joss house and be protected by the gods.

Ah Moy's birthday and marriage were due to be celebrated at New Year's.

In the morning of the first holiday, when the heathen Oriental rolls all the fifty-one weeks of the year into one high good time, Lee Wing came to the house of Man Get.

In her embbroidered New Year's garments of gay satin, paid for by the rich High Low Young, Ah Moy sat in state to receive her people's friends. A woman, now, she could no more run about the steep streets. At least Lee Wing would see her for the last time dressed in her beautiful satins.

"I have come to collect the debt," Lee Wing said.

"The debt!" Man Get, the father, gasped.

"The debt!" the mother gasped.

"It is nothing. The son-in-law of the rich High Low Young can pay the rifle," Lee Wing replied.

"It is," how much?" Man Get asked.

"I am but a poor man; all I have is what you see," Man Get pleaded.

"I do not ask for the money. Give me a mortgage on Ah Moy. The bridegroom will redeem her," Lee Wing answered.

"On all my family, my wife, my Ah Wing, my"—

"Am I a keeper of children and women?" Lee Wing asked scornfully.

Man Get must give the mortgage.

"I will wait while you go to the bridegroom and he redeems his bride," Lee Wing said.

"Only with my life have I escaped," he panted.

So Ah Moy was married to the handsome Lee Wing, who says he will never marry another woman. Has he not all happiness? High Low Young is waiting.

WILL LOCATE IN VIRGINIA

Ransom Metcalfe Buys Half Interest In the Virginian.

Ransom Metcalfe, who has been employed on the editorial staff of The Herald during the past year, has purchased a half interest in the Virginian of Virginia from D. E. Cuppernull and severs his connection with this paper on April 1 to take up his new duties in that field.

It is the purpose of Messrs. Cuppernull and Metcalfe to devote a considerable share of the reading space of the Virginian in future to mining matters and to make of it a thoroughly reliable and first-class exponent of the mining industry that will be a credit to the district and the state.

Mr. Metcalfe, who will be the editor of the mining department, is no stranger on the range, having been the editor of the first paper established on the Mesaba in 1892. It was known as the Mesaba Range and was first published at Merritt, later being moved to Biwabik, where Mr. Metcalfe was postmaster for four years besides holding other offices. From 1895 to 1902 he was engaged in different capacities on the old Daily News of Duluth, being engaged as city editor in 1891-1892.

In 1897 he moved his printing outfit from Biwabik to Two Harbors and established there the Iron Trade Journal in partnership with George H. Westcott of Ely. During 1899 he was telegraph editor of The Herald and in the fall of that year purchased the Sun of West Duluth, which he published for four years, coming again to The Herald as editorial writer in February of last year. He has a wide acquaintance on the range and in Duluth and his lot in future will be cast among friends.

His family, now in West Duluth, will move to Virginia about the first of May.

ICE REPORT FAVORABLE

Opening of Navigation Appears Possible at Early Date.

The weather bureau's weekly report on ice conditions sent out from Detroit every week, has just been issued and is decidedly encouraging for vesselmen. Regarding the ice at the Soo, which is the most important point for navigators to consider, the report says that the ice is weakening fast and about ten days of warm weather will open it.

A telegram was received here yesterday from the Harvey Marine bureau of the Soo, by R. M. Wolvin, saying that the ice is going fast and it is believed that navigation will open there by April 8.

The weekly ice report follows:

The reports from the regular and display stations of the weather bureau indicate that the ice fields have decreased rapidly in all the lakes. In Superior the ice field is confined to the extreme west end, extending out about fifteen miles; the fields have moved off shore at Keweenaw Point, and open water is reported as far east as Whitefish Point; the ice in Whitefish bay is softening rapidly, and ten days of warm weather will open it. In Green bay the ice is still firm, but has decreased rapidly during the week, some water appearing on top. In Lake Michigan the ice fields have practically disappeared over the southern portion, and no ice is reported as far north as Frankfort. At the straits the ice has softened under the influence of warm weather and rain, but extends east and west beyond vision. In Lake Huron the ice fields have moved off shore, except off Oscoda, and but little ice was reported in sight at the close of the week. The rivers are reported open from Lake Huron to Lake Erie. In Erie the fields have broken up over the western portion and moved out into the lake; some ice is reported off Bar Point; over the eastern portion the ice fields are intact but softening rapidly, and much open water is reported. In Ontario the ice fields are now confined mostly to the eastern half of the lake.

"In comparison with the same period last season, there is much less ice reported in all the lakes.

"Ten days of warm weather and rain will cut the ice so that there will be but little difficulty in opening navigation. The continued warm weather and southerly winds have moved the ice fields out into the lake, and they will probably become broken up and disappear."

The details of Lake Superior conditions are:

Duluth: Ice in harbor 18 inches; lake ice field solid from 8 to 15 miles out, with floating fields in sight beyond; tug making north shore trips from Two Harbors.

Presque Isle: No ice visible north of Presque Isle or Granite Island Light, and the rain and warm weather is cutting the ice.

Sault Ste. Marie: Ice covered with water showing signs of weakening fast, and a week of warm weather will practically use it up.

BEGIN WORK IN THE PARKS

Gardeners Will Be Put to Work Monday Morning.

The work of cleaning up the parks and preparing them for the summer, will be commenced next week.

Park gardeners are already at work in Lincoln and Cascade parks, and the other summer employes of the board will go to work Monday.

Two or three carloads of trees have been purchased by the board for spring planting and they are expected to arrive in the city within a few days.

Extra attention will be given to Fairmount park in West Duluth this year. There is considerable work to be done there and if the street car line is extended to its entrance it is destined to become one of the most popular parks in the city.

A force of men will also be put to work on the boulevard next week, to place it in good condition for the summer.

The Band Concert.

Charles Helmer, the favorite cornet soloist of the Third Regiment band, will render a new selection, "The Commodore" at the special testimonial benefit concert to be tendered Director J. H. Flaaten next Sunday afternoon in the Lyceum. Mr. Helmer has rendered several solo numbers during the present Lyceum season and his host of admirers have requested that he again present a special feature.

To Director Flaaten's tireless and energetic efforts is due the band's success during the present season of Sunday concerts at the Lyceum. He has endeavored to furnish Duluth people with a high class of concert music and the increased patronage each successive Sunday testifies to his success. The members of the Third Regiment organization have decided to tender a special testimonial concert next Sunday afternoon to their director and each is working hard to make the affair a financial success. Probably no one in the Northwest is entitled to more credit than Mr. Flaaten for furnishing music lovers with excellent entertainment. He has labored tirelessly and the testimonial of next Sunday afternoon will prove a fitting compliment to him and his men.

Second Entry Allowed.

Word has been received from the land department at Washington that the second homestead entry of Henry Simpson has been allowed. Simpson filed first on the north half of the southeast quarter of 25-60-19, but claimed to the department that after moving on it having seen it only in winter, he discovered when spring came that the ground is too stony for cultivation so he relinquished and filed on lot 1, 2-60-19, which entry has just been allowed.

ONE MONTH LEFT

After That Date Only $15 Bounty Will Be Paid.

Only one more month remains during which the wolf hunters in St. Louis county will be able to collect the large bounty now paid by the county and state, $20 each for full-grown wolves and $3 each for cub wolves.

On and after May 1 a bounty will be in effect, but it will be only $15 for full-grown wolves and $2 each for cubs. A resolution cutting $5 and $1 off the bounty which the county has been paying since last October, effective May 1, was passed at the last meeting of the board of county commissioners. The measure was introduced by Commissioner Patterson.

By reducing the bounty it was not the intention of the board that all inducement should be withdrawn for the extermination of the wolves, but the records of the past several years have demonstrated that very few wolves are killed from May 1 to along some time in each following fall, and those who are killed are not, as a rule, hunted especially for the bounty, but their death has been brought about accidentally, an occasional stray wolf happening to get too venturesome and coming out too near civilization.

Then, too, the wolves which give so much trouble to the outlying settlements during the cold winter season disappear almost entirely during the warm summer months. They make their haunts in the middle of some of the almost impenetrable swamps in Northern Minnesota and are exceedingly wary. It is rare that even experienced hunters even get a glimpse of the animals during the summer months.

The records at the county auditor's office show that since the county increased the wolf bounty, last October, from $15 to $20 per head for full-grown animals, there have been 150 of the pests exterminated, several having been killed within the city limits of Duluth, but the majority coming from the outlying farming settlements.

This number is almost double that killed during a corresponding period in former years, and the commissioners are quite well satisfied that the few dollars more it has cost the county has been money well spent in the interests of the agriculturists whose stock has been threatened time and again by hungry packs of wolves.

As there have been practically no cub wolves killed since the increased bounty went into effect, a total of $3,000 has been distributed among the wolf hunters in St. Louis county from October, 1904. Of this amount the county has contributed $1,875 and the state has paid the remaining $1,125.

Practically all the amount paid out in bounties has been distributed among settlers who have been endeavoring to exterminate the animals. Some persons have made good wages this past winter in the wolf-killing business.

Previous to the increase in the bounty not a great deal of interest was taken in the matter of wolf-killing, except where the settlers did it for the defense of their stock, the claim being made that the steps necessary to secure the bounty were so hedged about with red-tape and expense that by the time the wolf-killer had his county order for a wolf pelt, he had spent a large part of the amount represented.

Whether the county board will increase the bounty again next fall and winter probably depends on conditions as they may then exist.

DEGREES IN APRIL

Scottish Rite Consecration and Work Easter Week.

On Wednesday night, April 19, the Scottish Rite theater in the new Masonic Temple will be consecrated, the ceremonies will be in charge of James D. Richardson of Tennessee, sovereign grand commander of the thirty-third degree and the highest Mason in the United States. He will be assisted by members of the supreme council. Other distinguished Masons of the thirty-third degree who will be present are Samuel Emery Adams of Minneapolis, lieutenant grand commander and inspector general of Minnesota, and George Fleming Moore, grand minister of state and inspector general of Alabama.

On the day following, which will be the Thursday before Easter, the Maundy Thursday banquet will be held at 6 o'clock in the evening, and then the ceremony of extinguishing the lights will be gone through. They will not be lighted again until Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, the Scottish Rite degrees will be conferred on a large class from Duluth and the surrounding towns and during the progress of the work an elaborate program of music will be rendered by the Scottish Rite quartet, which consists of Mrs. Leo Ball, Mrs. Burt Holcomb, H. G. Gearhart and J. R. Martin. A. F. M. Custance is organist and director. During the conferring of the thirty-second degree Flaaten's Third Regiment band, the choir of St. Paul's Episcopal church and the High School Musical society will furnish the music.

Conferring of degrees will occur on Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock and on that afternoon the fourth to the thirteenth degrees, inclusive, will be given. The fourteenth will be given in the evening. On Wednesday degrees from the fifteenth to the twenty-ninth, inclusive will be given and on Thursday the thirtieth will be conferred in the morning. Conferring the thirty-first and thirty-second will take place on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, which will end the ceremony of conferring degrees. Then the other events will follow as recorded.

AT HEAD OF THE ELKS

W. S. McCormick Elected Exalted Ruler—Other Officers.

Duluth lodge, No. 133, B. P. O. E., held its annual meeting last night and elected William S. McCormick exalted ruler. Mr. McCormick was presented with a fine specimen of Elks' tooth by P. McDonnell, who procured it in Southern California.

The Elks have decided to build a home for the lodge on First street, and last night received bids for lots on that street on which to put up the building. The matter was referred to the standing committee. When the building is erected it will be provided with a reading room, library and billiard room besides other apartments necessary to a club house such as the Elks propose to have. The new officers will be installed next Wednesday night and those elected last night, together with Mr. McCormick are as follows: H. W. Andridge, leading knight; R. M. Edwards, loyal knight; E. F. Krieger, lecturing knight; John L. Fuller, secretary; Charles Beuglet, treasurer; Frank Cox, tyler; Cook Ely, trustee.

Lake Carriers Have All Trouble Out of the Way.

G. A. Tomlinson has returned from Detroit where he witnessed the launching of his new boat the James E. Davidson at Detroit, March 25, and he also attended the launching on March 18 of the Sylvania at Bay City.

While East Mr. Tomlinson attended the meeting of the board of directors of the Lake Carriers' association at which all labor troubles with which the association might have to do were settled, and they are all ready for the opening of navigation. The only labor matter that remains to be settled, said Mr. Tomlinson, and with which the lake carriers have no connection, is with the ore dock men at Lake Erie ports. These will have to be settled by the interests most concerned.

FISHERMEN RESCUED IN THE NICK OF TIME.

Bay City, Mich., March 30.—Joseph Denny and wife and six other fishermen, who had venturesomely remained too long at their fish shanties far out on Saginaw bay were rescued yesterday in an exhausted condition. Starting for shore Tuesday they had walked all night, only to find themselves surrounded on every side by open water, as the ice steadily gave way under the abnormally high temperature. When the shouts of the party were heard late yesterday and responded to by men in a boat, Mrs. Denny had collapsed. Her male companions were hauling her on a sled as they laboriously tramped back and forth on the isolated icefield waiting and praying for their cries of distress to be answered.

WONDERFUL CURE OF SORE HANDS

By Cuticura After the Most Awful Suffering Ever Experienced

EIGHT DOCTORS

And Many Remedies Failed to do a Cent's Worth of Good

"I was troubled with sore hands, so sore that when I would put them in water the pain would nearly set me crazy, the skin would peel off and the flesh would get hard and break. There would be blood flowing from at least fifty places on each hand. Words could never tell the suffering I endured for three years. I tried everything, but could get no relief. I tried at least eight different doctors, but none did me any good, as my hands were as bad when I got through doctoring as when I began. I also tried many remedies, but none of them ever did me one cent's worth of good. I was discouraged and heart-sore. I would feel so bad mornings, to think I had to go to work and stand the pain for ten hours, I often felt like giving up my position. Before I started to work I would have to wrap every finger up separately, so as to try and keep them soft, and then wear gloves over the rags to keep the grease from getting on my work. At night I would have to wear gloves; in fact, I had to wear gloves all the time. But thanks to Cuticura, that is all over now.

CURED FOR 50c.

"After doctoring for three years, and spending much money, a 50c. box of Cuticura Ointment ended all my sufferings. It's been two years since I used any, and I don't know what sore hands are now, and never lost a day's work while using Cuticura Ointment."

PETITION COURT

Heirs of Charles George Ask to Have Guardian Fired.

Claim They Got No Share In Valuable Property Sold.

A petition was filed in probate court of this county, yesterday afternoon, by Mrs. Alice Bremken, formerly Alice M. George, Nellie E. George and Ellen M. George, asking that the order appointing William E. George as the guardian in the estate of Charles George, deceased, be revoked.

The petition is based on the allegation that the heirs of Charles George, who died here in April, 1893, have never received any formal notice of the petition of William George to be appointed guardian. The heirs also allege that property has been sold to the amount of $25,000, belonging to the estate, from which they have received nothing.

Probate Judge Middlecoff has set Monday, April 10 as the date for hearing on the petition. J. W. Osborne of Ely appears for the petitioners.

In her petition, Mrs. Bremken claims that she is one of the heirs of Charles George, the other heirs residing in St. Paul and Chicago. She alleges that she resided with her parents at Chatham, Ont., from the time of her birth until Oct. 31, 1884, when the mother died and the family was broken up, the father taking her to visit his brother, William E. George, at Port Elgin, Ont., removing shortly afterward to Duluth.

Mrs. Bremken alleges that on their arrival in Duluth her father and uncle had a falling out, due to the uncle exclaiming:

"Take your child; we don't want her; she is too much bother."

Mrs. Bremken claims the unfriendly feeling between the brothers continued up to her father's death. She says in her petition that for seven years she worked in Duluth as a domestic.

Mrs. Bremken alleges that after her father's death she paid his funeral expenses out of her earnings, at the rate of $1 per week. She claim that not long after her father died, William E. George asked her to go to the courthouse with him where, at his request she signed a paper of which she did not know the contents. She claims that at the time she had 50 cents which her uncle took giving her back only five cents for car fare, replying to her remonstrance with the following words:

"That is none of your business. You will get all that is coming to you. Don't tell any one you were to the courthouse with me or where I took you."

Before her father died, Mrs. Bremken claims that in 1888 he took up a land claim in the southeast quarter of section 32-62-14 final proof on which was made by William E. George in 1901.

Mrs. Bremken claims that she was advised by her attorney that the homestead entry had been sold to W. D. Sanford, a brother-in-law of William E. George for $1,050 and afterward transferred to parties unknown for a consideration of $25,000, the guardian, W. E. George gaining possession of the legal papers and title to the property, taking them from the pockets of Charles George when he died.

The petitioners have also started a suit in district court seeking to have their title established to the land in dispute, and the title of W. D. Sanford, Amy K. Sanford and B. H. Riebel declared void.

HIDDEN DEFECT

In Boiler Caused Explosion at Grover Factory.

Brockton, Mass., March 30.—A statement that no evidence had been adduced to show that any person was criminally liable for the explosion in the R. B. Grover company's shoe factory here last week, which caused the death of fifty-eight employes, made yesterday afternoon by District Attorney Asa P. French, concluded an inquest held in the police court to determine, if possible, the cause of the accident and to place responsibility for it. Mr. French also said that he believed it to be shown that the explosion was due to a hidden defect in the factory boiler.

The witnesses examined included a representative of the Grover company, who testified that the boiler was inspected in December and that his company had no knowledge that it was not in good condition; several boiler inspectors, who said that they had found a crack in the boiler, which was itself of a practically obsolete type, and several other persons, principally factory employes, who declared that David W. Rockwell, the engineer in charge of the boiler, seemed capable of attending to his duties on the morning of the accident.

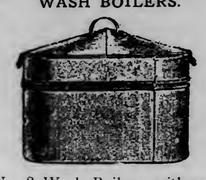

District Attorney French then informed the court that he had thrown all the light he believed possible upon the cause of the explosion. It seemed to him, he said, that it had been shown that the accident was due to a hidden defect in the boiler.

SIXTY-FIVE THOUSAND MINERS WILL STRIKE.

Altoona, Pa., March 30.—Operators and miners of the central bituminous district of Pennsylvania, after being in conference since March 16, endeavoring to agree on a wage scale to go into effect on April 1, adjourned finally yesterday without coming to an agreement. The failure to agree means a suspension of work by 65,000 organized miners of the district at the end of March. The operators stood on their proposal for a 10 per cent reduction for the first half of the approaching mining year and the present scale, based on 62 cents for pick mining, for the second half of the year. The miners' ultimatum demanded a renewal of the present scale for the full year. No agreement being possible, the scale committee adjourned finally. The action of the miners on the committee was approved by the miners' convention, which then adjourned.

BRUTAL ASSAULT

Committed on White Woman By Six Negroes.

Uniontown, Pa., March 30.—Charged with holding up and assaulting Mrs. Belle McNeil, a white woman, six negroes of Uniontown were arrested yesterday and held to await trial at court. The crime was one of the most daring ever committed in Uniontown. Tuesday night while Mrs. McNeil and Raymond Wright both of this place were walking on Decson avenue about 11 o'clock they were attacked by a gang of negroes one of them held a revolver at Wright's head while the others rifled his pockets. The negroes then assaulted Mrs. McNeil repeatedly, holding Wright a prisoner in the meantime, one of them holding a revolver at his head.

Six negroes were captured and Mrs. McNeil identified three of them. Three of the negroes after their identification confessed, implicating the others. No time was lost in giving them a hearing at which all were held for court and committed to jail.

SERIOUS FLOOD AT JEFFERSON, WIS.

Jefferson, Wis., March 30.—The chutes of the dam in the Rock river here have gone out. Hundreds of acres of land in the vicinity to the south and east are flooded.

The flood is the most serious in many years and further damage is threatened to the dam. John Seifert, Jr., hastily rescued his sick wife from his home on the south side, just as the water was creeping into the floor of the room where the woman was confined. The Rock river bridge in that vicinity has been condemned. Traffic over the bridge crossing the Crawfish river west of the city has been suspended and the structure is seriously damaged.

The Stoppenbach Packing house, Kemmler's brick yard, the Wisconsin Manufacturing company's chair plant and other structures are more or less surrounded by the water.

At Necedah, higher water in the Yellow river caused several washouts on the Wisconsin valley division of the Milwaukee, Chicago & St. Paul railway and damage to the property of the roller mill.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The president has issued a proclamation inviting the nations of the earth to be represented by the military organizations and their naval vessels at the celebration to be held in the vicinity of Jamestown, W. Va., from May 13 until Nov. 1, 1907.

Philadelphia on Wednesday experienced the hottest weather ever recorded in March since 1872. The maximum temperature was 79 at 4 o'clock, the rise being continuous from 54 at 8 o'clock in the morning. The hottest March day previous to this was March 22, 1894, when the mercury reached 77. At 8 o'clock at night the temperature had dropped to 72.

At her home near Elton, Pa., Wednesday, while alone with a young adopted daughter, Mrs. Frank Roes, aged 62 years, was assaulted by a negro, who tore her clothing from her body and left her unconscious on the kitchen floor. The victim's condition is serious.

Governor Mickey of Neoraska has sent to the house his veto of the McMullin bill for the regulation of the practice of medicine in Nebraska. The bill would have compelled Christian Scientists to obtain a license to practice. The governor says in his veto that he believes the bill to be in violation of the constitution which demands religious toleration and freedom.

WHITEMAN'S FRIENDS OFFER BAIL IN $10,000.

Buffalo, March 30.—Isaac Hampton and Edward O. Hoffman of Dansville, N. Y., appeared at the district attorney's office yesterday and offered to furnish $10,000 bail for the release of Alonzo J. Whiteman. No action was taken pending an investigation of some of the collateral offered. Whiteman was recently acquitted on a charge of grand larceny, but five counts of the indictment on charges of grand larceny and forgery still stand against him.

MISSOURI WOULD OUST OIL COMPANIES.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 30.—Attorney General Haley yesterday filed in the supreme court an application for a writ of quo warranto for the purpose of ousting the Standard Oil company, the Republic Oil company and the Waters-Pierce Oil company of their franchises for doing business in Missouri. The supreme court issued the writ and made it returnable to the court en banc on April 11. The application charged the companie with being in criminal control of prices and the supply of oil in the state.

Wonderful Life-Giving Doctor

Cures Cancer, Consumption and All Bacterial Diseases.

Full Information Free to Anyone Sending Name and Address, and Telling the Doctor What They Wish to Be Cured of.

I have made the most marvelous and notable medical discovery since the beginning of the world. It is developed from a wonderful substance discovered in small quantities in Europe, whose peculiar and mysterious properties puzzle the scientists and amaze the people. It glows with a bright light night and day; it is always hotter than the surrounding air; it constantly and continuously gives off a stream of sparkling light rays which will penetrate a foot of solid iron, but in spite of which it never wastes away but always remains the same. Many suppose it to be a direct manifestation of the supernatural and its action on disease makes it seem so.

This remarkable substance is absolute and quick cure for consumption, cancer, tumors, malaria, blood-poison, ulcers, fistula, stomach, kidney, liver and bladder troubles, and all forms of germ disease. When it enters the system every vestige of disease is driven out, as no disease germ can live in its presence. This mysterious substance is hard to obtain, but I have been able to secure a large quantity with which I have conducted most elaborate experiments and I have succeeded in producing and perfecting a marvelous compound that cures consumption, cancer and all germ diseases as if by magic. The marvelous cures of hopeless cases proves beyond doubt that I have an absolute and positive cure for the deadly cancer and consumption, and I am glad to tell every sick and suffering person absolutely free how they can be cured. Write today. Delay is dangerous. It may be fatal. Tell me what you wish to be cured of and I will tell you free how you can be cured. Mrs. Lora Holloway, Crawfordsville, Ind., was given up by the doctors. For years she had suffered with an ovarian tumor and fistulas. She was unable to get out of bed. Her waist measure was fifty-nine inches and her sufferings were terrible. In ten days the tumor had decreased in size, nearly one-half the fistulas were healed and today she is strong and well as ever. My marvelous radiatized fluid did it. It restores health and strength and life. Mrs. Guenther of Cincinnati, had consumption and was given up to die. On April 8, they read my advertisement. On May 11, they wrote: "We have got her out of bed and learned her to walk again, which she did not do in ten weeks." Today she is doing her own housework—well and healthy as ever. Peter Keagan, Galesburg, Ill., had cancer of the mouth and throat. Doctors said, "no hope." Mr. Keagan wrote: "It is only a question of a short time—I must die." Today his cancer is healed up and he is well. My marvelous radiatized fluid did it. It has many just such cures to its credit. It is saving people every day and restoring them to health and strength. If you have cancer, consumption or any throat or lung trouble, or any deadly germ disease, write today and learn how you can be cured quickly and safely and at very small expense. No matter what your disease may be, do not hesitate to write and tell me what you wish to be cured of. Your letter will be promptly answered, giving you full information and proof of many remarkable cures absolutely free. Address, Dr. Rupert Wells, 214 Granite Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

CAL E. STONE IS PROMOTED

To Be General Passenger Agent of the Great Northern.

St. Paul, March 30.—Official announcement was made today of the appointment of Cal E. Stone, as general passenger agent of the Great Northern railroad system, to succeed F. I. Whitney, who has been appointed general passenger traffic director. Mr. Stone was assistant passenger agent of the St. Paul & Duluth railroad and assistant general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific system. Mr. Stone's appointment becomes effective April 1.

MAN BLOWS HIMSELF UP WITH DYNAMITE.

Mahanoy City, Pa., March 30.—Joseph Rogist, aged 25 years, committed suicide at his house in Mahanoy Plain last night by blowing himself to pieces with dynamite. He went into the yard of his home and placing a stick of dynamite in his clothing, exploded it. His body was blown to pieces. Worry is believed to have caused him to end his life. He had been married only six months.

MRS. CHADWICK

Promises to Assist the Bankruptcy Officials.

Cleveland, March 30.—At the conclusion of a conference between Trustee Nathan Loeser of the Chadwick estate and Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, the bankruptcy hearing, which was scheduled for today, was postponed until next Monday. Mrs. Chadwick had promised that after the trial she would do all in her power to assist the authorities, and she is now awaiting the arrival of papers which she asserts will be of material aid in accomplishing the same.

IS GETTING ROOKIES

Marine Corps Presents Advantages That Appeal to Men.

Corporal Glenn Succeeding In Efforts to Secure Recruits.

Capt. George Thorpe, the officer in charge of marine recruiting for the Northwest, will arrive here tomorrow morning to swear in eight recruits examined by Corporal Glenn, who is in charge of the local office. Corporal Glenn is meeting with marked success in his efforts to obtain recruits and is getting more men every day. The material he has enrolled and which is now awaiting for the captain looks like good stuff and the corporal feels that he has been lucky. The service when explained to wanderers has a good many attractions and Corporal Glenn and Private Hutchings are enthusiastic in their praise of the marine corps.

Recruits joining the ranks of the marines become globe-trotters at once as they are transferred from here to either San Francisco or Seattle for the preliminary training at the navy yard at Mare Island or Bremerton. From these posts chances are excellent for going to China or the Philippines. The recent increase of 240 non-commissioned officers and 1,200 men to be added to the strength of the marines is quite an irresistible inducement to young men to join and take advantage of the flattering chances of promotion, and this is more especially an inducement in view of the still existing deficiency of numbers of marines to meet all the calls for service which will require a steady increase in the strength to be voted by each congress. The great new ships going into commission each require nearly 100 marines for the pleasantest, most promising, and decidedly most interesting duty offered by any branch of military or naval service in the world.

Corporal Robert T. Glenn and Private Henry M. Hutchings have charge of the local office. They were recently on the cruiser San Francisco coming home from China; they were also with Capt. Thorpe on his Abyssinian diplomatic expedition. Corporal Glenn was for three months in charge of a section of the camel caravan going across the deserts in that expedition. Emperor Menelik II. took such a fancy to him that he presented him with a special gold medal bearing the king's image.

Before that experience Corporal Glenn was with the American squadron that was invited to Kiel by the German emperor and afterwards to England by Edward VII. The king and queen of Portugal followed suit. After these festivities the squadron went to Syria to put down an uprising of Turks against the Christians at which time the American consul was particularly an object of hatred.

Corporal Glenn was at this time ordered ashore to protect the American consulate at Beyrout. Corporal Glenn has seen duty in Cairo and Bombay, India, as well as the placeas mentioned and Private Hutchings has also seen a large part of the world in service.

EIGHT COACHES ARE DERAILED

Homeseekers' Excursion Train Wrecked Near Rat Portage.

Winnipeg, Man., March 30.—The third section of the homeseekers' excursion, which left Toronto last Tuesday with about 600 settlers for the Northwest on board, was ditched at Dryden, eighty miles east of Rat Portage. A wrecking crew and doctors have left Rat Portage for the scene of the wreck. The latest report says that none of the passengers were seriously injured.

At 7:30 a. m. today a colonist train, westbound, consisting of twcive coaches and a van, became derailed a quarter of a mile west of Dryden by a broken rail. The engine and four coaches retained the rails, but the following eight coaches were derailed. Several passengers whose names and destinations have not yet been ascertained, were cut and bruised, but none were seriously injured. They are being cared for in hotels by local doctors.

FOUR YOUNG PEOPLE

Are Missing and Double Elopement Is Suspected.

Palmer, Mass., March 30.—The simultaneous disappearance of Miss Jennie Brooks, Harry Day, Miss Laura Brosette and Fred Barber, is accounted for by the theory of a double elopement. The ages of the quartet, who have been much in one another's company of late, range from 18 to 20 years.

Miss Brooks was sent by her mother to pay a coal bill of $12. The possession of so much money is believed to have caused an unfortunate train of thoughts, resulting in the departure of the Brooks girl and her companions, with whom she was seen in exuberant spirits soon after starting for the office of the coal dealer.

PASTOR IS AGGRIEVED

Paterson, N. J., March 30.—Rev. Gordon Jones is aggrieved, and justly, he thinks, at the summary manner of his dismissal for neglect of duty by the congregation of the Arbutus Hill Methodist Protestant church at Pitman, N. J., on Sunday. He says that while the church agreed to pay him $1 per day, the payments thus far made him average only 49 cents a day. He has rendered the following bill for services:

ARBUTUS HILL, M. P. CHURCH.
To REV. W. GORDON JONES, Dr.
To services as pastor, including performances on cornet, guitar, autoharp, trombone, organ and banjo.
Sweeping church when necessary.
Paperhanging.
Painting.
Making pastoral calls.
Composing and singing hymn.
Ninety-nine days at $1 a day....$99 00

Balance due $50 90

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them In Duluth, and Good Reason For It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Duluth reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. C. M. Bradley, dressmaker, living at 109 First street, east, Duluth, Minn., says: "Since giving a testimonial in 1898, telling of the gratifying results obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, my faith in them has continually increased, for besides my own experience I have known of numerous friends and acquaintances who have learned the reliability of Doan's Kidney Pills in severe cases of kidney trouble. I suffered a great deal from heavy dull pains in the small of my back, and it was impossible for me to bend over or rest at night with any degree of comfort. I used only about half a box of Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed a wonderful improvement. The kidney secretions were regulated and toned up and the pains gradually disappeared until I was entirely free from my former trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

Indictments Are Returned Against Nan Patterson and Smiths.

Cincinnati, March 30.—J. Morgan Smith and his wife, who is a sister of Miss Nan Patterson, the actress, who is held in New York on charge of killing Caesar Young, the bookmaker, were arrested in this city this afternoon. Smith had been summoned to appear as a witness in the case but left New York city and state several weeks ago and has just been found.

New York, March 30.—The case of Nan Patterson, who is awaiting trial on a charge of having murdered Caesar Young, was again before the grand jury today. Several witnesses, including the widow of the dead bookmaker and Mrs. Young's brother-in-law, William Luce, were examined in the criminal court building today by District Attorney Rand. It was reported that Mr. Rand was seeking an indictment for conspiracy in connection with the case. Later this afternoon the grand jury handed down indictments against J. Morgan Smith and wife, Julia, and Nan Patterson, charging them jointly with conspiracy.

EVANSTON SHOCKED

By Report That Alderman Bet on Races.

Chicago, March 30.—Evanston was shaking last night. It trembled from center to the four-mile limit like a town of guava jelly. The cause was not an exclusive earthquake, but a rumor. It wandered about town all day and at night strayed into the council chamber, where Alderman Walrath captured it and put it into a resolution. The resolution reads:

"Resolved, That the council investigate the report that an Evanston city official, presumably an alderman, has been betting on horses in the Chicago hand-books."

The matter was referred to the judiciary committee, for the council considered it a serious matter. Which goes to show that Evanston, in some ways, is farther removed from Chicago than railway maps indicate.

AT POINT OF DEATH

From Injuries Received During an Initiation.

Cincinnati, March 30.—Antonio Ciancolo, a fruit dealer, it developed yesterday, is lying at the point of death from an injury received when he was initiated into membership in the "Needall" mutual aid society. Ciancolo was struck on the back with a paddle in the hands of a member whose name he will not divulge, and a cartridge that is attached to this ceremonial paddle, was exploded and the missile buried several inches in his back. It is claimed that by mistake the man who wielded the paddle struck Ciancolo with the wrong side of it, thereby allowing the bullet from the cartridge to penetrate his flesh. Had the paddle been used properly the explosion would merely as intended, have frightened the initiate. The wife of the victim says she will prosecute the person or persons responsible for her husband's injury whether or not he recovers.

WU TING FANG IS IN PERIL

Has Fallen Upon Evil Times In His Native Land.

Washington, March 30.—William Ting Fang, the former Chinese ambassador, whose humor won popularity for him in America, has fallen upon evil times in his native land. He is charged with having deceived the empress dowager as to the real condition of the Hankow-Canton railroad, whose affairs he administers, and even with having enriched himself out of the revenues of the road.

His accuser is Huang Chang Nien, a censor whose duties are to keep a sharp watch on all officials, and information reached Washington today that Huang Chang Nien has filed a long memorial with the empress dowager, which has been referred to Wu for an answer. Should the charges be sustained, he may be disgraced or receive an order to swallow gold leaf, and that would mean death.

From what is known of the affair here, it is believed the charges against Wu are the direct result of his efforts to introduce western progress into the empire. The censors, for the most part, are trying to hold China back, and they resent activity by reformers.

JIM WARDNER PASSES AWAY

Eccentric Prospector and Promoter Dies at El Paso, Tex.

Milwaukee, March 30.—James F. Wardner, known the world over as Jim Wardner, mining prospector, promoter of all manner of gigantic enterprises for money-making, maker and loser of fortunes and an eccentric genius, is dead at El Paso, Tex. News of his death came as a complete surprise to Milwaukee relatives.

Wardner's life was spent in journeying over the American continent, his wanderings taking him into the diamond fields of South Africa. He was connected with large mining deals from the Klondike to the isthmus of Panama, had lost at least four fortunes, and at the time of his death was the owner of a quicksilver mine in Mexico. He served during the Civil war, being appointed hospital steward of the Thirty-ninth Wisconsin regiment by Surgeon General E. B. Wolcott.

He engaged in hog raising in California, and gold mining in Arizona. He returned to Milwaukee with $4,000 and the intention of settling down to some quiet business, but he lost the $4,000 in speculation.

Among his notorious celebrated schemes in which his ingenuity displayed itself was "The National Candy Bank," operated in St. Louis, and "The Consolidated Black Cat Company, limited," with its ranch for raising black cats in Washington. The latter part of his eventual life was spent in prospecting.

The Czar's Wealth.

The czar of Russia is unquestionably the richest monarch in Europe, if not in the world. His annual income has been estimated at $12,000,000. The wealth of the average person, however, is largely a matter of health. If he is strong and healthy his earning capacity is much greater than the less fortunate person who is handicapped by some sickness. Sickly people, however, need not remain so for in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they will surely find health and strength. For building up run-down systems, correcting the liver and curing heartburn, nausea, bloating, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, liver and kidney ills, general debility, spring fever, chills, colds or la grippe the Bitters is unequaled. Try a bottle and test it for your own satisfaction. Don't accept a substitute if you value your health.

FAMILY WAS STARVING

But Amazon and Pets Were Well Fed.

Bangor, Maine, March 29.—The Cliff Lodge club house is located on the shore of Himes pond. The club went out of existence two years ago. Last September the house was leased to Elsie Davis, who for years lived with one Ike Chase, a cripple. The woman is an amazon, weighing 225 pounds, while the man weighs close to 175.

The woman applied to a man for a loan, and he deemed it prudent to go to the place and investigate. Having heard that the family was in a famished condition, he took some bread along. He found the woman, Elsie Davis, the cripple, Chase, and a little girl. The cripple and the child appeared to be starving while Elsie seemed to have all the food she required. There were also three cats and a dog.

Th visitor placed the food on the table and Chase clutched a loaf of bread and began gnawing at it. The child also rushed to the table and caught up a loaf and started to bite into it. Before she could set her teeth into it the animals made a rush at her. One cat flew into her face and set its teeth into the loaf and tried to drag it away.

The visitor then went upstairs and on a bunk-like bed he found an emaciated old woman, Mrs. Catherine Davis. She told him she was ill, cold and starving. He brought her food, but it came too late to save her life. He next discovered in a dark corner of the room a woman 25 years of age, a living skeleton, who said, in a broken voice, that she had not eaten for eight days. It was learned that this woman had been kept in seclusion by Elsie Davis.

The Davis woman has fled.

ECCENTRIC MAN.

Stebbins Had a Mania For Making Wills.

Denver, Col., March 29.—From the testimony of Charles Wells of White Plains, N. Y., it would appear that the late Charles M. Stebbins had a weakness for wills, and that the one now being offered for probate, in which he cuts off his three children with a few hundred dollars and leaves a fortune to found an orphan asylum for boys, was but one of many.

"He had shown me lots of them," said Mr. Wells on the stand. "He had a pile of old wills in one of his rooms in the White Plains home, and would point to them in a joking way and remark that it was time he made another. He had shown me at least five before the present will. One of them began in this way: 'I, Charles M. Stebbins, do, swear that I am not any crazier now than I was sixteen years ago, when I made my last will and testament, etc.' "

As old schoolmates in Geneva, N. Y., Stebbins and Wells were close friends. According to Mr. Wells, Stebbins was a model youth. "He regarded fast living with repugnance and almost horror," said Mr. Wells, "so it seems to me he must have been insane during the last years of his life, when his conduct became notorious."

Alonzo J. Hart of Hartsdale, N. Y., a close friend of Mr. Stebbins, told many stories of the latter's fondness for ladies after he had reached the age of 70 years. "Whenever he walked out the shop girls would all eye us and wink at us, and Stebbins would answer back with great spirit," said the witness.

"What sort of women were they?" asked Gerald Hughes.

"Dead game sports, I should say."

Mr. Hart told of conversations he had with Mr. Stebbins on the subject of women. "He was never content unless we would talk of them," said the witness. "At one time we were sitting in Child's restaurant, New York, and the subject turned to shop girls. He asked me what I knew about the girls in the restaurant, the girls in Seigel-Cooper's, McCreary's and the other big department stores."

Although Mr. Hart was unable to enlighten his friend concerning the girls, he soon found that, like "that haughty, gallant, gay Lothario," Mr. Stebbins needed no enlightenment. He was 73 at this time.

SAYS THERE IS NO TROUBLE AT HAYTI

Washington, March 30.—Mr. Leger, the Haytien minister, has received a cablegram from the president of Hayti contradicting the cablegram of Minister Powell received yesterday stating that serious trouble is impending in Hayti, and that it is doubtful whether the authorities can maintain peace and order on March 31 and April 1. According to Minister Leger's advices, the country is quiet and there is no fear of an uprising, the law concerning the Syrians is being executed peacefully and the government can maintain order.

SKY BRIGHT WITH PROMISE.

Robins and bluebirds and twittering sparrows are not the only harbingers of spring. Navigation is about to open. The ice is disappearing from bay and harbor, and already the shippers are announcing first sailings. And the early opening of navigation is always one of the most welcome spring signs in Duluth. For the prosperity of many of its inhabitants depend upon lake shipping and harbor work. An early opening is of particular importance this season because there is so much work waiting to be done.

Last year there was no hurry to get to work. The iron business was dull. The market was overstocked with ore. The masters and pilots struck for higher wages, probably because it was a time when the managers of ore carriers would rather have their boats tied up than to have them running. At any rate, there was little shipping and the opening of navigation was a comparatively unimportant matter.

This year there is a great difference. There is an enormous demand for iron and steel products. The ore supply at furnaces are well cleaned up. Iron mines are working at full capacity. There will be larger shipments of ore than ever before. The ore is already coming to the docks in large quantities and will begin moving down the lakes within a few days.

The iron industry is the nation's business barometer. The mercury in the glass is high. Wages are being advanced in many quarters. Everybody is busy and will be busy all the year, barring an unforeseen and improbable calamity. The loggers have had a prosperous winter, and the sawmill supply will be ample to keep all the mills running at full capacity. All other lines of industry are bound to be similarly affected.

All this means a particularly prosperous season for Duluth. It means activity for both wholesale and retail merchants. It means growth and expansion in the building line. It means the establishment of new factories and the building of many new homes. It means more rapid development of the agricultural lands contiguous to the city, for it presages prosperity for the farmer as well as the city workers.

Therefore all Duluth will hail the early spring with glad acclaim, for there is much to be done that can only be accomplished during the summer season. A new trunk line railroad will enter the city the present year. The St. Louis river water power will be developed. New industries of great magnitude are about to be established and more will soon follow as the result of development of this power. This and the railroad building will furnish employment for an army of laborers and this army will be fed and clothed from Duluth storehouses.

Honestly, now, did you ever see a spring opening in Duluth that gave brighter prospects of continued prosperity? The skies that meet the horizon at an equal distance all around the Zenith City of the Unsalted Seas are full of promise. And the early opening of navigation heightens the beauty of the picture.

CURE FOR WIFE-BEATING.

"If the woman is unfortunate enough to marry a brute who considers it a recreation and pastime to misuse her, she has a right, if assaulted, to use such force as is necessary to protect herself, even to the point of killing her assailant."

These words were used by Judge Kersten of St. Louis in discharging Mrs. Jessie Hopkins, who was placed on trial for the murder of her husband. It was shown that the dead man was attempting to beat her and she used a revolver in defending herself.

The judge was right. His decision upholds the right of either woman or man to defend herself or himself from assault even to the extent of taking life.

No woman needs to be whipped by a brute of a husband more than once unless she wants to be, in other words, unless she consents to it. For there are two courses open to her to prevent it. Either she can leave him or she can do as this St. Louis woman did. And she is fully justified in doing one or the other.

The whipping post is unnecessary as a cure for wife-beating. Wives have the effective cure in their own hands when they desire to use it.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

There is some satisfaction in the apparent fact that women who are compelled to toil to support themselves are beginning to realize the injustice imposed upon them by the woman who enters the industrial field simply with the idea of earning enough money to buy herself clothes, candy and matinee tickets, while some male relative furnishes the bulk of the means necessary for her support.

"There are three classes of women who work outside of the home," said Mrs. Mary O'Sullivan of New York to the Women's Trade-Union league, "women who have to support themselves, women with responsibilities and women who work for 'pin-money.'"

Against the latter class she brings this just indictment: "They can and do offer their labor cheaper than the self-supporting women and women with responsibilities, and here is where self-supporting organization should step in and say stop. Many of these married women are women who have married with the intention of not having children; they are not only an economic disgrace, but an immoral influence whose very presence and words poison the air of a workroom."

Parents who permit their daughters to work for starvation wages in order that they may simply earn enough money to deck themselves with finery are doing a great injustice to the woman who is compelled to support herself entirely by toil. They are assisting in taking the bread out of the months of the latter, and they are helping to reduce the wages of all the toilers, both men and women.

Under present conditions, when so much of the world's work formerly done in the home by women is now done outside by men, it is necessary that many women shall find outside employment, but in fairness to their sisters and in justice to themselves, they ought to insist on sufficient wages, after a proper period of apprenticeship, that will support them without assistance from outside sources.

TO GET MEN ON LAND.

How to bring landless man and manless land together is the problem that Rider Haggard, the English writer of wierd tales, is now studying in this country.

He is to inquire into the Salvation Army's agricultural colonies with a view to applying the scheme in South Africa for the benefit of the growing army of destitute unemployed to Great Britain. The expenses of the visit are paid by the Cecil Rhodes estate, as the colonization of South Africa by the worthy poor of the United Kingdom who find themselves condemned to idleness and misery through no fault of their own, was one of the "empire builder's" pet schemes.

It seems that in the opinion of Mr. Haggard and the Britsh colonial office, the American Salvation Army has practically demonstrated the possibility of the kind of colonization needed in England. The army has established during the last six years successful colones in California, Colorado and Ohio. About $300,000 have been expended in the purchase and colonizbation of 3,000 acres of land, upon which 450 men, women and children have been settled. Each family is self-supporting; the small two-acre irrigated farms are now worth from $2,000 to $5,000 each. On one colony the families averaged an income of $300 each last year. A bill providing for colonization on a large scale by the United States government itself is before congress, having been introduced by the late Senator Hoar.

A much larger demonstration than that made by the Salvation Army even is that of the New Zealand government, which passed in 1894 "the advances to settlers' act," with a view to aiding bona fide settlers to make homes upon the land. At the end of eight years the official report shows that $18,000,000 have been advanced on securities valued at more than $40,000,000. There have been no losses. The sinking fund amounts to $600,000, and there is already a surplus of no less than $340,000.

It is noteworthy that whereas the actual loans in New Zealand amount to $18,000,000, additional loans amounting to $7,000,000 were offered by the government, but declined, the inference being that the settlers were able to get still better terms from private sources when they could show the capitalist what the government was prepared to do.

It is some such plan as this that The Herald has suggested as a probable solution of the problem of settling up the untilled acreage around Duluth. The same policy is jursued by the Mormon church in settling the lands of the West. The church helps each new settler to clear a part of his land, builds him a house, furnishes him tools to work with and some stock. The value of this he pays back as he can.

If some such organization could be effected among the business men of Duluth with sufficient capital at its back to furnish such assistance to beginners on farms there is little doubt that the agricultural territory tributary to this city could be rapidly settled and brought under cultivation.

It is unlikely that the United States government will very soon begin the practice of assisting new settlers in this way, but it would seem to be quite feasible for private enterprise to undertake it. The results, if the plan should be adoped here, would undoubtedly be of far greater benefit to the city than the payment of bonuses for the establishment of manufacturing industries.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

Russia is now willing to have peace if she can dictate the terms. That was her contention before the war commenced, and it seems rather ridiculous at this time.

The son of President Schurman of Cornell is working as a blacksmith's helper at 75 cents per day because his father will not permit him to return home until he promises to resume his college studies and keep up with his class. At that he may now be gleaning knowledge that will be of better service to him in after life than any he could obtain at Cornell. It all depends. Many a boy has succeeded in college who never succeeded afterwards.

They are always doing something in New York to amplify the already rich English language. The other day a police magistrate called a boy who had bought a $50 dinner and failed to pay for it "a full-jeweled, ball-bearing cad." On the same day an unfortunate Bowery denizen was locked up for making irregular tracks toward a lodging house, and the prosecutor gravely assured the magistrate that the man was picked up by the policeman because he had an "inquiangular walk." On this formidable charge the magistrate felt constrained to make an assessment against the culprit of $2. It would seem as though the prosecutor's effort to enrich the vernacular was worthy of a greater recompense.

Hotel Gossip.

"We have more trouble with counterfeiters in the cities of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth than in all the rest of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin, combined," said Capt. J. W. Lawrence, a secret service man in the employ of the treasury department, at the St. Louis. He arrived in Duluth last evening on his way to Buhl, where two men are under arrest charged with having passed or attempted to pass counterfeit $5 bills.

"It should not be inferred from this that there is a lot of counterfeiting or the passing of counterfeits going on in this part of the country, for there is not, and what offenders there are we have thus far been pretty successful in running to earth, with the assistance of the police departments. In this connection it might not be amiss for me to say that in my opinion Duluth's chief of police, Mr. Troyer, is one of the best in the country. There are few, even in the larger cities of the United States, who compare with him for efficiency and thoroughness of work, and I believe he is surpassed by none. In my work I come in contact with police departments all over the country, and have an excellent opportunity of knowing how they work, and of the fitness of the men at the head of them, from personal observation. Chief Troyer knows his business and attends to it. He knows what to do, how to do it and when to do it.

"I am not acquainted with all the particulars of this Buhl affair, but have ordered the men held by the police until my arrival there. From the description of the bills they have passed I would think they were a copy of the old bank of New Brunswick notes, if it were not for the fact that they were fives instead of tens. We have had a good deal of trouble in the past, both in this vicinity and elsewhere, with men trying to pass the $10 New Brunswick imitation bills. The New Brunswick was a New Jersey state bank, which was put out of business with the other state banks in the early sixties. Some one appears to have gotten hold of the original New Brunswick plates, with the result that exact counterparts of the old notes have been turned out in large numbers. Owing to their close resemblance to some of the Canadian bills they are not difficult to pass in towns in the northern part of the United States."

"I do not believe that any Southern Minnesota jury will ever agree upon a verdict of guilty in the trial of Dr. Koch, charged with the murder of Dr. Gebhardt, at New Ulm," said A. C. Hopkins of Mankato at the McKay. "The second trial of Koch will open April 19, I understand, at Mankato. The trial will either result in a disagreement or an acquittal, according to the general belief. Dr. Koch was well known in and about Mankato, and he has several relatives living there at the present time, who are numbered among the best citizens of the town. Most of the people in that section of the state appear to be of the opinion that the young man is innocent, and that somewhere there has been a mistake. He was always a person of excellent standing and was well liked by a large circle of friends.

"Mankato citizens are not so much interested in the murder trial now as they are in the coming Fourth of July celebration, which will this year eclipse all previous efforts in that line. The celebration will last for three days, opening on July 3 and continuing through to the evening of July 5, and there will be something doing all the time. A very large amount of money will be expended to guarantee the success of the affair, and thousands of people will be in attendance from the surrounding country. Horse racing will be a feature, for Mankato has one of the finest tracks in the state, and the famous Dan Patch will be one of the attractions."

"There was nothing unreasonable or wrong about that wife-beating bill, and it should have been made a law," said Judge Vivian Prince, who occupies the bench in the Eveleth municipal court, at the St. Louis. "Instead of a step backward, as some people appear to think it would have been, the passage of the bill would have been a step in advance, and a sign of higher civilization. I have no words to express my contempt of a man who will strike a woman, and no punishment can be too severe for such offenders. It is not enough to give them a mere jail sentence.

"Many of this class of men are not brought before me, however. The working classes on the range are composed largely of Austrians, Finns and Italians. The husbands and wives seem to get along very well together. Of the three I think the Austrians make the best citizens. It is because of the several nationalities working in the mines, principally, that all efforts towards organizing a miners' union on the range have thus far met with failure. An then there are different classes in the different nationalities, the Austrians, for example, the members of which do not get along well together. Under conditions as they exist on the ranges today a successful organization of miners is a practical impossibility. The internal strife that would arise would probably prove a death blow to the union.

"We do not look for any labor troubles among the miners this season. There will be plenty and the chances are that wages will be good because of this fact. Indications are that everything will run smoothly in range labor circles."

"The logging operations of the Pigeon River Lumber company, which has its headquarters at Port Arthur, were quite extensive during the past winter," said M. T. O'Connell, manager of the company, at the St. Louis. "Conditions for work in the woods were very favorable. We banked 40,000,000 feet of timber as compared with 35,000,000 feet the preceding season. Our sawmill at Port Arthur is now running night and day, turning out 250,000 feet every twenty-four hours.

"The coming season will be a busy one for Port Arthur and the Canadian head of the lakes generally. There is a great deal of heavy construction work going on there and more is in prospect. That section of the Dominion will continue to increase in importance as a grain shipping point. It is hoped that in time the iron industry will be established there on a large scale. It is now an assured fact that the Atikokan Iron company will build a blast furnace at Port Arthur."

HOW TO SMASH A TRUST.

Washington Post: The annual report of the American Tobacco trust has started the reformers with a new plan for smashing an octopus, and incidentally bringing joy and wealth into the nation's happy homes. The report shows that the organization, which controls the tobacco supply of the nation, made a net profit last year of $22,394,086, and also has a surplus fund of some $30,000,000, a total of net earnings and undivided profits of about $50,000,000. Now, these folks, who are going to regulate things right away, are sending out circulars urging the American people to quit smoking and chewing tobacco at once, and thus put the tobacco trust out of business. They have statistics showing that the nation spends about $200,000,000 annually for tobacco in its various forms, and they show that if this money were used in different ways it would endow colleges, build hospitals and libraries, found homes for the aged and infirm, send the poor children to the country, and work wonders in solving some of the economic problems that now puzzle students and lawmakers. Then, as a sop to the sentiment that seems to be pervading the country, it is argued that if we all quit smoking right off, we will put a gigantic trust out of business before a grand jury could be called to investigate it.

That all sounds very fine, but we are not convinced that it would work. It is too much like some other very pretty theories that have been advanced by these folks who are always trying to set the world into the proper groove. The man who tells you, and proves it by figures, that the money you spend for cigars would, if placed at compound interest, pay for a brown stone front in few years, usually lives at a boardinghouse and gets his laundry only the day after pay day. Not that he is wrong at all, either in his mathematics or in his argument against the use of the weed, both on economic and hygienic grounds, but the fact remains that wooers of my Lady Nicotine find a solace and a joy from which they are unwilling to be divorced. The gentle cigar and the amiable pipe breed peace and amiability among many men who, deprived of these pleasures, are promptly transferred to the crank class. The wise solicitor for endowments for those colleges and hospitals will tell you that he scores his richest successes when he can find a millionaire who is burning his troubles and his cares in the fragrant incense of a good after-dinner cigar. Without that mellowing influence, the solicitor would probably be called a beggar, dismissed unceremoniously dismissed. Until the American nerve finds a new form of solace, we suspect that the duty of putting the tobacco trust out of business will have to be left to the department of justice rather than to the American smokers.

Compost and Politics.

New York Sun: The Hon. Andrew P. Rives of Springvale, Ga., got this letter:

"Dear Mr. Rives: Do you think it advisable for J. Pope Brown to run for governor of Georgia next time? Please answer. Yours truly,

"W. D. HAMMACK."

The answer is to be read in the Macon Telegraph:

"My Dear William: I am not interested in politics this year. Do you think 300 pounds of compost put under cotton at planting time, and 300 pounds of complete guano at laying by time, will make a bale to the acre? Please answer. Yours,

"A. P. RIVES."

A symbolical and representative letter. The country is full of citizens who are not interested in politics this year; and to them the proper elements of a compost or the best flies for trout are a matter more momentous than even Jeffersonian dinners or Joe Babcock of the Republican national committee.

Make money and don't borrow trouble.

One Definition of Socialism.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Once, as the story goes, two Irishmen were engaged in a discussion, when Pat asked Mike what Socialism was.

"Well, socialism is sort of an equal division of property,' declared Mike. 'What's mine is yours and what's yours is mine. That's the idea.'

"'If you had $2,000,000,' asked Pat, 'would you give me one million?'

"'I would that,' said Mike. 'That's according to my principles.'

"'If you had two houses would you give me one of them?' was Pat's next question. Mike insisted that he would.

"'And if you had two fine horses would you give me one?'

"Mike declared that he would follow his principles.

"'And if you had two goats would you give me one of them?' finally asked Pat.

"'I would not. I have them,' declared the socialistic disciple."

And there is not in the books, be it remembered in these days when so many men are pretending to be Socialists, a better definition of socialism than that.

What They All Wish.

On Monday a man met a youth,
And while mopping his forehead forsooth,
He remarked, "In mid-summer,
We'd call this a hummer.
I wish I were back in Duluth."
—Minneapolis Tribune.

Recreation for Royalty.

Boston Herald: Now that Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria has traveled in a French locomotive attired as a grimy mechanic, royalty might follow up the fad. There are the pick and shovel, for instance, which King Edward might swing in some trench on a hot summer's day; Queen Alexandra could act as a stenographer for a cranky boss, and Kaiser Wilhelm could shout "Next!" in a barber shop where they give the upward twist to the mustache.

COFFEE TOPERS.

Des Moines News: We are far in the lead as a nation of coffee drinkers. About a billion pounds of the berry were consumed in the United States last year. We are as good a market for it as all the other countries of the globe combined. Our per capita consumption last year was 13.61 pounds.

Some unthinking persons have accepted these portentious figures as evidence that we are getting further and further away from alcoholic drinks as a beverage.

But this is an error. More coffee drinking is no indication of less alcoholic drinking. Coffee does not displace alcohol any more than it displaces tobacco.

The truth is that the three increase together. The more coffee-drinking, the more tobacco-using, and the more of both, the more drinking of alcohol. Statistics leave no doubt of this.

Figures available for 1902, the latest calendar year showing coffee consumed in the countries of the world, place Germany next to this country. The kaiser's beer-loving subjects used almost 409,000,000 pounds; but that was, however, less than half the quantity that the coffee-drinkers of the United States consumed.

In 1830 the consumption of coffee in the United States was less than three pounds per capita. It has grown steadily year by year until it is more than four times that. We take and use half the coffee exported by the coffee growing countries.

Figures furnished by the bureau of statistics at Washington show that our coffee bill last year was $81,000,000.

It is rather a magnificent amount of money to send abroad for a single article of food, which is not food at all, and which, according to most medical authorities, we could better do without.

SEEDLESS APPLE'S ORIGIN.

Detroit Tribune: The discovery has been made that the seedless apple alleged to have been produced for the first time in the world's history, by a Colorado horticulturist named Spencer, and in which Michigan apple growers have taken deep interest, is really nothing new and was written of in America as early as 1628. An agricultural expert has been found who pretends to trace the seedless apple as far back as 20,000 years. As this antedates history and tradition and by 14,000 years the world itself, (according to popular acceptation), it would be interesting to learn upon what reasoning the 20,000-year hypothesis is based. It is known, however, that the germs of shrubs, grasses, weeds and even fruit trees may lie in the ground for uncounted ages and still under favoring conditions spring into life and produce each after its kind. Well-diggers in the town of Penobscot, in Maine, forty miles from the sea, came, at a depth of twenty feet, upon a stratum of white sand which excited their curiosity and it was piled by itself. But when the work was finished and the ground leveled it became necessary to scatter the pile of white sand. A year or two thereafter, some small trees were found to have sprouted in it and being protected were brought into bearing and produced what is known as the beach, or sea shore plum. A foot of earth would not accumulate in less than 1,000 years even in the most slovenly neighborhood. If the beach plum will sprout after 20,000 years, why not the seedless apple?

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Vanity is what other people think of what you think about yourself.

What a girl likes about a big, strong man is the way she can twist him around her little finger.

It's a terrible temptation to a woman to want to make herself believe that men are pursuing her.

Half the time a girl marries a man because she can't bear to think how bad he will feel if she doesn't.

A woman's clothes are nine-tenths of the joy she has in life and ninety-nine one-hundredths of the sorrows of the man who pays for them.

A Trick of Imagination.

Philadelphia Bulletin: There's a little mental-science trick that will teach imaginative persons to acquire a perfect, graceful poise. One says "imaginative" with reason, for you have to have an imagination to do it. You must imagine that you bear a scintillating star on your breast and a basket of eggs on your head.

The first fancy will unconsciously influence you to carry your shoulders like a military man bent on exhibiting his gold buttons. The second will teach you to sink into a chair gently and gracefully, instead of bunching into it. Also, it will train you to climb stairs erect. You can't twist, or bend over, as women usually do in going upstairs, if you have a basket of eggs on your head—even an imaginary one—can you?

So put on the flashing gold star, which is worn to be seen, and set the basket of eggs on your head, and see what the combined fancy will do for your carriage.

The Time Will Come.

Progeny of One Pound of Potatoes.

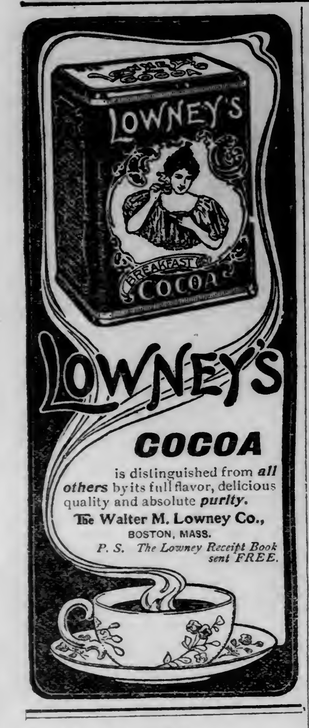

Kansas City Journal: Campbell Russell, the big cattleman from Hereford, has just finished planting twenty-five acres of potatoes, and says if they do as well as his small garden patch has done in recent years he will have potatoes for the entire Creek nation next year. Mr. Russell says: "Ten years ago I received through the United States mail one pound of seed potatoes, and haven't bought a potato since. Year by year I planted one acre in potatoes for my home use, and the following spring would have wagon-loads of them for sale. Last year I planted my regulation acre and gathered in 360 bushels of potatoes. After using them all winter I sold what remained at a net profit of $300. So you see a one-acre farm is not so bad, and especially when I raised twenty crops in ten years."

Past Logging Season Pronounced Unsatisfacory By Michigan Men.

Calumet.—Woods work in the upper peninsula is ended, so far as the principal operators are concerned, the rains of the last few days putting an end to operations. There are still a few small jobbers getting out logs, but the greater part of their cut is in and work consists mainly of hauling. The season has been an active, but on the whole unsatisfactory one for Michigan logging, the deep snows and unsettled weather making the work expensive. As many if not more men have been employed than in previous seasons. The cut of pine was not so large, but more cedar, spruce, hemlock and hardwoods have been put in, so that the winter's crop in the aggregate probably exceeded last year's total.

Pia Lombardini, the young Italian girl of Hancock, who was shot at Tri-Mountain mine by Egosti Sabatini, died at St. Joseph's hospital. Sabatini was apprehended in Ontonagan county.

Newberry—Miss Sara Newmark of Newberry is suffering from a case of blood poisoning. She had the misfortune to step on a rusty nail which penetrated her foot.

Dollarville—The sawmill at Dollarville has shut down temporarily on account of lack of logs. It is expected that it will be the middle of April before it will be possible to resume rail shipments of logs, meanwhile some necessary repairs to the machinery will be made.

Gladstone—Accused of being the thugs who brutally assaulted and robbed Henry Wirth of $20 last last week, three young men—Harry Snow, Peter Gallagher and Joseph Young—have been taken into custody. According to the police, Young, who was captured first, has confessed the crime. He implicated his alleged companions in the hold-up and the latter were rounded up at Gladstone.

Escanaba — After being cared for through a period of illness at the Delta county poor farm James Boyle, 17 years of age, repaid the authorities by stealing a horse and cutter from that institution and making his escape. The horse was found nearly dead from exhaustion at Schaffer, where Boyle was also apprehended. He was returned to Escanaba, and was arraigned on the charge of horse stealing, being bound over to circuit court for trial. Boyle offers no excuse for his conduct, and it is likely that he will be given the full penalty provided for the crime.

DEAD BODY IN LAKE.

Anoka, Minn., March 30.—A dead body has been found in the ice in Baldwin lake, in Blaine, and identified by the clothes worn as that of Clarence Ross, who came to Anoka last fall from Iowa. He went duck shooting, and, as he did not return, a careful search was made lest he had drowned. The searching party concluded he had left the country. He was 25 and well spoken of.

The letter prepared by the school gardens' committee of the Women's council to the principals of the different schools of the city, was read at a meeting of the latter yesterday afternoon and there is reason to believe that the schools will take up the idea with enthusiasm. The letter which met with the approval of Superintendent Denfeld was as follows:

The Women's council of Duluth would like to secure the co-operation of the superintendent and principals of the public schools in establishing "school gardens" for the cultivation of flowers and vegetables, in order to give the boys employment during vacation and to make the city more attractive.

With the consent of the superintendent, the principals are asked to submit this plan to the boys of the school, the principal and teachers to determine the age and character of the boys who might join this group of "junior gardeners."

When the group is completed the principals is asked to name a committee of three from the group, one of whom shall act a chairman of the committee.

The principal is then asked to enlist the boys in finding suitable lots located near the school building.

When lots are secured, the committee is asked to inquire if there is any one in the neighborhood who would assist in plowing or breaking up the land.

The lot or lots will depend upon the number of junior gardeners belonging ta each group in a school. The services of an experienced gardener will be secured who will devote his entire time to the care of the school gardens, teaching the boys to prepare the ground and giving them practical instruction in gardening.

The head gardener will visit all school gardens at stated times during the season.

All products will belong to the junior gardeners, each boy having his own garden to care for throughout the season.

Each boy will be furnished with seeds, fertilizer, and the necessary tools, the care and preservation for which the committee will be responsible.

A committee will be appointed to visit each garden at the end of the season and report on the comparative merits of the junior gardens.

The committee is desirous of obtaining an early reply.

TO HONOR STORY WRITER.

State Educator Suggests Celebration of Anderson's Anniversary.

In a communication to S. W. Gilpin, county superintendent of schools, J. W. Olsen, state superintendent of schools, suggests the idea of holding a celebration on the anniversary of the birthday of Hans Christian Anderson, the gifted story writer for children, as fitting and appropriate.

The date of the anniversary is April 2 and Supt. Olsen says that it should be a day memorable to childhood the world over. In his letter Mr. Olsen says:

"Born in the little Danish town of Odense in 1805, the son of a gifted but poor shoemaker, this child of Odense, with homely face and ungainly figure, but with beautiful soul, won his way against the odds of poverty and criticism to recognition that first made education possible and later made poets and princes his friends. Of the wideness of his fame, it may be sufficient to say, that on his seventieth birthday he was presented with a volume containing one of his tales in fifteen languages; and to the sweetness of his spirit these words from his autobiography testify: 'My life is a lovely story, happy and full of incident. * * * The history of my life will say to the world what it says to me. There is a loving God who directs all things for the best.'

"As it would seem but fitting that children in our schools should have the opportunity to do honor to the memory of this great and good man, so peculiarly their friend, I recommend that (since April 2, this year, falls on Sunday) a part of either Friday, March 31, or Monday, April 3, be devoted to such exercises as may best celebrate his natal day and express their appreciation of his generous, loving service to the world as a man and as a writer."

SHOPPING IN PAIRS.

Two Women Are Despair of Salespeople.

Shopping in pairs is the delight of the two who sally forth together and the bete noire of the saleswoman, who strives to please two fancies and often offends both. It has become such a fad this dual search either for bargains or staples, that few women nowadays go it alone, but it makes the life of the saleswoman doubly hard, for when dealing with two, pleasing the diverse tastes is almost an impossibility. It is not so hard when mother and daughter or sisters are shopping together, but when two girl chums are in company—especially if they be blonde and brunette—there comes a real test of patience. "If I have to wait on two persons," said a woman behind the counter of a big store, "I would prefer a man and wife. A man usually makes up his mind quickly, and as he most always is in a hurry, he urges his wife not to waste time and she gets so nervous that she takes the first or second thing in the line she wants, without hunting out everything we have in stock. Unfortunately, however, men don't want to go shopping and their wives don't want them."

GIFTS OF SILVER.

Style of Engraving Limited to Several Designs.

Gifts of silver for the coming spring weddings will show little novelty in the manner of marking, says an exchange.

While no special rule obtains as to the way in which initials and monograms must be engraved, good taste has decreed that the choice should be limited to several approved designs. The cipher or script monogram is the best liked for general marking.

Of course, in the case of bridal silver there is never a departure from the custom of marking with the bride's initials.

These may be engraved separately or combined in a cipher. The latter is preferable. Innovations in the way of using a single initial occur only rarely. For instance, a chest of wedding silver which was made after an old English design has the single initial in old English text. That form of letter cannot be successfully combined in monogram and its use therefore proscribes other than the single initial.

For silver pieces, notably toilet pieces in Louis XVI. patterns, a French or ornamental script monogram is appropriate. Many of these designs are elaborate and expensive, especially those which are intended for heavy salvers or trophies. Certain monograms of this kind cost $20 to $30 to engrave.

The better class silversmiths do not charge for engraving on silver bought in their shops, unless some more than usually ornamental design is selected. One of the new patterns is the ribbon monogram—three letters strung together lengthwise. It is a pretty idea for long, narrow spaces on silver.

Wasteful Ways of Savings.

Doing without your luncheon. Even if only for once; this will injure your health.

Walking home after a day's shopping. You can get more money, but you cannot get a new constitution after yours has been undermined.

Sewing in the twilight. Gas is cheaper than the oculist's bills.

Using cheap soap. It will cost you something in cold creams and suffering to remedy the harm it does.

Going about in thin shoes. Leather is cheaper than quinine and porous plasters; also than a case of pneumonia.

Trying to do the work of the upholsterer and the carpet layers. You may never feel like doing any work again.

Overworking. Nobody will thank you. You will be so cross that the very people for whom you are saving the money will hate you and your husband will wish he had married a spendthrift.

A CHRONICLE OF WOGAN

By J. C. Plummer.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Mrs. Coyne carefully dusted the chair with her apron before she would allow Mr. Pasterfield to sit upon it, arthough she knew it was immaculate as to dust. It was a concescension for the rich Mr. Pasterfield, the London banker, to visit his native village. He had left it a poor boy, Mrs. Dumly remembered, and often told of the remembrances how she had given Joey Pasterfield with an aperture in the seat of his breeches, and she would say, with a blush, for Wogan was decorous in its speech, that the flesh was apparent through the aperture. There were no holes in the trousers of Mr. Pasterfield now. In a surprisingly short time he had become rich and Wogan had cause of his advancement with pride as a gardener might boast of an exotic from his conservatory. Mr. Pasterfield was not only complaisant of this visit, he was confidential. He told of his many great ventures and laid especial stress on a plan now in embryo, which would produce many times the investment in a few months. It was an honor for Wogan to plead with Mr. Pasterfield to allow it to invest its savings in this enterprise. It was almost the same as having it in Wogan in the hands of one of Wogan's favored sons.

"Indeed, Mr. Pasterfield," said Mrs. Coyne, "I'm only too glad to make a penny more than that hundred pun I'm holding back to keep me from the work'us some day."

"It's only because I've a tender place in my heart for the old village that I'll let you people in this thing," said Mr. Pasterfield. "There are people in London who would give both their ears to know what I have told you."

Mrs. Coyne's money, about a hundred pounds, was in bank at the neighboring large town, but she declared that she would draw it out the next day and send it to Mr. Pasterfield for investment.

When Mr. Pasterfield departed for London that evening he carried with him much of the savings of Wogan and a promise that he would receive much of what remained.

The next day Mrs. Coyne drew out her money and returned to Wogan. Then arose the question of sending it to Mr. Pasterfield in London. True, there was the mail and express companies, but Mrs. Coyne would have none of them. Staggs should take it. Staggs was a dealer in butter and eggs. He purchased these articles from around Wogan and every Wednesday took them to London and sold them. He had been in the line for years and was trusted by all Wogan. Staggs would call that day and she would commission him to deliver her money to Mr. Pasterfield. When he arrived in the old two-wheeled conveyance with which he made his collections of produce, he was in trouble. A bolt had been lost from his vehicle, and it threatened collapse. "Your husband having been a harness maker," said Staggs to Mrs. Coyne, "maybe you 'ave some bolts that 'd fit my wagon." Mrs. Coyne hastily brought out several small canvass bags of bolts used by the late Mr. Coyne, and from them Mr. Staggs selected the requisite one. He would be only too glad to oblige Mrs. Coyne, and when she came down the stairs with the little canvass bag containing a hundred sovereigns he stowed the bag away in his capacious pocket, assuring Mrs. Coyne that he would surely deliver the money to Mr. Pasterfield. When Saturday arrived Mrs. Coyne was rather surprised that she had no acknowledgement from Pasterfield & Co. of her money. Her surprise was accentuated by hearing that others who had sent their money at the same time had received their acknowledgments. At the suggestion of the village apothecary, she wrote to the house, asking them why they did not acknowledge her deposit. Sunday morning a new phase was added to her uneasiness. Staggs had not returned from London. For years he had returned Friday, and here was Sunday and no word of him. Monday came a letter from Pasterfield & Co., saying they had received no money from her and suggesting that she send it at once if she wished to participate in the profit of the investment.

"Then," said Mrs. Coyne, in bewilderment, "where is Staggs and where is my money?"

It was an unanswered question when the middle of the week arrived and the Coyne residence was preghant with woe. Even the tea kettle sang sadly on the stove.

"I hope Staggs is not dishonest," moaned Mrs. Coyne, as she prepared for bed, "but I'm afraid he is and I'm afraid it's the work'us for me."

But she did not remain in bed, for a sharp rapping at the door aroused her. "It's me, mum," said a voice in answer to her timid demand from the window. "It's Staggs."

Mrs. Coyne hastily dressed herself and came downstairs. Staggs, being admitted, looked ruefully at Mrs. Coyne.

"Hi lost the money you gave me, mum," he said.

"Lost my money," repeated Mrs. Coyne. "Oh, Mr. Staggs, it's all I have."

"You don't feel any wuss over it nor I do," said Staggs, "hif it wasn't for that Hi'd be the 'apiest man in the kingdom. When Hi gets to Lunnon there was a letter at the place where Hi stop from my son. Hi thowt he was lost at sea, mum, and the letter says 'e was sick at Southampton. I was so 'appy, mum, that I drope my produce and goes straight to Southampton and sees 'im. Then I thowt of your money and the little bag was gone."

Mrs. Coyne moaned.

"Hif the 'orse and wagon I drive was mine," said Staggs, "Hi'd give 'em to you, but hey ain't."

"I'll have to give up my house and when I'm old I'll go to the work'us," cried Mrs. Coyne. "Oh, Staggs, I must go to the work'us."

Staggs went away with features contorted with remorse, and Mrs. Coyne retired to bed and cried until morning.

But the next morning brought with it doubts about Staggs' story. What more likely than that he wanted the money for his sick son and his tale seemed confused.

She looked out of the window and saw Peter Dumly going by. "I'll ask Peter's advice," exclaimed Mrs. Coyne, and she ran out of the door.

But Mr. Dumly did not give any advice. In response to her recital he stared at her like a man in a trance.

"Read that," said he, as huskily as if his throat was parched. He proffered her a London paper, and Mrs. Coyne, putting on her specsacles, read that the great house of Pasterfield was a sham, that it had failed, and that Mr. Pasterfield had fled, taking thousands of pounds.

"All gone," croaked Mr. Dumly. "My money's all gone," and he walked dazedly on.

"Then mine would have been lost anyhow," exclaimed Mrs. Coyne, brightening; "if Staggs took it for his sick son he can have it and I won't be any loser for I'd a lost it anyways."

But the unpleasant reality confronted her that she had lost her hundred pounds and that she could never replace them out of the meagre proceeds from the butter and eggs she sold. Old age or sickness must mean the workhouse.

She walked over the house drearily. She had began housekeeping in it and she had hoped to die in it. The workhouse she shuddered at the thought. The cupboard door stood open and there on the shelf were ranged the little canvass bags of bolts which the late Mr. Coyne had used in his harness business.

"Poor John," sighed Mrs. Coyne, "if you'd a lived it would have been different."

She pushed the little bags back so she could shut the door. One of them toppled over and a stream of golden sovereigns rolled on the floor. Mrs. Coyne screamed, then cried, then sat down on the floor.

"I gave Staggs the wrong bag," she gasped. "I gave him a bag of bolts."

When Staggs came as bidden it is said Mrs. Coyne kissed him on the cheek and rumor sayeth he wept copiously. Certain it is that his son regained his strength at Mrs. Coyne's cottage.

SKYSCRAPER FOR CAPITOL

Disregarding all architectural conventionalities in state house construction, the Badger state may decide to erect a modern office building in which to house its officers. For several days this plan of solution for the perplexing capitol question has been quietly discussed among members of the legislature and it is said that the project of erecting this class of a building will take form in a recommendation to the assembly and senate. Many legislators say the time has come to break away from the practice of spending millions of the people's hard-earned money in buildings where usefulness and durability is sacrificed for architectural beauty.

Advocates of the modern office structure say that a building that will house the state government can bo erected for $1,500,000. This building, if work is begun in the fall, can be completed within two years and be ready for the 1907 session of the legislature.

According to the plans of the men who wish to erect a steel structure, a foundation to permit a twenty-story building should be laid. While only twelve stories would be erected at the outset, it is pointed out that ample provision should be made for additional space, when needed. This can better be had by building additional stories than by adding wings.

If the capitol commission readvertises for plans for a capitol it is possible that the legislature will instruct the commission to provide for a building of the modern type.

ELOCUTIONARY CONTEST

At Frazee Won By Miss Mildred Phelps.

Frazee, Minn, March 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—After an exciting elocutionary contest for the W. C. T. U. silver medal in the Methodist Episcopal church, Mildred Phelps was awarded the silver medal. Tressie Brier and Goldie Botts were only two and one marks behind. The following competed: Misses Mildred Phelps, Goldie Botts, Tressie Brier, Bertha Thomas, Agnes Gorman and Bertie Collins.

At White Earth reservation about 12,000,000 feet of logs were sold at auction on Monday to the highest bidders. The Red River Logging company paid $12.55 for pine, and jack pine sold for $6, and spruce for $9, white and norway pine sold for $10, at the lakes, and dead and down pine for $9.

The infant son of John Briggs and the daughter of B. Brayson were run over by a farmer's team from Red Eye, on the streets Tuesday afternoon. The farmer was immediately taken before Justice Chadwick and he paid liberal compensation to the parents of the children.

CENTENARIAN CELEBRATES.

Janesville, Wis., March 30.—A Janesville centenarian, Mrs. Susan B. Crossman, celebrated her birthday yesterday. Although feeble from the weight of her 102 years, Mrs. Crossman looks well able to withstand the strain of several more years. Among her relatives who helped her celebrate her birthday were four great grandchildren. Mrs. Crossman took great delight in watching the pranks of her youngest descendants, and twitted some of those who are more than eighty, declaring they were mere children.

COST THE SAME

Park Pointers Can Have Sewers at Average Price.

Plans For System With New Ejectors, Are Prepared.

The cost of sewers on Park Point provided with the sewer ejectors, which have been invented by the members of the engineering department, will compare very favorably with the cost of sewers in other parts of the city without the ejectors, according to the plans and estimates which have been prepared by City Engineer McGilvray.

Mr. McGilvray has prepared plans for a sewer system on the point extending from the ship canal to Oatka beach on both Minnesota and Lake avenues. The sewers will drain from both ends of this district toward Pine street, and from there through a septic tank into the lake.

There will be nine ejectors in this system. They are necessary on account of the lack of any perceptible grade on the point and the fact that the street level is only a very few feet above the level of the lake.

The ejectors will be constructed on the model which is now on exhibition in the engineer's office. The sewage collects in a cylinder and is automatically projected to a higher level by a plunger which is operated by the power from the water mains. The model has worked perfectly and the engineers have no doubt but that the large ejectors will be a success.

Owing to the fact that all sewer excavations on the point will be made in sand the cost of the ejectors will not bring the expense of the system above that of the average sewers in the main part of the city. The engineer's estimate for the cost of the entire system is $42,240. Divided among the 1,200 lots, each lot being 40x100 feet, the cost per lot will be $35.20.

The estimate of the cost of the Duluth Heights system called for an expenditure of $35.85 for each twenty-five-foot lot, or $57.36 for a forty-foot lot. A fair estimate for the cost of a sewer in the city is about 80 cents per running foot for both sides of the street, or $1.35 for one side. Where the excavation is all in rock it amounts to about $4 per foot.

The plans and estimates for the Park Point system will be submitted to the council Monday evening by the engineer.

Meanwhile the model of the invention of the city engineer and his assistants, which has made the system possible, is on exhibition in the engineer's office, and residents of Park Point who are interested in its working may examine it at any time.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

BITTER FEUD COMES TO END

Millionaire Spreckels and His Son Randolph Are Reconciled.

San Francisco, March 30.—Claus Spreckels, multi-millionaire sugar king has, after six years of bitter enmity, been reconciled to his son, Rudolph Spreckels—a matter of widespread social, commercial and general interest.

A man of indomitable will, accustomed to bend men and events to his liking, he raged like a lion when disputed by Rudolph, his son, and when the latter remained obdurate, he brought every force of his great wealth and influence to bear upon the latter's chastening, and falling in this, hated him with all the intensity of embittered and thwarted pride, until, broken in health and spirit by long years of loneliness, he decided to heal the rupture ere it was too late.

A large portion of the elder Spreckels' wealth came through the Hawaiian Commercial company, in the organization of which his sons were concerned. During a number of years Claus Spreckels presented, at various times, large blocks of stocks in the above organization, to his sons, Adolph, John D., Rudolph and Gus, and the rupture, which came in 1899, involved the younger generation of the the house of Spreckels, which was rather divided against itself when Emma Spreckels, the only daughter, married Tom Watson, a brilliant but almost penniless Englishman, and was disowned by her father.

The Hawaiian Commercial company practically controlled by Spreckels, in 1899 levied an assessment of $5 per share on the company's stock, with the manifest purpose of "freezing out" small holders and gathering in the 100,000 outstanding shares for treasury use. Gus Spreckels objected to this high-handed proceeding, and his brother, Rudolph, was even more emphatic in his position.

After a stormy interview with the old man and the two brothers, who decided with him, Gus and Rudolph declared war, and succeeded in getting funds to protect their large stock holdings. A further offensive move on their part was a suit in equity to prevent the father from confiscating their stock, which was won by the sons, giving them virtually a controlling interest in the organization. This was, perhaps, the bitterest blow old Claus Spreckels had to bear—that he should be outgeneraled by his offspring and despoiled of his pet creation for the aggrandizement of the family fortunes.

For six years there was an ennuity that almost amounted to a family feud between the opposing factions, and the bitter relentless hatred grew, fanned by many a pitched battle in which the seceding members of the family more than held their own. It was a case of "diamond cut diamond."

Now, however, the dove of peace, so long absent from the Spreckels home, has again descended to cheer the declining years of the sugar king, who is once more surrounded by his sons and daughter—the latter recently returned from London, where she buried her husband—in amity and good will. The feud between the four brothers has not been completely wiped out and probably never will be, but this is kept from the father, who is enjoying the first interval of real happiness which has come to him in the past decade—perhaps ever, for his has been a life too virile and aggressive to admit of sentiment before his thought grew mellowed by the force of time.

EXPLOSIVE COW

Is the Terror of a County In Illinois.

Peoria, Ill., March 30.—J. W. Stoldweddell's cow has a stick of dynamite and a handful of percussion caps in her stomach. No cow in the county is treated with deeper respect than that one.

Mr. Stoldweddell owns a farm near Pekin. Workmen were blowing up stumps on the place two days ago. The cow saw a dynamite stick and swallowed it. Before the workmen could interfere a quantity of percussion caps had followed.

Mr. Stoldweddell is uncertain what to expect of dynamite and percussion caps when swallowed by a cow. He has no anxiety to experiment, however. The cow has the run of a 20-acre pasture and no one will come within a mile of the farm.

DEBILITY DUE TO CATARRH

A Close Relation Has Been Established Between These Two Diseases.

"Catarrh is clearly the cause of debility," said Mr. S. F. Boyce. "No person free of catarrh in my opinion was ever troubled with debility. So you will readily understand that the cure of debility depends entirely on the cleaning out of the catarrhal parasites. No debility cure will ever cure you as long as you have catarrh. Catarrh is the cause. Debility is the result. Then you get rid of the cause. No remedy will ever cure you but a catarrh remedy, and no other remedy will do it but Rexall Mucu-Tone. I make this statement because we know what Mucu-Tone is and what it will do—and doesn't it stand to reason that a remedy designed for one particular purpose—as Mucu-Tone for catarrh only—is going to give results a hundred times better than a cure-all that aims at every disease in the dictionary? Read what Ald. Robert K. Sloan of the 5th Ward of Chicago writes us:"

"I cheerfully add my endorsement to those who have words of praise for Mucu-Tone. I consider it the world's greatest remedy for all ailments of the mucous membrane system. I have taken the remedy for debility with the most satisfactory results. I know of one of my constituents who was cured of an aggravated case of catarrh of the stomach through its use. I endorse it most heartily."

Mucu-Tone acts entirely different from any other remedy we know of, and we think we know them all. Mucu-Tone acts in a scientific way by first of all destroying the deadly catarrhal germs—ridding the system of every trace. Then as the very name, Mucu-Tone, implies, it tones up the mucous tissues, the tissues on which the catarrhal parasites live. Then there is a chance to get well. No other remedy but Rexall Mucu-Tone will do it. It destroys every trace of the germs of catarrh. It heals and soothes the tissues. It tones up the entire system. We have a large trial size for fifty cents that we guarantee to give results. I want you to try a bottle on my personal recommendation. S. F. Boyce.

HOLIDAYS BEGIN

Easter Vacation In Public Schools to Commence Saturday.

Commemorate Centennial of Birth of Hans Christian Anderson.

To the ordinary citizen the words do not carry any special significance, but to the 12,000 school children in Duluth they mean a week's enjoyment of outdoor sports after the long winter's confinement in the school room.

The teachers say that the pupils grow more restless just previous to the Easter vacation than during any other part of the year, and the disease of spring fever becomes more prevalent than during the last few weeks before the summer vacation.

This year the holidays do not come at Easter time, owing to the exceedingly late date on which Easter falls. The school year is divided into three terms of equal length, and the second term ends tomorrow afternoon. The schools will close then and remain closed until April 10, giving the pupils eight days vacation.

Easter does not come this year until April 23, and there will be no vacation at that time, with the possible exception of Good Friday.

Tomorrow afternoon exercises will probably be held in the city schools commemorative of the centennial birthday of Hans Christian Anderson. County Superintendent Gilpin is in receipt of a letter from J. W. Olsen, the state superintendent of schools, recommending that some notice be taken of Anderson's birthday, in the public schools.

April 2, 1905, is the centennial anniversary of the birth of Hans Christian Anderson, the noted writer of fairy stories for children. Since the anniversary falls on Sunday a part of Friday will probably be spent in telling the school children of the city of the life and work of Anderson, with whose stories most of them are familiar.

Aside from these no closing exercises will be held in the schools.

One week from tomorrow the regular monthly meeting of the school board will be held, and the detailed plans for the new manual training building will then be submitted. The board will then order the clerk to advertise for bids, and a special meeting will probably be called about the middle of the month to open the bids, and award the contract for the work. It is hoped to have the contractors commence work by May 1, and to have the building completed in time for the opening of school next fall, although the latter is not likely to be accomplished.

CZAR ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE

According to a Report From St. Petersburg Published In Paris.

Paris, March 30.—According to advices from St. Petersburg received through private sources, Czar Nicholas of Russia attempted to kill himself yesterday at the Tsarkoe Selo palace with a revolver, and was only restrained by the timely arrival of some of the palace guards, who overpowered and disarmed him after a struggle.

His intention was discovered by his mother, the dowager empress, as he was about to carry it into effect. She grappled with him and pleaded piteously that he desist. Her screams aroused the guardsmen, who rushed into the chamber and forcibly disarmed the emperor.

The alleged attempt at self-destruction is attributed to temporary insanity. The emperor has been fearfully worried for months, and it is feared his mind is permanently affected. Harassed by the contentions of the war and peace parties, driven to desperation by the overwhelming defeats of his armies, and transfixed by agitation and treason at home, it is said that he has lately often expressed himself as anxious to end it all by laying down the burden of empire, and was only restrained from doing so by the desire to guard the rights of his infant son.

WRESTLERS AND PUGS.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable interest is being taken in a wrestling match which will be pulled off here on Friday evening. The contestants will be C. W. Donovan, formerly of Minneapolis, the ex-champion middleweight wrestler of Minnesota, and Edward Fandrie of Green Bay, Wis. The match here will be for $50 a side and the gate receipts.

Charles Cutler, the local heavyweight pugilist, has signed articles for a 20-round glove contest with the "Kerry Kid" of West Superior, which will be held in the hall of the Superior Eagles, about the middle of April.

but it failed, the supreme court refusing to pass upon the question in the case that was before it. The Hugo bill is simply a recognition of the state's rights, and it protects the riparian owner and leaves him in the enjoyment of all his present rights. He read a decision of the supreme court to the effect that while riparian ownership carried to the center of nonnavigable lakes, the state owns lakes that aer navigable.

L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis wanted to know if the state's interests would suffer if this bill was not passed. Mr. Iverson said he thought they would, because unless the state asserts its right somebody may take the ore.

W. B. Anderson of Winona asked the state auditor if he thought the rate of 25 cents per ton was a fair royalty. Mr. Iverson said that was another matter and apart from the purposes of this measure.

Mr. Anderson said he understood the ore was worth a royalty of 75 cents to $1 per ton.

Mr. Johnson asked the state auditor if it was known that parties are paying the state 25 cents for royalties, and collecting 55 cents from others to whom they had sub-leased.

Mr. Iverson said it was not known, but it was possible, because the state spends no money in development, and the man that does is entitled to pay for it.

The senate yesterday afternoon passed the Roberts "wide-open" tax amendments to the constitution by a vote of 42 to 7. The following senators opposed it: Collier, Dart, Dunn, Hardy, Morgan, Schaller, Schutz.

The bill was amended slightly, so as to make the limit of personal property exemption $200, as it is now, instead of $300, as Mr. Roberts proposed.

Two years ago the house passed some such a bill, and the senate killed it. This year there was hardly a show of opposition in the senate to the so-called "wide-open" amendments. The Roberts amendments are not quite so wide-open as some, but they are a vast improvement on the provisions of the present constitution.

There were several other similar bills before the senate, and they were laid over until next Tusday, so that in case either the house or the governor should do things to the Roberts bill, there will still be some measures left to act upon.

Elmer E. Adams of Fergus Falls has the record for bills introduced in the house this session, with twenty-five, though Gen. M. D. Flower of St. Paul with twenty-four and W. W. Bardwell of Minneapolis with twenty-three follow closely in his wake.

In the senate, Senator F. H. Peterson of Moorhead is in the lead, with twenty-one bills.

One senator, Val Batz of St. Cloud, introduced no bills at all, and four house members, Dalen, Herbert, Meyer and J. T. Lewis also had a clean record in this respect.

The house received 890 bills, an average of 7.5 bills per member, and the senate 496 bills, or an average of 7.9 each.

Of the St. Louis county house members, Skinner with three and Miller with six were the only ones to fall below the average. Capt. Lewis led with thirteen, Ituo go had twelve, and Saari and Dowling had ten each.

The house members introduced the following number of bills: Adams, 25; Flower, 24; Bardwell, 23; Wallace, 17; Hickey, Peterson, S. D., Selb, Perley and Ware, 16 each; Chamberlain, 15; Fosseen, Zelch, 14; Fraser, H. T. Lewis, Morley, 13; Hugo, Johnson, 12; Dorsey, Ekman, Simmons, Mark, W. A. Nolan, 11; Dowling, J. A. Gates, J. B. The senators were guilty of the following number of bills: Peterson, 21; Wilson, 18; Morgan, 17; Browker, 16; Stephens, 15; Stone, 14; Dunn, 13; Coller, Cole, Horton, McGill, Gjertson, 12; Calhoun, Thorpe, 11; Frater, Schaller, Rieke, 10; Comstock, Durrant, Mausten, Peachey, Wood, 9; Cowan, Johnson, Somerville, Thompson, 8; Dart, Schain, W. A number of the Republican members of the house have decided to quietly form themselves into a steering committee for the good of the party, to try and save something out of the wreck of the session. The way things are going now, the outlook is that not a single measure of public importance will become a law. This would be disastrous politically, for it would supply the opposition with an abundance of campaign material for 1906. So it has been decided to organize a steering committee consisting of two from each congressional district, or eighteen in all, to pick out the bills that are to be killed and those that are to be passed.

No doubt there will be some members, not in on the deal, who will object because the committee appointed itself, and they may become restive and attempt to throw off this influence. But a committee like that, well selected, will have considerable power, and if that power is properly used it will come pretty near saying what is to be done and what is not to be done.

Two years ago a similar committee formed itself, but it was later in the session, and all it did was to secure the adoption of a rule giving each member the right to call up one bill and get it acted upon on the last day.

• • •

The house will probably caucus on the Horton bill, as the senate did yesterday, and very likely the result will be the same, though it will not be so solid as it was in the senate, where 47 senators voted to push the bill over the governor's veto and only 1 voted against the plan.

The bill is now to be made a party issue, pure and simple, and this is catching many votes for the bill that it would not get on its merits.

On the other hand, there are Republican members who say that they are against the plan of overruling the governor in this way, and that if the party lash is cracked over their backs they will say things about it.

So there may be some interesting times yet over the Horton bill. It will need 42 vots out of 63 in the senate, and 80 out of 119 in the house.

The house yesterday afternoon, in committee of the whole, recommended for passage the Gjertsen bill creating a state board of chiropractic examiners, to pass upon applicants for licenses to cure people with the process called "chiropractic," but there was much debate, and the vote was close, 40 for and 37 against.

Burdett Thayer of Fillmore county offered an amendment providing that the members of this state board had to be familiar with the subjects specified in the bill on which chiropractors were to be examined. He said he did not believe they could get more than 10 per cent in examinations on any of the subjects, and when the friends of the bill opposed his amendment he said that proved what he claimed. The motion was lost.

Dr. J. A. Gates of Kenyon secured the adoption of an amendment providing that the men that go on the board cannot be interested in a chiropractic school, and the fee for the license was cut from $20 to $10.

L. C. Simons of Red Lake Falls offered an amendment striking out all of the subjects on which knowledge is required by the bill on the part of chiropractors, and substituting in lieu thereof the requirement that they must have knowledge of back-aches, which was lost. Dr. Gates secured the adoption of another amendment, prohibiting chiropractors from dealing with contagious diseases. Incidentally he remarked that the bill was the worst graft of the season, and that the members would find it out before a year had passed.

The house had a little fun with T. T. Ofsthun, the author of the house bill for which the senate bill was substituted. W. I. Nolan gravely asked Mr. Ofsthun to explain the difference between chiropractics and osteopathy, and the members laughed when he failed to respond.

The bill needs twenty more votes to pass than it got yesterday.

• • •

The house yesterday afternoon, in committee of the whole, recommended for passage a bill making peddlers pay licenses to the counties in which they work, after discussing it vigorously for an hour or so.

As amended, the bill provides that except in cities or villages, where, of course, the matter can be covered by ordinance, peddlers cannnot peddle unless they take out a license and pay a license fee that may be as high as $100. It was amended yesterday so as not to apply to people selling farm machinery, nursery stock and tools. It applies to merchants that go around taking orders, just as much as to peddlers.

• • •

The house committee on mines and mining yesterday afternoon considered the Ramsland bill, providing that no more leases to state mineral lands shall be issued until provided for by law. There was some opposition to the bill, and the result was that the bill will be reported out to the house without recommendation.

The author of the bill hopes to tie up the state's minerals so that they may increase in value for the benefit of posterity, and to do this he would have no more new leases issued, and none of the present leases renewed.

A WOMAN'S LUCK

Bit of Paper Wrapped Around Candle Gave a Clew.

London, March 30.—If her expectations are fulfilled, a poor woman in Australia will owe a fortune of $50,000 to the purchase of a penny candle, and three other members of the same family in England will be indebted to the same humble source for another $50,000 each. That will make $300,000 obtained through a tallow dip.

This is how it happened: Mrs. Henry Motlee, with her husband, emigrated to Australia twenty years ago and settled in Ballarat, but met only with bad luck. They couldn't afford gas, and Mrs. Motlee is precious glad now that they couldn't for then she would never have got on the track of a fortune. Reduced by poverty to the necessity of making only the smallest purchases, Mrs. Motlee, about two months ago, sent one of her children out to buy a single candle.

The storekeeper who sold it wrapped it up in a stray piece of a newspaper. When Mrs. Motlee had lit the candle she chanced to glance over the printed fragment and read there something that transformed her humble dwelling into a prospective palace. It was an advertisement requesting Mrs. W. Chapman, her two sisters and brother to communicate with a certain London lawyer, that they might obtain possession of an estate valued at $300,000, to which each was entitled to one-fourth share.

It is the fact that Mrs. Motlee is one of the sisters referred to that filled her with delight. She immediately wrote to Mrs. Chapman, who lives at Yarmouth, in England, telling her of the discovery she had made, and how she made it, and asking her to set things to work to get hold of the money. It is through Mrs. Chapman, who seems in a fair way to prove the claims of her family to the fortune, that the story came out.

The estate in question was left in 1791 by Thomas Hawkins, a solicitor, to his son, Richard, who was also a member of the legal profession and settled at King's Lynn. This Richard Hawkins had a son George, and it was because of the difficulty the latter encountered in proving his father's will that the estate was thrown into chancery. George Hawkins was the great-grandfather of the present claimants to it. Mrs. Chapman has still in her possession a portrait of Thomas Hawkins and his family, embroidered in silk, of a style fashionable at the period in which he lived. It was exhibited at an art loan exhibition some years ago, and a curio collector then offered $200 for it. But Mrs. Chapman who has not been reduced to buying penny candles, cherished it too much as a family heirloom to part with it.

Another strange story has just come to light concerning how a German woman is alleged to have discovered that she is entitled to a share in the estate valued at $2,500,000 left by Mrs. Helen Blake, widow of Gen. Blake, who died in 1876. She read in a newspaper that Mrs. Mead, an old woman now an inmate of the Hackney workhouse in London, had claimed a share in the Blake millions, as Mrs. Blake's cousin. From this story the German woman first learned that her name is the same as the maiden name of the general's widow, and this suggested to her that she might be a relation, and, therefore, entitled to a share in the property.

Thereupon she consulted a clairvoyant. The oracle told her that she was a relation and was undoubtedly entitled to a share of the Blake inheritance, which is now held by the crown. There is nothing startling in that. Clairvoyants generally tell their clients things that will make them think they are getting their money's worth. But this one went further than that. As proof of her occult power she made a sketch of the ward of the Hackney workshop, in which Mrs. Mead is confined. And she told the namesake of Gen. Blake's widow that if it didn't turn out correct she would return her fee and renounce clairvoyance. The master of the workhouse has pronounced a copy of the drawing which has been sent him an accurate one of Mrs. Mead's ward. It was accepted by the German woman as conclusive proof that all that the clairvoyant had told her was true. She has engaged a lawyer to hunt up records and push her claim. But Mrs. Mead does not at all relish the idea that the publicity given to her story should bring forth another claimant to diminish her own prospective share of the Blake property.

SEVEN YEARS IN A TRANCE

Claims To Be Victim of Experiment Of Hypnotist.

Honolulu, March 30.—Dr. Walter Hoffman of this city was consulted the other day by a middle-aged man, who said his name was David Charters and that he had just awakened from a seven years' trance. He told the doctor the following yarn:

"My name is David Charters, and seven years ago a doctor in San Francisco who was practicing hypnotism persuaded me to allow him to use me as a subject. I foolishly acquiesced, being hard up at the time, and desirous of earning a little money, from time to time was practiced on as a medium. The doctor rapidly became expert in the hypnotic art and I made an ideal medium. One day he put me under the influence of his power, and I went to sleep. Then a terrible thing happened. I was never awakened. What became of the doctor I do not know. Whether sudden death prevented him from restoring me to my normal condition or whether he purposely failed to break the spell for the purpose of conducting a frightful scientific experiment I have no means whatever of knowing. Perhaps he has been watching my progress and noting it during the seven years in which I have walked the world in a trance.

"I have not been altogether asleep, but have been walking and sleeping, to put it that way. Still I knew and felt that I was asleep all the time. My memory of events previous to seven years ago entirely failed me. Yet I transacted business and married twice and raised two families in my hypnotic state. In fact I lived, walked and had my being in a trance.

"I came to Honolulu early in February and stopped at the California house. One day I met Dr. Hahns Brooks, the magnetic healer. He told me I was asleep, and after working on me for three or four days succeeded in rousing me from my lethargy. My memory has been completely restored to me and I feel a new man and called on you to ascertain if, in your opinion, the cure will be permanent."

After hearing the man's story and being somewhat impressed with it, Dr. Hoffman told Charters that if he would call in the afternoon and bring a friend with him, he would make an examination. The sleeper failed to put in an appearance at the stipulated time, however, and Dr. Hoffman is puzzling over the strangest case or the biggest faker he has met with in his professional career.

Since visiting Dr. Hoffman, Charters has taken his departure for the mainland, leaving the mystery of his alleged trance unsolved.

BECOMING A MOTHER Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of Mother's Friend during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. This scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does Mother's Friend carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Book containing valuable information free.

RECORDS BROKEN

By Exports of Cotton Cloths to China This Year.

For Eight Months Equal Total of Previous Twelve Months.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, March 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The exports of cotton cloths to China from the United States in the first eight months of the present fiscal year broke all previous records, and indicate that our total exports to China during the twelve months ending June 30 next will reach the unprecedented figure of $40,000,000, while to the Orient, as a whole, the total will probably approximate $150,000,000 in value. These conclusions are based upon figures just compiled by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, which show that our exports to Asia and Oceania in the eight months ending with February, 1905, amounted to $92,523,412—practically equal to the total shown by the full twelve months of the fiscal year 1904, and exceeding the total for the eight months of any preceding fiscal year.

Prior to the present fiscal year our exports to Asia and Oceania had never reached so much as $100,000,000, save in the exceptional year 1900, when the total was $108,305,082, as compared with $61,927,678 in 1897, $78,235,176 in 1899, $85,202,18 in 1902, and $93,002,928 in 1901, while for the eight past months of the present fiscal year the total has already reached the unexampled figure of $92,523,412.

The principal Oriental countries to which this $92,500,000 worth of merchandise was exported are China, $28,000,000; Japan, $26,000,000; British Australasia, 17,630,000; Hongkong, nearly $8,000,000; British East Indies, $5,000,000, and the Philippines about $3,500,000.

To China our exports during the eight months under review show a remarkable gain over previous years, being $28,000,000 in the present fiscal year to date, as against $8,200,000 for the same period of last year, $15,500,000 for the corresponding months of 1902, and $10,200,000 in the same months of 1900. At the present rate of exportation our total sales to China will reach fully $40,000,000 for the full fiscal year, which ends three months hence. Cotton cloths contribute more than half the total value of our sales to China. In 1900 our exports during the first eight months of the fiscal year amounted to $10,200,000, and of this value $6,200,000 represented the value of the 133,000,000 yards of cloths sold in the Chinese markets. In 1905 our exports to China show, as already stated, for the first eight months of the fiscal year, a total of $28,330,000, and of this sum $15,500,000 represented the value of the 276,000,000 yards of cotton cloths exported from the United States to that country.

To Japan, which stands second in the purchase of American merchandise by Oriental countries, our exports during the eight months ending with February, 1905, also established a new high record, being $25,930,742, as against $15,643,331 in 1904, $16,334,585 in 1902 and $3,168,869 in 1895, the figures in each case relating to the first eight months of the year. While cotton cloths form the principal item in our exports to China, raw cotton contributes by far the largest item in our exports to Japan, though the quantity fluctuates considerably from year to year, according to the level of prices prevailing in the United States. When the price of American cotton becomes abnormally high Japan purchases a large share of her raw cotton from India, that cotton being of a shorter staple and therefore lower in price.

During the eight months ending with February, 1905, the exportation of raw cotton to Japan from the United States amounted to 67,785,875 pounds, valued at $7,087,186, the average export price being to Japan, 10.4 cents per pound, and to all countries, 8.9 cents. During the corresponding months of the preceding year, when the average export price of cotton was 11.8 cents, our exports of that article to Japan amounted to but 20,177,171 pounds, valued at 11½ cents per pound. In 1900, when the export price averaged but 7½ cents per pound, Japan took during the first eight months of the fiscal year 117,000,000 pounds of raw cotton. In 1901 the price of cotton in the United States advanced to 9.8 cents, and Japan took but 7,500,000 pounds during the eight months under review. In 1902, when the export price was about eight cents, Japan took 73,000,000 pounds of American cotton during the first eight months of the year; but in 1904, when the export price had advanced to 11 cents per pound, that country purchased but 20,000,000 pounds of cotton during the corresponding period of the year; while in the present year, with lower prices in the United States, Japan is again increasing her consumption of American raw cotton, the exports during the first eight months having been 67,500,000 pounds, or more than treble the amount exported thither in the same months of the preceding year.

Other important items in our exports to Japan are: Refined mineral oil, $1,470,008 in the eight months of the present fiscal year, as against $3,286,116 last year; flour, $2782,371 in 1905, as against $314,373 in 1904; electrical machinery, $745,694, as against $391,554 last year; cars and carriages, $172,143 in 1905, as against $59,019 last year; and steel rails, $431,304, as against $157,542 last year; the figures being in each case those for the first eight months of the fiscal year named. In February alone our exports to Japan were $3,860,428, and a like average for the remaining four months would place our exports to Japan during the full fiscal year at the high-record total of $40,000,000.

The great increases noted in the case of China and Japan would seem to justify the expectation that our total exports to the Orient in the fiscal year 1905 will be by far the largest on record, approximating $140,000,000 in value; while if the shipments to Hawaii from the United States be included a total of $150,000,000 would probably be reached. For the eight months alone the exports exceed by over $23,000,000 those for the corresponding period of any preceding fiscal year, being $92,000,000, as against $69,000,000, the figure shown by the eight months' period of the high record year 1900. If, however, to this $92,523,412 of exports to Asia and Oceania in the eight months there be added the $7,375,913, the value of shipments to Hawaii from the United States, our total sales to the Orient during the period named would be practically $100,000,000 in value, or at the rate of $150,000,000 per annum.

Considering the oriental countries in the order of magnitude of their purchases of merchandise from the United States, the figures for eight months of the present year, in comparison with the corresponding period of the preceding year, are: China, $28,318,646 in 1905, as against $8,174,556 in 1904; Japan, $25,930,742, as against $15,643,331 in 1904; Australasia, $17,672,215, as against $18,461,359 in 1904; Hongkong, $7,952,958 in 1905, as against $8,133,408 in 1904; Hawaii, $7,375,913 in 1905, as against $7,993,129 in 1904; Philippine Islands, $3,649,474, as against $3,275,733 in 1904, and India and other British East Indies, $5,012,874, as against $3,593,973 in 1904. The total imports of the countries of Asia and Oceania amount to about $1,500,000,000 per annum, so that our exports still form but about 10 per cent of their annual purchase from foreign countries.

BABE MAY SAVE WOMAN

Mrs. Rogers Is Rumored To Be In Delicate Condition.

Windsor, Vt., March 29.—Although the board of prison directors has had two or three meetings since the rumors have been circulated that Mrs. Mary Rogers is in a delicate condition, the reputed father of the unborn child being one of the jail officials, no denial of the story has been given out, and the good name of the state and its principal penal institution suffers from a scandal which it will take years to overcome. Mrs. Rogers is awaiting execution for the murder of her husband.

The prison employes, from Superintendent Oakes down, will neither admit nor deny the reports. What news the outside world gets leaks out through their intimates. A personal friend of Miss Durkee, the matron in charge of Mrs. Rogers, says that there is not a word of truth in the story.

She is cognizant of the condemned woman's condition, and would soon detect anything wrong with her. The prison physician, Dr. J. D. Brewster, will not say when he last visited Mrs. Rogers, nor what her condition is at present. Under the laws of the state a woman criminal cannot be put to death when about to become a mother.

Governor Bell was in town last week and said that the next state institution to be investigated would probably be the state prison, and they will begin just as soon as the evidence is all in relative to the Waterbury asylum. Color is lent to this statement by the fact that Attorney General C. C. Fitts of Brattleboro was in town last week, and was looking for rooms in which to conduct the proceedings.

The Oakes-Harpin controversy caused by the charges brought against Superintendent Oakes before the legislative committee of the Vermont assembly last fall, which recommended the resignation of the superintendent and the directors, has reached an acute stage, and both sides are claiming that sensational facts will be brought out at the investigation.

The cause of the recent dismissal of the head keeper, Harpin, and his son, Harold, will be looked into, also the scandals and charges of graft which have been brought against the superintendent. The reason given for Superintendent Oakes' resignation is continued ill health, but the truth is that the annoyance and worry caused by the charges made against his management has impelled him to take this step.

HUNGARIAN NOBLEMAN

Found Fortune In Antique Watch He Bought.

Budapest, March 30.—A Hungarian nobleman visiting Fiume recently bought from a local dealer in antiques an ancient watch shaped like an apple. It was his intention to make a study of its mechanism and as soon as he returned home he started to take the watch apart. To his great surprise he found an inscription on an inner plate which told how the watch contained all the fortune of one Nicholas Gernadich and was to be given to his cousin Anthony. The inscription was dated January, 1854.

The watch contained seven diamonds, three sapphires and seven emeralds which a local jeweler promptly valued at more than $30,000.

An investigation revealed the fact that the Gernadich in question had recently died in Lublan without heirs, but the Austrian officials promptly seized the precious stones in the name of the government, which is, by right, the heir of all estates left by heiriess testators. The Hungarian authorities have now protested to the Austrian officials, claiming the treasures as the property of the Hungarian government.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

FIRMNESS IN MAY

That Option Is Strong In All the Wheat Markets.

July Option Is Considerably Weaker—Receipts Large.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 30.—The May option was very firm in all markets today indicating that the bull interest is long everywhere. There is a good deal of speculation as to where the heavy short interest lies. In spite of the Armour professed bearishness that interest is not supposed to be short to amount to anything. Some believe that foreigners are the ones who are caught. The May option in Duluth gained ½c, in Chicago ¼c, in Minneapolis ⅝-¾c, and in New York 1¾c. The July option was considerably weaker, closing ¼c lower in Duluth, ½c in Chicago and New York and unchanged in Minneapolis.

Receipts continue heavy in the Northwest and in the Southwest, too, St. Louis and Kansas City having about 40 per cent more than a year ago. The weather map showed rains in Illinois and the Ohio Valley and generally higher temperatures.

Primary receipts of wheat were 372,662 bus., last year, 289,968 bus. Shipments 222,911 bus., last year, 279,394 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 24,961 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¾d lower. In the Chicago market May corn closed a shade lower. May oats closed ⅛c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 650,320 bus., last year 225,500 bus. Shipments 776,490 bus., last year 246,397 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was fairly active. The May option opened ½c lower at $1.04⅜, advanced to $1.05¾ at 10:15, fell back to $1.04⅜ at 10:25, advanced to $1.04⅞ at 10:35, and then fell to $1.04⅜ at 11:20. From there it rallied again to $1.04⅞ at noon, fell back to $1.04⅛ at 12:20 and then advanced to $1.05⅜ at 1 o'clock and closed at that price, a gain for the day of ½c. The July option was weak and closed with a decline of ¼c at $1.02.

Flax was very dull. The May option sold ½c up to $1.38 and then closed unchanged at $1.37½.

Oats advanced ⅛c and rye was unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Firm With a Moderate Covering By Shorts.

Chicago, March 30.—Moderate covering by shorts caused a firm undertone in the wheat market here today. The steady tone of the Liverpool wheat market, in view of the weakness here yesterday, had considerable effect on prices her. At the start pit traders sold July quite freely, the continued mild weather being the incentive. Initial quotations on July were a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 88⅝c to 88½c. Later the price rallied to 87⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 283 cars, against 361 cars last week and 221 cars a year ago.

Towards the middle of the day the market broke quite severely on general selling which was started by selling by a prominent bull. Little support was in evidence until July had declined to 87¼c. A fair demand for shorts then developed and most of the loss was regained. At the close July was off ⅛c at 88⅜@¼c.

Sentiment in the corn pit was rather bearish, and prices were a trifle lower. A decline at Liverpool and excellent weather conditions for the movement of the old crop were the principal factors. May opened at ⅛@¼c to ⅛@⅜c lower at 46⅝c to 47c. After touching 46¾c, the price steadied around 47¼c. Local receipts were 321 cars, with 27 of contract grade.

On the break in wheat, selling became more general. The price of May dropped to 46¼c. Late in the day the feeling became quite bullish as a result of a report of sixty boatloads being taken for export. All of the loss was recovered, the market closing at the highest point of the day, with May off a shade at 47¼c.

Influenced by the weakness of corn, pit traders sold oats moderately, resulting in an easy market. May opened unchanged to ¼c lower at 29¼c to 29⅜c, and held around 29⅜c. Local receipts were 121 cars.

Provision were quiet. The market was supported by local packers. May pork was unchanged at $12.67½. Lard and ribs were each off a shade at $7.10@7.12½ and $6.92½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—Range of prices for wheat was rather narrow today. There was some selling early on the indifferent cables and the Price Current's report, but none of the steady letting go of long wheat, as on former days this week. The price was influenced by the weather, which is really a poor thing to follow. The market was not only steadier, but is now in a position to follow any change in crop reports and good support, and as the price works upward there will be no lack of bullish news and buying orders. We think, therefore, some wheat should be bought now and held for a strong bulge. Bear news has been worn threadbare, and all conditions that were in any way favorable to lower prices have been discounted; besides this a reaction is overdue. A general review of the situation displayed nothing weak, the past three years the price being a decrease in production, which is now limited to consumption, and every year there is more evidence that we are drawing farther away from cheap wheat.

Corn—Cables were lower on reports of offerings of new corn by Argentina. The effect of this was a decrease of about 1c in prices, with a full recovery toward the close. The facts are, this is just the time for Argentina harvest, and the crop must be dried thoroughly before it will do to load for a six-weeks' trip to Europe. The news outside of this was generally favorable to holders. We feel that the pit situation is now much healthier after the recent selling, and would buy May, July or September for an upturn of several cents at least.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Early strength gave way to a weak spell. From this the market rallied and while at times the reports of the Chicago bears labored, the buyers were nevertheless persistnt, with the market closing at about yesterday's figures. The action of the market in rallying yesterday and today a full cent from the low point in each session and retaining the advance seems to indicate an improving tendency. The deferred futures have been under pressure for so long a period that liquidation must necessarily be quite complete. Add to this the tremendous amount of short selling which has taken place with the price at the close tonight, 14 c under the high point, it is fair to assume the market is pretty well sold out. We feel we would rather buy wheat on the setbacks.

Corn—This market made an early dip in sympathy with wheat, subsequently reacting and closing firm. Liquidation has been fairly complete, the short interest increased and the break in prices seem to have stimulated the export business. The market ruled quite nervous, but showed fairly good form. We still feel an increased cash demand would do much in bringing better prices. Without such improvement the barket for the time being will likely continue a very good trading affair.

Oats—The market does not seem to hold out any encouragement whatever. We still feel the market will drag lower.

Provisions—Early weakness in this market came through sympathy with the other pits. Some little support seemed to be tendered which steadied the market. Conditions seem unchanged, trade almost wholly local and professional.

* * *

B. E. Baker's Chicago Grain Letter: Wheat—The bright summer like weather, which was the primary cause of the general selling fever, continues the chief bearish factor. The longer this condition is unbroken the greater the confidence of the bears, and the greater the certainty of an oversold market. Wheat acted as though sold to a standstill yesterday, but the weakness in corn was known as an additional reason for further selling. The quick recoveries today and the fact that the morning decline brought out very little long wheat indicates the same thing. With any change i nthe weather, a sharp upturn may be counted upon. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 32 cars.

Corn—After a period of hesitation, during the early trading, local bears made a raid on the market, which carried prices off one cent a bushel for the May, bringing out considerable corn on stop loss orders. From this point there was a sharp recovery on the last hour reports of large export sales. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 225 cars.

Oats—Oats again touched the low point of yesterday, but ruled at the close with wheat and corn. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 131 cars.

* * *

Cincinnati Price-Current: Continued favorableness for wheat crop and position bettered. Spring plowing and seeding progressing favorably. Conditions generally very encouraging.

* * *

Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington, Chicago: A telegram from a conservative and reliable house at Kansas City just received as follows: "I have a farm about twenty miles south of Wichita all in wheat. I am plowing it all up and planting corn. Many farmers in the neighborhood are doing the same. I have not before this missed a crop of wheat in five years on this farm."

HITCHCOCK TAKES STEPS

For Complete Inquiry Into Land Office Conditions.

Washington, March 30.—Secretary the Interior Hitchcock has taken steps for a complete investigation of the general land office.

It is alleged that while Land Commissioner Binger Hermann, representative from Oregon, and now under indictment in the Oregon land frauds, destroyed a number of government documents.

Secretary Hitchcock wants to find out how the records now check up with the conditions his men have discovered in a number of Western states.

At the department of interior yesterday afternoon Secretary Hitchcock refused to discuss the proposed action.

It is said that William A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office, is among those heads of important bureaus scheduled by President Roosevelt for decapitation.

Commissioner Richards, who has done much toward unearthing many of the scandals, is now in Wyoming, looking after his personal affairs and also probing into alleged land frauds in that state.

POSTMASTER

Who Put Up "No Smoking" Sign Removed.

Sioux City, Iowa, March 30.—Cut plug and "natural leaf" have the indorsement of the postoffice department. Anybody who wants to smoke them in any postoffice is at liberty to do so, and if the postmaster objects he is liable to official decapitation.

Capt. J. G. Bell, postmaster at Manning, Iowa, had asthima, and was driven almost frantic by the clouds of noisome smoke that farmer constituents were wont to produce when they met in the postoffice to visit. He put up a "no smoking" card, and the patrons of the office circulated a petition demanding his removal. He has been removed, and G. W. Laffler appointed to the office, which is worth $1,500 per annum. Capt. Bell has gone to Washington to portest, and word comes back that he has failed to make his case good. The department does not propose to be finicky about the quality of tobacco its constituents use.

IRREGULAR CLOSE

New York, March 30.—The market opened under pressure today which was marked by declines of ⅛ to ½ for the majority of stocks. Union Pacific, Atchison and Locomotive lost about a point and Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and Reading declined large fractions. One or two of the independent steel companies and railway equipment companies were slightly up. Wabash debenture "B" bonds rose 2 points and Lackawanna 4.

The general market showed little sympathy with the temporary bullish outburst in Ontario & Western and a half dozen minor specialties. Some recovery followed the opening decline, but the market soon became heavy again and Ontario & Western lost its point advance. Somewhat lower prices were made on this decline. St. Paul, Pennsylvania and New York Central falling a point and Union Pacific 1⅜. In the way of advances Realty figured for 4½, Rubber Goods preferred 3½, and the common, United States Rubber preferred, Lead and Railway Investment preferred 1 to 1¼.

The decline reached a point in Reading, Norfolk & Western, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Kansas & Texas preferred, Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis and Bay, Sloss-Sheffield Steel sell 3. The market became extremely dull except for advances in a number of issues rarely traded in. The Standard Rope stocks and bonds and Central of Georgia second and third income bonds advanced 1 to 3 points. Gains of 1 to 1¼ were made by Twin City Rapid Transit, Leather preferred certificates, Federal Mining preferred, Grass Twine, Central of Jersey and Peoria & Eastern. Consolidated Gas rose 1¾. These movements were not impressive and prices elsewhere began to sag again. St. Paul dropped 1¼. Bonds were steady at noon.

Leading stocks recovered slightly from the morning depression and became very dull. Leather preferred sold at 108½, compared with 106⅝ on the previous sale. General Electric also gained 1⅜ and Lead preferred a point. Virginia Iron meanwhile fell off 1, and New York, Chicago & St. Louis 2 and the preferred 2.

While there was scarcely any demand of consequence for stocks, neither was there any pressing for sale, and the small business accomplished was at better prices. The specialties moved most widely and were relatively more active than railroad stocks. Tennessee Coal fluctuated frequently from 95½ to 97⅝. Sloss-Sheffield Steel converted its 3 point loss into a gain of 2. Allis-Chalmers and the Republic Steel stocks rose 1. Allis-Chalmers preferred 2⅝. Atlantic Coast Line 1⅝. Rubber Goods 2 and Delaware & Hudson 2½. Kansas & Texas sagged 1 and New York Air Brake 3. Ontario & Western touched 63⅞.

Gains were made of 4 by Sloss-Sheffield Steel and 3⅜ by Tennessee Coal. Colorado Fuel rose 1¼. There was a fairly general recovery on the running off of the call loan rate, and some prices got over last night. Pennsylvania rising ⅝. Railroad stocks met some realizing on the advance, and the closing was below the best and hilghtly irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market closed irregular with pronounced strength in the industrial group, independent steel properties being the leaders. The sharp advance in T. C. & I. and Sloss for a time stimulated the entire market, but it was noticeable that the railroad group at no time showed any tendency to advance. The market throughout the session was one fo specialties under the strength of which railroad issues suffered rom profit taking. The action of these stocks looks much like manipulation. The market is very professional. The heavy feeling witnessed in the railroad issues does not argue much improvement for the general list.

* * *

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been dull and irregular today. Early weakness was followed by a general recovery, but at the close the leading stocks were rather heavy again. It was noteworthy that the market became dull on declines. Much of the afternoon buying was covering of shorts put out early in anticipation of high call money rates. Instead of a flurry, the money market became easier late in the day. The particularly strong features were the Southern iron stocks, which advanced sharply on the reports that the merger is about to be announced. Numerous industrial specialties were marked up.

* * *

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was dull in the early trading and it was not until the afternoon that it showed any strength. Prices advanced for all the active list and shorts covered quite freely. Call money eased off and the success of the Japanese loan had its effect. The general feeling was that we would have a good active market tomorrow.

* * *

T. A. McIntyre & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: We do not expect to see any important upward movement in our market until after the April first settlements on interest and dividend accounts as previously noted.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, March 30.—Close: Money on call, firm, 2¼@4 per cent; closing bid, 2½ per cent; time loans, steady; sixty, ninety days and six months, 3½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4½ per cent. THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, March 30.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 5 points on March to a decline of 4 points on the new crop months, later in response to rather easier cables, continued good weather and full receipts. Professionals and wire houses with southern conections sold, but nearby shorts were uneasy and with some support of May and July the list showed quite a steady tone later with prices about 2@4 points higher on old crop and net unchanged on the new crop months.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 8.15; middling gulf, 8.40; sales, 25 bales. Futures closed steady: March, 7.65; April, 7.65; May, 7.73; June, 7.58; July, 7.61; August, 7.64; September, 7.67; October, 7.72; November, 7.74; December, 7.77; January, 7.81.

BOSTON MEN APPEAR BEFORE GRAND JURY

Chicago, March 30.—Charles E. Meade of Boston, formerly connected with the Swift & Co. car line, was a witness today in the federal grand jury investigation of the so-called beef trust. L. C. Curtis of T. E. Baker & Co., Boston, was another witness before the jury.

PRESENT PRICES FOR WHEAT TOO LOW

May Wheat Believed To Be Cornered As the Result of Small Supplies and Increased Demands—Secretary Wilson, of the Agricultural Department at Washington, Looks for Higher Prices for Breadstuffs—Millers Bullish.

Corn Due to Advance, Owing to Increase In Freight Rates and Other Legitimate Influences—Oats a Good Purchase.

The market for wheat once more becomes the center of interest because of its great activity and wide price fluctuations. The splendid crop reports from the winter wheat states and the favorable conditions prevailing over the Northwest for an early beginning of farm-work has placed the market under considerable pressure, yet prices are not specially heavy, with Chicago May, a month that is conceded by best trade authorities to be cornered, holding firm at a decline of only a few cents from the last big advance. Weakness in other months has been due to liquidating sales of long wheat because of present crop prospects, but present outlook is believed to have been fully discounted and the market so heavily oversold that any little change in conditions is liable to start shorts to covering.

On Monday the visible supply was reported to have decreased 1,126,000, or more than three times the decrease a year ago, and the present United States visible is the smallest on April 1 since 1881. The movement of wheat to primary markets, along with excellent cash demands, confirms the strong bull idea that has been advanced since the crop was harvested and indicates what course prices may be expected to take between now and the time new wheat is available. At the present rate of decreases in supplies, stocks of wheat in all positions, including flour, promises to use up closer than at the finish of the last three years of decreased production, and should our supplies show an actual deficiency, as suggested by the Commercial West, and prices keep down to anything like present figures there is great danger of meeting with the same experience as the trade did a year ago when the market developed strength throughout the marketing of the crop and prices scored an advance of 40c. Under the present conditions of supply and demand, and stocks of contract wheat in all markets, a corner of the old crop through the May has more than the usual chances of being successfully carried through.

We should not care what foreign markets are doing, as we are on a strictly home basis, and according to Secretary Wilson of the Agricultural department at Washington, we are consuming close to our production and under present methods of farming, he looks for dearer breadstuffs than anything we have yet experienced. The little setbacks during the past few days have, in our opinion, offered excellent opportunities for buying some cheap wheat. The chances of a profit on the short side are very limited, in view of the late recessions and the congested condition of the market.

The time, then, would seem to have arrived for leaning to the long side in a more determined way than ever. There certainly are sufficient reasons for believing that high prices should and must be maintained. We must look for a broadening of the trade which should not fail to be in favor of improvement and when the market turns and shows signs of developing strength, we think wheat bought on weak spot should be held for very substantial returns.

A good trading market in corn. In view of the easier foreign markets, moderate increases in primary receipts and the easier tone to wheat, May and July corn are selling at about 3c under the recent bulge to 50c, and 3c up from low prices on the crop. Indications are that the Western movement of corn is over, or will be after the first of the month, when freight rates are to be advanced 6@7c per bushel. Other legitimate influences surrounding the market are equally encouraging to holders. America is furnishing practically all of the supply of corn in world's shipments and will continue to do so, as Argentina will not be in the position to ship before May and foreigners have taken advantage of this decline and bought heavily for future requirements.

The reaction, too, has undoubtedly improved the position of the market, and should we run into a period of light offerings, as we are expecting, there would be a sharp bulge in prices. In any event, the bulls can be counted on to set up a stubborn defense against further decline, and if a careful examination is made of the whole situation there will be little difficulty in reaching the conclusion that there is enough of strength attached to the market that could be easily developed to give us a great deal higher prices, and advantage should be taken of all weak spots to buy May or July corn.

There has been heavy selling in oats for the same reasons that have tended to depress the market for wheat, and opportunity is now afforded to make purchases of oats at the lowest figures on the crop. Although receipts have been liberal, they are not regarded as bearish, because stocks do not increase and supplies of contract oats are nowhere equal to a year ago. This, the leaders say, when considered with the very low prices prevailing at present as compared with last year, is anything but against strength. In view of the outlook for a light movement from first hands and the early lake shipments to the East, it is not likely that values will be further depressed. From now on stocks of contract oats will take a more prominent part in shaping the course of the markets, and as the figures stand now, the situation in this respect is very bullish.

MINISTERS DEFEND JAPS

Methodist Committee Reports the Islanders Are Good Citizens.

San Francisco, Cal., March 30.—A committee appointed by the Methodist ministers of San Francisco "to investigate the charges made against the Japanese by a San Francisco paper, in its effort to restrict immigration," has just made its report, which strongly defends the islanders.

"It is said the Japanese work for starvation wages, increase crime in California and are hostile to American institutions," says the report. "Not one of the charges can be substantiated. In their neatness and cleanliness, in their desire to learn the best we have to teach, they are models. The prevalence of crime throughout the state and the condition of San Francisco with its vile resorts, its open gambling, its infamous racetracks, and its more than 3,000 saloons; these and many other things are not due to the presence of the Japanese.

"As to the charge that the Japanese are inspired by sentiments of hatred against the Americans, a returned correspondent, James F. J. Archibald, is quoted as saying all Americans have been dismissed from their positions as instructors in the schools, universities and military colleges in Japan, and that the Japanese government has enacted laws which are exclusion acts directed against American and German subjects, which prohibit any foreigner from holding land, from entering into any business, from practicing any profession, and from teaching in any school or university.

"These statements are absolutely false. There are scores of Americans, many of them Californians, teaching in Japanese government schools. Many foreign physicians with government licenses are practicing there. In the matter of leasing and selling land, the Japanese government is becoming steadily more liberal. For purposes of residence, travel, trade, and religious work, the country is thrown wide open.

"We regard the charge against the Japanese government of planning to deluge us with cheap labor as most unjust. Only graduates of the government academies are permitted to leave Japan for Pacific coast ports, and even they are obliged to certify they do not come as common laborers. The peasant laborers who are arriving on the coast come by way of Honolulu and most of them were in the islands before Hawaii became an American possession.

"We are strongly in favor of such restriction of immigration from Japan and every other country as will secure adequate protection for American labor, but America cannot afford to discriminate against Japan."

BATTLE FLAGS

Madison, Wis., March 30.—The Wisconsin assembly today reconsidered action delaying the return to Alabama of the old battle flag of the First Alabama regiment and the flag will probably be returned at once. The assembly had previously decided to submit to the department of Wisconsin G. A. R., a request made by the governor of Alabama, for the return of the flag. The flag was captured at Island No. 10, in 1862, by the Fifteenth Wisconsin regiment.

These lands are selling themselves at from $6.00 to $10.00 per acre. Our settlers are satisfied and the opening of farms in Northeastern Minnesota has begun in earnest. We have sold about 200,000 acres. We would be glad to make a few sales in tracts of 5,000 acres or upwards and will make the prices attractive.

We would be especially glad to sell some lands to citizens of Duluth. Let our own people show their faith in lands and do something towards carrying on the work in which for four years we have been engaged, and at the same time make handsome profits.

Articles of Incorporation —OF—DELHI COMPANY.

We, the undersigned, have associated ourselves together to form a corporation for the purposes hereinafter mentioned, pursuant to the provisions of Title 2, Chapter 34, of the Statutes of Minnesota, and acts amendatory thereof, and for that purpose have organized by adopting and signing the following Articles of Incoporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be "Delhi Company."

The principal place where the business of said corporation is to be transacted is Duluth, Minnesota.

The general nature of the business of this corporation shall be to buy, own, mortgage, sell, convey and deal in real estate, and interests therein, in severalty or otherwise, and also: bonds, stocks, notes, mortgages and other personal property, in Minnesota and elsewhere in the United States; to lease, let, improve and cultivate real estate, and to market its products; to loan and to borrow money, and to make, endorse, guarantee and discount commercial paper; to act as agent for others, for a compensation, in the purchase, sale, management and improvement of real and personal property; to explore for, quarry, dig, mine, market and sell all ores and other substances, and to purchase, cut, log, market, sell and manufacture logs and timber; and to do and perform all acts and things necessary, proper or convenient for carrying out any of the aforesaid business.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of said corporation shall be April 1st, 1905, and the period of its continuance shall be thirty (30) years thereafter.

ARTICLE III.

The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars, divided into five hundred (500) shares of the par value of one hundred ($100) dollars each, which shall be issued and paid for in cash or in other property, at such times, in such manner, and in such amounts, as the board of directors shall determine.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which said corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of one hundred thousand ($100,000) dollars.

ARTICLE V.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming said corporation are as follows: Leo A. Ball, D. J. Kuhn and B. G. Farrell, all of Duluth, Minnesota.

ARTICLE VI.

The names of the first board of directors of said corporation are: Leo A. Ball, D. J. Kuhn and B. G. Farrell, who shall hold their offices until the first annual meeting of the stockholders, which shall be held in Duluth, Minnesota, on the first Saturday of April, 1905, at ten o'clock a. m., and thereafter the annual meeting shall be held at such time as shall be fixed by the by-laws. The government of said corporation, and the management of all its affairs, shall be vested in a board of three directors, who shall be stockholders of said corporation, and who shall be elected annually at the stockholders' annual meeting. There shall also be the following officers, who shall have such powers and duties as may be prescribed by the board of directors, and who shall be elected annually at the first meeting of said board immediately following the annual meeting of the stockholders, to-wit: A president, a vice president, a secretary and a treasurer, any two of which offices, except the two first named may be held by the same person.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and seals this 27th day of March, A. D. 1905.

MIXER IS A HOODOO

Tar Macadam Plant Is Still Held By the Contractor.

Is P. McDonnell going to be allowed to keep the mixing-plant after all?

That is the question which some of the aldermen and city officials are asking themselves. There have been so many delays in getting control of the plant that the aldermen are beginning to look upon it as a kind of hoodoo. Time and again the bill of sale for the plant has been almost within the city's grasp, only to be snatched away again by some new complication.

Lack of money in the proper fund is now the only thing that prevents the city closing the deal. The general fund is almost exhausted, and will not be in condition to stand the order until the $35,000 advanced for the ferry bridge is refunded by the sale of the bridge bonds. This will not be until some time during May.

The only other fund from which the money could be taken would be the public works fund. The order could be paid from this fund, under a liberal construction of the charter, and then refunded from the general fund when the bridge bonds are sold.

City Comptroller McCormick suggested that the money be paid on an order from the general fund, which would be withheld for thirty days. But should this be done and should there be any delay in getting the money from the bonds, the city pay rolls would be held up for lack of money.

The city comptroller's suggestion is now before the council committee, which will report on it at the meeting Monday evening.

Meanwhile the time limit of Mr. McDonnell's offer has expired. The city has accepted the offer and decided to purchase the plant, but since it has not yet been paid for, the offer can be legally withdrawn by Mr. McDonnell at any time. He has made a formal demand for the money which is not forthcoming.

At a conference last evening between Mr. McDonnell and some of the aldermen an agreement is said to have been reached, whereby the council will pay interest on the money due Mr. McDonnell since March 1, if he will not press his claim for payment for a few weeks until the general fund is in a condition to stand the order.

The question has been before the council for over a year now, and the end is not yet. Meanwhile "Paddy" has the plant.

SUING FOR $6,000,000

Washington, March 30.—A petition for writ of certiorari has been filed in the supreme court of the United States in the case of Stratton's Independence Mining company of England vs. the trustees of the estate of the late W. S. Stratton, the Colorado millionaire. The case involves a suit for damage in the sum of $6,000,000, which the company claims to have received in the purchase of Stratton's Independence mine at Cripple Creek. In their petition the purchasers set forth that they paid $10,000,000 for the property, and this, they assert, was $6,000,000 more than it was worth. They charge that the ore was "salted" and say that in other ways Mr. Stratton made the mine to appear far more valuable than it really was. The case was decided by the circuit court of appeals for the Eighth circuit favorable to the Stratton estate and the purpose of the petition is to have the case brought to the supreme court for review.

BUILDINGS BURNED AT ELMIRA REFORMATORY.

Elmira, N. Y., March 30.—Fire of unknown origin at Elmira reformatory late last night totally destroyed a number of the prison buildings, including several shops, entailing a loss of about $75,000. At no time were any of the inmates in danger. The hospital took fire and appeared to be in danger for a time but was saved. The patients were taken to other parts of the institution without commotion. There was no effort on the part of the prisoners to take advantage of the situation.

INVENTOR TRIES SUICIDE

Because Public Refused to Adopt Electric Horn.

Chicago, March 30.—Inability to introduce an electric horn to a public which evidently considered the ordinary instrument sufficiently noisy and persistent, caused Ernest Filer, an inventor, 26 years old, to attempt suicide in the Central Y. M. C. A. building last night. The young man drank carbolic acid, but was discovered in time to save his life.

Filer for the past three years has invested his earnings in his invention. Several months ago he signed a contract to tour the United States showing his production. Yesterday he was informed that the contract was cancelled, and he became despondent. After deliberating several hours he finally decided to commit suicide.

"Well, You See I'm Back!"

Said a lady who had looked at some clothes for her girl—and then, as a matter of course, decided that she'd look at what the other stores had to offer before she bought!

An exact re-production of one of the "natty" styles we are now offering in Tailored Suits at

She came back and, said she, "I must tell you, candidly, that you not only carry more of an assortment than any of the other stores, but your styles seem to have that 'something' about them not found in the others!

"In fact, I believe I'm telling the truth when I say to you that you tried more pretty styles on my girl than all of the other stores that I went into!"

Two other similar instances happened only yesterday, which goes to show that we can truthfully make the statement: "No such stocks or such beautiful styles can be seen at any other store in Duluth!"

This applies equally as well to the women's as to the misses' apparel.

And yet, everybody tells us that our prices are actually lower than at stores that make a specialty of the "bargain counter" kind of clothes—and those that copy our advertising by telling you of the "just-as-good kind."

We honestly believe that we give you more downright goodness, more value for your money than any other store that sells women's and girls' wearing apparel in this community!

It doesn't cost anything to find this out for yourself, and we've plenty of obliging salespeople that welcome "lookers" and "skeptics."

ROADS ARE HEAVY

Frost Going Out Leaves Many With Deep Mud.

Expected That Usal County Road Work Will Start Soon.

Reports from the country districts about Duluth indicate that the frost is getting well out of the ground. In some localities where the shrubbery is dense so that the sunlight does not readily reach the ground there is still some snow, but this is disappearing rapidly. The same condition holds true, it is claimed of the woods district.

With the frost out of the ground some of the country roads are in a very heavy condition, particularly some of the new roads where the mud is quite deep. A number of the old roads have been considerably cut up during the soft weather and, as soon as the mud dries up work will be started to put them in good condition for the season.

The general road work for the county is expected to begin very shortly, in fact a little work is said to have already been attempted in one or two localities.

In the various road districts the foremen are getting their tools assembled and in shape to begin the spring campaign as soon as the weather is settled enough to warrant it.

There will be some new work opening this spring and summer on new roads projected by the county board on the petition of the settlers along the route it is proposed to open, but a large portion of the attention of the county authorities will be given to fixing up and repairing some of the older highways that are in need of it.

No foreman has as yet been appointed to fill the position of road foreman in Commissioner Kugler's district, left vacant by the removal of Frank Max; the impression among the members of the board being that Commissioner Kugler will nominate another man very shortly for that position, the appointment being subject to the approval of the board.

County Surveyor Ayers is now working on the new county road map which was ordered by the county board at a recent session. This map, when completed, is expected to be of great assistance to the commissioners and to the farm land interests in general, over the county. The old road maps, now in use, were made several years ago since when there have been legalized a great many new roads which do not appear on the maps at all and some of which are only to be located by searching the records. The new map is expected to have every highway, long or short, legalized by the county board up to the present time.

It is expected that the new road map will be finished within the next few weeks, if practicable before the usual spring road work is well under way.

TO GO SOUTH.

St. Petersburg, March 30.—The report that Maxim Gorky, who is in the vicinity of Riga awaiting trial on the charges of sedition and treason, would be allowed to go to the Crimea to recuperate is correct. Owing to the condition of his health, Gorky has been granted the necessary permission to go to the south of Russia. He has had several hemorrhages.

Gorky has just completed a drama entitled the "Children of the Sun." His trial has been fixed for June 7.

IN SUPREME COURT.

Washington, March 30.—The appeal of the interstate commerce commission, in its proceedings against the Lake Shore and numerous other roads to enforce its ruling requiring the railroad companies to classify hay and straw in carload lots as sixth class freight was docketed today in the supreme court of the United States. The case was decided in 1902 by the United States circuit court for the Eastern division of the Northern district of Ohio adversely to the commission.

MORSE WAS DEFAULTER.

Took Fees Filed By Trustees In Bankruptcy.

San Francisco, March 30.—It has just leaked out that George E. Morse, clerk of the United States district court, and husband of Ida McKinley, favorite niece of President McKinley, was a defaulter for $8,000 when he died last November. Two months after Morse died his widow married Harry Cooper, keeper of a Market street book store. Morse took the fees filed by trustees in bankruptcy. When the shortage was discovered the widow sacrificed the life insurance. Cooper admits he has had to pay some of Morse's debt out of his own pocket.

I CURED MY RUPTURE

I Will Show You How to Cure Yours FREE.

I was helpless and bed-ridden for years from a double rupture. No truss could hold. Doctors said I would die if not operated on. I fooled them all and cured myself by a simple discovery. I will send the cure free by mail if you write for it. It cured me and has since cured thousands. It will cure you. Write to-day. Capt. W. A. Collings, Box 405, Watertown, N. Y.

BILL ON MINERAL RIGHTS IN LAKE BEDS IS KILLED ON MOTION OF AUTHOR

Private Banking Bill, After Being Amended, Killed By Senate.

Six Duluth Measures Passed Under Suspension of the Rules.

FROM THE HERALD ST PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, March 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house in committee of the whole this morning killed the Hugo bill permitting the state to lease mineral rights in lake beds. L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis offered an amendment making the royalty 50 cents on all mining leases instead of 25 cents a ton, and Mr. Hugo accepted it. Mr. Johnson then moved an amendment to permit the state to issue one lease as a test and the house adopted the amendment. Mr. Hugo then moved the indefinite postponement of the bill, which was carried.

Karl De Laittre of Minneapolis, who has a large number of amendments he proposed to offer to the bill, stated that he would endeavor to revive the bill later. He tried to get it excepted from the report of the committee of the whole and placed back on general orders but failed.

* * *

The senate, after juggling for several days with the private banking bill, made up by the banking committee and by amendments making a pretty good bill out of it, decided to kill it, and did so in committee of the whole this morning. Amendments that have been added make private banks publish reports and limit their single loans to 25 per cent of their capital.

* * *

The following bills were passed this morning under suspension of the rules having special interest to Duluth:

Permitting Duluth to refund $255,000 in Duluth Gas and Water company bonds shortly to become due; giving Duluth the same power over harbor slips it now has over streets; providing that one district judge and a court room shall be set aside in each of the three large cities for the care of delinquent children; providing for a tax levy of one-tenth of a mill for the police pension funds in cities over 50,000; taking the Duluth school district away from the control of the county superintendent; permitting St. Louis county and Duluth to compromise taxes and assessments for 1899 and prior years.

Both houses decided not to sit tomorrow, but to adojurn to 10 a. m. Monday.

The house committee on grain and warehouse killed off the two pending bills requiring terminal elevators to weigh grain on track scales instead of hopper scales.

The house leaders got together last night and voted against the proposed steering committee, but decided to push some of the more important measures to the front and save something from the wreck.

* * *

The house refused to concur in the senate's amendment to the Roberts' tax amendment bill, on motion of the author. The amendment simply reduced the personal property exemption from $500 to $200. A conference committee will be appointed.

* * *

The senate this morning passed the Somerville inheritance tax bill, providing for an inheritance tax on all legacies over $10,000.

The house put in most of the morning fighting over the Bjorge bill to create county boards of education in counties of less than 75,000, such boards to select county superintendents and see that they are up to certain qualifications fixed by the bill.

H. O. Bjorge of Becker county, the author of the bill, made an eloquent and straightforward plea for his measure, stating that it was designed to take the election of county superintendents out of politics, and ensure that qualified people fill the place. He said it extended to county schools the same plan used in city schools, whose school boards elect their superintendents.

A. J. Rockne tried to get the bill amended to provide that the county boards shall appoint the superintendents but failed.

The house finally by a close vote killed the bill.

The Hennepin county delegation has favored the Duluth electric light plant enabling act, and recommended its passage.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

REPUBLICANS WARNED THE HOUSE MEMBERS

Against Passing Horton Bill, But the Lash Was All Powerful.

Bill Taking Schools From Board of Control Passed By House.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, March 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The thirty-fourth session of the Minnesota legislature has at last accomplished something.

It was growing late, and nothing had been done, and there were fears that the end would come without anything that could be "pointed to with pride" being accomplished.

The legislature has fixed it so that the appointment of scrubwomen for the new capitol will be safely held out of the reach of the governor of the state until two years' hence, when the Republicans hope to have a governor of their own nomination in the chair.

As stated yesterday, the senate passed the Horton capitol bill over the governor's veto by a vote of 46 to 13, two Republicans voting with the eleven Democrats.

Yesterday afternoon the house followed suit by passing the bill over the head of the governor by a vote of 87 to 25, and it now becomes a law.

The action was a strictly Republican measure, and though a few Republicans were far-sighted enough to see the effect the action is going to have on the state, the majority, some with reluctance and others with eagerness, have stood for it, and the Republican party will have to stand the consequences.

The twenty-two Democrats in the legislature stood solidly in support of the governor, and sixteen Republicans stood out in the interests of their party, claiming that in it the people will see nothing but the most miserable sort of peanut politics, that will result in giving the Democratic governor much sympathy and alienating many votes that he might not otherwise have had back of him—should he be a candidate again.

The house followed the example of the senate in having a caucus of its Republican measures, the issue of which was reported yesterday. Seventy out of eighty-four voted for carrying the bill over the governor's veto, eleven voted against it,

FINLANDERS ARE PLEASED

With the Concessions Granted Them By the Czar.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—Senator Linder, vice president of the administrative department of the Finnish senate who is here is much encouraged by the effect on Finnish public opinion of Emperor Nicholas' answer to the petition of the Finnish diet. He believes the concessions regarding military service and the removability of judges will go far towards allaying the discontent in Finland. The conscription question has been a burning one with the Finlanders and Senator Linder, advices from Helsingfors indicate that there was general rejoicing when the decision of the emperor became known. His majesty's decision was taken at a meeting of the imperial council at which Prince John Obolensky, governor general of Finland, the ministers of finance and war, Senator Linder and Councillor Freese participated. The imperial manifesto will probably be issued tomorrow and will be submitted immediately to the diet whose session may be prolonged so as to enable that body to accomplish needed legislation. Senator Linder says that all but a small minority in the diet favor acceptance of the concessions and the resumption of work. Regarding the other points of the petitions, Senator Linder believes concessions may come later.

IMPROVEMENT CONTINUES

A further improvement in the condition of Amos Shephard, who fractured his skull by falling to the floor of the Kitchi Gammi club, three days ago, was reported this afternoon by Dr. Magie, his physician. He is conscious and in much better condition, the improvement being sufficient to give strong hope of his recovery.

GERMANY'S EMPEROR AT MOROCCO

EMPEROR WILLIAM.

SULTAN OF MOROCCO.

Kaiser Wilhelm Pays Short Visit to the City of Tangier.

Delayed Landing Somewhat to Disappointment of the Crowd.

Tangier, Morocco, March 31.—The Hamburg-American line steamer Hamburg, with the German emperor on board, arrived here this morning from Lisbon. The emperor was awaited at the landing by the representatives of the sultan, the diplomatic corps and a big crowd of people. A heavy sea was running when the Hamburg anchored and the emperor sent his grand chamberlain ashore to apologize for the fact that he must delay landing owing to the rough weather and saying that he probably would land later. This announcement caused the greatest disappointment among the people ashore who had collected to welcome his majesty. The usual salutes were exchanged between the escorting German cruiser, Prinz Friedrich Karl, and the land batteries and the French warships Linois and Du Chayli, now in these waters.

The town presents a most picturesque spectacle. Flowers, rich Moorish embroideries, fine rugs and brilliant Eastern costumes everywhere make up a scene heretofore unknown in Tangier.

Emperor William landed here at 11:45 a. m., having previously received a visit on board the Hamburg from the commander of the Du Chayli.

Emperor William, who was accompanied by a brilliant staff, rode on horseback through the densely crowded streets to the German legation. Later the emperor re-embarked on board the Hamburg.

TWO BURGLARS ESCAPE.

Billings, Mont., March 31.—"Oklahoma" Coombs, a notorious burglar, again broke jail today and with Walter Williams, also in for burglary, effected his escape. The men dug their way out with knives. Both had been given five-year terms, and were to have been taken to Deer Lodge penitentiary.

ROOSEVELTS ON JUNKET.

Washington, March 31.—Mrs. Roosevelt and all of the children with the exception of Miss Alice, will leave Washington this evening over the Atlantic Coast line for Jacksonville, Fla. At that place they will board the Sylph for a cruise.

QUEEN LEAVES GIBRALTAR.

Gibraltar, March 31.—The British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with Queen Alexandra on board, sailed from here at noon.

JAPS LACK FEELING

One Reason For Their Great Success In Battle.

Charge Over Thousands of Bodies Without Losing Nerve.

Portland, Or., March 31.—M. Vershinin, former civil governor of Port Arthur, who is en route to Russia, speaks in the highest terms of Japanese soldiers. He does not attribute, however, their indomitable perseverance in battle so much to bravery as to a lack of feeling. He cites as an illustration that in battle the Japanese repeatedly charged over thousands of bodies of their dead comrades, and witnessed the death of relatives and friends without apparently losing nerve in the slightest degree. This, M. Vershinin says, is an impossibility for any European race.

M. Vershinin recounted the experiences of the Russian garrison at Port Arthur during the siege, where, for four months, an increasing bombardment, both night and day, wore those in Port Arthur almost to distraction. He remarked the horrible precision of the Japanese artillery, saying that the Japanese seemed familiar with every part of the fortress, and placed shells wherever they seemed to desire with the most terrible effect.

ANOTHER TRAGEDY MAY OCCUR AT ANY MOMENT

Thirty Prominent Russians Marked For Death By Terrorists.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—The authorities continue to find evidence of terrorist activity in St. Petersburg, and in spite of the precautions of the police another tragedy may occur at any moment. The fighting organization is known to have on its condemned list thirty persons, headed by Grand Duke Alexis and Governor General Trepoff, but the police, although they have arrested several persons with bombs in their possession and have taken many suspects into custody, have been completely baffled in their efforts to discover the invisible hand which is directing the campaign of the terrorists. The police theory continues to be that the central organizations of those engaged in the conspiracies are at Geneva and in Paris, and that the men arrested in Russia are agents selected to execute the sentences. When arrested these agents invariably are true to their oaths and refuse to divulge anything, no matter to what ordeal they are subjected. Only yesterday the police by chance foiled what is believed to have been a plot to kill Governor General Trepoff. According to the latest details of the affair a man was observed during the morning lounging at the corner of Great Morskaia street, about a block away from the entrance to Gen. Trepoff's chancellery. The man attracted no attention at first, as he wore the red cap, which is the distinctive mark of the employes of the messenger company, whose messengers stand at every street corner, but at last a policeman, noticing that the man's face was not familiar to him, approached the supposed messenger with the object of interrogating him. The man, thereupon became alarmed, drew a revolver and fired at the policeman, but missed him. The policeman then overpowered his assailant and arrested him.

Almost at the same hour that the bogus messenger was being arrested on Great Morskaia street, the police, who have been keeping a sharp lookout at the hotels and lodging houses, discovered several bombs of the terrorist pattern in a trunk belonging to a stranger, who occupied furnished rooms in a house in Pushkin street, but who was absent at the time the police searched his apartment. The man was promptly taken into custody when he returned, and last night two individuals who called to see him were also arrested. All the prisoners declined to give any account of themselves. Although the police are reticent, refusing to furnish any information or give the names of the prisoners, the two incidents, the arrest of the man on Great Morskaia street and the finding of the bombs, are undoubtedly connected. The man captured by the police on Great Morskaia street probably was on the lookout for some mark by which to distinguish Gen. Trepoff's carriage, as several vehicles of the same style are constantly before the governor general's chancellery, and when he drives out they circle around and leave in different directions, so that it is almost impossible to determine definitely which carriage contains the governor general. It is said that Gen. Trepoff a fornight ago received a letter informing him that this ruse was unavailing, as he would be killed in his bed.

TO IDENTIFY SMITH

As Man Who Bought Revolver, Broker Goes to Ohio.

Brother-in-Law of Nan Patterson to Be Taken Back.

New York, March 31.—The district attorney's office took prompt steps today to ascertain whether J. Morgan Smith, who with his wife, Julia, was arrested in Cincinnati yesterday, could be identified as the man who bought a revolver of Hyman Stern, the pawnbroker, on the night before Caesar Young was killed. Smith is the brother-in-law of Nan Patterson, the show girl, accused and about to be tried again on the charge of killing Young.

An attempt was made in a previous trial of Miss Patterson to prove that Smith bought the revolver with which Young was killed, but the absence of Smith greatly hampered the efforts of the prosecution in that regard. Stern started today for Cincinnati to see whether he could identify Smith as the purchaser of a revolver.

It will be the first opportunity the authorities have had to confront Smith with the pawnbroker.

Assistant District Attorney Garven also left New York today for Ohio. It is stated that he will be present when Stern attempts to identify Smith. Later he is expected to go to Columbus to urge the extradition of both Smith and his wife.

The district attorney's office has been notified that Detective McNaught of that office has secured the requisition papers from Governor Higgins and has started for Cincinnati after Smith and his wife. The indictment upon which their return is required charges conspiracy, and the papers accompanying Governor Higgins' request for their extradition from Ohio allege that they are fugitives from justice in this state.

Assistant District Attorney Rand said today that when the Smiths left New York a few days after the arrest of Nan Patterson, they were met in Hoboken by J. Randolph Patterson, the father of the show girl, who brought a suit case filled with Smith's clothing. The Smiths, he said, then disappeared.

Cincinnati, March 31.—J. Morgan Smith and his wife, the brother-in-law and sister of Nan Patterson, the actress, held in New York on a charge of murder of Bookmaker Caesar Young, passed a quiet night at the Central police station, but neither would discuss the matter of their detention. District Attorney Jerome of New York requested the local authorities to see to it that every interest of the people of New York is safeguarded and assurances were sent by officials here that the request would be complied with.

No definite charge has yet been placed against the couple, but as soon as the documents arrive from New York showing that they are under indictment there a charge of being fugitives from justice will be entered against them.

STILL LOGGING.

John McAlpine Now Has Two Spurs In Getting Logs.

John McAlpine has just put in another spur track at Forty-six Mile Post on the Duluth & Iron Range road and will continue logging this spring. This makes two spurs he has in at this point and he expects to take out about 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 feet more logs, the new spur handling about half.

The logs are being taken to the Scott-Graff Lumber company's mill, which is doing Mr. McAlpine's sawing.

MARSHAL OYAMA BEGINS A GENUINE ADVANCE OF ARMY; PROSPECTS OF PEACE FADE

Japs Are Moving Forward With Wings of Army Widely Extended.

Heavy Reconnaisances Are Being Made Against Russian Center.

St. Petersburg, March 31, 12:25 p. m.—The news from the front today indicates that Field Marshal Oyama has begun a general advance of his main army with wings far extended. Heavy reconnaisances are being made against the Russian center with the object of developing the Russian position.

JAPS RECONNOITERING.

Trying to Learn Disposition of Russian Forces.

Harbin, March 30.—Japanese scouting parties are very active in endeavoring to pierce the screen of the Russian vanguard posts and develop the disposition and strength of the positions, their attempts at times verging on the nature of reconnaissances in force. A few Japanese batteries which have pushed far forward occasionally drop shimose shells in suspected places.

Yesterday there was a smart brush where Gen. Mistehko is stationed. The Japanese pressing forward in a determined endeavor to make a thorough reconnassiance and learn the dispositions in his quarters. The Russians repelled the advance without uncovering their dispositions. There were insignificant losses.

Chinese state that heavy Japanese reinforcements are constantly arriving.

Late fighting has shown the admirable nature of Japanese methods of gathering information. Every infantry detachment when moving to attack a new position carries a reel of slender telephone previously connected with a battery in the support, and the effects of fire and the movement of troops are speedily reported in the most advanced lines.

Harbin, which was greatly excited during the progress of the Russian retreat, has quieted since the Russian troops halted.

ROOSEVELT AS MEDIATOR

According to the Times Correspondent at St. Petersburg.

New York, March 31.—Repeated announcements in regard to the proximity of peace are confirmed, it is asserted, in a dispatch from a Times correspondent at St. Petersburg by information from what is called an unimpeachable source, showing that Russia and Japan have selected President Roosevelt as mediator, the negotiations are already in progress, and that the suspension of hostilities shortly may be expected.

After detailing reports as to the negative conditions of peace laid down by Russia, and set forth recently in dispatches to the Associated Press, the Times' correspondent adds:

"The selection of President Roosevelt as mediator, which was due to Japanese initiative, is regarded here as evidence of excellent discrimination. The Japanese thereby secure a firm friend, who at the same time will make a point of honor to bring the negotiations to a successful close, and who, therefore, would not be likely to have accepted the difficult post of mediator if the Japanese intended to present exorbitant demands."

NO CHANGE

At the Last Report From Gen. Linevitch.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—A dispatch from Gen. Linevitch, dated March 30, says:

"There is no change in the situation. The enemy is displaying activity east of the railroad.

"Heavy snow fell during the night."

A telegram from Gunshu pass says Gen. Linevitch has forbidden the inhabitants of Harbin, with the exception of the women and children, to leave that place without special permits, fearing that the town may be denuded of workmen.

NO TALK OF PEACE.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—The newspapers today are so significantly silent about the peace reports from abroad that it leads to the inference that they have been warned by the government of the inadvisability of airing their views at this time. Those papers which have been favoring peace say nothing, while the small section of the press which has been insisting on a continuation of the war contents itself with the reproduction of articles from foreign newspapers showing that peace now means the abandonment forever of Russia's position on the Pacific.

KARKEVITCH CHIEF OF STAFF.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—It is officially announced that Gen. Karkevitch has been appointed Gen. Linevitch's chief of staff in place of Gen. Sakharoff, who has been transferred to the Alexander committee for the care of the wounded. Gen. Stakelberg has also been appointed a member of the same committee.

POSTPONE DISPUTE FOR TWO YEARS.

Budapest, March 31.—It is reported that an understanding has been arrived at between the crown and the Hungarian majority in the diet, whereby the war department and the opposition will postpone for two years their respective demands regarding the Hungarian army, namely, on the part of the crown that German be used in words of command, and on the part of the opposition, that words of command be declared in Hungarian.

PEACE PROSPECTS ARE LESS HOPEFUL

Preliminaries Have Not As Yet Even Been Started, Says Report.

Paris, March 31.—Whatever hopefulness the peace situation may have had some days ago the situation has now completely changed and there is every prospect that the war will drag on again. Consequently dispatches appearing in America saying that Foreign Minister Delcasse and Dr. Motono, the Japanese minister to France, have been conferring at the former's house relative to peace, are inaccurate. The foregoing view of the situation is taken by the parties immediately concerned and it is asserted with the authorities of the foreign office and the Japanese legation.

The Associated Press correspondent has talked lengthily with Dr. Motono during the last few days and the situation heretofore set forth in these dispatches reflected the view of Dr. Motono and others directly concerned although with the usual reservation of not using their names.

However, in view of the continued reports that there were indications that Minister Delcasse and Dr. Motono were taking an active part in the negotiations, the correspondent of the Associated Press called at the Japanese legation today and requested Dr. Motono to furnish a decisive statement which would put at rest all misunderstandings. Accordingly the minister gave the Associated Press the following categorical statement, which was taken in writing and may be accepted as authoritatively clearing the situation:

"I tell you explicitly that there are no peace negotiations or preliminaries for initiating peace negotiations in progress at this time so far as I am aware, and I believe my information to be complete. I am not desirous of discussing the general question of peace, for owing to the complete absense of negotiations or preliminaries towards negotiations that question can only be academic and without practical bearing."

"The statements that I have conferred with M. Delcasse at his home are false and are calculated to confuse a situation which is perfectly plain. There is no representative of Japan authorized at this time to discuss peace or foreshadow, in the least, what conditions the Japanese government might not consider if the negotiations assumed a practical stage. On the contrary, Japan is now engaged in conducting a military campaign and she will resolutely proceed with that important work."

It can be added that the introduction of the foregoing dispatch as well as the portion quoted was submitted to Dr. Motono who approved every word. It was similarly submitted to the foreign office where it was approved throughout. Therefore the dispatch can be accepted as being in the highest degree authoritative.

Washington, March 31.—M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, is of the opinion that peace is not in immediate prospect between Russia and Japan. He so expressed himself after a visit to President Roosevelt today to bid him good-bye before the president goes on his Southwestern trip, and said that both combatants at this time appeared to be bent on continuing hostilities for a satisfactory adjustment of their difficulties. He added that he did not talk with the president on the subject of mediation and he did not believe that the Washington government had yet concerned itself officially in any movement looking to a cessation of the war. It was learned, however, that the prospects of peace were discussed at length.

WILL ASK BIDS

Water and Light Department Will Need 2,000 Tons of Piping.

Contract Awarded For Liability Insurances on Department Employes.

If all the projects of the water and light department for the laying of gas and water pipes is carried out this year, the estimated amount of iron piping that will be required will be 2,000 tons. At a meeting of the water and light commission yesterday afternoon it was decided to call for bids for furnishing the piping.

Three propositions will be submitted to bidders. The first will be a call for bids to furnish 1,000 tons, the second for furnishing 2,000 tons, and the third for furnishing 1,000 tons with the option of placing an order for 2,000 at the same rate of purchase, providing the board gives notification of its intention of increasing the order before July 1 next.

The bid of Pulford, How & Co. for furnishing liability insurance for employes of the gas and water department was accepted. The bid was submitted for 40 cents per $100 on employes in the gas department and for 50 cents per $100 on employes in the water department. One other bid, that of the Lane McGregor company, was for 50 cents flat on employes in both departments.

The liability insurance is based on a pay roll of $22,000 per year in the water department and for $17,000 per year in the gas department.

RECOVERS RAPIDLY.

Harper Will Leave For Home Very Shortly.

New York, March 31.—Dr. William R. Harper, president of the university of Chicago, who has been recuperating at Lakewood, N. J., from the effects of an operation, has surprised his physicians by so far recovering that he will be able to start for Chicago in a few days. Dr. Harper will leave Lakewood Saturday for New York, where he will remain three days taking X-ray treatment. He will then start for home.

TWO RAILROADS

Are Victims of Thieving Bands of Employes.

Mattoon, Ill., March 31—For the past week a score of Big Four and Illinois Central detectives have been gathering together the threads of a vast system of car robberies extending over Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, by which these two railway systems have been robbed of more than $25,000 worth of merchandise from trains in transit, this city being the rendezvous out of which the thieves worked.

The exposures developed that train crews on both roads have been engaged in the practice, and as a result of confessions thousands of dollars' worth of the loot has been recovered.

For months the railway officials have been aware of the robberies, and their shrewdest agents have been detailed to break up the system and capture the thieves. Not until ten days ago were they able to secure any facts by which they could begin unraveling the mystery, so well organized were the marauders and so skillfully did they carry on their operations.

Charles Seton Johns and Edward Meyers, brakemen of this city, who have runs on the Peoria division of the Illinois Central, between Mattoon and Evansville, Ind., were arrested at Evansville while disposing of some of the stolen property. They claimed to have received the stuff from John A. Locke of this city, a former Big Four brakeman. Friends apprised Locke of the exposure, and he has disappeared. His cousin, Harry Harris, who is implicated, also escaped.

WILL CREATE RICH FARMS

The Chariton River's Puzzle Course Will Be Eliminated.

Keytesville, Mo., March 31.—To a man who looks at a map, illustrating the Charlton river's staggering course through Northern Missouri, and on down to the Missouri river, he will wonder why some one hasn't copyrighted it as a ground scheme for a puzzle. As the stream proceeds towards the Big Muddy, its jag seems to increase, until it visits impartially every tract of land in the vicinity. It is estimated, from a point seven miles north of the mouth, the Charlton river travels seventy-five miles across the lowlands. The average through Charlton and Macon counties is about ten miles of river to one mile direct.

The new river that will be made in the work of straightening the old, now planned, which will obviate this run-about course, saves the farming land and furnish a waterway for small craft to get up into the country, will be about twenty-four miles long through Charlton county. The land for two miles on each side will be taxed an average of $3 an acre. Approximately 61,440 acres will be affected in Charlton county. That is, land valued now at from $25 to $30 an acre will be increased in value from $75 to $100 per acre.

DE WITT WAS ELIGIBLE.

New York, March 31.—By a vote of 25 to 7 the Amateur Athletic union's board of governors has decided that John R. De Witt was eligible to represent the New York Athletic club at the Olympic games, St. Louis, last August. This decision gives the New York Athletic club the Spalding trophy for the championship of the world.

PRACTICE IS BAD

Duluth Mothers Against Distribution of Patent Medicine Samples.

Superior Mothers Have Taken Steps For Its Suppression.

The action of the Mothers' club of Superior, an organization comprising some 250 mothers in that city, in deciding to take steps to see if the house to house free distribution of patent medicine samples and literature cannot be stopped, has struck an answering chord among the women of Duluth and it is likely that if the Superior mother are successful in their crusade against the nuisance, the Duluth women will also attempt to abolish the practice.

The strong argument that is made against the practice of distributing the sample medicines at the doors of the various homes is the harm done the children. The same holds true of a great deal of the patent medicine literature that is left at the doorsteps, much of it being of a nature entirely unfit for children to read.

The mothers in Superior have taken a decided stand in the matter declaring that the practice is detrimental to the physical and moral welfare of their children and they will endeavor to get the city authorities to frame and pass an ordinance that will put an effectual stop to the nuisance.

What is true of Superior, it is claimed, is just as true in effect on this side of the bay and there are mothers all over the city who will watch for with interest and hail with pleasure any success that the Superior women may have in their campaign.

Within the past few weeks there has been distributed in the doorways of the homes of this city a large amount of free samples of medicines and of patent medicine advertising.

Instances are known in the residence district of the East end where small children have followed up the distributing agent and gathered up the bottles of sample medicine and made off with them to their various playing grounds. Whether the children swallowed the contents of the bottles, or merely played with them and threw them away is not known, but the conditions were such that childish curiosity was very likely to lead them to take the medicine. While the sample bottles individually might not contain enough of the patent mixture to injure a child, the effect of taking several bottles might prove very injurious to the health if not positively dangerous, and child judgment is not to be thoroughly relied on.

The mothers on this side of the bay who are interested in seeing that the nuisance is stopped claim that it is next to impossible to keep the samples of medicines out of the children's hands. These samples are left at the front door or on the front porch by the agents and, nine out of ten times, the people of the house do not know of its presence unless they happen to pass in or out of the door.

GREAT LAKES GET DEEPER

Scientists Cannot Account For the Rise In the Levels.

Chicago, March 31.—Ship owners are puzzled over the rise in the levels of the great lakes in the last ten years and are at a loss to explain it. They are asking whether the agency which has caused the rise will add still more to the depth of water in the lake channels. Every foot of added draft for ships means the addition of thousands of dollars to their freight-earning capacity.

No theory has been advanced by men of science which seems to explain the increased volume of water in the lakes. The natural explanation, that of increased rain and snowfall, is questionable in view of the statistics of the weather bureau, which show that in the last ten years the average precipitation in the lake region has been below the normal. These figures show the rise in lake levels in ten years, the number of feet being the high water height above the mean sea level:

	1895.	1904.
Lakes Huron and Michigan	580 1-6	581 2-3
Lake Erie	571½	573¼
Lake Ontario	245	248

It is not so much the cause of this rise that marine men are interested in as the effect. They are not worrying about any possible inundation of lake cities, but they would like to know if they can figure on their boats carrying more freight on account of the increased draft of water channels and harbors.

On a 10,000-ton steamer, now the standard for the lakes, one foot added draft means additional carrying capacity of 500 to 600 tons. Figuring on the basis of last year's iron ore rate, this would mean an increased earning capacity of nearly $10,000 in the season. Boats drawing 18½ feet of water frequently crossed La Salle street tunnel, in Chicago river, last season, although the average depth for the season was closer to 18 feet. A captain ten years ago thought himself lucky to get over that obstruction when his boat displaced 16½ feet.

"The increasing stage of water in the great lakes is most interesting," said Henry J. Cox, of the weather bureau. "One is usually inclined to look to the increased rain and snowfall for the cause of such a phenomenon, but the records of the weather bureau do not substantiate this theory.

"The only year in which the precipitation in the lower lakes was above the average was in 1895, when there was a slight excess, while in 1898 it was equal to the annual average. During the winter of 1903-4 the snowfall was excessive, yet the precipitation did not reach the average, although the snowfall went a great way toward making up the deficiency. The rainfall in the last three years has been heavier than usual, and recent summrs hve been humid and cool, which has prevented the normal amount of evaporation.

"While this has had effect upon the stage of water, it cannot account for the steady increase in the height of water for ten years, and the clean rise of a foot last year is beyond such an explanation.

CHURCH TO BE SOLD

Congregation of First Baptist Planning For New Building.

Lakeside Presbyterian Church Celebrates Its Fifteenth Anniversary.

At a business meeting of the congregation of the First Baptist church, held last evening, the board of trustees was authorized to dispose of the present church property on Second street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east, at the best price that can be secured.

The congregation has under consideration plans for a new building which will be erected during the coming summer. The site for the new church has already been secured. It consists of a lot at the corner of Ninth avenue east and First street, facing seventy-five feet on the street and 140 feet on the avenue.

As soon as the property on Second street is disposed of the congregation will begin active work on the plans for the new building, as the exact amount of money available will then be known. Temporary quarters will be rented if the old building is sold.

* * *

The fifteenth anniversary services of the Lakeside Presbyterian church were commenced last evening, when Rev. R. N. Adams, D. D., a synodical missionary from Minneapolis addressed the congregation. His subject was a very general one, dealing with the work of the church and what its duties are.

The anniversary services will continue this evening and tomorrow, Rev. C. J. McConnell of Superior will speak tonight. The aniversary sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. A. McGaughey of Two Harbors Sunday morning, and in the afternoon the pastor, Rev. H. B. Sutherland, and Rev. J. A. McGaughey will administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Mr. McGaughey will preach again in at the evening service.

ISIDORA DUNCAN

Fined For "Sassing" a Bailiff In Berlin.

Berlin, March 31.—Isidora Duncan appeared in the Charlottenberg court and was fined $30 for insulting a government bailiff at her residence at Grunswald.

The official called to hand some documents to Miss Duncan, who, hearing he was a bailiff, kept him waiting a long time, then summoned him to her presence, called him an insolent person and ordered him to leave the house instantly. When he turned to go she snatched his portfolio, tore it open, scattered the contents on the floor, crying out, "If you don't run I will bring a pistol and shoot you."

Miss Duncan appeared in court in a pure white costume, her hair in a fillet, her naked feet in sandals, and told the judge she was nervous and hysterical from overwork. The judge admitted her plea, indicting a fine only, instead of imprisonment.

BANK CLOSES DOORS.

Citizens' Savings Bank of Lorain, O., In Trouble.

Lorain, Ohio, March 31.—At the usual time for opening the doors of the Citizens Savings' bank today there were several hundred depositors on hand ready to draw out their money, should the opportunity present itself. The crowd was made up for the most part of foreigners. Posted upon the door was a notice, signed by the directors, which read:

"This bank closed for business. The affairs of the bank have been placed in the hands of T. Faucher, as assignee."

There was no demonstration on the part of those gathered about the building. The capital of the bank was $50,000; resources, $379,895. Individual deposits, $313,940.

Ex-Mayor W. B. Thompson, counsel for the bank, is authority for the statement that the bank's liabilities will probably exceed its capital stock and surplus. Three officials of the bank are named as being responsible for the shortage, and speculation in stocks is given as the cause for their being obliged to use the bank's money.

Driver Thrown Out In Runaway and Has Narrow Escape.

Planing Mill Man Loses Three Fingers of Right Hand.

Last evening the delivery horse of Bisley & Peterson, butchers, ran away on Central avenue, and Arthur Eklund of 1191 Fifty-third avenue west, the driver, was thrown out and quite badly hurt. He was injured about the head and shoulders, but no bones were broken so far as Dr. Graham was able to find, and the young man will probably be at work again some time next week. He had a narrow escape from instant death, however, as he lit on his head.

Another accident of yesterday was that which befell Peter Johnson of 904 Seventy-fourth avenue west. He was in charge of a saw at the planing mill of E. G. Wallinder, when in some way three fingers of his right hand got tangled with the saw, and Dr. Graham had to amputate them. The hand was also badly cut and Johnson is suffering considerable pain.

TO ENLARGE CHURCH.

Westminster Presbyterian Church to Raise Fund.

The Westminster Presbyterian church held its annual meeting last night and found itself out of debt, in which pleasant situation it purposes to remain. An enlargement of the church is necessary in the way of a basement, which is now possible with a sewer system established in that part of the town, so it was resolved last night to take steps toward installing such basement for the church.

It was decided to begin a subscription fund to secure the $1,200 which will be necessary for the basement, and if it is possible to raise this amount to put the basement in. But the church will not go into debt again to make this improvement; the money must be on hand or subscribed.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Brookings—Some weeks ago the faculty of the South Dakota Agricultural college took everybody by surprise by adopting a rule absolutely prohibiting dancing at the college. The dances have been enjoyable features of social life at the institution, and the new rule caused indignation among the students of both sexes. A petition was prepared, asking that the rule be rescinded, but it was turned down.

"Although the petition to the faculty to reconsider their recent ruling against dancing was signed by over 250 students, the faculty stood pat and the scroll was promptly pigeon-holed without a dissenting vote. Thus the campus, with its precious burdens of brick structures, is from herceforth and for good consigned to the somber, sacred silence becoming to a very churchyard. One must almost listen twice when he hears the college bell, in order to ascertain that it is not the peals from some cathedral belfry that he hears.

"A permanent chair of theology and Hebrew philosophy should be established, so that the present high moral standard may be secured against all the varying fortunes of political change. Last year persons in South America wanted to get the plan of our college, because they thought it peculiarly well adapted to their civilization. We have vindicated ourselves by the progress we have made since then, and now we expect sister state institutions on our own continent to sit up and take notice."

Sioux Falls—The state railway board transacted much important business at its regular monthly meeting here. Perhaps the most important was in reference to the matter of the Illinois Central Railroad company constructing a sidetrack to the warehouse and storing tanks which the Penn Oil company is constructing in Sioux Falls, with the intention of making this a distributing point for a wide extent of territory.

Until now the railroad company and oil company have been unable to agree upon terms of a contract providing for the construction of the sidetrack. A contract satisfactory to both sides in interest has been determined upon, and the railroad company will go ahead with the construction. This will enable the oil company to commence business on a large scale, and, it is believed, will result in benefit in the way of cheaper oil.

The junior member of the firm of Jones & Metcalf of Madison, S. D., who owns a line of elevators on the Milwaukee railroad, asked the aid of the board in securing an elevator site for the firm on the right-of-way of the Milwaukee company at Ramona. The board accordingly has called a hearing at Ramona on April 25, at which time testimony will be taken.

The railroad commissioners have been advised by General Manager Williams of the Milwaukee company that if the crop prospects this season continue bright, a station will be built early next fall at Junius.

The Bartels Oil Company of Minneapolis and all the other independent oil companies of Minneapolis and St. Paul have petitioned the board to change the classification of all petroleum products from third to fourth class on all shipments of less than carload lots. Commissioners Le Cocq, D. H. Smith and W. G. Smith of the board will go to Chicago about the middle of April and take up the matter with the officials of the railroads interested.

Stover & Englesby, cement building block manufactruers, of Watertown, have petitioned the board to make a commodity rate on their product so it can be shipped at the same rates as brick. The railroads have refused to grant this rate, and the commissioners will take the matter up with the railroad officials on their visit to Chicago.

Another matter which will be taken up at the same time will be the application of the Stokes Milling company and Stover & Engiesby of Watertown for the construction of a connecting track between the Milwaukee and Northwestern companies at Elrod.

Milbank—For the first time in four years Milbank will take a vote on the license question. In former elections license generally won by a small majority, but the temperance element is putting up a strong fight and the vote will be close.

Mayor Bouck will be a candidate for re-election and will be opposed by F. B. Roberts, president of the First National bank. Mayor Bouck and the council have installed a splendid system of waterworks and sewerage, which has cost the city about $15,100, and necessarily have increased taxes and created some opposition.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Wahpeton—Judge Fisk of Grand Forks held a special term of court here at the request of Judge Allen, who was too ill to attend, for the purpose of sentencing the following prisoners:

John Beddap, a Sioux Indian, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery and was fined $100.

John Phillips pleaded guilty to a charge of petty larceny and received a sentence of thirty days in the county jail. He was arrested for stealing a fur overcoat in Wyndemere, N. D., some time ago.

William E. McKinstry was given ten years at hard labor in the penitentiary. He was charged with burglary in the first degree.

Frank A. Gordon was sentenced to the penitentiary for four years. He pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary in the third degree. The two latter were arrested some weeks ago charged with being implicated in the robbery of the postoffice at Theed, N. D., and the robbery of the general store of B. W. & J. A. Scheuweiler at Fairmount, N. D.

There has been trouble between the men for some time.

Vaughn was passing Jorgensen's house and they had some words, after which Vaughn went to another neighbor's. Jorgenson followed and in an altercation was struck in the head with a hammer. He retaliated by shooting at his assailant, but his aim was poor.

The reputation of Mrs. Jorgenson was somewhat involved in the case.

The tenth annual of the executive committee of the North Dakota Federated Women's clubs, four new organizations were taken in from Westhope, Bottineau, Wimbledom and Hankinson.

GOES FOR WEEKS WITHOUT SLEEPING

Will Then Fall Into Stupor Lasting For Months.

Subject ot spells of drowsiness, during which he will sleep almost constantly for months at a time, and again to waking spells when he will tramp the streets for twenty-four hours a day, and scarcely sleep at all for months, Julius La Lone, 79 years of age, presents to the municipal court authorities a problem which is very difficult to dispose of.

There is little doubt in the minds of the police and of Judge Windom of the municipal court that the man is demented, but his affliction takes more the form of senility than insanity, and Judge Middlecoff has declared that even if he were sent to Fergus Falls he would be turned loose in a week. He refuses to stay at the poor farm, and he has succeeded in making life unbearable for all of his children, who are perfectly willing and able to support him in comfort.

The old man has been living with his daughter, Mrs. Whittle, at 116 East Third street. His daughter's husband is a traveling man and is on the road a greater part of the time. The son-in-law is, for some reason, an object of hatred to the old man, and he has made repeated efforts to compel his daughter to leave her husband. Mrs. Whittle, naturally, refuses, and states that she has always lived very happily with her husband.

The daughter has been keeping roomers at her house, and the father, since recovering from his last spell of drowsiness, which lasted several months, has made the house unbearable for the boarders and family. He has an extremely loud and resonant voice, and talks almost constantly, mumbling incoherent remarks. Mrs. Whittle testified that he has frequently routed the roomers out of bed during the night on some pretext or other.

"One night not long ago," said Mrs. Whittle, when placed on the witness stand, "he came to my room at 4 o'clock in the morning and told me to get up and go and get the doctor. He wanted the doctor to go into court and testify that he was a good man. I, of course, refused and told him to go back to bed. He said if I didn't get up he would rout all the roomers out of bed. He finally did wake up one of them, and told her to come down and have breakfast with him. He said if I wouldn't get breakfast for them, he would take her down to the Spalding and buy her the best breakfast he could buy.

"He wanted to start a show, and coaxed me to leave my husband and go out with him. He told me some of the things I was to do, but I will not repeat them here.

"Finally I gave up my house, and went to the hotel to live. He still thinks he runs the house up there, and he has been going back and annoying the woman who owns it.

"I have a brother at West Duluth and one at Cloquet. We are perfectly willing to support him any place he wants to stay, but we dare not give him money, for he gets drunk on it. They won't keep him in a hotel or any ordinary boarding house, for he is so noisy and makes such a disturbance. We finally had to send him out to the poor farm last summer, paying his board so he wouldn't have to work. He wouldn't stay there, but came back, and I kept him all winter.

"I tried to keep him better dressed, but I couldn't. I used to have to give him a bath in order to keep him clean at all. One day I got him cleaned up and he asked me for money to go to West Duluth. I gave him money, and he walked both ways, spending the money for drink, and came home covered with mud from head to foot. He was out on the street some place all through the storm Monday night. When he is not in one of his drowsy spells he does not seem to need any sleep at all. He scarcely sleeps two hours a day. But when he is in his stupor, he will lie for days and days, dozing, and not eat more than two or three times a week. Then we have to feed him.

"We simply don't know what to do with him. They would not let me stay in the hotel if he found out where I was and came around making the scenes he does. My brothers and I are willing to support him if he would only not act in such a disgraceful way."

The old man threatens to sue his daughter for wages for work he claims to have done around the house. He says he cleaned the sidewalks and carried out ashes, and that he has $40 coming to him for wages.

"What were you paying for your keep?" asked Judge Windom.

"Huh! I guess when a man works he gets his keep, too, don't he," asked the old man.

"Why don't you stay at home and act like a respectable man should?" asked the court.

"That's my private affair," said the old fellow as he walked up and down the room, but the court passed over the impudent answer without comment.

The old man shows surprising vigor for a man of his age. He is short and wiry, and his beard is scarcely more than tinged with grey. He is very quick and spry in his movements, and while his mind is evidently gone, his body is still as healthy as that of the average man of 50 or 60.

Judge Windom frankly admitted that he didn't know what to do with the man. "They won't take him at Fergus Falls," he said. "He won't stay at the poor farm. He can't be allowed to follow his daughter around this way any longer, and I don't know what to do with him.

"Will you go to the poor farm if they pay your board so you won't have to work?" asked the judge.

"I'm going back up to her house."

"But she has given up her house. She doesn't live there any more," said the court.

But the old man couldn't see it that way.

Finally the court sentenced him to twenty days in jail, without labor, for disorderly conduct. In the meanwhile efforts will be made to have him taken in at Fergus Falls or some other state institution.

THE GIDDINGS STORE

Offers Attractive Values to Tomorrow's Shoppers.

Readers would do well to look over the page advertisement of J. M. Gidding & Co. tonight. The rapid progress that this house has made can be accounted for perhaps from the fact that, notwithstanding the high class of the merchandise they sell, they have made it a point to place them at a popular-priced basis, so to speak.

It is not necessary that one should pay forty, fifty or seventy-five dollars for suits in order to get styles for which this house are an authority, but they have made it possible to get fashionable effects well made even in their $18.50, $22.50, $25 and $30 garments.

J. M. Gidding & Co. realize the fact that to do a volume of business, they must do it on small profits. The fact that they have eliminated all of the needless and heavy expense of a great many houses, and at the same time give their patrons service and merchandise second to none, is one of the cardinal points in their success in their business, and which they hope to pursue in the future as well as in the past.

It would be to one's interest to read J. M. Gidding & Co.'s announcement of today, of big and little girls' wearing apparel, and for the little tot just about to get her first clothes, for not only have they all of the ready-to-wear apparel desirable for women and girls, but also all of the little necessary fixings that goes to make a woman's wardrobe complete.

They expect to do an unusually large business tomorrow in view of the fact that Easter is but three weeks away, and they are prepared for same with competent saleswomen. Saturday also is the last day of their first anniversary celebration.

ANOTHER STAR UPON OUR FLAG

New State From Portions of Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee.

Washington, March 31.—Col. Campbell Slemp, the only Republican representative in congress from Virginia, and now solidly in the saddle as dispenser of federal patronage in that state, says he will introduce a bill at the next session of congress for the creation of a new state out of Eastern Tennessee, Southwestern Virginia and Southeastern Kentucky. He has discussed the matter with President Roosevelt, who has given his approval to the proposition, which must first be accepted by the trio of states which come together in the mountainous section of land to be included in the proposed new state.

Before leaving for his home at Big Stone Gap, Col. Slemp said he first enunciated the proposition as a joke about two years ago while engaged in his first campaign for congress. He suggested then that the southeastern end of Kentucky was altogether different from the "Blue-grass" region; that southernmost portion of Virginia was unlike the peanut, tobacco and agricultural regions of the rest of the "Old Dominion," and the same was true of the eastern part of Tennessee. Since then, Col Slemp said, he has been surprised and gratified to learn that the matter has been received favorably as a serious proposition by the people of the three sections of the states involved and is strongly favored.

Accordingly he has decided to introduce a bill in congress for that purpose.

In his efforts to secure the passage of the bill Col. Slemp will be supported by Representative Walter P. Browlow, one of the two Republican representatives from Tennessee, and Representative David C. Edwards, who has just been elected to the Fifty-ninth congress as the successor of Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter. The three districts, which this handful of Republican congressmen represent in three strongly Democratic states, are strongly Republican, and would, if formed into a new state, send two Republican senators and from five to seven Republican representatives to congress.

Mr. Browalow's district is composed of twelve counties with a population of more than two hundred and twenty-five thousand. Col. Slemp's district contains nineteen counties, with a population of over 300,000, and Mr. Edwards' district contains nineteen counties, with a population of more than 250,000. If admitted into the Union these three districts would, at the time of admission, have a population of around a million, or about that of West Virginia or Connecticut and a greater population than Wyoming, Washington, Vermont, Utah, South Dakota, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Maine, Oregon or Louisiana. The territory is rich in coal and ores. Col. Slemp predicts it will surpass West Virginia as a mineral state if admitted into the Union.

PRICE OF SHINGLES ADVANCED.

Vancouver, B. C., March 31.—The price of shingles was advanced today by the British Columbia Shingle association. For several months the mills have been selling shingles to outside markets for less than cost, owing to competition. Shingles have been advanced for Manitoba from $2.20 to $2.50 and for points further east to $2.35. Locally the price was advanced from $1.20 to $1.70.

MISS WATSON WILL LIVE.

Thomas, Ga., March 31.—Miss Agnes Watson, daughter of Hon. Thomas E. Watson, who was reported unconscious last night a sa result of an overdose of morphine, taken on prescription, to allay pain, is much better today and will recover.

WILL NOT LEASE

Rich Zinc Mines Because the Bible Prohibits Sub-Leasing.

Many Are After Him For the Digging Privilege.

Joplin, Mo., March 31.—Lucian C. Amsden does not insist that the lead and zinc of southwest Missouri ought to stay in the ground because God put it there, but he does interpret the Bible to declare that the system of sub-leasing practiced throughout the Joplin district is iniquitous, and that he who "oppresses the poor and favors the rich by sub-leasing shall not live."

Putting his peculiar theories into force, Amsden has added another to the many difficulties that confront the miner. There is a coveted forty acres of his farm three miles northwest of Carthage, that neither gold nor persuasion can procure the lease of, and it lies on the west side of a basin in which the famous New Waddell mine and plant are located, one of the very richest in that section of the country.

Here is such a veritable underground "jack" bin that the owner of the first lease, Col. James Waddell, thought seriously of and even advertised for bids for the stripping of forty feet of earth to get at the free ore with a steam shovel. This is a scheme not worked anywhere in the Joplin district, but the richness of the mineral underlying the Mrs. Amsden land, together with Col. Waddell's experience in stripping for coal in the Wilkesbarre district, led him to think seriously as to the feasibility and economy of this unusual method of going after Jasper county ore.

It is this sort of buried treasure, then, that has set men to beseeching L. C. Amsden to grant a lease on his forty acres adjoining. But it was to this very greed of the prospective lessees that the owner of the coveted tract objected.

"For," said he, "if I lease to one man he will lease to another, and he to still a third, and each of the upper lessees will get what political economists might term an unearned increment, but which I regard as a direct share of what should go to the poor miner who does the labor in the ground. Why should they fatten on the sweat of the toiler in the belly of the earth?

"If I could lease direct to the men I know would dig in the ground and produce the ore for sale, I could do so with a free conscience, for they would get the fruits of their toil, but, according to the gospel in the eighteenth chapter of Ezekiel, to favor the rich is to oppress the poor, and from the seventh to thirteenth verses of Ezekiel xviii., the following text is found:

"If a man hath not oppressed the poor and needy but hath restored to the debtor his pledge, hath spoiled none by violence, hath given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with garment; he that hath not given forth upon usury, neither hath taken any increase, hath executed true judgment between man and man, hath walked in my statutes and kept my judgment to deal truly, as he is just, he shall surely live, saith the Lord God. He that hath given forth upon usury and hath taken increase, shall he then live? He shall not live. He shall surely die. His blood shall be upon his head."

Amsden quotes many other passages of Scripture at random, all of which he applies to his theory regarding what he terms as the unlawful taking of interest. To take interest, or royalty, which is to "give forth on usury," or to take increase is all contrary to the word of the law as he interprets it, and the law of God is the law of man according to Amsden's own personal exemplars, Count Leo Tolstoi, the Rusian author, and Louis Kossuth, Hungarian leader and preacher.

RICH COLORADO MAN

Will Give Check For $1,000,000 to Grandchild.

Denver, Col., March 31.—When the stork now hovering over the home of W. L. Edwards in San Francisco shall have deposited his burden, George Trimble, the richest man in Leadville, will write his check for $1,000,000 for the child, of which he will be the grandfather, Mrs. Edwards being his daughter. The shadow of the stork recently united two widely known Colorado young persons, whose marital happiness was split several months ago by domestic infelicities.

This couple is Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie L. Edwards, whose matrimonial smashup at Colorado Springs furnished the public much food for gossip some time ago. The fact that Mr. and Mrs. Edwards have patched up their differences and are again living happily together is not generally known to their many Colorado friends, but it is a fact, and they have settled down in a handsome home in San Francisco.

Trimble long ago said that he would give $1,000,000 to the first child to call him "grandpa," and he says he will keep his word, now that his dream seems near realization. He is well able to make the gift, being worth more than $5,000,000.

BIG SALMON

Nearly Caused the Drowning of California Man.

Colusa, Cal., March 31.—Jesse E. Rich of Ladoga, in western Colusa county, came near drowning in the waters of Stony creek. A big salmon was the cause of the accident.

He was spearing fish with a party of friends, and, desiring better sport, crawled out on the limb of an overhanging tree. Luck came his way faster than he had bargained for. His first victim was a gigantic salmon, and it did not take kindly to the spear in its body. Instead of yielding up the ghost it started off with such fury and suddenness that the man in the tree was compelled to follow it.

He fell into the water with a great splash and was being towed down stream at a lively clip when he managed to break away from the line attached to the spear. But even then his troubles were not over, and had his friends not hastened to his rescue he probably would have drowned.

FIREBUGS IN INDIANA TOWN

Monroe, Ind., March 31.—The destruction of property in this place by fire is thought to be the initial move in a system of revenge instituted by those who favor the nonenforcement of the laws regulating gambling and liquor selling. There are two places in Adams county that have had all sorts of trouble from the friends of the liquor traffic. One of them is Monroe, the other is Berne, and they are only a few miles apart. A remarkable phase is that the population of Berne is made up, for the most part, by the Amish people, who are regarded as among the most peaceful people in the world—people who settle their own differences and who never appear in the courts unless they are dragged there by some one outside their own church. There are also Amish people at Monroe, but they are not in the majority.

The night of March 3 five of the business houses and two private houses were destroyed by fire. At first the statement was made that the origin of the fire was a leaking gas main, but the destruction of the property was construed in certain unsavory quarters as a warning against interference in the "personal liberty" of certain citizens. March 13 another fire destroyed the village blacksmith shop and another private house.

That it was a determined attempt to desoroy the property of the temperance advocates and supporters of the law was emphasized by a number of anonymous letters sent to the different citizens informing them that unless they ceased their interference with the "personal liberty" of certain other citizens their property would be burned and the whole town wiped out. This, of course, created a feeling af alarm, particularly when one of the letters announced that the torch would efface Monroe from the map last Saturday night. Armed men were on guard, however, and there were no attempts at arson. In fact, it would have been dangerous for a "firebug" if he had been caught.

The question whether Monroe should be an incorporated town was settled recently by popular vote, which resulted 58 to 16 in favor of incorporation. Immediate steps will be taken to organize under the new cities and towns act and secure officers who will protect the people in their homes.

There are a good many people in the county who are afraid that Berne will have trouble next. There has been an ugly fight between the liquor element and the temperance people in that place for yeaas. The controversy resulted in an attempt to murder the family of Fred Rhorer, editor of the Berne Witness, by blowing up his house with dynamite at midnight. Mr. Rhorer, through his paper, led the fight for better enforcement of the laws. Then Rohrer was assaulted in his office and beaten nearly to death and he only escaped another beating in the streets of Decatur by the interference of friends. But, assisted by the ministers of the town, and the church-going people he kept up the fight until the saloons were puractically put out of business. However, the "blind tigers," as the quart shops are known, have been doing business and the temperance people are after them, and it is feared by many there will be a reign of terror existing in Monroe.

TO PLANT TUNG SHU TREE.

Seeds Will Be Distributed For Growing It.

Washington, March 31.—The department of agriculture has contracted for 200 pounds of the fresh seed of the tung shu or wood oil tree of China for the purpose of gaining knowledge by experience of the localities best adapted in this country for the growth of the tree. The seeds are now on the way to the United States and will be distributed by the department, on application, to those who are willing to make a fair test of the plant and report the result of their observations to the officials here. As the conditions which obtain in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkanasas and Texas are said to be favorable to the growth of the tree, the subject is one of more than passing interest.

The tung shu or wood oil tree is "the national tree of China." It is of stately appearance, with a green, smooth bark and sperading branches, and makes one of the finest of shade trees.

Three kinds of oil are manufactured from the nuts of this tree, the light straw-colored or light yellow oil being the only kind that has been imported here to any extent. The other two grades, the brownish-colored oil and the black oil, are used quite extensively in some localities in China.

The oil is used in polishing woodwork. It is a preservative, giving the wood a bright, clean, light-yellow appearance and making it impervious to moisture. The oil, mixed with quicklime, is also said to make very good glaziers' putty, which is used extensively by the natives. It is used as a dressing for leather and in lamps. It is also used as a varnish for fine furniture and for soap making, and it is mixed with color for various kinds of painting.

The tree produces fruit in three years and continues to bear for about ten years. The yield of the nut is from twenty to fifty pounds, the oil yield of the nut being about 40 per cent.

FIRST PHOTOGRAPH

Pawhuska, O. T., March 31.—Ke-ne-kah had his picture taken this week for the first time in his life. Ke-ne-kah is probably 80 years old, although he told the artist he was an even 100. He is a full blood and when sitting for his picture manifested considerable vanity, indeed he is quite a dude. His blanket and headgear were arranged in the most fascinating manner, and in every way calculated to bring out his form and features to the best advantage. On his breast was suspended a horn-shaped ornament, mounted with brilliants, which he declared was a lion's claw.

Ke-ne-kah is held in great estimation by the full bloods and is known among them as "the old man who advises the people." About two months ago a minister visited his camp near Gray Horse. The old man went out to hear the preacher talk, and when services were over declared that it was the first time in life he had ever listened to the gospel.

WEDDING GOWNS

May Be Worn Again By Miss Roosevelt.

Washington, March 31.—If Miss Alice Roosevelt has her own way—and she generally does—there will be a masked ball of the younger folk here when the gray days of Lent have passed. Her reason for seeking to have such a festivity arranged is wholly logical from a feminine viewpoint. Simply, she has five bridesmaid's gowns laid away after only one wearing apiece, and she deplores the idea she must not show them in public again. Of course, it would be contrary to social usage for her to don any of them for another wedding of a girl friend. But a masked ball is different.

She might even make several changes of costume at the ball, appearing first as the Pink Wedding Girl, then the Green-and-White Wedding Girl, and so on.

When Miss Roosevelt was maid of honor for Miss Elsie Whelen, when that young beauty became Mrs. Robert Goelet, her gown was of pale pink silk tissue, with fine rosebuds embroidered all over it. The hat was of similar fabric, with long soft plumes of white shading into pink. Soon after that Miss Alice was bridesmaid for Miss Helen Astor Roosevelt, who was married to Theodore Douglas Robinson. The bridesmaid's costume then was white liberty silk, with trailing garlands of white rosebuds and a poke bonnet of tulle, tied with long white streamers. Later, Miss Alice was one of the train maidens who attended Miss Madeline Jackson of Boston at her marriage to George C. Lee, Jr., of Brookline. Again, the president's daughter was bridesmaid for one of the Pruyns of Albany. Her latest appearance was at the marriage of Miss Elcanor Roosevelt to Frank Delano Roosevelt.

HEIGHT INCREASED

Six Inches While He Was Confined to Bed.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 31.—F. W. Davis is dead at Morgantown, and in his case was presented one of the most remarkable on medical records. He sustained an injury while playing ball four months ago, and although suffering excrutiatingly and confined to his bed ever since, he grew in height six inches.

Davis was 18 years old and a well-known amateur ball player. He was struck on the head with a bat in a hotly contested game and seemed to be gravely injured, although at all times conscious. All that physicians could do for him was futile, and he died.

It was found that his height had increased just six inches from the time he was injured. Doctors can offer no explanation of the phenomenon.

CUPID DEPLETES

The Ranks of a Philadelphia Bachelors' Club.

Philadelphia, March 31.—Despite precautions exercised by the officers of the Bachelors' Dozen club of this city, who zealously opposed marriage among the members, Cupid has invaded the organization and claimed several of the young men.

As a consequence there will be a special meeting of the members next Saturday to fill three and possibly four vacancies in the club.

As organized four years ago, the Bachelors' Dozen club was intended to oppose marriage, and a clause in the constitution provided punishment for any member of the club who married by compelling him to give a banquet to the other members.

AN INTERESTING TEST.

Many are the wonderful stories of germination of seeds after long periods of inactivity, says the Philadelphia Record. It is alleged, though there is some question as to the verification, that grains of wheat taken from the tombs of the ancient Egyptians have, upon planting, germinated, producing strange varieties of wheat. Then, too, there is the letter vouched story of the appearance of strange plants among excavated material brought up from great depths in the earth, the plants being totally unlike anything known in the locality. Whether these remarkable instances are fact or fiction, it is certain that plant seeds possess a wonderful vitality. An experiment extending over a period of twenty-five years must be very uninspiring to the patient conductor, yet about twenty-?ve years ago a series of experiments to determine seed vitality were undertaken, and the results are just available. Samples containig fifty seeds of each of twenty-two different kinds of plants were mixed with moderately moist soil taken from three feet below the surface, placed in bottles and buried with the mouths uncorked and slanting downward in a sandy knoll. At the expiration of five-year intervals the bottles were unearthed and germination tests made of each of the varieties. Eight out of twenty-two kinds had lost their vitality at the first trial, but of the remaining fourteen varieties a major portion—ten—germinated even after twenty-five years Whether these seeds will still possess life at the end of another twenty-five years is questionable, but well within the probabilities.

The vital germinating function of seeds is apparently largely dependent upon the conditions to which the seeds are exposed. To show how important this is, a number of different seeds were sent to sixty stations throughout the United States, Alaska, and to some points in the tropics. One set of seeds was put up in the ordinary seed package, and the other in air-tight receptacles. At the expiration of six months, and again in a year, complete sets from each station were returned to the sender for test. It is reported that, while the hermetically sealed seeds were uniformly uninjured, whether sent to cold countries or to warm countries, the ordinary package seed showed marked detrioration when it had been stored in a warm, humid climate. In warmer climates the seeds showed no appreciable loss of vitality in either case.

STORY OF A SNOWSLIDE.

"When the Liberty Bell snowslide occurred," writes Dr. J. Q. Allen of Telluride, Col., "I was conducting a hospital for the mining companies. Receiving news of the first slide I went to the mine, finding several men who were severely injured. After attending them I sent them down to the hospital. About 11 o'clock the second slide came down in the track of the first slide, starting a little to one side and burying several of those in the gulch searching for the dead and injured of the first slide. We then decided to leave the locality, taking the injured with us. After passing over the next ridge and on coming down into the gulch beyond, the third slide came down.

"This slide ran almost a mile. I was the last man in the procession. A heavy snowstorm prevailed, so that we could see only a few feet, but as I knew we were about to cross the old track of a slide I kept listening. Presently I heard the breaking of timbers far up the side of the mountain. This could be distinctly heard above the roar of the storm. Turning my horse, I ran him up the trail just in time to escape the main body of the slide.

"I was caught on its edge, however, carried off the trail with my horse and tossed, as by a wave, on the side of the mountain, where the slide made a turn. Four of us were struck by this slide and all were killed but myself. In all twenty-three men were killed at this place by slides that day."

Does Your Back Ache?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Disease and Do Not Know Until It Has Developed Into Bladder Trouble, Rheumatism, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, Which Will Prove Fatal If Not Attended to At Once.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS!

Pains in the small of the back, painful passing of urine, inflammation of the bladder, torpid liver, cloudy urine, pains in the back of the head and neck, rheumatic pains and swellings all over the body, eczema and jaundice tell you your kidneys are diseased and are not able to do their work properly. If you have any of these symptoms, great care should be taken to stop the progress of the disease and prevent it becoming chronic and pregnating the entire system.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

G. F. Clements, the noted professional runner and one of the athletic trainers at Harvard College, says:

"Warner's Safe Cure did wonders for me. About a year ago I was run down from over-training on the track and in baseball. I suffered continually, and was obliged to drop everything connected with athletics. One day a friend recommended Warner's Safe Cure as a general tonic and kidney builder. After trying a sample bottle I began to feel brighter, and when three bottles were gone I had regained my old-time athletic vigor and health.

"I heartily indorse the medicine, not only as a tonic but especially as an infallible cure for kidney troubles."

IF IN DOUBT MAKE THIS TEST:

Put some urine in a glass; after it stands 24 hours, if you find a reddish, brick-dust sediment in it, or particles floating in the urine or the urine is milky or cloudy, you will know your kidneys are in a diseased condition and are unable to perform their work; the result will be the bladder and urinary organs will become inflamed, uric acid will poison the blood, the stomach will become affected and unable to digest the food, the system will become weak and the result will be a breakdown of the general health, with Bright's disease or diabetes, which will prove fatal if not treated with promptness and great care.

Cures Kidney Disease.

Warner's Safe Cure is purely vegetable and contains no harmful drugs; it does not constipate; it is a most valuable and effective tonic, and is a stimulant to digestion and awakens the torpid liver, putting the patient into the very best receptive state for the work of the restorer of the kidneys. Warner's Safe Pills taken with Warner's Safe Cure move the bowels gently and aid a speedy cure.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is now put up in two regular sizes and is sold by all druggists, or direct, at 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle.

Beware of so-called kidney cures which are full of sediment and of bad odor—they are positively harmful and do not cure.

WASHINGTON GREAT PRUDE

Officials Censorious Regarding Matter Put on the Billboards.

Washington, March 31.—For a long time Washington has been the greatest prude among American cities, and this prudery has been best illustrated in its official attitude toward theatrical billboards. There are several low-toned variety theaters here, and every bit of paper which they put out for billboard purposes is inspected by the city powers with a careful eye. Ballet dancers, with abbreviated skirts, for instance, are tabooed, and when the big posters suggest anything of this kind directions are given that all that part of the female figure below the waist line is to be covered over with large sheets of white paper, and it is quite a customary thing, in driving over the city, to notice where the bill posters have covered a dazzling array of shapely lower limbs by pasting the white sheets over them.

Recently this prudery took the form of forbidding the posting of an advertisement calling attention to a well-known make of American corset. The figure is that of a female, rear view. She was completely clothed except for the outside dress. Her long skirts swept the ground with a train and folks began to wonder why the district commissioners had forbidden the figure to be posted. There was no suggestion of neither limbs, nor was there anything about the figure that was unlike corset advertisements as one is accustomed to seeing them in the newspapers and magazines and in the department stores.

Finally, some knowing person called attention to the fact that the retreating lady of the advertisement showed a small portion of her shoulders and the middle of her back and the lower half of her arms, and it is presumably on that account that she was placed on the unfair list. The figure, by the way, possessed a good deal of artistic merit. It was drawn by a French poster artist of well-known ability and was intended to be seen without offense even by the eyes of so censorious judges as the district commissioners of Washington.

JUVENILE COURTS

For Delinquent Children Started In Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., March 31.—A new juvenile court law has just been passed in Nebraska, regulating the treatment and control of dependent, neglected and delinquent children under 16 years of age.

By a "delinquent" child is meant one who violates the laws, who is incorrigible, who knowingly associates with thieves, vicious or immoral persons, or who is growing up in idleness and crime. By a "dependent" or "neglected" child is meant one who is destitute, homeless or abandoned, or dependent upon the public for support, or has not proper parental care or guardianship.

In all cases of this kind the district court of the counties of the state and their judges shall have original jurisdiction. In counties having over 40,000 population the judges of the district court shall choose one or more of their number to hear all juvenile cases in a special court room. Known as the juvenile court room. In cities having a population of 40,000 and upward the police judge shall have jurisdiction concurrent with the county judge.

Petitions may be filed with the clerk of the court by any reputable resident of the county having knowledge of a child who appears to be either delinquent, dependent or neglected. On the filing of the petition a summons shall be issued requiring the person having charge of the child to appear with the child before the court within twenty-four hours. If such adult refuses to come, he may be proceeded against for contempt of court.

NEGRO CHURCHMEN

Believe Praying Brought the Flow of Oil.

Indianapolis, March 30.—A fervent petition to a throne of divine grace for an abundant flow of oil and hallelujahs of rejoicing when the murky fluid leaped forty feet above the mouth of the well marked the shooting of an oil well by the Colored North American Oil company in the Blackford county field this week. The company is composed entirely of colored men and the occasion was marked by impressive ceremonies at which more than 500 people were present.

That the oil came in response to the prayer offered by a colored minister is firmly believed by the members of the company as well as by all the colored people present, and as subsequent wells are sunk the shooting will be attended by similar religious rites.

MUST STOP TOOTING.

Enginemen Cannot Signal to Their Sweethearts.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 31.—The roaring "Toot, Toot" of the engine whistle as the firemen greets his sweetheart at the close of a day's run will soon be a nightmare of the past to the citizens of Southeast Des Moines, for the city ordinances say it must not be and the Southeast Des Moines Citizens' league say it shall not be. So the undying echoes of the engine's shriek will never more plow a greeting to the waiting sweetheart and one more romantic tale of the railroad will be lost.

The citizens of Southeast Des Moines have been patient for a number of years to the nerve-racking screeches of engines as they whistle for town, for crossings and for fun. At the meeting of the Citizens' league this week steps were taken to abolish the evil, and a committee was appointed to confer with the city council and arrange for a meeting with the division superintendent of the Great Western railroad.

President Wilson, Samuel Caplan, Henry Hartman and L. H. Schuling were chosen from the league members to wait upon the city council and secure a joint committee from both sides with the intention of laying their complaint before Superintendent Nichols.

Division Superintendent Charles Stemlel, who left this city a short time ago to take up another position, was in fine favor with the league and a great many of its wishes were fulfilled by him voluntarily. He had bulletins posted about the yards, warning engineers and firemen that it would be considered a violation of the rules of the company for them to whistle more than was absolutely necessary while inside the city limits. The order was lived up to for a few days and then the railroad men reverted to their customary screeching.

The Citizens' league of Southeast Des Moines wants its stopped and they are going to see that the nuisance is abated.

A CLEVER SCHEME

Of "Beating" Uncle Sam Out of Land In Nebraska.

Square-Mile Homestead Law Makes Grabbers' Task Easier.

O'Neill, Neb., March 31.—The cleverest scheme of "beating" Uncle Sam out of his public domain, without violating his laws, is that which certain cattle kings of Central and Western Nebraska have just been discovered to be operating.

Not only have these enterprising beneficaries of government bounty been using an empire of the best grazing land in the West for a generation, but they have actually induced the federal government to reorganize its laws so that they may continue their present cheerful arrangement for another generation—unless there is interference and the modification of present statutes.

Investigation is still afoot, to determine whether there is any legal hold by which the government can punish the men who have prostituted the soldiers' homestead laws for the purpose of monopolizing the public lands. It is doubtful if anything can be done.

The scheme is at once simple and effective. The chief wonder is that the cattle barons were actually able to induce congress to pass a law for their special benefit, and that nobody was clever enough to expose the deceit of the measure. It is conceded by experts that no othr land scheme has been so entirely safe and simple as this. The land grafters of Oregon, Idaho and Utah compare to those Nebraskans as highwaymen wielding bludgeons would to Napoleons of finance.

More than half of Nebraska's area is in the semi-arid belt. The lands without irrigation are generally of small value for cultivation, so the great cattle concerns have for many years used them freely. Three or four years ago there was a series of exposures of the fencing of these lands by the cattle concerns. Apparently there had been no effort to prevent it, and great principalities were held under fence by the big "barons." Nobody had been able to dislodge them.

When at last this graft was broken up by the action of President Roosevelt and his subordinates, soon after he came into office, and the cattlemen were forced to remove their fences, agitation began almost at once for the square-mile homestead law. It came, apparently, from the enemies of the big cattle companies. The argument was that these semi-arid lands were worth nothing to homesteaders, because a farm of 160 acres was no large enough to support a family, but if a man could be permitted to take 640 acres, it was urged, he would be able to keep a bunch of stock, and, by judiciously picking his tract, could, in most cases, get a part of it in a valley, moist enough to raise some hay or fodder for winter feed; perhaps a few acres of good alfalfa.

So, it was conclusively shown, the square-mile homestead was one plan by which this great area could be made available to actual settlers. Congressman Kinkaid of the Sixth Nebraska district, at the request of contestants, introduced the famous Kinkaid "square-mile homestead" bill, and it passed.

The big cattlemen apparently were opposed to the measure. True, there didn't seem to be anybody who exactly favored it very strongly, but nevertheless, it went along the legislative ways as smoothly as if they had been greased, and in due time it passed, and the first great telling defeat had been administered to the cattle barons and land pirates.

So it was alleged.

The time came for opening the lands under the new act, and settlers flocked to the land office. The homestead law provided that old soldiers might file their declaratory statements through agents, and an immense number—indeed, a startlingly large number—of these were filed at the outset. Many other filings were made by men and women in one way or another connected with the big cattle concerns. So many of these last, indeed, were made that there were reports at once that the cattlemen were scheming to get control again.

But nobody has discovered the real Senegambian in the fuel heap. After the filings were made it was observed presently that very few of the filings were followed by occupancy and improvement. This was in part explained by the fact that the absentee soldiers for whom declaratory statements had been filed, had six months in which to file. Meantime the 'barons" went right on herding their great droves on the thousands of hills and not apparently worrying about the prospect of early ejectment before the expected inrush of "bona fide settlers."

Now, at last, as a result of an investigation at the Nebraska land office, the scheme of the cattlemen is beginning to be explained. One agent filed at the North Platte land office sixty-four declaratory statements of soldiers. They represented three or four different postoffice addresses; and the curious coincidence occurred the other day to an investigator that there were soldiers' homes in all these towns.

This looked interesting and was followed up. It developed that the agent's clients were almost all members of soldiers' homes, utterly unable to settle and prove up the lands. They had simply been induced to make declaratory statements for the convenience of the agent. Whether there was any other consideration has not yet been learned.

This agent was one of many who worked this same scheme. Between the declaratory statements secured from soldiers who never dreamed of settling on the lands, and the filings made by people who, in one way or another, represented the cattle princes, most of the lands were covered.

The first set of filings has not yet expired. It is only conjectured, therefore, what the plan will be when the six months has expired for which the first filings or declaratory statements are good. But it is understood, from what has been learned, that this will be the plan:

New sets of declaratory statements from more old soldiers will be prepared in advance, and, as soon as one set expires, these will be filed. The same method will be pursued by the persons who, being employes, relatives or members of the families of the cattle kings, have made filings. Thus the lands will be secured for another six months. The plan, in short, is to rent the lands from the government at $4 per year per square mile, renewing the lease every six months through the soldiers' declaratory statements.

The matter will be laid before the general land office at Washington without delay, and, if it proves impossible under the present law to prevent such subterfuges, then an amendment of the law will be demanded.

CUT PRICES ON COFFIN NAILS

Indiana Dealers Selling Cigarettes Before New Law Is Effective.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 31.—Indiana tobacconists are offering cut rates on cigarettes, and smokers of the outlawed "coffin nails" are turning to pipe and cigar in anticipation of the new anti-cigarette law.

In the enforcement of the Parks anti-cigarette law, whose provisions prohibit sale, giving away or possession within the state of cigarettes or cigarette papers, officers of the various cities and towns will be aided by jobbing tobacconists.

Profit from cigarettes is so small as to make jobbers almost rejoice that the business is to be exterminated.

It is estimated that a million dollars is annually consumed by cigarette smokers of the state. Of this the jobber says he receives a very small per cent. The retailer finds the trade lucrative, but the bulk of the profit is with the manufacturers.

The cigarette trade constitutes 15 per cent of the tobacco industry. Of cigarette smokers 35 per cent, it is estimated, make their own cigarettes. The American Tobacco company, or the trust, does 75 per cent, it is said, of the cigarette business. This corporation will be hardest hit by the law.

The fifty or more jobbers of the state are not solicitous concerning the trust. They will gladly abide by the law and refuse to handle cigarettes save in shipments outside the state. The law does not affect jobbers in interstate commerce.

With the jobbers refusing to sell them, retail merchants will not be able to secure cigarettes, even if they might be disposed to wink at the law. Consequently, the results desired by reformers may be attained.

Already a curtailment of the cigarette trade is noticed by jobbers and retailers. Merchants refuse to overstock. Retailers explain curtailment as a result of increased prejudice inspired against cigarette smokers since agitation has arisen. Cigarette smokers, many of them, have taken to pipes or cigars.

In various Indiana towns retail tobacconists already are cutting prices on cigarettes to reduce stocks and are refusing to buy. Jobbers notify customers that sales henceforth shall be absolute, stock unsold after the law goes in force to be unreturnable.

"MAYOR" QUITS

Philadelphia to Be Executive of 'Frisco's Chinatown.

Philadelphia, March 31.—Mayor Lee Toy of Chinatown is no longer a resident of Philadelphia, having left for San Francisco. It is probable that Lee will become mayor of 'Frisco's Chinatown.

When asked about his probable new position the mayor smiled and said "maybe." When pressed for more definite information, Lee smiled again, looked wise, and finally admitted that many of his friends in San Francisco were anxious for him to go to that city, and added that after he had been there some time he might be honored with the title of mayor.

A few of "Mayor Toy's" friends gave him a farewell dinner at the store of Chong Woh & Co. at 909 Race street. Mrs. Toy and the two Toy children will remain in Philadelphia for a week or so and then follow the mayor.

"I've been here in Philadelphia for twenty-seven years," said the mayor, "and I shall be sorry to leave all my friends. I have received a good business offer from a firm in San Francisco, and I will go there to engage in business, and maybe later my friends in 'Frisco will give me another position," and here the mayor smiled.

WELL-KNOWN NEGRO

Passes Away On His Farm Near LaCrosse.

La Crosse, March 30.—Nathan Smith, one of the best-known colored men of Wisconsin and a former slave, is dead on his farm on the outskirts of this city, aged 86. For half a century he had been a prominent figure upon the streets of La Crosse.

When Governor C. C. Washburn came to La Crosse to live, many years ago, he brought with him Nathan Smith as a servant. Through many years of service the colored man became as one of the family, and in the last years of Mr. Washburn's life he placed the old man in control of a small farm.

Childless and alone, Nathan Smith sought about for company, and finally adopted a small colored boy from a home for neglected children. The boy's foster-parent had a great respect for education and sent the lad to school. He was an apt pupil, graduated from the school at West Salem and then attended college at Galesville, where he was graduated with honorable mention. Then he came to La Crosse and became a reporter on "Brick" Pomeroy's newspaper, also leader of the colored people of this city. Later he went to Iowa, where he was connected with several papers, and from there he drifted South, to be lost to the memory of La Crosse people for many years.

In the last presidential campaign George E. Taylor, who as a frowsy-haired boy sat on the seat of a rickety wagon with Nathan Smith as he drove through the streets of La Crosse many years ago, headed the ticket of one of the colored parties as candidate for president of the United States.

RELIGIOUS FEDERATION.

Plans Being Made For Conference Next November.

New York, March 30.—For a number of years there has been a constant but gradual movement among the religious bodies of America toward co-operation and federation; the desire for concerted action in Christian work with a view to the spiritual welfare of the whole nation. The movement found expression several years ago in the organization of the National Federation of Churches, an unofficial body, and its further development is to be marked by the great federation conference in New York Nov. 15-20. It is hoped that the conference may result in the formation of a permanent, official federated council, or some similar body, in which all the religious bodies will be represented by delegates elected at their national judicatories. An executive committee, working under authority of the denominations that have already appointed delegates to the conference, is now making the plans for the November gathering, to which about 700 delegates are expected, representing nearly 20,000,000 Christian communicants. There is no intention of organizing a body which shall interfere in the slightest degree with denominational polity or creeds, an organized co-operation being what is aimed for. No definite plan for such organization has been projected; that is a matter to be discussed and acted upon at the November conference. The likelihood is that some simple plan, having to do solely with general lines of work, will be favored. The whole movement is arousing the widest interest throughout the country, and the coming conference is expected to give expression as never before to the substantial unity of the Christian churches of this country.

INDIANS NOW CAN TRAP

Only Muskrats on Banks of the Mississippi.

La Crosse, Wis., March 31.—Indians who live on French island and some from still further up the river have come to town with bales of skins, which they have taken during the winter. One of them exhibited a dark mink skin, which he claimed was worth all of $7 in its undressed state. In all there were about seventy-five skins, valued at about $300.

Muskrat skins were more plentiful in all the packs than those of the mink. One La Crosse fur dealer, Charles Shorne, estimates that no less than 10,000 muskrats are caught or killed in this neighborhood every winter, and although their skins are worth only from 10 to 20 cents, the number of them makes the business profitable to the Indians.

"The number of rats is increasing," said Mr. Shorna, "while that of the other fur-bearing animals is on the decline. The reason is that the rats find food and shelter about the cities. The animals which prey on the rats do not come near the larger places, and the rats themselves are protected from molestation by their annihilous nature.

"One Indian came to the city last week with almost 1,100 muskrat skins, for which he received an average of 12 cents apiece. He also had about two dozen mink skins, but as they were not of first rate quality he did not get more than $4 for any of them. Some of the Indians north of the city make a pretty good thing of their trapping, and they generally find a ready market for their catches."

A BOGUS SUICIDE

In Missouri Is Suspected By Insurance Companies.

New Orleans, March 31.—Is a certain Joplin (Mo.) merchant the same man who was supposed to have drowned himself years ago at Benton, Bossier Parish, this state?

The insurance companies which settled policies on the missing man's life believe this to be the case. Attorney J. Thompson of Joplin is here investigating the supposed suicide's past history and interviewing persons who knew him.

The body was never discovered, but the man's clothing left on the bank of the river after his disappearance, was identified and years passed without a suspicion of crookedness.

Now it is claimed that the same man appeared later in Michigan with a large sum of money, engaged in business, failed and went to Joplin.

Other unfortunate investments finally led to an investigation into his past life by his creditors. Through this inquiry developments were brought to light which seemed to connect him with the Benton case.

Should the case develop as the representatives of the insurance companies expect it is declared that one of the cleverest and most remarkable frauds of the kind in criminal history will be exposed.

MEDICAL STUDENTS

Adopt Strenuous Methods to Reform Two Topers.

Columbia, Mo., March 31.—When two well known drunkards of this place awoke the other morning they found themselves in bed in the dissecting room of the Missouri Medical college, each with a corpse as a bed-fellow. Around the neck of each corpse was a placard with the pleasing reminder. "This will be your finish."

The trick was the work of a number of the medical students, who have organized a society for the promotion of temperance. Heretofore they have confined their efforts to ducking fellow students who "looked too much when the wine was red."

The students defend their action on the grounds that the cases were chronic and strenuous treatment was required.

BLOW SAFE AND ESCAPE.

Cincinnati, March 31.—Four burglars blew up the safe in the general store of S. G. Whitmore at Tontogany, early today and after terrorizing the inhabitants of the village, escaped into the country. They were intercepted at Grand Rapids, as they attempted to cross the Maumee river in Louis county, and a battle between the marshal of Grand Rapids and posse and the burglars ensued, shots being fired by both sides. No one was hurt. Sheriff Reno of this city with a posse is believed to have the burglars surrounded in Fisher's woods, near Grand Rapids, and is slowly closing in on them. It is not known how much money they got. The store was wrecked and the goods therein damaged.

MOUNTAIN WAIFS

Of the Kentucky Wilds Given to Children's Home.

Many Found Who Were Abandoned By Their Parents.

Louisville, Ky., March 31.—The Kentucky Children's Home society is now paying special attention to destitute and homeless children in the mountain sections of Kentucky, a section where the percentage of homeless and neglected little ones is larger than in any other section. At frequent intervals entire families of children, whose parents have died or, worse still, deserted them, are being brought to the receiving home here, to be sent out into Christian homes throughout Kentucky.

An agent of the society who a few days ago returned from the heart of the mountain sections of Eastern Kentucky with a family of four children, in an account of his trip, gives some idea of the conditions in the mountains and the difficulty of reaching sequestered sections and bringing the wards to the home in Louisville. The county where he found the four little ones in the county poorhouse, poorly cared for, all of them scantily clad and ill from the exposure to which their poverty had subjected them.

Pikeville, where the children were located, if fifty miles from the nearest railroad, and is only accessible by way of the Big Sandy river, a small stream that winds its way along the mountain valleys and is scarcely navigable. Only the smallest steam craft can ply its waters, and the traveling accommodations on such craft are of the crudest character.

The agent boarded the steamer Guyandette at Catlettsburg and was on board from Thursday at noon until Saturday night at 6 o'clock. The boat traveled up the stream at a snail's pace, meeting with numerous accidents. Finally reaching Pikeville, it was necessary to call a special term of the Pike county court to secure a legal release of the children. special term was held between 9 and 10 o'clock at night, while a rig was sent to the county poorhouse, two miles away, over a rough mountain road, to bring the children before the court. They reached Pikeville at 10 o'clock, after which they were examined critically by the physician, whose sworn statement as to their health was necessary.

When all the papers were prepared, the court orders signed and all sworn to by properly authorized officials, it was midnight. The boat, the only one that would reach the section again in a week, was scheduled to leave on her return trip the following morning at 5 o'clock. The waifs were stowed away in a hotel bed, after being dosed on cough syrup and thoroughly rubbed with a prescription of lodino and glycerine. They were awakened at 4 a. m. and prepared for the trip to the boat. Being placed aboard, they were at once clamorous for food, water and various other impossible things that flit spasmodically through the juvenile mind. After the boat started down the stream they were all eyes, clambered about the boat, narrowly escaped horrible deaths in the machinery, insisted on falling overboard, loudly lamented because they could not climb the smokestack, whined and whimpered because they were not allowed to get on shore every time the boat landed, and were finally placed in a two by four cabin and the doors locked to make certain that a full count would be made at the terminal landing.

There was a dearth of woman's presence on the boat, and as the agent was of the masculine gender, his proffered kindnesses were accepted by the children with suspicion and general dissatisfaction. When they were placed aboard a railroad train it was necessary to keep them supplied with something for the inner man (or rather inner child) to prevent them crawling through the windows and leaving themselves alongside the track in broken and bleeding masses. They scattered banana and apple peels about the coach, disturbed the sleepy drummer in the seat ahead, wanted everything their wandering eyes fell upon and wept in childish despair when it was necessary to change cars.

The family of little ones in this case are the children of a man once well to do, a physician, who fell by the wayside as a result of drink. The father's death occurred two years ago, leaving the children in destitute circumstances. The mother deserted them several weeks ago, leaving her native country with an unknown man. Desiring to be rid of her children, she sent them to the Pike county poorhouse by the man with whom she left the state to parts unknown.

The children, three pretty, bright-eyed girls and a boy, were brought to Louisville and are now in the receiving home awaiting an opportunity to be sent out into Christian homes, where they will be trained until they become useful citizens. Every day brings applicants for aid for such children, many of these applications coming from the Kentucky mountains, and every day some of these needy little ones find a home of comfort and Christian environment, through the efforts of the Children's Home society.

ONLY FEW DAYS

Until Navigation Will Open Through the Sault Canal.

Pittsburg Company Boats to Reach Duluth By April 10.

According to estimates made by vesselmen, navigation will open in Duluth April 10 or possibly before. Word has been received here from the lower lakes to the effect that the Pittsburg Steamship company is figuring on having its boats leave lower lake ports in time to reach Duluth April 10, and at that, some other boats may sneak into the harbor from the lower lakes before that date. The ice at the Sault is said to be in such shape that boats will be able to come through in a few days.

The ice in the lake at this point is out of sight, and Duluthians were treated today to the familiar and welcome sight of white-caps rolling onto Minnesota Point and roaring through the canal.

The steamer Bon Ami returned today from her first trip of the season to Grand Marais and other north shore points, bringing back forty-five passengers and a good deal of freight. She arrived at 1:30 this afternoon and reported that but slight difficulty was experienced in making the round trip.

Only once during the past nine years has a lake boat left the local harbor so early as was the case this season, according to a table of dates arranged by Manager Coventry of the Booth line. In 1902 the Hunter cleared from Duluth March 30, the same date as the Bon Ami got away this year, but no earlier opening of navigation occurred as early as the date mentioned on Lake Superior, except in 1903, when the C. W. Moore left Two Harbors for north shore points on March 29. Ice prevented boats from entering or leaving the local harbor at that time.

The first boats out for the past nine years, with the dates of their departure, were as follows:

April 18, 1897, H. R. Dixon.
April 5, 1898, H. R. Dixon.
April 30, 1899, H. R. Dixon.
April 19, 1900, H. R. Dixon.
April 25, 1901, S. B. Barker.
March 20, 1902, Hunter.
March 26, 1903, C. W. Moore, (from Two Harbors.)
May 15, 1904, America.
March 30, 1905, Bon Ami.

MINERS IN FIGHT

Operations at Commodore Mine Said to Be Suspended.

Sheriff Bates Sends Deputy to Look Over Situation.

Sheriff W. J. Bates received a telephone message from Virginia this morning, stating that trouble had broken out among the miners at the Commodore mine, at that place, and that operations had all ceased pending the outcome. Owing to the high wind the message was not very distinct and about all that Sheriff Bates could gather was that the foreigners, comprising the crew at the mine, some 100 or 125 men, had been fighting among themselves and that the work had been stopped in consequence.

Sheriff Bates this afternoon sent a man to Virginia to look over the situation and keep the office here posted as to the progress of events, a force of deputies to be sent tonight if they are needed. Sheriff Bates said he anticipated that the trouble could be adjusted without any display of armed force.

The Commodore mine is one of the Corrigan-McKinney properties and is under the superintendency of Amos Shephard, who is at present lying at St. Mary's hospital in this city in a serious condition from injuries received in falling at the Kitchi Gammi club the first of the week.

HOME OF THE SPY

Every Move of Russian Citizen Reported to Police.

Still Thieves Are Busy and Clever Coups Consummated.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—Outside the door of every house in St. Petersburg stands, day and night, frost and thaw, a burly figure swathed in sheepskins. He is the dvornik—the keeper of the conscience of the house.

Each day he goes to the police office of his district, makes a report of the comings and the goings of the denizens, details their acquaintances and appreciates their character. Less obtrusive than the French concierge, more sinister and more powerful, he is the prime object of the people's hatred.

Whatever of importance is in the daily report of the dvornik is entered in the dosier, which lies against every citizen's name in the archives of the authorities. The Russians have a genius for making reports and classifying them. The stranger in their midst marvels at the multiplicity of officials in every branch of the public service—in the offices of the ministers, in the police courts, in the bureaus of the post and telegraph. All are due to this national mania for reports.

Every smallest item of significance with respect to the conduct of the children of the czar is placed on record. While I was at the front I was considerably astonished one day at being shown my dossier—the report of my references, my conduct, my opinions, and my journalistic attainments. As it was for me, so it was for every one existing within the empire. None can escape exhibition in this national rogues' gallery.

Despite all this vast and intricate machinery, I have little faith in the efficacy of the Russian secret service. Yearly it swallows up vast revenues of which no detailed account is ever rendered. At intervals the authorities awake to the necessity of doing something to justify their expenditure. It is then wild plots are unearthed, domiciliary visits are made and big patches of prisoners are dispatched to Siberia. The channel for private revenge is, of course, at all times perilously open.

With all its policing, St. Petersburg is no safer from the attacks of expert criminals than other capitals of Europe. Some time ago a jeweler on the Nevsky Prospect received a visit in the afternoon from an old and decrepit officer in general's uniform, who was assisted from his carriage to the counter by a footman in smart livery. To the tradesman he expressed his desire to make a birthday present of diamonds to his wife. The jeweler showed his most valuable collars and tiaras.

At last the veteran made choice of a costly set, sought in his pocket and discovered that he had left his purse behind. With apologies, he asked for writing materials and endeavored to pen a note to his house. The excitement, however, acting upon his palsied hands made his writing so illegible that the jeweler took pity upon him and begged permission to write to the officer's dictation. The general thanked him and dictated:

"Dear Anna: I have need of some money. Please take 5,000 rubles from my safe and return by bearer. Affectionately, IVAN."

The footman was dispatched with the note, and in due course returned with 5,000 rubles. The tiara was bought and paid for. The officer drove away in his carriage.

That night, when the jeweler returned to his home, his wife asked why he had withdrawn so large a sum. The tradesman said he had withdrawn none at all. His wife then produced his own letter, with his own business heading, and the jeweler for the first time realized that the common name "Anna" and the common name "Ivan" were those respectively of his wife and of himself. He had himself paid for the tiara!

The mystery surrounding the composition of the secret service is the most effective tool in the hands of the intelligent criminal. On the Grande Morskaia is one of the most magnificent jewelry stores in Europe—the shop of Fauborge. To it, some months ago, drove up a splendidly appointed equipage, in which were seated two ladies. The ladies descended and were received as customers of distinction.

The older lady introduced herself as the wife of a well-known statesman recently returned from abroad. She explained that she had been authorized by her husband to choose a collar of diamonds, and the jeweler spread before her the gems of his collection.

After much hesitation the lady chose one of the most expensive, but to her dismay the price exceeded that suggested by her husband. The shopman dreaded to lose so profitable a customer, and extolled the value of his wares. At length the lady begged permission to drive to the office of her husband's ministry—the distance was not great—show him the collar and obtain his permission to purchase it. Her companion would remain behind as hostage. The jeweler consented.

Time passed; quarter of an hour, half an hour, three-quarters. The lady in the jeweler's shop grew impatient, apprehensive, almost hysterical. Suddenly there rushed into the shop two detectives, who assured the astonished Fauborge that he had been swindled. The jeweler trembled, but produced the lady, his hostage. The detectives seized upon her. Protesting, she was hustled into a hack, driven away to the police office.

It was the last the lady saw of the women, the police agents or the diamonds. The "detectives" were the coachman and footman of the brilliant equipage, who had changed their clothes and returned to rescue their accomplice.

TWO DEAD, ONE BADLY INJURED IN QUARREL.

Collinsville, March 31.—In a three-cornered shooting affair last night, Mrs. John Berta and John Vosallo were killed and John Berta, husband of the woman, was slightly wounded.

Berta owns a saloon, and Mrs. Berta was in the place when Vosallo entered and began a quarrel with her. Vosallo drew a revolver and began shooting at her. She also seized a revolver and returned the fire. Just as Mrs. Berta fell dead with a bullet through her brain, Berta rushed in and was wounded by a bullet from Vosallo. Berta shot Vosallo dead. Berta was taken into custody, but was released later after the coroner's jury had returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

and three refused to vote or were excused.

In the caucus Representatives Jefferson, Fossen, Simons, Mannix, Adams, Smith, Lennon, W. I. Nolan, W. Fraser, Johnson and Teigen voted against the plan. In the vote on the bill all but Johnson and Simons stood by their caucus action, and voted against the bill, a proposition to make the rule prevail meeting with such disfavor that it was withdrawn.

Representatives Lund and Haskell refused to vote, and Ole Peterson asked to be excused, both in caucus and in the house, from voting. Twenty-four Republicans were absent, also eleven Democrats and all the rest of the outside world, for the caucus was secret.

In the caucus J. G. Lennon of Minneapolis said the proposed action would put a martyr's crown on the governor's head. Elmer E. Adams of Fergus Falls said the thing was too small to be made a party measure.

There was some talk of declaring that it would not be necessary to secure two-thirds of the entire house to carry the bill over the veto, but merely two-thirds of a quorum. This was abandoned, however.

It had not been intended to act upon the bill until today, but it got out that many of the members did not like the proceedings, and might perform the operation commonly known as "ducking." It was feared that enough might do this to defeat the bill, so arrangements were hurriedly made by the leaders to have the bill brought in from the senate and voted upon yesterday afternoon, immediately at the close of the vote on the Perley board of control bill, when there was a full attendance of the members. This plan was carried out successfully.

As soon as the Perley bill was out of the way, the bill was reported in from the senate, with the senate's action upon it.

Walter Lemon of St. Paul moved that the bill pass, notwithstanding the governor's veto.

J. R. Hickey of St. Paul, Democrat, asked the speaker to rule on the question of how many votes were necessary to carry the bill over the veto.

Speaker Clague said that he should hold that eighty votes were necessary.

The roll call was begun immediately, and the only speeches were in explanation of votes.

George W. Armstrong of Minneapolis said that this was the first time he had changed his opinion on a bill during its consideration. He usually made up his mind and stuck to it. Now, however, the situation had changed since this bill was first voted upon and he voted against it. He opposed the bill as a question of legislative policy. There was no politics in it then, but now the governor has raised the political issue, and has almost impugned the motives of the legislature in passing it. As it is now a political issue, he stood by his party and would vote "aye."

J. R. Hickey of St. Paul, Democrat, said that it had always been his practice to vote against depriving political victors of the privileges of their victory. The dominating party in the state and in the legislature is making a vital mistake. The people will be with the governor stronger two years from now by reason of this action than they would have been without it. If it had been a plan to create a permanent capitol commission he would have voted for it. But this is a political measure, and is only to keep the control of the capitol away from the governor until a Republican can be elected. The capitol commission was to build the capitol and quit, and this legislature is giving it powers it never had. It will be impossible to convince the citizens that the Republicans are not doing this solely to take away from the governor a right and a duty he has always had. The party will have to answer to the people for it.

R. H. Jefferson of Bingham Lake said he was a Republican when it was not so popular to be one as it is now, and he is still a Republican. It was because he was a Republican, and because the proposed action is contrary to Republican principles, that he voted against the bill.

L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis said he voted for Dunn and considered himself a good Republican. He had fought the Horton bill, and he voted in the caucus against overriding the governor's veto. He had been out-voted, however, and in deference to the wishes of the majority he voted for the bill now.

J. G. Lenfion of Minneapolis said that it was because he thought the Republican party just and fair, and that it could do no wrong—almost—that he voted against the bill. The passage of the bill will make thousands of friends for the governor and do him more political good than anything else the legislature could do. In voting against the bill he believed he represented the overwhelming sentiment of his district and county.

John G. Lund of Minneapolis said it was the smallest piece of politics he ever heard of. The legislature was taking the rightful prerogatives of the governor away from him. The party was making a great mistake, but the party as represented there seemed to want it, and he voted yes.

W. I. Nolan of Minneapolis said there was no reason why the capitol should not be turned over to the governor and it should be. It was absolutely wrong to make this matter a party issue. The party is too big to take up such a petty matter and take such a petty stand. When it came to a question between his conscience and his party he stood by his conscience, and he therefore voted no.

M. J. O'Laughlin of Lake City, Democrat, said that he knew his Republican friends were ashamed of their action, and he did not want to make them feel any worse about it.

W. P. Roberts of Minneapolis put his affirmative vote on the ground that the Democrats in the house had talked too harshly and attempted to tell the Republicans what they should do. He had intended to vote to sustain the governor. The Horton bill was an asinine proposition in the first place. The trouble has been with the fool friends of the governor, and they were still keeping it up. He did not like it very much to be lectured by Democrats. He advised against the caucus, which he thought was a fool thing to do, and he refused to sign the call. He also refused to attend the caucus. But the legislature has a right to do what it wants to, and the Democrats lectured him too much, so he voted for the bill.

Carl L. Wallace of Minneapolis took the same stand in excusing his affirmative vote.

A. K. Ware of Northfield said the legislature had treated the governor well, and he never saw a Democrat get such applause from Republicans as Governor Johnson got. But he believed the veto was the result of bad advice, and he intimated that it came from the counsel of the man that pulls the strings of the Democratic party in Ramsey county.

The announcement of the vote was greeted by applause.

Here is the way the vote stood:

* * *

There is plenty of politics in this situation on the surface, but there is really more politics in it than appears.

The leaders have come to the conclusion that the Republican members of the legislature have been getting on too well with Governor Johnson, and that as a result they are doing too much "boosting" for him, boosting that is likely to help him too much in 1906 if he is a candidate again.

The Herald referred to the situation some time ago, and said that some of the leaders were complaining of this cordiality.

This had not a little to do with the action of the Republican members yesterday. It was figured that if some bitterness could be stirred up between the governor and the legislature, this harmful boosting would cease, and the Republican members would do what the leaders thought they ought to do, oppose the governor in all his efforts in behalf of the state and his attempts at good administration of state affairs, and "knock" him with the people regardless of the truth.

Whether the result will be planned or not is doubtful. There is no question that a majority of the house members, anyway, are heartily ashamed of the course they have been forced into. They realize that they are going to stand before the state in a ridiculous and pitiful light, and they are beginning to fear that perhaps the political results will not be so profitable as was hoped. They were told often enough by their Republican colleagues yesterday what the result would be, and they begin to believe it by this time.

When they hear how the people look at it they will all probably know a lot more about it than they do now.

* * *

There is absolutely no use in attempting to cover the action of the legislature up with a cloak of business policy, by saying that the capitol is not completed, that the commission has done good work, and that it ought to be left in charge until it is through.

The capitol is nearly completed, and in the judgment of good authorities there can be no rational excuse for the commission's keeping busy longer than this summer. In the meantime, it ought to be too busy to be bothered with the administrative features of the building. The cleaning, scrubbing, heating, sweeping, buying of fuel and supplies, employing of help, etc., are not part of the work for which the commission was appointed, and if that work should be delegated to the governor, who has always had it, it could not possibly interfere with the competition of the commission's work.

There is absolutely nothing in the action of the legislature but politics, and that of the most pitiful stripe.

* * *

The house yesterday afternoon passed the Perley bill taking the State university and the normal schools away from the board of control and returning them to the charge of the board of regents of the university and the state normal board, by a comfortable vote of 78 to 27.

There was almost no fight at all, and the action of the house was a sharp contrast to that of two years ago, when there was a fierce fight.

There is an excellent chance that the bill will now pass the senate, since the Owatonna and Faribault institutions have been eliminated.

A. K. Ware of Northfield made an attempt to get the Faribault schools included in the bill, but it was overwhelmingly defeated. The friends of the bill voted against it not because most of them do not believe that the schools should be included among the educational institutions, but because it has been demonstrated that no bill including them can be passed at this session.

The bill provides that after August 1 all the board of control is to have to do with the university and normal schools is to handle building operations, buy fuel and take care of the insurance. Purchasing of supplies is to be done by purchasing agents to be appointed by the board of regents for the university and by the normal board—from its own membership—for the normal schools.

P. E. Dowling of St. Louis county voted against the bill, Representatives Lewis and Miller were not recorded as voting, and the others from St. Louis county all voted for it. The vote was as follows:

The senate railroad committee continued its hearing on the W. A. Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill yesterday afternoon, and after completing the hearing on the affirmative side, the railroad attorneys began to present their case.

* * *

City Attorney Bert Fesler of Duluth was down yesterday looking after the various bills Duluth has pending. He appeared before the Hennepin county delegation on the electric light plant enabling act.

The new code, with the senate judiciary committee amendments, will be before the senate Saturday.

DAMAGES FOR ANDREW LOVE

Jury Awards Him Verdict to the Amount of $1,648.

After three hours' deliberation, the jury in the personal injury case of Andrew K. Love against C. R. Ash, returned a verdict awarding Love $1,648.53, against Ash, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Love was employed as a sawyer at the Ash mill in Virginia, and in jumping from a runaway saw carriage he had a leg broken. The suit was brought to recover $5,000 damages.

CONTRACT IS COMPLETED

L. McPherson Cuts 8,500,000 Feet of Pine During Winter.

L. McPherson, returned to the city yesterday, having just completed his contract with Alger, Smith & Company for cutting 8,500,000 feet of pine timber scattered over a large acreage in eleven sections adjoining the Duluth & Iron Range road sixty miles north of Duluth. The timber was reached by a logging spur extending about two miles from the main line. Mr. McPherson maintained two camps during the winter and found much difficulty toward the last in getting the logs out, on account of warm weather. The district in which he operated is said to be entirely cleared of pine timber and the spur track will be removed.

Game Warden Busy.

A. C. Ross, superintendent of a logging outfit near Bear lake, Douglas county, Wis., and T. W. Taylor, foreman of the camp, were arrested by Deputy Game Warden J. S. Craig, of Superior, yesterday, to face the charge of violating the state game laws. The charge against Ross is that while a resident of Minnesota he has been hunting deer under a Wisconsin state license. Taylor is charged with hunting deer out of season. The penalty for each offense is from $50 to $100 or imprisonment in the county jail for a term of from two to six months.

Sues For Breach of Contract.

Alleging that John A. Thompson refused to turn over, according to agreement, $1,000 shares of mining stock, William Kaiser has instituted a damage action for $250 in district court. In his complaint, Mr. Kaiser claims that Mr. Thompson, on the payment of $1,000 was to turn over the stock to the former, but when the money was proffered he refused to carry out his agreement. With the complaint is filed an affidavit of garnishment on one of the local banks where Mr. Kaiser claims he has reason to believe that Mr. Thompson has funds on deposit.

CORPORATIONS INCREASE.

New York, March 31.—Corporations formed in the Eastern states during the month of March, with a capital of $1,000,000 or over, according to statistics compiled by the Journal of Commerce, involve a total of $152,645,000. This is the largest amount since October last, when the incorporations reached $215,500,000. In February the total was $98,600,000 and in March, 1904, $83,050,000. Many delayed enterprises have been brought forward during the month, accounting for the increase.

Ten thousand demons gnawing away at one's vitals couldn't be much worse than the tortures of itching piles. Yet there's a cure. Doan's Ointments never fails.

ENGINEER KILLED,

Fireman Injured In Wreck on Great Northern.

Basin, Mont., March 31.—Engineer John Webber was killed and Fireman Davis badly injured in the wreck of a Great Northern passenger westbound from St. Paul, just east of here yesterday afternoon. The wreck was caused by the engine striking a rock that had slipped down the mountain side.

The train was running along the canyon of the Boulder river, when the engine struck the obstruction. The locomotive was thrown from the track, landing in the nearby river badly wrecked.

Only the engine and tender left the track, the pasengers escaping with a severe shaking up. Traffic was delayed several hours.

Four Facts For Sick Women To Consider

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has an Unequalled Record of Cures—Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Is Confidential, Free, and always Helpful

FIRST.—That almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacements of the uterus, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing-down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

SECOND.—The medicine that holds the record for the largest number of absolute cures of female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates, strengthens and cures diseases of the female organism as nothing else can.

For thirty years it has been helping women to be strong, curing backache, nervousness, kidney troubles, all uterine and ovarian inflammation, weakness and displacements, regulating menstruation perfectly and overcoming its pains. It has also proved itself invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the change of life.

THIRD.—The great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

FOURTH.—Every ailing woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women.—Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. From symptoms given, your trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of the vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Surely, any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

RAILROAD NEWS

Union Pacific Gasoline Motor Car Said to Be a Big Success.

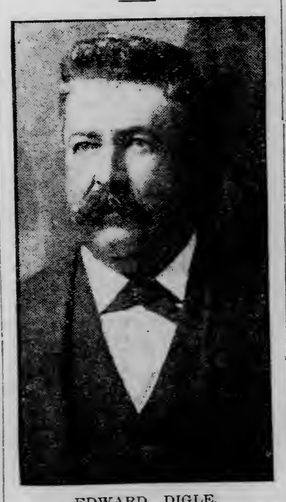

Season Lake and Rail Rates In Effect Saturday.

Local railroad men are showing a good deal of interest in the big gasoline motor car recently built in the Union Pacific shops at Omaha. The car is to be sent to Portland, Or., to be operated on the Union Pacific in suburban service in direct competition with an interurban line. Since the secrecy which surrounded the construction of the car was torn aside, the car has been fully tested, and railroad men have been going long distances to examine it and learn more about its construction. It has done forty miles an hour, and is said to be equal to sixty miles.

It is believed that the new type of car will be used extensively on different roads through the country within the next few years. It can be operated at far less expense than an electric car of like capacity, and it requires no overhead construction. Its great advantage is that it is entirely independent in its operation. It is believed that it solves the problem of competing with trolley lines. Roads around the Head of the Lakes have not yet been bothered with trolley line competition, but with the settlment of the country it will be only a matter of time before the trolley lines are extended through the outlying districts.

The trolley problem has been growing serious, even west of the Mississippi, for two or three years past. The Rock Island system in Iowa has suffered considerably from this source. Trolley lines in the east and central parts of the state have paralleled its main line for long distances, greatly affecting local business, both freight and passenger.

The Union Pacific management investigated the question of gasoline cars carefully, and had a sample car built, which is declared to be a complete success. In order to keep trolleys out of competition, the Union Pacific proposes to build these cars as fast as necessary, and wherever trolley competition threatens to forestall it by establishing faster time, single car service with the gasoline cars, entirely independent of the through service.

EDWARD DIGLE.

Edward Digle, who was recently appointed by the Omaha road as trainmaster in the district comprising Duluth, Superior and Itasca, is one of the oldest railroad men in point of service at the Head of the Lakes, and is very well known in Duluth. For some years he was a conductor, making his headquarters in this city, but left the position to become yardmaster at Itasca, in which capacity he has acted for several years past. He is popular with the boys, all of whom received the announcement of his promotion with pleasure.

Railroad Notes.

H. C. Dow, traveling freight agent of the Great Northern road, with headquarters at Buffalo, has been named by Freight Traffic Manager W. W. Broughton to succeed D. C. Black as district freight agent of the road at Pittsburg. Mr. Black was recently named as district agent of the same road at Minneapolis. Dow's successor has not yet been announced.

An unconfirmed rumor has gone out to the effect that A. D. Ward, the purchasing agent of the Great Western road, will resign April 15, and that he will be succeeded by his present assistant, Vincent F. Devinny.

The season lake and rail rates on eastbound freight will go into effect tomorrow, April 1. Rates on westbound freight will go into effect April 10. They are almost exactly the same as last year.

D. B. Newcomb, route agent of the Northern Pacific Expresss company, with headquarters at St. Paul, is in the city today.

NEW TRIAL IS DENIED INGA

Former Salvation Army Girl Goes to the Penitentiary.

Chicago, March 31.—Inga Hanson, former Salvation Army girl, convicted of perjury was today denied a new trial and will go to the penitentiary on an indeterminate sentence. The perjury was committed in a remarkable attempt by the prisoner to obtain $50,000 damages from the Chicago City railway for alleged injuries in a street car accident by which Miss Hanson claimed to have been rendered deaf, dumb, blind and unable to walk. She claimed to have been suddenly cured through a miracle as a result of prayer at a religious revival.

WELCOME HIM

New Pastor of Swedish Mission Church Is Warmly Greeted.

Weddings Slated For West End Are Many and Soon.

Rev. F. O. Kling was the guest of honor at a reception held at the Swedish Mission church, corner of Twenty-first avenue west and Second street, last evening. Mr. Kling is the newly chosen pastor of the church, and has come here from Wayonette, Minn., to succeed Rev. A. M. Johanson, who departed Monday for Chicago, after a very successful pastorate here. The church last night was well filled and the greeting which was extended to Mr. Kling and his wife must have made them feel that their new charge is made up of warm-hearted and generous people. First there were speeches and then a reception at which the parishioners were introduced to the new pastor and opened the way toward better and closer acquaintance.

Charles Schell had charge of the meeting and on behalf of the congregation extended a hearty welcome to the new pastor. Mr. Schell remarked that a week ago last night the congregation gathered in the church to say farewell to the departing shepherd, but this time it is to extend the hand of fealty and friendship to the incoming minister of the Word. He observed that no judge from the mutual ecomiums expressed a week ago one would imagine all gathered there that night almost angelic; but Mr. Schell feared that the new pastor would find his congregation very human and should not be misled by anything he heard of the expressions of the week previous. Following Mr. Schell's remarks the choir rendered a selection and the Glitit mala sextet sang, after which Rev. Mr. Frykman of Superior made a short address. Said he:

"Although he is surely welcome in other places, we wish Mr. Kling to know that he is doubly welcome in Duluth." Addressing Mr. Kling he continued:

"We hope that when you came here you brought with you your best love, your most intimate confidence and in fact your best spirit and left nothing behind at Wayonette. When you begin at a new place begin right. Write a new chapter; forget the past and begin anew. God has taken away the evil and left the good; there is here a golden field for you to labor in. But Duluth is not a place for an idler. You are young and well able to overcome the difficulties which may obstruct your path."

Rev. A. K. Forsell of West Duluth spoke of the duties of a pastor, admonishing Mr. Kling to take care of his flock. Sheep, he said, are sensitive in heart, but have a good taste and they like clover. He said that the word of God is the best kind of clover and that the sheep want it unadulterated. Said he:

"You do not have to furnish the refreshments out of your own pocket, but out of God's bounteous storehouse. May the congregation grow and prosper under your care."

Rev. Mr. Kling, for whom the reception was held, replied briefly. He said he knew of the past trials which the congregation has been through and hopes the future will be brighter. He appeared to thoroughly appreciate the heartiness and goodfellowship of the audience and made a good impression upon them. He is a young man and great things are expected to result from his ministry here. His predecessor, Rev. A. M. Johanson, has set a high standard for the work to be done.

REV. F. O. KLING,
New Pastor of Swedish Mission Church.

WEST END WEDDINGS

Numerous Soon and June Will See More.

It is understood that quite a number of weddings are slated for the West end for the very near future, and that June will see the marriage idea epidemic. A considerable number of unions are about to be announced, and all are of well-known young people.

Tomorrow night Miss Theresa Soder at 8 o'clock at the home of friends at 226 Twentieth avenue west. Invitations to the wedding have been issued to quite a number of friends. The young couple will shortly announce where they will reside.

Wednesday night Miss Myra Grandy and Martin Rosendahl were married at Mrs. Culbertson's home at the West end, as has already been announced.

And more are coming.

SURPRISE MRS. HARRIS.

Friends Enjoy Dutch Lunch and Cards.

A surprise party was given on Tuesday night for Mrs. Theodore Harris at her home, 2015 West Third street, and a most delightful time was had by all present. Cards were played, and afterwards a Dutch lunch was served. The invited guests were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Richard Schell, G. P. Rosenblad, J. Twaddle, P. L. Jarvis, Wilfred Harris, Jack Schuyler and Charles Applehagen; Mrs. Egbert of Seattle; Misses Annie Purdy and Brophy, and Messrs. Sam Glass, Culver, Wright and John Breen.

West End Wanderings.

The funeral of Mrs. Wetterlind took place yesterday afternoon and the burial took place at Forest Hill cemetery.

Charles W. Leake, a passenger engineer on the Northern Pacific, is recovering from a severe attack of erysipelas.

And William Nordstrom will be married ling the winter in Mississippi and other parts of the South.

A number of West end Samaritans and their ladies will attend the Samaritan concert and social to be held tonight at Elks' hall.

West end employes of the Northern Pacific transportation department are contemplating the forming of a baseball team with which to compete with other amateur nines in and out of Duluth. There is some excellent baseball material among the railroad men, and it is believed that an organization can be formed among them that will keep other teams hustling to protect the honors.

R. R. Forward returned yesterday from the range, which he was covering in a business way.

B. A. Martin has been sick since Tuesday with a heavy cold.

IN FAVOR OF JUI JITSU

Washington, March 31.—The war department has made public the report of the joint board of army and navy officers convened by special orders of Feb. 8, to take into consideration the physical training of cadets at the military academy and of midshipmen at the naval academy. The report is endorsed by President Roosevelt, who directs that the recommendations be carried out and also that a further report on progress be submitted to him sixty days hence. Secretary Taft approved the recommendation and Acting Secretary Darling approves the recommendations, except as to the suggestion that the sword of the army be made a part of the equipment of every ship in the navy for the use of officers and landing parties.

The report is very long. Its most important feature is the recommendation that the Japanese art of jiu jitsu be incorporated in the course with boxing and wrestling. The board reports that it is not of great value as a means of physical development, but the knowledge of the system would inspire the individual with a degree of self-confidence. The board recommends that physical training be extended over the four years' course at each academy instead of one year as at present. In discussing the use of swords and after recommending their use on ships, to which objection is made by Acting Secretary Darling, the report says:

"As regards the army, it may be said that as far as the evidence at the disposal of the board goes, the sentiment of the army is largely against the use of any sword at all by officers in the field, the leda being to replace the sword by the revolver. This was the practice in the Philippines by almost universal consent and without any orders in connection therewith emanating from superior authority.

"This widespread opinion against the sword and in favor of the revolver only, is founded upon service under abnormal conditions, in a country largely underbrush and against a foe who rarely stood against a determined advance, and with a sword which itself was an inferior weapon.

"A careful examination of the fighting in the Russo-Japanese war, under modern conditions as regards firearms, and under greatly improved conditions as regards artillery fire, has shown conclusively that the sword is not a weapon of the past.

"The increased killing power of the magazine rifle and rapid-fire field guns has operated to force both the Japanese and Russian armies, in order to minimize their losses, to make many night attacks. These night attacks are not surprises by small bodies of troops, but movements of divisions and armies in battle formation. The result of this development has been to force the frequent employment of the bayonet by the enlisted man, and of the sword by the officer, and to increase their importance as fighting weapons. The losses due to 'cold steel' in this war will probably never be accurately known, but enough has already been reported officially on both sides to show that the sword has been effectively used, particularly in these night attacks. These being facts, it follows as a corrolary that the sword adopted for officers of the army should be a fighting weapon and not merely a badge of office."

Other points of interest contained in the report are these:

The training of the students as future instructors in physical training.

The board believes that the best physical development can be obtained only by a study of the physical condition of each cadet or midshipman, and the use by him of exercises such as will tend to remedy his physical defects. This involves the careful and periodical examination and measurement of each individual and the prescription for him of suitable exercises.

The board is thoroughly convinced that in order to secure the proper physical development of the average student a minimum of time to be devoted to compulsory physical exercise is two hours each week throughout the entire course.

"The regular practice of judicious and healthful exercises by cadets and midshipmen throughout their four years' course will develop habits and exercise in youth which will tend to be prolonged into later life and thus have a marked effect in raising the standard of physical condition and physical endurance in the officers of the United States service.

"The board finds that the present force of instructors in physical training at each academy is inadequate to its needs, even with the limited amount of time now devoted to this work. With the extension of time recommended above, at least three additional instructors will be required at each academy."

STEEPLE CHASE

Won By Kirkland With Napper Tandy Second.

Liverpool, March 31.—Kirkland won the grand national steeple chase of 2,550 sovereigns, today. Napper Tandy was second and Buckaway II. was third. Twenty-seven horses started.

The result of the grand national was a complete upset of all calculations. King Edward's new purchase, Moifa, was generally regarded as an almost certain winner but his jockey this morning was kicked and was unable to ride, possibly accounting for the defeat of the favorite. The king was present with a large party to see the race.

Mr. Gollan's Seashore II. recently purchased by an American sportsman, "Mr. Cotton" ran but was not placed.

LAWMAKES HER HEIR

Missing Link In Dolling Will Case at Waupaca.

Waupaca, Wis., March 31.—The discovery of an old special statute of the Wisconsin legislature assures for Mrs. John A. Radley of this city the Dolling estate, said to be worth thousands of dollars, after one of the hardest contests in the county court here, as a climax to a romantic life story of the woman. Judge Hatch has decided the contest in the courts for several years, in favor of Mrs. Radley. Her biography is unusual.

Richard Dolling, a young, ambitious farmer, living in England, became dissatisfied with his lot in the '50s, and, with his wife, came to this country, finally buying a farm in Lamark. In 1860 the wife of Joel Knight, Sr., then and at present living in the town of Farmington, near the Dolling farm, died, and left him with an infant daughter. The Dollings made overtures to Mr. Knight, and finally adopted the little girl, then three years old. The parties interested came to Waupaca, and the necessary papers of relinquishment were drawn up by B. L. Browne, at that time state senator, and signed by Mr. Knight.

In the '70s, Richard Dolling sent to England for his brother, Thomas, to come. Thomas bought a farm adjoining Richard's, and started to make a home for his wife and children, whom he had left in England. But not long after some of his stock became loose and broke into Richard's field. As a consequence the two became estranged; soon after, when the stock repeated the performance, high words passed between them. Richard had his gun with him, and the result was that Thomas was killed.

Richard was arrested, tried at Stevens Point, and convicted of manslaughter. His attorney, E. L. Browne, secured a new trial for him and took the case to Green Bay and was successful in getting him cleared.

Within a few years Richard's wife died and after a year or two he sent to England for Thomas' widow, who came over and soon after her arrival he married her. The adopted daughter was the only child he ever had. She became the bride of John A. Radley, who is at present town treasurer of Dayton. He is a son of W. W. Radley, one of the pioneers of that town.

In 1898 Richard Dolling was sent to the Northern hospital for treatment, his wife being appointed his guardian. Later he was transferred to a county asylum as a chronic case. In 1902, Mrs. Dolling passed away, and L. F. Shoemaker was appointed guardian of Richard, who died a year ago. Mr. Shoemaker was appointed administrator.

Soon after Dolling's death Mrs. Eliza Anderson of Saxeville, Thomas Dolling's daughter, and a niece of Richard, came into county court and asked that the estate be divided between the twelve nephews and nieces of Richard Dolling, as being next of kin, the other eleven residing in England. Her claim was contested by Mrs. Caroline Radley, who claimed, as an adopted child, that she was the legal heir. The testimony, while it showed that Mr. Knight had relinquished all claim to her as his daughter, stopped short of showing her legal adoption by Mr. Dolling. The files of the county court at Stevens Point were ransacked, all to no purpose. Judge Hatch required more proof.

George Bowers, who lives in Dayton, in talking over the matter remembered that in his childhood, when his mother had talked of adopting a girl, she had stated that Mr. Dolling had gone to the legislature for legal authority to adopt Caroline. Following up this clue it was found that in 1862 Mr. Browne, while state senator, had secured the passage of a special act of the legislature, it being chapter 66 of the private and local laws for that session, making Caroline Knight the legal daughter of Richard Dolling, and constituting her his heir-at-law. This proof was brought before Judge Hatch, and he has assigned the estate to her.

GOVERNMENT CONTROLS

Indian Lands Even After Title Has Passed.

St. Paul, March 31.—Judge Lochren of the United States district court, in a decision handed down yesterday on the argument for a writ of habeas corpus, holds that land in an Indian reservation is still subject to government control, even though the title has passed from the government.

The decision was given in denying a writ of habeas corpus for Hugh Funk, charged with introducing liquor on the Chippewa Indian reservation.

The land in Cass county had originally been alloted to an Indian woman, and was sold by her heirs after her death, as is allowed by the government. Funk rented the land from the owner and erected a saloon and began selling liquor.

The case raises an entirely new point, and one which is considered very important by the district attorney's office in dealing with Indians on reservations.

TO CONTINUE THE PROTEST

Many Congregationalists Still Opposed to Rockefeller's Gift.

Boston, March 31.—Despite the fact that the prudential committee of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions has practically decided to accept the gift of $100,000 from John D. Rockefeller to further the work of the board, a committee representing the Congregational clergymen of Boston and vicinity, who are opposed to the acceptance of the gift, met yesterday and decided to continue the protest. It was agreed by the members of the committee that a wide expression of opinion on the question was desirable, and for this purpose a committee was appointed to submit the facts and documents in the matter to the Congregational ministers of the country. The prudential committee will not take final action on the acceptance of Mr. Rockefeller's gift for two weeks, and it is the intention of the protesting committee to learn, if possible, the general feeling among the clergymen of the denomination.

Yesterday's meeting, which was private, was held at the rooms of the Twentieth Century club, and was attended by fifteen members of the committee. Last night the following statement regarding the proceedings was issued by Rev. Herbert W. Gleason, secretary of the protestants' committee:

"The committee considered the reply of the prudential committee to the protest, and were a unit in the conviction that this reply raises a still more fundamental and serious issue, namely, that the prudential committee disclaims all moral responsibility for discrimination as to the sources from which they receive money for Christian work. For this reason it seemed to the committee all the more necessary to retain the protest. Therefore, since the prudential committee has deferred final action for two weeks, in order that as wide an expression of opinion as possible might be made upon the issue, a committee was appointed to submit the facts and documents in the matter to the Congregational ministers of the country. This committee was instructed to confer with the prudential committee and endeavor to secure, if possible, their co-operation in this action."

Dr. Washington Gladden of Columbus, Ohio, and President William J. Tucker of Dartmouth college, were in communication with the committee by telegram and letter. President Tucker wrote in part as follows:

"In regard to the general position taken by the defenders of the action of the prudential committee in accepting Mr. Rockefeller's gift, that a missionary organization has no right to discriminate in regard to the money received, lest it passed unwarranted judgment upon the business methods of the donor, I take issue at once. The acceptance by the American board of a gift from this source, under the present conditions, must mean one of two things. Either that the board believes that the business methods involved are correct, or that they are a matter of moral indifference so far as the reception of the money is concerned. For one, I do not like to see the American board take either one of these positions. Such action hurts the conscience of the coming generation more than that of the generation which is passing. It is not an incentive to missionary zeal.

"No organization set to the high and lasting ends of Christian service can allow itself to be thought indifferent to the moral issue of the day, whenever these issues are necessarily affected by its action."

EFFECT ON NAVIGATION

By Deep Waterway to Be Studied By Joint Commission.

Washington, March 30.—The president has selected the American members of the joint international commission to study the effect on the navigation of the great lakes of the changes of level expected to result from the execution of the deep waterway project. They are George Clinton, a lawyer of New York; Gen. Oswald H. Ernest, corps of engineers, United States army, and Prof. Gardner Stewart William, professor of hydraulic engineering at Cornell. The Canadian commissioners are J. P. Maybe of Toronto, W. F. King, Dominion astronomer of Ottawa, and Louis A. Acoste, civil engineer of Ottawa, with Thomas Cole as secretary.

The American commissioners have been instructed to arrange a meeting among themselves for organization and then to correspond with the Canadians and select a time and place (probably Toronto) for the joint meeting to begin the work.

LAKE TERMINALS

Of Grand Trunk Pacific at Mission Island.

Winnipeg, March 31.—The lake terminals of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway are to be on Mission island at Fort William. This announcement was made yesterday to the citizen's committee of Port Arthur which was selected to meet F. W. Morse, general manager of the road. Mr. Morse said that Mission island was selected because it was of larger area than Bear point at Fort William and afforded more room for expansion. The docks, yards and storage sheds of the company will be at Fort William.

TROUBLES OF NEGRO CLERK

White Men Will Not Let Him Hold Office at Yazoo.

Washington, March 31.—T. Major Hornsby, a young negro, who twice passed a civil service examination and twice has been appointed to clerkships in the postoffice at Yazoo, Miss., has complained at the White House that he is prevented from holding his position by the brutality of white citizens of Yazoo. Hornsby was presented at the White House by the Rev. S. L. Corothers, but the president was unable to take up the case because practically that remains of his time before his Western trip has been filled with engagements. The case was stated to Secretary Loeb, however, and Hornsby was referred to the civil service commission.

According to the negro's story, he entered upon his duties at the Yazoo postoffice, whereupon white patrons of the postoffice thrashed him several times as he was caught going to and from his home. This treatment resulted in the resignation of Hornsby, but he took the examination for the vacancy that was created by his own resignation. Others who took the examination were two negro men, one negress and two white men. Hornsby passed the examination and again was appointed. While returning from Jackson, Miss., where his bond was fixed up, Hornsby noticed a gathering of white people near the train after it entered the Yazoo railway yards. He left the train and attempted to escape, but was overtaken and carried off to an oil mill, where some counselled lynching and others whipping the negro. Hornsby agreed to write out his resignation and leave Yazoo, never to return. The resignation was sent to Washington and Hornsby followed it. He is seeking relief, but is not sure of the character of relief he wants. He says he is afraid to return to Yazoo.

MILWAUKEE ROAD TO BUILD IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Chicago, March 31.—Official announcement was made yesterday that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road had decided upon an extension from Camberlain, S. D., through Lyman county, S. D., opening up a new region of cheap lands rich in agricultural resources, mild climate and productive soil. The region contains much deeded land and a large acreage that may be had under the homestead law. Lyman county is in the southern part of South Dakota, adjoining the Rosebud Indian reservation on the north. It is watered by the White river on the south, the Missouri river on the east, Medicine creek through the center and Bad river in the northwest, with a large number of smaller streams.

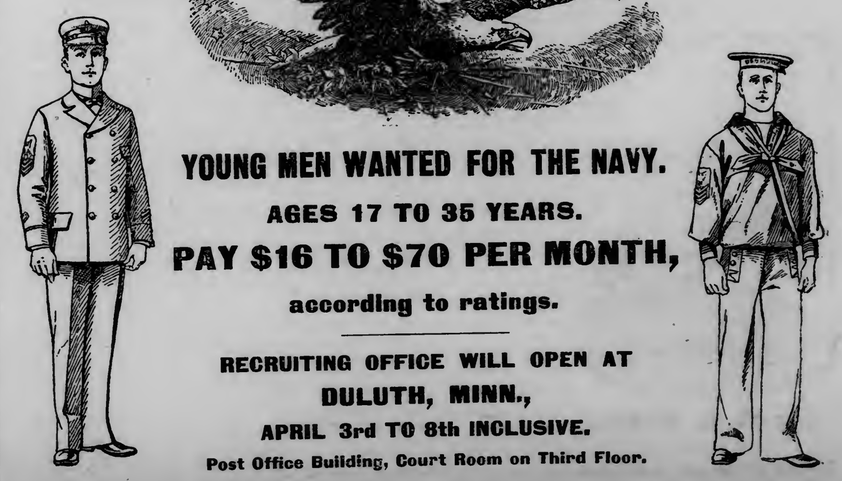

TOOK OVERDOSE OF MORPHINE.

Athens, Ga., March 31.—Miss Agnes Watson, daughter of Thomas Watson, is in a serious condition this morning as a result of an accidental overdose of morphine. Suffering intense pain from the extraction of a tooth, she took three doses of the drug and soon was in a state of coma. At 1 o'clock this morning Miss Watson had regained consciousness, but her chance for recovery is poor.

INSPECT ON MONDAY

Annual Review of Duluth Militia Companies and Band.

Col. Gerlach to Conduct It—Reassignment of Battalions.

The annual inspection and muster of the Duluth militia, Companies A and C, including the field staff and Third Regiment band, will be held at the Armory next Monday evening. The inspection will be in charge of Col. Gerlach of St. Paul, a regular army officer detailed for duty in the state of Minnesota. The companies, individually and collectively, with the majors and staff officers, will be examined along the usual lines.

The boys have been turning out very well to drill of late and it is believed that they will make a good showing before the inspecting officer. The band should also rank high. Note will be taken of the general appearance of the members of the musical organization, an dthey will be asked to play two or three pieces.

With the approach of warm weather the militia men are beginning to talk of getting out on the rifle range for practice shoots. The season for such shooting is supposed to begin in Minnesota April 1. Thus far the range has hardly been in condition for use, but now the ground is rapidly drying out and it is believed that the boys will be able to get out within the next week or two for practice. The dates on which the several companies will go into camp have not yet been fixed, but they will probably be set for June or July.

According to general orders just issued from headquarters in St. Paul, the companies of the Third regiment have been reassigned to batallions as follows:

First battalion—Major E. S. Person, commanding; Lieut. R. G. Staples, battalion adjutant; battery sergeant, Maj. E. M. Van Duzee, Jr. Company B, Anoka, Capt. A. F. Pratt, commanding; Company H, Olivia, Capt. H. H. Neuenberg, commanding; Company G, Princeton, Capt. C. A. Caley, commanding.

Second battalion—Major F. E. Resche, commanding; Lieut. C. C. Weaver, battalion adjutant; battery sergeant, Maj. R. M. Weaver; Company C, Duluth, Capt. Richard Little, commanding; Company A, Duluth, Capt. K. A. Franklin, commanding; Company D, Zumbrota, Capt. Henry W. Yochem, commanding.

Third battalion—Major H. V. Eva, commanding; Lieut. C. C. Salter, battalion adjutant; battery sergeant, Maj. F. A. Salstrom; Company E, St. Paul, Capt. H. L. Tourtelotte, commanding; Company I, Crookston, Capt. H. L. Keller, commanding; Company F, Brainerd, Capt. J. McKee Heffner, commanding.

WEDDING BRINGS DEATH.

Husband and Brother-in-Law Kill Each Other.

Malone, N. Y., March 31.—Summer Hazen, a bridegroom of a week, and John Hall, his wife's brother, are dead as a result of an exchange of pistol shots at Hall's home last night. When Hall learned that Hazen and his sister were to be married, he warned Hazen that he would resort to violence if necessary to prevent the ceremony. Nothing came of the threat and the newly married couple, believing that the trouble had blown over, started last evening for a visit to the bride's brother's house. They had hardly crossed the threshold before Hall drew a revolver and sent a bullet into his brother's-in-law body. As Hazen fell he whipped a revolver from his own pocket and returned the shot. Both men received fatal wounds and died within a few hours.

Decides For Homesteader.

The register and receiver of the land office here have made a decision in the case of the Northern Pacific Railway company and Mary E. Coffin, lieu selector vs. Polydore Aubin, the case involving title to the northeast quarter of 12-65-18. The lieu selector made application for the land on March 19, 1900, and Aubin filed a homestead application Feb. 8 of this year after the order concerning N. P. lands had been made by the department. Neither the Northern Pacific nor Mary E. Coffin made an appearance and the officials decided in favor of Aubin's homestead application.

EIGHT SETS OF TWINS.

Aged Veteran Welcomes New Boy and Girl.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 31.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bradley of Charlton, Iowa, was gladdened yesterday by the appearance of the eighth pair of twins. One is a boy of eight pounds, and the other a girl weighing seven.

The father, who served all through the Civil War, is 78, but hale and vigorous. The mother is 65.

Besides the eight pairs of twins, one other child was born to the family, making a total of seventeen.

MRS. CLARK REPLIES

To Ejectment Suit By the McClure Heirs.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 31.—Attorneys for Mrs. Caroline E. Clarke, wife of N. P. Clarke, have filed an answer in the ejectment suit brought by Thomas S. McClure on behalf of the McClure heirs to secure possession of the famous Meadow Lawn and Clyde Main farms. The answer is a sweeping denial of all the claims set forth. The McClure heirs contend that the recent supreme court decision declared Mrs. Clarke's deed to the farms invalid. This the answer denies and it remains for the district court to rule on this question, which apparently has been decided by the supreme court.

THOMAS WATTS BURIED.

COMMERCIAL CLUB ANNUAL

The annual meeting of the Commercial club will be held in the club rooms Wednesday evening, April 12. The annual election will also be held on that day. Five directors, to serve for the ensuing two years, will be voted for. Polls will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Matters of general interest to the club will be discussed, and the annual reports of the president, secretary and treasurer will be read. These reports will show that the organization is now in good condition, and that much resulting benficially to the city has been accomplished during the past year. The president's report will deal largely with the latter feature.

WILL GIVE RECEPTION.

Swedish Baptist to Honor Rev. Gideon Nylander.

The First Swedish Baptist congregation has arranged a reception in honor of Rev. Gideon Nylander, to take place this evening at the church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street. Mr. Nylander has assisted several weeks in conducting revival meetings at the church, and much good has been accomplished. As a speaker he is very talented, and his discourses have been pleasant to hear as well as strongly stimulating religious fervor. There will be an informal program at the reception, with speeches by Rev. Mr. Nylander and Rev. Mr. Edstam, and several musical numbers. Rev. Mr. Nylander will leave in a few days for Minneapolis, where he will assist Rev. O. L. Badien at the First Swedish Baptist church of that city.

FOR SHOVING THE QUEER

Deputy Marshal Mallory Brings Two Men From Buhl.

Deputy United States Marshal George J. Mallory returned today from Buhl with Roy Ferguson and John Lorden, who are charged with "shoving the queer." They are accused of presenting in payment of drinks, bogus greenbacks of $5 denomination each, purporting to be from the Bank of New Brunswick of the state of New Jersey. They are said to have passed these bills in three saloons in Buhl. In one place they bought two glasses of beer and received $4.90 in change and in each of the other places they bought drinks to the amount of 25 cents and received $4.75 in change in each instance.

No other bogus bills were found on them and it is not known whether they are or are not part of a gang placing the green goods. Both men claim to have been working in the woods all winter but mention no camp or employer and claim that they do not know where they picked up the bogus money. They are in the county jail to await a hearing.

POPE SAYS GOODBYE.

These Handsome New Covert Coats at $15 and $12.50—

The picture tells the story. Nothing is smarter, fresher and more spring-like than the Covert Coat; and this particular cloth has no rival in expressing the finest tailored effects.

Moderate as is the price of these garments, they are handsomely tailored, every stitch just right; made in the very newest graduated strapped effects. Both are fly-front and collarless; tight-fitting and semi-fitting; 24 inches long—lined with good satin and taffeta.

The collection of Coats that we are now showing is the broadest that will be found anywhere for weeks to come. Manufacturers seem to have outdone themselves both in the variety of garments produced as well as the tailoring and general attractiveness of the new styles. There will be much to see at Gidding's tomorrow, Saturday.

In addition to the above we have opened up other new lines of Covert Coats—made of highest grade "Worombo" cloth, magnificently tailored; strapped back and front; lined throughout with white satin duchesse.

FOUR STYLES of them, trimmed with touches of chiffon velvet, in resida, mahogany or self velvet—$18.50, $22.50 and $24.50. Their value easily from $5.00 to $10.00 more—but you can't match these styles at other stores in town at any price!

This Coat $15.00—Of Tan Covert — finely tailored — 4-strap back and front—satin lined.

"Natty" Covert Coats—tailored and trimmed, $8.75—Two styles go on sale tomorrow at this price. One style is a Tan Covert, collarless, with just a touch of velvet at the collar, red or green, three tailored box pleats at back and belt all around; novelty buttons. The other style is made of double and twist Covert, collarless effect, with trimming of tan velvet; three tailored and stitched box pleats at back and belt. These coats are easily worth $12; on sale tomorrow, in all sizes for young ladies and women, at—$8.75.

At $10 and $12.50—Our own special Covert Coats. Nothing like them shown by any other store in town at from $12.50 to $16.50. Made of double and twist Covert Cloth; lined throughout with guaranteed satin; some are collarless and trimmed with tan velvet; some are plain and finely tailored; all are perfect-fitting. We want you to compare these with any about town at anywhere near these prices.

$15 and $16.50 for handsomely tailored models—Strapped and box pleated back and front; lined throughout with taffeta or satin. Styles, bear in mind, that you'll see nowhere else at the Head of the Lakes.

New "Redingotes" of Covert Cloth—Bloused, with the skirt falling gracefully over the hips; taffeta lined to the waist; coat beautifully tailored with strap seams back and front—$35.00 value—for $27.50.

Half-fitted and loose models in covert coats, satin lined throughout—$16.50, $19.50 and up to $29.50.

45-inch fitted-back Coats in novelty mixtures—trimmed to match—$25.00—"Smart," you'll say when you see them, and they are—you'd say $35 if you didn't see our price ticket.

Waists.

Special efforts have been made to gather great values at these prices, and everybody who sees them says they are without a doubt the best waists in town at anywhere near these prices—made of fine lawns—embroidered and trimmed.

AT $2, $2.50, $3.00 and upwards—beautiful high-class exclusive models in Waists and lingerie Blouses—in a great range of styles and models—all with new sleeves and full blouse, and in all of the new lace and embroidery effect—or two hundred different styles in all!

The starting point $2.00 and the stopping point $25—and every price between. Among them are some new numbers that have arrived only within the last few days.

We ask every well-dressed woman in Duluth to see this collection, as we believe it to be the most important showing ever made at the Head of the Lakes.

Skirts.

Handsomely tailored 35-pleated Skirts in High-grade Panama cloth—$12.50 and $13.50.

At $12.50—Triple box plaits—back, front and sides, made full; black, blue, brown and green.

AT $13.50—Side pleats, stitch high and made very full so as to have that graceful swish; black, blue, brown and green.

$10 PANAMA SKIRTS—TOMORROW, $7.50.

Don't wonder how we are able to do it—just be satisfied that we can crowd so much value into a skirt at this price. Perfect fitting. Finely tailored. Seventeen gores—and not many in this lot—$7.50 instead of $10.

We also have at $7.50, Mohair skirts of Nun's gray—wool homespun skirts at $7.50, and serge skirts at $7.50, in black and navy.

$13.50 NEW UMBRELLA SKIRTS AT $10.00.

Of fine serges—French cheviots and novelty cloths, in all of the season's newest shades—fit and hang beautifully.

MORE OF THE 17-GORED AND PLEATED $8.75 SKIRTS ARE HERE AT $5.00 for misses.

Even at the advanced prices of materials we are selling these skirts to you at two-months-ago prices

The makers are reluctant about delivering them—but we are insisting upon our orders being filled—and you are getting the benefit.

We know of stores getting $10 for skirts not nearly so good. Plain cheviots and dark and light mixtures, all sizes are ready tomorrow if you come in time, and are $5.00, instead of $8.75.

More of those beautiful $8.75 Silk Petticoats—ready tomorrow at $5. New shipments have just arrived, including black—several shades of brown, several shades of green, blue, champagne, white, etc. We have sold hundreds of them to the best-dressed women in the land.

JUDGES TO SPEAK

W. A. Cant and J. D. Ensign Attend a Corner Stone Laying.

Ceremony at New Courthouse Building at Two Harbors.

Judges W. A. Cant and J. D. Ensign of district court of this county left today for Two Harbors, where they will take a prominent part, this afternoon, in the ceremonies attendant on the laying of the cornerstone of the new courthouse for Lake county.

Although the matter of having a celebration for the laying of the cornerstone of the new public structure was only broached Monday evening of this week, the people of that place have taken it up with characteristic energy, and plans were arranged for a big celebration this afternoon.

The presence of all of the judges of district court was very much desired, but Judge Dibell was unable to get away, owing to a jury trial in his court.

The old Lake county courthouse, a frame structure, burned down a year ago last fall, since which time the taxpayers and county commissioners have been deciding on and letting the contracts for the handsome new building, which will be completed some time this year. The new courthouse will cost in the neighborhood of $75,000.

The new structure will be a fine building, and will be another step marking the development and progress of the north shore city.

The following program was rendered at the cornerstone laying ceremony this afternoon:

Opening addresss .. ..
Chairman B. F. Fowler.
Prayer .. ..
Rev. W. E. J. Gratz.
Chorus, "Columbia" .. ..
Remarks .. ..
John Dwan.
Song .. ..
Double Quartet.
Address .. ..
Judge W. A. Cant.
Music .. ..
Double Quartet.
Address .. ..
Judge J. D. Ensign.
Laying of the cornerstone .. ..
Chorus, "America" .. ..
Benediction .. ..
Rev. J. A. McGaughey.

Music was also furnished at intervals during the ceremony by the band.

The committees having in charge the celebration were comprised of the following:

Invitation and music—B. F. Fowler, Thomas Owens, W. J. Marquis.

Historical data—James Coggswell, Thomas Owens, C. M. Fleathe, A. Headley.

Platform and grounds—P. G. Pastoret.

Decorations—W. N. Moulton, George Spurbeck, A. J. McGee, W. F. Lawrence.

Band music—J. D. Borwnell, W. F. Lawrence.

Finance—J. W. Brownell, W. N. Moulton.

4,000 Yards of Embroideries.

NEW embroideries that the importer offered us while they were still on the water, at a large discount, because the makers were sending such a big shipment that it was impossible to find a ready market for it. Our buyer was in New York just in time to secure this snap.

Every yard perfect and the newest designs. Openwork effects, flouncings, bands, insertions and edges for corset covers, white aprons, children's French dresses, etc. Every piece containing 6¾ yards. They will be placed on sale in full pieces tomorrow at barely more than half what you would pay in the regular way. Two large tables full in the embroidery aisle. Come tomorrow if you would get embroideries at less than the import price.

59c for 6¾ yards of new embroidery from 2 to 5 inches wide, worth up to $1.00 a piece on the basis that you usually pay.

75c for 6¾ yards of new embroidery from 6 to 8 inches wide, sold up to $1.25 a piece regularly. A broad variety of patterns.

85c for 6¾ yards of new embroidery from 8 to 12 inches wide—worth up to $1.50 a piece—every piece a rare bargain.

More Petticoats—Special Prices.

$3.98 for $5.00 Taffeta Silk Petticoats—with accordeon pleated flounce and ruffle—well made, with plenty of fullness. We will place them with any $5.00 silk petticoat to win.

A Short Word About the Best Yarns.

The makers of Fleisher's yarn know the "ins and outs" of the yarn business. Else folks would not insist on having only "Fleisher's." You're always sure there's no substitution of the "just as good" kind here.

Washington, March 31. — Minister Dawson cabled the state department today from San Domingo that he had received the deparment's approval of what he has done respecting the financial agreement governing the collection and disbursement of Dominion customs and that he had notified the minister for foreign affairs that President Roosevelt acquiesced in the plan of settlement.

It is expected that the arrangement will be formally ratified in San Domingo today and as soon as Secretary Taft returns to Washington, the force of American collectors to take charge of the Dominican custom houses will be completed and they will be dispatched to their respective posts.

FINGER IS CRUSHED.

Herald Pressman Meets With A Painful Accident.

While running off the last few hundred copies of the late mail edition yesterday afternoon, John Grady, one of the pressmen employed by The Herald, caught his right index finger in the wheels of the press. The finger was so badly crushed that it had to be amputated at the second joint.

A rag which he held in his hand became tangled up in the wheels of the press, and it threw the big machine out of running order for several hours.

DYNAMITE ON TRACKS

Another Attempt to Blow Up Street Railway At Osceola.

Houghton, Mich., March 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another dynamite cartridge was found on the street railway track at Osceola last night. The dynamite had been passed over and ground flat by a car, but failed to explode, undoubtedly owing to the cold night, which froze the cartridge. Efforts are being made to cause a sympathetic strike of miners who are being organized by the Western Federation of Miners. The conservative element is opposed, but it is feared that the hot heads are in the majority.

COUNTERFEIT GOLD PIECE

Examine carefully all $10 gold pieces you have occasion to handle.

The police this morning were shown a bogus gold piece, made of lead and gilded over. It was an excellent reproduction of a $10 piece, and it might easily pass for genuine. The milling and stamping were especially good, and had it not been for the fact that the gilding was worn off in one place, it would have passed.

An Italian attempted to pass it at the Montreal house, but the clerk detected the counterfeit, and, confiscating it, ordered the Italian out. The coin was taken to headquarters and the police are now looking for the man who attempted to pass it, in the belief that he may have more of the counterfeits in his possession.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD RALLY

The quarterly rally o the Lake Superior Baptist Young People's union will take place this evening at the First Baptist church biulding in the East end. The association comprises all the Baptist Young People's unions of Duluth, Superior and Ashland, so that a large attendance of delegates is expected.

Rev. R. M. West, pastor of the First Baptist church at St. Paul, will deliver the address of the evening, on the topic "Christian Life From the Standpoint of the Young Christian."

Rev. Mr. Strong is said to be a strong and forceful speaker and the public is cordially invited to attend the meeting.

MARRIED IN CROOKSTON.

Wilson G. Starkey returned to the city yesterday from Crookston where he attended the wedding of his sister-in-law, Miss Ruberta Childs, and Edgar N. Thomas.

The groom is a former Duluth man and was at one time employed by the Standard Oil company, in the local office. He left here for St. Paul, where he is now engaged in business.

Miss Childs is also well known in the city, having graduated from the high school here, and later attended the normal school.

BY MRS. ALFRED JAQUES.

It is easy to see that moral obligations meet the individual constantly. Does some one say, "In a matter of dress, cannot a woman do as she pleases?" In other words, is dress a matter of character?

We agree pretty well that we ought to dress comfortably, healthfully, and within our means. How about beautifully? Yes, beautifully. We shear the sheep, we kill the wild animal to get material to make warm clothing. The element of beauty may enter into the wearing of furs and woolen clothes, but utility is ever uppermost. How is it with wearing wild birds' feathers on our hats? The question is purely one of beauty. Do not think, however, that the beautiful has not as high an ethical value as the useful.

Let us look into the matter. Where does beauty show itself? Is the bird more lovely being killed, picked and dyed, and placed on a woman's head? We say not. Well, then, let us talk plainly, and own that we sanction the killing, picking and dyeing of our wild birds to make us look beautiful. Think of the nerve it takes to write that confession of false vanity in black and white! But there are women of aesthetic taste who say that the beauty of the world is more increased by the bird full of life and song, who swings on a branch, than by the bird, stiff and lifeless, looking through glass eyes out from a mass of millinery stuff. There are also women of aesthetic taste, whose sight is clear enough to all more beauty in a tender and thoughtful mind, than in feathers waving gracefully about a pretty face.

When settlements were first made in the wilderness of America, there was no thought that extermination of our birds was possible. As years passed necessity called for the killing of many birds for food. The sportsmen then added his claim on nature's living creatures. Next fashion asserted its right to slaughter any bird of beautiful plumage that took its eye.

About twenty years ago the eyes of a few thoughtful people were opening to the wholesale destruction of our birds, and the danger of the extermination of certain species. United effort only could stop it. Accordingly, among other organizations the Audubon society was established, named for the great naturalist. It was called into being by the excessive demand for birds to supply the millinery trade of America and Europe. Its work is twofold: first, awakening of public sentiment, and second, securing adequate legislation and enforcement of the same. Though the first of these efforts, education, is the surest safety for bird life, yet in order to prevent, among the uneducated, wanton destruction of birds, legislation is needed. The Audubon societies have secured uniform bird legislation in twenty-eight states and one territory, and as a result, the traffic in native birds for millinery purposes has been almost suppressed. Unfortunately the skins and plumes of foreign wild birds are imported in large quantities. This matter can be reached only by international co-operation, for which they are striving.

The only use of feathers for millinery purpose which the Audubon society, as well as reason, sanctions, is the use of ostrich plumes and the feathers of barnyard fowls. Neither of these involves in its use sacrifice of life or decrease of species.

Still, however, wings and long feather bands and the gracefully sweeping plumes of the heron are popular. The beautiful "aigrettes," plumes of the white heron, as is well known, are worn by the bird only during the breeding season. Male and female alike dress in these wedding garments. When robbed of them, it means that not only are the lives of the parent birds taken, but the nestlings must die the death of a lingering starvation. William Dutcher, one of America's authorities on birds says: "Dealers often state that 'aigrettes' are manufactured, but this is not so; man has never yet been able to imitate successfully these beautiful plumes." The wearing of 'aigrettes' or plumes from the white heron, whether native or foreign, has now become a question of ethics which every woman must decide for herself. It matters not a whit where the plume comes from, the fact remains the same that the woman who wears one is a party to a cruel wrong, and the plume itself becomes a badge of inhumanity and is no longer a thing of beauty.

The only real safety for the wild birds is love for them and friendship with them. If the interest of a boy in the living bird is aroused, he will not want to rob a nest or use a gun. If a little girl can make the acquaintance of a few bird friends, she will have no desire to wear one on her hat, when she grows older. From merely a money standpoint it would not cost parents a cent more to supply their children with an opera or field glass, and perhaps a kodak, than to furnish the boys with a gun and ammunition, and the girls with expensive hat feathers. But how can a mother teach her little boy not to let fly his sling shot or aim his air gun at the feathered life at hand, when her own hat is bristling with black birds' wings, or soft with the silky breast of the sea gull. The only sure cure for the woman who is tempted to fly plumage which a living bird ought to be wearing, is to make friends with the birds. Then she would no more want to wear the heron's plumes than to trail from her hat a lock of hair of a human friend.

Love Messages on Flowers.

Chicago Chronicle: "A strange thing—what you would call a miracle—happened to me yesterday," said a young Chicago girl. "T. W. Pitcoe sent me a bouquet of beautiful, waxy, white gardenias, and after these gardenias has been in water a half hour, brown writing appeared on each of them.

"'You're all right,' said the first gardenia.

"'It is nice to be here alone with you,' said the second gardenia.

"'Think of the giver. Don't forget the giver,' said the third.

"'Willie dreams of you every night,' said the fourth gardenia.

"'Clara,' said the fifth. 'Clara Doodledum, William Pitcoe loves you.'

"I sent for Mr. Pitcoe and demanded an explanation. His explanation was simple enough. You know how, if you touch a gardenia, or, indeed, any flower of the magnolia family, it turns brown in the touched place an hour or so afterward? Well, Mr. Pitcoe, taking advantage of this fact, had written with a needle on each of my gardenias something that he thought would please me.

"I was pleased. I was truly."

A CASE OF GRIP

By Norman H. Crowell.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

For a woman-hater of 30 to suddenly find himself irretrievably in love is a serious state of affairs. To discover, moreover, that the object of one's affections is disccouragingly apathetic in the matter complicates the thing to a considerable decree of frenzy.

Yet that is what happened to me. After a more or less sprightly existence in which the smiles of charmers and the wiles of charmers' mammas had been successfully withstood, I had reached the satisfying conviction that I was at last rooted and grounded in the bedrock of a respectable bachelorhood. To look down from my height and contemplate the strife from which I had now fully emerged was a pleasing thing. And now, in the midst of this—a—t the zenith of my triumph—I felt it seize me.

She was a queen—every inch—and perhaps it was her very imperiousness that commanded my unwilling admiration. I had known her years ago—when she was a mere girl, in fact. I was 22 and she, 16. One day I carried her across a little stream on my back. It began there, but I did not know it. Norah Branch went East and dropped out of my sight—and life.

She had returned now—not the Norah Branch of my schoolboy days—but Branch—the great artist whose bell-like voice was sufficient to hold vast audiences breathless to the first faint cadence that fell from her perfect throat.

I met her as she came forth to her carriage. She recognized me daintily and smiled—a plain, womanly smile that swung me back so far bygone days. I clumsily greeted her and passed on abruptly, as if in haste, berating myself at my unhappy lack of insouciance—a quality upon which I had always taken particular pride.

At that moment it became apparent that I, Frederick Bannington, had been struck by the blind god's random archery and that the wound was a sore one.

I became foolish. From a sanguine, carelessly-happy man I was transformed into a moody, sombre, tomb-like being. My fellow club-members rallied me—advised tours to the continent, mountain climbing and entire change of scenery, air, etc. I snapped back at them currishly, the point of their jokes too dull for my benumbed brain.

She sang. I took a box and pelted her with flowers. She smiled. I soared into the clouds. She held her hands toward me as the music welled from her superb throat. I stormed the privacy of the stage where I grew profuse in my compliments and earnest in my laudatory adjectives. She thanked me simply and put back a stray wisp of brown hair that floated loose from her magnificent coiffure.

"Dodo," I cried, "Do you remember the time I carried you across that stream?"

Her fair brow contracted and she glanced down studiously.

"Yes. It was a long time ago," she said.

"But I recall it very distinctly," I said, boldly.

She glanced up quickly, as if in alarm.

"I wonder why?" was her innocent remark.

"You put your arms around me then, Dodo. Do you remember that" She smiled.

"I was very silly in those days, Mr. Bannington," she said.

I blushed, unable to meet the thing to my satisfaction.

A call-boy blundered in and the great singer flitted out to face the sea of critical fellow-humans—her one sure talisman supreme and ready to her call—that wonderful voice.

It was pathos this time—deep, sobbing sympathy that seemed to croon its soul into the very hearts of the listeners. Her rich mellow notes laden with the honeyed tremor of sadness dimmed many an eye ere she swept graciously from the stage to face me flushed and triumphant—her superb bosom rising and falling with the intensity of her emotion.

"Bravo, little girl!" said I. "They're all crying out there!"

She threw her hand toward me deprecatingly and sighed. Then her head sank down toward one fair shoulder as she roguishly replied: "Fritz the Flatterer!" I started. That was my appellation in the good old days—I thought she had forgotten it.

But her eyes were glancing into mine in a manner that puzzled me—I hesitated between two mighty impulses. Words to bestow upon this fair structure deserted me—they were like clay in a casket of precious gems. I was impelled by a pair of saucy brown orbs—yet repulsed by a poulting, determined chin; drawn by yon negligent lock that crept stealthily down over one half-hidden ear—repelled by a haughty shrug of patchless shoulders.

Yet there she stood, calmly, grandly, while I, weak mortal, vacillated. Suddenly she straightened, placed her jewelled hands bewitchingly akimbo while an amused smile rippled at the corners of her lips.

"You great stupid!" she said. "What are you staring at?"

Taken aback, I met her eye—from the distance came the call-boy's leaden tramp—I stirred—a step forward—she seemed to float nearer yet I may have dreamed it—then a warm pulsating body was clutched in my arms and ruthlessly held. A quiver, a struggle, a rosy, upturned face that breathed defiance—a faint, lingering sound as lips met and—release. On one white arm a red mark glowed angrily. My cuff had left its imprint and she rubbed gently at the spot with a scented kechief. She avoided my gaze. I was speechless.

"You were not so bold once, Mr. Bannington," she murmured.

"I had no such provocation, Dodo," I replied.

A little man in a vast expense of white-shirt-front bustled up.

"Madame—zee feefth nombre—zee feefth!" he said, and bristled out.

"Who is that runt?" I remarked following his departure with my eyes.

I turned to find her great eyes upon me in a strange manner.

"That runt," she remarked slowly. "That runt is the husband of Dodo Branch, the singer. Many thanks, Fritz—the Flatterer! Goodnight!"

I told the boys at the club that I—was recovering slowly from a very bad case of grip. They winked and smoked.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

New School Building at Sault Ste. Marie Destroyed By Fire.

Sault Ste. Marie—The Algonquin school burned Thursday night and nothing but the walls were left standing. The building was valued at $30,000 and insured for $14,000. The fire is supposed to have started from electric wires. The building was erected but two years ago. Preparations are being made to rebuild at once.

As a result of the fist fight with Dick Schutes, Walter Foley, a woodsman, lies in a room at the Soo badly bruised and with serious injuries about the head. Schutes is occupying a cell at the city jail awaiting the outcome of Foley's injuries. According to the bartender's story Foley was the aggressor. Schutes was standing at one end of the bar when Foley brushed against him, looking for trouble. The men clinched and the bartender put them out of the room into the street, when they immediately began to mix it up. Foley, although the larger of the two, was not a match for his opponent and soon went down. In falling he hit his head on the pavement and was rendered unconscious.

Ironwood—Ironwood has already started its preparations for the annual tournament of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association to be held at the Gogebic range metropolis in August. Preliminary plans were talked over at a mass meeting of citizens, and an executive committee and committees on prizes, decoration, finance and track were appointed to take charge of the arrangements. It is figured to raise $1,890 to $2,000. There are now twenty-six companies in the firemen's association, and it is hoped a majority of them will be represented in the track contests.

Escanaba—At Escanaba Mayor Valentine was re-nominated for mayor by the Citizens' party, the other men on the ticket being: City clerk, Hugh Robertson; city treasurer, Charles Maloney; justice of the peace, O. V. Linden. Mayor Valentine's re-election is a foregone conclusion.

Menominee—Lightning struck a store building owned by the Hamilton & Merryman company, located upon the Island near the mill plant at Menominee, late one night this week, and set the structure on fire, it and the stock being considerably damaged. The flames were only conquered after an hour and a half's hard work by the firemen.

Munising—By the time navigation opens, or soon thereafter, the old mill of the Lake Superior Veneer & Cooperage company at Munising will be practically made over into a new plant. The improvement work is now in progress. Seven new machines are to be installed. The mill force proper will be about the same as last year but the capacity of the mill, equipped as the plant will be with up-to-date machinery, will be materially increased.

WELL PROTECTED

In the Spring or Winter of Life.

Every woman young or old is well protected from the blues, nervousness, backache, and the many symptoms of disease so prevalent among our women—if they will conscientiously take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a safe and sure remedy for the weaknesses of women, because it contains not a particle of alcohol, digitalis or any deleterious drugs. This Dr. Pierce guarantees with a $500 reward. Weak women are made strong and sick women are made well by this splendid prescription which was used by Doctor Pierce in his large private practice in the specialty of women's diseases. Write him about your case, care of Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages this practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said that "a disease known is half cured." In cases almost innumerable, after all other medicines had failed to help and doctors had said there was no cure possible, the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, supplemented when necessary by medical advice and counsel of Dr. Pierce, has resulted in a perfect and permanent cure. The genuiness of these cures is attested not only by the entire disappearance of pain, but by a gain of flesh, a clear complexion and a cheerful disposition.

A SCIENTIFIC MEDICINE.—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organism. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. It contains no alcohol, opium, digitalis or other injurious ingredient.

"I was very low, and our home physician said I would never be well until I went to the hospital," writes Mrs. E. G. Taylor, of Spring Arbor, Mass., Box 91. "Knowing what I did of your medicine I concluded to try it and felt sure it would cure me. To-day I thank God for Dr. Pierce's medicine. I began keeping house the 11th day of April and was just able to crawl about and in three weeks I could do all my own work, laundry and all. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine and feel real good, but am not going to stop until I am sure I am cured. I tell all my lady friends about Dr. Pierce's wonderful medicine. They all say, 'How good you are looking, Mrs. Taylor,' and I answer it is all due to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

An honest dealer will not urge a substitute in place of "Favorite Prescription." There is nothing in the world "just as good," although avaricious druggists will sometimes say so for the sake of the greater profit to be made upon the inferior article. Shun all such.

Every wise and careful housewife recognizes the value of a good home medical book. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is that kind of a book and the best of its kind. It used to sell for $1.50 per copy. Now a big edition is being given away—FREE. For paper-covered copy, send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover mailing only. French cloth binding ten cents extra. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets once used they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and their attendant discomfort and manifold derangements.

CLAIMS A MILLION

And Earns at Washtub to Win Estate.

Des Moines, March 30.—Mrs. J. J. Schuler, a washerwoman, claims over $1,000,000 of the estate of the late William Rice of New York city. Rice was murdered by his attorney, Patrick, who is now serving a sentence in Sing Sing for the crime. There are few claimants to the estate, which comprises $8,000,000 in moneys, credits and New York and Texas lands.

Peter Rice, a pioneer Pennsylvanian, was the father of William Rice and Mrs. Schuler. The elder Rice was never wealthy. After marriage Miss Rice moved with Schuler, her husband, to Iowa, and the couple did not hear of the relatives. When the Patrick murder trial was on in New York city she read reports in the papers. The trial has passed before she thought of associating William Rice with herself.

It was not until Mrs. Patrick, wife of Patrick, the murderer, and two lawyers visited Des Moines several months ago that Mrs. Schuler's mind was opened to the fact that she might be an heiress. She employed a firm of attorneys and now claims to the estate are in shape to be forwarded to New York.

The Schulers reside in a suburb of Des Moines. Mr. Schuler is aged and infirm. His wife at the age of 51 takes in washing for a living. She has earned money to pay for prosecuting her search through family records by taking in washings by day and sewing by night. She is one of the most remarkable octogenarians in Des Moines.

CONDITION

Of the Middle Class Women of China.

New York, March 30.—Dr. Charles K. Roys, a missionary at Wei Hsien, China, in a letter just received here by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, throws some light on the condition of the middle-class women of China. He says: "We have been employing a Chinese sewing woman for a couple of weeks, and I have been much impressed with the cheerfulness and force of character shown by these poor creatures, compelled to hobble through life on feet not much larger than a sheep's hoof. This woman can go upstairs only with great difficulty; she can't run a foot-power sewing machine without pain, so our little hand machine is a boon to her. Although carrying any burden is very painful, in their own homes these women have to carry a heavy child around with them while they do their housework, buttoning the child into the front of their clothing to keep it warm through the winter. Yet many of the women have cheerful faces and kindly, smiling eyes, very much like an old Southern mammy who has seen much trouble, yet remains cheerful and content. This is especially true of the Christian Chinese women, so much so that their neighbors say magic changes their faces.

"Today I passed some women washing clothes in a little stream in native fashion, where they crouch for hours in the bitter cold, sousing the clothes back and forth in the water—no soap and no washboard—lucky if they have a mat or a stone to sit on. Another heavy task in the fall season is the making of wadded garments for the whole family. It is no easy matter, when added to all that a woman is expected to do. A woman near us tried to commit suicide last fall because she was asked to make her husband's uncle's winter clothes! These wadded garments are ungainly looking, but are said to be very comfortable. The missionaries who wear them. They are made of two layers of muslin dyed blue or black, with a layer of cotton batting between. Each individual wears three or four of the wadded coats, and usually one pair of trousers, the latter very loose and baggy above, and very tight around the ankle, where they are secured by a strap. The accumulation of coats makes a man look as round as a barrel, while the little children are spherical, and if they fall down, have hard work to get up again. The winter hat is a great hood of wadded cotton like a fisherman's sou'wester, falling over the back and shoulders, and in children ornamented with all the colors of the rainbow."

INCREDIBLE BRUTALITY.

It would have been incredible brutality if Chas. F. Lemberger, of Syracuse, N. Y., had not done the best he could for his suffering son. "My boy," he says, "cut a fearful gash over his eye, so I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which quickly healed it and saved his eye." Good for burns and ulcers too. Only 25c at all druggists.

SKIN DISEASES SPEAK FOR THE BLOOD

Skin Diseases speak for the blood and tell of the acid-laden, poisonous condition of that vital fluid, and of its effort to throw off and rid the system of the poisons and waste matters that have accumulated in it. Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, Boils and diseases of this type are all caused by a weakened and polluted blood circulation, and though they may have lain dormant in the system during the cold weather, at the coming of Spring and Summer, when the blood is reacting and making extra efforts to expel all morbid and poisonous matter, they make their appearance. External remedies cannot cure; they soothe and give temporary relief, but often clog the pores and glands, and the poison causing the trouble is thus shut up in the system to break out afresh later on. S. S. S., a purely vegetable blood remedy, cures all skin diseases by going down into the circulation, driving out all poisons and waste matters, strengthening the blood, leaving the skin soft and smooth, and building up the entire system by its tonic effect. S. S. S. cures Nettle Rash, Poison Oak and all skin diseases that enter the system through the pores and glands, as well as those that have their origin in the blood. Book on Skin Diseases and any advice wished, without charge.

In 1896 I experienced at times patches on the inside of my hands that itched and burned, causing much discomfort. I was convinced I was afflicted with a type of Eczema. I consulted several physicians, and used several external applications, receiving but slight temporary relief. I decided to try S. S. S., and soon I found myself entirely cured.

BLIND MAN "ROOTS"

Loudly at Baseball Games When Friends Explain Plays.

He Is Making His Living as a Piano Salesman.

Lincoln, Neb., March 31.—A young man, blind almost from birth, a senior in the Nebraska State university, has embarked upon a career which promises to be as celebrated as that of Helen Keller. William Leroy Clarke is his name, and his present age is 22 years. He won the gold medal in oratory at the Palladian Literary society, and he is one of the squad of fifteen from whom will be chosen the eight men who will uphold the honor of the university in Western intercollegiate debates.

Clarke lost his sight when 4 years old, as the result of a severe attack of illness. He was sent to the state school for the blind and made such good use of his opportunities that at the age of 17 he matriculated in the state university. His work there has been so good that had it not been that he was compelled to work his way through college he would have graduated a year ago. Last summer he sold pianos for a local music house, and took subscriptions for a popular magazine, earning enough money to give him leisure for the year's course.

"I have about succeeded in making myself forget that I am blind," he says. "I go right ahead just as though I have my sight. I soon discovered that people forget, too, that I am blind, and then we get along all right. I am getting a great deal out of life, and I hope to increase my capacity still more."

Clarke's studies have been restricted to some extent by the lack of books printed in the point system, but he has supplemented his reading of those text-books by hiring men to read to him. He studies geography, trigonometry, Latin, geometry and mathematics from point books, but is barred from the sciences because of his inability to handle apparatus. His book studies have included English and English literature, philosophy, political economy and sociology, all studies which one can take up merely by having them read.

The point system is rather complex, but Clarke has it thoroughly mastered, and can read with great rapidity. He has also learned to write the point system, so that he is able to take his notes at lectures as readily as his fellow students with perfect eyesight.

A wooden "slate" is employed. This has two narrow strips of metal arranged to slide up or down, at the will of the operator. The paper is placed between these and held in place by clamps. The top sheet has five rows of holes, about a quarter of an inch square running across the page. Instead of a pencil a small, sharp-pointed awl is used.

The lower plate is filled with little dents. When the operator desires to write he takes his plate, places it at the top, and by the use of the awl makes indentations in the paper. By this arrangement the awl is driven almost, but not quite, through the paper. When it is desired to read these notes the paper is turned over and the index finger is passed swiftly over the indentations.

The point system is something like short-hand, so many dots of perforations representing a certain letter or combination of characters. In the use of the awl almost as great speed at writing can be obtained as though a pencil were used by a person with eyesight.

In studying geography most of the knowledge is conveyed by means of relief maps. These are usually about three feet square and stand on easels. The various states or countries are in models, made of plaster of paris, detachable, so that the student can get an idea of its boundaries. There are smooth creases for the rivers, tacks for cities and small cones and series of cones for the mountains.

Clarke is an enthusiasteic sportsman. Every football, basket ball or baseball game finds him among the rooters. He understands the game and is able to comprehensively discuss the abilities of the players. A friend tells him the plays as they are made. He sits as breathless as the hardened fans at crises of the contest.

He is an excellent talker and has a ready command of language, being remarkably quick to see and take advantage of the mistakes of adversaries in debate. There is no hint of self-consciousness in his manner while he is before an audience, and it is difficult to remember, when listening to him that he cannot see the effect of his words. He is almost the exact opposite of the commonly accepted type of blind man.

"Many persons exaggerate the difficulties experienced by the blind," he says. "There is a big world left for us to explore, and science and humanity have brought within the reach of even the partly educated blind much of the treasures of literature and life. I write with my right hand and read with my left, but I also employ my right to go ahead and spy out the country.

"It is just as you use your eyes. You go along readily with one, and pick up what is left by the other. As soon as I graduate I am going into business. I have a good ear for music, they tell me, and I play passably well. I have had several opportunities to teach; but that is not to my liking. I want a life of activity, with plenty of outside work. I shall sell pianos until I can establish myself."

Clarke's father is an engineer. He has a sister, born blind at the time he lost his sight, a case of parental influence.

BERLIN AMAZED

By Magnificent Ball Given By Mrs. Tower.

Berlin, March 31.—Mrs. Charlemange Tower, wife of the American ambassador at Berlin, has given a costume ball at the American embassy, which, in the splendor of the appointments and the brilliancy of the guests' costumes, outdid even the court functions.

All the notables of the imperial court were present and the most exclusive and wealthy circles of Berlinese society were largely represented. The sensation of the evening was the costume worn by the crown prince, who appeared in the uniform worn by his regiment at the time of Frederick the Great. It consisted of a coat, with full basque and long waistcoat, very much bebuttoned. With these a powdered wig and white gaiters were worn.

The prince was accompanied by a group of officers of his regiment, all arrayed in the same fashion.

LARGEST IN THE WORLD

Will Be Michigan Family's Mill Near Tacoma.

Tacoma, Wash., March 31.—The Dempsey family of Manistee, Mich., owners of the Manistee Lumber company and worth millions made from Michigan lumbering, have gradually acquired over 100,000 acres of Washington timber lands, making them the third largest owners of timber land in this state.

They have just concluded the purchase of a forty-acre site for big mills to be erected during the next year on Tacoma tidelands. The site has a deep water frontage of 1100 feet and adjoins tidelands said to have been purchased last year by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway for terminals. They guarantee teh building of mills larger than the St. Paul & Tacoma Lumber plant here, which is now the largest in the world.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

RELATIONS PARTED

And Whole Neighborhood Split By Fight Over Graveyard.

Dresden Tenn., March 31.—Weakley county is now wrestling with one of the most unique suits in its history, the prize being a half-acre graveyard. As usual, the actors in this unique proceeding come from "Bloody No. 1" district, which has more murder cases and unusual lawsuits than any other district in Tennessee.

The trouble now is over the title of half an acre of land in the soil of which some sixty bodies have been buried and which, aside from the use to which it has been put, is worth about $8 in the lawful coin of the realm.

Not long ago M. A. Stephenson, a leading citizen of "No. 1," filed a bill in chancery here setting out the facts. It states in effect that Willis Morgan died a citizen of "No. 1" in 1876, that, a few days before his death, realizing that his days on earth were short and that time was fleeting, he looked over his landed estates, which were extensive, seeking a last resting place: that, desiring to have his body remain near the scenes of his active life, he chose a spot within a few yards of his old home and directed that here his body be consigned to the tomb. Soon after, he died, and, following his wishes, his relatives interred his body in the spot he had selected.

Then, in not many days, his heirs gathered together and executed a deed to the old Morgan homestead to W. O. Stephenson for a valuable consideration, but, still mindful of the dust of their kinsmen, they inserted a clause into the deed that has been the source of much trouble and litigation and so far one death by violence.

After the wherefores and whereases were succintly set out, the following language appears in the conveyance: "Reserving herein this deed one-half acre of land around the grave of Willis Morgan."

The purchaser, W. O. Stephenson, died, and the complainant, as one of the heirs, received the portion upon which the graveyard was situated.

After Willis Morgan was buried, others buried their loved ones adjacent to the last resting place of the first sleeper and, by this time, it has grown to be a considerable city of the dead. The tract is located a considerable distance from the public road, and the wheels of commerce as they bear barter away to feed the living disturb not those that rest in silence there.

But an evil day has fallen upon it and Joe Matheny and others desiring to removes the brambles and briars that had grown up profusely in and around the many graves, after giving Mr. Stephenson notice, went upon the premises and cleaned them up and put them in order. And they even went so far as to purchase wire and erect a fence around the whole of the one-half acre reserved in the original deed.

Where this one-half acre should be located is what the court is called upon to decide. Stephenson and others interested on that side of the controversy, say that no one has any right to be buried upon the ground except Willis Morgan and that all others there are trespassers without right or warrant. He says further that he has had possession of the land for years under and within his own inclosure and that it is his to sell and dispose of, graves and all, at his will and pleasure; that, while he does not expect to file any legal proceedings to oust those who have possession, he reserves the right to do so, if he wishes, and proceeds to exercise his rights by objection to the burial of others within the disputed inclosure. He says further that, if the courts finally hold that defendants have any right at all to any part of the one-half acre in dispute, the same must be laid off in a square or circle, the boundaries on every side being equi-distant from the grave of the original owner in the center.

On the other hand it is insisted and contended by Joe Matheny and others that the land has been used as a public burying ground for many years, that Stephenson himself has been present upon many occasions and aided to bury the dead there without protest or complaint; that these interments have taken place without so much as a murmur upon the part of Stephenson until recently, when the neighbors gathered and dug a grave for a little child and, after same was prepared and made ready for the body, Stephenson appeared and protested against the burial. The answer to the bill states: "That they then believed and now believe that the person had a right, under the law, to bury his child within the limits of said inclosure and they were surprised and shocked that the complainant should have found in his heart to have objected to a poor man burying his child after the grave had been dug."

Since then, no others have offered to bury their dead in the forbidden place. A new made grave gapes for an occupant.

Meantime the suit goes on. Kinsmen have taken sides against kinsmen and friends against friends. Some say the cemetery should be abandoned; others mindful of those already sleeping there, pray that the strong grip of the law by injunction, now resting upon them, shall be loosened, and that they be allowed to come and go as they please, gathering flowers from the graves already there, placing roses upon others, with the privilege of burying their late dead beside those already gone.

The litigation was heard a few days since in the Chancery court, and it ordered that half an acre of land be laid off in a square, each corner the same distance from the grave of Willis Morgan, which is to be in the center. It also ordered that a right of ingress and egress of goodly width from the public road, through lands of Stephenson to the graveyard, be laid off, and that the public be allowed to come and go without molestation.

This decision is a "dogfall," not being satisfactory to either party, and both sides have appealed to the supreme court.

NEW LOCOMOTIVE

Can Travel 3,000 Miles Without Any Stops.

Chicago, March 31.—Three thousand miles without a stop and at the rate of 100 miles or more an hour, is the capacity of a new type of locomotive which has been ordered by the Southern Pacific railroad. If it does all that its makers promise for it this locomotive, which is a revision of the Diesel engine, will revolutionize transportation.

The locomotive, or really power-house on wheels, is entirely different from anything in use. The cost of operating it will be less than one-half of the cost of operating the present type of steam engine. Fuel oil costing but 3 to 5 cents a gallon is the only fuel that has to be purchased, and there is no necessity for erecting and maintaining expensive water tanks or coal chutes.

The machine is what is known as the four-stroke cycle. There is a compressed air reservoir, from which the power is obtained for starting. This gives the piston its first stroke, when it takes in the air alone at atmospheric pressure and temperature. The second stroke compresses this air and raises it to a temperature of about 100 degrees Fahrenheit. The third stroke is what is known as the working stroke.

The oil is sprayed into the hot air, the amount being regulated by governors. During the first part of this stroke the combustion of this oil is carried on at a constant pressure for a period that is regulated by the amount of oil sprayed. The second part of the stroke is practically an expansion, with transference of heat and the fourth stroke exhausts the gases.

SHOPS IN SPRING ATTIRE.

If is not a matter of wonder that visitors in Duluth favorably comment upon the splendid stores which line the city's thoroughfares, for never before have such beautiful and attractive displays of spring goods been made in this city. Duluth merchants are fully abreast or a little in the lead of the most enterprising in other cities, and that the people demand the newest creations and best materials that are afforded by the markets of the world is made evident by these displays.

There is no valid excuse for Duluth's citizens going to other cities to supply their needs. In clothing, dry goods, millinery, shoes and other essentials the Duluth merchants have anticipated every need, and in both quality and variety have prepared to meet every possible demand. And it can be truthfully said that in Duluth prices are as low or lower, quality considered, than in any other city in the country.

It is with a feeling of pleasurable pride, therefore, that The Herald directs the attention of its readers today to the liberal advertising display of the Duluth merchants appearing in its columns. They are eloquent and tempting appeals to every man, woman and child who may desire to array themselves in harmony with the freshness and glory of the Minnesota springtime.

Great credit is due to these Duluth storekeepers for their enterprise and up-to-date methods and their success in meeting the demands made upon them by their customers. No doubt the appreciation of the buying public will be manifested in substantial manner.

QUALITY NOT CONSIDERED.

Balked in its attempts to get rid of married women teachers by adverse decisions of the courts, the New York board of education has sought to legalize its petty tyranny by drawing up a measure prohibiting the employment of married women as teachers and having it introduced in the legislature by Assemblyman Hartman. A portion of the proposed law reads as follows:

"Female principals, heads of departments, directors, supervisors, assistant directors, assistant supervisors of special branches and teachers in all the schools under the jurisdiction of the board of education, except those now employed as assistants and designated as additional teachers, shall forfeit their positions and the same shall become vacant upon marriage; provided, however, that said board of education may, in its discretion, where a husband is incapacitated through physical or mental disease from earning a livelihood, or in case of abandonment, reinstate, reappoint or re-employ such female principals * * *; and provided, also, that the provisions of this act shall not operate to forfeit the position of any such female principal * * * who shall have married prior to the passage of this act."

The board does not seem to take into consideration the fact that a married woman is likely to be a better school teacher than a single one, nor that a woman whose husband is able to support her may be a more capable teacher than one who has a husband to support, nor that a woman with the maternal instinct so firmly implanted that she desires to marry may be a better teacher and a better woman than an old maid.

The whole bill is based upon the theory that one teacher is just as efficient as another and that only those women who are compelled to earn their own living are entitled to positions. To be consistent the board should bar from employment all young women whose parents or other relatives are able to support them. It matters not, of course, what may be best for the welfare of the schools.

It is to be hoped that the New York legislature has better sense than the board of education.

A POPULAR APPOINTMENT.

The numerous friends of Cal E. Stone will rejoice over his promotion to be general passenger agent of the Great Northern railway system, succeeding F. I. Whitney, who was recently appointed general passenger traffic manager. Mr. Stone has a wide circle of acquaintances and admirers, and there is no more popular railroad man in the Northwest. As general passenger agent of the old St. Paul & Duluth road, Mr. Stone was a frequent visitor to Duluth, and he made a host of friends here who are pleased to see his advancement to the important position he now occupies. President Hill of the Great Northern has always surrounded himself with able and popular railroad men, and he has made no mistake in promoting Cal. Stone to the general passenger agency, in which position he is certain to increase the passenger business of the road.

IT SAVES MANY LIVES.

Much as has been said and written against vaccination and anti-toxin treatments, results in Chicago show that the treatment of diphtheria by anti-toxin has greatly reduced the death rate from that disease.

The current bulletin of the Chicago bureau of health calls attention to the great progress made in the treatment of diphtheria. For the decade ending Dec. 31, 1894, more than 13,500 deaths from diphtheria and croup were reported to the city's bureau of vital statistics. The following year Chicago physicians began the use of anti-toxin and in the decade closing with 1904 only 8,100 deaths from these two diseases were reported. Thus, the proportion of deaths to every 10,000 of the population has been reduced from 13.5 to 5. Since even now many children suffering from diphtheria are not treated with the anti-toxin, the reduction in the number of deaths is remarkable. The health bureau thinks itself safe in affirming as a result of medical experience that practically no child dies from diphtheria to whom 3,000 units of anti-toxin are administered within the first forty-eight hours of the attack, with the treatment repeated, of course, if necessary.

It may be true that sometimes the administering of anti-toxin is injurious to the patient. Much depends upon the general condition. But it is certainly much safer than to allow the disease to progress without that treatment, as these statistics show. But when people learn to live properly and keep both their surroundings and their persons clean there will be no need of anti-toxins because there will be no diphtheria. Yellow fever was banished from Cuba by cleaning up the centers of population, not by administering germicides.

WITH BANDS OF STEEL.

A highly interesting article is contributed by Andrew Carnegie to the New York Tribune suggesting the proper way of securing the objects of the Monroe doctrine and make the acquisition of more territory on this continent by European nations impossible. He would bind the American nations together by bands of steel, which could never be severed.

The way, according to his view, is not by augmenting the navy, with all its vast initial cost and two-thirds as much annually for maintenance, but by hastening the construction of the continental railway which shall connect New York and San Francisco with Buenos Ayres and all the nations between. The approximate distance, by routes now partially completed and available is 10,470 miles. The distance remaining to be covered is less than 5,000 miles, and is constantly lessening by the work doing in the South American states, of which he gives a summary based on official statistics.

He estimates that this line can be completed and equipped for the sum of $175,000,000, less than two years' expenditure on the navy, much less than the Siberian railway has cost Russia, not exceeding what Canada is to expend on her new through line to the Pacific, not one-half of what we are to expend for the isthmian canal. Once constructed, the whole line would shortly become self-sustaining, and in time profitable. It would bind the continent to us, politically and commercially, much more certainly than any naval force could do, and constitute a backbone of defence against any European assault on any part of it.

It is his opinion that the United States might advantageously co-operate with the South American states, which are already backing the enterprise, by a loan of its credit. He says:

"Instead of going forward building a large and costly navy, it would be true statesmanship if we contributed, say, only one years' cost of the navy—$100,000,000—and asked the South American republics to contribute the remaining $75,000,000 necessary, and thus settle this Monroe doctrine for all time. It would only be a loan for a few years, and eventually cost nothing. * * * If our government guaranteed the bonds of the continental line, as it has guaranteed those of railroads in the Philippines, it would, in my judgment, make a very wise use of its credit."

Most people will agree that it would be better policy for this country to spend its money for internal improvements than for warships; and the establishing of rail communication with the South American countries would be a safer plan than the building of more ships. It would give a line of communication that could not be shot up, nor torn up, nor sunk, but one that would always be available for the movement of troops and supplies in case of necessity.

Mr. Carnegie's concluding words are as follows: "The proposition really is: Six battleships added to our navy, and provision made for their maintenance, against a railway connection with Buenos Ayres; the cost of a great navy being perpetual and without cessation year after year, the cost of the railroad ceasing soon after it is put in operation. Warships become obsolete in a few years; the railroad is everlasting and constantly improves. The ships are always subject to attacks by foes; the railway is immune. The ships require cash year after year which never returns; the railroad simply a loan of our credit for a few years."

With such a railroad no foreign power could find permanent lodgement on any part of this continent, and with the Philippines granted independence there would be no need of further additions to our navy.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

It hardly seems fair to compel the country that is whipped to pay the victor for being whipped, but that is one of the rules of warfare, as it is of courts, and Russia will probably be compelled to put up.

The political wirepullers hate to let loose of the power to control nominations of state officers but they will be compelled to do so in time.

The Russian navy is still sailing around somewhere, but it is safe to say that it will be in no hurry to sail in the direction of Togo's squadron.

Mayor Cullum has issued a needed warning to vicious saloonkeepers, who are not satisfied to conduct a legitimate business but connive with thugs and grafters to rob the unwary. The mayor should follow up his warning with an ax whenever occasion requires.

Hon. Hoch, the new governor of Kansas, is possessed of a fine sense of humor. Recently in vetoing a bill that was already a law he stated in his message that it was up to the author of the measure to "set 'em up." The senate indicted a reply in which the governor was asked for an explanation of the phrase. He sent this back: "If the angel Gabriel were to blow such a blast from his trumpet that the mountains should rock to their bases, the Democratic party would probably sleep on undisturbed, but if he were even to whisper the magic words, 'Set 'em up,' the grave of this moribund organization would give up its dead and from the entire aggregation, headed by the talented and handsome senator from Atchison, would come the answer in swelling chorus, 'We will take the same.'"

The Rev. Mary S. Pepper, a Brooklyn spiritualist, says there is a council of spirits which communicates with the members of congress and tells them what to do. It must be a council from the lower regions that usually advises the senate.

Hotel Gossip.

"Timber thieves are not yet a thing of the past," said Ervin Richards of Hillsdale, Wis., at the McKay. "I have engaged in the business of timber cruiser and land-looker for some time past, and for several weeks have been working down in Aitkin county, where there are still large areas of unsettled territory.

"Probably there are not so many thefts of this nature now as formerly, but there are enough men looking for a chance to 'lift' timber to keep the non-resident landowners worried all the time. I know one man down in Aitkin county who makes a living, and a good one at that, by spotting out these thieves and then acting as agent for the company in adjusting the matter. He tells me that his annual income amounts to $1,800, though, of course, he does a little work on the side, such as locating people on government land, but by far the greater part of this money comes from the rogue-spotting business. He finds a man or company that has been stealing timber, reports the matter to the real owners of the land, is commissioned to act as agent, and then gets his employer to agree upon some sum which will be accepted in payment for the timber losses. Then he goes to the offenders and sets his price for settlement several notches above the one agreed upon, and he generally gets the cash, too, for the alternative is a jail sentence for the thief. His business is legitimate enough, for he is really doing the landowner, who might otherwise not learn of the theft until too late, a good turn.

"Contesting the rights of homesteaders is coming to be more of a business every year. There are regular companies engaged in it. They have agents continually on the go looking for chances for contest. After finding a claim where it appears that the homesteader has not strictly complied with the terms of the law, they prevail upon some land-looker they have on the string to agree to purchase the homestead right for a specified time, and then institute a contest under the name of the latter. Many a man has been beaten out of his land in this manner, and once in a while the second filer loses the tract in the same fashion, for cases of this nature are unscrupulous and think nothing of fighting a former customer, if opportunity offers."

"Tourists and visitors in the Yellowstone National park this season will be housed in the largest log structure in the world," said Joseph Tufts of Livingston, Mont., at the Lenox. "Old Faithful Inn, within a few hundred yards of the great geyser of that name, is in many respects one of the most unique summer hotels ever built. In the entire structure there is not a square yard of plaster, and hewn stone and sawed boards enter so little into its construction that they can hardly be said to form a part. Yet the building affords the guests the accommodations of the very best city hostelries. Its rooms are electric lighted and steam-heated, and baths and hot and cold water are to be had the same as in a first-class city hotel.

"The hotel is built of the rough products of the forest at a cost of $200,000. It is made entirely of logs and roofed with cedar 'shakes' instead of shingles. Its front veranda is twenty-six feet wide and 210 feet long. The main structure is 300 feet in length. The front door is provided with a latch string. The key is an interesting specimen of the smith's art and is fifteen inches in length. From the main floor in front of the clerk's desk to the dome above has a clear height of eighty-six feet. The balustrades of the staircase are of gnarled branches, and the newels and pillars of twisted tree trunks."

"The business of manufacturing advertising novelties is getting to be quite an extensive one," said E. W. Heinke of Minneapolis at the St. Louis. "Every progressive merchant and business man knows very well that he can attain to no very great degree of success unless he advertises, and the more money he expends in judicious advertising the bigger his profits become. There are so many different forms of advertising that the newcomer on the field, and many of the old fellows, meet with considerable difficulty in deciding upon which one to adopt. The wise ones choose three or four different forms. I don't say this because I represent a concern which manufactures novelties, but because it is a fact. Anything to keep your name before the people, from toothpicks in a pretty box to full pages in the newspapers. The way things now stand in the business world it is the merchant or factory that spends the most money in soliciting about a special line of goods that makes the most money, and more people are coming to realize that this is a fact every year."

"This is going to be a great year for the railroad men, particularly on the range roads," said W. R. Pucher, a Two Harbors engineer, at the St. Louis. "The Harbors engineer, at the St. Louis. "The vast amount of ore to be transported from the mines to the docks before the end of the season means that all of the railroad men in this part of the country will be kept busy, including the men in the shops.

"Ore shipping on all three of the roads will begin even earlier than was expected, and within a week should be in full ed, and within a week should be in full ed, and within a week should be in full swing. I heard it said that the first ore boats will leave with their cargoes from the Two Harbors docks not later than April 10, and the chances are that they will be in operation before that time. With the improvement work of the Iron Range road at Two Harbors has been in progress all winter, and is quite extensive. Eight tracks leading to the new ore dock had to be raised, and the work of raising them was begun 1,800 feet from the dock."

The Duty of a Gentleman.

"Bobby's Return," by Gouverneur Morris, in Reader Magazine: On another occasion, having returned from playing poker at the club, my grandfather said:

"When a man is hard up he should borrow, but he must devote his energies to paying back and remaining the equal of the man from whom he has borrowed. If he cannot pay back, let him be frank about it; for it is better to steal than to cheat."

And again:

"To ride straight and to shoot straight, to win money cheerfully and to lose it cheerfully, never to be boorishly in debt or swinishly drunk, to enjoy flowers and music, and if possible to be in love with at least one good woman, is half the duty of a gentleman."

"What's the other half, grandpa?" I had asked him.

"Why, to be a gentleman, of course."

A Chinese Dog Story.

Woman's Home Companion: A number of noted New Yorkers were presented to Prince Pu Lun and the Chinese minister, Sir Chentung Liang-Cheng, during their American tour, and one of the gentlemen told an incident that illustrated the remarkable intelligence of a dog of his.

The minister said, with a smile, "I am reminded, sir, of a Chinese dog story.

"There was a Chinaman who had three dogs. He came home one evening and he found them asleep on his couch of teakwood and marble. He whipped them and drove them forth.

"The next night when he came home the dogs were living on the floor. But he placed his hand on the couch and found it warm from their bodies. Therefore he gave them another whipping.

"The third night, returning earlier than usual, he found the dogs sitting before the couch blowing on it to cool it."

Not Lonesome.

Topeka Journal: Seated on the grass in front of a sod cabin in Oklahoma was a man cleaning a double-barreled shotgun, and after we had conversed for a few minutes I asked him how far it was to the nearest neighbor's.

"A trifle over two miles," he replied.

"As far as that? You must find it rather lonesome here."

"No, I can't say as I do."

"No, I'm not. But, you see, I mortgaged this claim for four hundred dollars."

"Yes."

"And I couldn't pay, and they foreclosed on me."

"I see."

"That was two years ago and the sheriff has been trying to get possession ever since. He comes twice a week, and we have a shot at each other, and at least twice a week some durned fool comes along and wants to know if I ain't lonesome; and when you add the claim jumpers, the rattlesnakes and the skunks, this life is about the excitingest thing I know of. There comes the sheriff now, and you had better get down behind that log and keep clear of his buckshot."

A Capable Indian Lad.

Grand Marais Herald: The county auditor received from Whitesky Gesick, a 13-year-old Indian boy at Lutsen, the skin of a wolf shot by him one day last week. This lad is quite a hunter, and brings in his share of large forest game. And he is as handy with the pen as he is with the gun. His letter to the auditor, in arrangement, in penmanship and in its business-like tone is a model and highly creditable to one of his age. Still this boy, as with many others like him, may enjoy little more of the advantages of school. 'Tis a pity that such natural ability, that might count for future usefulness, should go undeveloped.

Use of Both Hands.

Lecture by Sir James Sawyer: We should form the habit of using each of our hands in turn in our one-handed activities. In a few months we might attain to fair ambidexerity, in a few years to the full use of each hand. For this object the best exercise is writing with the neglected hand. If a man learned to write well with either hand almost all the other unmanual graces would be added unto him. There are many other uni-manual activities in which, by changing the hand employed in them, we might cultivate ambidexterity, as in carrying a stick or umbrella, in fencing with a foil, in counting money, in changing our watch-pocket from side to side, in the use of a spoon in taking soup, in domestic carpentry, and in many other usual activities.

Depends on the Locality.

Kansas City Journal: The American girl, says Henry James, is attractive but she "lacks elusiveness." Henry probably made his observations in Massachusetts where there are more girls than boys and where it doesn't pay to be too elusive.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: What is everybody's business is also the devil's.

When a girl is married it doesn't take her long to get over being afraid of men.

Some men are so unlucky all they would have to do to live forever would be to get their lives insured.

Even a natural born poet will forget to put verses in his letters to a woman after they have been married a while.

Liable to Disappointment.

Philadelphia Ledger: If any poor people have got the notion since Mrs. Chadwick's financial feats that banks are in the habit of lending money on poor security let them try to borrow some.

Twenty Years Ago.

Taken From the Columns of Duluth Papers of This Date 1885.

E. W. Matter has taken the agency for Duluth and the tributary country of the Globe Oil company of Minneapolis. Their headquarters are at Cleveland.

A petition has been extensively signed by property owners asking for the grading of Superior street from Fourteenth avenue west to the city limits. The work will probably be done this season.

George Wirth is in the city this week casting his professional eye over the dwelling recently purchased by M. J. Forbes. The house is to be thoroughly rebuilt.

The Duluth Lumber company has sold to Boston parties nearly all its pine land in St. Louis county. The new owners are speculators.

F. J. Marsh & Co. took possession of the H. A. Campbell stock of groceries today.

A. M. Miller will thoroughly remodel his fine residence this summer. W. C. Eyster will also remodel his home.

It is said that G. S. Barnes & Co. the Northern Pacific grain men, will open an office in Duluth this spring.

Company K now meets in the Vineyard rink and will probably make an effort to purchase the structure.

W. C. Eyster has consented to run for village treasurer next Tuesday.

JUST JOSHES.

Houston Post: "I see your sweetheart has married your rival."

"Yes."

"Going to be avenged?"

"I think so, on both of them."

Cleveland Leader: "Mr. Ranhard took me out for a ride in his automobile."

"Did you have a good time?"

"No. We didn't meet a single person whom I knew."

Chicago Tribune: "Does your husband tell you his business troubles?"

"Yes, but he doesn't know it. I wait till he's asleep, and then I shake him a little and ask him for money."

Kansas City Times: "I have noticed," says the Rev. Alex Appleby, "that every boy who has a tooth pulled says it was one of the most stubborn the dentist ever extracted."

Pittsburg Dispatch: Tom—What is Miss Screecher singing?

Tessie—"I Wonder Where My Love Can Be."

Tom—I don't know, but I wish I was with him.

Washington Star: "Have you ever made any effort to persuade this trust promoter that his methods were wrong?" said one anxious citizen.

"No," answered the other. "I spoke to him about it, and he said that a form might pay dividends, but I would have to show him."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Cloud Journal Press: Governor Johnson has vetoed the Horton bill, which continued the capitol commission in office for the next two years with full control of the state house. Governor Johnson's suggestion that the employes requiring technical skill be put under civil services to prevent the removal for political purposes by changing administrations is wise. The veto of the governor will meet the approval of all who believe in fair play and no unnecessary expense in public affairs.

Cook County Herald: The stealing of the governorship of Colorado by Peabody, the tyrant executive of that state, is an outrage that is unlikely to go unrebuked by the people. The legislative majority by which he was seated showed a contempt that Peabody was not elected, by requiring him to resign forthwith, giving the place to the lieutenant govehuor. It was a disgraceful job, concocted to nullify the will of the people, and if Colorado does not avail herself of every opportunity to avenge the outrage she deserves to be governed by Peabodys.

Owatonna Journal: According to the Albert Lea Tribune, the street carnival people are in that vicinity again, looking for business. Owatonna speaks from the depths of an experience and says to her sister, "Let it alone."

Fairmont Sentinel: Any young man who has not the courage or moral stamina to take unto himself a better half when the land is filled with the handsomest and sweetest girls in the world, and shirks the responsibility of being the head of a household, is far from being a perfect man, or the best kind of an American citizen either.

St. Cloud Times: So far as observation goes the only Republican newspapers which cannot recover from the jolt received by the election of John A. Johnson are Governor Dunn's Princeton Union and Private Secretary Mitchell's Fairmont News.

St. Cloud Journal Press: Attorney General Young has commenced suit to annul the lease of a valuable mineral claim held by Mabel Evans, charging that there was a conspiracy between the officers in the auditor's office. This case was reported by Public Examiner Johnson, and the attorney general says that if he succeeds in setting aside the lease the school fund of the state will be the gainer by thousands of dollars. It was careless of Mr. Young, however, to bring this suit before the report of the committee on public ers, the rattlesnakes aud the skunks, this life is about the excitingest thing I know of. There comes the sheriff now, and you had better get down behind that log and keep clear of his buckshot."

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

Chicago Tribune: In the battle of life, which too often takes on the guise of a battle of death, the laurel of the victor is interwined with the cypress of the vanquished. Here is the consideration which gives the gold coin of success its obverse, leaden side.

A preacher of the gospel of success attended his pulpit the other day and spoke as follows: "There is another fellow trying to get the prize that you are after. Unless you knock him down he will knock you down and the prize will be his."

The large proportion of truth in this philosophy cannot be gainsaid. The rungs of the ladder we climb are some of them our own achievements, but others of them the living bodies of prostrated rivals. Even in altruism there is competition. The patriot who would serve his country serves it only in the disappointment of others, perhaps equally patriotic, who competed with him for position and power.

It is therefore a constant temptation to look not so much toward achievement as toward victory, not so much toward doing a thing as toward preventing somebody else from doing it. Universal nature, red in tooth and claw, shows all animals living by preying on one another and man cannot altogether disentangle himself from his clay.

It is the particular glory of America that its two greatest men achieved their greatness more by being great in themselves and less in trampling on others than did the national heroes of the Old World. Washington deserved well of the republic without deserving ill of any of his fellow citizens, and Lincoln's magnanimity and his surpassing gentleness toward his enemies were alike remarkable.

Chase criticised Lincoln savagely, but when Lincoln was urged to crush him out by refusing to appoint him chief justice he replied: "I am not in favor of crushing anybody out," and Chase got the appointment. A similar saying proceeded from just after his re-election. "So long as I have been here I have not willingly planted a thorn in any mans' bosom."

"Willingly" is the test word. It is inevitable that there should be thorns. Life is strife and strife means thorns. The successful man is obliged to reflect upon the lacerated bosoms he has left behind him. But his success in the Lincoln meaning of the word fails of completion if he has planted thorns "willingly."

PEASE PEN POINTS.

Anoka Union: The senatorial syndicate seems to be following the instructions of its masters.

The Republican party needs to keep its eyes open, for the people are getting wise.

Down East they are laughing fit to kill at the idea of christening the warship Minnesota with water instead of champagne.

When public sentiment demands the enforcement of laws, they are always enforced, and no official dares to defy it.

Roosevelt Democrats are getting as plenty as flies in August.

The weapons of politics—booze and money. Usually they are successful in the fight.

Judging from the debates in the state senate, each senator is suspicious of the other, and unless they are more careful the people will be suspicious of all of them.

You get your satisfy in seeing "Parsifal" once, and wonder why so much touse is made over it.

NEWS FOR GARFIELD.

Omaha World-Herald: The beef trust is like the assassin. It works in the dark. We do not realize its mischief until its victims are in its coils. It is worse than the Venetian bravo in assassinating competition, fleecing the farmers and robbing the people. It has enslaved the railroads, bilking them out of millions in rebates, mileage, special privileges on private car lines. It has blacklisted the officers and employes of some of the railroads, in some cases reducing them to beggary, despair and suicide. Still we are told "Rockefeller has religion."

Roebuck's God does just what Roebuck tells him to do." And the manipulators of the beef trust are held up as exemplars of all the Christian graces.

The World-Herald asks the attention of the grand jury, now in session at Chicago, and United States District Attorney Baxter to the manner in which the trust has manipulated the prices of cattle in the West in 1904, as shown by the annual report of the department of agriculture, issued in February, 1905. For some reason the home value of cattle in Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado and Texas was greater than the preceding year by nearly $5,000,000. Is this because of the legislatures holding their sessions in these four states during the past winter, and the fear of their attacking the trust? This can hardly be the case, because the legislatures of Missouri and Kansas were also in session. But there was no session in Iowa, and strange to remark, Iowa shows the heaviest depression of any state in the home value of its cattle, exclusive of milch cows. Here are the comparative figures for several states:

	No. of Head. 1904.	No. of Head. 1903.	Per Head. 1904.	Per Head. 1903.
Missouri	1,949,988	1,949,132	17 21	19 40
Kansas	2,682,299	2,694,171	17 21	18 90
Nevada	390,029	382,375	16 49	33 34
California	1,122,218	1,084,532	19 29	21 98
Total	9,152,133	8,997,742	$18 03	$20 74

	—Farm Values.— 1904.	1903.
Iowa	$67,348,010	$77,385,457
Missouri	33,240,496	37,525,913
Kansas	46,159,947	43,228,000
Nevada	6,429,181	8,541,141
California	21,618,258	23,944,214
Total	$167,228,192	$185,634,725

Now as the farmers base their prices on the home market at the station, and the trust makes the prices at the station consequently the farm value of cattle is based on trust prices. Commissioner Garfield confined his investigation to the year 1903, from which he concluded of the beef trust made a profit of 93 cents per head, as the home prices in these states in 1904 averaged $1.81 per head, less than in 1903, then the combined profit ought to be $2.80 per head, which necessarily came out of the cattle grower. As will be seen the cattle grower is a victim of the merciless beef trust for more than $16,000,000 in Iowa in 1904; $1,800,000 in Missouri; over $3,000,000 in Kansas; $2,100,000 in Nevada; $2,300,000 in California, and $19,405,553 in the five states, although there was an increase of 154,391 animals.

There are other features of the department's report which the Chicago grand jury can make very interesting to the manipulators of the beef trust

Don't Snub the Boy.

Maukato Free Press: Don't snub the boy because he wears shabby clothes. When Edison, the inventor of the telephone, first entered Boston, he wore a pair of linen breeches in the depth of winter. Don't snub a boy because his house is plain and unpretending. Abraham Lincoln's early home was in a log cabin. Don't snub a boy because of the ignorance of his parents. Shakespeare, the world's greatest poet, was the son of a man who was not able to write his own name. Don't snub a boy because he chooses a humble trade. The author of "Pilgrim's Progress" was a tinker. Don't snub a boy of physical disability. Milton was blind. Don't snub a boy because of dullness in his lessons. Hogarth, the celebrated painter and engraver, was a stupid boy at his books. Don't snub anybody. Not only because some day he may outstrip you in the race of life, but because it is neither kind, nor right, nor Christian like.

DIVORCE IS WANTED

By Phalen Saxby, Formerly Episcopal Minister at Superior.

His Intimacy With Young Woman Figures In Case.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 31.—The first chapter in what promises to be the most sensational divorce case that has been tried in this county, or in the state, in fact, was enacted in the district court yesterday, when the attorney of Phalen Saxby, employed by the Kops Music company, argued a motion to have his divorce case against Olive Leigh Saxby set for trial.

The attorney for Mrs. Saxby showed to the satisfaction of the court that it was impossible to set the case, inasmuch as she is quarantined for smallpox at her home in Superior, Wis., and that it would be necessary, after her recovery, to take certain depositions. He further showed that Mr. Saxby had neglected to comply promptly with an order of the court made several months ago regarding the payment of certain attorney's fees and suit money, and asked the court for an additional amount. Judge Fisk allowed $50 additional, and the case will be taken up after the recovery of Mrs. Saxby, and her attorney given sufficient time to secure necessary depositions.

The interesting part of the case comes from the fact that Phalen Saxby was for a number of years a minister of the Episcopal church, and for a time was in charge of St. Alban's parish in Superior, Wis.

Mr. Saxby claims that the parting of himself and wife was the result of a conspiracy entered into by the bishop in charge of the Superior church and his wife, and intimates that there will be some sensational evidence brought out when the case came on for trial.

Mrs. Saxby denies the conspiracy story, and says that the intimacy of Rev. Saxby with one of the young ladies of his Superior congregation caused all the trouble. This intimacy, she asserts, resulted in much gossip and an agreement between herself and her husband to separate. This agreement to part was made on Oct. 13, 1902, and by the terms of the agreement she was to receive the sum of $50 per month for the care of herself and their three children. The couple were married in 1887. She further alleges that no part of the money has ever been paid to her. Mr. Saxby started a divorce action at Superior, but left there and the case was never called for trial.

.....Miss Jeanette Martella.

"Alphonse and Gaston" was greeted by a full house at the Metropolitan last evening. The production furnished much amusement for the audience, and the several different features were greeted by laughter and applause. David Yost took the part of Alphonse with credit to himself, and C. R. Kirby was just as good a Gaston. Those who read the Sunday papers readily recognized F. Opper's characters. Happy Hooligan was also there, in the smiling person of E. R. Whelan. It was his lucky day, however, and he was molested but little by the policeman. All of those participating in the performance were evidently chosen with an eye to their fitness for the several parts.

The Band Concert.

Gaining new laurels each successive Sunday, the Third Regiment band of Duluth has been afforded increased patronage at each concert. The members have endeavored to please their patrons, and the result of their efforts has been highly gratifying to them and Mr. Flaaten, who has devoted unturing efforts to make the present concert season at the Lyceum a success.

At the close of last Sunday evening's program the band members gathered together, and while Director Flaaten's attention was called to other matters, quietly consulted with each other and enthusiastically decided to tender him a special testimonial concert next Sunday afternoon. Each player is devoting energetic efforts to make the affair a success, from an entertaining as well as financial standpoint, and it is assured that one of the best concerts of the season will be rendered to one of the largest attendance.

A SINGER'S GRATITUDE

Harry Bewley, Well-Known Singer, Tells How Father John's Medicine Cured His Cough and Cold and Prevented Pneumonia.

"It gives me pleasure to contribute my testimony as to the benefits I have derived from Father John's Medicine. I have found it a positive cure for coughs and colds, it having been of great benefit to me in several emergencies during my professional career. At one time I had a serious cough and cold and pneumonia was threatened. By faithfully taking Father John's Medicine, pneumonia was prevented. The medicine also built up my strength, increased my weight, and left my voice clearer and stronger than ever. I write these lines in a spirit of gratitude toward Father John's Medicine and with the hope that others may know of this reliable remedy." (Signed) Harry Bewley, singer of original parodies of popular songs with the Corse Payton Stock Company.

"GRAFT" BUSY IN ENGLAND

Disclosures Smothered Both In the Press and Parliament.

London, March 31.—Purity is the watchword in the British public service; when stories of political or other corruption come from America the English press invariably thanks God such things are impossible here. But the truth is that disclosures of this character which would arouse a storm of indignation in the American press are systematically smothered up here, both in the press and in parliament.

The South African contract scandals are a striking case in point. The auditor general has presented a report revealing wholesale frauds on a gigantic scale. Not only by contractors, but officials. For example, out of $8,225,000 granted for the imperial yoemanry $2,500,000 has totally disappeared. In another case forage contractors were buying enormous quantities of surplus oats from the army authorities during the war at $2 per hundred pounds, while selling to the same authorities at the same station at the same time the same quality of oats at $3.50.

In the case of one colonial regiment in the Rhodesia field force $180,000 is missing, while one contractor supplied 1,310,000 supposed pound-tins of jam which contained really only twelve ounces.

Immediately this report, a thick book recording hundreds of irregularities and robberies, great and small, was issued by the auditor general, who is independent of the government. The ministry immediately set about placing every obstacle in the way of its ventilation.

The names of the fraudulent contractors are left blank in the report and every device is adopted to baffle anybody attempting to seek retribution for the wrongdoers. Several days War Secretary Forster dodged giving the contractors' names, and then it turned out that the principal among them was a member of parliament on the ministerial side. But there is not the slightest chance of anyone being brought to justice or made responsible.

HUNGRY HOLLANDER

Possessed $11,300 But Was Nearly Starved.

Kansas City, Mo., March 31.—The man who had a check for $1,000,000 and yet starved to death had a counterpart in Herman Van Rassier, recently from Holland, who applied to Capt. W. E. Weber at police headquarters for aid.

Van Rassier had a draft for $300 and a certificate of deposit for $11,000 on an Amsterdam (Holland) bank, but was on the verge of starvation. He could not get the draft cashed because no one would identify him.

Capt. Weber lent him $2 and showed him a place to room until he succeeded in cashing the draft.

Later Capt. Weber, with John Marcus, secretary to Chief Hayes, advanced Van Rassier $75 on the draft. Later a telegram was received from a bank in Milwaukee, on which the draft was drawn, stating that the draft was good.

The telegram also confirmed Van Rassier's statement to Capt. Weber that he had $11,000 in a bank in Amsterdam, Holland.

HOLDING OFF

Strawberries Still Too High to Find Sale In Duluth.

Apples From New York —Other Michigan Street News.

With strawberries retailing at 75 cents a quart on the Chicago market, the local dealers are unable to handle them in any quantity, and only two or three small shipments have been received. Until the price reaches 40 or 50 cents but few strawberries will be seen in Duluth.

The strawberries that are coming North at the present time are all from Southern Florida. Within a week or two the Georgia crop should be on the market, and the price will then be within reach of at least a few Duluthians. When the Georgia crop is on the market the Duluth dealers will begin to get direct shipments. Several Duluth houses already have their buyers in the South looking after berries and the early green vegetables.

* * *

The fact that the buyers have gone to Florida brings up a fact that but few Duluth people know, and that is the fact that most of the Duluth commission houses keep buyers busy the entire year traveling from one part of the country to another. In the winter the buyer for a house will be in California buying oranges and lemons. In the spring he moves South to Florida, and follows the strawberry crop through Georgia, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and up into Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin. He then jumps back and follows the raspberry crop for a few weeks, leaving that to buy cherries and blackberries, and then going East to New York and Michigan to look after the apple crops, and be on the ground when apple picking commences.

Sometimes the same men will buy for several houses in different cities, but every house in Duluth has such a buyer in the fruit markets of the country. Just at the present time the buyers are leaving for Florida and Southern Georgia to look after the early strawberries.

* * *

Large consignments of apples are being received from New York state. The stocks of most of the local dealers were about exhausted, and they have been compelled to draw on the cold storage supplies in the East. Several carloads of apples a day have been coming into Duluth for the last week or two. The price is much firmer than it was. Practically all the cheap varieties are now out of the market, and there is nothing but the choicest fruit to be had. The price ranges from $3.25 to $3.50 per barrel, on the street, and the retail price is some higher.

* * *

A new variety of orange is on the market this week, and it is a revelation to both the dealers and the consumers. It is some of the famous Duarte fruit from Southern California, and is the product of a long series of experiments that have been made there. The skin is not any thicker than a piece of ordinary wrapping paper, and is as smooth as a piece of kid. The orange is of the seedless variety, but the unsightly navel has almost disappeared, and the fruit closely resembles a grape fruit in all but size.

The fruit is very juicy and sweet, although in this respect it probably does not have much the better of other samples of California fruit received this winter have probably never been exceeded in Duluth for either quality or quantity.

* * *

One or two of the local dealers received car lots of celery from the South during the week, and it will be plentiful on the Saturday market. The price is somewhat lower than last week.

* * *

Onions are firm and higher. The old stocks are getting low, and the new green onions are just beginning to come in.

* * *

Potatoes are still quoted at 35 cents a bushel. The market in them is dull without much demand.

* * *

The egg market is still very erratic and the dealers are unable to tell much concerning the prices from one day to another. The price is firmer than it has been for a week past, however, and eggs are now quoted at from 15½ to 16 cents a dozen. Receipts have not been quite so heavy as they have for two weeks past, and a good demand in Chicago and the Twin Cities has kept the price from sagging.

* * *

The butter market is also a little firmer. Creamery prints are quoted at 28 cents a pound, and fancy dairies at 23 cents.

* * *

Little change has taken place in either the poultry or meat markets during the week. Poultry is still very firm, hens and spring chickens each being quoted at 15 cents a pound, while turkeys are selling for 20 cents.

* * *

Meats held the advance made last week with the exception of pork loins, which have declined in price from 10½ cents to 9 cents per pound. Otherwise the market is unchanged.

* * *

Trade all along the street appears to be improving steadily as spring advances, and the dealers are looking forward to a brisk summer's business. The strawberry and green vegetable seasons are just commencing and as soon as these products are fairly on the market, the dealers will have all the business they can handle.

A GOOD DEAL OF NONSENSE.

About "Blood Purifiers" and "Tonics."

Every drop of blood, every bone, nerve and tissue in the body can be renewed in but one way, and that is, from wholesome food properly digested. There is no other way and the idea that a medicine in itself can purify the blood or supply new tissues and strong nerves is ridiculous and on a par with the fol-de-rol that dyspepsia or indigestion is a germ disease, or that other fallacy, that a weak stomach which refuses to digest food can be made to do so by irritating and inflaming the bowels by pills and cathartics.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure indigestion, sour stomach, gas and bloating after meals, because they furnish the digestive principles which weak stomachs lack, and, unless the deficiency of pepsin and diastase is supplied, it is useless to attempt to cure stomach trouble by the use of "tonics," "pills" and "cathartics" which have their only effect is to give a temporary stimulation.

One grain of the active principle in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat, eggs and similar foods, and experiments have shown that they will do this in a glass bottle at proper temperature, but of course are much more effective in the stomach.

There is probably no remedy so universally used as Stuart's Tablets, because it is not only the sick and ailing, but well people who use them at every meal to insure perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

People who enjoy fair health take Stuart's Tablets as regularly as they take their meals, because they want to keep well, prevention is better than cure, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do both; they prevent indigestion and they remove it where it exists. The regular use of one or two of them after meals will demonstrate their merit and efficiency better than any other argument.

WOMEN FOLLOW THE NEW FAITH

The So-Called Persian Cult Known as Mazadazna Philosophy.

New York, March 31.—It is said there are 2,000 women of wealth in this city who are followers of the so-called Persian cult, known as Mazadazna philosophy.

While many hundreds of these women sat in Carnegie Lyceum listening to their leader, "Dr. Hanish," one of the expounders of the faith—Mrs. Brownie Rathbone Weaverson—was being held for trial in a police court charged with practicing medicine without a license.

Her patient, a Mrs. Rabee, is now in a city hospital suffering from gangrene, and both legs may have to be amputated. As the revolting nature of the healing process was the very magnet which drew them, this crowd of fashionably dressed women listened to the esoteric theories without a blink or a blush.

Not even the rain could keep away the women who have become infatuated with this mystic philosophy, and they traveled to Carnegie Lyceum in cabs, automobiles and private equipages of every kind.

Women of every age were in the crowd, all of refined appearance, quiet manners and showing a high degree of culture. They listened with rapt attention to every word "Dr. Hanish" spoke, and applauded him with almost fanatical vigor. He is the head of this so-called Persian school of philosophy.

Although the methods of healing advocated and applied by the "healers" of the cult are so nauseating as to be beyond mention, the women who attended the meeting showed not a blush of modesty as they were expounded.

It is learned that, from a circle of ten or fifteen men and women, the Mazdaznan school has grown in this city in the past year until it numbers about 2,000 women as its pupils, with about a dozen "instructors." There are other circles throughout the country, the largest being in Chicago.

No attempt is made by the leaders of the cult to interest the vulgar crowd of common, everyday women in their philosophy, the beauties of their cult being reserved for those of higher understanding and the wherewithal to aid in the work. Not that anyone is barred from the lectures, but no special attempt is made to guide the calico-attired through the Elysian fields of high Persian thought. Assiduous attention, however, is paid to those in satin and silk, and visits to their homes by the leaders follow their enrollment in the cult.

Who conceived the Mazdaznan philosophy was not explained by "Dr. Hanish." His thoughts apparently are his own, and the average human mind would find great difficulty in comprehending their full meaning.

PEASANTS DEMAND MONASTERY.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—Five hundred peasants of the district of Vardzia in the Caucasus have surrounded the Greek monastery at Vardzia and demanded that it be handed over to them with the title deeds.

You may have a bigger store than the other fellow—better goods—more clerks—a better delivery system; but if he beats you as an advertiser he beats you as a merchant.

WHEAT HAS A GAIN

Heavy Decline In Argentina Shipments Causes Bulge at Liverpool.

American Markets Strong Early But Lose Much of Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 31.—Wheat opened with a good advance and during the early part of the session was strong, but toward the close lost much of the gain made earlier. The opening strength was upon the sharp advance in Liverpool, a gain of 1d being made there, the cause being the heavy decline of Argentina shipments. The May option in Chicago was very strong, closing ¾c higher as against ¼c higher in Duluth and Minneapolis and ⅛c lower in New York. The July option in Chicago was a shade lower, while in Duluth it was ⅛c higher, in Minneapolis ¼-⅜c higher and in New York unchanged.

Minneapolis reports large flour sales to the Orient, according to a story from there this morning. General Manager Little of the Pillsbury company is also out with a bullish interview on wheat.

Stocks of wheat at Duluth are expected to increase 25,000 bus this week.

The weather throughout the wheat belt is all that could be desired. The Modern Miller report said:

"Excepting a few scattered reports that the wheat plant is not maintaining its previous promise, conditions and prospects in the winter wheat belt continue highly favorable. From California come reports of rust owing to excessive rainfall and the crop in the Northeast states of the Pacific coast has only fair prospects."

Snow's report for the end of March makes the condition of winter wheat 99 against 90.01 last year and 83.1 at the end of last December. He says: "There has been no winter killing and the full acreage seeded last fall will go to harvest. The color is good, the stand satisfactory, soil moist everywhere and no evidence of Hessian fly to any appreciable extent. The present prospect is fully 5 points above the April average for a series of years and is remarkable for the uniformity of reports, both by states and counties inside the state lines."

Car receipts at Duluth were 25, against 26 last year, and at Minneapolis 226, last year holiday, making a total for the Northwest of 251, against 26 last year. Chicago received 23. Last year holiday.

Primary receipts of wheat were 350,116 bus., last year holiday, Shipments 221,591 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 192,684 bus.

Argentina shipments this week aggregate 2,016,000 bus., against 4,464,000 bus. last week and 3,232,000 bus. last year. The visible supply in Argentina now is 6,764,000 bus., against 4,784,000 bus. a year ago. Bradstreet reports American clearances for the week as totaling 585,829 bus.

Corn shipments from Argentina this week aggregate 120,000 bus., against 600,000 bus. last week and 197,000 bus. last year. The visible supply of corn in Argentina now is 600,000 bus., against 626,000 bus. last year. Bradstreet reports American shipments of 2,430,625 bus. this week. Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼@⅝d lower. In the Chicago market May corn closed ⅛-⅓c higher. May oats closed ⅛c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 643,810 bus. Shipments 575,251 bus. Clearances were 255,718 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was dull. The May option opened ⅝c higher at $1.06, sold up to $1.06⅝ at 9:47, fell to $1.06⅜ at 9:55, and sold at $1.06½ a moment later. It fell then to $1.06⅛ at 10:30, and recovered to $1.06½ at 11:53. From that point it fell off again and closed at the low point of the day, $1.05⅝. This was an advance for the day of ¼c. The July option sold 1¼c up to $1.03¾ and closed ½c higher than yesterday at $1.02½, that being the low point for the day.

Cash wheat was very dull and No. 1 northern brought ⅛c under May.

Flax was very dull but stronger. The May option sold 1c up to $1.33½ and closed at $1.33¾. Stocks of flax at Duluth are estimated to increase 20,000 bus. this week. Argentina shipments of flax this week were 600,000 bus., against 992,000 bus. last week and 1,352,000 bus. last year.

Oats advanced ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Shows Bouyanty From Several Causes.

Chicago, March 31.—An advance of 1d a bus in the price of wheat at Liverpool resulting from decreased shipments from Argentina had a buoyant effect on the wheat market here today. Commission houses were good buyers, but offerings were comparatively small. July opened ¾@⅞c to 1⅛@1c up at 88¾c to 89c. After touching 89@89¼c, the price reacted to 88⅝c, but rallied again to 88⅝@89c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 274 cars, against 200 cars last week and a holiday a year ago.

Reports from Minneapolis of a good cash demand with large sales of flour for shipment to the Orient strengthened the market here for a time. After July had touched 88¼c, however, the market weakened under quite general selling. Advices from the Southwest were again of a bearish character. July sold off to 88¼c and closed at 88⅜c, a shade lower than yesterday.

Strength of wheat had little effect on the corn market. The tone was barely steady, large receipts and excellent weather conditions being weakening influences. May opened unchanged at 47¼c, sold at 47½c and then reacted to 47⅛@⅛c. Local receipts, 258 cars, with 16 of contract grade.

The market rallied with wheat, May advancing to 47¾c. Later a reaction occurred on profit-taking. At the close May was up ⅛@¼c at 47¼@⅜c.

Covering by shorts held the oats market steady, in the face of liberal receipts and ideal weather or seeding. May opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 29 @⅜c to 29⅜c, and sold at 29⅜@⅝c. Local receipts were 142 cars.

Provisions were firm on higher prices for hogs. Trading was extremely quiet. May pork was up 5c at $12.70. Lard and ribs were each up 2½@5c at $7.12½ and $6.97½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.13⅝; July, 88¾c; September, 83¼c. Corn—March, 46½c; April 46¼c; May, 47¼@⅜c; July, 47⅜c; September, 47⅝c. Oats—March, 29⅜c; April, 29⅝c; May, 29⅜c; July, 29⅜c; September, 28⅝c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Early strength came from higher Liverpool cables, the market rullied nervously through most of the session. Up to within fifteen minutes of the close the market held very firm. While the market did not exhibit any snap after the long continued decline, considering the fine weather and bearish reports issued by Snow and the Modern Miller, the market did not act badly at all and with a little encouragement would have done much better. Wheat exhibits quite a little stubborn strength and the market clearly reflects an oversold condition. Indications of a change in the weather or a desire on the part of the leading shorts to cover could easily bring about a sharp rally.

Corn—The late easing off in prices came altogether through sympathy with the setback in wheat. The large export business reported yesterday has not been as yet confirmed, but the cash market today showed some little better inquiry. Corn throughout the session showed good form and acted as if it wanted to do better. It still looks to us like a good trading market.

Oats—The cash situation shows no improvement and the decline in prices does not seem to have stimulated speculative. Some strength in the cash department, but it is very light and must improve to sustain higher prices.

Provisions—Trade was not a large scale, but showed improvement over recent sessions. Undoubtedly the smaller run of hogs was responsible for some short covering. Any indication of small hog receipts could easily bring about an improved tone. The market still looks like a scalping affair.

* * *

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: The pressure was off the market today. The trade was moderate and tone rather dull. Bearish crop news appears to have lost its force for the time being as neither the favorable review of the Modern Miller nor of Statistician Snow proved effective as a selling motive. The weather is still summerlike throughout the belt. The trade is still mystified regarding the future of May delivery. Stories are current of much higher prices. The domestic flour demand was reported improved, and the Orient is said to have taken liberal quantities. Kansas City advices claim some export trade from there. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 19 cars.

Corn—Trade was limited and offerings not pressing. The large export business reported yesterday and the liberal quantities taken out of the pit under 47c were stimulating factors. Country movement continues light. Higher rates will be effective tomorrow from Western points. The May delivery was by far the strongest, making considerable gain on the July and September. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 227 cars.

* * *

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—The big longs are increasing their holdings on setbacks and will wait for shorts to become buyers on the bulges. Southwest markets reported improved demand for cash wheat with large sales to Minneapolis millers. Millers in turn had no complaints to make regarding volume of flour orders. Scattered longs have liquidated and the market is oversold and we would hold wheat bought under this price and accumulate more on slight recessions. Think by nevt week all markets will be selling at materially better prices.

Corn—Lower cables and the small increase in Argentine shipments along with good weather for planting started some selling after the opening, but these offerings were wanted and more, and the market sold up. We would buy corn now.

* * *

F. P. Frazier, Chicago: Don't think that Liverpool was put up by American buying. It was on account of the light shipments from Argentine, and a better demand for cash wheat. We had a few damage reports as I told you from Kansas yesterday, and we might have a few more. While I don't feel bullish on July wheat, and the same time I know there is a big short interest, and I think it would be wise to be a little cautious and not get too gay on these weak spots.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Prices of copper stocks were practically unchanged today. The market was very quiet with no attempt at liquidation or manipulation. In the afternoon prices strengthened all through the list under the lead of Amalgamated Copper. Centennial, Osceola, Old Dominion, Range and United States Mining all closed higher than last night and we look for better prices tomorrow.

STRENGTH SHOWN

By Stocks at the Closing, Which Was Irregular.

Quiet Tone of the Money Market Induced Buying.

New York, March 31.—The opening trading in stocks was quiet and the changes were small but nearly all were advances. A few specialties showed large gains, notably International Power, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Rubber Goods preferred and Toledo Railways which rose 1 to 1¾.

The reduced volume of dealings did not impair the underlying strength of the market and prominent stocks were bought on a rising scale. Western stocks displayed the most strength in the railroad list, but Union Pacific was the only stock that gained as much as a point. Recent active specialties were bought confidently. Rubber Goods preferred improved 4, North American 2½ and Amalgamted Copper, Rubber Goods, Realty, Metropolitan Securities and Atlantic Coast Line 1. Third Avenue dropped 1¾.

The demands slackened and some pressure developed against the Southern Iron stocks. Tennessee Coal lost 1, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 1⅛ and the gains elsewhere were reduced or wiped out. Des Moines & Fort Dodge fell 2¾ and Northwestern 2¼. Brooklyn Transit rose 1⅝. Lead 1⅝ and Delaware & Hudson, Rock Island preferred, Smelting and Linseed a point. Prices rallied again before noon. Sloss-Sheffield Steel rebounding to 1½ over last night. Bonds were firm at noon.

Aside from the spasmodic buying of standard stocks, the market received liberal stimulation from demand from the industrials and specialties. The midday support of Tennessee Coal carried it a point above yesterday's closing, and Lead was also extensively taken up to 46.

Transactions increased in the railroad stocks, especially New York Central, Pennsylvania and Union Pacific. Prices generally were higher all around and business showed some degree of activity. Union Pacific touched 130 and New York Central, Pennsylvania, St. Paul, Colorado Southern second preferred, United States Steel preferred, Sugar and Hocking Coal gained a point and Rubber Goods 2.

Prices made further advances on buying induced by encouragement over the quiet tone of the money market. Union Pacific touched 130⅝, Reading, Missouri Pacific, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Colorado & Southern, Republic Steel, People's Gas, Biscuit and Linseed preferred rose 1 or more. Distillers' Securities and Colorado Southern first preferred 2. Lead 3 and Electric Storage Battery 3½. Chicago Union Traction preferred dropped 3¾ and Manhattan, Knickerbocker Ice and the United Railway Investment stocks were down 1 or more. Best prices were not held and the close was irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, March 31.—The cotton market opened quiet and steady at unchanged prices in spite of rather disappointing cables, good weather and large receipts, and later advanced to a net gain of about 6 to 8 points or about the highest point of yesterday on bull support and continued uneasiness among nearby shorts. Trading was quiet at first, but became more active on the upward movement, with wire houses good buyers of late positions.

New York, March 31.—Cotton spot closed quiet; mid ups, 8.15; mid gulf, 8.40. Sales, 2,400 bales. Futures closed quiet; April, 7.64; May, 7.75; June, 7.59; July, 7.61; August, 7.64; September, 7.67; October, 7.72; November, 7.74; December, 7.77; January, 7.80.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, March 31.—Cattle receipts, 2,500; market steady; good to prime steers, $5.35@6.35; poor to medium, $4.25@5.25; stockers and feeders, $3.00@5.00; cows, $3.00@4.90; heifers, $2.25@5.35; canners, $1.75@2.50; bulls, $2.50@4.25; calves, $3.00@6.65. Hogs receipts, 17,000; tomorrow, 5,000; 5c higher; mixed and butchers, $5.15@5.35; good to choice heavy, $5.30@5.40; rough heavy, $5.10@5.25; light, $5.05@5.25; bulk of sales, $5.25@5.35. Sheep receipts, 7,000; sheep and lambs, steady; good to choice wethers, $5.75@6.25; fair to choice mixed, $4.50@5.50; Western sheep, $4.50@6.25; native lambs, $5.50@7.60; Western lambs, $5.85@7.75.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, March 31.—Close: Money on call strong, higher, 3¾@4½. Closing bid, 4¼ offered at 4½; time loans firm; 60 and 90 days and six months, 3½@4. Prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady; with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.90@4.86 for demand, and at $4.84.05@10 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.84½@4.85 and $4.86½@4.87. Commercial bills, $4.83¾@4. Bar silver, 55¾c. Mexican dollars, 43c. Government bonds strong; railroad bonds irregular.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, March 31.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $140,721,929; gold, $70,292,069; silver, $25,350,050.

ALABAMA GIRLS

Provided With School Teaching How to Aid Themselves.

School Shows Them Practical Means of Self-Support.

Monticello, Ala., March 31.—Until recently young women in Alabama have not been encouraged to seek employment outside of their own homes, but gradually the ancient social prejudices of antebellum days have died away, and, as a prominent educator told me, public opinion now approves the endeavors of young women to support themselves, particularly when they would otherwise be a burden upon their families. The only objections come from individuals—the relics of the old plantation aristocracy, who still adhere to the doctrine that it is unwomanly for a woman to earn wages.

In obedience to public sentiment the Girls' Industrial School of Alabama was established here at Montevallo in 1896, offering the first opportunity for the young white women of the state to learn trades and qualify themselves for self-support should they ever be thrown upon their own resources. Miss Julia Tutwiled, principal of the normal school at Livingston, Ala.—the leading woman educator of the state—first aroused public sentiment in support of the idea, and Col. Sol. D. Bloch, member of the state senate from Camden, introduced the act of incorporation into the legislature, and got through the appropriation of money to erect the buildings, which up to date have cost only $115,000. He says that the idea came to him while he was campaigning through the country and saw so many intelligent girls on the farms and in the villages who were dependent upon their parents and could not have obtained employment because their education had been defective.

The state gives an annual appropriation of $25,000, which pays for free education, and hence no tuition is charged except for instruction in music, art and elocution. The music and elocution departments are self-supporting. Every student is required to pay certain fees —$10 a month for board and laundry work, $2 per year for the use of the library, $3 for physical culture per year and $5 for incidentials—making a total of $90 per year for the ordinary privileges, not including the departments which have been mentioned. By doing housework in the kitchen, dining rooms and elsewhere a girl may reduce these expenses one-half, but it requires at least $45 per year to get an education at Montevallo, and that is about as low as such privileges can be obtained for anywhere.

The academic course is four years and is open to all white girls of good moral character above the age of 15. There is a preparatory school for younger girls with a course of two years. Every pupil is required to take the academic course, but it is arranged so that in addition she may elect any one of ten courses for training in the different trades, such as bookkeeping, telegraphy, stenography and typewriting, dressmaking, millinery, cooking, nursing, etc., and there is a normal department with a course of one year for graduates who desire to qualify themselves as teachers in Alabama. The legislature has recently passed a law elevating the standard for teachers and requiring examinations much more severe than were formerly necessary to obtain certificates. But a graduate of the Montevallo normal department can always obtain a position and command the maximum salary paid to women teachers, which is $30 per month in the country and $60 per month in the cities.

The largest number of girls study dressmaking and millinery, because they prefer that to office work; very few study art and music except those who can afford to indulge in that gratification. A few women can make a living by teaching drawing and painting in the public schools and by painting china, but there is little opportunity for an artist to make money in Alabama. The same may be said of music.

The dormitory will accommodate 250 girls and is now crowded, while 200 additional pupils are boarded around in private families in the village of Montevallo. It is hoped that the capacity of the school may be doubled during the next year, but evidently the Alabama legislature does not realize the important work this institution is doing.

Almost without exception the students are from the country—from the farms and villages of Northern and Central Alabama—the daughters of families of small means who could not get an education above that furnished by the common schools or secure any training for self-support by any other means.

Dr. F. M. Peterson, president of the Girls' Industrial school at Montevallo, says that 80 per cent of his students are required to support themselves when they leave the institution, and during the eight years it has been running about 500 young women have been sent out into the world with certificates describing their qualifications for usefulness in the different trades. Only about one-third of those who enter finish the course. The rest drop out because their families cannot pay their expenses any longer, but most of them marry or get positions in stores and offices, or dressmaking establishments, where they are much more sought after and receive much better pay than girls who have not had their training. Those who remain through the course almost without exception expect to be teachers, and some of them borrow money to pay their tuition through the course.

There is another industrial school for white girls at Camp Hill, Talapoosa county, with about sixty pupils. It is supported by northern money and is managed by Lyman Hill, a Northern man, on the self-help plan, all of the work being done by the students.

A similar school for negro girls is maintained by Northern Presbyterians at a little village a few miles south of Anniston. It is called the Barbour Memorial school.

Anniston is quite an educational center as well as a manufacturing city. The Anniston inn, an ambitious hotel, erected by a land company which founded that town, as an attraction to strangers and an advertisement, is now the Anniston College for Young Ladies, and is quite an extensive establishment. At Oxford, six miles from Anniston by trolley cars, is another, and one of the most conspicuous ornaments of the city is the Noble Institute for Young Women, established by the late Mr. Noble, founder of the town of Anniston, and its most public-spirited citizen. He was a Northern man, and one of the most progressive, energetic and successful industrial and commercial leaders this state has ever known.

THIEVES HOLD HIGH CARNIVAL

House of Senator Burrows Ransacked From Top to Bottom.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 31.—It was discovered today that thieves had ransacked the home in this city of Senator Burrows, who is still in Washington. The house was topsy-turvy from cellar to garret with indications that the thieves held high carnival during their visit. It is impossible to say how much was stolen; but it is thought that the loss will not be large as it is supposed that most of the valuable silverware was taken to Washington when Senator and Mrs. Burrows went there last fall.

New Castle, Pa., March 31.—Robbers early today completely looted the handsome residence of Lieut.-Governor William B. Brown, ransacking it from cellar to garret. The residences of James Ward Reis and Leander Raney were also entered evidently by the same men. The Brown and Raney families are absent from the city and the extent of their losses cannot be ascertained until they return. There is no clue to the thieves.

A merchant is peculiarly the architect of his own income. He plans his advertising campaign either for dividends or deficits.

JUROR WAS DRUNK

Court Could Not Proceed and Trial Was Postponed.

Delinquent Fined $20 and Disqualified From Future Service.

One of the jurors engaged in trying the civil action of George H. Crosby against the Scott-Graff Lumber company, begun yesterday in Judge Dibell's room, did not put in an appearance when court convened at 9:30 o'clock this morning. At 10:30 o'clock the juror was still missing and the court excused the remaining members until this afternoon. Hardly had the men excused left the courthouse building when the missing juror turned up, carrying a jag that interfered with his powers of locomotion to the extent that he could not walk without staggering.

After the delinquent had had time to get a little sober, he was taken before Judge Dibell on a bench warrant and severely reprimanded for his conduct. The juror had hardly yet recovered his proper state of mind, and was inclined to insist that he was only ten minutes late. This interval, he attempted to explain, was lost in waiting for a car to get to the courthouse. He denied at first that he had been drinking at all, but on being told sharply by the court there was no use of making a denial, he finally admitted that he had four glasses of beer last night at a West End saloon, but protested that he had nothing to drink before going to the courthouse this morning. This statement was so palpably wrong from the juror's appearance that the judge could not hide his incredulity.

Questioned as to his circumstances the juror finally admitted that he might be worth as much as $50,000, and the court, evidently desiring to be lenient, assessed him a fine of $20 with the alternative of twenty days in the county jail.

The man had $40 coming to him for service this term of court and half of this he promptly turned over to pay his fine.

Besides paying the fine he was excused from further service this term and his name was placed on the defective list, which means that he is disqualified from jury service.

Inquiry among the juror's friends shows that he is a laborer living in the country district, bearing a reputation for honesty and hard work, with a large family to support but with no means to do it with other than his daily earnings.

After he more fully realized his position, the delinquent juror admitted that he fell from grace by reason of tarrying too long at the flowing bowl since last evening, and expressed his opinion that the jag was a costly one and the lesson would undoubtedly last him for a while.

The trial of the case was resumed this afternoon with eleven jurors, both sides agreeing to this number.

PAUSE LIKELY

Before Next Move Looking Toward Peace Occurs.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—It is difficult to shed light on the peace pour parlous. From all information obtainable it is regarded as certain that actual negotiations between the belligerents are not yet under way but the task of bringing them together is proceeding informally through the United States and France in the persons of President Roosevelt and M. Delcasse, the French foreign minister, who have been apprised of Russia's irreducible minimum, which in addition to no cession of territory or indemnity is believed to include a guarantee of the right of way over the Siberian railroad to Vladivostok through Northern Manchuria. It is possible that there may be a pause before the next move occurs.

Added significance is now attached to President Roosevelt's desire to have Ambassador McCormick proceed forthwith to Paris where, being familiar with the conditions at St. Petersburg, he could render great assistance to Ambassador Porter in any negotiations it being known Gen. Porter will remain in Paris until the end of April. The fact that the president's instructions were sent to Mr. McCormick ten days ago gives some color to the reports from abroad that Japan took the initiative by approaching the president, but the idea with which this is coupled that the president will act as mediater is not credited. The diplomatists here generally believe that the negotiations once begun will be conducted directly between representatives of the warring countries. One very prominent diplomat, however, expressed to the Associated Press the opinion that all the powers are likely to be drawn in and that there might be another congress of Berlin. He pointed out that the powers interested commercially in China would be virtually concerned in guarding the open door policy to which they were pledged and must be consulted as to the future status of Manchuria and collateral questions such as the possible internationalization of the Eastern Chinese railroad, etc. He desired it to be understood, however, that he did not mean that the powers would attempt to rob Japan of the fruits of victory. Such a congress might be held after Russia and Japan had concluded peace.

THE NAME
"AERIAL"
Was a great hit for our new fancy Patent Flour—

But no more than the flour itself. We have sold a tremendous lot of it this week and everybody is enthusiastic over its quality—the exclamation: "We never had a better flour" is heard from all sides. This flour is our own individual brand—not controlled by a trust and you owe it to yourself and to us to use it particularly when we guarantee it equal or better than the best and save you THIRTY CENTS ON EVERY SACK. We'll continue the sale another week.

OXFORD EASILY WINS SIXTY-SECOND REGATTA WITH CAMBRIDGE CREW

Predictions of a Close Race Was Not Verified By the Event.

Dark Blues Finish Race Three Lengths Ahead of Competitors.

London, April 1.—Oxford today won the sixty-second annual boat race between the universities of Oxford and Cambridge, defeating the latter by three lengths.

The race was rowed in beautiful weather. There was not a ripple on the water and the wind was very light. Consequently there was not much advantage in the choice of stations. This contest, always attractive, drew an unusually big crowd today, as the waterside experts had all prophesied the best race in years, owing to the evenness of the crews.

The prophecy, however, was not fulfilled, Oxford speedily taking the lead and heading the procession to the finish.

Cambridge won the toss and selected the Surrey side of the river. The boats got away to a splendid start at 11:32 a. m., but Bucknall set the dark blues (Oxford) a slashing stroke of thirty-six to the minute, and almost immediately established a lead which was never lost.

When Crawen Stepe were reached the Oxonians were a few lengths to the front and the cheering of their supporters on the river banks was something to be long remembered. Both crews were still rowing strong, but the dark blues continued to come away and soon had two lengths advantage.

Passing the Sacharin works Taylor (Cambridge) called on the light blues, who made a gallant response and closed the gap by half a length. But the dark blues stroke scon shook off their rivals, Oxford quickly regained the lost advantage and added to their lead.

Off Chiswick it was evident that the race had already been decided. Some of the Cambridge crew showed signs that they were weakening, but Taylor made another effort, with a stroke somewhat faster than that of Oxford. It was not well pulled through, however, and a lack of rhythm was manifested. Thereafter the leaders were never pressed and passed the ship at Mortlake the easiest of winners by three lengths. Time, 20 minutes 3-5 seconds.

LEADERSHIP NEEDED IN THE LEGISLATURE

In Order to Put Through Some of Important Measures.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The need of some sort of leadership to bring anything tangible out of the present session of the legislature has become clear, and attempts are now being made by the leading members of the house—not leaders, because there are no leaders, and the house would not be led if there were—to agree upon some plan that will result in pushing to the front some of the more important measures, and to see if some of them cannot be put through.

From a Republican standpoint, the situation is full of danger, and it is this that is back of the move to change the face of things. That, and also, of course, a real desire on the part of some of the more prominent house members to see that the state gets something back for the expenses of the session.

The senate will have no trouble in the matter of leadership. It is well and successfully led. It is not so unwieldly as the house, and can do what it wants to do in much less time.

In the house, however, things are decidedly different. There are many more bills pending there, naturally, because of the larger membership. In a vast mass of bad and insufficient measures there are a few that might result in some good if they were enacted into law. What the leaders want to do is to pick these out and push them to the front.

The great trouble in the house is talkativeness. Hardly a measure of any general interest at all comes up but there are extended debates upon it, and the result is that work is sadly impeded. It is not stated whether the leaders will try to shut off debate in this effort to accomplish something or not, but it is probable that this could not be done.

* * *

"The Herald guessed pretty closely to the truth in its remarks on the action upon the Horton bill," said a prominent Republican yesterday afternoon. "It is true that there has been too much good will, from a Republican standpoint, between the governor and the Republican members of the legislature. When he has come up to see the legislature he has always been greeted with enthusiastic applause. He has been visited with and consulted more by the members of the two bodies, particularly the house, than any governor of recent years. Not only that, but the Republican members have been telling the folks at home what a

THREE EMBEZZLERS ARRAIGNED

Elyria, O., April 1.—Cashier E. F. Kaneen, Assistant Cashier E. B. Walker and Bookkeeper Dana Walker, charged with embezzling the funds of the Citizens' Savings bank of Lorain, were brought here and placed in the county jail early today. Later the three men were arraigned before Justice Lord. They each pleaded not guilty and waived a preliminary hearing. The justice at first was inclined to fix the surety bonds at $10,000 in each case. The attorneys for the men under arrest strongly urged that the bonds be fixed at $5,000, declaring that the young men were not ordinary criminals, that they had made no effort to run away and had no intention of doing so. Justice Lord finally decided to fix the bonds at $6,000 in each case. The attorneys for the prisoners said that bonds would be furnished during the day.

HEART BEAT 182 TIMES TO MINUTE

St. Joseph, Mich., April 1.—Members of the local medical fraternity are deeply puzzled over the case of Miss Mabel Rigney, a well known young lady of this city, who died last night from an affection of the heart.

It is stated that while working as an operator in a local telephone exchange, the young lady was so severely frightened by a flash of lightning which coursed along the wires that her heart was displaced.

Gradually she was taken with pains and for the past two weeks had been in intense agony, her heart beats constantly growing more rapid until just before death 182 pulsations per minute were registered.

TO NEW YORK.

Greek-Russian Cathedral To Be Transferred.

San Francisco, April 1.—The Greek-Russian cathedral is to be transferred from San Francisco to New York city. It has been officially decided that in about six weeks the cathedral and staff of priests will move to the Eastern metropolis, henceforth the seat of the presiding bishop of the orthodox Eastern church of North America. The cathedral staff to leave San Francisco will consist of the Rev. Father Popoff, Nicanor Greevsky, Deacon Elias and other assistants. Father Dazovich will visit Kansas City, Pittsburg, Chicago and Philadelphia in the service of the orthodox church.

LAW IS TO RETIRE.

St. Paul, April 1.—It has been officially announced that A. E. Law, assistant general superintendent of the Northern Pacific road, who for the past six years has been stationed at Tacoma, would retire from his position as soon as an available man could be found to fill that position. Mr. Law has been with the road for about thirty years.

New York, April 1.—All grades of refined sugar have been advanced 10 cents per hundred pounds, making granulated 615.

MAY DELAY MATTERS

Venezuelan Court Postpones Declaration on Damage Suit.

Declares Cable Company's Concessions Are Forfeited, However.

Washington, April 1.—Minister Bowen has cabled from Caracas to the state department that the president of the Venezuelan supreme court has decided against the French Cable company in that part of the suit involving the forfeiture of the company's concessions, but that he had decided adversely to the government in its claim for damages because the company had not lived up to its concessions.

Thus, the case resembles somewhat that of the asphalt company, though in that matter the decision, while declaring a forfeiture of franchise, postponed a declaration as to the suit for damages against the company. In both cases it is noted that a final decision has not been rendered because the right of appeal has not been exhausted and it may be weeks or even months before that stage is reached.

It is said that this government is not directly concerned in the French Cable company's proceedings at this stage and indeed it is rather expected that the company's agents in Venezuela probably will be able to adjust their differences with the government by direct exchanges.

NEW RURAL ROUTES.

Washington, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following rural routes will be established on May 1: Sebeka, Wadena county—Route No. 2; population, 540; houses, 108. Staples, Todd county, Route No. 1; population, 610; houses, 129. Wadena, Wadena county—Route No. 3; population, 550; houses, 110.

NO CHANGE AT FRONT

Linevitch Reports Situation Between Armies as Still Unchanged.

Some Propositions of Russia Regarding Making of Peace.

St. Petersburg, April 1.—A dispatch from Gen. Linevitch, dated March 31, said no change had then taken place in the situation at the front.

St. Petersburg, April 1, 3:25 p. m.—According to peace reports circulated on the bourse today, Russia will cede the southern portion of the island of Sakhalin in the North Pacific, off the coast of Asia, used as a Russian convict settlement to Japan, and agree that Manchuria and Korea are permanently outside a Russian sphere of influence and the Eastern Chinese railroad will be turned over to Japan for cession to China or to an international syndicate upon a consideration of $125,000,000, which Japan will accept in lieu of indemnity.

SEVERE ACTION

Between Gen. Mitschenko's Troops and the Japanese.

Gumshu Pass, April 1.—Gen. Mitschenko's cavalry fought a severe action with a strong force of Japanese yesterday and succeeded in repulsing the enemy toward sundown today. Losses are reported to be heavy on both sides.

The conflict, while thought to be an accidental clash of shifting columns, may prove to be the beginning of another general battle, as the Japanese are very active in scouting and mapping.

Many of their batteries are now within range of the Russian vanguard, and there is a considerable exchange of fire.

OUTBREAK OF PEASANTS IN THE VERRA DISTRICT

St. Petersburg, April 1.—The latest outbreak of peasant disorders is in the Werra district of Lithuania. Regular mobs of peasants are marching through the country, pillaging estates and demolishing houses of the land owners. One proprietor was shot. The peasants entered Werra, wrecked the vodka shops, became drunk and terrorized the inhabitants. The police were powerless and troops were called for. The telegraph and telephone wires are cut and communication with the outside world is severed.

EXPLORERS ARE PROBABLY DEAD

San Francisco, April 1.—A special dispatch to the Examiner from Yuma, Ariz., says it is now almost an assured fact that Harry E. Miller and Capt. Gus Olender have lost their lives in an attempt to explore Tiburon island. Whether they were killed and eaten by the cannibals of Zeri Indians on the island or drowned in the turbulent waters of the gulf of California, or were slain by some marauding band of Renegade Yaqui Indians on the mainland of Sonora is a mystery that will probably never be solved. The fact remains, however, that the men are lost, and the circumstances lead to the conclusion that they met death in one of the three ways mentioned. Miller was a school teacher from Los Angeles of an adventurous turn of mind, and Olender was a seaman engaged by him to accompany him on an exploration trip to Tiburon.

FROM THE LEGISLATIVE DUMP.

POLICE COMMISSIONER OF POLAND MUTILATED BY AN EXPLODING BOMB

Poorly Clad Man Hurled Deadly Missle In Streets of Lodz.

Official's Feet Were Blown Off and He Was Otherwise Hurt.

Lodz, Russian Poland, April 1.—Police Commissioner Szabalovicz of the Second district was seriously injured today by a bomb which was thrown at him in the street.

The police commissioner had been summoned by telephone to come to the office of the chief of police, and started on foot, followed by a policeman. The former noticed at the corner of Konstantilowsk and Zawaski streets, a poorly clad man, carrying a basket. As Szabalovicz approached, the man suddenly hurled a bomb, which exploded with terrific force, blowing off the commissioner's feet and severely wounding him in the breast. It is feared his injuries will prove fatal. The force of the explosion is judgable by the fact that it tore a hole in the ground two feet deep and twelve in circumference. The accompanying policeman drew his sword and wounded the commissioner's assailant on the head. When the man was searched a loaded revolver and some cartridges were found in his pockets. He is reported to be dying from the sword cuts he received. The explosion was heard about five miles away. All the windows in the neighborhood were shattered. People in adjoining houses were thrown to the floor. The murderer is hated by Socialists. He is charged with killing of Socialists during the disturbances here in December last.

T. P. SHONTS ACCEPTS

Offer of Chairmanship of New Isthmian Canal Commission.

Went to Washington and Investigated Conditions Thoroughly.

Washington, April 1.—The announcement was made today that T. P. Shonts, president of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western railroad, has decided to accept the chairmanship of the Isthmian canal commission.

Washington, April 1.—T. D. Shonts, who has been offered the position of president of the Isthmian canal commission and has just reached Washington in company with Secretary Morton, was in consultation at the war department today with Judge Magoon, who will be governer of the canal zone; Col. Edwards, chief of the insular bureau, and William Nelson Cromwell. Mr. Shonts was anxious to learn the nature of the duties of the post and the state of affairs on the isthmus before he made final answer to the president. He will probably also discuss the matter with Secretary Taft upon the return of the latter from Massachusetts, before coming to a decision.

DR. GLADDEN ANSWERS OIL MAGNATE ROGERS

Wrong Doing Is Not Justifiable Although Done Legally.

Columbus, Ohio, April 1.—Dr. Washington Gladden today again vigorously answered H. H. Rogers, vice president of the Standard Oil company, regarding the gift of J. D. Rockefeller. Dr. Gladden says:

"Mr. Rogers says that I would not trust the ten commandments for ten days with the deacons of my church, because they would surely break some of them and bend others. I surely would not. I hope that these commandments are in stronger power than the deacons of any church, a power in which they will not be twisted for the benefit of Mr. Rogers or any one else.

"Mr. Rogers says that under Mr. Lincoln's emancipation proclamation, slavery was legal in certain sections. But it was just as much an abomination and a curse in those regions as in the regions where it was abolished. Mr. Lincoln did not touch it there, because he had no power. The rebates of the Standard Oil company were just as outrageous before the law was passed forbidding them as they were afterward, and the methods by which, under the law, the Standard Oil company is now overpowering and oppressing its competitors are just as wrongful as were the rebates. The position that wrongdoing is to be condoned so long as it is done under cover of the laws, or by evasion of the law, is one that Christian ministers or missionary societies ought not to take."

Dr. Gladden, although moderator of the national council of the Congregational church, and a leader in his denomination, was not apprised of the Rockefeller gift until the matter was made public. The officials of the church had an opportunity to tell him all about it ten days before the gift was made, but they did not. He is inclined to think his position in the church justified the officers taking him into their confidence.

Some of the big men of the church are named as those who signed the statement favoring the acceptance of the gift. They are all known personally by Dr. Gladden, and the list includes some of Dr. Gladden's most intimate friends.

"It is the most painful feature of the affair," said Dr. Gladden, "but I am sure they have given the subject only superficial consideration."

LOCOMOTIVE PLUNGES INTO CANAL

Utica, N. Y., April 1.—A local passenger train on the West Shore was derailed near Fort Plain today. The locomotive broke its couplings and plunged into the canal about forty feet below the track. The engineer, George Wilkinson of Utica, and the fireman, F. J. Wright of Little Falls were killed. Their bodies were buried under the engine. The express messenger, John Hines, was severely hurt. No passengers were injured.

WAGES INCREASED NINE MILLIONS

New York, April 1.—Special notices have been sent out by the various companies of the United States Steel corporation, informing thousands of workmen of an increase in wages, beginning today. It is estimated that the increase will amount in round figures to $9,000,000. No details have been made public here, but it is said those who will receive the increased pay will be the laborers, skilled mill hands and the class of mechanics now receiving moderate wages.

Agreements with tin plate, sheet steel and other workers which expire on June 30 next will not be changed at present. It is expected that higher wage scales will go into effect in these departments after the present agreements have expired.

MATRIMONIAL CANDIDATES

Looking For South Dakota Brides By the Thousands.

Bonesteel, S. D., April 1.—Thousands of letters from candidates for matrimony in all parts of the United States and Canada, are coming to United States Land Commissioner J. D. Keller of Bonesteel, S. D. The writers wish photos, names, addresses and other information concerning the one hundred and twenty-one young women who drew fine farming homesteads in the recent opening of government land on the Rosebud Indian agency in Gregory county, S. D.

The avalanche of letters now pouring in on Commissioner Keller is the result of a recently published interview in which Mr. Keller in speaking of the rapid development of the newly opened South Dakota lands mentioned that over a hundred of the lucky homesteaders were young women and intimated that many of them wanted husbands to help take care of the farms. A sample from more than a thousand similar letters received by Mr. Keller in the last three days is the following, the writer being a young Virginian:

"J. D. Keller, Bonesteel, S. D.: Dear Sir—I would be pleased to correspond direct with the ladies in question. I am a widower aged 29. A mechanical, electrical and steam engineer; height 5 feet 10½ inches; weight, 159 pounds; American by birth, three years at West Point academy. "Hoping to interest those concerned, I am, very respectfully, ——."

The postmaster and other officials of Bonesteel have also received hundreds of inquiries.

The letters come from men of every age and in every walk of life, from plumbers to engineers and clergymen. With the exception of Arizona, Maine, New Mexico and Nevada every state in the Union is represented in the inquiries. The bulk of the letters, however, come from New York, Maryland, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

One of the wife-seeking bachelors is a former Yale student; two are of Virginia university, and one a Deland university (Florida) graduate.

MRS. J. J. HILL TAKEN ILL AT ORMONDE, FLA.

Norfolk, Va., April 1.—Extraordinary means are being taken to get Mrs. James J. Hill, who was taken ill at Ormonde, Fla., to New York for treatment. The Florida special of the Seaboard air line is hauling Mrs. Hill's private car from Ormonde to New York on what it is believed will prove record-breaking time.

Officials in charge of the divisions over which the train will pass in its race against time have been instructed to use special vigilance to see that it is expedited.

RAILROAD NEWS

The Shingle and Lumber Rates Will Remain the Same.

The Milwaukee Road May Extend Through to the Coast.

Local railroad offices have received new tariffs showing that effective today, the rate on shingles from Duluth and Superior to all stations on Duluth roads and their connections, will be the same as on lumber. An attempt was made a short time ago to raise the shingle rate. The interstate commerce commission took the matter up and decided that the rates were already high enough. Railroad company representatives met at Chicago recently to determine whether to abide by the findings of the commission and, judging by the new tariff sheets, evidently decided to do so.

FURTHERING ITS PLAN.

Announcement Revises Talk of Milwaukee Extension.

The real ownership of the White River Valley railroad, recently incorporated at Pierre, S. D., for $50,000,000, was revealed at Chicago yesterday when the Milwaukee road announced that it would extend its line about seventy miles beyond Chamberlain, S. D. The White River Valley railroad company is now constructing the road which the Milwaukee admits to be an extension of that system. To build the line of seventy miles would not cost more than $350,000, and because of this fact it is believed that the Dakota company was organized with a capital of $50,000,000 for the purpose of extending the Milwaukee system to the coast.

Yerkes Promoted.

S. Gardner Yerkes will, it is reported, become assistant general passenger agent of the Great Northern road, to succeed Cal E. Stone, who has been made general passenger agent, his appointment taking effect today. Mr. Yerkes will not, however, go to St. Paul to assume the duties of his new position. He is already the general western passenger agent of the road at Seattle, and he will remain in the Washington city. It is not known whether an assistant general passenger agent will be appointed to do the work now performed by Mr. Stone.

Railroad Notes.

The resignation of A. D. Ward, general purchasing agent of the Great Western road, has been confirmed. The resignation will not take effect until April 15. Mr. Ward will go into private business in Chicago.

M. K. Dougan, private stenographer to President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific road, has resigned to accept a similar position at New Haven, Conn., in the office of President C. S. Mellen, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road. Mr. Dougan will be succeeded by J. L. Pryor, another employe in Mr. Elliott's office.

It is said that the Great Western is planning on constructing this season a new line long enough to reach across Iowa, from north to south.

Exclusive Millinery.

The most beautiful millinery creations of the season are being exhibited by Madame Beuglet, French milliner, Kitchi Gammi building. Madame Beuglet's display appeals particularly to those who desire "something different" from the ordinary styles.

PASSED RUSSIAN SHIPS.

Island of Perim, Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, April 1.—The British cruiser Prometheus, which arrived here today from the north, reports having passed, March 30, a Russian fleet of five warships, four transports and a hospital ship. The vessels sighted are probably the division of the second Russian fleet under Admiral Nebogatoff.

EMPEROR LEAVES GIBRALTAR.

NEW POINT RAISED

C. O. Baldwin Argues For Range Doctors Recently Convicted.

Claims Generau, Smallpox Patient, Was an Accomplice.

C. O. Baldwin, representing Drs. H. E. Wunder and James Fowler, of Buhl, the two range physicians convicted of exposing a smallpox patient, argued before Judge Ensign this morning, a motion for judgment in favor of his clients, notwithstanding the verdict, or that the verdict be set aside and a new trial granted.

The application was made by Mr. Baldwin on the claim that George Generau, the woodsman whom the doctors are said to have sent to Duluth, while a victim of the disease of smallpox, was an accomplice and that under the law there can be no conviction on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice.

County Attorney McClintock, who appeared for the state, argued that Generau was in no sense an accomplice of the two range doctors, that he had no alternative but to accept the transportation they offered to Duluth, having no money or any place to stay to be cared for.

Dr. Wunder and his assistant, Dr. Fowler, were tried during the recent term of court. Sentence has not yet been imposed on them. The offense of which the jury found them guilty is, under the state law a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine or jail sentence, or both.

TAKE FREIGHT ON MONDAY

Transit Lines Take Westbound Shipments Earlier Than Expected.

The Western Transit people here received a dispatch today to the effect that that company has decided to receive westbound shipments of freight coming from all points east next Monday, April 3, instead of waiting until April 10, as at first decided upon. The unexpected prospects for the early opening of navigation has caused this change in plans and it is understood that other freight lines will follow suit.

The Mutual Transit company will begin Monday to fix up its boats for going into commission. This company figures on having its boats ready by April 10, but may have a good many of them ready and on the way before that time.

RECORD TO BREAK ICE

May Start In at Once If Fog Lifts—Slips First.

That champion little ice-breaker, the tug Record, of the Great Lakes Towing company may go out this afternoon and smash ice. She is steamed up and if the fog lifts a little she will start her old and familiar work of crushing the shell that covers the bay. Work about the slips will take her attention at first and then some indiscriminate ice breaking will be started.

She will probably, tomorrow or Monday, start to plow a channel down to and past the Duluth-Superior bridge and possibly up Howard's pocket to the shipyard and drydock.

A COLONY OF MORMONS

To Be Established on Land Purchased By Smith In Alberta.

Minneapolis, April 1.—A special to the Journal from Butte, Mont., says: President Joseph Smith, head of the Mormon church, has bought 67,000 acres of land in Alberta, and proposes to establish a colony of Mormons. The price paid was about $400,000. The plan is to break the tract into small farms to be settled upon by Mormon colonists from Utah and elsewhere. Although the deal has been closed, the Mormons are not expected to take possession until late this fall or early next year. They will raise crops this season at their old homes.

BUILDINGS SMALL

Numerous Permits For Inexpensive Structures Issued During March.

The Absence of Large Permits Keeps the Total Down.

March might well be called the "poor man's month" as far as the building business in the city is concerned.

The permits issued by the building inspector for the month show that the building commenced consisted almost entirely of small houses, most of which were built by workingmen as homes for their families. The majority of the permits were for houses costing from $800 to $2,000, and there were not more than a half dozen permits issued during the month for buildings to cost over $5,000.

While the number of permits was more than twice as large as the number issued in March 1904, the total value of the buildings showed a falling off. The number of permits was seventy-five, as compared with thirty-three for March, 1904, and the total value of the buildings was $80,320, as compared with $102,685 for March 1904.

March is the first month this year that has shown a decrease in the amount of building. January and February both showed very large increases over the corresponding months of 1904, but the absence of any large permits kept the figures down. The total for the three months is still much ahead of the total for the first three months of 1904, however.

Both January and February exceeded the $100,000 mark this year, and March was expected to be a record breaker, but the small permits counted up but slowly in the total, and while the fees of the office have been heavier than usual, the total value of the buildings for which permits have been issued is rather below the average for March.

COMPANY NOT SATISFIED

Cloquet Lumber Company Would Overthrow Third Adverse Verdict.

Arguments are being heard by Judge Cant today on the motion of the Cloquet Lumber company that it have judgment against W. H. Shea, notwithstanding the verdict, or that the verdict may be set aside and a new trial granted. The motion is based on the grounds of technicalities and because it is alleged that the counsel for Mr. Shea used passion and prejudice in presenting the evidence to the jury, the same having effect on the jury.

The argument for the lumber company was made this morning by W. B. Phelps, and this afternoon A. E. McManus is presenting the claims of Mr. Shea that the verdict should stand.

Mr. Shea sued the Cloquet Lumber company and H. C. Hornby for $25,000 for alleged malicious prosecution. The case came to jury trial three times, the first two verdicts in amounts of $4,500 and $4,000 being set aside. At the last trial Mr. Shea was given a verdict of $3,000, and it is this verdict that the lumber company now seeks to overthrow.

The argument today was marked with some lively tilts of a personal nature between the attorneys in the case.

TWO MEN KILLED BY BREAKING OF TRAIN.

Milwaukee, April 1.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Oconto, Wis., says: Two men were killed in an accident on the Wabano branch of the Chicago & Northwestern road, caused by the breaking down of a freight car in the middle of a train.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disenfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gasses and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gasses which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disenfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says; "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the hair is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

PELVIC DISORDERS EFFECTIVELY CURED

Men afflicted with diseases of the pelvic regions—such troubles as Stricture, Varicocele, Blood Poison, skin diseases, Piles, Fistula, Hydrocele, Nervous Decline and Male Weakness—should lose no time in having their cases treated rightly by one who knows. Many men go tampering and floundering along on some patent "cure," until their cases become chronic. The Progressive Medical Association, by reason of its extensive practice in men's diseases, is specially equipped in knowledge and implements for treating pelvic disorders. We take your case, guaranteeing an absolute cure.

VARICOCELE.

Our method of curing Varicocele is the most thorough and approved of modern science. The complications of this peculiar malady, which are often worse than the disease itself, are particularly watched by a trained eye and knowledge of the case. We never dismiss our patients until we have restored the organs affected to their natural strength, size and soundness, revitalizing the nervous system so that nervousness disappears; all vital drains stopped and functional strength revived. The result: A sound, healthy, robust condition of body and mind. Of the many patients we cure of Varicocele, there are none of them who do not tell me they feel like new men when I dismiss them. Our treatment is careful, and effective and does away with painful surgical operations. You need not lose a day from your employment. We are here till 8 o'clock every evening to attend and look after your needs.

HYDROCELE.

Hydrocele is an accumulation of serous fluid in the scrotum, and deprives the organs of all vitality. It results frequently from injury, and is sometimes difficult to distinguish from Rupture or Varicocele. This condition is not uncommon to men, and it should be taken care of by one competent to handle such cases. Physicians who have not had extensive experience in the treatment of this affliction sometimes make mistakes in deciding upon the exact nature of a case of this kind, and therefore it would be useless for me to try to make the non-professional mind sufficiently familiar with the variety of diseases to which these organs are subjected, to enable the reader to diagnose correctly for himself. The discriminating eye and touch of the experienced specialist should be sought in such cases if the patient would avoid mistakes and the possible ultimate necessity of castration, growing out of neglect or maltreatment. We thoroughly understand this disease, have treated and cured many cases and we guarantee a lasting cure or your money back.

IMPOTENCY.

In the treatment of Nervous Decline and Male Weakness we have been decidedly successful. We have never failed to rebuild and strengthen, and after we have cured a case of this kind, there will never again be a sign of the trouble, except brought on by imprudence.

Nervous Decline, Male Weakness, Failing Power, Lost Manhood and many other familiar terms are used to designate the one condition of an endless number of young and middle-aged men who are nervous wrecks and invariably affected with the same symptoms originating from a source brought about by such a train of evils as youthful errors, resulting in Pelvic and Private Diseases, which weaken the nervous system and impair both body and brain. The man who has disregarded health by early folly and later overindulgence, excessive use of alcoholic liquors, continued exposure or even close confinement, overwork and worry, may have one or more of such detrimental symptoms as Lost Manhood, Exhausting Dreams, Loss in Urine, Poor Memory, Nervous and Restless at night, no Physical Endurance, noticed by Exhaustion during ordinary exercise, Weak Back, and many other like indications of failing health and an untimely end.

ABSORBING SUBJECT

Of the Day Is Germany's Attitude Toward Morocco.

France Relies on American Support In Her Interests.

Paris, April 1.—The German advent in the Mediterranean, as shown by Emperor William's visit to Morocco and Chancellor Von Buelow's speech, is the absorbing question of the day. Heretofore France has dealt with Germany on the north, but now for the first time Germany makes her appearance in the south and asserts that she has strong interests in the territory bordering on the Mediterranean. The Latin nations, named, Italy, Spain and France, have thus far considered the Mediterranean as their special sphere of activity, although Great Britain's control of the two gateways, Gibraltar and Suez, also gives her a commanding position in the Mediterranean. Naturally, therefore, Germany's appearance on this exclusive field is as unexpected as her appearance at Kia Chou, China, as a factor in the Chinese territorial question. The fact that Germany has not a coast line on the Mediterranean, while the Latin nations have extensive coasts, lends additional significance to Germany's entering the Mediterranean sphere.

The officials here continue to view the situation calmly. They are especially desirous of having other nations, particularly the United States, to take a sympathetic view of France's policy and purposes in Morocco. This leads to expressions of much satisfaction in the course of the United States some months ago, which indirectly recognized France's paramount position in Morocco. This occurred during the Perdicaris case, when the United States sought the good offices of France.

The American action in this turning to France was widely commented on at the time, as constituting an American endorsement of the Anglo-French agreement. Later the thanks of President Roosevelt were conveyed to the French government for its good office with Morocco. Moreover, France's activity in Morocco is largely the result of indignation over the Perdicaris case. A general cry was raised that Morocco was in such a state of anarchy that France ought to use energetic measures. France finally adopted plans for restoring order and developing the country. Therefore, she naturally counts on the sympathies of the United States, as her policy is largely the outgrowth of an American incentive.

The sequel to the present complication arouses considerable solicitude. It is maintained that Germany's claim to have the open door indefinably prolonged would result in giving Germany commercial privileges exceeding those of the other powers, and that it would probably lead other powers to ask for a similar indefinite extension of the open door, thus requiring Morocco to surrender her commerce without any return. Therefore the policy of France seems to be to give Germany adequate assurance of the same treatment in Morocco as the rest of the world, but no privileges beyond those heretofore accorded to the other powers.

NEW ENDICTMENT AGAINST HOCH.

Chicago, April 1.—A new indictment was returned today against Johann Hoch in connection with the charge that he murdered his last wife. Mrs. Mary Walcker-Hoch. In a former indictment Hoch is charged with having furnished his wife with bread and other food containing arsenic.

It was feared the defense might seek to show that the arsenic found in Mrs. Hoch's vital organs was administered hypodermically. In the new indictment is it set up that the poison was given in various ways, including the hypodermic "treatment," which the defendant claims he administered to his wife during her illness.

DEMANDS A PROMPT TRIAL

Armours Now Ready to Meet Charges of Government.

Chicago, April 1.—An important development of the beef trust investigation was an official announcement today by counsel for Armour & Co.'s general superintendent, T. D. Connors, under indictment charging him with interfering with witnesses, that an appeal will be made to Judge Kenesaw Landis Monday for an immediate trial on the charges against Connors. The government officials were served with a notice to this effect. They declared themselves ready to meet the arguments of attorneys for Connors. The notice states that Connors will appear in court today to plead to the indictment and to present a motion for an immediate trial on the indictment, Connors standing on his constitutional rights.

Business University Happenings.

The following people have left the college to accept the following positions:

Miss Nellie Lavick, stenographer, North Star Liquor company.

Miss O. Wilcox, assistant bookkeeper, Stone-Ordean-Wells company.

Mr. H. Kough, stenographer, Frank Burrows.

Miss Mae Whitney, stenographer, Schultz Bros.

Mr. Olaf Olsen ,stenographer, Hines Lumber company, Ashland, Wis.

Mr. W. Lemeaux, stenographer, Oliver Iron Mining company, Eveleth, Minn.

Mr. Thomas Lightfoot, assistant bookkeeper, Boyle Bros.

The demand for our young men, competent in shorthand and bookkeeping, continues to far exceed our supply. During the past week five applications were received at the college for such young men, with none in evidence to recommend. In each case the firm in quest of the young man expressed regret that they could not get a Duluth Business university graduate, and would be obliged to give to a stranger what should go to a Duluth young man—that is, an excellent position at from $50 to $65 per month.

Spring term will begin at the college on Monday, April 3, and should see a large enrollment of young people. The college will continue in session throughout the entire summer.

THE BAND CONCERT.

Fine Program Prepared For the Flaaten Testimonial.

It is expected that one of the largest audiences of the present successful Lyceum concert season will be presented tomorrow afternoon when the Third Regiment band renders the testimonial concert tendered Director J. H. Flaaten. The opening number will be played at 3 o'clock.

Charles Dexter Ostergren, who made such a favorable impression at last week's concert by request will render a violin solo, "Czardas Ungarscher," by Hauser. Miss Harriet Nobles, who is also a favorite with Duluth audiences, will sing a waltz song, "Fleeting Days," by Ellen H. Bailey and Charles Helmer, cornet, will render a new solo, "The Commodore," a polka which affords him ample opportunity to display his talent. Mrs. K. Ostergreen will play the accompaniments.

One of the best programs of the season has been arranged and is as follows:

National Anthem .....
March—"Second Reg't Coon N. G... ....Reeves
Overture—"Queen's Secret" ...Thomas
Grand selection from 'The Huguenots" .....Meyerbeer Soprano solo—waltz song, 'Fleeting Days" .....Ellen H. Bailey
Miss Harriet M. Nobles.
Violin Solo—"Czardas Ungarscher) (by request) ....Hauser
Charles Dexter Ostergren.
Mrs. K. Ostergren, Accompanist.
Cornet solo — "The Commodore Polka ....Chambers
Charles Helmer.
Fantasia — "My Old Kentucky Home" ....Langley

LEGLESS BODY OF WOODSMAN

Found Beside the Tracks of Great Northern Road.

The legless body of an unidentified man was found yesterday afternoon lying beside the tracks of the Great Northern road, about a quarter of a mile south of Birch station.

Henry Agnew, a tie contractor, discovered the body and immediately notified Coroner McCuen. The coroner requested Durkan & Crawford, the local undertakers, to have the body brought to Duluth.

Nothing could be learned concerning the man about Birch station, and it is believed that he fell from an ore train during the early morning and was run over by the cars. The legs were entirely severed from the body, and the remains were scattered along the track for a distance of nearly 200 feet.

The man was apparently a woodsman, and it is thought that he was stealing a ride on an ore train to Duluth and fell between the cars to be crushed by the wheels.

The body was brought to Duluth this morning and taken to the undertaking rooms, where the coroner viewed the remains. There were no papers in the clothing which would serve to identify the man, and his name is still a mystery to the authorities.

Civil Service Secretaryship Is Given to Dark Horse.

Reuben Johnson of City Clerk's Office Is Elected.

Both J. W. Allen and Leroy Coons, the two candidates for the position of secretary of the civil service commission and the board of health, were thrown out last evening by the civil service commissioners, and the plum given to Reuben Johnson, clerk in the office of H. W. Cheadle, the city clerk.

The election took place while the board was in executive session, behind closed doors. Several votes were taken with no result, and Commissioner Fider then moved to exclude everybody but the members from the room and stay in session until a secretary was chosen.

After consulting for about twenty minutes, the doors were opened and it was announced that Mr. Johnson had received three votes, Mr. Coons one, and Mr. Allen one.

The election was a surprise to everybody, as Mr. Johnson was not known to have been a candidate, and it is doubtful if he will accept the position, now that he is elected. Should he resign, another election will be necessary.

Previous to the executive session, Secretary Coons read a communication from J. W. Allen, in which he took exception to the reflection claimed to have been cast upon him in the mayor's letter which was read to the board a week ago. He said he was willing to have an investigation made of his character and reputation, and if it was found that he was not a fit man for the place, to get out of the race. He claimed that the entire influence of the city administration had been used to defeat him because he was a Republican, whereas Mr. Coons was a Democrat.

Health Commissioner Murray submitted a strong letter of recommendation, urging the election of Mr. Coons. The letter was as follows:

"It having come to my knowledge that you are about to elect a secretary to your honorable board to succeed Capt. J. W. Miller, would most respectfully ask you to carefully consider the claims of the present acting secretary, Mr. Leroy Coons. As you are aware, Mr. Coons has been discharging the duties of the office for the past year, and has done the work in a manner eminently satisfactory to the department. The work of the secretary of the health department is of a trying nature, and requires a man of judgment, diplomacy and tact, which qualities Mr. Coons has demonstrated that he possesses. A change of secretary at this time would place the health department under a serious handicap, owing to the fact that we are about to commence our "spring clean-up," and it is necessary that a man of experience be in charge to direct the work ordered by the health commissioner."

MRS. STANFORD'S WILL ADMITTED TO PROBATE.

San Jose, Cal., April 1.—The will and codicil of Mrs. Jane L. Stanford were admitted to probate yesterday. Letters of administration were issued to Charles G. Lathrop, Timothy Hopkins, Joseph D. Grant, Whitelaw Reid and Thomas B. Croton, as executors without bond.

The will was executed July 28, 1903, the codicil was written by Mrs. Stanford herself in August, 1904. By the terms of the will $2,000,000 are left in trust to Arial Lathrop and descendants of D. S. Lathrop, her brothers; $1,000,000 in trust to her nieces, Jennie L. Lawton and Amy L. Hateson, and the children of Christine L. Gunning; $1,000,000 to Charles G. Lathrop; $125,000 to various charitable institutions of San Francisco and San Jose, and the remainder of the estate to the Leland Stanford, Jr., university.

EXPECT ADVANCE IN WAGES.

Pittsburg, April 1.—Notices were posted, late yesterday, in the mills of the National Tube company, at McKeesport, Pa., announcing that a wage readjustment would take effect April 1. The officials of the company refused to divulge the details of the proposed changes, but unofficially, it is said, to be a general increase in wages. The employes of the National Tube company believe the cut of two years ago will be restored. The 30,000 employes of the United States Steel corporation, in this vicinity, have been expecting an advance in wages, and the notices posted at the National Tube company has led them to believe that their expectation is about to be realized.

Distress After Eating

Nausea between meals, belching, vomiting, flatulence, fits of nervous headache, pain in the stomach, are all symptoms of dyspepsia, and the longer it is neglected the harder it is to cure it.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Radically and permanently cure it—strengthen and tone the stomach and other digestive organs for the natural performance of their functions.

Accept no substitute for Hood's.

"I had dyspepsia twenty-five years and took different medicines but got no help until I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Have taken four bottles of this medicine and can now eat almost anything, sleep well, have no cramps in my stomach, no burning and no distress." MRS. WILLIAM G. BARRETT, 14 Olney St., Providence, R. I.

"Peruna has been a great blessing in our household. My daughter, Sylvia, was cured of a bad case of catarrh of the throat.

"I had catarrh of the head so bad that I could scarcely breathe, and Peruna cured me, and now my husband is using it for catarrhl kidney troubles and growing better every day.

"We are pleased to praise Peruna, for it has splendid merits."

THE HOME IS THE BULWARK OF MODERN CIVILIZATION.

Anything that attacks the home attacks the nation—attacks the very source of advancement and prosperity.

Catarrh is the natural climatic enemy of every home. Over every home hangs the inevitable certainty of catarrhal invasion. No home is free from it. Every person is subject to it.

It would be no exaggeration to say that two-thirds of the homes of America have suffered more or less from this invisible omnipresent enemy, catarrh.

Peruna is the natural protection of the household. It meets catarrh in all its phases, at every point of attack.

Catarrh may appear in the household in the form of a slight cold or cough, an attack of la grippe, or even hay fever.

Peruna meets the invasion squarely and exterminates the enemy before it gains a foothold.

Therefore Peruna is a household remedy. It should be in every home continually. Used at the proper moment, it obviates the necessity of continual doctoring.

In no other way can the wisdom of economy and foresight be so forcibly expressed as in keeping on hand a bottle of Peruna to protect the family against the encroachments of catarrh.

We have on file thousands of testimonials from heads of families, located North, South, East and West, who praise Peruna for its efficient protection of the family against catarrh.

Entire Family Cured By Taking Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Samuel L. Davidson, 215 Abigail street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Director of the Hebrew Synagogue, writes:

"I took Peruna six years ago for serious throat trouble, which was so bad I could not speak above a whisper. In less than a month I was cured.

"My wife had female trouble and prolapsus uteri. Peruna cured her and made her a strong, well woman in less than three months. She also took it after the children came, and it quickly restored her strength.

"We have given it to the children for colds, coughs, cramps and indigestion, and find that one or two doses relieve them at once. We have been married nine years and have a bright family of five children. Peruna is a blessing to our home."

Sam A. Lehman, Payne, Ohio, writes:

"I had catarrh of the head and stomach. I was sick for two years and I could not work at all. Peruna is worth its weight in gold. I am as happy as a lark. Everybody thought I was going to die. I doctored with six of the best doctors I could find and they didn't do me a bit of good. I have told a great many people of Peruna, and they are taking it and getting well.

"My brother was sick with a bad cold. He took half a bottle and is well now."

For Eight Years This Family Saved Doctor Bills By Using Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Mattie King, 1527 Polk street, San Francisco, Cal., Recording Secretary Native Daughters of California, writes:

"I have used Peruna myself and in my family for the past eight years and am free to admit that it has proven itself to be a most decided household blessing.

"It cured me of inflammation of the bladder and made me a strong and happy woman, where before I had been weak and worn-out.

"I find it of special value for my little daughter, as one dose cures cramps and pains, and colds are soon driven from the system.

"I consider it of special virtue in keeping the body in such healthy condition that it throws off disease, thus saving doctor bills and the annoyances incident to sickness in the home."

Mrs. Lillie Tyndall, 906 East Sixth street, Kansas City., Mo., member National Annuity Association, also member St. Luke's Episcopal Church, writes:

"We have been married for fifteen years and during most of that time we have had Peruna in the house and have found it an excellent household remedy."

MRS. BIGELOW EXPRESSES HER GRATITUDE FOR PE-RU-NA.

Mrs. Nora Bigelow, box 207, Fremont, Mich., writes:

"Peruna is a wonderful remedy for catarrhal troubles. I can scarcely find words to express to you my thanks for what your remedy has done for me.

"I was troubled with catarrh for a long time, and eight bottles of Peruna have cured me.

"I can recommend it very highly to any one troubled with catarrh. I still keep Peruna in the house, and we all take it when we have a cold."

Have Found No Medicine as Valuable as Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. J. R. Walker, Blue Mound, Kas., member United Presbyterian church, writes:

"I have been married eight years and have two children, and have never in my life found any one medicine as valuable a household remedy as Peruna.

"My husband took it seven years ago for a cold and catarrhal trouble.

"I use it every year as a tonic and give it to the children when they take a cold or have any of the ailments which children are addicted to.

"I found that it is the only medicine that we need and do not hesitate to recommend it as a splendid household remedy."

Peruna is an internal remedy that searches out every part of the human system and finally eradicates catarrh permanently.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotics of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any drugs of any narcotic nature.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Dividends Paid By Companies During Past Month.

Colorado Springs, Colo., April 1.—Dividends during the past month were paid by the following Cripple Creek companies:

Stratton's Independence, from royalties by lessees	$125,000
El Paso Gold Mining company	40,000
Strong mine	20,000
United Gold mines	20,000
Elkton Consolidated	12,500
Finley Consolidated	12,500
Cripple Creek Consolidated	10,000
Monument	10,000

The total for the first quarter of the year amounts to $735,250.

Boyd and Heer, operating block 36 of the Anaconda, have opened an entirely new vein, and the prospects are that they have a wonderful proposition. The shoot is being broken from three to four feet wide, and the values range about $70 to the ton. They are raising above the main tunnel, and have 600 feet of stoping ground should the vein go to the surface.

Cox and associates, who recently secured a lease on the American Eagle mine from the Stratton executors, are pushing operations with all possible speed and today commenced sending out ore shipments which will probably be kept up at about the rate of a carload a day from this time on.

The Rio Grande sampler, which was closed last week after a continuous run of ten years, had a remarkable business, as shown by the books. A total of 600,000 tons of ore was sampled, which contained gold of a little better than $16,000,000.

John Sharpe, the lessee on the Washington claim, one of the original locations by Stratton and now owned by Stratton's Independence, limited, is developing the new ore chute opened by him at the 150-foot level. The drift has been carried on the chute for a distance of 70 feet and the lessee started to stope on the ore body, which is about three feet in width, today. The ore as it is broken averages better than $50 a ton. The shipments from the lease for the month will aggregate ten cars of ore.

Hansen, McCloud & Company, leasing on another block of the Stratton estate, are reported to be clearing $10,000 a month. In all there are about twenty-five sets of lessees operating on the company's ground and a majority of them are shipping.

GRAND BALL!

Given by Uniform Rank, No. 1,555, M. W. A., at Armory, Duluth, Easter Monday, April 24. Paasten's full orchestra. Special cars for West Duluth and East end. Tickets 75c per couple.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans Friday assumed command of the battleship squadron of the North Atlantic fleet, succeeding Rear Admiral Barker, who was placed on the retired list. The ceremonies were simple but impressive and included the salutes of thirteen guns for both the officers.

Montague White, professor of oratory at Beloit college, was accidentally drowned in Rock river Friday, and a student named Roy Andrews had a narrow escape.

On the testimony of two former employes of the defunct Storey Cotton company, Stanley Francis, accused of being one of the promoters and directors of the concern, was Friday remanded for trial by United States Commissioner Craig with bail fixed at $50,000.

John McClintock, for many years a member of the band of so-called angel dancers at the "Lord's Farm," among whom he was known as "John the Baptist," committed suicide at Park Ridge, N. J., Friday, by shooting.

Charged with the larceny of $8,000 from an estate of which he had been trustee for ten years, Charles M. Reed, a lawyer 60 years old, was arrested at Boston, Friday, and held at the city prison in default of $10,000 bail.

James Whitten, a private detective, at present in the employ of an Iowa insurance company, was shot in the back and fatally wounded Friday at St. Joseph, Mo., just after he had left the witness stand in the criminal court room, by Mrs. Alice K. Kepling, keeper of a boarding house. The woman claimed that Whitten had ruined her daughter.

The package freight handlers and the package line managers at Cleveland have agreed to work on last year's terms of wages and hours.

Thirty pieces of silver, dating for centuries back, were found Friday by Nicholas Coetzinger, while digging fence post holes at Templeton, Iowa. The money had evidently been in a roll, but the outer covering had dropped away. Some of the coins were minted by the electors of Prussia, others were from Hungary, Flanders and Bavaria.

Erich Von Kutzleben, who confessed to wrecking the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Rocky Mountain limited train near Homestead, Iowa, March 21, was indicted for murder in the first degree by the jury at Marengo, Iowa.

BATES TO HEAD ARMY

After Chaffee and Give Way to Corbin.

Washington, April 1.—President Roosevelt has determined upon the heads for the army during his administration. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee will be succeeded by Gen. John C. Bates, who, in turn, will give way to Gen. Henry C. Corbin, who is now in command of the Philippine division.

Maj. Gen. Bates, who now is in command of the Northern division, will approach the position of chief of staff by easy stages. He is booked for the post of assistant chief of staff. Gen. G. L. Gillespie now holds this position, but he will go out on or before Oct. 1, at which time Gen. Bates will be assigned to succeed him.

Gen. Bates will serve as assistant chief of staff until the retirement of Licut. Gen. Chaffee, which will take place on April 14, 1906, at which time Gen. Bates will become lieutenant general and chief of staff. He will serve in that capacity until Aug. 6, 1906, and will be succeeded by Gen. Corbin, who will return from the Philippines and take the place at the head of the army.

PHOTOGRAPHER KILLED

By the Accidental Explosion of Flashlight Powder.

Omaha, Neb., April 1.—While taking a flashlight photograph last night, Albert Butler was instantly killed and William Coffee, W. J. Murray and M. Levy were badly injured by an explosion of powder. Butler had set his grip containing a large supply of powder near the tripod, and when he touched off the powder in the flash pan the fire spread to the grip and the explosion followed. The force of the explosion hurled Butler and his companions against a wall.

Is Your Boy a Drunkard?

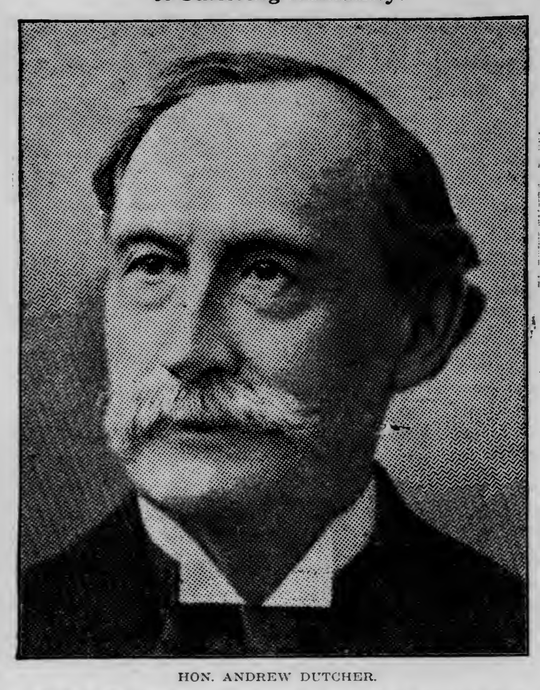

Help Him by Orrine to Overcome His Craving. Can be Given Secretly.

If your boy or husband has fallen a victim to the drink habit, endangering his future happiness and prosperity, do not delay a moment in helping him to overcome his craving for drink. Willpower alone cannot cure the liquor habit, for drunkenness is a disease and the desire for liquor must be satisfied.

Orrine, the wonderful specific for the cure for the whiskey and beer habit, removes all craving for drink with a few days' use and effects a permanent and lasting cure. It comes in two forms. No. 1 is perfectly colorless, tasteless and odorless, and can be given in tea, coffee or food without the patient's knowledge. But we recommend No. 2, in pill form, to be used by those who desire to free themselves from the terrible mastery of drink. The cost of either form is $1 a box. Orrine, the only guaranteed cure for the drink habit is sold and recommended by F. W. Kugler, 106 W. Superior St., Duluth.

CATARRH CURED AND OLD AGE DEFIED!

Hon. Andrew Dutcher's Eloquent Tribute to the Great Curative Properties of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, Is Similar to That of Thousands Who Say It Is a Godsend to Suffering Humanity.

HON. ANDREW DUTCHER.

On Jan. 3, Mr. Dutcher, Counsellor-at-Law, of 487 3d St., Brooklyn, wrote: "I have been a sufferer from catarrh for about six years, and have tried many remedies and so-called 'cures' without relief.

"About a month ago Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was recommended to me, and I was induced to try it. As soon as I started to take it I felt the benefit. I received more relief from the first bottle than I had from all the remedies I had been experimenting with for six years.

"I have implicit faith in your valuable whiskey as a cure for catarrh, and I firmly believe that in a short time I will be free from the only chronic trouble I now have. Although in my 83d year, physicians pronounce me free from chronic diseases, with the exception of this catarrh in the head, which is fast disappearing, and I can look forward to the closing years of my life without anticipating any of the serious ills of old age.

"The catarrh impaired my hearing and affected my sense of smell, and I feel sure that these will both become normal as the cause disappears. I find that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey does not only cure my catarrh, but it acts as a tonic-stimulant, and when I get a cough a few doses cure me.

"Since I have been taking your whiskey I feel as vigorous as when I was 40 years of age. I don't believe in the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, but I cannot help expressing my gratitude for all that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done for me, and I don't hesitate to recommend it to everyone who needs a tonic-stimulant to build up the wasted tissues."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

This frank, outspoken statement of Mr. Dutcher, who is widely known, is similar to thousands of letters received from grateful people the country over who have been restored to perfect health and vigorous strength by this grand medicine.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a positive cure for consumption, catarrh, pneumonia, grip, bronchitis, coughs and colds and a sure preventive of all pulmonary and bronchial affections. It is invaluable in fevers, lung troubles and all weakening, wasting diseases. It cures indigestion and stomach affections, and is unequaled as a heart tonic. It is the support of old age. Doctors for 50 years have used it.

BEWARE of adulterated, poisonous imitations and substitutes offered by unscrupulous dealers, who care more for profit than for the health of their customers. The genuine Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is put up in sealed bottles only, and the "Old Chemist" trade-mark is on the label of every bottle.

Reliable druggists and grocers the world over sell the genuine Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, $1 a bottle. Medical booklet free. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

ASHAWA WOMAN ASKS DIVORCE

Anna Bracklin Makes Serious Charge Against Husband.

Alleging that her husband, Guy M. Bracklin, a musician, has had illicit relations with a woman named Lillian Scott, and is even now openly residing with the latter, at the new town of Ashawa, Anna Bracklin has instituted proceedings in district court for a decree of divorce and permanent alimony.

Mrs. Bracklin alleges that she is 43 and her husband 34 years of age, and that they were married at Spooner, Wis., in April, 1892. They have no children. In her contention for temporary alimony during the pendency of the action, Mrs. Bracklin says it is her belief that her husband has claims about Ashawa worth from $2,000 to $3,000. J. H. Norton is attorney for Mrs. Bracklin.

APRIL FOOL.

Cut Finger Joke Numbers Victims By Score.

If a man comes up to you holding a bloody bandage seemingly wrapped about his finger, and requests you to kindly tie a string about it, beware.

Thomas Brian, the custodian of the city hall, revived the old joke this morning, and had all the different city officials tying up his cut finger. The "finger" proved to be nothing but a piece of sausage wrapped up in the bloody bandage, and it fell off into the hands of the good Samaritan, much to his surprise and consternation.

ATHLETES ARE IN ACTIVE TRAINING

Work Among High School Students of Getting Into Condition For Track Events Is In Progress—Examinations For Seniors Who Are Behind In Their Studies.

The baseball and track athletes of the high school have commenced active training on the campus, and every Saturday morning a large number of candidates gather at the school building, where they are put through a course of work under the direction of Coach Church, after which a long cross-country run is taken.

Nothing further has been heard from any of the range towns in regard to a three or four-cornered meet to be held at Virginia, but it is quite certain that a team will be sent to Ironwood to engage in a meet with their track men the latter part of May or the first of June.

In order to qualify for the first term, that is, the team that will represent the school in any of the outside meets that may be held, each candidate must take at least one first and one second in the preliminary field day that will take place some time during the latter part of April or the first of May. If it is found that this limits the size of the squad too much, these regulations will be changed after the preliminary.

Robert Smith, captain of the track team, reports that the work is progressing favorably, and expects that a first-class team will be the result. He says that he is looking forward to seeing some of the records broken, as some of the men are showing exceptionally fine form thus early in the season. Those who have signified their intention of entering the different events are:

High hurdles—Harbison, Harrison, Ryan, Rankin and Montgomery.

Low hurdles—Quimby, Harbison, Harrison, Ryan, Cramner, Rankin and Montgomery.

Running high jump—Mace, Rankin, Ryan, Michaud, Harbison, G. Markus and Frink.

The most exciting and interesting event of the day will undoubtedly by the class relay race, with which the program of the day will be concluded. The winners of this event will have their names and their class numerals engraved on the handsome silver trophy cup that is at the present time on exhibition in the upper hall. The graduating class has usually won this distinction in the past, and the present senior class has high hopes of following in the footsteps of their predecessors.

The various classes have elected their track captains, and they all promise the best team that they have ever had. Robert Jacques is captain of the seniors, Benjamin Frink of the juniors, Fred Ryan of the sophomores, and Charlie Cargill of the freshmen. Walter McCarthy is manager of the senior team.

The baseball men are commencing to turn out regularly, and the prospects of a first class team are excellent. No definite schedule has yet been arranged, but it is likely that among others the locals will play Ashland, Superior, either one or two nines from the Twin Cities, and one or two of the best of the range town teams.

CHANCE TO RETRIEVE.

Examinations For Students Who Are Behind.

Next Saturday, April 8, special examinations will be given to all those who failed in any of their studies for last semester, with the exception of English in the three lower classes.

Students who failed to secure sufficient credit in any subject are given this opportunity to make it up. None of the semester marks are taken into consideration in this examination as is the case in regular examinations in February and June, but the pupil is required to secure a standing of 75 per cent or better on his paper in order to pass. An hour is allowed to each examination, the idea being to make it "intensive rather than extensive." The program is as follows:

8:30 to 9:30—Solid geometry, algebra, plane geometry, and physics.

12:30 to 1:30—Arithmetic, physical geography, zoology, and bookkeeping.

1:40 to 2:40—Ancient history, chemistry, United States history, and mediaeval history.

2:50 to 4:00—Senior English.

No one except the seniors are allowed to make up the English work in any special examination, as the college requirements are more stringent and exacting in this subject than in any of the others.

School Notes.

At the sophomore class meeting that was held in the assembly hall Wednesday afternoon Edward Cole was elected captain of the baseball team and Benjamin Frink was selected to lead the track team.

* * *

The regular meeting of the Agassiz club, which was to have been held in the biological laboratory yesterday afternoon, has been postponed until Friday of the first week of school. Prof. Ulrich will then give a talk on the nitrogen problem and plant food.

* * *

The seniors were required to hand in a list of material that dealt with the subjects upon which they are going to write for their commencement essays yesterday. An outline is due Friday, April 14, and on April 28 they will be expected to hand in the essays completed.

* * *

The junior class plus arrived a short time ago, and are of a very handsome design.

* * *

After more than a week's absence because of illness, Principal Smith returned to his duties Wednesday, greatly to the pleasure of the pupils.

* * *

The Demosthenes club will hold its next meeting the first Monday afternoon that school reopens. The program will consist of a debate on the question, "Resolved, that the present immigration laws are insufficient." The affirmative will be supported by Fred Ober and Wallace Quimby, and Donald Holmes and Hanford will uphold the negative.

* * *

In the sophomore class Miss Mabel Culkins won the prize of $2 for the best story, Ralph Ely the prize of $2 for the best frontispiece, Miss Dale Montgomery the prize of $1 for the best tail piece, and Gerald Eddy was awarded $1 for the best poem.

* * *

The seniors are beginning to speculate as to who the honor pupils will be this year, as their names will soon be announced.

* * *

Make the most of your vacation, as you will not get another until the 1st of July, unless it be by way of "French leave."

BIRDS ARE COSTLY

Illegal Possession of Game Birds Costs Boyle $600.

Effort Made to Get Confiscated Partridges For Children's Home.

Pleading guilty to one of the indictments returned against him charging a violation of the state game laws, James Boyle, of Boyle Bros., changed his plea of not guilty to guilty, before Judge Dibell this morning, and was fined $600, which he paid.

The information against Boyle was that some weeks ago 120 partridges were found to be in his possession, illegally. They were seized on top of the building occupied by Boyle Bros. hotel, on Superior street, the seizure being made by Deputy Game Warden Green. The state game law provides that no person shall have in his possession, after the open season for shooting expires, more than 50 birds, these to be held under a permit issued by the game authorities. In Boyle's case it is claimed there were 120 birds and that there was no permit attached to any of them. Boyle was indicted on two counts, 60 birds to each count.

The fine imposed, $10 per bird, is the minimum penalty under the state law for illegal possession of game bird, the maximum penalty being $25 per bird.

The birds seized on the roof of Boyle Bros.' place were confiscated by the state board of game and fish commissioners.

County Attorney J. M. McClintock has been active in the endeavor to have the confiscated birds given to the Children's home in this city and recently wrote S. F. Fullerton, executive agent of the state board, relative to the matter. Mr. Fullerton has replied stating that while it would afford the board of game and fish commissioners great pleasure to comply with the request, the matter is entirely out of its hands, the confiscated birds having passed into the hands of the state board of control, which usually distributes them among the state institutions. Mr. Fullerton, however, said that he would take the matter up with the board of control with a view of urging the request of Mr. McClintock.

Mr. Fullerton, in behalf of the state board of game and fish commissioners, expresses thanks to County Attorney McClintock for his work in the Boyle case and others in which he has been interested in the cause of game and fish protection, and says his efforts are gratifying to the board because some county attorneys, for political, or other reasons, have not always been willing to prosecute.

No disposition has yet been made of the second indictment.

ONE HOUSE BURNS

People Escape in Night Clothes—Three Other Fires.

Commercial Club Holds Meeting—Mrs. Jane McDonald's Funeral.

West Duluth had four fires during yesterday afternoon and this morning, the most serious being about 4 o'clock this morning. At that time the house at 314 South Fifty-eighth avenue west was practically destroyed and the barn in connection was partly burned. The house is owned by Hans Hanson and was occupied by the family of L. Lewis, who escaped in their night clothes. The house was pretty well destroyed before the fire was discovered and all the firemen could do was turn their attention to neighboring buildings.

The roof of Martin Jordan's barber shop on Raleigh street, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth avenues, caught fire yesterday afternoon and looked dangerous for a time, but was finally subdued.

Two chimney fires with but slight serious results claimed the attention of the department yesterday afternoon and last night.

REGULAR MEETING.

Commercial Club Changes Order of Business.

The West Duluth Commercial club held its regular weekly meeting last evening, but about the most important matter attended to was the hour for meeting. It was decided to hold the business meeting at 8 o'clock and the social session afterwards, whereas at present the order is reversed. The matter of whether Justice Flack's court is legal or not was discussed and a committee consisting of H. H. Phelps, Alderman Barnes and M. M. Clark was appointed to look into the matter. It has been in district court for some time and has been the subject of much discussion.

Other minor matters were under discussion also.

FUNERAL SUNDAY.

Mrs. McDonald to Be Interred By Lady Maccabees.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane McDonald of Cloquet, whose death was noted in these columns yesterday, will be held from Asbury Methodist church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. F. C. Clark, the pastor, conducting the services. The body was brought down from Cloquet yesterday and taken to the home of Mrs. Louis Fulda, a daughter of the deceased, at 2 South Fifty-first avenue west. The funeral will be under the auspices of the West Duluth Hive of Lady Maccabees. Mrs. McDonald was 67 years of age.

Mrs. McDonald leaves six children, four daughters and two sons. They are: Hugh McDonald of West Duluth, Leonard McDonald of Cloquet, Mrs. Fulda of West Duluth, Mrs. Carl of Cloquet, Mrs. La Pierre of Michigan, and Mrs. Puttman of Ontario.

WEST DULUTH CHURCHES.

At the Plymouth Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. H. W. Johnson, will preach in the morning on the subject "Seal of the Living God," and in the evening on "Demons of This World."

* * *

Rev. A. P. Lund will preach tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at Olsen & Kauppi's hall, Grand avenue and Sixty-third street. All are invited to attend.

* * *

The First Swedish Baptist church services will be held at 10:30 tomorrow morning and 7:30 in the evening. In the morning, Rev. C. A. Aldeen will speak on "The Bread of Life" and a communion service will follow. In the evening he will give an address on "Thy Will Be Done." Services of baptism will follow and Mrs. J. H. Jern will sing a solo.

* * *

At the Norwegian Lutheran Synod church, corner of Fifty-seventa avenue west and Gosnold street, there will be Norwegian services in the morning at 10:30, conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. Hulfsberg, Jr. In the evening, at 7:45, there will be English services, conducted by Rev. H. C. Hinz, of St. Stephens German Lutheran church. Sunday school meets at 9:30.

* * *

At Holy Apostles Episcopal church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Elinor street, holy communion will be held at 9 a. m., and evening prayer and sermon at 7 p. m., on the subject, "Decision." Rev. Roderick J. Mooney is the rector.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Sawing for the season will open at the Merrill & Ring mill next week.

The Y. W. C. A. will hold a special meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Church of the Holy Apostles. Mrs. William Asher and Miss Tena Shaw will sing.

Among the visitors to Duluth during the week past who have been of particular interest to labor circles here was William Kennissen of Cripple Creek, Colo. Mr. Kennissen is a miner and was in the labor troubles in Colorado when General Sherman Bell adopted his arbitrary and forceful methods of putting down trouble. Kennissen at that time was arrested on a charge of complicity in blowing up a depot where a number of people were killed, and which he charges was done by detectives in the employ of the mining companies. For this charge he was confined in the famous "bull pen" for seven months and twelve days. Kennissen was formerly sheriff of Border county, Oregon, and looks the part of an absolutely fearless man.

The free labor bureau bill before the legislature will pass in part. Minneapolis will be the dog that it will be tried on for two years and if it is successful there a free labor bureau will be established in St. Paul as well. The bill will appropriate $1,750 a year for the Minneapolis bureau and on the success of this experiment will depend its general adoption. As Minneapolis is one of the principal labor centers, the backers of the bill feel that they have gained a valuable point.

• • •

There is little doing in the realm of labor this week. Everything seems to be in peace and quiet. Employers and employes are getting along in first rate shape and no differences are reported.

• • •

As the Federated Trades assembly meets only on the second and fourth Fridays of the month, and yesterday being the fifth Friday of March and next Friday being the first of April an extra week will be skipped in the meetings this time. The Federated Trades assembly will meet a week from Friday night, however, and it is likely that some matters of legislation will be discussed.

• • •

Representative Ray T. Lewis has written the labor leaders here that some of the members of the board of education of Duluth are opposed to the bill sent down by the trades assembly to have the hours of voting at school elections changed from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. to the regular election polling hours, namely, 6 a. m. to 7 p. m. The labor men here cannot understand the proposition as the proposed hours will give a better chance of getting out a full and representative vote.

• • •

Labor will celebrate when the city obtains control of the big aerial bridge and the trades assembly has appointed the following committee to arrange for this affair: President, Joseph Shartel, E. S. Fromery and C. W. McDowell.

• • •

James Walsh, grand president of the L. T. P. A. has gone to Detroit to confer with Daniel J. Keefe, national president of the Longshoremen's union.

• • •

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is holding a big meeting in Duluth these days, which will wind up tomorrow evening with a social session in Elks hall.

• • •

A new union has just been formed by the tile setters and helpers of the city and will affiliate with the national organization of that line and with the Federated Trades assembly of the city. The charter was received last Saturday and the organization was perfected that night. The following officers were elected: President, William Christensen; vice president, J. Youngberg; secretary, C. A. Johnson; financial secretary, Ed Erickson; treasurer, C. E. Carlson; marshal, J. B. Johnson, and doorkeeper, A. Skoog. Delegates to the trades assembly were elected as follows: J. Youngberg, C. A. Johnson and E. Erickson. The tile setters and helpers will meet at the L. T. P. A. hall every first and third Friday of each month.

Frightful Eczema in childhood or old age cured by D. D. D. Prescription.

These are two interesting cases:

Baby boy quickly healed.

Lisbon, N. H., April 22, 1904.

D. D. D. Company.

Gentlemen:—My baby boy is cured by your remedy. He has suffered from the terrible disease from birth which covered the entire body. He was in such fearful condition we had to tie his hands to keep him from tearing his flesh. All doctors and different advertised remedies had no effect in this case. When we began the use of D. D. D. it made the child look worse, but after a few days it began to scale, and in less than two months treatment the child was entirely cured. M. P. SIMONDS.

An aged man cured.

Findlay, Ohio, April 15, 1904.

D. D. D. Company.

Gentlemen:—I have doctored with four or five doctors and had eczema in the worst form for thirteen months. I have used eleven bottles of D. D. D. and am now completely cured. My age is sixty-two years. You may use this testimonial at your pleasure. Yours respectfully,

H. WALTERS.

Thousands of people suffering from the terrible tortures of these diseases imagine they have some impurity in the blood, when, as a matter of fact, the blood has no more to do with this class of ailments than the eyebrows.

Skin Diseases

are wholly confined to the epidermis or external skin, and between the inner and external skins there are no blood vessels, hence the disease cannot come from the blood. Barrels of blood medicines can have no effect on these skin eruptions, for such medicines cannot reach the seat of the trouble. This class of diseases is caused by a germ or parasite which burrows into the external skin, there it lives, thrives and multiplies, and the inflammation they set up causes the awful itching and burning sensation.

The D. D. D. Remedy is a liquid preparation applied externally—non-greasy—that penetrates the pores of the skin, destroys the germs or parasites and clears the disease entirely out of the skin, leaving a smooth, soft and healthy covering for the body.

D. D. D. costs but $1.00 per bottle and is guaranteed to cure any skin disease or money refunded. For sale and guaranteed by good fellow Johnson is, and what a record he is making.

"This will never do. It will re-elect Johnson just as sure as my name is ——. Therefore I figure that the row over the Horton bill was a good thing, because it apparently put the legislative and executive branches of the government at outs. Those who voted for the passage of the bill over the veto have come in for sharp criticism, and they are arguing, as much to convince themselves as to convince anybody else, that they did the right thing. It is a short step between a condition like this and a feeling of bitterness. That is the consummation devoutly to be wished by the Republican party if it wants to get back into power next year."

• • •

The house yesterday passed a bill under suspension of the rules that will be of considerable interst and importance to the people of Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis, to which it applies. It is by H. B. Chamberlain of Minneapolis, and it is entitled "an act to regulate the treatment and control of dependent, neglected and delinquent children.

It applies to children under 17 years of age, who are destitute, homeless or abandoned, who begs or receives alms, who is found living in the haunts of vice or with vicious persons, or whose home is unfit; also to children under 10 years of age found begging, peddling or singing or playing musical instruments upon the street, or giving any public entertainment. It also applies to any child who comes under the head of "delinquent" because they break the law or consort with those that do, or who are incorrigible, who wander about the streets or "hook" onto trains or engines.

The bill gives the district court in all cities over 50,000 exclusive jurisdiction over such children. The judges are to designate one of their number to hear all cases arising under the act, and a special court room, to be designated as the "juvenile court room" is to be set apart.

Anybody having knowledge of the facts may file an affidavit with the clerk of court stating that he knows of a child that comes under the provisions of the act. The clerk must issue a summons calling in the person having custody of such child, and the juvenile court has power to deal with the case in a summary manner. The court may designate one or more probation officers, to look after the children.

If children are found to come under the head of "delinquent," the court may send them to a state institution or into private homes or into the care of charitable associations. The court is given ample discretion regarding the care of children coming into its custody, and may send them to corrective institutions, charitable institutions, homes, etc., or suspend sentence and let them go free if it deems it proper.

One section of the bill states its purpose to be that it shall be liberally construed to this end: "That the care, custody and discipline of a child shall approximate as nearly as may be to that which should be given by its parents, and in all cases where it can properly be done the child is to be placed in an approved family home and become a member of the family by legal adoption or otherwise."

• • •

The senate committee on mines and mining, of which Senator T. M. Pugh of Duluth is chairman, has aproved Representative Saarl's bill providing for a mine inspector to be appointed by county boards in counties having more than five operating mines. The bill will now go to general orders, and will undoubtedly become a law.

• • •

There is no session today, because most of the members are off to Glenwood, to look over the state fish hatchery which the session of two years ago established there, and which is now in full operation.

• • •

The house committee on genral legislation yesterday gave its disapproval of secret societies in schools by agreeing to recommend for passage the Rachle bill prohibiting Greek letter societies and sororities in high schools, normal schools and first year classes in the state university.

• • •

The A. K. Ware bill, providing for the nomination of United States senators by popular vote at the primaries, was killed by the house committee on general legislation yesterday afternoon. It provided that whoever in each party should receive the most votes should be formally presented to the next session of the legislature as the party candidate for United States senator.

• • •

There was a bit of a stir in the house yesterday afternoon when Dr. J. H. Dorsey of Glencoe thought he had found Senator Henry Gjertsen, author of the chiropractic bill, lobbying for it on the floor of the house.

Dr. Dorsey had had the bill, which is on the calendar, put over until next week, and afterwards he saw Senator Gjertsen on the floor. He arose to a question of personal privilege, and said he objected to members of the senate lobbying for bills on the floor of the house. He said if it happened again he would ask that the senator in question be ruled off the floor. He did not use any names, but all knew who was meant.

• • •

The house committee on elections yesterday decided in favor of the Rachle bill making members of the railroad and warehouse commission appointive by the governor instead of elective. They used to be appointed by the governor, but a few years ago a law was passed making them elective by the people.

The theory of those who favor the change is that a governor who will be held responsible for the actions of so conspicuous and important a body will be very careful whom he appoints to the board.

• • •

The house took a brief whirl yesterday at John G. Lund's bill abolishing capital punishment, and was on general orders, and came up for consideration in committee of the whole. After some debate it was put over without action.

George Mackenzie of Sibley county made a set speech in favor of the bill, very eloquent in its terms, and it met with hearty applause from the house. He took a stand against capital punishment on the ground that it is immoral, and that it is as much murder to execute a man as it is for an individual to kill one.

J. T. Mannix of Minneapolis offered an amendment providing that the question of whether or not a murderer should be hanged be left to the jury, and in the event that that body decided he should not be hung, it would be possible to send him up for life, and impose in addition to that the provision that he should spend twelve days a year in solitary confinement on a bread and water diet. This amendment was not acted upon.

The senate has passed a bill by Senator Alley providing that the jury shall say whether or not a murderer shall hang, and that if the jury does not let the man off with his life the court may do so if it thinks the circumstances warrant such action.

• • •

The house in committee of the whole recommended for passage the Hickey-Lemon bill, making it a misdemeanor for anybody to beat a board bill, and giving the host who is defrauded a lien for his bill upon any effects he may have in his possession belonging to the delinquent.

The house also approved W. I. Nolan's bill making it a misdemeanor for anybody to run an engine who has not had three years' experience as a fireman or one year's as an engineer. The measure was askd for by the railroad men.

WHITEMAN RELEASED ON BAIL.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 1.—Alonzo J. Whiteman was released from jail on $10,000 bail yesterday. The bail was furnished by a surety company. Whiteman was recently acquitted on a charge of grand larceny, but several counts of the indictment still stand against him.

MELLIN'S For the Baby FOOD

"I give him his Mellin's Food and he sleeps 'til morning." How many mothers can say this of their babies? If your baby does not sleep well it may be that he is not properly fed. A poorly nourished baby is a poor sleeper. Mellin's Food babies are good sleepers. Our book the "Care & Feeding of Infants," sent free of charge.

Mellin's Food is the ONLY Infants' Food, which received the Grand Prize, the highest award of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, 1904. Higher than a gold medal.

DIVIDES FUNDS

Apportionment Made of State and County School Moneys.

Independent District of Duluth Gets Total of $19,924.61.

The March apportionment of the state and county school funds, which has just been made by the county auditor's office, shows that the total state school fund in this semi-annual apportionment is $26,260.50 and the total county fund is $5,666.83.

Of the state school fund the independent school district of Duluth, with 10,921 pupils will receive $16,381.50, and $3,543.11 of the county fund. In this apportionment, St. Louis county receives of the state fund $1.50 for each pupil and a fraction over 32 cents per pupil from the county fund. The county school fund is derived from the fines and penalties imposed and collected in district court.

The apportionment sheet issued by the county auditor shows a total of 17,467 pupils for the county. The following statement shows the apportionments by districts:

The Czar's Wealth.

The czar of Russia is unquestionably the richest monarch in Europe, if not in the world. His annual income has been estimated at $12,000,000. The wealth of the average person, however, is largely a matter of health. If he is strong and healthy his earning capacity is much greater than the less fortunate person who is handicapped by some sickness. Sickly people, however, need not remain so for in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they will surely find health and strength. For building up run-down systems, correcting the liver and curing heartburn, nausea, bloating, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, billousness, liver and kidney ills, general debility, spring fever, chills, colds or la grippe the Bitters is unequaled. Try a bottle and test it for your own satisfaction. Don't accept a substitute if you value your health.

WATER TREATMENT

Is Said to Be Remedy For Delirium.

New York, April 1.—By the systematic use of various forms of hot and cold baths, jets and douches, vapor and hot air baths, the Manhattan State hospital on Ward's island, has done away entirely with sedatives or mechanical restraint for the patients, even when violently demented or in strong delirium. The hospital is the first in the country to adopt the use of water as a part of its course of treatment.

One form of "water treatment" is the "continuous bath" for patients in violent delirium. The patient is kept in a bathtub of water at blood heat, under observation by experienced nurses and physicians, for hours—for days, if necessary—until the delirium has abated. In one case the patient was in the water fourteen days. She came out of the delirium and, under other branches of the treatment, recovered from her dementia.

The physicians believe their treatment will save the life of every patient under delirium unless some other form of insanity or physical disease sets in.

SHEVLIN PLANS

Spring Practice For the Yale Football Eleven.

New Haven, Conn., April 1.—Capt. Shevlin, Jr., of the Yale football eleven, is laying plans for the spring practice of the team. This will probably begin about Easter and will continue for two or three weeks, most of the work being in punting and handling kicks. Capt. Shevlin will not be able to give much of his time to it, as he will be occupied in working with the hammer throwers of the track team. Shevlin has made no announcement of his plan for the coaching of the eleven for next season.

Capt. Hogan of the eleven last fall says that he has made no plans for next season, but he is likely to be in the New York law school instead of at Yale and will not be available as a coach. It is probable that, aside from ex-Capt. Hogan, Shevlin will be surrounded by much the same group of coaches as in the past. Some of last year's stars likely to come back to help Shevlin out are Bloomer, Kinney and Owlsey.

Important Announcement After Eight Years of Piano Selling.

On April 1st, 1897, our piano store was opened in a small room on the second floor, and a small affair it was, too, but it had the powerful germ of usefulness and progress within its modest make-up and you have seen it grow, until now its annual sales of pianos and kindred instruments far exceed those of any other Duluth store. The reasons for this condition are not far off and you will kindly pardon our mentioning a few of them.

First—Our prices are much lower than others, made possible by the fact that this is the only piano store in Duluth or Superior buying all instruments out and out for cash, thus owning them at prices far below its competitors.

Second—Conducting this piano business in connection with a large and old established trade in other lines enables us to effect a great saving in expenses which gives still further ability to make low prices.

Third—Customers appreciate the fact that this is the only piano store in Duluth or Superior that keeps its contract in its own possession and endorses each payment when it is made upon the back thereof. It is embarrassing, to say the least, after one has bought a piano, to find the contract in the hands of a money-lender, some manufacturer, the bank, or that it has been sent out of town for some indefinite purpose. Our methods insure against all these unfortunate conditions.

Fourth—We take more interest in customers' complete piano satisfaction than others, because this is the only piano store in this city owned and controlled by Duluth men and not tributary to outside ownership, dictation or management.

Read On—

There has always been in the piano trade a system of discounts for cash, or other considerations, to the musical profession, schools, institutions, teachers, pupils and others, until people are at a loss many times to know when they have obtained the lowest price on a piano.

We are convinced that such a system is wrong, and while our prices are much lower than others for the same class of goods, and our discounts very small compared with the generous slice some piano dealers cut off their first asking price, we have decided to establish prices on pianos so low that all discounts are out of the question.

After eight years' experience in the piano business, we feel that our standing is strong enough to take this position, single-handed, and the people of Duluth and vicinity may know that there is one store in their midst whose pianos are marked and sold at the lowest possible cash price.

We believe that people will welcome this and therefore on April 1, 1905, we shall put in operation

French & Bassett's One Price System of Selling Pianos.

Under this system we are able to materially reduce the prices of pianos and it marks a new era in piano selling in Duluth—perhaps more important than our advent in the business, eight years ago. Each instrument bears a large tag with the lowest cash price marked in plain figures, from which there is absolutely no deviation under any circumstances.

These prices are fixed after the fullest consideration and investigation, and will be found as low, and in many cases lower than the largest houses in New York, Boston, Philadelphia or Chicago.

Every price is absolutely guaranteed as the net cash value of the instrument and when customers wish to purchase on time, interest will be charged at the rate of 5 per cent per annum on deferred payments.

The product of seventeen leading piano makers is here and each make is a leader in its particular grade.

The public is cordially invited to see and hear our beautiful pianos and to investigate our One Price System. It will save you many dollars and much time.

Very easy terms of payment will be arranged at from $5 to $10 a month.

Special Notice—

From April 1, 1905, the rate of interest on all existing piano contracts with us will be reduced to 5 per cent, and we have so endorsed it on the back of each contract.

BETTER FREQUENT ELECTIONS.

In a letter to his paper from St. Paul, W. E. Verity of the Wadena Tribune makes out a very strong case in favor of frequent elections of legislators. He says he has closely observed the work of the legislature during the past seven sessions from the vantage point of the ground floor, and he has found it the invariable rule that the senate is always more responsive to the popular demand the nearer an election of senate members approaches. He says:

"As a matter of fact the senate as it is now composed is conservative enough to suit a Philadelphia merchant, and certainly nothing more could be asked. But there are three weeks yet in which it may disregard the traditions of the past four years, and it is possible that much of the radical stuff which the house is turning over to the senate day by day may be allowed to go through. If the senate does follow the lead of the house to any extent, it may be taken for granted that a desire for re-election two years hence will be at the bottom. For it has ever been the rule, within the recollection of the writer, that a new senate, just elected and with four years to serve, is much more careless in its treatment of radical measures than is the same body just before it is about to retire from office and seek vindication—and re-election—at the hands of the voter."

Among the important radical measures that are likely to become laws this year, Mr. Verity points out the reciprocal demurrage bill and he believes that it will become a law in spite of the fact that a majority of the senators are personally opposed to it, but fear to vote against it.

Two measures that were defeated by the senate two years ago are likely to become laws this year, one the measure providing for a "wide-open" tax amendment to the constitution, and the other the bill providing for the taxation of franchises and the creation of the office of tax commssioner.

If these are facts, and they appear to be, they form a strong argument against long terms for legislators in any capacity. The people of Duluth have been chafing somewhat because of the frequent elections of the past year, but it may be that frequent elections cost the people less in the end than long terms.

Longer terms for executive and clerical officers might be to the public advantage, but it would seem probable that the people will be better served if their legislators are compelled to seek a re-election at least once every two years.

If the people had the power to inaugurate and veto legislation, then it would not make so much difference about the length of the terms of aldermen, congressmen and state representatives, but under present conditions freuent elections will be of more advantage to the public.

A MORMON WOMAN'S PROTEST.

In a letter to the New York Sun, in which she vigorously protests against what she calls the persecution of the Mormon church by Christian sects, Susa Young Gates of Salt Lake City, Utah, a daughter of the late Brigham Young, makes the assertion in rather frenzied manner that the Mormon church is the only true church of Christ and that polygamy is ordained and sanctioned by God and the Bible. She begins by taking this shot at President Roosevelt, who is living with his second wife:

"It is quite the thing to lift scornful eyes when the name of an honest polygamist is mentioned; but when another sort of polygamist goes to the Mothers' Congress, he is hailed as the defender of home and the spotless knight who is to cast his lance for the purity of babes and women. Ye gods!"

After asserting that President Joseph Smith is the true prophet of God and knows it because he has received revelations direct from his Creator, the Gates woman gives a very fair idea of the average Morman's beief in these sentences:

"And do I know it? Yes, I know it as Peter knew that Jesus was the Christ; and on that rock, the rock of personal revelation from the Father to the innermost heart of Peter, Christ builded His church, both in that day and in all days. And do I know that my Redeemer lives? Yes, better than I know any visible and tangible thing. For this living, burning testimony is like a flame within me, glowing brighter and brighter with each day's struggle and toil. And have I had a personal revelation that Joseph Smth was a prophet of God, and that he saw in open vision the Father and the Son? Yes, a thousand times yes. I know it, as I know that polygamy is a true principle? Yes, I do. And I know, too, by personal revelation, that the Manifesto was given by God, and that it is now the law of the church and of the Lord. And would I break that law? I would sooner die. For it is a part of my passionate love for my religion that I am constrained to live it at whatever cost to me."

It will be seen from this that there still remains in the Mormon mind the idea that polygamy is a sanctified institution; that it is still a part of the doctrine of the Mormon church, and that rather than give it up a "good" Mormon would prefer to die. But despite the fact that Mrs. Gates appears to be so positive about these matters, even claiming that she had received revelations from God personally which confirmed her belief, she contradicts herself in this paragraph:

"I may be mistaken. President Smith may be mistaken. We Mormons may be mistaken. But we are not corrupt, we are not vile, we are not degraded. We are as good as we know how to be. Do you teach us how to be better? We are men and women, like yourselves; and we are American citizens. Do not fan the flames of prejudice against us until murder and mobocracy again stalk abroad in our midst. Let us work out the problem of our existence, with schools, colleges, libraries and churches to aid and deliver us, if we are in error."

How it can be possible for anybody to be mistaken about his religion when he knows that his religion is a direct revelation from the Almighty, it is difficult to conceive. Mrs. Gates would have done better if she had stuck to her attempt to defend open polygamy on the ground that it was preferable to secret and consecutive polygamy. These she has firm ground beneath her feet, although she is in error in supposing that secret polygamy is practiced generally by American men or that even a considerable minority are addicted to the practice. She has evidently gleaned her information on this subject from yellow journals.

AN ENORMOUS WASTE.

Nothing will add more quickly to the general prosperity and to the taxable value of the agricultural districts than good roads and expenditures for road improvement are really in the interest of economy because they not only make possible the development of the country, but cheapen the cost of farm products to the consumer, while increasing their value to the farmer.

France hauls her products over her country roads to the town on the railroad station 12½ cents per ton per mile cheaper than we do. Every time the sun sets the bad roads of the United States have cost our peope $1,500,000. And these figures, let it be known, are not guess work, but come from the officials of the United States government who have carefully worked them out.

No country in the world ever possesed really good roads without the assistance of the general government, and the excellent roads in France are a result of government expenditure. The national lawmakers of the United States have begun to realize this fact and as a result there is now pending in congress a bill appropriating $24,000,000 for the country roads of the United States, and this measure is expected to pass next winter. But the beneficent results of this movement cannot be realized in Minnesota unless the state is prepared to meet the federal government half way, because the appropration to be made by congress is to be shared with those states only that will take steps to bear a portion of the expense.

What has the Minnesota legislature done at the present session toward the building of good roads or toward placing the state in a position to share in this national bounty? What has it done toward opening up the agricultural lands in the northern part of the state by assisting in the building of good highways? Nothing, as far as The Herald is able to learn, and the chances are that it will adjourn without having accomplished anything along those lines.

On Monday next the people of Michigan will vote on a constitutional amendment which will place that state in a position to assist in this work of road building. Does the Minnesota constitution need such an amendment? If so, it should be provided for.

If a foreign enemy should attempt to destroy $1,500,000 worth of our property every day there would be an awful row and millions of treasure would at once be expended to put a stop to it, and yet we permit that much waste daily and hardly a hand is raised in protest.

Our state should be spending many thousands of dollars annually in the building of roads, and has plenty of revenue to do it with if unnecessary and foolish expenditures were cut off.

A GREAT NEED.

The experience of the local authorities with the aged man, Julius Saxone, points to the great need of a state institution for men of that character.

Here is a man whose relatives are willing to support him, but cannot keep him at their homes because he is a nuisance. He cannot be kept at the poorhouse because he will not stay. He cannot be sent to an asylum because he would not be received.

It is apparent that his physical body has outlived his mind and while he is physically strong and active he has not sufficient intellect left to properly control himself. He was before the municipal court yesterday and the only thing that could be done with him was to send him to jail for disorderly conduct.

It is not right to keep such a man in jail. It is not right to send him to an insane asylum. It is not right to send him to the poorhouse, even if his relatives are willing to pay for his keep. The only proper place for him would be in a state institution, especially provided for such as he, where he could be properly controlled and provided for. Such an institution should also provide homes and treatment for men who have lost control of themselves through the drink or drug habits. Many a man now worthless to himself, his reatives and the state, might be transformed into a useful citizen by proper treatment at such an institution.

The present legislature is discussing the question of establishing an old people's home to be carried on at state expense. Either there or in an institution apart provision should be made for caring for such men as Saxone and those unfortunates spoken of above.

THE SORROWS OF RICHES.

How would you like to be young Vincent Astor? If he lives he will succeed his father at the head of the great Astor estate, estimated to be worth at least $150,000,000. He has an automobile, horses and all sorts of toys, besides a valet and several servants of his own at his disposal. And yet he is not altogether happy. His habit of being ill has necessitated the addition of a physician to his retinue of servants that his condition may be watched and studied constantly.

For the last four years young Vincent has spent most of his time under his father's roof in New York, and not a single one of the afflictions incident to adolescence has passed him by without laying a heavy hand upon him. He has had the mumps, the measles, scarlet fever and appendicitis. Young Vincent grew very rapidly, a fact which probably aggravted many of his ailments, or at least made him more susceptible to them. Recently he went abroad for the benefit of his health and now it is reported that he is seriously ill in London.

The probabilities are that young Vincent is a victim of too much care and nursing. If his lackey and other servants, including the doctor, were discharged and Vincent permitted to find amusement for himself outdoors as other boys are compelled to do, the chances are that he might escape considerable of the sickness and suffering that he is now compelled to bear because he is a rich man's son and the heir of a great estate.

The more one learns of the lives of the immensely wealthy the more he becomes convinced that riches bring but few joys and many sorrows.

Talks With the State Press

The Pine County Pioneer notes another duty that Congressman Bede appears to be neglecting:

> We advise our friend, J. Adam the 1st., to send on a few bushels of those congressional vegetable seeds. Farmers about here are getting anxious about those free packages, and unless here in time for proper inoculation, a famine will be evident next winter. Also send along any other useful articles the government has left over. We'd like a few microbe-stained greenbacks for ours. Thanks-in-advance.

The flat-renters of Duluth are also becoming anxious for their allotment of rutabaga and sunflower seeds.

The Journal-Press of St. Cloud sizes up the situation accurately:

> The Minnesota house of representatives slaughtered all the primary election bills, and the present law will probably stand without amendment. The trouble with the house is that a majority of the members are against the primary law, and do not want it perfected. It is the game of petty politics—and politicians do not like a law which deprives them of power.

But the Journal-Press helped to muddle the matter by advocating a combination of the primary and convention systems. The people of Minnesota do not want any nominating conventions. They want to nominate all officers direct.

Victims of dyspepsia and others suffering from weak stomachs might reap some benefit by following the diet lived up to by the rugged Mainites, cited in the following from the Stillwater Gazette:

> The United States department of agriculture has added to its valuable memoirs on food and diet a report by Messers. Woods and Mansfield on the diet of the Maine lumbermen. The men perform hard manual labor, and are much exposed to cold, wet and hardship, and the staple daily fare consists of pork, or beef, sour dough biscuits made of dough which undergoes a fermentation with "wild" yeast, tea and molasses, and beans which are first parboiled in the forenoon, and are then packed in a pot which is covered with hot ashes and earth and allowed to cook over night. It is considered that the dietary, as regards protein and energy, is the highest yet recorded for any American laboringmen, is well digested and costs about 23.5 cents for each person a day.

But it requires hard and active physical labor to keep a stomach healthy with such filling as that.

Why he uses poetry to dis-cuss the non-advertiser is thus told by Frank Eddy in the Sauk Center Herald:

> The man who does not advertise,
> We write him up in verse,
> Because when one writes poetry,
> It isn't nice to curse.

> Editor Paradis of the Midway News thinks Judge Collins, Bob Dunn and Frank M. Eddy ought to retire from politics by unanimous consent. They couldn't do it. If everybody else would consent, then Paradis would kick.

But this it will be necessary to leave to the judgment of the reader:

Hotel Gossip.

"Northerners are very much mistaken in their ideas concerning negroes," said C. W. Welcome of Pratt, Wis., at the McKay. Although Mr. Welcome is a Wisconsin man, he has spent a year or two in different parts of the South, in a successful search for health, and now contemplates removing to Mexico with his family.

"All the Southerner asks is that the black man keep his place," he continued. "If he will do this no one will do more for him than the educated people of the South, who resent the interference of the North for the simple reason that people from up here do not understand the African. Give the ordinary negro and inch and he will take a mile, and then some. Some limit has to be put on his actions, and if there wasn't such a limit placed and maintained there is no telling where he would wind up. Life in the negro regions would be simply unbearable.

"It's all right for the Northerner to talk and spout about what ought to be done for the former slaves and their descendants, but if it comes to a show down you will see that it is the man from the North who backs away and leaves the care of the negroes to the other fellow. His intentions are good, but he simply does not know what he is talking about. Social equality for the white and black man is an impossibility, and the best thing the North can do is to stand back and let the South settle the negro question in her own way, and if this is done you may depend upon it that these 'oppressed' people will get their rights.

"From personal observation I know it to be a fact that where the black man is cheated or beaten out of his rights once by a Southerner he is tricked ten times by a Northerner. Probably the poor people who talk about and magnify his troubles for him do not beat the black man, but their brothers in the business world, the majority of them, at least, never let slip an opportunity to trick him in business dealings, even in so small a matter as wages. Take the Northern lumber companies for example, which are now operating on so extensive a scale through the timber districts of the South. They are 'skinning' the negro right and left. The real Southerner never thinks of beating him out of anything that is coming to him, but rather lends assistance, financial and otherwise, whenever needed.

"Where he gets simple justice in the South, the African gets more than justice in many Northern cities, because he has the sympathy of court and jury. In a Chicago court, for example, he will get the best of the white man every time, unless he has actually committed a murder or some crime equally serious. It is none of our business the way the South handles her business. Let her alone, and save trouble."

"Every car of ore shipped to the Head of the Lakes over any one of the three ore-carrying roads is weighed separately," said F. L. Berry of St. Paul, district manager of the Fairbanks Scale company, at the St. Louis. "With the modern scale, as now used by the Great Northern, Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Duluth & Iron Range lines, ore is weighed at the rate of forty-five cars every fifteen minutes. That is to say, a train of forty-five cars is run slowly across the scale and three cars full are weighed every minute.

"The weight is registered automatically, and it is not even necessary to bring the car to a full stop while on the scale. All the attendant has to do it to put down the number of each car as it passes. With trains running at the rate of one every forty-five minutes day and night all through the season, as they will doubtless be doing this year, you can readily see that it is of the utmost necessity that the weighing process be gotten through with in the shortest possible period. The Missabe and Great Northern each have two scales, located at Proctor and Allouez. One on each road is for actual use, while the other is to be used in case of emergency, so that if one breaks down the other can be called immediately into use, doing away with any possibility of delay. The Iron Range has one scale at Ely and two at Highland, one of the latter being an emergency.

"I have just returned from my first inspection of the scales this season. We inspect them every thirty days to see that they are working properly."

"I have enjoyed an excellent business this spring," said Dr. Henry Demmort of New York, at the Spalding. The New York man, who sells black diamonds for mining drills, has just returned from a trip to the iron ranges.

"The demand for black diamonds is a brisk one," he continued, "in anticipation of the extraordinary amount of exploratory work to be carried on in the various mining fields this summer. I do not recall a time when there has been a more general activity in the mining world. A good many carbons are being purchased for the lead fields of Missouri. There are concerns in that state which have as many as sixteen diamond drills at work, and all mining men will understand what that means. They are now seeking lead in Southern Missouri, in a territory that has never been explored."

"In every city of any size and importance advertisements of an odd and amusing nature are to be seen in the daily press every once in a while, but I believe that, as a whole, England takes the cake for queer newspaper notices," said S. D. Martin of Hibbing at the St. Louis. "I clipped one out of my old home paper the other day that is pretty good. To understand it better you should know that the business of dealing in second-hand clothes is carried on much more extensively in England than it is here in the United States, many of the poorer class depending entirely upon the second-hand dealers to furnish them with wearing apparel as what we in America call cast-off clothes are known altogether as left-off clothes across the water. It is not an uncommon thing to see an advertisement announcing the sale of left-off clothes. I have not the clipping referred to with me, but it reads something like this, without any punctuation marks other than a period at the end:

"Mr. and Mrs. John Mills (such and such a street) have left off clothing of every description and invite your special inspection."

Twenty Years Ago.

Taken From the Columns of Duluth Papers of This Date 1885.

Mrs. J. F. Patten returned from Minneapolis yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Macfarlane are visiting in St. Paul this week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Duncan returned yesterday rom the South.

W. H. Fisher, superintendent of the St. Paul & Duluth railway, was in the city yesterday.

A. J. Whiteman returned today from the East and South. The first information he had of his chances for the land office receivership was when he read of the matter in the Duluth papers.

Capt. R. B. Montague is out again after a severe illness.

Mrs. J. A. Stockbridge, wife of the proprietor o fthe St. Nicholas hotel, died yesterday, aged 35 years. She had lived here about five years.

P. T. Contine, formerly in the employement agency business in Duluth, has left St. Paul after extracting about $300 from the pockets of residents of that city.

At the regular meeting of the village council held last evening, the recorder and treasurer presented their reports. It was shown that the general expenses of the village had been $72,568.38, for the fire department $12,026.90. There is a balance in the general fund of $5,441.02 and in the fire department fund $2,614.26.

Some specimens of ore taken from the Rabbit Mountain mine assayed very rich. A carload of ore was recently shipped to New York, where assays were made by the New York metallurgical works with the following results: Ore No. 1, $3,610 per ton; No. 2, $1,339; No. 3, $198; No. 4, $143. Some specimens have been taken from the mine that assayed $10,000 per ton, and the vein generally is very rich in silver. The mine will be extensively worked this summer and now between 2,000 and 3,000 tons of ore are on the dump.

The Weather.

United States Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. POOR POLITICS.

Minneapolis Journal: Republicans generally will disapprove the action of their representatives in the house and senate, who called party caucuses and forced the passage of the Horton capitol bill over the governor's veto. That action does not represent the sentiment of the rank and file of Republicans. They feel that the Horton bill was conceived in a scheme of petty patronage, and executed as a means of depriving the present governor of certain appointments during his term. Yet the action of the senators and representatives in holding caucuses and swinging the party lash has fastened the Horton bill on the Republicans of the state as a party measure.

If any sound and sensible reason exists for this bill, and if the welfare of the Republican party was so seriously involved in its passage, then it is in order for the next state convention to adopt a plank in its platform, saying: "We point with pride to the noble stand taken by the Republican members of the legislature when they deprived the Democratic governor and his cohorts of the control and patronage of the capitol building." How would that sound?

Really, if Governor Johnson and his political advisers had been setting themselves to secure political prestige from this incident, they could not have managed it any better. If the legislature had receded from its position, it might have put the governor "in the hole" by taking the ground that the governor wanted the patronage and was welcome to it. That opportunity was not taken, and the legislature has stooped to the level of peanut politics.

It is a bad mess for sensible, well-intentioned men to get into, and the Journal believes that many members who voted for the bill under pressure are heartily ashamed of it, and disgusted with the whole proceeding.

THE JOKESMITHS.

Philadelphia Press: Spawnger—I've noticed considerable change about you since you stopped drinking.

Markley—Well, I've noticed that there's considerable more in my pocket.

Washington Star: "Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "de man dat keeps braggin' 'bout how honest he is sounds like he was tryin' to hol' up his courage an' keep f'om backslidin'."

Cleveland Leader: "Jimmy, what branch of learning do you dislike the most?"

"Dat one de teacher cut f'm de apple tree an' brung hiter de schoolroom!"

Boston Transcript: He—You have scorned my suit, proud lady!

She—And you have united my scorn; so I don't see but it's six in one and half a dozen in the other.

Detroit Free Press: Professor—What is the name of the text-book Kuropatkin used in his study of military tactics?

Student—"Looking Backward."

Philadelphia Ledger: Stinjay—See here, when are you going to pay me back that dollar you borrowed?

Borroughs—Why, man alive, I earned that dollar. I had to work with you for a couple of hours before I got it out of you.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The only time to speculate is when you haven't any money.

When you tell a girl how beautiful she looks it is a sign she believes you.

There is something excruciatingly funny about the way a woman plays whist, unless you are her partner.

It is very hard for a woman to make herself believe that her boy's school teacher isn't jealous of his brains.

When the racing season comes around lots of men begin to tell their friends how much they love a day in the country.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Craze for Saving Time.

If there is one characteristic more than another which differentiates modern men from the ancients, it is the eagerness of the former to save time. Why are the railroad companies seeking constantly to reduce the running time between the principal cities, and the steamships to shorten the ocean voyage between the Western and Eastern continents? Simply because their patrons yearn to make time. Survey a typical American crowd eager to go somewhere. How they jostle and elbow one another! The bigger the city, the more fierce the scramble and rush. The disease of New York is not confined to the dwellers on Manhattan or Long Island, but there you have on a large and conspicuous scale what can be paralleled the country over—namely, the hurried rush from one thing to another, business engagements, social diversions, intellectual instruction and even religious appointments.

Now this craze for saving time is not wholly bad. Did not the copy books of our childhood in aphorisms of beautiful script at the head of the page frequently admonish us as to the worth of time? Were we not repeatedly told that life was short, that time was fleeting, that time was money, that we must seize the day. Yes, time is a valuable community, too precious to be wasted. But the point is, does the hurrying, hustling man always save so much time as he thinks he will by catching the 8:02 train instead of the 7:56? Will the record of the day's work show more actually accomplished than if he had waited to chat at the breakfast table with his children about their school life, or paused to say good morning to his neighbor in the front yard? Somehow in this rushing age we are losing the old-fashioned, stately civilities and courtesies which belonged to a more leisurely era. Then men had time to know their fellowmen apart from a purely business acquaintanceship and women had time to talk over with one another the deeper interests of motherhood and of womanhood. How much better that was than the insipid, superficial talk of two or three afternoon teas sandwiched in between 4 and 6 o'clock.

Granted that the man who rushes about may save a little time, but does he not often lose his temper and his manners? Does he not pay too high a price for the best seat in the public conveyance, or for the extra hour and a quarter he saves by keeping his nerves at high tension all day long.

I should like to put these two questions to the worshippers of this fetich. First, what are you saving time for, and secondly, what will you do with the time that you save? Oh, you want more time for your business, you say. But when you have gotten it and the bigger business, why do you still want more time? But isn't there to be any let-up, or is this drive to last forever? Sometimes men have to have enforced periods of leisure, long illnesses, in order to realize that they are in this world to do something besides hustling.

And when you get to Chicago on the special new limited, what are you going to do with your extra time? When you get to that golden period of retirement from business, what are you going to do? May it not be then that time will hang heavy on your hands? You will have saved more time than you will have any practical use for. If you had saved a little less time and meanwhile laid up a little more culture and more sympathy with your fellowmen, and more delight in God's world, you would be far happier the rest of your days.

Many of us believe that time melts in due season into eternity. That is, that another life of endless durations succeeds these brief human years. Why not, then, let the thought of eternity of an ample sufficiency of time steady and calm us in the midst of these rushing years. Let us not be troubled if we do not achieve everything we would like to do here in the flesh. We may be able to realize in that vaster world some ambitions, to cultivate which time was denied us here. At any rate, let us not grasp so greedily at every minute slipping by and use it so selfishly that we shall have no treasure laid up for us in heaven.

THE PARSON.

Oh, Shaw!

New York Globe: G. Bernard Shaw, the playwright, has added his views to the Globe's symposium on divorce.

Mr. Shaw contributes his ideas on a postal, which reads:

"The Globe would be more usefully employed in arousing public opinion to the inveterate tendency of married people to remain married when it would often be better for them and for the community that they should be divorced. There is nothing of which America should be so proud as the fact that on its soil divorces are comparatively frequent and easy.

"I sincerely trust that marriages may become more and more barren, until even your well-meaning but absolutely old-fashioned president may see that it is in the state endowment of maternity, and its complete separation from the romantic promiscuity of marriage, that all hope for the future of the race lies.

G. BERNARD SHAW."

Highways and Byways of The Town.

The revolver lay on the desk before him. The long, blue-steel barrel glinted dully in the gas light. The man gazed thoughtfully at the weapon. He picked it up and looked into the cylinder to see if loaded cartrigdes were there, and idly played with the hammer, gently working it back and forth with his thumb.

In his eyes there was a hard, hopeless look. His dark, handsome face was set in an expression of agonized despair. Should he do it? It seemed a cowardly act, and the world would brand it as such if it knew, as it surely would know, for how could a man do what he contenplated doing and not be found out? There was no hope of having his action attributed to other than the right cause.

And what would she think? His features softened and he laid the innocent looking thing of steel back on the desk. Then he rested his elbows on the arms of the chair, slid forward and let his chin rest upon the upturned palms of his hands. In this attitude of deep and silent meditation he lived over again the events of the past. What a fool he had been! How well he remembered the day when he left the old farm house back there in Ohio, and started west to make his fortune. His mother's parting words of advise and her affectionate farewell were still fresh in his mind. That was fifteen years ago. He had been good to the folks at home, occasionally sending them money, and had even paid them two visits before the old home was broken up by the death of father and mother. It was some satisfaction to know that he could not be called to account on that score.

"His mother's parting words of advice and her affectionate farewell were still fresh in his mind."

Anyway, he was glad that his reverses had not come before the break-up. At least they would never know. He wondered why it was that every American should at some time in his life be seized with the fever of speculation, and why in some people the dire affliction could not be controlled by any remedy known to present-day science. He was 28 years old when he first became a victim. At first he had won. The stock market seemed good to him. In reality the first winning was a cruelty, for it had led him on to throw away in reckless speculation what little money he had collected. It didn't take long for his pile to go.

When it was all gone he met the girl. She was the first one he had ever loved. Before that he had always scoffed at marriage, but it wan't long before he was bound to her hand and foot. And he was proud of it, for she was all that any man could desire. When, six months later, he dropped into a $5,000 job he had asked her to be his wife, and she had said yes. How happy he had been. But it was all over now.

He clenched his teeth, savagely grasped the butt of the revolver and half rose to his feet. A great sigh escaped him. Ah, how could he do it? How little he thought, when he handed the hardware man $15 for the weapon, a year ago, that he would reach this stage, and that the purchase would play so important a part in his life.

There was no other way. It must be done. Putting on his hat and coat he rushed wildly into the cold night air and walked rapidly down the street, wondering whether he had better perform the deed on the Bowery, or farthr east on Superior street. He decided in favor of the latter and, selecting a three-ball sign where the people seemed to be the fewest he went in and pawned the gun. It was the only way, for the boys had cleaned him up in a quiet game that afternoon, and he had forgotten to borrow more than his car fare. After they had gone he happened to remember that his wife had told him not to fail to stop in at the cash grocery on the way home and bring up an order for the Sunday dinner, for mother, sister Peg, her husband and their three dear little children were to be there.

* * *

It was the night before the young man's wedding. He was to be a bachelor only twenty-four hours more. After that he would cease to be one of the boys, in the true sense of the word. He hardly knew whether to be glad or sorry. Of course, he was glad, but in a way he was sorry, too, for they were a pretty decent sort, these same boys, and many were the good times he had had with them.

He decided that the last night should be marked by some special feature. This, he concluded, should take the form of a little stag party. He would have the bunch with him, and that meant six fellows. Accordingly the verbal invitations were given, and in response the invited guests gathered one night this month in their bachelor friend's room.

They had a good time. There were things to eat, with liquid refreshments on the side. Songs and stories followed. These were entertaining, and the conversation was interesting, but in spite of these facts one of the friends suggested that, as it would probable be their last opportunity, they should have a game of poker. The remainder of the company were agreeable. The Benedict-to-be expressed an eagerness to join in.

"He hardly knew whether to be glad or sorry."

Whether he played for the pleasure it gave himself and the others, or whether he played for profits, will probably never be known for certain, but the fact remains that he was not making what might be called "good money" in his regular employment, and the fund he had set aside to withstand the expenses of his short honeymoon was not as large as could be desired. In view of all this, it should not be wondered at if he planned to play a close game and get what liittle he could honestly out of it.

The host won the first jackpot. That looked bad, according to the superstition of the professional gamblers, even though it did net the young man $10.50. For some little time it looked as if the evil omen would not work out in the usual manner, and leave the winner of the first pot loser at the end of the game, as is supposed to be the rule, but along about 1:30 a. m. the tide of fortune turned, and the young man began to lose heavily. He held good hands, but whenever he bet them up he found himself topped, and the pile of chips in front of him lowered to a very perceptible degree. This went on for some little time. His face began to take on a grayish hue, despite a liberal absorption of stimulants, but still he played, getting more reckless with each successive loss, in a vain attempt to retrieve his fortunes. But his fortunes didn't retrieve worth a cent, and when the game finally broke up the bachelor, who was soon to be something else, found he was loser just $105, and that explains why a good portion of a certain recent wedding trip of a Duluth young man was made on borrowed capital.

THE WOLVES KILL BUFFALO

Indians Merge Camps For Protection Against the Beasts.

Winnipeg, April 1.—Mail advices which have just reached Edmonton from Fort Resolution, which is a Hudson Bay company post on the southern shore of Great Slave lake, in the vast unexplored district of Mackenzie, say that the winter, though not having been severe, was very steady, the temperature remaining about 30 deg. below low throughout. Wolves became exceedingly plentiful and of alarming boldness, making it necessary for the Indians to consolidate their camps for purposes of protection.

This is in the heart of a wild country, where magnificent specimens of wood buffalo are still found. The wolves attacked herds of these animals with unprecedented ferocity and hundreds were slaughtered at Fort Smith. Full grown bulls were killed and devoured.

The settlers and trappers of the district propose to memorialize the Dominion government to take steps to preserve the wood buffalo which, under the present arrangements, are going the way of the species which roamed over the whole northern continent in days gone by.

Sergeant Field of the mounted police has just made a trip by dog train from Resolution to Pay river, having passed through one of the worst snow storms of the season. Dispatches say that the days are beginning to lengthen, work by sunlight now being possible from 9:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

RUNAWAY BRIDE

Is Favorite Niece of Vice President Fairbanks.

Champaign, Ill., April 1.—"Mansfield" Lulu Mae Fairbanks, favorite niece of Vice President Fairbanks, and W. W. Bride of Washington, D. C., were married in Marlborough, Md., March 14, without the knowledge of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Fairbanks of this place. The young people had intended to keep the marriage secret on account of objections of the bride's parents. After the marriage ceremony, Mrs. Bride came to the Fairbanks home here. When the story leaked out in Washington Sunday, her husband came here to claim her.

INDIANS IN LEGISLATURE

Of Maine But No Vote or Voice In Proceedings.

Augusta, Me., March 31.—Sitting away back in the last row of seats in the house of representatives are two Indians. The older is Peter M. Nelson, aged 49, a member of the Penobscot tribe, the remnants of which, to the number of 365, now occupy an island near Old Town. He is a thickset, muscular man, and, during the session of the legislature, takes long tramps for exercise.

He is skilled in basket making, can paddle a canoe with great speed and is versed in woodcraft. He has been largely engaged in river work, and for nearly a quarter of a century, with few interruptions, was employed on the Argyle boom.

Although firewater is a favorite beverage among Western Indians, Mr. Nelson neither drinks nor smokes, has saved enough money out of his earnings to provide a comfortable home and give his son a college education.

Mr. Nelson is neither a Republican nor a Democrat, as the politics of the paleface go, but is identified with the old party in contra distinction from the other branch of believers in the tribe called the new party. There were candidates for the legislature from both parties, but Mr. Nelson won by a majority of 10 votes.

Peter F. Neptune, who belongs to the Pasamaquoddy tribe, at Princeton, is the other representative in the legislature. He is only 27 years old and is the youngest Indian delegate ever sent to the house. He has bright eyes, is fair of face and full of enthusiasm.

Mr. Neptune is occupied a large part of the year in the woods and is a registered guide for the region along the Grand Lake stream. He represents 464 Passamaquoddy Indians.

The Indian representatives occupy a unique position in the legislature. They are permitted no vote or voice in the presentation or furtherance of measures.

Spring Term

Will begin at the Duluth Business University on Monday, April 3. Location 105-7 W. Superior street.

NEW YORKERS ARE PROBING GAS TRUST.

New York, April 1.—Inquiry into the capitalization of the Consolidated Gas company during the various stages of developments from its incorporation up to the present time, was continued when the legislative committee, which is investigating the lighting conditions in this city, resumed its sitting today. Benjamin A. Whitely, assistant treasurer of the company, was recalled and asked to explain why certain increases in the company's capital stock were made. Whitely explained that the additional capital was used in acquiring several independent gas and electric companies in various parts of the city. It developed; however, that nearly $11,000,000 profits realized on the sale of the stock was not accounted for in the statement.

"What became of the balance?" asked Mr. Hughes, counsel for the committee.

"The statement submitted is what I supposed you wanted," replied the witness: He promised to get another, which would show what disposition was made of the $11,000,000 profits.

FADS ABOLISHED

From the Schools of New York City.

New York, April 1.—The board of education decided to tear all the Maxwell "fads" out of the elementary courses in the New York public schools. The vote was decisive, 22 to 12.

Begining next September, when the reform goes into effect, the period of instruction in the lowest primary grade will be reduced from 5 to 3½ hours a day. The little pupils will not do any more sewing nor undergo those "hygienic" games or exercises. Some drawing will be cut out, some physiology, also some music. Only the plain, old-fashioned essentials are to be taught and without any frills.

A UNIQUE RECORD.

Not Another Like It In Our Broad Republic.

To give positive home testimony in every locality is of itself unanswerable proof of merit; but when we add to this the continued indorsement from people who testified years ago no evidence can be stronger. A Duluth citizen gratefully acknowledges the good received from Doan's Kidney Pills, and when time has tested the cure we find the same hearty indorsement, with added enthusiasm and continued praise. Cases of this kind are plentiful in the work of Doan's Kidney Pills and such a record is unique in the annals of medicine.

J. E. Watts, bricklayer, living at 918 Tenth avenue west, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have no reason to change the opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I expressed in a testimonial given in 1898. At that time it cured me of a bad attack of backache and lameness which made me stop work. I was unable to stoop and the pain was severe just over the kidneys and through the loins. Plasters and other remedies I used brought no real benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me so strongly that I decided to try them. I soon found that they were just the remedy for my case. In a few days the pain left me, and the cure has been permanent."

A LIVELY GALE

April Makes Strenuous Entrance—Wind At Thirty Miles.

The 'Phone Lines Down and Street Cars Badly Delayed.

April made its bow to Duluth with a 30-mile gale and made most Duluthians bow in return. During last night Weather Forecaster Richardson says the gale probably reached 36-miles an hour, but 30-miles is about the general amount of wind the town has been getting. Duluth seems to be the central point of the storm, although Northern Minnesota in general and Winnipeg are probably getting a ducking and blowing and the storm extends throughout the Middle West, from the Dakotas down to Texas, but not so severely as here. This end of Lake Superior and the northern end of Lake Michigan are bearing the brunt of the blow. St. Paul seems to have been left out of the deal, for it was only partly clouded there this morning and now there is sunshine.

Thirty seems to have been the unlucky number of the storm. The wind reached 30-miles an hour, the temperature is 30, and the precipitation of rain and sleet amounts to .30 of an inch. It is generally hoped that Duluth will see "30" on the storm within a few hours.

Last night and this morning the storm hindered traffic and telephone communication, and this morning a number of wires are down. On Park Point the wires of the Duluth Telephone company, and the poles, too, have gotten across the street car tracks, from the Park Point school to the canal; enough to stop the cars and make people walk that distance, although the telephone company people declared that the poles have "only sagged a little."

The Zenith Telephone company reports that the principal trouble with its wires was at Woodland, where a number of them are down and communication stopped. The line crews of both companies are busy at work this morning straightening out tangles and replacing broken wires.

The street railway company had a good deal of hardship last night and this morning. A number of cars were delayed and it is reported that cars on grades had a great deal of difficulty because of the rain and sleet freezing to the wires and making trolley work almost impossible. One Lakeside car last night, in climbing the hill, absolutely refused to run and the conductor and motorman had to take turns in holding the trolley pole to the wire in order to furnish power. When one man would become exhausted the other would take his place and vice versa.

One car, coming over from Superior, it is claimed, took over two hours to reach Duluth, the greatest difficulty experienced being in climbing the approaches to the interstate bridge and to the Garfield avenue viaduct, where the trolley persistently came off the wire. Many other delays were reported and some happened this morning, but as the rainfall had practically ceased, the wires were soon put in condition.

Railway delays were experienced, but were not very serious.

Mr. Richardson says that the worst of the storm is over, although it will continue pretty strongly today, and tomorrow there will be some remainder of it with a northeast wind still blowing. That, he thinks, will be the finish and good weather may be expected again.

If the storm lets up, the steamer Bon Ami will make her second trip of the season to Grand Marais. The first trip to the south shore will be made next week, the Bon Ami going to Port Wing.

WIXUM IN SOUBRETTEROW

By Jasper Barnett Cowdin.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Mr. Wixum was on his way to the Helsse Luft club, and, whatever might have been his bibulous anticipations, at the moment he was as sober as a thousand-year-old tortoise. He was also in his right mind, which may seem an unnecessary remark at first blush—but wait.

"Hello, there, Corkindale," called a strange voice, as Wixum turned the corner into Broadway. "Don't you know that Trixie has been looking for you for over a week? What's up, old man, that you keep away from your lodgings?"

Wixum turned a suspicious glance on the stranger who had addressed him with such offensive familiarity. He was a large man, very florid, and a good type of the Tenderloin rounder. He was accompanied by a smaller man, also very florid, and a close miniature of the other as to fashionable clothes and general contour.

"Excuse me, sir; you have made a mistake," said Wixum gravely, scenting a bunco game of some sort. "My name is Hawkins."

Wixum tried to proceed, but the big man blocked his way.

"Oh, I say," he persisted, "come in and have a cigar on that—" pointing to a tobacconist's. And as he turned to his associate, Wixum caught the whispered remark, "Run and get Trixie; hurry up."

"Let me pass!" cried Wixum hotly. It was no use, and he turned to the policeman standing at the curb. "See here officer; this man is up to some game with me; I want him arrested."

"This man, sir," explained the other, "has lost his identity. His memory is a blank, and he has been missing from his home more than a week. He lives over in Soubrette Row, and his name is Corkindale."

"Not a bit of! My name is Wixum—George Wixum."

"Why, I just heard you tell him your name was Hawkins, grinned the bluecoat.

"So I did, but that—that was merely a bluff," floundered the victim. "I know who I am all right."

"His wife will be here in a few moments to take him away," said the big man to the officer.

"I'll knock down the first one who lays a hand on me," exclaimed Wixum.

"Here, now, no disturbance, or I'll run yez all in," threaded the arm of the law.

There was a distant odor of burning rubber as first one pedestrian, then another, paused, until a small crowd had collected.

The big man's pal was seen returning across the street, a dainty little blonde following hastily in his wake. The lifting of her white embroideries displayed the real thing in black silk hosiery, also the highest and tiniest of French heels. Excitedly elbowing her way, she reached the side of Wixum, enveloping him in a fragrance of violets. He knew instinctively that this was "Trixie."

"Corky, dear! What in the world—surely you haven't forgotten? Don't look at your own Trixie like that! Heavens! His memory is a blank—oh!"

They were real, warm, sweet, womanly tears that fell on Wixum's wrist, and they moved him strangely.

"You are mistaken, little girl," he said gently. "I am an entirely different person from what you imagine. I have never seen you before." And he felt like adding, "I have lost something by it."

The appealing blue eyes of Trixie were still searching his face. Her own was pretty enough to be lithographed on an insurance calendar. "Corky, love, try and remember; you haven't forgotten our song and dance turn on the vaudeville circuit, and Wellington's offer. I fear he will go on the road without us now. You have been away so long!"

"Madame, we will go to a telephone, and I will prove to you that I am not your husband, but George Wixum."

"Yes, you are, and no you're not!" laughed the witching little mouth bubbling over with unkissed dentistry. "Anyhow, you're the same dear old Corky."

"All right! all right! Then Corky it is," surrendered Wixum, desperately. If it was his fate to be petted, loved and caressed by this little dear for the mere trifle of changing his name—pshaw! change it.

"Come, youse can't block this sidewalk no longer," ordered the brass buttons. "You'll have to move on, thawkins Wixum Corky, and fix up your quarrel in the house somewhere."

"I will go with them peaceably if you will consent to come along and see that I am protected," said Wixum.

"All right; push ahead," assented the voice behind the club.

As the quartet moved down the gaslit thoroughfare, followed by the policeman and a small rabble, Trixie, her tiny bediamonded hand clinging trustfully to Wixum's arm, confidingly unveiled some of their closest marital intimacies, in the vague hope that her husband's lapsed memory would catch on at some pivotal incident and bring him back to himself.

They soon reached the block of plain brownstone houses known throughout the city by the unsavory title of Soubrette Row.

"I'll hang around outside for a few minutes," said the copper to Wixum reassuringly, as they paused in the middle of the block.

The little group mounted the front steps and conducted their charge to a prettily arranged and cozy room on the second floor, where Wixum seated himself in a Morris chair beside the mantel.

"Has the doctor been here, Marie?" asked Trixie, as the maid brought in a tray and some glasses.

"No, ma'am; but he told Mr. Teale down stairs over the telephone that he might be here late."

"Is there a telephone in the house?" inquired Wixum with sudden interest.

"Why, yes, dear; can't you remember?" soothingly coaxed Trixie. "Surely you haven't forgotten Mr. Teale, the dramatic agent on the first floor."

Wixum started to rise from his seat, but Trixie dropped her pluump little figure into his lap, throwing her arms about his neck, and rubbing her pursed lips, pussy-wise, along his mustache.

After all, why should not Wixum enjoy himself? Had he not sought to be honcrable, and they would have none of it? With such a dainty one hundred and twenty pounds of femininity on his knees, he decided to let results take care of themselves for a time, and settled himself contentedly for a "long run."

The presence of two other men in the apartment did not seem to abash Trixie in the least. While fondling Wixum she kept up a running fire of repartee with the two florids, as they helped themselves to the cigars on the mantel. The little florid filling four of the glasses, offered a toast on the return of the prodigal.

Wixum was still cautious and refused to taste his wine. It was the first time in his life that he had declined a drink.

After a song or two, and a ripple of the fingers across the pianoforte, "Harry" and "Roy" excused themselves and said good-night, laughing merrily as they went.

Scarcely had the front door closed upon them and the house become quiet, ere the shuffle of feet was heard again in the hall, mingled with uproarious laughter.

"Well, that's the limit!" bellowed "Harry."

"The richest thing yet!" coincided "Roy."

"Where is he—upstairs?" asked a voice new to Wixum.

"It's the doctor," said Trixie, running to the door.

There was a boisterous entree of four men into Wixum's little paradise; two of them had only just vacated it, the third bore every mark of the medical profession, and the fourth—ye gods!—was the exact counterpart of Wixum, and therefore the original Corkindale. They were as like as two clothespins holding up a napkin in the back yard.

"I found him in Yonkers," began the doctor. "A clot on the brain from overwork, or worry—aphisia, you know; I—"

Mrs. Corkindale detected a difference in their watch fobs.

"Oh, you wretch! Why didn't you tell me?" shrieked Trixie, making for Wixum with blazing eyes, but before she could reach him she reeled about and sank fainting in the doctor's arms.

Wixum lost no time in making his escape, unimpeded by the other men. When he reached the street the policeman was nowhere in sight, but he did not mind. For once in his life he reached home on club night at an early hour.

MICHIGAN WINS.

Wins Third in Series of Debates With Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., April 1.—Michigan's debators, opposing a primary election system for the nomination of state, city and county elective officers and of state and national legislatures, won from Wisconsin debators, supporting the system last night. The decision was 2 to 1 for Michigan. This was the third of a series of debates and the victory last night gives Michigan the series. Michigan was represented by A. J. Kenny of Duluth, J. F. Burkey of Ohio and J. A. Rippell of La Porte, Iowa, while Ira B. Cross of Madison, Max Loeb of Appleton and R. C. Allen of Dayton, Wisconsin, debated for Wisconsin.

Caracas, April 1.—President Arnal of the highest court yesterday decided that the French Cable company has forfeited its contract by failure to fulfill its terms and he decided against the government in the action for damages resulting from the company's acts. Five days are allowed the company to appeal for a reconsideration by the entire court, whose decision will be final.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

An Appeal to Reason—

Piano Buyers!

Guided By Permanency and Reliability.

There is always a good reason for the permanency of institutions, works of art, etc., etc.

Dig deeply into the truths which live on and on, becoming more convincing every day, and you will find their appeal to reason indelibly stamps them as valuable and permanent.

THE KIMBALL PIANO

Has long since become a permanent institution. Why? Because back of it is a conscientious purpose to produce the best possible piano value at minimum cost to purchasers—the perfection of scale, the sweet melodious tone, retaining its good quality longer than any other piano on the market. The Kimball Piano is without a peer in permanent popularity, not only with the masses, but it is appreciated and endorsed by the world's greatest pianists, musical instructors and vocalists.

Mr. Rudolph Ganz and the Kimball Piano.

MR. GANZ SAYS: "I have seldom taken so much pleasure with any instrument as with the KIMBALL PIANO. The action is everything that could be desired. It is absolutely even and repeats rapidly, and the volume of tone is especially large and round in both registers. Its singing tone is beautiful in all the graduations from pianissimo to fortissimo."

RUN TRAINS MAY 1

Summer Extras Between Duluth and Fond du Lac.

Northern Pacific Will Provide Accommodations For Campers.

The Northern Pacific railroad will inaugurate its summer service between Duluth and Fond du Lac May 1. The trains will run on practically the same schedule as last year. The first to leave this city will be a passenger train at 6:50 a. m. At 9:05 a. m. the mixed freight now in operation between the two points will leave as usual, and at 5:30 o'clock in the evening there will be another passenger train start up the river.

Returning, there will be a train arriving in Duluth at 8:20 a. m. and 7 p. m., with the mixed freight arriving some time in the afternoon. The service proved to be quite popular last year, and resulted in a largely increased number of campers and summer residents at Fond du Lac, Spirit Lake and New Duluth. The time of the trains is so arranged that business men may make their homes in one of the St. Louis river towns during the warm months and still attend to their business in the city, arriving here in the morning in time to go to work and leaving late in the afternoon, after the close of regular business hours.

It is believed that patronage accorded the trains this year will be even greater than during last season, because of the fact that the announcement of the inauguration of the service is made a month before the trains will be put on, leaving the people plenty of time to make their plans for the summer and take the Fond du Lac service into consideration. In 1904 the matter of the extra trains was left very much in doubt until late in the spring, so that the general public was not aware of the plans of the railroad company until two days before the extras started running. When the announcement came many who would otherwise have gone to Fond du Lac had made other plans for the summer, and therefore did not take advantage of the service.

Each year Fond du Lac is becoming more popular as a summer resort. It is far enough from the lake to escape the disagreeable northeast winds, and has many other features to commend it to the camper. Spirit Lake also comes in for a good share of summer campers, for people stopping there have the same train accommodations as Fond du Lac.

ORE ARRIVES AT ALLOUEZ

About 100 car loads of ore arrived at the Great Northern docks at Allouez today. Within a week, according to the expectations of the company, the ore season will be well under way, and all the equipment will be taxed to the utmost in handling the business.

Increasing quantities of ore are being hauled by the Duluth & Iron Range each day, and work on the local Messaba docks and the Two Harbors docks will be in full swing next week. All three of the roads are in readiness to handle a big business this season.

SCRIP ELY LAKE LANDS

Six men offered Valentine scrip on lands around Ely lake at the land office today. The land they offered the scrip on is part of that which has been in dispute in the court for a long time and is not yet settled. Those who filed scrip today are Walter S. Douglas, William S. Douglas, Ephriam A. Trenholm, Granville A. Burns, Michael Cronin and Patrick Foley. The scrip was some of that issued to Thomas B. Valentine by special act of congress April 5, 1872, and is supposed to be placed on unsurveyed lands.

The men mentioned claim that in 1892 and since they have been, at various times, in possession of the lands on which they are filing scrip, as settlers. Others are also in similar possession and altogether the matter of the Ely lake land is in a beautiful legal tangle, and in fact is in such a condition that few, if any, land attorneys or officials know exactly what status it is in.

It is known that the lands is dispute are valuable for the iron deposits they contain and that is why there is such a strenuous effort to secure them.

ORDERLY CITY

With the exception of one case of manslaughter, the city was almost entirely free of serious crime during the month of March, according to the monthly report of the police department.

There was a larger number of arrests than usual, owing to the return of the woodsmen with their winter's wages, but very few of them were for anything more serious than drunkenness or disorderly conduct.

Out of the total of 288 arrests for the month, 166 of them were for drunkenness, thirty for vagrancy, twenty for disorderly conduct, and twenty-two for gambling.

Larceny caused the arrest of twenty-seven, five of whom were charged with grand larceny, and the others with petty larceny.

The other arrests were for violating the different city ordinances, but none of the more serious crimes such as arson, forgery, assault in the first degree, murder or manslaughter in the first degree represented.

Out of the 288 persons arrested, only fifty-three were married, and the others single. Thirty-nine of the prisoners were females and 249 males.

Only four prisoners were held to the grand jury during the month, and the cases of all of the others were disposed of in the municipal court. Twenty-nine forfeited their bail, sixty-five were given a suspended sentence, fifty-six were given short terms in the county jail, and thirty-three paid fines. Twenty of the prisoners were informed that their presence in the city was not desirable and were given a suspended sentence if they would leave town. Ten were discharged and the cases against eight were dismissed by the court.

The one serious offense charged, that of manslaughter in the second degree, was the case against John Beverley Jones, the boy who is on trial this afternoon for killing his little playmate, Peter Thompson, by the accidental discharge of a gun.

Gets Stone Contract.

W. V. Grubbs of this city, Northwestern agent for the Portage Entry Quarries company, has received word that the company has been awarded the contract to furnish the stone for the new Grant county courthouse, at Elbow Lake, Minn., costing about $70,000. Port Wing brownstone will be used and the quarries at Port Wing, Wis., will be started immediately to get out the supply. The stone is to be cut here in Duluth at the works of William Penn & Co.

HUTCHINSON TO SAIL.

It was learned at the customs office today that the steamer J. T. Hutchinson, S. B. Massey, master, will leave Duluth for Buffalo with grain April 5 or 6. The Hutchinson has been stored with grain all winter and is the only vessel lying here which has been used for storage. It was generally expected that she would be the first to go out. Orders for her sailing were issued today and the captain reported to the port collector.

DR. MITCHELL

IS MAKING MIRACULOUS CURES.

He Says No Disease Can Resist This Magnetic Power.

It has always been the policy of Dr. Mitchell, the successful healer, as scores of reputable business men will testify, to conduct his institute of magnetic healing on lines of honesty. Under this policy his business has grown by leaps and bounds during the past seven years. A very large percentage of his practice are those sent to him by persons who have been cured. At his institute all diseases are treated successfully and no attempt is made to cure incurable cases. But he has a record of thousands of absolute cures to his credit that prove beyond a doubt that his treatment is what he claims it to be. Dr. Mitchell has such strong magnetic power that he is able to break up congestions and cure most obstinate chronic cases, sometimes only with a single treatment. He takes no incurable cases, only such cases as he believes will speedily give way to his wonderful healing power. His cure for blood poison and kindred diseases is sure and swift. He completely eradicates the disease from the blood without the use of poisonous drugs. His method of treatment for weak manhood is the most advanced known. Stricture, inflammation of the bladder, kidneys, and all chronic diseases are cured by this great healer. Dr. Mitchell's Institute of Magnetic Healing is the only one in the Northwest. Persons desiring consultation or advice are invited to call or write. His magnetic treatment will positively cure you if he says so. His advice is free. Office, 17 East Superior street.

BOY IS ON TRIAL

Preliminary Hearing of Beverley Jones Now In Progress.

Witnesses Tell of Accidental Shooting of Peter Thompson.

The preliminary hearing of Beverley Jones, the 14-year-old Lakeside boy on the charge of manslaughter in the second degree, is in progress this afternoon before Judge Windom in the municipal court.

The boy is accused of having been responsible for the death of Peter Thompson by the careless handling of a gun, last Saturday afternoon. He is defended by C. O. Baldwin, while County Attorney McClintock has charge of the prosecution.

Coroner McCuen, the state's first witness, was placed on the stand shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. He told of being called to view the body of the dead boy, and stated that death was caused by a bullet wound. The bullet, according to his testimony, entered the boy's back just above the right kidney, and lssued from his breast, after passing through the heart.

The next witness was Einer Olson, one of the men who took the boy from the platform in the tree where he fell after being shot. Mr. Olson is employed by the city, and was working on the street about two blocks away from the scene of the shooting when it occurred. He testified that he heard the screams of the boy and the shot, and that he suspected that something was wrong. He says that he thought one of the boys might be scaring somebody with his gun, so he walked up to where the screams came from. When he got there he found Mrs. Thompson, and saw the body of the boy up in the tree. He says he tried to get up to it, but found he could not reach it, and left to get a ladder. He secured one from the nearest house, and returning, took the body down from the platform.

Mr. Baldwin cross-examined him closely, and the witness, who was evidently badly frightened from his unaccustomed position in the witness stand, became somewhat confused, but his story was unshaken.

Edward Hagen, who also assisted in getting the body out of the tree was called to the stand at the close of Olson's testimony. He was still being examined by the county attorney at 2:50 p. m.

The hearing will probably consume the entire afternoon session of court. The state has still several witnesses to put on the stand, among them being the Dahlman girl who claims the boys pointed the gun at her, the mother of the dead boy, the little Olson boy, who was playing with Thompson, and Officer Bartlett of the police department.

It is not thought likely that Mr. Baldwin will put on any witnesses for the defense, unless he believes he can so shake the state's case as to secure a dismissal. The principal witnesses for the defense will probably be kept for the hearing before the district court, in case the boy should be found over and indicted by the grand jury.

The boy is accompanied in court by his father and mother. He is plainly affected by the proceedings, but maintains his self-possession well.

The gun and the bloody shirt of the victim were brought into the court room as evidence.

The maximum penalty which can be inflicted on the boy, even should he be convicted by the district court, is confinement in the state training school at Red Wing until he is 21 years of age, or until he is released on parole.

The new and the true, is nature's most natural remedy, improved by science to a pleasant, permanent, positive cure for coughs, colds and all inflamed surfaces of the Lungs and Bronchial Tubes. The sore, weary, cough-worn Lungs are exhilirated; the microbe-bearing mucus is cut out; the cause of that tickling is removed, and the inflamed membranes are healed and soothed so that there is no inclination to cough.

Over 3,000,000 Bottles Sold During 1903.

All of this vast number were sold on a positive guarantee, and it speaks volumes for the merit of this remedy that only five dissatisfied customers developed—or one out of every 600,000 bottles sold.

COURT HAS NOT JURISDICTION

In the case of Pearl H. Smith against Mabel Evans, George A. Flinn, I. C. Patterson, Coryate S. Wilson, B. E. Baker and S. G. Iverson, state auditor, in a dispute over a mining lease on state lands, a motion has been filed in United States district court by E. T. Young as attorney for the state auditor, in which the court is asked to have service on him vacated for the following reasons:

First—That it appears that said pretended cause of action is as to him as state auditor in truth a suit in equity brought by a private citizen against the State of Minnesota and an attempt to have the rights and proprietary interests of said state judicially determined without its consent. Therefore its institution and persecution is in violation of the eleventh amendment to the constitution of the United States.

Second—That the court has no jurisdiction in the matter for the reason that the matter is not of controversy between citizens of different states or arising under or dependent on the construction of the constitution of the United States, nor does it involve claim to grant of land of different states.

Struck By Foreman.

Joseph Zubrinich, an Austrian, was taken to St. Mary's hospital yesterday as the result of injuries received, it is alleged, at the hands of a foreman in the employ of Guthrie & Co., on the Great Northern double track work beyond the state line. It is claimed that last Tuesday the man and foreman had a disagreement at Hussen, and that the latter struck the laborer several times over the head with a rock, severely cutting and bruising him. The foreman was arrested, and when he appeared in court at Carlton was fined $5 and costs.

EPIDEMIC INCREASES.

Albany, N. Y., April 1.—The February report of the state board of health shows that cerebro spinal meningitis is on the increase. The disease is reported in sporadic form from many places, but it is chiefly prevalent in New York city, where 186 deaths occurred during the month against 130 in January and 95 in December.

The Difference Between Credit and Borrowing!

Even the richest men and the most successful business houses find it necessary at times, to borrow large quantities of money from the bank. And they pay it back in large or small quantities. You consider it a dignified business proposition, don't you? Why, then, isn't it just as dignified a transaction when a wage-earner gets all the Furniture he needs AT ONCE and pays for it AS HE CAN? There's not the slightest particle of doubt about the dignity of it!

But do you see the difference between borrowing from a bank and buying furniture on installment credit? Here it is and it is important to every wage-earner—every salaried man: The man who borrows from the bank has to pay interest on it. The bank isn't in business for fun, and, very naturally, it demands pay for the use of its money. We are not in business for fun, either. But we don't charge one penny for allowing you the accommodation of paying for your furniture in small installments. We don't try to run our business on the small payment which we ask any ONE of you to pay. But we rely on the BULK of the small payments that are coming in daily from our thousands of customers. That is why we say it is a straight, business proposition for us to give you every possible accommodation in the matter of installment credit. And yet, we guarantee our regular prices, quality for quality considered, LOWER than ANY store in the city, and if after purchasing here, you find the article we sold you was regularly selling in ANY STORE in this city on the day of your purchase for any less than our price, we will, without question, REFUND the difference to you in CASH. We will sell you ONE piece, or will furnish your home complete, and you can pay for same on legitimate and convenient easy payments.

THE GRAIN MARKETS

Wheat Started Out Lower and Closed With Decline.

Weakness of May In Northwest Markets Was Feature.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 1.—The feature of the wheat market today was the weakness of the May option in the Northwestern markets. In Duluth there was a decline of 2⅛c, and in Minneapolis of 1⅝c. In Chicago the option closed without change and in New York ¼c lower. The July in Duluth fell ⅜c, in Minneapolis 1⅝-1¾c, in Chicago ⅜c and in New York 1c. The May seemed to be without support in the Northwestern markets while in Chicago it was not allowed to get away.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d lower, London unchanged, Paris ⅜c lower, and Berlin ⅜c lower.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 216,415 bus this week and the decrease in the stock of contract wheat was 55,071 bus.

Car receipts at Duluth were 9 against 21 last year, and at Minneapolis 187 against 402 for two days last year, making a total for the Northwest of 196 against 423 last year. Chicago received 18 against 21 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 312,706 bus, last year 643,003 bus for two days. Shipments 195,021 bus, last year 567,675 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 69,574 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged. In the Chicago market May corn closed ¼-⅜c lower. May oats closed ⅛c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 587,948 bus, last year 335,919 bus. Shipments 952,019 bus, last year 530,462 bus. Clearances were 979,014 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was very dull. The May option was very weak, receiving little or no support. It opened 5c lower at $1.05⅝ and fell steadily to $1.03⅜ at 11 o'clock. It rallied to $1.03⅞ at 11:30 and closed at $1.03⅝, a loss for the day of 2¼c. The July option only lost ⅞c, closing at $1.01⅜. The September option closed ⅝c lower at 84⅝c.

Cash wheat showed no change in the basis on which it sold. No. 1 northern bringing 1c under May.

Flax was dull. The feature was the October option which opened at $1.26 and sold up to $1.28 at which price it closed. The May option closed ¾c lower at $1.37½.

Oats advanced ¼c.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat to arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.02⅝. On track—No. 1 northern, $1.02⅝; No. 2 northern, 98⅝c-$1.00¼. Durum on track—No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 89c; May, $1.00⅜; July, $1.01⅜; Sept., 88⅝c. Flax on track $1.28 to arrive, $1.37½; May, $1.37½; Oct., $1.28. Oats to arrive, 28¾c; on track, 28⅞c. Rye to arrive, 77c; on track, 77c. Barley, feed, 33@37c; malting, 37@44c.

Cars inspected: Wheat 9, last year 21; oats 57, barley 1, flax 8, last year 38.

Receipts: Wheat, 7,976; oats, 39,291; barley, 858; rye, 650; flax, 8,193.

Shipments: Wheat, 3,733; barley, 5,308; flax, 2129.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bearish Sentiment Presented In the Wheat Pit.

Chicago, April 1.—Lower prices at Liverpool and continued excellent weather in the United States created bearish sentiment in the wheat market here today. Pit traders sold moderately, offerings being taken by commission houses. Trading was of small volume. July opened 1c to 3c lower at 88c to 88¾c. After declining to 87⅝@87¾c, the price steadied around 88¼@¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 214 cars against 223 cars last week and 470 cars a year ago.

Influenced by extreme weakness in the Northwest the market here sold off sharply later in the day, July declining to 87¼c. Trading continued light the entire day. Part of the loss wa regained on covering by shorts, but the close was weak, with July down ¾c at 87⅝c.

A firm tone prevailed in the corn market as the result of a fair demand from shorts. May opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 47⅛c to 47⅜c and sold up to 47½c. Local receipts were 212 cars, with one of contract grade.

The market declined with wheat, May selling off to 46⅝@47c. At the close May was down 1@⅛c at 47c.

Influenced by the firmness of corn, prices in the oats market showed slight gains. Trading, however, was quiet. May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 29⅜@29½c and sold up to 29¾c. Local receipts were 108 cars.

Owing to the moderate advance in the price of live hogs, the provision market had a firm undertone. May pork was up 2½@5c at $12.75. Lard was a shade higher at $7.15. Ribs were unchanged at $6.97½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.13⅜; July, 87⅝c; September, 83¼c. Corn—April, 46¼c; May, 47c; July, 47½@47⅝c; September, 47⅝@47¾c. Oats—April, 28⅝c; May, 29⅛c; July, 29⅜@29½c; September, 28¾c. Pork—May, $12.72½; July, $12.92½. Lard—April, $7.05; May, $7.12½@7.15; July, $7.30; September, $7.45. Ribs—May, $6.97½@7.00; July, $7.17½@7.20; September, $7.35; October, $7.40. Rye—April, 78½c; May, 78¼c; September, 66c. Flax—Cash, northwestern, $1.37; southwestern, $1.24; April, $1.24; May, $1.24. Timothy—April, $2.85; September, $3.15. Clover—April, $12.75. Barley—Cash, 40@46c. Cash, wheat—No. 2 red, $1.14@1.15; No. 3 red, $1.03@1.12; No. 2 hard, $1.12@1.15; No. 2 hard, $1.09@1.12; No. 1 northern, $1.14@1.15; No. 2 northern, $1.10@1.12; No. 3 spring, $1.01@1.10. Corn—No. 2, 46¼@47c; No. 3, 46¼@46½c. Oats—No. 2, 30c; No. 3, 33½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The present remarkable spell of early spring weather causes added strength to the bear side day by day and market is allowed but a feeble rally at best when new selling is in evidence. Both of the deferred futures are beginning to show some little resistance to selling pressure. September wheat is now virtually on an export basis, with the crop far from being made, and much of it not yet in the ground. It still seems to us unreasonable to expect present favorable conditions to prevail until maturity of winter crop. Selling has been altogether on sentiment. A sudden change would do wonders in shaping sentiment in the other direction and would result in a sharp rally.

Corn—Market showed much strength in early dealings. Trade was not on a large scale. It is confidently expected corn receipts are to show very much smaller. This factor if verified would stimulate the cash market and result in a higher speculative one. Corn gave every indication of a desire to do better today and would likely have done so, but for the weak feeling in wheat. This market easily responds to moderate buying demand. All things considered it still seems to promise a good trading market.

Oats—Trade is on a much smaller scale than in recent sessions. We continue to feel that sustained improvement must come through an improved shipping demand which at the moment is missing.

Provisions—Trade throughout the session was extremely quiet and aside from support showed no significance. There is nothing in the situation at all alarming to the large short interest. The bears have met with much success and are not easily frightened. Between them and support by the packers market will likely be a safe scalp.

* * *

Chicago Record-Herald: Tips to buy May wheat are being freely circulated by the bull houses and credited to Gates' interests. The action of the market for May of late shows that it is in the strongest of hands, and there is every indication that there is to be a move made by the Gates' interests in the very early future. It has become more difficult to trade in May and the bears are very nervous. Margins are being increased and commission houses are exacting 10c to 20c a bushel margin for new trades, and some are refusing to take any. One Chicago operator who is short a large line in Milwaukee with a profit of 5 cents, was called for 20c yesterday and all the Milwaukee houses called their customers 10 per cent. The Gates' interests have as much wheat as at any time, 18,000,000 bushels in Chicago, and a much large holding in other markets than previously. They are now at a point where they are likely to put the screws on the shorts any day. This acton is necessary, as the shorts refuse to come in, and the bulls cannot get out otherwise unless they want to break the market. Their holdings in New York are over 6,000,000 bushels, purchases of 300,000 bushels being made Thursday. There are no large individual lines out so far as known that exceed 500,000 bushels.

* * *

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—At the opening the market was unchanged with sentiment moderately bullish on the theory that selling during the week had been overdone. There was enough long wheat offered for sale in evening up trades over Sunday to force prices sharply lower with only a fractional reaction at the close. The Commercial West says: "Prices have been depressed to a good crop basis. To assume that a big crop is certain would be assuming too much. Likewise to continue to hammer prices until they turn for the worse in crop prospects some would be inclining to conservatism to say the least." It would seem that the question of supply and demand must soon become a strong factor. One of the leading millers is of the opinion that no matter how large the visible supply, there is going to be a chortage of good milling wheat, even should the mills run out half the time. Wheat is becoming a healthier market for bulls to trade in. It is heavily short at prices 7c or 8c under the average price paid for the crop. In Chicago May lines were added to and are now as large as any time before with more wheat bought in outside markets. We have had all the information possible to reduce the price of wheat, and any change is sure to be in favor of improvement, which would be all the more pronounced on account of the short lines that might be covered until we would regard this as a safe place to buy on, and think purchases made now should be held for a substantial advance.

* * *

Rankin, Chicago: It is very easy to buy wheat and when the shorts get in and get long as they did yesterday you can shut your eyes and sell it, the buying power being limited to the pit traders as no one outside will buy it with the present crop conditions all over the country as they are today.

REMARKS.

Rain fell over the Minneapolis, Chicago and Des Moines districts. Temperatures are generally moderate for the season.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

T. indicates inappreciable rainfall. °For yesterday. †For 24 hours ending 8 a. m., 75th meridian time.

Note—The average maximum temperatures and the average rainfall are made up at each center from the actual number of reports received. The "state of weather" is that prevailing at time of observation.

Continues to Improve.

Amos Shephard continues to show improvement, and at noon today had made considerable progress from yesterday. It is still much too early to say that he has passed the danger point, but strong hopes are entertained that he will recover.

SPRAY THE THROAT

As a Preventive of Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis.

Chicago, April 1.—A preventative of cerebro spinal meningitis, "spotted fever," the dread plague which is ravaging New York and Eastern cities, and from which at least one death, that of an 8-year-old girl, occurred in Chicago yesterday, has been suggested by Dr. W. J. Class of the city health department. An atomizer, a little carbolic acid and water are the safeguards.

"The disease is contracted through the throat," said Dr. Class. "While the most reliable preventative consists in staying away from infected places, and in perfect cleanliness, the disinfection of the air passages should help to ward off the diseases. Use an atomizer and spray the nasal passages and throat with water containing 1 per cent of carbolic acid. The disease is not as contagious as scarlet fever. It begins with a severe headache and vomiting. I do not believe that the disease will become dangerous in Chicago."

MARCONIS ARRIVE.

New York, April 1.—William Marconi and Mrs. Marconi arrived here today on the steamer Campania from Liverpool. Mrs. Marconi was the honorable Beatrice O'Brien, fifth daughter of Lady Ilchiquin. The marriage took place in London on March 17.

SIGNALS FROM MOUNT HOOD TO PORTLAND FAIR.

Portland, Ore., April 1.—From the summit of Mount Hood, a distance of sixty miles, communication will be established with the Lewis and Clark exposition grounds. At each of these two points detachments from the United States signal corps service will be stationed and each day and night communications will be exchanged by means of heliographs, flash signals and other methods known to the skilled signal soldier.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Market Was Strong and Active and Closed Higher.

Bank Statement Better Than Expected—Money Scare Ended.

New York, April 1.—Opening prices of stocks were higher but the Harriman stocks and the Pennsylvania were exceptions and showed slight declines. Biscuit rose 1¼ and Lead ¾. Changes otherwise were limited to small fractions.

Industrial stocks, many of which have been mentioned in reputed deals, were the features of the market. Not much interest was manifested in railroads and the tone there was iregular. Very large orders were in the market for Lead, Biscuit and People's Gas. The advance in New York Central stiffened the tone of principal gains were Rubber Goods preferred 4¾, Biscuit 2½, People's Gas 2 and Smelting, Virginia-Iron, Twin City Rapid Transit, Electric Storage Battery, Detroit United Railway, the Lead stocks, Rubber Goods, New York Central, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, Colorado & Southern and Fort Worth & Denver City Stamped 1 to 1½. Toledo, St. Louis & Western was of a point and Consolidated Gas 2.

The only movements to note weref in specialities except for advances of 1 to 2 points in a number of Colorado railroads and D. & H. Biscuit rose 3¼. Twin City Rapid Transit 3¼ and the Pressed Steel car stocks, Leather preferred, Realty, the Paper stocks and Lead preferred a point or more. Enameling and Smelting gained 2 and United States Reduction preferred 4. Prices recovered from a slight sagging tendency upon the unexpected strength of the bank statement. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred and Toledo railways fell 1¼. The closing was fairly steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market closed strong. The bank statement coming better than expected added to the bull courage as did also the flattening out of the money scare. Pools were again quite active in their specialties, the general market while not showing any great amount of snap, was nevertheless strong throughout the session. The railroad list continues to be bought on the splendid crop prospects. The market acts well and seems as if it wanted to do still better.

* * *

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market today was strong and active and many of the special issues were taken hold of. There was more talk of Lead merger and the stock advanced. The bank statement was a good one and before the close there was good buying. We look for an active market next week, and as the talk is very bullish and traders are inclined that way it looks as if we would have higher prices. However, it is a market to be very cautious in and profits on bulges are safe.

* * *

Dick Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market has been quite strong today and rather active. There was considerable selling particularly in the railroads but offerings were well absorbed. The best prices were made in the late trading and the closing was a strong one. The bank statment proved little better than expected. Sharp advances were scored by such specialties as Rubber, Smelter, People's Gas, Lead, etc.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 1.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 2@6 points in response to lower cables, good weather and realizing by recent longs for over the week end. Offerings were absorbed by covering of shorts who had sold on the high points of last week, and a little support from Wall street bulls, but orders were so well divided that prices fluctuated within a range of about 3 points and showed no special tendency. After the first few minutes, the market was very quiet.

Cotton futures closed steady: April, 7.60; May, 7.74; June, 7.59; July, 7.61; Aug., 7.63; Sept., 7.67; Oct., 7.71; Nov., 7.74; Dec., 7.77; Jan., 7.70. Spot, dull; middling uplands, 8.15; middling gulf, 8.40. Sales none.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 1.—Close: Money on call, nominal; no loans; time loans, firm; 60 days and 90 days, 3½ per cent; 6 months, 3½@3¾ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4 per cent; Sterling exchange, steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.35@4.85 for demand and at $4.84.10@4.84.15 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.84½@4.85 and $4.86½@4.87, commercial bills, $4.83¼@4¾. Bar silver, 55¾c; Mexican dollars, 43c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, fregular.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report an active market. Farm mares sold in large quantities. Drafters and business horses also had a good disposal. Values—

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Influenced by the strength in Amalgamated the entire copper market looked better today although fluctuations were small and transactions few. The same people who have been buying Utah have raised their bid to 42¾ and are taking all stock offered at the price. An attempt seems to have been mad to keep th price of Copper Range down but the demand is good and the stock is gradually rising. Osceola seems to be in a position to rise.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, April 1.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $141,821,624; gold, $71,321,681; silver, $25,272,617.

FORMALLY ARRAIGNED

Case of the Smiths Then Adjourned Until Monday.

Cincinnati, April 1.—J. Morgan Smith and wife, arrested and held here under an indictment in New York for conspiracy with Nan Patterson, the actress, who is charged with the murder of Caesar Young, the bookmaker, were formally arraigned in the police court today. Detective McNaught of New York, who yesterday secured the extradition papers at Columbus, arrived during the night and was present in court. The writ of habeas corpus, which were sworn yesterday, are not returnable until Monday.

Today's arraignment was simply a formal matter, the hearing being at once adjourned until April 4 in order to await the action of the common pleas court on the writs of habeas corpus.

MINNESOTA SUSPENDED

For Not Being Represented at Eastern Gymnastic Meeting.

Princeton, N. J., April 1.—The Intercollegiate Gymnastic association has decided to discontinue relations with the Western Gymnastic association. Both Amherst and the University of Minnesota were suspended from the association for not sending representatives. The following officers have been elected for the ensuing year:

Carlos De Bafra, New York university, president; G. F. Evans, Harvard, vice president; R. A. Selby, Yale, secretary, and R. C. Masterson, Columbia, treasurer. Executive committee: G. A. Dieterle, Pennsylvania; R. C. Green, Rutgers; H. B. Walker, Princeton; T. H. Burch, Jr., Columbia; G. S. Taylor, Harvard.

SHIP EQUIPPED WITH TURBINES

New Allan Line Steamship Victorian Approaches Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., April 1.—The Allan steamer Victorian was sighted off this harbor on her maiden trip from Liverpool this forenoon. Great interest has developed in connection with her coming on account of her being equipped with turbine engines and a government delegation has come here to meet her.

The Victorian was built for the Liverpool-Montreal route, but as the St. Lawrence river is still closed by ice, the vessel on this trip will land her freight and most of her passengers at St. Johns.

The steamer has on board about 1,500 persons, nearly all of whom are bound for the West.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Four Killed in the Wreck of a Northern Pacific Train.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Medora—While a Northern Pacific stock train was standing on the bridge over the Little Missouri river here Thursday evening the rear end was struck by another train. The caboose and a car of sheep were thrown into the river. In the caboose were four men, three of whom were killed instantly. They were: Pat Riley, traveling salesman for Armour & Co.; Henry Doty of Bowling Green, Ohio; David Simmons, Billings, Mont. Harold Stritton of Bowling Green, Ohio, had a leg broken, and was taken to the hospital at Dickinson.

The sheep in the car were all drowned. It is difficult to say how the collision occurred though it is explained that the brakes failed to work on the rear train.

The rear train was running slowly and it is thought the engineer miscalculated the distance.

Fargo—There is some hope of having the government quarantine against North and South Dakota and Montana cattle removed this summer. Dr. Ramsay, chief inspector, has just returned to his headquarters here after a trip to Montana, where he completed arrangements for the inspection of cattle on the Indian reservations about May 1. This will be a thorough inspection and every effort put forth to round up all the infected or exposed cattle. The ranchmen of Montana are entering heartily into a spirit of co-operation with the government along the same lines as adopted in North Dakota last year and will treat their cattle for scabies this spring. The movement in South Dakota is also progressing satisfactorily, and the chief inspector says that with favorable work this summer there is no doubt but that the quarantine will be removed.

As a result of his hallucination that the daughter of a well known Cass county farmer was his wife, Soren Sorenson is being examined for his sanity. He came here some months ago from Sweden and secured employment at the home of the young lady, who had been attending a state normal. He seems perfectly sane on everything else than his infatuation. He has employed an attorney and is making a fight to keep out of the asylum.

Sixteen enlistments are reported for March by Major Vogdes, who is in charge of the station here. This is the first month's work and better results are expected when it becomes better known and when it becomes better known and the rush of young men from eastern points to the "wild and woolly" is on.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Webster—Elsie, the 15-year-old daughter of Fred Krause, a farmer, living six miles west of town, was accidentally killed by the discharge of a shotgun. She was alone in the house and it is supposed she attempted to take down the gun from the wall. The charge passed entirely through her body and death resulted instantaneously.

Pierre—Herman Anding, engineer on the railroad company's ferry boat, dropped dead after lifting on a heavy stove, while moving into a new house which he had just completed. His remains will be taken to his old home at Winona, Minn., for burial.

Lead—The city of Lead is being sued by Manna Pilpanen for $20,000 damages. He asserts that he fell into a shaft on Bleeker street and sustained severe injuries.

Huron—At the close of circuit court the grand jury made its final report, showing that nineteen indictments had been returned. Of these, six are against Charles A. Kelley, state's attorney, only one of which has yet been disposed of; the others will be tried at the September term of circuit court. To all of them Mr. Kelley entered a plea of not guilty. Thomas H. Null was appointed state's attorney pending the disposition of the charges against Mr. Kelley. Emma Fahmer was sentenced to the penitentiary for one year, and Claud Cambern for two years, both for keeping bawdy houses.

While in the city Col. Melvin Grigsby of Sioux Falls received a hearty greeting from numerous old-time friends. Referring to South Dakota's prospects for the present year, Col. Grigsby expressed the belief that so far as general development along agricultural lines is concerned, indications pointed to one of the greatest years in the history of the state. Already many purchasers of farm lands and actual farmers and stockmen are coming, and the next few weeks there will be heavy immigration of the best classes of people.

Sioux Falls—Judge Carland has granted to Isaac L. Ellwood of De Kalb, Ill., a judgment for $20,000 against the city of Huron for principal and interest on bonds issued in 1890 for the ostensible purpose of refunding outstanding bonds, but

ACTIVITY NOT SO MARKED THIS WEEK

Real Estate Market Feels Effect of Bad Weather But Is Far From Dull—Another Large West First Street Deal Is Made This Week—Several Congregations Figuring on New Buildings.

Unfavorable weather conditions during the greater part of this week are claimed by the local real estate brokers to have had a deterrent effect on the personal inquiry for property. Inquiry is much more lively when the weather is good and prospective buyers can travel about to look over property offered for sale. The market, however, has been a long way from being inactive and many of the real estate men have had more time to devote to the outside inquiry by letter. City property, centrally located and in the residence district, also outside acreage, has been selling right along and several good deals have either been closed or brought to the closing points. Small sales of property for improvement continue right along, and several good deals have either been closed or brought close to the closing points. Small sales of property continue right along, being confined to no particular portion of the city.

* * *

First street again shows up with the record of the largest realty sale closed this past week, that of the old Board of Trade livery property, located on the uper side of the street, east of the Mason flats, between Third and Fourth avenue west. The transfer runs from John B. Meagher and wife to Margaret Hunter of Duluth and the consideration was $20,000. The property is described as lot 55, West First street, Duluth proper, First division. It is regarded, in point of site, one of the most valuable pieces of business property on First street. The new owner has not yet indicated whether any improvement is contemplated now or in the near future.

* * *

A sale of East end property reported this week that is of some little interest, in view of its fine location, was that of the northeast corner of Twenty-second avenue east and First street, to W. W. Walker, general freight agent of the South Shore road, for $9,300. Mr. Walker's purchase comprises property with a frontage of 200 feet on First street and 140 feet deep. The corner lot was sold by C. M. Wilcox and the inside lot by Mrs. M. L. Howe. All parties in the action were represented by A. C. Volk & Co. This firm also reports the sale of four lots on Central avenue, West Duluth, and a considerable amount of acreage this week.

* * *

Among the sales in Portland division recorded this week was the transfer of lot 9, block 28, from George N. Fifer and others to Angelina Pyette, for $7,300.

* * *

The Farrell-Turnbull company has sold the undivided half of the west half of lot 12, West First street, Duluth proper, First division, for $4,143.75.

* * *

The deed of the west half of the Metropolitan block, on West Superior street ,running from George Spencer and M. J. Forbes to Bradley, Cabot & Lyman, trustees, went on record this week, the consideration being $75,000. This is one of the sales reported as closed a few weeks ago, through the office of William M. Prindle & Co. The property purchased has a frontage of 51.44 on Superior street.

* * *

Isaac Moore has purchased of F. L. Geddes for $4,500 the property described as lots 9 and 10, block 4, Long View addition.

* * *

A transfer has been recorded of lots 5 and 6, block 11, West Duluth, First division, from C. M. Bailey to Peter Johnson, for $3,900.

* * *

Another excellent sign of general prosperity is the present activity in church circles relative to new building projects. Besides the contemplated new churches mentioned during the past few weeks, there has since been announced the intention of the Swedish Christian Mission Church society to erect a new church building on two lots at Fifty-ninth avenue west and Green street. The property is adjacent to the home of the pastor, Rev. K. E. Forsell. The First Baptist church congregation is also perfecting plans for an edifice at the corner of Ninth avenue east and First street. It is expected to sell the present church site on First street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east, the funds acquired from the sale to be applied on the new project.

* * *

Robert Ross has sold to James Bale, a mining captain of Ely, his new residence property at 2132 Jefferson street, for $4,000. It is understood that the purchaser will make extensive improvements on the building and grounds and will make his home here with his family during a part of the year. Mr. Ross completed the building last summer.

* * *

Dr. E. H. Lower is getting out plans for a $15,000 flat building on Fourth avenue west, between Third and Fourth streets. The plans will provide for four flats, with seven rooms each. Bids for the general contract will be opened April 10.

* * *

Builders and contractors are now looking forward anxiously to a run of pleasant weather this spring. There are a number of rush contracts under way, the buildings to be completed by the first of May or the first of June, and the work is being pushed with vigor. Several days of inclement weather just now would seriously interfere with the plans.

* * *

I. G. Potrek has taken out his permit for a $12,500 store and flat building on Fourth avenue east.

* * *

Concerning the general conditions on the building line over the Northwest, the Improvement Bulletin of today says:

"The early opening of spring has started building along in good shape and the volume of work in prospect and under way is gratifying. There does not seem to be any particular section of our field that is specially favored, all showing a good substantial amount of work under way. It is noted that the erection of flats is still a favorite form of investment in the cities and is also spreading to the smaller towns. The smaller buildings, containing but a limited number of apartments, are more and more popular as a means of investing a smaller sum, but there are enough of the larger structures to show that they have not lost favor as a line of investment. With the improvements which have developed in the construction of this class of residences, many of the former objections have been done away with, or at least reduced greatly.

"While flats are going up freely, there seems to be as great a volume of individual residence construction,—"home-building"—as ever. This is evident in all classes of residences from the completely equipped modern structure to the smaller and less expensive ones."

TEAMSTERS ON STRIKE

Ice and Coal Wagon Drivers at St. Louis Go Out.

St. Louis, April 1.—A general strike of ice and coal wagon drivers was instituted here today, the strike order having been voted at a meeting of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters last night for the purpose of forcing the signing of a contract guaranteeing last year's scale of wages.

Practically every coal and ice wagon driver in St. Louis has quit work, and many hotels and other large consumers were forced to make their own deliveries. It is estimated that 1,000 men are out, but no disturbances have been reported.

STEERAGE RATES

From Pacific Coast Are Changed By Agreement.

San Francisco, April 1.—J. C. Stubbs and R. P. Schwerin, on behalf of E. H. Harriman and the representatives of J. J. Hill and the other owners of rail and trans-Pacific steamer lines, have decided upon some changes in steerage passenger rates A rate of $51 Asiatic steerage to Chinese and Japanese ports has been agreed upon for the Canadian Pacific steamers at Vancouver, the Hill steamers at Seattle and the Harriman steamers at this port. The Japanese line at Seattle and the Boston steamship company at the same port are allowed to charge a rate of $43.50.

ANTI-TRUST BILL IS PASSED IN NEBRASKA.

Lincoln, Neb., April 1.—The Junkin anti-trust bill, commonly known in this state as the measure aimed at the beef packers, has passed both houses of the legislature and will be signed by the governor with an emergency clause. The bill seeks to make it impossible for packers to force prices down in certain localities in order to kill the competition of independent butchers and is in effect an application of the national Sherman law.

VANDERBILT HELD FOR TRIAL.

New York, April 1.—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who was arrested for alleged violation of the automobile speed law, was held in $500 bail for trial when he was arraigned in police court today. Vanderbilt was arrested in Harlem after a long chase by a bicycle patrolman.

Lakeside Houses.

I have for sale in the beautiful suburb of Lakeside some excellent houses that will prove very good purchases. The following is only a partial list:

$2300 Reasonable terms if desired, buys a seven-room house; furnace heat, city water, sewer, bath, closet, cellar, mantel and grate; downstairs finished in hardwood, upstairs in pine; hardwood floors in kitchen and hall. Good barn. Size of grounds 50x140. Corner location.

$4750 buys an eight-room house, hot water heat, electric lights, city water, sewer, bath, closet, cellar, stone foundation; all improvements in the street. This property is in excellent condition and will make you a nice home.

$3150 Buys a lot 50x140 with an eight-room house. Electric lights, city water, sewer, bath, closet, mantel and grate; new plumbing, beautiful location. Upper side of London road near Gorman Park.

$950 Buys a nice cottage seven blocks from the car line—big lot. Cost of building the house alone much more than asked for the whole thing.

HEARING IS ORDERED

Interstate Commerce Commission to Investigate Refrigeration Charges.

Private Car Line Evil to Be Considered May 9 In Chicago.

May 9 is the date set by the interstate commerce commission for a further hearing of the suit brought against the Pere Marquette and Michigan Central railroads by the Knudsen-Ferguson Fruit company, charging that too high rates were charged for the transportation and refrigeration of fruit shipped to Duluth over these roads. The hearing will be in the federal building at Chicago. The order reads in part as follows:

"A report and opinion having been rendered in this matter on July 27, 1904, under which further action in respect to the reasonableness and justice of refrigeration charges on Michigan fruit shipped to interstate points, was reserved during the shipping season of that year, and the respondents were allowed until Oct. 1, 1904, to readjust the charges herein involved, and no ratification of such readjustment having been received by the commission, it is ordered: That this proceeding be, and is hereby, set down for further hearing at the United States court rooms, Chicago, Ill., May 9, 1905, at which time and place an investigation will be conducted."

The investigation will be conducted with a view to determining definitely the duties and obligations of the respondent railroad companies and car line company concerning the refrigeration service and charges, and the extent of the unreasonableness and injustice of the refrigeration charges already investigated, and the reasonableness and justice of other refrigeration charges as applied on the traffic in question, to points not mentioned in the former report and opinion.

All interested shippers and consignees are privileged to appear at the hearing and give testimony.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

One Man Killed Another Injured In Calumet Yards.

Calumet—While trying to dodge one locomotive, Michael Stenpnach and son stepped in front of another in the yards of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Thursday night. The elder Stenpnach was killed almost instantly, and his son Stephen, aged 21, sustained serious injuries, but will probably survive, though losing one leg.

There were two cases of non-support under the disorderly act before Justice Jackola. Charles E. Hall was found guilty of not supporting his wife and nine children the past four months. He was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail, but sentence was suspended in case he secures work within ten days. Mrs. John Mauren, who came from Austria and brought suit against her husband for non-support alleged that her husband had not paid her the $4 per week which he is under sentence to do. He pleaded not guilty and the cast was set for April 6. Mr. Mauren gave bonds for $200.

Hancock—Mrs. Daniel Duggan, 73 years of age, died Tuesday of heart trouble. She was born in Ireland and had resided in Hancock nearly half a century. Mrs. Duggan is survived by her husband and three daughters, Mrs. John Madigan of Ripley, Mrs. William Vial of Franklin, and Bridget Duggan of Hancock, and two sons, Michael and Patrick. The funeral will be held Friday morning from St. Patrick's church and interment will take place at Lakeside cemetery.

Houghton—While it may be difficult to understand just why any one could wish to get out of the country in order to avoid bringing justice upon the head of a cold-blooded murderer, nevertheless Sheriff Beck was compelled to act quickly in gathering the witnesses in the recent Trimountain shooting affray.

ELY'S NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Handsome Building To Be Erected During Present Year.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING TO BE ERECTED AT ELY.

Before the end of the present year, possibly by next fall, the city of Ely will have completed one of the handsomest and most substantial high school buildings in the county, outside of Duluth. The new high school building, plans for which were designed by Frank L. Young of the firm of F. L. Young & Co. of Duluth, will cost about $50,000 when completed. The general contract has been awarded to Smith & Vokes of this city, on a bid of $41,475, the bidders to have the option of using Miracle concrete blocks for partitions and for backing up the pressed brick.

The building is designed along simple classical lines, the walls and partitions being of solid brick, faced with cement pressed brick, except the basement, which will be faced with red standstone. The roofing of tile will have an elaborate metal cornice, with a four-foot projection. The interior finish will be in hardwood throughout.

There will be three entrances to the school building, the main entrance for teachers, members of the board and visitors, and two side entrances for the pupils. The entrances will have tiled vestibules on a level with the porch floors and at the end of each corridor will be broad stairs leading to the floor above, giving two exits from the auditorium. Ample arrangement will be made in the way of fire escapes from the stage, and the wardrobes on each floor.

The corridor will be 16 feet 8 inches wide, extending from end to end of the building, the center corridor being enlarged to 27 feet 8 inches, where can be assembled all the pupils on the floor.

The auditorium will be of Basilica style, with a 20-foot ceiling at the center. Separate wardrobes will be provided for the two sexes, each fully equipped. The ceiling throughout will be of lock seam steel, the walls being plastered with adamant, paneled and steepled.

The basement will contain a domestic science room, manual training room, play and lunch rooms for either sex, toilet rooms, boiler and coal rooms. The first floor will contain the superintendent's office, the school board's room and four class rooms. The second floor will contain a teachers' room, library and four class rooms. The third room will contain the physical laboratory, chemical laboratory, two recitation rooms and an auditorium, with a fully equipped stage.

Following were the bids on the general contract for the new buildign: John Schleuness, Duluth, $44,677; George Lounsberry, Duluth, $45,240; Watterworth & Fee, Duluth, $42,000; Theo. Nauffts, Duluth, $44,157; J. A. Roberts, Duluth, $42,450; Smith & Volkes, Duluth, $41,475; William Norlander, St. Paul, $41,887; Schmidt Bros., Superior, $42,678; John Donlin, Superior $45,102; Berg & Olson, Superior, $44,378.

THE "N. S. C." OF WESTMINSTER CHURCH

N. S. C. CLUB OF WEST DULUTH YOUNG MEN ON OCCASION OF RECENT MOCK TRIAL.

The first successful organization of young men connected with any church in West Duluth, is the "N. S. C." of the Westminster church. The above cut shows the active and honorary members, as they appeared in costume when they gave the Mock Trial, in which Mary Ann sued Happy Hooligan for a breach of promise to marry. The entertainment was a success in every way, and everybody spoke highly of it. The money raised by the club is to be expended in fixing up a gymnasium in the old German Lutheran church, of which the club has a year's lease.

AN AIRSHIP LINE FROM FOND DU LAC TO LAKEWOOD

Interesting Discussion of Municipal Ownership of Public Utilities In Duluth's $1,000,000 Court House and City Hall.

The lights in Duluth's magnificent $1,000,000 combined courthouse and city hall had long since been extinguished for the night, and in the marble floored council chamber there was nothing to be heard but a big chunk of stillness.

Gradually in the immense leather upholstered chair behind the president's desk, the outlines of a figure became apparent. As the shape, which was at first nothing more than a mist, assumed form and proportions, the features of R. D. Haven could be seen.

"Is there a quorum present, Mr. Clerk?"

As the deep tones of the president's voice were heard, there suddenly rose into view, the classic profile of the city clerk.

"There is, Mr. President."

"We will waive the regular order of business, and proceed at once to the discussion of the subject for which we are here assembled, the construction of a line of airships to run from Fond du Lac to Lakewood. Gentlemen, the matter is before you."

As the president was speaking, the seats provided for the aldermen were seen to be steadily filling up, and finally the shades of the sixteen aldermen composing Duluth's city council in 1905 were seen to be the occupants.

Alderman McEwen arose, gave a quick sudden jerk of his head, thrust both hands in his trousers pockets, and throwing out his chin at an angle of 45 deg. began to speak.

"MIS—ter President," he began. "The people of this country are coming more and more to realize that municipal ownership of public utilities is the only solution of our social problems. Here we have our city gas plant. Nothing personal meant by that, gentlemen. Here is our city automobile factory, our city water plant, our city telephone exchange, and our city lighting plant. I tell you gentlemen the people of our city are becoming more and more imbued with the idea of municipal ownership. They are coming more and more to realize that the only way to escape the high prices forced upon them by lack of competition is to operate all public utilities themselves.

"Gentlemen, I believe this is a good move in the right direction. By all means let us have a line of airships, operated in our city for the benefit of the people. This has my hearty support, but I wish to add one little amendment, if the council does not object. I would like to have some provision made for a branch line to Duluth Heights."

Alderman Wilson arose. With delicate precision he adjusted the papers on his desk, making each conform with strict regularity to the cracks in the wood. When all had been fixed to suit his taste, he commenced to cheerfully jingle a bunch of keys and some loose change in his pocket, and suddenly facing about toward the other aldermen began to speak:

"Gentlemen," he said, "let us get down to the cold, hard facts in this matter. What are the facts of the case? Do we or do we not want this line of air ships? That is all we have to consider, gentlemen. That is the meat of the whole matter.

"Now I have gone into this matter pretty thoroughly, and find that this new line will accommodate at least 5,678,942 passengers on an average during the next five years. At the rate of five cents per head per person, which is the fare charged by the automobile line, that will cost the citizens approximately $285,000 a year.

"The city engineer's estimate, and, gentlemen, it can be relied upon, shows that it will cost us about $900,000 to establish this line of ships. Our bonded indebtedness is very small. We have a good market for our bonds, and our 4 per cent will find a ready sale. As I figure it, we can pay interest on the bonds, operating expenses and cost of depreciation, and establish a sinking fund which will enable us to pay off the bonds in ten years. That, gentlemen, is the proposition. There is no theory about it. Those are the cold, hard facts, and I wish to state right here I will vote for the resolution."

Alderman Barnes ceased pulling at his mustache for a moment, rose gracefully to his feet, and placing one hand in his trousers' pocket, addressed the council.

"Gentlemen," he said, "there are a great many things to be considered in this matter. I tell you it is a grand thing to think of soaring through the heavens from Fond du Lac and being deposited at Lakeside all for the price of a nickel. The city should be proud of such an undertaking. Our West Duluth Commercial club, composed of the representative citizens of West Duluth, has endorsed the plan. It would be a notable achievement for our city to accomplish, and it would place Duluth where she belongs, in the foremost rank of the cities of the great Northwest.

"But I tell you, gentlemen, the people of our city want lower taxes. Our taxes are too high. You get out among the tax-payers of this city and they will tell you they are paying too much for the maintenance of our city government. They want taxes lowered, and I tell you, gentelmen, they won't stand it much longer.

"Now I am in favor of this proposition, but let us go slowly on it. Let us see our way clear. If we can save money by establishing this line, let us do so. But don't let us push this matter too fast."

Alderman Moore arose from his seat at the end of the line, and quickly brushing back the hair from his forehead, threw open his coat and thrusting both hands deep into his pockets, leaned slightly forward over his desk and began to speak.

"Gentlemen," he said, "everything good this city has got, she has had to fight for. We had to fight for our water plant. We had to fight for our automobile factory. We had to fight for our lighting plant. We had opposition on all sides from the corporate interests. No good step along the lines of municipal ownership can be taken without a fight.

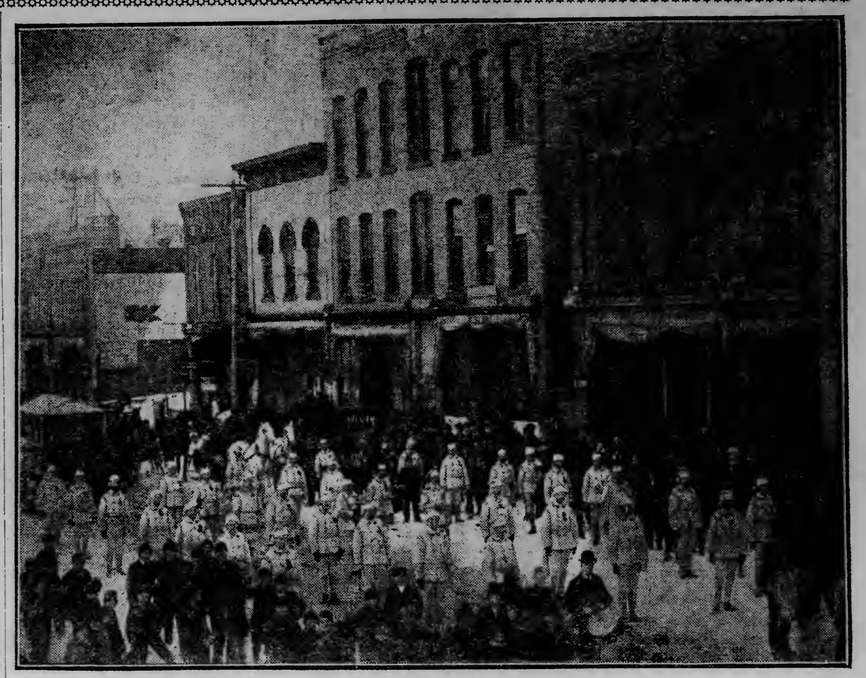

"If we want to make Duluth a great city, we must bring not only the necessities, but some of the luxuries of life within the reach of the workingmen. They have as much right to a ride in an airship as the rich.

THE OLD DULUTH TOBOGGAN CLUB

That Flourished For Several Seasons Over Fifteen Years Ago.

Carried Off Prize At St. Paul Ice Palace Celebration.

DULUTH TOBOGGAN AND SNOWSHOE ASSOCIATION ON PARADE IN 1886.

The increased interest that has been noted in many of the winter sports of the past season has recalled to the minds of many of Duluth's "old timers" pleasant memories of the Duluth Toboggan and Snowshoe association which was organized during the winter of 1885-86 and flourished for two or three seasons following, and which became a defunct organization by 1889 and 1890.

It was during the winter of 1885-86 that the celebrated ice palace was built in St. Paul, and the event aroused an unusual amount of interest all over the Northwest in the spectacle itself and also the attendant sports. At that time there were in Duluth a number of young men who had recently came to the Head of the Lakes from St. Paul to make their home and these, it is said, were largely instrumental in directing the enthusiasm of the young men of the city into lines which finally resulted in the organization of the club.

James A. Boggs was the first captain selected for the association. The club itself was formed of many of the best young men of Duluth. It was far from being an inexpensive form of amusement, hence its membership during its existence was never very large. Besides the cost of the elaborate heavy white woolen suits with caps to match with blue tassels, there was the annual expense of building the long high trestlework for the toboggan slide from the foot of Seventh avenue East down to the ice on Lake Superior. The trestlework was built long before the railway tracks were constructed.

After the Duluth Toboggan and Snowshoe association was fully organized the members thought it would be the proper thing to participate in the St. Paul ice palace celebration, so the club went down, in full regalia, and with practically the entire membership. The Duluth association entered competition with the other organizations present and easily won the prize, a handsome silken banner, for making the finest appearance of any association at the celebration. The Ryan hotel which had just been built was not entirely finished then through the upper floors and the members of the Duluth club have a distinct remembrance of all sleeping on cots in one room on the fourth or fifth floor.

The days spent in St. Paul were one continuous round of pleasure and several of the members are said to still have as memoris of the occasion the little silver hatchet souvenirs which were given out at one of the theaters which the club attended in a body. The play, as some recollect it, was one of "the Bird in the Gilded Cage" sort.

The picture herewith presented is reproduced from a photograph in the possession of C. Poirier of this city, which was taken of the toboggan club Feb. 22, 1886, as it was parading Superior street, on its return from St. Paul. The buildings in the rear are easily recognized as the German-American building, now occupied by M. Gasser, the west end then being occupied by Christy & Marvin, clothiers. East of the structure is the old Beckman block, now known as the St. James hotel, and still further east is the Beneteau building, which is now undergoing a rehabilitation process having been recently damaged by fire.

Among those in the rigs, at the rear of the club was Former Sheriff McQuade. The old horse car, which was held up in its eastward career to enable the photographer to get in his work, is also of the recollections of the Duluthians who were present that day.

As will be noticed in the picture there were plenty of people who were not averse to being taken along with the club, and not the least in evidence was the crowd of small boys. James Lyan, now with G. G. Dickeman modestly admits being the boy in the center and back of the group, the only one wearing a white shirt, even if it did not have any collar.

Owing to the length of time that has elapsed since the picture was taken and from the fact that twenty years makes quite a change in the personal appearance of some of the then young men who belonged to the club, it has been a difficult matter to adjust names to all those present in the parade, but as nearly as can be learned they were as follows: Henry Myers, J. E. Cooley, R. M. Hunter, S. W. Means, J. P. Johnson, Dr. F. O. Sherwin, Henry DeWitt, C. B. Woodruff, W. A. McGonagle, Col. C. H. Graves, C. d'Autremont, A. C. Weiss, George M. Smith, Joseph Sharp, Neil McLachlan, William McKinley, G. G. Hartley, Frank Burke (with the banner) Capt. James Boggs, William Peck, J. C. Schaefer, Charles Eldridge, S. F. Snively, C. G. Traphagen, E. J. Poirier and Martin Watrous.

The single photographs of B. F. Myers and Edward Clow give an excellent idea of the appearance of two of the members of the old toboggan club in full regalia.

EXPERIENCES OF DULUTH YOUNG MAN IN THE NAVY

One of a Party of Seamen Attacked by Filipinos Near Manila.

Has Decided to Quit Roving and Will Remain on the Great Lakes.

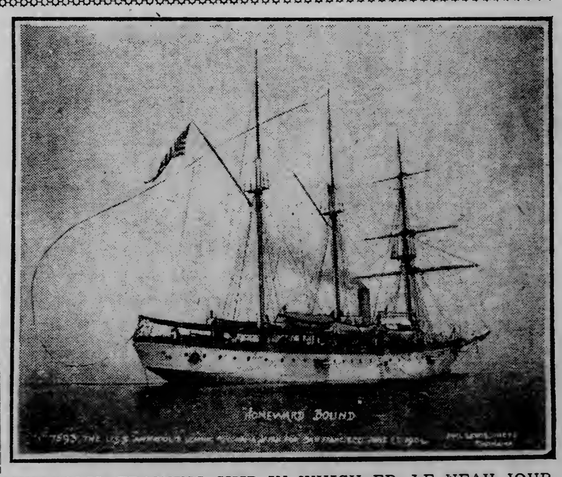

Ed Le Neau, who spent his boyhood days in Duluth, going to school here and selling Heralds each evening on the streets, has just returned home after an absence of about seven years, during most of which time he has been in the United States navy as seaman and has traveled almost all over the world. He is now only 23 years of age and started his globe-trotting when quite young. His relatives live here and welcomed him back with open arms. He has decided to quit roving and will endeavor to find employment on the lake boats running out of here.

ED. LE NEAU,
Duluth Young Man in Naval Uniform.

Ed left Duluth in June or July, 1898, and went to New Orleans, where he shipped on board a merchantman for Liverpool. On the return trip the crew was sent to Cleveland and there Le Neau enlisted as an able seaman in the navy, in 1901. Leaving Cleveland his adventures began. He with others from Cleveland were sent to Hampton Roads and received preliminary training. From there they started for the Philippines, going through the Suez canal, Le Neau being on the Piscataqua. They were known as the Mosquito fleet and were bound for service in Philippine waters to help put down the Moros who were perpetually rebelling. They got into one serious fight near Manila at which time a party of thirteen sailors landed, Le Neau among them, and were attacked by a band of Filipinos who, after a hard struggle, they captured. In speaking of the fighting ability of the Filipinos, Mr. Le Neau expressed himself as rather contemptuous of them as fighters, but says the Moros on the Sulu islands are fierce and desperate warriors, showing great courage and daredevil bravery. But they fight with knives and spears and are always at the mercy of their better-armed foes.

On starting for home, Le Neau was serving on the Annapolis, the picture of which accompanies this. They came back by way of Yokahama, where this picture was taken, that of Mr. Le Neau, himself, being taken in Manila. In the picture of the cruiser will be noticed a long streamer from her mast floating over the stern and fastened there. That is the "homeward bound" pennant and signifies many things to the sailor. Mr. Le Neau says this pennant is a beauty. It is 500 feet in length, 250 feet being covered with stars and 250 feet being of red and white. When it breaks to the breeze and stars and stripes are streaming out 500 feet, it makes a sight worth seeing.

ANNAPOLIS, TRAINING SHIP IN WHICH ED. LE NEAU JOURNEYED NEARLY AROUND THE WORLD.

On leaving Yokahama the Annapolis went to Shanghai, China, and then made a farewell stop at Heng Kong, the British headquarters in the Celestial empire. Leaving China behind the Annapolis went to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, and then to San Francisco, where the cruiser was put out of commission. Le Neau, with others, was then transferred to the New York and from Mare Island went to Magalma Bay, Mexico, from there to Elopoco, then to Panama, to Valparaiso, Chile, and then through the Straits of Magellan to Montevideo, then up to Bahia, Brazil, after which they went

A lady flounced into the office the other day. You could tell she was a perfect lady by the fascinating rustle of her "petti-skirts." She made straight, with tip-tilted chin, matronly dignity and aristocratic hauteur for the desk of the society reporter and inquired:

"Are you the Person who does the society notes?"

The society reporter, who has no hankering to be called a lady, who is quite satisfied with young woman, and who can even smile at being called, quite audibly, "That Miss Blank," but who rather resented being labeled "Person" so pointedly, acknowledged the disgraceful fact with an inclination of her head that she fondly hoped had some of the grace of the same gesture as exploited by Maxine Elliott.

"Well," began the lady, "you had an account of my party in your paper last evening, and I want to know where you got it."

"Yes?" said the reporter, blandly, having a little more courage then than she had a half hour later, "And who are you?"

"I am Mrs.," but never mind who she was. "And I insist upon knowing who gave you that item. You have absolutely no business to report MY affairs unless you go to headquarters."

And the reporter silently wondered if they were so warm that fire headquarters was to be appealed to, or if they were so boisterous that police interference was always called in. But the irritated and irritating voice of the Lady proceeded, and she pranced about in a two by two and a half floor space and told of the dire calamities that would fall if the information she sought was not forthcoming, of the forces, social, financial, pressing and not to be ignored, that would be exercised in behalf of the demanded bit of information. Seeing, however, that she had offended in telling some things, the reporter turned over an entirely new leaf and refused to tell anything. The Lady threatened, she announced her initials, for fear she might be mixed with some other Mrs. Blank, and then waited breathless to see their effect. The effect was not the desired one, so she pranced with temper out of the office and down the hall. Now, anybody who is unprejudiced knows that when one is 40 and fat, prancing is not the gait most fetching, so the Lady's progress down the hall was closely watched with something like awe at the elephantine grace displayed.

Then the telephone rang, and a voice, metallic, harsh, unsoothing, in fact it was none of the things that Shakespeare had in mind when he said a woman's voice should be soft, gentle and low, demanded if the "Person" she was talking was the one "did" society, she rasped, "I sent you in a personal the other day and it did not appear. Why am I thus excluded?" and the words were pronounced in such a crisp curtness that the silence that followed was positively panicky to the person at the newspaper end of the line. She braced up, however, and explained, for, of course, it was the most unintentional of mistakes, and feeling that she had succeeded in partly mollifying "an old subscriber," she hung the receiver up and stared with unseeing eyes in the corner of the office, thought it all over and then—giggled.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

The event of most interest to the club women during the week was the annual meeting of the Twentieth Century club, which was held Monday afternoon at the club room of the library, at which the annual reports of the officers and the annual election took place. The meeting was a most interesting one and the reports of the different officers and chairmen of departments were listened to with pleasure by the members present. The history written by Mrs. J. D. Morrison was particularly bright and interesting. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year.

Miss Mary B. Statham was re-elected to the presidency of the club for the third time. Other officers chosen were: Mrs. F. L. Barrows, first vice president; Mrs. Z. D. Scott, second vice president; Mrs. A. H. Smith, third vice president; Mrs. C. H. Merritt, recording secretary; Mrs. W. D. Underhill, corresponding secretary; Mrs. F. D. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. H. H. Phelps, historian.

A number of honorary vice presidents were chosen as follows: Mrs. J. D. Morrison, Mrs. George Elder, Miss Elizabeth Anderson, Mrs. Henry Taylor and Mrs. William Fisher.

The membership committee is as follows: Mrs. Z. D. Scott, chairman; Mrs. C. L. Kennedy, representing the literature class; Mrs. J. B. Hansen, representing the travel class, and Mrs. L. K. Daugherty, representing the Shakespeare class.

The third of the artists' recitals, given under the auspices of the Matinee Musicale, will be given next Wednesday evening by Rudolph Ganz at Steinway hall. Mr. Ganz is a pianist of recognized ability and has met with great success in his tour this year. The Chicago Inter-Ocean says of him:

"To those familiar with the well-founded virtuosity of Rudolph Ganz (and that they are not few in number was proved by the size of the audience that came out of the wet into Fine Arts Music hall yesterday afternoon), it did not require the success of his recital to determine his standing among local pianists. Yet it was well that the opportunity was offered, for Mr. Ganz is an artist whom one admires the more by hearing him often.

"With a well-chosen program, embracing some Liszt numbers far from familiar, he won respect and approval, as he has done before, by reason of his sound musicianship, his manly, dignified yet modest manner, and his interpretative skill, which indicates a ripened scholarship, a careful study, and a broad technic which does not require "showy" music to determine its quality. He holds more power in reserve than many pianists exhibit in an entire program.

"Mr. Ganz played Beethoven, Brahms, D'Albert and Chopin in the first part of his program, and devoted the second portion to the 'Years of Pilgrimage' cycle of Liszt. This last was beautifully played, through the dignity and sonority of 'The Chapel of William Tell,' the dainty 'On Lake Wallenstadt,' the exquisitely tripping 'At the Spring,' the heavier 'Storm' and 'Valley Obermann,' the pensive 'Longing For Home' and 'The Bells of Geneva.' Declaring, all of them, the delicate sensibility of Liszt, the player read them with much of sympathy, and they proved a delightful 'pilgrimage' indeed."

Duluth club women are deeply gratified at the honor that has been extended to Mrs. J. L. Washburn of this city, who was elected state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, at a meeting that was held in Minneapolis last Saturday. Mrs. Washburn is a charter member of the Daughters of Liberty chapter of this city, and has been active in D. A. R. work. Mrs. Washburn is one of the best known and progressive of the club women of this city, and her charm of manner and great executive ability assure a most successful term in this position with which she has been honored.

Charming Novelties in EASTER TOILETTES

FETCHING WRAP IN REAL LACE

THE SLEEVELESS BOLERO AND DOUBLE SKIRT

TAILORMADE COSTUME FOR DEMOISELLE

Although Easter as a festival is really no longer one of sartorial significance, the phrase of Easter gown and Easter bonnet still prevails, even among those to whom the newest of Parisian conceits are such a matter of course that they no longer cause a flutter of delight.

Doubtless it is because of its position on the calendar that Easter holds its way in things fashionable today, although the superstitiously inclined will tell you that it is absolutely necessary to wear something new upon Easter Day if you would command good fortune for the rest of the year. They are in the same category as those who insist that the bride must wear "something old, something new; something borrowed and something blue." If she, too, is to attain the acme of good fortune and earthly bliss.

In the frocks and hats and wraps that are coming to these shores from Paris by every steamer, there are some delightful novelties, novelties that are suited to almost every type and style of figure, and which, with clever adaptation, will rule the summer through.

Perhaps the most fascinating of these are the little unlined wraps of lace, of embroidery, of sheer handkerchief muslin, and the like. These are to be worn as the finishing touch to the toilette rather than for any warmth or protection that they might, perchance, afford.

The real laces are the choice of those to whom expense is not a matter of moment, and Chantilly, the Spanish thread laces, the all-over Valenciennes and the Italian filet laces are made up with some touch or two of Irish crochet, Russian guipure, or some one of the Carrickmacross laces for the sake of needed contrast. Velvet ribbons, too, add a note of soft richness to those dainty little lace wraps, and much pleating and ruching in mousseline de sole is employed to give just the bouffant effect that is needed in the unlined wrap.

Like short, full sacques, with a bias fold in the back are to be seen with broad collars; they are almost capes, of the bebe Irish crochet, and undersleeves of this same costly lace peep out from beneath the oversleeve, composed of many rows of pilsse mousselin; edged with lace. Others, again, are so full that they are better described as sleeved capes, and the sleeves are so full and wide that they are really further capes in themselves. It is the lace flouncing that is employed for these, and the new godet weaves that have almost a circular form, straight on the one edge and extremely full on the other, according to depth, are what the leading couturieres in Paris employ for their most costly models.

The gowns with which those dainty little trifles are worn exhibit the extreme of bouffantry at the foot combined with a really clever smoothness over the hips. The newest skirts are planned to fall in godet folds, and in cloth they show an unbroken line from waist to hem.

In crepe de chine, and especially in the one-seam double-width weave, there are some charming examples. The use of lace in pretty nearly all the gowns this season—of course, one excepts the woolen tailormades—is a leading feature; and lace edgings, insertions and all-overs are generously employed. The net, rather than the filet laces, will prevail. One charming example in this oneseam crepe is a blouse of creamy Lierre lace, and over this there are broad bretelle straps of the crepe that do not quite come to the waistline. Each strap is edged with a bouillonne ribbon of exactly the same tint, a mordre pink, and the sleeve has an overhanging cap of the same construction, the double puff of the lace being backed with chiffon. The skirt is in two sections, the upper one laid in groups of tucks over the hips, and two deep horizontal tucks at the hem. Then ensues a puff of the lace, and the deep flounce has a shirred heading. Four deep tucks are on the edge of the flounce, and a Lierre lace edge is run in between the tucks with the most fetching billowy effect imaginable. The waist is encircled with a ceinture of the crepe, and a short "bobby" sash of the same hangs in the back. This skirt is not far from a dozen yards around the foot; but so sheer is the material that one does not suspect more than half that width. This is where the newer fashions are deceiving; for even in double width goods one hardly imagines that ten to a dozen yards are required.

With all the elaboration of details that the smartest models exhibit there is necessary an impression of simplicity. The lines of the figure must follow this illusion, and nothing that will tire the eye or the imagination is to be permitted. There must be a certain harmony of the whole, if the best results are to be attained.

Velvet ribbons are having a most triumphant inning as a trimming accessory in all the new models, and velvet-covered buttons, chiefly in small sizes, share in this preference.

The Easter Millinery.

Strikingly Different are the Latest Importations in Headwear.

The parasol makers are rejoicing that all of the new hats are to be so distinctly smaller that the use of a sunshade cannot possibly be dispensed with this summer, at least not by the cohorts of the fashionable.

And the recent importations of chapeaux from Paris, where the fashions are made, bear out this announcement to the letter. The shapes are all of them distinctly smaller; and a review of what the very best houses are offering would lead one to believe that the cartwheel and the so-called picture hat are, so far as this summer is concerned at any rate, a thing of the past.

One wonders whether it is that the change is due to the new coiffure, or vice versa. One might argue this doubtless for sometime without reaching any very satisfactory conclusion; but it may be accepted as a fact that the latest thing in hats will surely demand the very latest thing in coiffures.

The exaggerated pompadour has vanished with the large hat; and the successor to that disfiguring monstrosity—as it truly was in many instances—is but a sane and rational development of this oldtime mode. The latest fashion calls for much less waving of the hair than heretofore; and the new coiffure hair net is now applied with little fancy hairpins that have a novel screw to them which prevents their ever falling out accidentally. They have to be turned by the fingers to be removed; and with these in the hair there is no possible chance of the hair or the net coming undone.

However, to return to the hats. There are some charming models that can be worn quite as well with the hair dressed high on the top of the head as when it is coiled low. But there are some others that simply cry out for the new coiled dressing, the one whereto the little coiled rolls begin at the nape of the neck and are run as far up the back of the head as the chevelure will afford.

The Napoleon shape, that with the turned up back and front, and broadly extending sides, is one that is shown for pretty nearly all ages of girlhood, from the toddler of some half a dozen summers to the young matron who dresses to follow the fashions, or perhaps to lead them.

Then there are the many variations upon the Marquise and the ever popular tricorne shapes; and these are bent and twisted and pulled out of all semblance to any original model. Indeed, to take on an air of extreme originality is the aim and end of the milliner when she undertakes to construct a new hat; and the farther she departs from accepted lines the better result she considers that she has achieved.

The palest of pinks and blues are enjoying an extreme vogue on the other side of the Atlantic, where the seasons are several weeks earlier than in our own country. The straw is of the shiny satin variety, the trimming usually of tulle and the ostrich plumes are in the palest tints, to correspond with little feathery sprays of white marabout showing at intervals.

The very long plume that showed several shadings is not nearly so prominent as it was in the earlier showings, and not until the tip is reached do many of the newest show any indication of change of coloring.

Very vivid tints are shown in many instances, the bright blues, violets, magenta and purples being largely used; but tones down more than a trifle by the use of much soft creamy or white lace, malines and mousseline de sole.

The craze for flowers of an unnatural hue still maintains, and one has become so accustomed to blue roses, brown forget-me-nots, green pansies and other blossoms, which old Dame Nature would have difficulty in recognizing, that one passes them by almost without notice and seldom with comment.

There are some bewitching shapes that take on a saucer outline. These have just a mere apology for a crown, usually round; and a huge cache-peigne in the back which tilts them far down on the face in front. A lace scarf, real lace or choice is carelessly twisted round the crown, and, perhaps, the ends are wired on the hair behind, in addition to the flowers, and one is irresistibly reminded of the tip-tilted pork-pie bonnets which the belles of long ago used to wear in the days of crinoline.

THE DIRECTOIRE COSTUME.

CLEVER MODEL IN CREPE DE CHINE

Odds and Ends of Fashion News.

There are some charming modifications of the poke bonnet developed in crin straw, with drawn silk for its lining. Roses are the favorite flower for these, ostrich plumes are approved, and the accompanying strings may be of ribbon, mousseline or tulle.

Combinations of pale blue and lilac are among the most modish in the new colorings. A smart sailor hat of the straight, stiff brim variety and a medium high crown is simply trimmed with bands of pale blue, pink and mauve around the crown, with a huge chou of these colors at the side, many loops and cut ends making the rosette.

The most approved shoe for summer use is a modification of the pump tie that proved such a trial to most of its wearers last season. The new model is cut somewhat higher in the counter so that it will not slip-slop as before, and the vamp, too, is higher. In the shiny black leathers, patent colt and kid, it is shown with heels in sufficient variety to suit all tastes.

Reversing the usual order of things some of the new sheer voiles and veilings, so sheer that they are as transparent as chiffon, are made up over checked, striped and plaid silks. When the color scheme is harmonious a delightful effect of novelty is achieved. The raspberry shades made over grenat and white checks are decidedly chic, and the hyacinth blues are likewise smart. But it must be confessed that the gray voiles over a black and white check make anything but a pretty appearance. The effect is too dead and monotonous, and even a dash of lively cerise on the gray is hardly sufficient to lighten the gloom of this combination.

The vogue of the dyed laces suffers no diminution, and all of the most fashionable tints are at the command of every dyer. There are some soft dull blues and reds and pinks and greens that are trimmed with the tarnished Etruscan gold braids and galloons, but with this one exception they do not show a single touch of color relief. Their use is confined to the separate waists, whether of blouse or the new coat variety.

Those smart separate coats of lace are much used for dressy occasions, the lining matching the lace exactly as to tint, and a layer of chiffon is usually interposed between, to soften the effect. The half sleeve prevails, and ends either just above or just below the elbow with a multitude of frills. The mousquetaire glove, with a bangle or bracelet, is worn with these.

FETCHING WRAP IN REAL LACE.

Those dainty little wraps that are fashioned from the real laces, and are intended to be worn over the thinnest and sheerest of summer gowns, are really worn rather as a finish to the costume than for any warmth or protection that they may bestow. Of such character is the dainty trifle in a real black chantilly lace, with mousseline pleatings in white edged with black valenciennes for sleeves, and strappings of black velvet ribbon with sprays of white guipure down the front. There is an elaborate yoke of lace, touched up with ribbon and chenille embroideries, to which the blouse is applied in pleats. The blouse is shirred at the waistline, and the unlined basquines are edged with narrow black valenciennes. There is a loose drapery that takes almost a cape form over the sleeves, and this is cutted in a double ruffle as low as the elbow, where a full flounce of the pleated mousseline de soie in white edged with black makes its appearance. The lower part of the sleeve is similar in design, but much narrower, and falls far over the hand. A shallow ceinture of velvet ribbon passes around the waist, and is fastened with long loops in the front. A sash of the same is applied in the back.

THE SLEEVELESS BOLERO AND DOUBLE SKIRT.

Quite a few novel features, or, perhaps, it were nearer the truth to call them revivals, characterize the new gowns; and among these the sleeveless bolero is sure of an enthusiastic welcome. The model—a silk warp henrietta in a pretty shade of geranium red that tones on the raspberry. The bolero is built with rounded corners, and attached to a bodice of silk of the same tone, which is disposed with deed shirrings in the center, back and front, making a charming swathed effect. The bolero is built out over the shoulder, and the sleeves of cloth are attached to the silk bodice. Velvet ribbon edges the bolero, and velvet-covered buttons are attached to soutache loops and follow the course of the velvet ribbon edging. The sleeve is a very full double puff, ending well below the elbow, with a shallower puff at the wrist, and each puff being separated from the other with a flaring upstanding cuff. The skirt is in tunic or double effect, both with side pleats that are stitched down for some inches, and not pressed below the stitching. The velvet ribbon edging and looped buttons appear on both upper and lower skirts as a flat trimming on the hems.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE LYCEUM

Creatore's Band Will Play Tuesday and Wednesday, With a Matinee on Wednesday.

The great Creatore, the remarkable leader of one of the most remarkable of bands, will appear with his famous organiatzion in Duluth at the Lyceum next week, giving three concerts, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday afternoon. In the hands of Creatore music becomes not only one of the fine arts, but an exact science as well. No one who has heard his splendid organization will deny that the band which Creatore controls so completely, and to such good purpose, is the best balanced to be found anywhere. Than this no better evidence could be desired of Creatore's ability as a musical general and past-master of the art of instrumentalism.

One of Creatore's pet hobbies is the wood-wind or reed section of his band. To this collection of instruments he pays particular attention, and rehearses his men who play them to a point involving the finest results which one of his men is swayed by his magic baton as though hypnotized by him who wields it, and the eyes of each member of the band, particularly those of the tympany drummer, are riveted upon those of their conductor, from whom all take their tempo and draw their inspiration.

In concluding it is interesting to note just one more of Creatore's many remarkable characteristics, which is, that he never uses an instrumental score except at rehearsals. Only when he has thoroughly mastered a number does he permit himself to play it in the presence of an audience, by which time the score has become unnecessary to him. Thus does Creatore exert over himself and his actions the same commendable discipline by which he controls, directs and inspires the incomparable musical organization which bears his name.

LYCUM BOOKINGS.

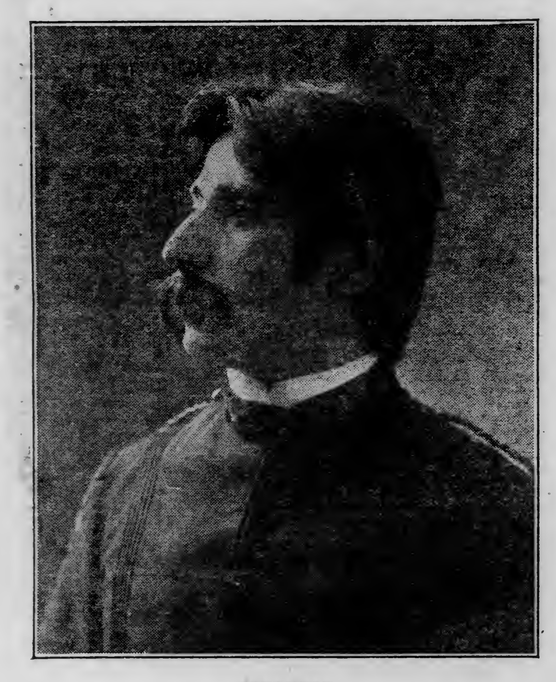

When Lawrence D'Orsay appears at the Lyceum Tuesday and Wednesday and Wednesday matinee, April 11 and 12, he will bring with him the same cast, without a change, that appeared with him during the major portion of the run of the "Earl of Pawtucket" in New York.

* * *

Raymond Hitchcock in Henry W. Savage's production of the comic opera success, "The Yankee Consul," is the attraction announced for the Lyceum for Friday and Saturday, April 14 and 15. The same brilliant cast and production as seen during its five months' run in New York will be seen here.

* * *

Henrietta Crosman will present the merry comedy, "Mistress Nell," in this city for the first time next April 18 and 19, when she will appear at the Lyceum. Of the many brilliant triumphs Miss Crosman has won in comedy, none has equalled her success in "Mistress Nell."

THE BILL AT THE METROPOLITAN

The Donna Troy Company In Repertoire Will Be the Attraction all Week.

Beginning next Monday, Miss Donna Troy brings her company to the Metropolitan for an engagement of two weeks at popular prices. The organization numbers twenty people, and is rich in vaudeville features, notably Nellie Beatrice, a fire dancer of national reputation. The plays are all new, including "Desperate Crime," "The Lighthouse Robbery," "The Russian Spy," "A Thirst For Gold" and "A Lone Star Mystery." A change of bill will be made three times weekly and the opening attraction will be James L. Glass' sensational melo-dramatic success, "A Desperate Crime." This play goes out next season as a one-piece attraction playing the Stair & Haylin circuit and is expected to repeat the success it has been enjoying.

Whose Stock Company Plays at Metropolitan Next Week.

KIDDIES ARE COMING.

Pollard's "Kiddies," a company of boys and girls of striking talent, who presented operatic productions and have met with wonderful success, will appear at the Metropolitan in June, playing a week. Some years ago they were at the Lyceum and made a fine impression. They are on their return from a long engagement in Australia.

NEW YORK THEATERS.

Murray Carson Forgets To Put a Plot Into His Play—Frank Keenan as a Dreadful Maniac—Mary Mannering as a Sentimental Forger.

New York, April 1.—The record in short runs by plays meant to last long was equaled but not beaten last week. Away back in 1894 "The Younger Son," a drama carefully prepared by David Belasco and produced finely by Charles Frohman, was withdrawn after three evenings and one afternoon. Not until last season was that rivaled by "The Rich Mrs. Repton," also an excellent Frohman performance of a work by the usually effectual R. C. Carton. Now "The Trifler," by Murray Carson, the English author and actor, who brought over a company from London to help him present it in exactly the manner he desired, is withdrawn after four representations. Thus we see that the three plays which in 11 years have had the most marked failures in Broadway—by which I mean that they were instances of the plans of exceptionally expert men gone wrong—have lived just half a week each before passing away.

An error by Carson in writing "The Trifler" and a blunder in his acting of its hero brought about the quick death. What he meant to turn out was one of those comedies of conversation which, by their verbal brilliance, are able to shine resplendently without much of any story. Still, Carson didn't intend that it should be entirely devoid of plot.

"The fact is," he said to me, "I became so engrossed in the plot that was in mind that I forgot to put more than a little bit of it into the play; and, worse luck, I did put that little bit into my own role. Well, I was flustered the first night, what with my American debut in a play of my own which hadn't ever been tried before, and I accidentally left out the two speeches which explained why the hero and the heroine were matching their wits in a duel of words for the possession of a certain letter."

* * *

The trifler was the prime minister of a petty German state. That much we found out about him. We became aware, also, that the woman in the case was a secret emissary from another court with a letter which she wished to deliver to the queen. But what was in the communication, or why the man hindered its delivery, we didn't get a glimmer of an idea. The series of dialogues between Count Fredel von Kuntz and Baroness von Bamberg, lacking utterly the wit which the author thought he had written into them, bored the audiences beyond endurance, so that many quit the theater before the performance was over.

And it was an extremely fashionable audience, too, for Herbert Sleath and Esme Beranger, transfers to the stage from the height of London society, were Carson's assistants in the company, and our smart set turned out to welcome them. All three proved to be clever players, but their roles compelled them to bore us, and the theater was half empty before they were through.

The killing blow to "The Trifler" was not struck, however, by those who turned their back on it, but by those who faced it out. The play had reached its last act, and so much had been said and so little done that we who remained were half asleep, when Mr. Carson and Miss Beranger awakened us suddenly. The letter which they had discussed so drowsily, which she had hidden and he had hunted, was at length found by him in her glove. She was enraged.

"Take that!" she cried, striking him across the face with the plundered glove; "and that, and that!" she repeated louder and louder, with a harder blow each time.

We were shocked by the lady's outbreak. We opened our sleepy eyes wide to see what he would do, and our tired ears to hear what he would say.

"By God!" he exclaimed, and naturally we expected that such explosive profanity was a preface to spanking her, or some other form of punishment; but it was sexual passion, no brutal anger, which he voiced. "I love you," he explained, with an illustrative hug and kisses all over her face; "I love you!"

There had been no surface indications of volcanic fires within Carson's breast, and therefore their outbreak amazed us. But the phenomenon didn't awe us. We laughed at it, and our merriment ended the life of "The Trifler" then and there.

* * *

Algernoon Boyeson is a New Yorker in the especial sense of being a young man who not only lives in this town, but is "of New York," due to the prominence of his family as well as the literary distinction of his father. Everyone who pretends to social acquaintance or to a familiarity with the local culture knows, or knows of the Boyeson boys, and Algy in particular. Therefore facts must be appreciated in understanding the preliminary interest in his "psychological study of madness" which Frank Keenan makes known as the latest addition to the Antoinesque theater he is endeavoring to establish in New York.

It is called "A Passion in a Suburb." There can hardly be two opinions as to the lack of intrinsic value in our Algy's maiden essay as a dramatist, but there is much room for argument as to how good his play came near being. What is shown, in a way so bungling as to be surprising even in an amateur, is an insane husband who unjustly suspects his wife of infidelity, who murders his little son and buries him in the snow, and who thereupon strangles the mother to death with a coil of her own hair. This is revolting, unimaginative realism. It is true, also, except in inconsequential details, but it possesses the mere photographic quality, with no trace of the suggestion and significance that make the realism of Ibsen and his worthy followers impressive. It is only a photograph, and a most shocking photograph.

But Mr. Boyeson gave a name to his play that detains a sweeping condemnation, because it indicates a big intention that inexperience in expression has concealed. "A Passion in a Suburb" suggests that this young man had an idea, is little worthy of Ibsen himself. Did Mr. Boyeson conceive of a man, an ordinary, sane New Yorker, upon whose mind the monotony of daily toil and suburban humdrum had so wrought that it became unbalanced? If not, why "in a suburb?" Among the signs of the amateur in the little tragedy is the total disregard of explanation or attempt at what is called "atmosphere."

The incident might occur anywhere, for all the suggestion of time or place, or state of the people concerned, that the words and action give. We are told it is midnight, yet a young child sits on the floor playing blocks. Yet more surprising—to the point of absurdity—is the attitude forced upon the mother when her obviously insane husband carries their child out into the snow "to put it to sleep." She cries wildly that he is "killing my baby," yet makes no move to arrest his violence. And again, when he returns, she suspects he has done the murder, but makes no movement to ascertain the fate of her little one. These are the nails in the coffin of the badness of Mr. Boyeson's first drama.

* * *

A thing that there can be no doubt about is the power of Frank Keenan's acting as the maniac, in conception and in execution. Here is great acting. Mansfield at his best has equaled it, but never excelled it. The madness visible only in the fact and in the creeping twitches of the fingers is so horrible because it is at once so real and so imaginative that unemotional men are distressed by it, and women almost nightly leave the theater in a panic. Of course, the rational conclusion is that a poor use is made of genius, but acting such as this—and such as Mr. Keenan's in each of the four plays in this present bill, according to the limitations of the several parts—is a triumph of art that must not pass unproclaimed, and that, it is to be hoped, will presently be put to a more worthy purpose. But Keenan's depiction of madness it too horrible for entertainment. Women have fainted at it every night, and the play disappears at the end of a single week.

The evening begins with Keenan in the whiskers and suave dignity of an aged inmate of a sanitarium, and continues with him in the unshaven and harsh manner of a burglar in a loft of house breaking—in plays which I described a fortnight ago—but it doesn't end dismally with that awful depiction of a homicidal maniac. There is a bithesome new comedietta, "The Lady Across the Hall," by Julian Street, to send the audience home with nerves more or less quieted. Keenan's face is now smooth and smiling, for it is that of a bachelor who entertains his neighbor, a fair widow, who can't get into her own adjacent apartments on returning late at night from the opera. She is teasingly tempting in a decollete gown, but he is just as much of a gentleman as the title of the play says she is, and far from dreading that anything disastrous will happen to her, I think we rather hope she will at least be kissed by her admirer. But she is never touched, and when she bids him good morning, we are left to imagine the sentimental consequences of the breakfast which she invites him to take with her at noon.

Would a sensitively conscientious girl, believing her lover has murdered his rival, commit a forgery to save him from punishment for his crime? Paul Potter says yes in his drama of "Nancy Stair." The question has a wheedling actress, Mary Mannering, to plead in the affirmative, and she is a persuasive creature, with her beauty of face and voice, to confuse and confound our judgment.

Theatrically irresistibe, too, is her exploit with a counterfeit pen. The duke of Borthwicke sits dead in a chair where a scorned woman has shot him, with a pen still in his hand and a few lines of a letter before him. So, when Nancy comes upon him, knowing that her madly jealous lover, Danvers MacGregor, has threatened to kill him, she does not doubt that Danvers is guilty. But his jealousy proves the genuineness of his passion for her, and, besides she has coquettishly let him believe that she means to marry the duke.

A way to shield him is open before her. She takes the pen from the hand of the corpse, seats herself at the opposite side of the table and forges a continuation of the letter, imitating the duke's writing, making him say that he is about to die a suicide, and attaching his seal to the fraudulent missive. Thereafter the play, which is based on Elinor Macartney Lane's novel, becomes a melodrama of circumstantial evidence, with Danvers tried and all but convicted by a malevolent judge, who refuses to delay the case until the letter may be fetched from London to Edinburgh. So the sentimental forger is compelled to give true testimony against the man for whom she has made the false evidence.

The trial is one of those great stage shows which, 20 years ago, were regarded as marvels of stagecraft if well done, but which have become matters of course in these times of masterly stage realism. The prisoner is the chief of the Scottish clan MacGregor and his people are there to sustain him by their demonstrative presence. The judge is the infamous Carew, a hater of all Highlanders and determined to send the MacGregor to the gallows. Nancy is the unwilling main witness for the prosecution, distracted by belief in her lover's guilt, by her desire to save his life and by the ordeal of telling things which must convict him. Mr. Potter doesn't explain why, having made herself a forger in his behalf, she won't become a perjurer, too. She might at least refuse to answer questions and defy the judge to make her speak. Nor does the dramatist give any reason why she hasn't let her lover know of her desperate effort to clear him, instead of listening mute to his denunciation of her as faithless and pitiless. But at the moment we don't think of those things, unless we are there to pick flaws instead of wielding to the general potency of the situation, for sweet Mary Mannering is in distress and our hearts go out to her. And we applaud delightedly when a man breaks through the crowd, breathless from fatigue of travel, tattered from fighting with rascals who have delayed him, and delivers the forged letter in the nick of time to turn a verdict of guilty into one of innocence.

It is Robert Burns who brings in the precious paper. In the books the Scottish bard was one of Nancy Stair's wooers, and so he is in the play; but Mr. Potter makes him, as Mrs. Lane did not, the girl's messenger to fetch the letter. The poet's approach to the courtroom is heralded by music, the crowd makes a commotion, and instantly he, not the MacGregor, is the hero. That is good for the play, but bad for the "star," for it takes the audience's attention all away from Miss Mannering, so that at the rousing third-act climax she is suddenly out of the calcium's focus.

"Oh, my, but Burns shouldn't have an entrance like that," said the actress at a rehearsal, as she watched the stage director's preparations.

"But I save the MacGregor's life, you know," remarked Tim Frawley, the impersonator of Burns.

"I know you do," she responded, "and I also know you'll kill Nancy Stair."

But Miss Mannering's protest was in vain, and, just as she had foreseen, she was as dead from that moment to the fall of the curtain as the duke of Borthewicke had been when she forged his letter.

* * *

Although "Nancy Stair" is a melodrama, as I have said, it has a spell of light opera and a spell of musical comedy, with the favorite poems of Bobbie Burns sung to the familiar Scotch tunes. Nancy is altogether out of those portions of the entertainment, and so is the MacGregor; nor is the bard himself a principal participant in them; for instead of raising his own voice in "Bannockburn" and "Auld Lang Syne," he scards aside with the chorus of jolly topers at the Marrowbones club, while an incidental Tom Rankine takes the center of the stage, and the eyes as well as the ears of the audience. This is the quarter hour of first-rate light opera. The spell of musical comedy comes an hour or so later, at the White House Inn, where the Marrowbones revelers have an equal number of jolly jades for boon companions.

"Bawby Boorus has written a new poem," says fat Will Nicol, "an' he cu's eet 'Comin' Thro' Tha Rye.'"

"Wha's tha Rye," a girl asks.

Now, to people who know that the lassie whom all the laddies smiled at, and one kissed, as she came through the rye, didn't dampen her "petticoats" in the dew of a field, but in the water of a creek, it seems an impertinence to make Tom Rankine correct the popular error. But it was clear that even a Broadway first-night houseful believed the rye to have been the kind that Scotch whisky is made of. It was essential that there should be no misunderstanding of the lassies when, in the manner of musical comedy showgirls, they held up their "petticoats" roguishly, tripped from one stepping stone to another, and were bussed, each by her laddie, as they sang the ballad's refrain. However, there was one woman present who wouldn't believe Potter.

"Oh bosh," I heard her say behind me to her escort; "I'm not going to lose faith in the picture of 'Coming Through the Rye' that has hung in grandma's room ever since I was a tot."

I knew the one she meant, and some of my readers will recall it—a mezzotint that was given away as a premium to subscribers for "Godey's Lady's Book," showing the bonnie lassie seized and smacked by the braw laddie in a patch through a grain field; and in the time when that picture was made "Godey's" was no more to be doubted than holy writ.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Another Famous Actress In Want—Testimonial To Mme. Modjeska Planned—Tony Pastor's Fortieth Anniversary As a Variety Manager.

New York, April 1.—With the Holland benefit barely over there comes the announcement of another benefit, planned by no less a person than Ignace Paderewski and intended as a testimonial to Helena Modjeska, who has been living in retirement for the last year.

M. Paderewski telegraphed to Chicago asking Mme. Sembrich to take part in the entertainment. M. Paderewski's idea is to give the benefit on May 4 at the Metropolitan. Mme. Sembrich has telegraphed that her present plan is to sail on May 2, but that it will be changed if possible. Both Mme. Sembrich and M. Paderewski are compatriots of Mme. Modjeska, in addition to being her personal friends. M. Paderewski, who was in the West at the time of the Christmas holidays, spent the week at Mme. Modjeska's ranch in California.

It was not known that the actress was in need and the announcement of M. Poderewski's intention has created great astonishment. Mme. Modjeska has during her career here made a fortune and only recently she has received enormous offers for appearances in vaudeville. She has steadily refused these, however.

Mme. Modjeska has not acted for the last year and a half and made her last appearance in the West. She has spent two years recently in her own country and was allowed to act in some of the Polish cities of Austria and Germany, but was forbidden to act in Russia on account of a speech she made during the World's fair in Chicago. Her last appearances in this city were made at the Fifth Avenue theater three years ago.

Daniel Frohman, who was associated with Mme. Modjeska's management, has volunteered to take the arrangements off M. Paderewski's shoulders.

At his home theater last week Tony Pastor celebrated the fortieth anniversary of his career as a manager of variety entertainment. By many Mrs. Pastor is looked upon as the father of the present branch of theatricals we call vaudeville. His first move was in 1865, when he started out to eliminate the rough element from variety bills and cater to women and people of more refined taste than had prior to this given variety their attention. He had a struggle of it for a time, but eventually won out, and all around him today the veteran can look over a field that has grown enormously and is enjoying greater popularity than ever before. The father of variety does not think that so-called vaudeville is a craze. He says it has come to stay and is growing stronger all the time. That Tony is appreciated was shown by the deluge of flowers and the shower of congratulatory telegrams that flocked in on him. One man sent a note inclosing $300 for a balcony seat, with the request that some poor urchin be given the seat, and that Mr. Pastor keep the change as a token from one who had long been entertained by him. Tony went out and hunted up a ragged little urchin, who occupied one of the choice seats in his little theater in Tammany hall and had a high old time at the show.

Recalling some of the people that Pastor introduced into the variety business is like publishing a roster of names covering the best there is in that department of the business. To one interviewer he said:

"I remained in the Bowery ten years, until 1875, when I opened at 585 Broadway, where I introduced Miss Lillian Russell, the peerless prima donna; Nat Goodwin, the great American comedian; Denman Thompson, lovable old Joshua Whitcomb; Billy Scanlan, the sweet singer; May Irwin, who is still making people merry; Francis Wilson, comic opera comedian; McIntyre and Heath, Maggie Cline, Watson and Ellis, Frank Bush, William Harris, manager of the Garrick theater and other theaters, then of Harris and Carroll; Peter Dailey, the popular Pete, then one of the American Four; Russell Brothers, Delehanty and Hengler, French Twin Sisters, Harry Kennedy, author of that beautiful song, 'Say Au Revoir, but Not Good-By;' Bonnie Runnells, John T. Kelly, then of Kelly and Ryan, now a vaudeville headliner; Flora Moore, Ferguson and Mack, and hundreds more. Here in 1878 I presented a condensed version of 'Pinafore,' with Gus Williams as the Dutch Admiral; 'The Pirates of Penzance,' with Lillian Russell as Mabel, her first operatic part.

"I moved to my present location in 1881, and presented Miss Russell in 'Patience,' with May and Flora Irwin and Jacques Anger in the supporting cast.

"Here I had the pleasure of presenting many young performers who have gained distinction, among others, Ross and Fenton, Ballen and Hart, Herbert and Joe Cawthorne, Little Tich, Harry Morris, Old Hoss Hoey and his clever partner, Charles E. Evans, Rice and Barton, now successful managers; Daly Brothers, Joe Hart, Rose and Martin Julian; also, the American debut of Bessie Bonehill, Jenny Hill, Bessie Bellwood, Vesta Tilley, Vesta Victoria, Tom Costello, now a great favorite in England; Millie Hilton, Nellie L'Estange, the great parquette, Flora Gallimore, Henry Cosman, Athas and Reveno, Farrell and Wilmot, and down to the present day, where the list includes all of the favorites of the variety profession."

Some idea of the magnitude of the benefit tendered Joseph Holland at the Metropolitan opera house can be gleaned from the following program that was presented on that occasion:

Victor Herbert and his orchestra.

"The Music Mister," by Edgar Smith, introducing Mr. Courtleigh, Mr. Barnes, George Marion, Alfred Hickman, Edward Abeles, Charles Bowser, Charles Butler, Sam Edwards, Brandon Hurst, Herbert Carr and George Fawcett. Musical director, Theo. Bendix; stage director, Geo. Marion.

A letter from Joseph Jefferson, read by Mrs. Leslie Carter.

William Gillette and Ethel Barrymore in a comedietta entitled, "The Silent System." Stage manager, William Postance.

Evie Greene in French and Irish songs, accompanied by her own musical director, Barter Johns.

"The College Widower," original cast, etc., to be copied from original program, including Robert Edeson and company. Musical director, Maurice Levi.

Intermission—Orchestral selections conducted by Julian Edwards.

"The Entertainment Agency," a one-act travesty, by George H. Broadhurst, introducing Lew Fields, David Warfield, Digby Bell, Nat M. Wills, Sam Bernard, Henry E. Dixey, Francis Wilson, Jefferson D'Angelis, Henry Miller, Peter F. Dailey, Hattie Williams, Vincent Serrano, Henry Woodruff, Joseph Coyne, Hugo Toland, William Courtleigh, Joseph Wheelock, Morgan Coman, Robert Lorraine, William Courtney, Blanche Bates, Blanche Walsh, Phoebe Davis, Hilda Spong, Jessie Busley, Dorothy Donnelly, Dorothy Hammond, Dorothy Dorr, Grace Heyer.

Miss Marie Cahill, the female star of "It Happened in Nordland," now playing in New York, devotes on an average of ten hours a week to the investigation of new songs, mostly of the coon variety. Those ten hours are given to listening to songs which have already been passed on as worthy of further consideration by two or three others, including Miss Cahill's musical director. One may judge from this single instance the number of such harmonies turned out weekly in this country. This also goes to show that Miss Cahill has no intention of discarding the coon song, as has been intimated, because she does not sing one in "It Happened in Nordland." The truth of the matter is that she will not sing a coon song unless she is absolutely sure of its qualty and refinement. She is devoted to the class of ballad which means the perfection of the negro melody which had its origin in the ragtime craze, and for this reason continues her search for good ones without cessation.

At the opening performance of "The Heir to the Hoorah," in Scranton, last week, Manager Kirke La Shelle and the author, Paul Armstrong, were both called before the curtain, neither of them responding, however, until the members of the company had nearly exhausted themselves bowing and smiling to a seemingly endless series of curtain calls. Referring to Mr. Armstrong's remarks next day, the Scranton "Republican" said: "His voice had the ring of elation in it. It had dawned upon him that the play was destined to make a hit. Mr. Armstrong evidently saw the word 'success' written in characters of fire before him. His hearers noted the ring of sincerity in his tones and, sharing his feeling, applauded him with great vigor."

"To see Digby Bell playing the part of an elderly man makes me appreciate the fact that I am getting along in years myself," said he. "I remember Mr. Bell's father very well as a member of the New York Stock Exchange back in '64 and '65, when he was the senior member of the firm of Bell & Yelverton. The elder Bell was, at that time, voted the handsomest man on the New York Stock Exchange and a fine looking old gentleman he was. Digby was a youth of sixteen or seventeen then, and used to come to the exchange sometimes with his father. And dear old Kate Denin Wilson, who is playing Mrs. Pipp! She went south at the close of the war, in the autumn of '65, and I remember her then a handsome young woman playing leads and juvenile roles in the stock company in Macauley's theater, Louisville."

The reminiscent old gentleman was Mr. Harry Heaton, who was a member of the Stock Exchange as late as 1865. He has long been retired from active business, but is still an invincible first-nighter.

Nat Goodwin is evidently trying to be the old Nat who was so popular in days gone by. He has sold his English estate and will summer in California. He also announces his intention of returning to straight comedy, and for next season will be seen in "Beauty and the Barge," a comedy that borders on the farcical.

Sydney Drew, as Tony Lumpkin, and Clara Bloodgood, as Miss Neville, are recent additions to the all-star cast of "She Stoops to Conquer," in which Eleanor Robson is to be featured this spring.

Frank Daniels and company gave a trial performance of the English musical comedy, "Sergeant Brue," in Atlantic City Friday night, and will put in two weeks with it in Philadelphia before going into New York for an indefinite run. The piece has been a big hit in London, with Willie Edouin in the role that Daniels will essay in this country.

According to the London Pall Mall Gazette "Rip Van Winkle" and "The Old Homestead" are looked upon as the greatest financial successes ever produced on the English-speaking stage. It is estimated that these two plays have earned over $10,000,000. Pinero's "Sweet Lavender," which has made nearly half a million, is the dramatic success of England. Musically the record is held by "A Chinese Honeymoon," which is the only musical piece that ever ran over 1,000 nights in London, and which to date has netted the owners nearly $400,000.

Elsie Janis, sometimes called the American Cissie Loftus, and an unusually clever child mimic, has at last been able to appear in New York City. For years this child entertainer was kept out of the metropolis by the Gerry society on account of her extreme youth. The other day she celebrated her sixteenth birthday and snapped her fingers at the Gerry agents, as she has passed the age limit and is eligible. Her imitations have created quite a stir there.

Mrs. Fiske's present success, "Leah Kleschna," is attested in the act that last week a burlesque of that play by Charles J. Ross was brought out in New York. It is called "Leah Kessler," with Mabel Fenton in the role that burlesques Mrs. Fiske's production.

For ways that are devious and tricks that are dubious, the modern property man seems in a fair way to take the gloss off of Bret Harte's "Heathen Chinee." The latest stunt of the master of "props" of "The Virginian" company in this direction would seem hard to beat. During the long run of the play in New York last winter, it became a fad with the aggressive type of matinee girl to secure one of the shells of the cartridges with which Dustin Farnum, as the Virginian, kills Trampas at each performance. The fad has spread westward with the progress of the company's tour and the property man has not been slow to seize his opportunity. He sells the cartridges for one round dollar each to such matinee maids as apply, and in the kindness of his heart he has discharged several hundred cartridges during his idle moments so that no fair applicant for none of the souvenirs needs be disappointed.

Miss Katharine Mulkins, who has played the part of Pert in "Checkers" ever since the play was first produced, is making her final appearances in the part she created. Next season, if present plans prevail, she will be seen at the head of her own company presenting a comedy now being written for her by an English playwright. The story of the play is laid on the estates of the earl of Dunmore, who se grandniece Miss Mulkins is, and it tells of an important episode in which Miss Mulkins figured shortly before she came to this country. Miss Mulkins is a typical English girl of the slender, graceful type. Her face is perfect in outline, her complexion the pure blonde of her native land. She has a voice of a distinct musical quality and her personality has a great deal of the winsome quality that distinguishes that of Annie Russell.

The short dancing exit used by Miss Marie Cahill, the female star of "It Happened In Nordland," in the finale of that piece, causes many to ask why she does not dance more. It also recalls to others that she was at one time, and might be today if she cared to, the most graceful dancer on the American stage.

"They were the steps on which I rose," facetiously remarked Miss Cahill on being asked about it, "and I advise all girls who intend to take up stage work, or who desire to be an ornament socially, to study dancing of the so-called fancy variety. It gives one a graceful pose and a confident manner."

Ethel Barrymore is to have a try at Ibsen next month in Chicago, as several special matinee performances of "Doll's House" are booked for their engagement at Power's theater along with her regular performances of "Sunday." Miss Barrymore will be supported in her Ibsen undertaking by the members of her present company.

Cecelia Loftus is reported to have signed a contract last week for a week's appearance in vaudeville shortly, for which she is to be paid $3,150 by Manager Proctor, who has engaged the noted mimic for one of his Eastern theaters. This breaks all records for vaudeville salaries, the highest salary ever paid an actor or actress before being $3,000, which J. J. Murdock gave the four Cohans for a week on the Masonic Temple roof in Chicago several summers back.

Louis Mann, who is starring in "The Second Fiddle," has been a victim of the grip for the past two weeks, and his tour was temporarily abandoned during the period of his illness.

The men players in Kirke La Shelle's "The Virginian" company have organized what they have aptly appellated the "Jolt Society." It was born of the brain of Dustin Farnum and subsequent working out of his idea has caused him to express regret and frequent pain. It will be remembered that the majority of the male parts in "The Virginian" are impersonations of cowboys. Now, a cowboy actor to be real must have a certain stoop of shoulder, a mild slouch of gait and essentially he must "toe-in." Farnum and the other members of the company do these things so perfectly and so frequently on the stage that the slouch, the bended shoulders and the toe-in have become a habit with them that is occasionally embarrassing. The members of "The Virginian" company were tendered a reception in Minneapolis. Just as the gentlemen were about to enter Frank Campeau elbowed Farnum under the fourth rib and remarked: "Heads up and toes out; we're in society."

"Great," said Farnum.

"What's great," asked Campeau.

"Tell you later," replied Farnum.

At the theater that evening Farnum called the men of the company together and sprung the "Jolt society" on them. Its only object is to correct the street appearance of its members, requiring as it does, that when any one member beholds another "toeing-in" while on the street, in hotels or any place off the state the thoughtful member shall jolt the thoughtless one on the most convenient and accessible portion of his anatomy. These jolts have gradually degenerated into thumps, bumps and whacks and, while such "soreness" as has resulted been entirely physical, nevertheless the loyalty of the members toward the society is growing noticeably less.

Eugene Sue's "The Wandering Jew" is to have a spectacular production the beginning of next season. The dramatization was made by the late Nelson Wheatcroft. The central figure, Dagobert, will be played by William Morris, who is now appearing in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram."

• • •

Charles Frohman has obtained the English rights of "La Belle Marseillaise," by Pierre Berton, author of "Zaza," through Sanger & Jordan's agency. In view of this fact, the cables from London, repeated in New York newspapers a week apart, that the manager had visited Paris solely to get this play, are interesting.

• • •

Sam S. Shubert, who is now in London, has just obtained the American rights of a new play by C. M. S. McClellan, author of Mrs. Fiske's drama, "Leah Kleschina." The new play, under the title of "The Jury of Fate," will be given its American premiere early next season.

Venus is to be the name of a new comic opera now being written for Enda Aug.

• • •

John O. Hewitt, of the Edward Terry company, has just completed a new four-act romantic comedy drama of the present day. "The Heir of Baratavia," which will be produced this spring.

• • •

A. Baldwin Sloane, composer of "Lady Teazle," will write the music for a new opera, the book of which is being written by Jan Schmedding and Louis C. Ling of Detroit. It will be entirely American in theme and of a new type, and will be backed by New York capital and produced early in the fall. The company will be organized and cast by Matt Grau. Louis C. Ling is dramatic critic of the Detroit Journal, and Mr. Schmedding is a member of the Journal's editorial staff.

As the status of Old Heidelberg is not quite clear, the Messrs. Shubert announce that the play is fully protected, and that they own and control the exclusive dramatic rights to it. Some time ago Aubrey Boucicault made a translation of "Old Heidelberg" for them, but his representation of the piece did not meet with popular favor. This being the case, the Messrs. Shubert will not permit any translation of "Old Heidelberg" to be represented except the one used by Richard Mansfield.

Charles Dillingham of New York, has arranged with T. B. Davis to present for the London season Maxine Elliott at the Lyric theater, beginning Easter Monday, April 24. Miss Elliott will appear in Clyde Fitch's "Her Own Way." The entire production and the company supporting her in America will go to London for the season. As Mr. Dillingham represents Klaw & Erlanger this would seem an entrance into Charles Frohman's Port Arthur.

• • •

Lillian Russell would not play at the matinee of "Lady Teazle," March 18, in Hartford, Conn., as it is her contract that she shall not give matinees in one-night stands, and only one on week stands. Without consulting her, Charles Bradford in advance had arranged for a matinee when he saw the house all sold out so quickly for that night. H. C. Parsons will probably sue the Shuberts, as there was $2,200 in the house.

Adele Rafter is meeting with success singing Frank D. Bryan's new march song, "It Makes Me Think of Home, Sweet Home."

• • •

Benjamin Hapgood Burt has placed his new song, "A Thousand Miles From Land," with Alec Clark, who will feature it in the production of "The Earl and the Girl."

• • •

"On the Farm in Old Missouri," is being featured by a great many high class illustrated singing acts, and the publishers, Continental Music company, are highly gratified with the impression made by it. The slides to this song are very pretty, and are appreciated by singers as well as the public.

• • •

John King, with Lew Dockstader's minstrels, is making a favorable impression with "What's the Matter With the Mail?" the new coon song by Fred J. Hamlin and Percy Wenrich.

• • •

Mabelle Gilman is studying for grand opera in Paris under M. de Reszke. She is to appear as Carmen in New York next autumn.

• • •

Langdon Mitchell is at work on a play for Henriletta Crosman, which is scheduled for production next year.

• • •

Mrs. Charles Calvert of the Haymarket theater, London, who is being brought to America this spring by George C. Tyler, especially to play Mrs. Hardcastle in the forthcoming Liebler & Co.'s production of "She Stoops of Conquer," which is to have its first presentation at the New Amsterdam theater, April 17, sailed from Liverpool on the Celtic, March 24. Her former visits in the companies of Edwin Booth, Mary Anderson and Mrs. Langtry are well remembered.

BAD GUESSES ON PLAYS

Famous Successes That Were First Rejected—Some Mistakes Made By Managers and Actors.

A playwright of limited practical experience but wide knowledge of the drama opened an office a few years ago from which he proposed to disseminate information of great value to managers. He was going to tell them before they produced a play whether it would be successful. There have been unexpected failures of plays since that time, just as there used to be, and there have been successes very difficult to explain. So probably the managers failed to take advantage of this wise man's offer.

If he could do what he offered to do his judgment would be as valuable as that of a stock broker who could tell his patrons just what stocks were going up or down. It is true that any man possessed of this knowledge would probably buy the right stocks himself and avoid the bad ones, and thus be relieved of the less profitable task of advising others. This truth applies to dramatic prophets also.

Managers know that they make mistakes and feel little sensitiveness about it. In the long run they make more good guesses than bad ones, else they would soon be out of business. So it does not trouble them to be reminded of the chances they lost when plays ultimately popular were refused by them.

A. M. Palmer, who died a few days ago, had for a year in his desk the manuscript of "My Partner," the most successful play that the late Bartley Campbell ever wrote. Mr. Palmer read it and reread it, and finally decided that the chances of success were too slight for him to produce it.

Finally, Louis Aldrich bought the play, gathered a company and produced it in the late summer at the old Union Square theater. It made a fortune for him and its author.

Another similar experience in Mr. Palmer's career came in the case of "Alabama," which practically established the reputation of Augustus Thomas as a playwright. Mr. Palmer was very much in need of a play at the Madison Square theater during the last year of his tenancy there. Mr. Thomas' comedy of Southern life was in his possession, and had been for several years. But the manager had no confidence in it.

After a while his need for a new play became so pressing that he took what he considered a desperate chance and produced "Alabama." It was the greatest success of his later career and carried him over until Paul Potter made his famous dramatization of "Trilby," which lifted the veteran manager out of many financial embarrassments.

"The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" was for a year in the possession of Daniel Frohman, who at the end of that time returned it to Arthur Pinero without exercising his right to produce it. It had not been given in London, because the author had not discovered Mrs. Pat Campbell at that time and could find no woman to whom he was willing to entrust the leading role.

Pinero's drama of the erring Paula has made a fortune since Mr. Frohman refused to produce it. But Mr. Frohman's conscience is perfectly clear as to his conduct in returning the manuscript.

In those days he had the old Lyceum theater, which appealed to a special clientele. It was his province to see that the plays acted there were innocent, whatever else they might be. Their strong card was in every case to be their purity. Nobody could attribute that quality to "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," so back it went to its author.

Five years ago Henry Miller was playing at the Amphion theater in Brooklyn. He was then trying to find a play—a search in which he has encountered much difficulty. A popular actor, he has more than once been sacrificed to stupid dramas or unsuitable roles.

One night a messenger brought him word that Richard Ganthony wanted to speak to him. Mr. Miller had no recollection of having met anybody of that name, but after the play the visitor was brought to his dressing room. He said he had come to get the manuscript of a play which he had sent to Mr. Miller more than a year before. He mentioned the name and the character of the piece.

Mr. Miller racked his brain in vain to recall it and what he had done with it.

"You leave me your address," he said finally to the playwright, "and I will let you have your piece. I have recently put some trunks in storage and it may be that the manuscript is in one of them. At all events, I will look it up."

The next day Mr. Miller sought for the manuscript among the trunks and ultimately found it and returned it to its owner. The play turned out to be "A Message From Mars."

Charles Hawtrey acted in it in London for an entire year, and it is still playing with success in this country. Mr. Miller took this experience philosophically as an episode that might happen to any actor whose judgment about plays becomes after a while so clouded that it is difficult for him to tell what is good and what is not.

The experience of the Bernard Shaw plays has been as curious in this country as in England. Richard Mansfield several years ago became an enthusiastic convert to Shaw's genius and decided that he must produce "Candida." He was to act it at the Garrick theater and brought Janet Achurch to this country on the recommendation of the author as the actress best capable of playing the leading role.

After two or more rehearsals Mr. Mansfield, who was unable to decide whether he should play the young poet or the husband, gave up all idea of acting the drama and kept Miss Achurch here for an entire season on full salary rather than take the risk of producing the play which turned out so successful for Arnold Daly. No commercial manager for years thought of touching one of the Shaw comedies after that.

Mrs. Fiske wanted to play "Captain Brassbound's Conversion," but would not agree to the terms on which Shaw was willing to let the play be used. "You Never Can Tell," was written on the order of Cyril Maude, the manager of the Haymarket theater in London, who refused positively to act in the piece when he discovered that the hero was a dentist and that the first act passed in a dentist's office. Charles Frohman and other New York managers had the manuscript of "You Never Can Tell," but none of them thought of acting it until Arnold Daly with "Candida" showed that at least could be successful in a Shaw play.

Augustus Thomas seems to have puzzled other managers besides A. M. Palmer. "Arizona" was peddled from pillar to post and refused by every manager who saw it, until Kirke La Shelle produced it in Chicago with great success. Then Mr. Frohman made a contract with Augustus Thomas by which he was to have an option on every play he wrote for the next five years. Naturally Mr. Thomas got a substantial sum every year for allowing Mr. Frohman this privilege.

The successor of "Alabama" was "Colorado," and it lasted for about two unhappy weeks at Wallack's theater. Not long afterward Mr. Thomas wrote "The Earl of Pawtucket," with the idea of utilizing the droll British mannerisms of Lawrence D'Orsay, who was at that time in Mr. Frohman's employ.

But Mr. Frohman saw no value in Mr. D'Orsay as a star and passed up the piece which is the most successful farce produced in this country in a decade. Kirke La Shelle was again the lucky manager in profiting by Mr. Frohman's refusal of a play and is still coining money with a Thomas farce.

When David Belasco came forward after several years of retirment with "The Heart of Maryland" he made the condition that Mrs. Leslie Carter should act the leading role, whoever produced the play. He met with rebuffs on every side. No manager wanted his play, and for Mrs. Carter's services there was no demand whatever.

Ultimately A. M. Palmer showed some interest in the piece, as he was hard up for a play, but he could guarantee bookings for only a part of the season, and if the play was a success its chances would be permanently jeparded by such treatment. Mr. Belasco decided, therefore, to take further risks and get some backer who would enable him to put on the drama in a way that would give it a chance of success. He ultimately found this person outside of the theatrical profession, and "The Heart of Maryland" established both the author and Mrs. Carter on their present level in American theatricals.

Another successful play had similar difficulties. When Hall Caine sent the dramatization of "The Christian" over to this country no manager would touch it. They had all kinds of objections to make to it. It would shock religious people. It was too preachy and too undramatic. The manuscript came back to Elizabeth Marbury's office with such regularity that even her customary eloquence on behalf of an unfortunate play could seemingly do nothing for this victim.

After a while it happened that Viola Allen, who was about to become a star, wanted a play in which to make her first appearance. She naturally found herself on the way to Miss Marbury's office.

"What you want, Miss Allen," the playbroker said to her, "is something more than a merely play to attract attention during your first year as a star. You want something sensational that will be talked about on religious or other grounds. Just take this manuscript home with you."

So Miss Allen went home with "The Christian" tucked under her arm. She was rather an uncertain proposition as a star in those early days, so she had made with her managers an arrangement which guaranteed her a very small salary but a very large percentage of the profits. "The Christian" swept everything before it that year, and after acting in it for two seasons Miss Allen was a rich woman. Yet every New York manager had refused the play.

It often happens that new dramatist gets his opportunity through the star rather than the manager, if he is able to offer a play containing an attractive part. Hubert Davies was an unknown quantity until Elizabeth Marbury received some of his plays and was struck with their originality. She wanted one of them for Elsie De Wolfe.

Among the plays that young Davies sent from San Francisco to her were "Cousin Kate," "Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace," and "Cynthia." Miss De Wolfe read the three and selected "Cynthia," because she thought it best suited to her talents and because she preferred to play the part of a very young woman. It was a failure here and in London, whereas the other two plays succeeded in both countries. Miss De Wolfe made an error in her selection, but it is to her, nevertheless, that Mr. Davies owes his discovery as a playwright.

Mrs. Fiske had the courage to take "Leah Kleschna" after it had been refused here and in London by every manager to whom it was submitted. Once it was successfully acted, the scramble for the London rights began and is not yet settled.

When Sir Charles Young wrote "Jim the Penman," he could persuade no London manager to produce it, and finally tried the play out at a matinee performance for which he was compelled to supply the money himself. Later the piece was a historic success.

"My Friend From India," which was as successful in its way as the "Earl of Pawtucket" has been later, also found no appreciation among the regular managers, and was finally produced under very modest circumstances by managers who had difficulty in raising the money to do it.

FORMING ALLIANCE OF LABOR AND FARMERS

Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor and the State Grange Fraternize—They Join Hands To Install the Referendum.

Washington, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A most important and far-reaching political alliance has been perfected between organized labor and the organized farmers for reform legislation. This movement occurred at the convention of the State Federation of Labor which was held a Williamsport, Pa., last week, when W. F. Hill, the master of the Pennsylvania State grange, was admitted as a fraternal delegate, and the labor convention resolved to be represented by fraternal delegates at the next meeting of the state grange convention. For some time the leaders of those two organizations have been working for legislation in unison, but this is the first time the movement has been officially ratified. This alliance between wage-earners and farmers was accomplished by the unanimous adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolved, that we heartily endorse the program of the American Federation of Labor, the Pennsylvania State grange, the People's Sovereignty league and the National Direct Legislation league for the establishment of the advisory initiative and advisory referendum in national affairs as the result of next year's campaign, the majority vote in the house to be secured through the questioning of candidates for congress, and the majority vote in the senate by pledging the candidates for the legislatures that, if elected, they will vote to instruct the hold-over senators, and will vote only for such candidates for the United States senate as are pledged to the system, and we point to the fact that three years ago there were pledged to this program nine of the sixteen congressmen from Missouri and Missouri's junior senator, also the junior senator from Illinois and several other congressmen from Chicago, and various other members of the house, there being no opposition to the establishment of the people's sovereignty where there existed an organized sentiment for a democratic republic; and

Resolved, that we approve the determination of the president of our federation and the master of the state grange to introduce in the general assembly of the commonwealth, at the earliest practicable moment, a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment for the initiative and referendum, and to introduce a bill for the immediate establishment of the initiative and referendum in municipal affairs; also a bill for the immediate establishment of the advisory initiative and advisory referendum in state affairs, and a bill for direct nominations for public office; and

Resolved, That our legislative committee continues the program for the questioning of legislative candidates, the system to be strenghtened by the measures set forth in Resolution 39 of the last convention of the American Federation of Labor, namely, that "whenever a central or local union fails to circulate petitions or questions to candidates when requested by the National Federation or State Federation, the National or State body shall instruct a local representative to do the work in the name of the American Federation of Labor or State Federation of Labor, and to sign as 'Local Representative;'" and

Resolved, That we endorse the position of the national organization with which we are affiliated, the American Federation of Labor, wherein it declares that the establishment of the people's sovereignity is the dominant issue, and urges that every voter should agree with his fellow-citizens that he will vote for such legislative candidates only as are pledged to the immediate establishment of the people's rule "Today, as in 1776," continues this greatest of the world's organizations of workingmen, representing one-eighth the people of this country, "the establishment of political liberty is the dominant issue. Why should voters choose between rulers when they can at once become the sovereign power?"

The joint resolution for a constitutional amendment to the constitution of the State of Pennsylvania for the Initiative and Referendum and the other bills on the same subject named in the above resolutions have been introduced in the legislature according to program.

These laboringmen and farmers do not expect these bills to pass at this session, but they do intend to make them an issue of the next state election, and by demanding pledges of the candidates of all parties to support such measures and by voting for those candidates only who will so pledge themselves they expect to accomplish this reform. Pennsylvania is so utterly controlled by machine politics that it would seem to be an enormous undertaking to dislodge the Republican machine, for that is what the adoption of the referendum would mean, but as 75 per cent of the voting strength of the Republican party in that state is composed of laboringmen and farmers, the political machine will have to accept these reform measures or have great difficulty in electing their congressional and legislative candidates. The enormous Republican majority at the last election would melt away if 18 per cent of those laboringmen and farmers, who voted the Republican ticket in Pennsylvania should transfer their votes to the Democratic candidates. The movement is upon its face non-partisan, that is the platform of each party pledge their candidates for congress and the legislature to support the program for the referendum as agreed upon, but this is likely to result in the election of the Democratic candidates in at least, close districts, unless the Republican machine allow their candidates to so declare themselves. The Democrats being so largely in the minority and the two last national conventions of that party having declared for the principle of the referendum, their candidates will jump at the chance to pledge themselves when questioned.

That these wage earners and farmers are aiming at the control of national politics is indicated by the summary of their program, in a speech to the convention by fraternal delegate George H. Shibley of the People's Sovereignty league, who said:

"There are three great political inventions of far-reaching importance. First, that the people's sovereignty can be established without waiting to change the written constitution. Secondly, that it can be secured in state and nation in a single campaign—no waiting to elect new senators, and third, that the systematic questioning of candidates prevents an evasion of the issues by the party machine and the candidates' self-interest does the rest.

"In short, the path to liberty is open and can be traveled as rapidly as the campaigns can be reached. This year the cities that elect aldermen and mayors should emancipate themselves, as have Buffalo, Detroit, Toronto and lesser cities. Next spring the remaining cities should free themselves. And then in the state and national campaigns of next year the legislature and congress should be pledged.

"Committed to the task is the American Federation of Labor, representing one-eighth of the people of this country, and no candidate dares to openly oppose the program. What is to prevent a complete success? Furthermore, the organized farmers stand with you against machine rule, and so do the anti-monopoly business interests; also the churches and several societies, such as the Turners, while the latest re-enforcement is the president of the United States, who is determined to outflank the obstinate senate and monopolists who are back in the senate.

WON PLACE ON MERIT.

New United States Marshal of Porto Rico.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 1.—On March 4, just past, Elbert H. Hubbard of this city, became congressman for this district. It has just been announced that his brother, Harry S. Hubbard, will be made United States marshal for Porto Rico, a position worth $5,000 a year.

Congressman Hubbard's supposed success in getting the family so well attached to the government pay roll on such remarkably short notice, was the occasion of much comment, as soon as the announcement came from Washington. In fact it has been a little embarrassing to the new congressman.

It turns out that the Porto Rico Hubbard got his appointment without anybody's help at all. Eight years ago he was cashier of a Sioux City bank that failed in the bank crash of that time, and swept away his fortune. Hubbard was energetic and determined, and he went to Porto Rico. He had no money, and after nearly starving, secured work at $30 a month as timekeeper for a gang of street workers. He studied Spanish diligently. The contractor discovered he was an expert bookkeeper and helped him along.

When a United States marshalship was established on the island, Hubbard secured the deputyship, because he was an accountant and had become proficient in Spanish. Since that time he has served continuously as deputy, has married a Porto Rican woman, and is now to be promoted to the marshal's position strictly on his merits. No Iowa influence whatever was brought to bear, and Iowa politicians did not know he was to be given the place till it was announced from Washington.

IMPORTANT CAPTURE

Of Counterfeiters Made at Great Falls.

Helena, Mont., March 31.—William J. Clark and Frank Boyce have been arrested at Great Falls, on charge of passing counterfeit money. It is believed they are members of a gang operating on an extensive scale, as several towns on Montana have suffered from their operations. From papers found in their possession, it is believed the coins were shipped from Seattle, and washed in gold, being passed principally on saloon-keepers at night. They had a route in Helena from one end of the street to the other. Anaconda, Missoula and Great Falls also suffered.

THE APRIL MAGAZINES

Scribner's magazine for April is a special Spring number, with a drawing of "Spring" by Blendon Campbell reproduced in brilliant coloring for the frontispiece, a double-page color-picture by Guerin entitled "Spring in Union Square," and a poem, "Wild Geese in April," with decorations by Ernest Haskell. The number is also notable for its array of distinguished contributors, including Richard Harding Davis, Thomas Nelson Page, Josephine Kaskam Bacon, Mme. Waddington, Edith Wharton and Margaret Sherwood—all of them among the best writers in this country. Mr. Davis, as the result of many campaigns and exploring trips, writes on "Kits and Outfits," giving his judgment as to the necessary things which every sportsman or correspondent should take with him in the field. He admits that every man of experience has his own special hobby in this respect, but his own preferences are set forth with amusing frankness and in a way that will interest every lover of outdoor sport and travel. Thomas Nelson Page writes of the representative university of the South—the university of Virginia, which on April 15th will inaugurate its first regular president, the government hitherto having been centred, as Jefferson directed, in a chairman of the board. Mr. Page is an alumnus and ardent friend of the university, and depicts the long and heroic struggle of Jefferson to bring into being this unique institution. It is an inspiring record of great achievements from small material resources. The article is illustrated with a number of Guerin's pictures of its beautiful buildings.

• • •

Since most readers in picking up a magazine find their attention attracted first by the illustrations, two series of pictures in the April Century may be noted before review of the text: The drawings of Jules Guerin and Andre Castaigne, illustrating Richard Whiteing's "The Chateaux of the Loire," two of Guerin's pictures in color, and Sigismond Ivanowski's ideal portraits of three Tolstoi characters, Katia, Mariana and Anna Karenina. Among the varied contents of the April Century Melville E. Stone's story of "The Work of the Associated Press" is perhaps of the most general interest. This is the first of a series of articles on the largest news-gathering service in the world, and recounts Mr. Stone's interviews with the pope, the president of the French republic, the emperor of Germany, the king of Italy, and other authorities—interviews which helped to make possible the "A. P.'s" present extensive foreign service. In this issue, too, is the first of two articles by Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee on her interesting experiences as the head of a band of white American Red Cross nurses in the army hospitals of Japan. Helen Zimmern contributes a seasonable account of the curious ceremony of the car on Holy Saturday in Florence.

• • •

Among the many illustrations in the April Harper's are two drawings by Howard Pyle, illustrating a story by Mrs. Dudeney, which are powerful in conception and execution. In strong contrast to the passion and stress of these is a wood-engraving by Henry Wolf, from a painting by Wyant of a woodland scene in the Adirondacks, and a group of drawings in tint by Frank French, illustrating his own article, on "The Brook," of which both pictures and text possess a genuine outdoor charm. In still another artistic vein is an article on medieval libraries, illustrated from rare old prints and illuminated manuscripts. Other pictures in this attractive spring number are by Albert Sterner, Alice Barber Stephens, and F. Lee Mann. There are eight crisp and delightful short stories, besides an instalment of Mrs. Humphry Ward's "The Marriage of William Ashe." They are written by Mrs. Henry Dudeney, Elizabeth Bart. Phelps, Herman Whitaker, Abby Meguire Roach, Emery Pottle, Kate Whiting Patch, William McMurtie Speer and George T. Weston.

• • •

A worthy subject for a powerful pen is the life of Pere Lacombe, a "Wilderness Apostle of the North," which A. C. Laut contributes to April Outing. Bravest and best-beloved of American missionaries, Lacombe lived for half a century among the Indians, nursing them through plagues, fighting by them in their wars and teaching them a religion they could understand. Widely different from this is E. J. O. Alsop's account of "The Holy City of the Hindus," with vivid photographs and descriptions of the strange customs of these remote people. "House-boating Life on the Mississippi," by Clifton Johnson, tells of strange modes of living near home. Household economy is brought down to an astonishingly low point on this river, where the voyager collects his own wood, catches a dinner of fish and pays no rent. "Spring Work in the Garden," a practical and really helpful article for the amateur gardener could not have come more seasonably.

• • •

Seasonable and springlike from cover to cover is the April Housekeeper. In addition to a wealth of fiction, verses and beautiful illustrations, there are numerous articles covering the various phases of Eastertide. Unique table decorations for this festival occasion are portrayed by illustrations from photos. In the regular department of the Entertainer, conducted by Marjorie March, hints are given for Eastertide parties and luncheons. Delicious seasonable dishes that can be made in the most modestly equipped kitchen are described and illustrated by Elizabeth W. Morrison, the well-known authority on matters culinary.

• • •

The anniversary number of the Burr McIntosh Monthly (April) is one of the most attractive issues of "the most beautiful magazine in the world" put out by the publishers. It contains three pages in superb colors, sixteen pages in two colors and forty other pages in duotone ink, all printed on fine enamel paper. Several well-known society people are portrayed, among them Mrs. Daniel R. Hanna, Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins and Mrs. J. B. Haggin. Exquisite views of Palm Beach, Fla., and the automobile races at Ormond are among the panoramic pictures shown. Other nature views complete the number, and the magazine is bound in the usual unique for mwith silk cord.

• • •

The April Atlantic opens with an illuminating article on "The Cost of War," by C. J. Bullock, who looks upon warfare as rapidly becoming too expensive for endurance, a fact which makes for peace and arbitration as fast as nations shall begin to realize their burdens. Charles F. Dole contributes a paper on "The Right and Wrong of the Monroe Doctrine." His view is that changing circumstances have made the original Monroe doctrine obsolete, and that we now have nothing to fear from foreign influences in South America. A remarkable paper, which will challenge attention, is that in which Prof. Hugo Munsterberg philosophizes over "The Eternal Life" in a meditative and poetically psychologic vein.

• • •

The International Quarterly for April contains a striking essay by Maurice Maeterlinck, in which the forces at play on a modern battlefield are analyzed in a peculiarly suggestive way under the title of "The Gods of War." Other essays in the current issue of this journal are contributed by Kenyon Cox on "Michelangelo;" Okakura-Kakuzo, the Japanese writer, on "The Cup of Humanity" (tea); Prof. N. S. Shaler on "The Future of Power;" Gustav Lanson on "The Historic Method of Jules Michelet;" Sydney Olivier, late governor of Jamaica, on "The White Man's Burden at Home;" the Rev. Washington Gladden on "The Church and Social Work," and by Capt. E. L. Zalinski, U. S. A. (retired), on "Modern Siege Operations at Port Arthur."

• • •

Among the notable features of the Argonaut for March 27 are a translation of a brisk, vivacious, slightly naughty French tale of a lottery ticket. It is called "013,023: The Story of the Winning Loss," and is taken from the original of William Busnach by Mabel H. Brown; a characteristic letter from the always interesting New York correspondent of the Argonaut, Geraldine Bonner, called "Hospitality in New York;" an extremely informative article entitled "The Gold on Cocos Island," being an account of the history of the legendary treasure and of its many secrets; an extended review, with interesting extracts, of Mrs. Humphry Ward's new book, "The Marriage of William Ashe," and a criticism of Creston Clarke in "Monsieur Beaucaire," by Josephine Hart Phelps.

• • •

The special features of the April number of the Review of Reviews are a character sketch of Field Marshal Oyama, the Japanese victor of Mukden, by Adachi Kinnosuke; illustrated articles on "Portland and the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition," by Edgar B. Piper, and "What the Portland Exposition Really Celebrates," by Agnes C. Laut; an appreciation of Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, who is to be installed on Jefferson's birthday, April 13, as first president of the university of Virginia, by Prof. William P. Trent, followed by a description of "Thomas Jeferson's University," with pictures, by Prof. Charles W. Kent; a full account of the government's beef investigation by Dr. Edward Dana Durand, special examiner of the bureau of corporations; the story of the Kansas oil fight by Charles M. Harger; a study of Austro-Hungarian contemporary politics, with portraits of the Emperor Francis Joseph and other important personalities, by Dr. M. Baumfeld; an illustrated article on "The Centenary of Hans Christian Anderson," by Julius Moritzen.

• • •

The Popular Science Monthly for April contains the following articles: "The Menace to Niagara," by Dr. John M. Clarke; "Sunspots and Weather," by Professor Ernest W. Brown; "Medical Research: Its Place in the University Medical School," by Dr. Theobald Smith; "The Problem of Immigration," by Dr. Allan McLaughlin; "Age and Eminence," by Professor Edwin G. Dexter; "Authority in English Pronouncfation," by Professor Edwin W. Bowen; "The Bermuda Islands and the Bermuda Biological Station for Research," by Professor Edward L. Mark; "Does Higher Education Unfit Women for Motherhood?" by Olivia K. Fernow.

• • •

The April Arena is an unusually able number. Persons interested in civic rightcousness and progressive movements along many different lines will find a rich fund for thought in the following papers: "Lawmakers Who Shame the Republic," by Rudolph Blankenburg; "Municipal Ownership and League Organization," by ex-Mayor Wolsian E. Brown of Passaic, N. J.; "What the Second City of Great Britain is Doing for Her People; or, Where Municipal Ownership is in Full Flower," by Clara Bewick Colby; "Switzerland and Her Ideal Government; or, Direct Legislation in the Alpine Republic," by O. K. Hewes; "The Second Great Struggle Between Autocracy and Democracy in the Republic," by B. P. Powell.

• • •

The first article of the current issue of Records of the Past is on the "Peabody Museum of Harvard," and shows by numerous fine illustrations the work of the museum, and its collections. Although the museum is best known by its work in Mexico and Yucatan, yet the author, F. H. Mead, shows the broad field covered by its collections which illustrate the life, customs and implements of races in all parts of the world. The arrangement of the museum is geographical as far as that is practicable. Perhaps the most interesting section of the article on "Wisconsin Caches," by Chrales E. Brown, the secretary of the Wisconsin Archaeological society, is that which deals with caches of copper implements, which have been found in the state. The finds consist of copper spearpoints, fishhooks, axes, awls, pikes, beads and a knife.

• • •

The April number of Pearson's Magazine contains nine special articles, besides eight short stories, the leading article being a profusely illustrated one, "The Church of the Holy Sepulcher." "Fighting Fog by Electricity" is an account of the latest world-famous invention, which bids fair almost to revolutionize travel at sea. "Vaccinating the Ground" tells of the wonderful innovation by which the United States Agricultural bureau expects to lessen the need for artificial fertilizers. One of the most stirring accounts of automobile experiences appears in this number, under the title "The Automobile Roughing It." "The Music Master" and David Warfield," "The Self-Supporting Home," the baseball articles' "The Men on Whom the Championships Depend," and Augustus Lerrok's final instalment of "How a Big Newspaper is Conducted," complete the list of "specials."

• • •

Lippincott's Magazine for April opens with a novelette of extraordinary attractiveness to both men and women readers. Its title is "A Fool for Love;" its author, Francis Lynde. It deals with a railroad fight in the far West and its love interest centers in the chief engineer of the Utah Short line and a captivating niece of the vice president of the Colorado & Grand River railroad, a man otherwise known as the "Rajah," who has fought his way to the front and is disinclined to show mercy on" the other fellow." With love and loyalty pointing in different directions, it would be a nice question which to put money on, but for the comfort of the gentler sex, it may be hinted that the story ends as it should. "From the Pedestal," by Elizabeth McCracken, is a sweet and clever tale of psychologic trend, placed in Boston, though, for the matter of that, the difference between a man's love of one girl and his worship of another is the same all the world over, not alone at the Hub.

• • •

From the cover design, with its blended suggestions of spring's freshness and the Lenten season, to the closing pages, The Reader Magazine for April is fresh, crisp, timely, and entertaining, and each department has something of interest to offer. The selection of fiction is exceptionally well chosen. Elliott Flower contributes another of his inimitable stories, "An Incidental Courtship," for which George Brehm has furnished a charming illustration. The first instalment of a two-part story, "Bobby's Return," by Gouverneur Morris, is strikingly illustrated by Clyde Squires, and the April installment of Octave Thanet's strong serial, "The Man of the Hour," is forcefully pictured by Lucius Wolcott Hitchcock. "The Wedding of Triony," by Philip Sidney Howe, and "The Associated Widow," one of Katherine M. Roof's humorous short stories, also appears in this number. In the serious offerings the third instalment of "My Own Story," by Caleb Powers, brings the narrative down to the time of Powers' second trial, the article being illustrated with excellent photographs of leading participants in the Kentucky tragedy.

• • •

In The Engineering Magazine for April, the leading article, by Dr. Louis Bell, deals very strikingly with the "Economic Effects of Electric-Power Distribution." By the widened range of profitable manufacturing location which it gives, and by its stimulation of semi-rural industrial communities near to small water-powers, Dr. Bell believes electric distribution of power and light is destined to check—possibly to arrest—the decadent tendency of over-centralization of manufactures and over-concentration of population in cities.

• • •

The Four-Track News for April takes its readers on an imaginary journey from the Land of the Midnight Sun to Porto Rico; from the Thousand Islands to Portland, Oregon. This number includes also articles upon old New York, Valley Forge, Newfoundland, the Ilse of Jersey, Tangier—the strange little Virginian island—the Lorelei Monument, the Muskingum river, the Lubeck Shipping House, the National Road, Tubby Hook, Chambly, Old Welsh Towns, the lakes of the Shawangunk mountains, and many others, including a trip by rail to the mountain peaks of Colorado, a sketch of the Lewis and Clark exposition, etc.

• • •

The Garden Magazine for April is a double "Planting Number" containing new kinds of planting tables with minute directions on the thousand and one different details of all flower, vegetable, vegetable and fruit growing on large estates as well as in the suburban backyard. Among the leading features "The Gardener's Reminder" shows what to plan as well as what to do each week; "Small Fruits for the Home Garden" is about the large and luscious berries that are the dspair of the grocer; "The Best Flowering Shrubs" plans the cheapest and most permanent way to get flowers; while "Planting Tables for Vegetables" is a quick and easy guide showing when and how to plant seventy-four kinds of vegetables, how to cultivate them, when they are ready to eat, and what they are good for—adapted to the small home garden cultivated by hand or by wheel-hoe. There is also a separate "Planting Table for Flowers" which will enable the amateurs to have chosen verieties the year around.

• • •

The controversy over the management of the Equitable Life Assurance society is the text of the financial article in the April number of the World's Work. In "How May We Insure Our Insurance?" an analysis of the situation is given from the view points of the company's organization, its relations to the public, and its bearing on the broad question of public control of corporations. A table showing the concentartion of financial power in the hands of a few directors is the most illuminating contribution to the discussion of corporate management that has appeared recently. As interest in the battles of the Eastern war is giving way to the lull that precedes the reaction of peace, the two studies of postbellum problems are especially timely. Abraham Cahan, the editor of the Jewish Forward and the leader of the Russian revolutionists in America, discusses "The Turmoil in Russia" with particular reference to the internal questions of government that are now paramount. The second artifcle is "The War's Disclosure of the Orient," by T. Iyenaga, who points out that the most beneficent effect of the war has been the desire of the East and the West to know each other better, that each may understand the other's point of view.

• • •

Cleveland Moffett's "The Shameful Misuse of Wealth" continues to be the leading feature of Success Magazine, and the third installment, in the April number, goes deeply into the question of extravagant clothes and fetes. Another big series which begins in this number of Success deals with the dramatic episodes in the lives of the great railways of America. The first article is entitled "The Private Car Abusses: It shows the public just what it may expect from the great railway war that is now agitating the country. The writer of this series is Samuel Merwin, who is best known as the joint author of the celebrated novel, "Calumet K." An intensely interesting life-sketch is that of the playwright and novelist, George Bernard Shaw, by his personal friend, James Huneker. Few men know Mr. Shaw as well as Mr. Huneker does, and the inside workings of the clever Irishman's brain are thoroughly analyzed.

• • •

The leading story in the April number of that clever juvenile magazine, the Holiday (New York), is written by Mrs. Israel Zangwill, and it is one of her best. It has delicacy of touch and daintiness of construction, sadly lacking in the juvenile as well as much of the adult literature of today. "The Squirrel's Sweetheart," illustrated by Alden Peirson, is well worth adult reading, as, by the way, is the greater portion of the magazine, which has the rare quality of appealing strongly to the child, and yet being of interest to the adult. Other attractive material in the April issue is "Little Journeys in My Garden," giving simple instruction which will help parents and children, and also some interesting information about earthworms. Of special interest to boys is the "Woodcrafter"—Ernest Thompson Seton's boys' league.

• • •

Country Life in America for April is a strong outdoor number. Every side of spring life is treated. The issue opens with an article entitled "The Training of a Polo Pony," wherein every stage of the pony's development from the time it is caught wild on a Uvalde ranch to the time it is a perfected player is described. The article might be called "The Romance of Horse Buying." Oliver Bronson Capen continues his strong series entitled "Country Homes of Prosperous Americans" by a descriptive article on the home of Andrew Jackson, in which he brings out the hitherto little-known fact that Johnson managed his farm hundreds of miles away while he was president at the White House. "The Strange Art of Pigeon Fancying" makes a bitter attack on the tribe of fanciers, charging them with deliberately maltreating the birds whose type they are developing, accelhastening and manipulating nature by cruel processes. Coming at the time of the pigeon shows, t will awaken interest.

• • •

Those who are investigating psychic research, auto-suggestion, mental methods of healing, drugless systems of hygiene, and the power of thought to influence environment, will be interested in the April issue of Suggestion (Chicago), a magazine of the new psychology for thinkers. It contains articles on health matters, practical psychology, will power, memory culture, nature cure, mentality, and the development of natural inherent forces for the acquisition of health, happiness and success, and shows the necessity of correct breathing, right thinking and eating and drinking properly.

• • •

Variety of topic and effectiveness of illustration are again distinguishing features of that remarkable 10-cent magazine, The World Today, in its April issue. Art, travel, science, history, biography, education, religion, philanthropy, railroads, and the mail service have each an important article touching some present-day phase of the topic. One that will attract widespread attention is on "Unionizing the School Teachers," by David Swing Ricker, which relates to the origin of the Chicago Teachers' federation, its alliance with the labor unions and the results accomplished. "The Boys' Club Idea," by Daniel T. Pierce, will interest both educators and philanthropists. There is a careful investigation of the expenses of "College Students" by William B. Bailey of Yale university. Edgar A. Bancroft, in connection with the present discussion of railroad rates, writes of "Rate Maintenance, Not Rate Making," a subject which Charles A. Prouty, of the state commerce commission, also discusses.

• • •

The story of the Pinkerton Detective agency, now told comprehensively for the first time, is begun in Leslie's Magazine for April. The article is written by a man thoroughly familiar with the Pinkerton methods, who traces in an absorbing manner the rise, development and scope of the greatest detective agency in the world. Dr. Stephen Smith, late commissioner in lunacy in New York state, has contributed an interesting article on "Who Is Insane?" in which he shows how uncertain is the line between sanity and insanity and deals with the question of the cure of the insane. Charles De Kay writes of a "Model American Art Gallery," the creation of Mr. Carnegie at Pittsburg.

• • •

In the novelette which opens the April Smart Set, Grace MacGowan Cooke has struck an entirely new note in fiction. It is a story of the West, so saturated with the atmosphere of that part of our country and so photographic in its depiction of ranch life that it will take high rank among the best tales of that class; yet it is more as a character study that "The Red-Headed Woman" will win praise. The heroine is the most original, the most human, the most refreshing woman who for a long time has stepped from a printed page. There is no reader who will not be fascinated by her vagaries and interested in her remarkable career. The short stories in this number cover a wide field.

• • •

Ainslee's for April contains the third installment of David Graham Phillips' serial story, "The Deluge," which improves with every chapter. James Branch Cabell, author of "The Eagle's Shadow," has a short story of much more than ordinary strength and originality, entitled, "Simon's Hour." The novelette, "In the Earth Flame," is by Robert Edger Rowen. Holman F. Day has one of his characteristic down East stories in "Via Palmyra Stage." Anne Warner, author of "A Woman's Will," is represented by a short story, "His Terrible Father," which is a sort of sequel to the novel. Robert Hichens, who has just made a hit with a new novel, "In the Garden of Allah," has a very attractive story called "The Spinster." One of the best bits of humor published in a long time is by a new writer, George Edwin Hunt, and is called "How Bully Won the Race." Vincent Harper continues his series of hunting stories with "The Feast of the Wholly Innocents." The poetry, by John B. Tabb, Theodosia Garrison, Margaret Houston and Lulu Clark Markham, is seasonable.

• • •

There are three complete novels, besides an imposing array of other fiction, in the April issue of The Popular Magazine. A remarkable new serial by Henry C. Rowland, author of "Sea Scamps," commences in this number. It is called "From the Deep Sea," and describes in detail how the zeal of a German scientist created an awful commotion on shipboard. H. Rider Haggard's famous novel of adventure, "Ayesha," the companion story to "She," is continued, as are the three other fine serials by H. G. Wells, Andrew Comstock McKenzie and George Parsons Bradford. Eight short stories, on diversified subjects, but all intensely interesting, complete the number. There is not a dull page among the entire one hundred and ninety-four.

• • •

With the development of fire departments there have sprung up in our big cities groups of men who make it their duty to render service to the firemen—furnishing them with food and drink, etc.—while the latter are battling with the flames. These good Samaritans, called "Fans" in Chicago, "Buffs" in Buffalo, and "Hot-Coffee Angels" in New York, are the subject of an entertaining article by Harriet Quimby in the current number of Leslie's Weekly. Many good illustrations appear in the number, including a drawing on the front by Arthur Lewis, representing the daring feat of painting the tall flagstaff of a New York skyscraper; two pages of war pictures, among which are scenes in which Gen. Linevitch, the new Russian commander in the field, is the chief figure; a fine group photograph of the members of the American Association of General Passenger Agents; views of the fencing drills at the Annapolis naval academy; and attractive pictorial features on the sporting, dramatic, and amateur-contest pages.

• • •

James Bryce, George Kennan, Edith Rickert, Garret P. Serviss and J. Horace McFarland are among the contributors to The Outlook's Illustrated Magazine Number for April. Notable illustrations are those from photographs by James Ricalton of the siege of Port Arthur, accompanying Mr. Keenan's "Story of Port Arthur"; those picturing the marvels of photography in astronomy, as described by Mr. Serviss; the charming pictures of spring buds and blossoms with Mr. DeFriand's "The awakening of the Trees"; the fine architectural illustration of Maurice B. Biscoe's "Church Architecture," one of three informative papers on this topic; and the reproductions of Thomas Ball's work in "Historian in Bronze" by James E. Kelley.

• • •

The April number of the New England Magazine is one of the best ever issued by the publishers of this old-established monthly. An important feature is the finely written and illustrated article on Dartmouth college, written by Mary R. P. Hatch. Many of the younger generation of music lovers will be surprised to learn that the greatest musical festival in the world's history took place in Boston, in 1869, its object being to commemorate the return of peace to the nation. An account of the "National Peace Jubilee" is contributed by Sarah B. Lawrence, and with it accompanying rare photographs of the notable men and women who figured in the event, is sure to give a reminiscent pleasure to the large body of men and women who remember or were at all concerned in it. Of the unusual interest is the article called "The Love Story of Mary Whitcher Lide," by Minerva Barrows, being personal reminiscences of the poet's sweetheart, Evelina Bray. The Ray Memorial Library at Franklin, Massachusetts with its superb mural decorations forms the subject of an illustrated article by Margaret Storrs Turner, and Cahrline Hervey's interesting facts about "Bermuda Lilies" are well supplemented by good pictures.

• • •

Representative John J. Esch of Wisconsin, author of the railway rate bill passed by the house and pending in the federal senate, writes for the April number of the National Magazine an article bearing on that legislation and the conditions out of which it springs. Other notable articles are: "The Masters of Our Railways," by E. D. Pittman; "The Republic vs. Bank-Legal Syndicates," by Frank Putnam; "Prentice Mulford," the New Gospeler," by Charles Warren Stoddard; "Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chappie.

Harper's Weekly for April 1, in addition to the widely discussed editorial comment, contains an unusual number of important features. The third of the series of articles by John Gilmer Speed on "The Purchase of Votes" appears in this issue. It tells "How Votes are Bought in New Jersey." Mr. C. W. Saleeby of London, contributes an interesting paper on "The Extermination of Disease"; Mr. Forbes-Robertson, the English actor, gives his views on "Hamlet" and the Actor-Manager"; W. Fitz-Gerald describes the making of war-balloons in an article entieled "Waging War in the Air"; and Dr. Henry Smith Williams concludes his series of articles on "Electricity in Modern Life," the subject of the last paper being "Household and Commercial Uses of Electricity." A double-page feature is the reproduction of photographs of the prize-winning paintings at the exhibition of the society of American artists in New York. There are also pictures of scenes of the war in the far East, the northern games at Stockholm, and important events of the week.

The cover design of the Pilgrim for April is suggestive of Easter, and hints in a way to the nature of the magazine's contents. The first article is concerned appropriately with Easter, and tells of the manner of the feast's celebration throughout the world. The illustrations picturing the preparations for observing the Passover in Samaria are striking. A second article, equally interesting, is by Day Allen Willey, and describes the city of Amecameca, the holiest city in Old Mexico. The illustrations are among the most interesting the Pilgrim has ever published. At this precise moment when all eyes are on Japan, Miss Jessie Ackerman's article on the Ainus, the aborigines of Japan, will be read with great interest. Still another happily illustrated article is by Stella Reid, and deals with a little community of Waldensians in the South. Pottery is the subject treated in the series of articles the Pilgrim is publishing on women's work in divers fields. In addition the orlginal and unique department, Woman's Hand in The World's Work, is maintained. The National American Woman's Suffrage association is considered in a page of portraits of the more prominent among its officers.

"Now this is no wild scheme. It is a strictly business proposition. We are urged to proceed slowly. That is always the cry that is raised against a municipal ownership plan. I dont doubt the sincerity of Alderman Barnes, but, gentlemen, we are not going to get this air ship line without a fight.

"I am heartily in favor of it. Now is the time for those men who advocate municipal ownership at election time, to show how they stand on it."

"It's a good plan," said Alderman Olson, and popped back into his seat as though surprised at having found himself on the floor.

Alderman Chesney, from the Eighth, arose, and pulling down his vest with a quick jerk, commenced fumbling with the silver inkstand on his desk. "Mister President," he said, "We have about 800 people out here in West Duluth that haven't got any automobile service. They've got just as much right to good transportation facilities as anybody. If this air ship line is going to give them what they want, I'm in favor of it.

"Now it seems to me that this is going to solve the problem. I don't know how the others look at it, but it seems to me that the idea is a good one, and it seems to me we should pass this resolution."

Alderman Waugh arose, and thrusting his hands into the side pockets of his coat, said:

"Section 4957 of the city charter reads as follows: 'Nothing in this charter shall be construed to give the council the power to get fly with the public money.' That seems clear, gentlemen. Under the present provisions of the charter we have no right to establish this air ship line until we get special permission from the legislature."

"Move we adjourn," said Alderman Trevillion, and the shades gradually condensed and disappeared.

ter the toboggan slide at Seventh avenue East was well patronized, there always being plenty of young women present to add to the pleasure of the sport. The long and thrilling "drop" down the steeply inclined ice slide and hair raising swoop out over the frozen surface of the lake were productive of sensations that none of the members of the old toboggan association will forget.

It is also rumored that associations were formed during the life of the old toboggan club that ripened in after years into something a little closer than the formal friendly spirit and some of the young people decided to toboggan through life together.

During the toboggan season, there was the usual amount of rivalry among the young men to possess not only the swiftest but the finest appearing toboggan, and one instance is recited where a young man ever telegraphed to a place in Vermont a hurry up order for a toboggan of some famous mako.

The old association never took any particular interest in snowshoeing.

Park Rapids

Park Rapids, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. H. Gehr and W. D. Bishop of Wadena have secured the contract for putting in the heating plant at the new Park House on the Itasca state park. The building is to be heated by steam and furnished with hot and cold water.

The West hotel has been leased by the proprietor, F. D. Judwitsch, to Dr. J. Kussart, for a term of five years, with the privilege of purchase at any time during the life of the lease.

The justice court has been a busy one this week. Monday Charles Bartlett and James Campbell were arrested, charged with the robbery of Robert King, but the evidence was not sufficient to hold them and the cases were dismissed. Later Ellsworth Weekley and Archie Parks were arrested for the same crime and their hearings will be held April 5. Monday the trials of Regan and Barlowe were called before Justice Myers. They were charged with incendiarism in connection with the recent fire at Nevis. The trials have not yet been closed. E. E. Pitney of Hubbard was brought before Justice Batcheller, charged with rape upon the person of Miss Deffenbaugh. The trial lasted nearly all day, but in the end Pitney was discharged.

There is a strong probability that Park Rapids will have a starch factory in the near future. A Wisconsin company is looking for a location and will have a representative here in the next few days.

The seventh session of the Crookston district M. E. conference will be held Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, April 11 and 12.

The creamery is now open for business and ready to handle milk, cream, poultry and poultry products.

James Renaud of North Dakota, the owner of the Clark hotel, will take possession of the property in a few days. The present proprietor, H. S. Annette, will move to his farm at Latona.

Robert Ingersol of Green Valley has passed away at the age of 56. His death being caused by Bright's disease. He and his wife came here from Iowa about a year ago. The wife and one brother survive him.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hough of Hubbard, a son.

Miss Eva White will take a course in the Wadena Business college.

Treasurer John Bouch has rented the Vagtman house and will occupy it with his family soon.

The G. A. R. ladies gave Mrs. A. A. Drew and her sister a very enjoyable surprise party Saturday.

Rev. W. F. Milliken had a quite severe sick spell the first of the week but is able to be about again.

Alexander Kerr is at the Park Rapids hospital, suffering severely with inflamation of the bowels.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Norris have sold their goods and went west the first of the week.

A. W. Groser, who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Moureau, returned to his home at Herdsfield, N. D., Tuesday via Osakis, where he will make a short stop.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Grogan of South Dakota, who have been visiting with the family of their daughter, Mrs. F. E. Kerr, left for Washington Tuesday. They expect to locate near Seattle.

Mrs. I. B. Keenney is visiting friends in Minneapolis for a few days.

The scholars in the high school have prepared "She Stoops to Conquer," and it will be played. The proceeds are to go toward the high school piano fund.

Edward Londahl spent several days at Moorhead recently.

Mrs. A. C. Depy of Menahga spent several days the past week with her sister, Mrs. Fred Rima.

P. L. Rogers and son, Roy, have gone to Sauk Rapids, where they will work in a sawmill the coming summer.

Mrs. William Campbell left the first of the week for Grand Rapids to join her husband, who has a position in one of the Fuller stores.

Miss Cora Wright of Hubbard returned to Buena Vista Monday, after a visit with home people. She is teaching there.

Rev. J. C. Cosgrove of the M. E. church was at Menahga and Sebeka this week and held quarterly conference in the M. E. churches as deputy presiding elder.

Mrs. A. Conner returned from Little Falls the first of the week and reports Mrs. Conner doing well. She is in the hospital there and during his visit underwent an operation.

Editor Haradon of the Enterprise is expected back Saturday evening, having recovered from the operation performed at the Rochester hospital more rapidly than was anticipated.

Mrs. F. J. Stoltzstz is visiting with friends in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Frank Fibatowski has returned from an extended visit at Wadena.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Portner fell Tuesday, breaking his collar bone. This seems worse as the little fellow is a cripple and had enough to bear before.

Mrs. James Hooser went to Motley the first of the week for an extended visit with her parents.

Mrs. F. J. Nary is in Minneapolis for a few days, visiting friends, and to meet her daughter.

Mrs. Charles Gotson returned to her home at Melrose, Monday, after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi King.

Mrs. F. A. Vanderfael, who has been in the hospital for about two weeks, has been discharged and allowed to go home.

Rev. R. P. Upton of Minneapolis is in Park Rapids temporarily and will preach in the Congregational church.

Dr. Blair of Chicago is in the city and is arranging to spend the summer in Hubbard county.

Misses Nellie McKinley and Nellie Toogood are visiting friends at Bertha.

Levi King has rented the Eagle Bend and will move there with his family to work the farm this summer.

Mrs. Johnson of Iowa, who has been visiting her brother, L. W. Bills, went to Garrison, Dak., Tuesday, where she and her father, W. Bills, have homesteads.

Mrs. Henry R. Cobb and family lease. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Cobb and son, John, are already there. This family was among the first to settle in Park Rapids, and have been very prominent in business and socially and will be sadly missed.

Miss Daisy Small has returned to Minneapolis, after a visit with Mrs. Rossman and other relatives here.

George Koonigs has resigned his clerkship with the Charles Albert Mercantile company and will go west.

F. A. Cross, the postmaster and a dealer in general merchandise at Hubbard, has decided to locate elsewhere, and is disposing of his stock.

Attorney Mansfield, who has been in the southern part of the state for several weeks returned home Wednesday.

The first Park Rapids is adding several improvements lately, among them several safety deposit vaults for the use of the patrons.

DIES IN VIRGINIA.

Mrs. G. E. Reed of Cass Lake Passes Away.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday forenoon G. E. Reed received a telegram from Waverly, Va., announcing the death, at that place, of his wife. Although Mrs. Reed has been an invalid for several years, the announcement of her death caused a shock and profound sorrow among her friends in Cass Lake. Mrs. Reed was visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mapes, when the final summons came. Mrs. O'Leary and Mrs. Croonenbergs, daughters of Mrs. Reed, were at the bedside when she breathed her last. Five children, three daughters and two sons, survive her. The immediate cause of death was locomotor ataxia. The remains of the deceased will be taken to River Falls, Wis., the old home of the Reed family, where the funeral services will be held and the interment made on Monday or Tuesday next.

The First M. E. Church of Cass Lake will be dedicated tomorrow with appropriate ceremonies. The new circular oak pews arrived during the week and Rev. Singer, arrayed in spotless blue denems, superintended putting them in place. All is now in readiness for the dedication. Rev. Dr. Dodds of Crookston, the presiding elder, and Revs. J. M. Stewart, J. T. E. Smith and Singer will take part in the services.

MAN JUMPS FROM ST. PAUL BRIDGE.

St. Paul, April 1.—While the Wabasha street bridge was crowded with pedestrians and vehicles yesterday afternoon, an unknown man vaulted over the railing of the middle span and disappeared in the Mississippi river, 100 feet below. The act of the suicide was so sudden that the crowd was panic stricken and no attempt to rescue the drowning man was made. His body has not yet been recovered.

A DAY IN THE CHILDREN'S COURT

How Justice, Tempered With Kindness, Is Meted Out To Youthful Offenders — No Unwholesome Publicity Given To Exploits of Bad Boys or Parading of Misfortunes of Good Ones — Many Cases Turned Over To New York Juvenile Asylum.

New York, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The children's court in this city has now received a practical test of more than a year and its establishment has proved to be as much of a reform as the most ardent of its supporters hoped. In this city, the complete separation of children accused of various juvenile offenses from the criminals and dregs of a city's population which fill the ordinary police courts, has been the outgrowth of a long struggle for better methods of caring for unfortunate young people. This struggle has at last met with much success and now there is a court, sitting daily in a special building to relieve the sufferings of children, as well as to punish their crimes.

In the first year of its existence, 76,647 children, most of whom were arrested by policemen without warrants, were arraigned before the court. No police court lawyers are on hand to take a $10 fee for haranguing the magistrate for the proceedings are really more like a family council than a trial. The justice, the agents of Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the two women missionaries, who care for the interests of Catholic and Hebrew children, and Howard Townsend, vice president of the New York juvenile asylum, talk over each case as it comes up, more anxious to do the best for the culprit than to find some clause in the penal code to hold him on. This is the only use, beyond caring for his own property, to which Mr. Townsend puts his legal training and to it he devotes the morning of every weekday.

To the casual observer, the general appearance of the room is much like that of an ordinary police court. Outside the railing which divides the room into two unequar parts and separates the justice, agents, missionaries and offenders from the spectators, sit several scores of men and women, silent for the most part and manifestly anxious. Many of the faces are those of foreigners, some are stupid, some are prepossessing, not a few hard and vicious. As the justice enters all rise while he takes his seat on the bench. He is a smooth-shaven, keen featured, kindly-appearing man, looking in his black gown like a bishop—but one who knows more of the world than most bishops.

The clerk calls a name, and the court constable brings in a boy by a small side door. He is taken up to the "bridge" before the bench, Mr. Townsend and the Gerry society agents close round him, while the two missionaries stand near. A man and a woman from the audience are called up. Not a word is audible ten feet away from the group. After a few minutes the boy is taken out again. Outside the rail no one has the slightest idea what he was accused of, whether he was accused of anything at all, and still less of what has become of him. This is intentional. There is no wish either to make a hero of a bad boy by giving publicity to his case or to parade the misfortunes of a good one. One might spend the whole forenoon in court and go away no wiser than one came.

Standing on the "bridge" however, by listening attentively one can catch something of the whispered conversation in progress. A boy of ten or so is charged with stealing from an Italian baker's wagon an immense flat-loaf of bread which looks half as big as he is. The Italian tells his story with great volubility through the medium of an interpreter. The boy with tears running down his dirty cheeks, defends himself in a hard, mechanical manner, acknowledging, however, that he has previously been before the court twice. He is declared guilty and remanded for sentence. Another boy with a criminal's face, admits stealing a blanket. He, likewise, has been here before and is found guilty and remanded. One or two boys charged with petty offenses are let off with an admonition and then comes a case of a different sort. A pale lad, with a drawn, frightened face is brought up on his stepfather's application to have him committed to an institution because his mother has taken to bad ways. The stepfather is discovered asleep on a settee, is awakened with difficulty and shoved up to the bench in a half dazed state, plainly "under the influence." The justice gives one quick look at the man's dirty countenance, and sees there only an additional argument for taking the little fellow away from his parents. A brief consultation with Mr. Townsend, and the boy is committed to the juvenile asylum, where he will get his first fair chance for improvement.

A sickly little girl comes next, weeping violently. She lives with her married sister and neighbors think she is abused because they have heard her crying. Several anonymous letters, too, have been received about her. The brother-in-law—an honest, kindly man in appearance—says the girl has always been treated well. One of the missionaries talks with the child apart, but can get nothing out of her. The justice made up his mind about the brother-in-law and declares that no action is to be taken for the present. After a time the child decides that she wants to go home again and her brother-in-law takes her away. Clearly a case of diseased nerves and meddling, though probably well-meaning, neighbors.

Here is an Italian boy found sitting on a doorstep in Hoboken. He says he ran away from his home in New York because he had lost half a dollar and was afraid his father would beat him. He has been two years in the Juvenile asylum and would like to go back there. His case is held over for further consideration.

A bright office boy is charged with having snowballed a man. Honest, straightforward and not a bit abashed, the lad acknowledges that he did snowball the man, because the man first threw a bottle at him.

"I'm going to let you go," says the justice, "but you must remember that the fact of your having been assaulted gives you no right to take the law into your own hands. Don't do it again."

A well-grown Hebrew girl, who had run away to Philadelphia, is brought up. She wanted to become an actress, it is said. She is pretty, in a hard, unpleasant way, and seems utterly without natural affection as she looks over once at her mother. She tells an improbable story with a decided stolid yet eager utterance. She is sent to the House of Mercy.

Next comes a girl of 10 or 12, and a boy much younger, whose father refuses to have them in the house. It appears that this "house" is two or three rooms in a cellar, where these children have lived, neglected and dirty, for months. Their mother seems to have disappeared. The boy and girl have often been left alone in their burrow, and several complaints have been made of the indifference of the parents. The father is called. He is an Italian, with a countenace which would qualify him for admission to a band of brigands without further credentials. The children are sent to St. Agnes' home, and the father is to pay a certain weekly sum for their support.

The day comes to an end with a case of more than usual sadness. A woman, whose principal characteristic seems to be complete stolidity, comes in, followed by two sturdy boys, holding in her arms a bright little baby, which talks and laughs and crows, making everybody laugh, too, and cheering up the whole assembly. But it appears that this baby was found almost naked and the two little boys starving, after their mother had been picked up drunk. The agent had to take off his overcoat to wrap the children up when they were taken away in the patrol wagon. The husband is a respectable, hard working man.

There is a pause, then the justice has one of the older children brought to him, takes him on his knee and talks to him. The mother, the only indifferent person in the room, calmly acknowledges, without change of expression or show of emotion, that she got drunk and left the children. The case is put over.

Such scenes as these are repeated in the building on Third avenue every day in the year. Much, in fact everything, depends on the justice's judgment for it has at last been realized that to attempt to judge young children and to decide cases of ill-treatment and neglect by hard-and-fast laws is to do far more harm than good. In the children's court the justice is really "in loco parentis" and the whole tendency is toward leniency. Five justices, selected from the justices of special sessions, sit in rotation in the children's court, each serving for a month at a time. With them there is none of that harsh, abrupt disposal of one case after another which characterises the work of the police magistrate accustomed to deal with the lower elements of a great city's population. Whenever possible the offending child receives another chance. When leniency is no longer possible, or when it is obviously to give parents another opportunity to abuse the helpless, the child is turned over to some such institution as the Juvenile asylum or the Catholic protectory. The city pays $110 a year for the support of a child thus committed; but as a matter of fact, the average annual expense of maintaining a ward in the asylum is $131 and in the protectory it is about the same.

Institution life is at the best far from ideal, but the same philantropic movement that resulted in the establishment of the children's court is making itself felt in the transformation of the places to which the children arraigned there are sent. The Juvenile asylum is about to move from the city to a farm at Dobbs Fery where a model village is being erected for it by York & Sawyer, tho New York architects. Here no effort will be spared to make a stay in the asylum a real opportunity to the child to regain physical and moral health. The day of the old-fashioned so-called reformatory is over and the Children's court and the change in location and methods of the Juvenile asylum are among the signs of the new era.

HYDE'S FRIENDS

Say He Spent Own Money on Ball.

New York, April 1.—Friends of James Hazen Hide, vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, deny the accusaitons made against him in the petition filed by Senator Edgar T. Brackett with the Attorney-general at Albany. Personally Hyde will make no public denial, but his friends say he will do so at the proper time. Said one of Hyde's friends:

"Mr. Hyde will deny the charge that he spent the society's funds on his personal entertainments, and will show that the expenses of his recent costume ball and other entertainments given were paid for out of his private fortune, which is amply large to warrant these expenses or any other in reason he might choose to incur.

"Hyde will show that instead of having 'squandered' or 'wasted' its funds in speculation, every one of the society's ventures complained of has been highly remunerative.

The petition says that Schiff, as a member of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., derived a profit from the sale of bonds by that firm to the society of which he is a director, and that this is illegal.

Schiff, his friends said, will be able to show that the bonds sold to the Equitable by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were sold at market rates and that the Equitable profited largely by the deal.

A lawyer who is engaged in the interests that are seeking to mutualize the society completely, commented on Schiff's statement. Said he:

"The question of profit has nothing to do with the question at issue, which is whether a director of the Equitable Life Assurance society hiis a right as a member of a firm to participate in a business transaction with the society or be at the same time seller and buyer. The statutes say he has not and I firmly believe that few reputable lawyers will put themselves on record to the contrary."

ROMANCES OF WILLED FORTUNES

"Richest Man In the World" Believed He Had Inherited a Vast Estate—Other Mythical Wills.

Just as every slave is descended from a king, and every king has a slave among his ancestors, so the very poorest of us is more or less related to possessions which it is not hard to convince us are wrongly held by others, says London Answers.

Every family has its traditions of this sort, which accounts, perhaps, for the readiness with which any improbable story is accepted telling of miraculous fortunes suddenly thrown at heirs grown sick with hope deferred.

The latest example of this sort consists in a "will" which tumbled from the back of an old picture which its owners were induced to believe would bring them property worth $1,000,000.

That is a modest sum in comparison with some which have recently occupied the minds of fortune seekers. Not long ago Mr. Elisha Corey of Omaha, Neb., arrived in London, armed, as he thought, with convincing proof of his title to "the £40,000,000 Corey estate, which has been for sixty-five years in the court of chancery, and consists of stocks, bonds and gold."

In spite of the most praiseworthy zeal Mr. Corey could make no progress toward the realization of his claim; so he invoked the aid of Mr. Choate, the American ambassador in London. Mr. Choate took up the matter and wrote to the court of chancery with the result that he was informed that the Corey estate of £40,000,000 had no existence in fact.

Undeterred by so chilling a precedent as the foregoing, there came to England, a month or two later, Dr. J. P. Blackburn of McKeesport, Penn., to claim certain portions of England once owned by his ancestors, who had sailed in the good ship Mayflower. His researches brought to light collateral branches of his family in the old country. They cherished the same traditions with himself, and clearly showed that part of the family estates had comprised the site of what is now the prosperous cotton manufacturing town of Blackburn. Altogether a sum of £15,000,000 was at stake. Beyond that they could not progress. All that Dr. Blackburn was able to achieve was the redemption of his family coat-of-arms from the College of Heralds. The rest of the Blackburn possessions had all been legally and properly disposed of, and the due order of succession unimpeachably observed.

A Mitcham family had as bootless a chase after a smaller fortune, and in the end they had to take criminal proceedings against the man who had instigated the hunt and caused expenditures of the sum in which they had been involved. Similar results attended the "windfall" of a young man who produced a will endowing him with £40,000,000 down and £10,000 a year. On the strength of the forged document he had proceeded liberally to "raise the wind."

Another such ruse placed "the richest man in the world" in a felon's cell, where he languishes at this moment. This was James Albert Marston, "the Sheffield millionaire," as he was more generally known. At his trial for obtaining huge sums of money by false pretences, it was represented that he had really believed in the story of his having inherited from a deceased uncle an estate in Ontario, half the size of Ireland, upon which were gold and diamond mines galore, making him, as the papers set forth at the time, the richest man in the world. He lived in the greatest luxury upon the money borrowed on the strength of his great expectations, kept fast horses, wore the richest of garments, boasted of yachts and palaces and royal invitations, and went always armed with some half dozen revolvers. In reality he was a draper's assistant, earning 30 shillings a week. Now he is undergoing three years' penal servitude.

A couple of years ago the Mile End workhouse was ringing with the tidings that it entertained a millionairess. The heroine of the story certainly lived up to the part. To the chaplain of the institution she presented her "will," disposing of £650,000, in sums such as £400,000 for two convalescent homes, £100,000 for charitable institutions, and so forth. Her bequests were regarded as bona fide, and the lady had an innings of luxury and comfort. It all ended in the police court, where the lady was called to account for these said luxuries—for which she had not paid, nor hoped to be able to do so.

More recently still we had Pierre Riera, the Spanish village blacksmith, figuring as claimant to the vast estates of the Marquis de Casa Riera. Hosts of people accepted the documents as genuine until five months ago, when it was discovered that the potential millionaire was the unsophistocated tool of an unscrupulous band of adventurers, by whom he and his sympathizers had been mercilessly exploited.

Some of these fortune hunts are the outcome of cruel hoaxes. Typical was the case of an old man named Goodwin, who, in answer to an advertisement, sold all that he had in order to come from Australia to England to claim £90,000 which, it was announced, had been bequeathed to him by his "Uncle Holland." The matter came into the courts, when it was proved that there existed neither will nor thousands. The poor old man was now absolutely destitute, and only through the exercise of private philanthropy was he able to collect sufficient money to carry him back to the land which he had left to claim the fortune declared to be rightly his.

Of course, wills do turn up in out-of-the-way places, and bring about startling climaxes in the lives of unsuspected legatees. One nobleman's will lay hidden for years in the leg of a bedstead; another came to light years after the ship Schiller, in which it was being carried from New Zealand to England, had foundered off the Scilly Isles. Yet another last testament was discovered entered among the ordinary items of a day ledger—a place in which it was as little suspected to exist as that which came in spirits from Egypt to prevent the spread of the plague raging in the district where the will had been drafted.

The late duke of Sutherland left over four score of wills; while the one and only instrument settling the affairs of the late Lord Cheylesmore was stolen by a baggage thief on the railway.

Post-mortem tangles often result from the caprice of the testator. This happened to be the case of a wealthy Liverpool merchant recently deceased. It was known that everything that he possessed at death would go to his son, with whom he had not been for years on good terms. When the will was sought it could not be found for a long time. At last it turned up accidentally, hidden in a Bible. Surprise succeeded surprise. The testator had left his "all" to his son, but that represented nothing but a little furniture and loose cash in the dead man's pockets. He had secretly disposed of all his wealth during the past years of his life. That was his way of preventing his unloved son squandering the fortune which the father had worked so hard to accumulate.

The search of this disappointed legatee for his phantom fortune was no more futile than that which is every day being conducted where the legatee, and not him that bequeaths, is the one in whose bonnet the bee buzzes.

HAS A NOVEL BURGLAR ALARM.

Device Has Good Points for Those Who Have to Guard Lonely Stations.

For the benefit of those who live in lonely places and have charge of valuable property, a description of Station Agent Burnham's burglar alarm should be widely circulated, says the New York Post. Mr. Burnham, it will be recalled by those who read the criminal news, is the man who, a few days ago, interrupted some burglars at the job of robbing the Unionville, Conn., station, and after a battle in which seventeen shots were fired, killing one of the intruders. At the time the robbery was attempted the station was deserted. Mr. Burnham was sound asleep in his house some distance away. But the burglar alarm that had been prepared by the ingenious station agent was in good working order, and the criminals had hardly begun to work on the safe when he appeared with a repeating rifle and blood in his eye.

It is explained that "when Mr. Burnham closes his office door each night the circuit is closed and the alarm is set. The wire runs along out of the station, under the tracks and into his house, up to his bedroom, on the second floor. The interior of Mr. Burnham's bedroom shows the elaborate preparations he has made in perfecting his burglar alarm system. Attached to the wall a few feet to the right of his pillow is a box containing three dry batteries. One battery operates the power electric lamp. Leaning against the bedpost a cartridge belt, containing 50 38-caliber cartridges, is hung. Over the sleeper's head is a revolver, hung on a peg in the headboard of the bed. At the right of the bed is a fireman's suit, all ready for Mr. Burnham to spring into. When the burglars began to pry open the office door with an ax, to get at the safe, Thursday morning, the circuit was broken. The bell in Mr. Burnham's room rang, and the electric light blazed at the same instant. The agent was out of bed and into his clothing in a moment, with rifle and all ready for action. The clever system has been in operation for three years, its inventor looking carefully after the details of its operation day after day without a single disturbance of the peace until the dramatic denouement of a few days ago. The case furnishes an excellent copybook moral as to the value of persistence in well-doing and the excellence of foresight.

SAVE THEIR AMPUTATED LIMBS.

Some People Bury Them and Put Flowers On the Grave Every Day.

"What becomes of the hundreds of legs and arms of unfortunates amputated at the Louisville hospitals annually?" was asked of the superintendent of one of the large Louisville hospitals, says the Louisville Herald.

"Whatever the owners want done with them."

"If you had to lose your right arm what would you want done with it?" asked the superintendent, glancing cat-a-cornered over his spectacles with a quizzical air.

"When I die, which I hope won't be soon, I want my body to be decently buried, and I think I wouldn't feel right if my arm wasn't there, too. Besides, I want it handy on judgment day."

"Exactly so," said the superintendent, "and there are a great many like you. They exhibit the greatest affection for the doomed member, and give minute orders as to how it shall be disposed of.

"I have known people who have had their limbs embalmed and placed in little lead coffins, and stored away in a vault, so that when they die the limb can be buried with them.

"I knew of one man who had his leg buried in the yard where he could look out of his window and see its grave. He would each day place a bunch of flowers on the mound and stay by it for hours."

"I was asking for facts," said the reporter.

"You are getting them," replied the superintendent, "I could enumerate a number of instances where limbs were buried in the grave with their former owners.

"I think that the sentiment is a beautiful and righteous one," said a member of the group, "and one that I should adopt if such bad fortune overtook me."

"I have also known people," resumed the superintendent, "who displayed the utmost indifference as to the ultimate fate of their amputated members. No thought of their limbs seems to enter their heads. They go under the knife without asking any questions, and come from under the influence of the ether, and so far as I know go through life without inquiring what became of their legs or arms.

"These people come from the lower classes, who have no fine sensibilities or sentiments. It's generally the cultured and refined man who gives orders as to the disposition of a lost member."

"Well, what do you do with the limbs of these don't-care people?" asked the reporter, whose curiosity seemed never to be appeased.

"Burn them generally. That's the most sanitary and least troublesome way."

HEROES OF THE RAIL

Notable Courage Displayed By Them Told In Report To Congress.

High praise for the heroes of the rail is expressed in the report of the house coommittee on interstate and foreign commerce upon the Mann bill awarding medals to heroes in railroad collisions, says the Chicago Chronicle.

"Was greater courage ever manifested than that of the locomotive engineer, Joseph Lutz?" asks the report. "A flue burst, filling his cab with scalding hot steam, while his express train was at full speed. He did not jump; he stuck to his post, while the flesh was cooked and peeled from his hands and face and body! He stopped his train and saved his passengers, but he is crippled for life.

"What courage could excel that of the brave engineer James Root and the men associated with him, who ran the relief train that carried hundreds of persons away from a fiery death in the forest fires that devastated a portion of Northern Minnesota a few years ago? During that awful time whole towns were wiped out of existence and their inhabitants roasted or suffocated. A relief train manned by Root and his comrades went upon an all but hopeless mission of rescue. It ran into the timber lands; great clouds of smoke enveloped it; flames licked their way to the roadbed, but the little band of rescuers rode on, straight into the yawning, devouring furnace of hell.

"They went to save lives and nobly did they do their work. Ever and anon the train stopped to take on board some fainting woman made mad by the awful scene with fire—on they went, never faltering, never fearing, and at last, with axles welded to the bearings, with the woodwork of the cars aflame and charred, with the engine cab entirely burned away, that train with its freight of precious human lives reached safety. The deed of Root and his heroic comrades forced the admiration of the civilized world at the time, but beyond fleeting mention in the press no public recognition was accorded their heroic action, and it is now all but forgotten.

"Who remembers the heroic deed of the humble switchman, Timothy Quinlan, who gave up his life on Feb. 27, 1904, in saving the Lake Shore limited and its cargo of human freight from destruction? The train was bearing down upon an open switch at lightning speed; an awful catastrophe seemed inevitable. Quinlan saw the danger, and while there was not one chance in a thousand that he would be able to avert the impending catastrophe without sacrificing his own life he hesitated not an instant. He reached the open switch and threw it fairly under the pilot of the on-rushing engine.

"The train with its precious human cargo rushed on in safety, but what of brave Timothy Quinlan? The momentum of the train was so great that it picked up his body and fairly threw it onto an adjoining track directly in front of a moving engine and in an instant all that remained of brave Timothy Quinlan was a mangled, bleeding mass of human flesh and bones. Among railroad employes examples of heroism of the highest type are of almost daily occurrence and might be multiplied indefinitely."

Regarding the object of the bill the report says:

"The purpose of this bill is to encourage extreme daring to be exhibited in the saving of life upon railroads by authorizing the president to bestow bronze medals of honor, rosettes or knots upon persons who by extreme danger endanger their own lives in saving or attempting to save the lives of others from any railroad wreck, disaster or grave accident, or in endeavoring to prevent such wreck, disaster or accident."

The report directs attention to the fact that there is an enormous loss of life annually upon the railroads of the country.

The medal proposed by the bill is of bronze and is of little or no intrinsic worth. The gold medal provided for in the legislation now on the statute books has a value of $86.15 and the silver medal of $63.04. But the Mann bill proposes to bestow a token which shall be valued only for the honor attached to its possession.

It proposes to give a simple mark of public recognition of true heroism, which shall set its possessor apart from his fellows, like the ancient olive wreath, as a hero of more than ordinary proportions. It is a prize to be striven for because of the associations connected with it and because it marks the interest which the government takes in the welfare and happiness of its worthy citizens, a mark which can not fail to evoke feelings of patriotic interest in the government and promote civic morality.

GIANT TORTOISE IS VALUABLE

Creature Eight Hundred Years Old Is Worth a Fortune.

Capt. I. F. Shurtleft, of the United States collier Nero, which has just returned to this port from coaling the South Pacific squadron, brought with him a curiosity probably exceeding in value and rarity anything of its kind ever seen in this country, and specimens of which are possessed by only a few of the larger museums of Europe, says a Norfolk, Va., special to the Baltimore Herald. It is a gigantic land turtle, or tortoise, from one of the Galapagos group of islands, which lie in the South Pacific, right under the equator, and are dependencies of Ecuador, says the Virginia Pilot. The tortoise was presented to Capt. Shurtleff by the governor of the islands of this group. It measures about two feet across the back, weighs about seventy-five pounds, is supposed to be 800 years old, and is valued at $5,000.

As captain of a naval collier Capt. Shurtleff recently had occasion to visit this group of islands, which are out of the line of regular travel, but the regular meeting place of the ships of the South Pacific squadron and the colliers which supply them with coal. Having heard of this species of tortoise and its rarity, Capt. Shurtleff made up his mind to procure one of them, and while waiting for the ships of the squadron to reach the rendezvous made several attempts to capture a specimen. In this he was not given much encouragement by the governor of the island, who told him that the species was practically extinct, and that he had not heard of a specimen being captured on that island for over twelve years.

In spite of this, however, a party of the ship's crew went into the interior on the hunt for one. The trip lasted for several days, and the hunting party ran out of water and came very near perishing of thirst before they returned to the ship without having seen a sign of tortoise. Just before the departure of the ship, however, the governor heard that one had been captured in the interior, and sent up and purchased it and presented it to the captain. This is the specimen which is now in this city, and which, beginning on Monday, will be on exhibition for a few days in the window of the Arco, on Main street.

The species of tortoise to which this specimen belongs is found only in the islands of the Galapagos and Mascarene groups, in the Southern Pacific. Until recent years these islands were not inhabited by man of any form of mammalian life. Consequently the tortoise, which abounded there, and which are known for their extraordinary longevity, sometimes reaching the age of 1,000 years, grew to be exceedingly large. When the islands were finally visited by man, and the size and abundance of the reptiles, the meat of which was found to be exceedingly palatable, observed and reported, it became the usual thing for ships passing anywhere in the neighborhood of them to go out of their way to visit the islands and secure a quantity.

Each reptile would furnish from seventy-five to 300 pounds of excellent meat, could be kept alive for months in the hold of the ship without food and serve to vary the monotony of the salt diet, which ordinarily falls to the lot of the sailor. After the islands were settled by man, the capture and shipment of these tortoises became a regular industry, with the result that the species has become practically extinct.

Just how rare and near to extinction the species is can be judged from the fact that about a year ago the European kings of finance, the Rothschilds, fitted out an expedition for the express purpose of securing, if possible, one or more of these tortoises. The expedition was sent to the Galapagos group and succeeded in securing four specimens, the cost of the undertaking amounting to something over $50,000.

Just what disposition Capt. Shurtleff will finally make of this specimen is not known. It was reported yesterday that he would offer it to the city to be placed in the city park.

SUDDEN AND STARTLING DEATHS

Prominent Citizens In Apparent Good Health Fall Heavily In the Streets and Experience Death In the Arms of Strangers.

How many times have you seen apparently well and healthy men drop like a shot in the street and expire before their family or friends could reach them? How many times have you read that another prominent citizen had succumbed to vertigo while in the pursuit of business? It is criminal to allow a man to die like that; it is wicked to think that any one should pass in that way out of the bright, beautiful world when Beecham's Pills will and can act so thoroughly on the liver that all thought of vertigo is driven out of the system.

Beecham's Pills positively cure liver ills by persistently removing the cause, and they cost but a quarter a box.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Business Returns Increasingly Satisfactory From All Points.

New York, April 1.—R. G. Dun & Co's Weekly Review of Trade says:

Trade returns are increasingly satisfactory, continued high temperature accelerating distribution in all leading lines. The closing days of March brought greater confidence regarding the future, and results for the first quarter of 1905 proved even more favorable than was anticipated when the year opened. Sanguine expectations of manufacturers, who made extensive preparations, are now being realized. Re ports from the South indicate that the period of hesitation is about over and agricultural sections are stimulated by prospects of a good season for planting. Freight congestion has followed the heavy shipment of spring merchandise and railway earnings in three weeks of March were 8.2 per cent larger than in 1904. Official returns make the cotton crop fully a third larger than the one preceding, and still prices are far from demoralized. With the subsidence of floods the mills have resumed, water traffic is heavy and the percentage of the unemployed is seasonably reduced. Buyers are arriving in large numbers at the leading jobbing centers. There is less ice in the lakes than at this time last year, but another week is needed to restore navigation. Immigration continues to surpass all records, and international markets improve as the conclusion of the war seems imminent. Foreign commeroe at this port for the last week showed a gain of $2,404,617 in imports and a decrease of $817,8224 in exports, as compared with 1904.

A steady demand is noted in all departments of the iron and steel industry, orders constantly coming forward, and most plants are assured off active business for months while some mills decline contracts for shipments any time before 1906. Mild weather improves the quality of hides, especially from the Southwest, and the tone of the market is decidedly firmer. New England footwear factories are receiving a fair amount of new business from salesmen at the West and duplicate spring contracts also arrive, calling for immediate delivery. A better feeling is noted in the primary market for cotton goods. More inquiries are received from China, but there is little prospect that desired deliveries can be made, as some lines are under orders up to next February. Woolen and worsted duplicate trade is quiet.

Failures for this week numbered 244 in the United States against 208 last year and thirty-three in Canada compared with sixteen a year ago.

MINNESOTA ASKED

To Help In Framing International Fishing Laws.

St. Paul, March 31.—Governor Johnson has received a letter from Governor Higgins of New York, asking that Minnesota appoint one or more members of an international fish commission, to meet commisioners from Canada and prepare a uniform code of fishing regulations for international waters.

New York and Vermont have already named delegates and similar appointments are desired from Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Washington state.

The governor will probably refer the question to the legislature.

HAPPENINGS IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

WORK OUT HERE

White Sox to Play Some Practice Games In Duluth.

No New Men Have Been Signed During Past Week.

The fans will be given an opportunity to see the White Sox perform before they start the league season at Brainerd.

Manager Van Praagh is now making arrangements for a series of games with teams from the Copper Country, during the week previous to the opening of the league season. The members of the team will report at Minneapolis about April 25, and will work out there on the university field for a week or ten days, playing the university team and other amateur and semi-professional nines in the Twin Cities.

About May 6, if the weather permits, the team will come to Duluth and commence a series of ante-season games against the best teams that can be secured about the Head of the Lakes, and with one or two teams from the Copper Country league.

The team will leave about May 15 for Brainerd to open the season there.

* * *

There will be no change in the Duluth uniform this year. It will again consist of blue knickers and shirts, with white belts, white stockings and white trimmings.

Winnipeg will probably retain the Maroon and white uniforms, Fargo the red and white, and Crookston and Grand Forks their grey. Brainerd has not yet selected its uniforms, but a facetious fan has suggested that the team be clothed in suits with a different color for each city represented by the team. One half of the men could be covered with a brilliant orange and the other half with a dark green.

* * *

No new men have been signed by Manager Van Praagh during the last week, and the team stands as it was announced last week.

Artie O'Dea is still in Minneapolis looking for some fast young amateurs who are anxious for a chance to break into professional ball, and he may secure more men before the season opens, but the management is not looking for any more high-priced men, with the possible exception of the catcher who worked with Dennis Potts last year, and who is coyly meeting the advances of the Duluth management.

* * *

The schedule is now complete with the exception of a few minor points, which will have to be agreed upon, and it should be announced within a very few days.

OARSMEN

Are the Strongest Athletes at Yale.

Experiments which have been carried on at the Yale gymnasium by Dr. W. G. Anderson during the last six months show the difference in strength test gains made by Yale men engaged during that time in nine athletic departments, as compared with the loss of strength of students not taking steady exercise, but engaged in hard mental work. The baseball men gained the most during the winter work, with a total gain of 1515 points, the others increasing as follows, in rank: Track team, 1,320; oarsmen, 1,014; swimmers, 994; individuals in gymnasium work, 959; class gymnastic workers, 904; hockey team, 789; basket ball team, 616; boxers and fencers, 484. On the other hand, there has been a decrease of 181 points in strength tests among the students who have spent the winter in hard mental work.

The comparative ranking in strength tests of these different sets of men this month, regardless of increase, after the six months' drill, is as follows: Strongest men, the oarsmen; then the track team, hockey, individual gymnasium workers, swimmers, baseball nine, class gymnasium members, basket ball team, mental workers, boxers and fencers.

BIG REGATTA DATES.

National Association Regatta to Be at Baltimore.

Baltimore has been chosen as the place for the national regatta of the National Association of Oarsmen this year. The dates are Aug. 11 and 12.

The question of a straightaway or turn course for the national regatta, which has been brought to the committee's attention, was left for the convention to decide. It will be held one month prior to the national regatta.

The following dates are approved for regattas to be decided during the coming season:

May 27—The American Rowing association, Philadelphia.

May 30—Harlem Regatta association, New York city.

June 17—Metropolitan Rowing association, Boston.

July 4—People's regatta, Philadelphia; New England Amateur Rowing association, Boston.

July 20—Long Island Rowing association, Brooklyn.

Sept. 4—Middle States Rowing association, New York city; New England Amateur Rowing association (fall regatta), Boston.

TWO RIVAL CREWS

Now Being Organized Among Members of Duluth Boat Club.

Oarsmen Will Commence Work In the Shells Very Soon.

Within two or three weeks two rival eights from the Duluth Boat club may be at work in the harbor.

One of the eights is being organized by Elmer Whyte, who rowed on last year's crew that went to Madison, and the second one by W. S. Telford, and Anthony Puck, who is also a member of last year's eight.

There promises to be considerable friendly rivalry between the two crews, as each will have two or three old oarsmen and a number of husky amateurs who are new at the sport.

William L'Estrange, R. F. Grant, Hans Haroldson and possibly one of the Peyton brothers will probably be among the members of Whyte's eight.

The two Puck brothers and W. L. McLennan are three probable members of the other crew.

The final selection of the crews which will represent the club at any regetta held during the summer, will, of course, be left with the coach, but the most promising looking members are being requested to join one of these eights and get out to practice as soon as possible. Before the weather permits any work in the shell, there will doubtless be from twelve to twenty candidates for each crew, and it will then be left to the coach to select the first and second crews.

If the fine weather continues for another week or two, some of the more enthusiastic oarsmen will doubtless launch the shells and start in training at once. There is already a class at work in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, composed chiefly of members of the boat club, who are intending to row this summer.

The annual meeting of the club will be held about April 15, when the election of officers will take place, and other matters of importance discussed. It is planned to open the club house about May. 1, but the exact date of the opening will depend on the weather conditions.

At the annual meeting of the club, the question of establishing a lunch room will be taken up. It is the plan of the directors to install a lunch room for the convenience of the members and the fitting out of picnic parties. If it is favorably considered, work will be commenced at once.

COLLEGE MEN IN BASEBALL

Well Educated Youths Are Chasing the Ball For Living.

"College sense is different from baseball sense," said John McGraw one afternoon two years ago. "A man may show the greatest brilliancy in the world at his studies and may be a clever athlete too ,but the boy from the sandlots will beat him to it when the ball is coming through from the bat and there's three men on the bases."

McGraw knew whereof he spoke, says the Chicago Journal. The college ball player, hero though he may be of the college crowds, is usually all at sea when he gets up against the boy from the vacant lots, or even the young fellow from the country farm. The quick wit which will discomfit an adversary on the debating platform will fail when a man is sliding into second and there must be something done in a hurry with the ball.

The brilliant brain which dealt with the knottiest of problems is likely to get all bogged up when the sandlot coacher starts his yelling. Baseball sense and college sence are hugely varying propositions, and that is why the collegian, in former days, so seldom cut much ice as a big league ball tosser. Of late, the college lads are beginning to show some form again, and are being sought after, and why? Simply because they have had baseball sense drilled into them by professional coaches and by contact with the professional teams.

Very few of the dazzling young men who crave renown for Yale, Harvard and Princeton ever shine professionally. They are nearly always rich boys, who go into business life, and would be losing money even at $4,000 salaries. The collegians who take to baseball for a livelihood are the strugling young fellows from the little inland schools, and there are more of them now in the harness than is generally known. In fact, some of the roughest and most ungrammatical of the present big league players were once college men, whose education has, apparently, been long since forgotten.

Fred Tenney is one of the best-known college players in the big leagues, and Tenney, in style, language, and field behavior shows that he long ago forgot all the class-room and professors. Harry Wolverton came from an Ohio university. Barclay was once a star at Lafayette, while Cannell and Sharpe had high college reputations.

Of the Brooklyns, Reisling and Doescher are said to have had college training. Lundgren, Frank Selee's crack pitcher, was a kingpin at the University of Illinois, and Pfeffer of the same college is on trial with the Cubs. Ruelbach of Notre Dame is to work with Chicago. Hofmann, the utility experiment, has had college training, and Jack Barry was once at Niagara university. Maloney is a Georgetown graduate.

Chech of the Reds was a great pitcher at Wisconsin. Of the New Yorks, Mathewson, the mighty, first gained fame at Bucknell; Bowerman used to catch for the University of Michigan, Devlin was a crack at old Pennsylvania. Hinllebrand and Strang were educated at a Southern university.

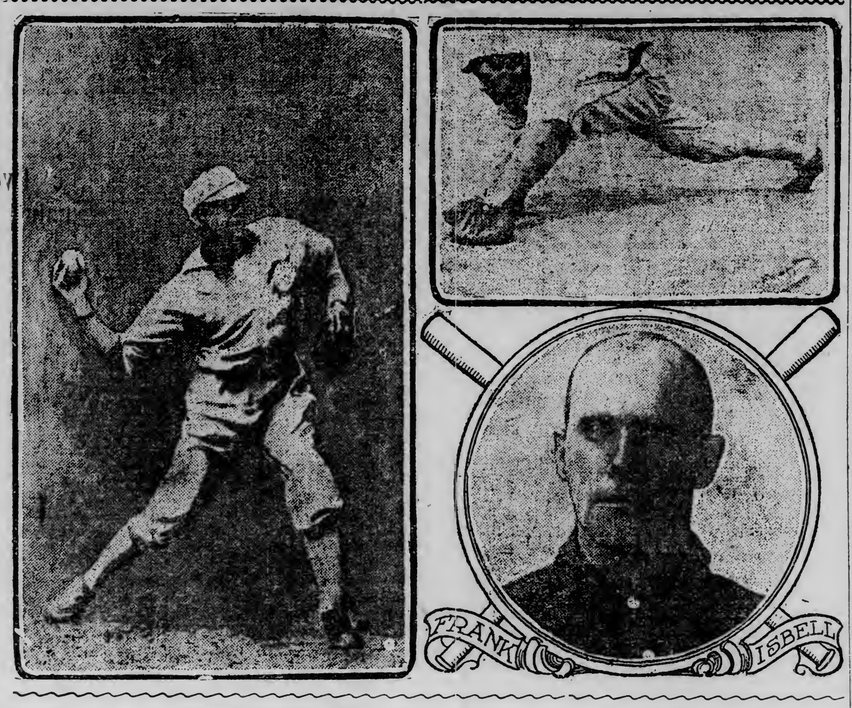

Sparks of the Phillies was taught at a Southern college. Caldwell at Pennsylvania, and Roy Thomas was a great player at old Pennsylvania. Hillerbrand and Lynch will be the Pittsburg representatives of advanced education. O'Neill of the Cardinals went to a Catholic college, and it is alleged that Dave Zearfoss went to college many many years ago.

Of the champion Bostons, in the American league, Jimmy Collins is a product of a Catholic university—Niagara, I think, while George Winters came from Gettysburg college. The only collegian of the White Sox is Dr. White, from Georgetown. Jackson of the Clevelands once wore the uniform of Pennsylvania, and Drill of Detroit played for two years with Georgetown. Cromley, the recalcitrant pitcher of the Tigers, is also college-bred. At New York, Duff of Manhattan, Walter Clarkson of Harvard, last of the great pitching family, and Dave Fultz, who had no superior as a college crack some years ago, make up the educated stars. Connie Mack has Noonan of Holy Cross, Powers of Notre Dame, Plank of Gettysburg, and Coakley of Holy Cross.

St. Louis has Moran, the Georgetown crack, and Hynes of a St. Louis Catholic school. The great Stahl of Washington came from the University of Illinois, Townsend was once a college pitcher, and the new fielder, Shaughnessy, hails from Notre Dame.

The collegians are not so many, perhaps, but there are a few of them who look pretty good, and it is an open question whether any manager would care to risk much money on his champion team against a club made up of these collegians: Mathewson, Plank, Lynch and Lundgren, pitchers; Bowerman and Powers, catchers; Stahl or Tenney, first; Wolverton, second; Devlin, shortstop; Collins, third; Thomas, Fultz and Jackson, in the field, with Clarkson, Moran and Barry as extra players.

"ISSY," GENERAL UTILITY MEMBER OF THE CHICAGO WHITE SOX

FUTURE OF RACING DARK

Promises Heavy Loss For Many Owners of Strings.

New Orleans, La., April 1.—With both sides still claiming victory, the fight between the rival turf organizations through the New Orleans representation is ended. It fell to one of the local adherents of the Western Jockey club forces to declare in print a few days ago that this has been a conflict between rival turf factions in which there was no descent to vilification or abuse; but that it had been conducted along dignified lines, in which each side had depended upon the financial attractiveness to reach the horsemen, and, therefore, had brought out the best there was to be had in racing. It has been supposed to be a gentlemanly misunderstanding in which the one side ignored the doings of the others, and in which nothing that might be calculated to injure the sport could be pointed out.

This impression may or may not have gone abroad in the land. The truth of the matter is that a more vicious fight never has been waged than that between the rival clubs here. Of course, no personal violence was attempted. There was no attempt made to burn a track or to create a disturbance at either course, as has been done in previous turf quarrels. But, with all that eliminated, the manner in which this bidding for public favor has been conducted is far from pleasing to those who really believe there is something in racing above and better than the simple struggle for control of the profit to be derived from the control of racing in a city or territory.

During the thirty-seven days the fight lasted here the partisans of the rival factions have been unceasing in trying to force their respective opinions upon those who care to listen. But one man connected with either side has escaped having his past brought up and incidents in his career have been enlarged upon, distorted and magnified to a degree that naturally must have brought to those who were not in a position to separate the absolute "knock" from the sensible idea of what the fight really means to the sport in the Middle West a general disgust with the condition of affairs; and it can scarcely be questioned that more friends have been lost to the sport than made for it by this continual crusade of abuse and vilification.

Neither is it a far cry to declare that all this contention here, coming as it has at a most inopportune time, has had much to do with bringing about the present deplorable condition of affairs in the several states where legislation adverse to the racing interests has been forced. At the present time the outlook for the horsemen who have confined their attentions to the Western turf during the summer season is decidedly dark. It is still hoped that racing in Chicago may be possible during the summer, but this optimistic view is entertained by only a few of the men whose business it is to send the horses to the races. Chicago and St. Louis were, of course, the principal objective points for the Western horsemen, and with racing not conducted at either place, there remain but a very few points where it will be at all possible, and the chances to continue in the business with a reasonable profit are materially lessened.

The few men who have made extensive purchases of yearlings in former years were far-sighted enough to keep their strings down to the horses they already had or to make but very few additions in the way of young horses, and they will, perhaps, suffer a little; but there remains the vast army of men who have collected stables of considerable strength to whom the present situation looms up as forming an almost certain loss for the coming season, unless some way may be found to provide racing opportunities for the summer.

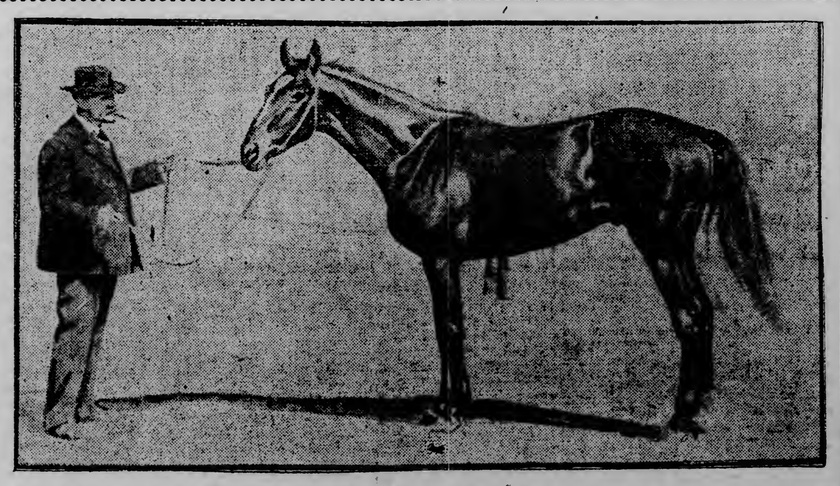

What Memphis, Nashville, Louisville and Latonia will be able to offer better racing this season than ever before goes without saying, for these will be the natural points in the early season, while the tangles at the more important points are being straightened out, and to those who follow that circuit there is a most pleasing prospect in sight. The Canadian circuit, too, will benefit largely by the condition of affairs in the big cities of the West. The stake events of the Highland Park circuit have already closed, and it is said the list of nominations to the fixtures to be decided on these tracks shows a far better class of horses from this section than ever before has been sent in.

It is rumored here, but without official sanction, that covetous eyes are being cast by both sides on the Grosse Point track, at Detroit. There is a beautiful race course that has been closed for several years to the runners, with the exception of a short and unprofitable meeting two years ago. High-class racing has been conducted there with profit, and it will not be surprising to find one or the other of the warring racing bodies advertising an opening along lines that will bring back to it something of its former glories.

COLLIERS SENT TO HONG KONG.

Port Louis, Island of Mauritius, March 31.—A report is current here to the effect that the colliers accompanying the Russian squadron commanded by Admiral Rojestvensky were ordered to go to Hong Kong, by way of Batavia, Island of Java.

WINNER OF THE MONTGOMERY HANDICAP AND HIS OWNER.

Ram's Horn, which won Monday's Montgomery handicap at Memphis, is probably the best 3-year-old that ever has raced in the West at this time of the season. He won in a field of eighteen, most of his opponents being aged horses. Ram's Horn is a bay colt, by Bute—Aunt Tessa. He was bred at Elmdorf farm by J. B. Habbin, and Capt. "Jim" Williams, his present owner, got him at a yearling sale for $175. In New Orleans recently Williams refused $20,000 for the colt, and is said to have refused $30,000 for him after Monday's race.

NO GROUND FOR WAR

Revolutionists Get Cold Shoulder From Southern League Magnates.

Peace Best With Baseball In Such Prosperous Condition.

Macon, Ga., March 30.—The sensational feature of the week in baseball was the appearance of the war promoters in Atlanta with the hope of inducing the clubs of the Southern league to go over the head of President Kavanaugh and join the Class A combination, who are threatening all kind of destruction to the American league as well as the minor leagues under Class A.

The traveling commission, composed of Howard Griffiths, who holds two shares of stock in the Jersey City club, and claiming to represent the Eastern league, and Tip O'Neill, the president of the six-club Western league, both raw in baseball politics, were met in Atlanta by George Stallings, who had visited that city the week previous, and the trio went after President Joher, a new man in baseball, but were unable to show him why he should take other than the advice of Judge Kavanaugh. The very next day six of the Southern clubs came out strong for their presidents policy, while Mr. Kavanaugh sent a strong dispatch to the clubs of his league, which read as follows: "The Southern league is opposed to breaking the national agreement. As long as I am president it will stand for the Cincinnati peace agreement. Griffiths, O'Neill and Tebeau stand for their own selfish interests. If they had even the proper conception of decency about them they would not attempt to array any Southern league club against their own interests."

This was pretty strong language from the Little Rock judge, who is well versed in baseball, and a member of the national board, of which Messrs. Tebeau and Griffiths are members. The judge had good reason to feel sore at the audacity of Griffiths, in particular, who has expressed great respect for Mr. Kavenaugh.

Ed Hanlon was to have been present, as well as George Tebeau, but Hanlon found trouble in getting his own salary fixed up with the Brooklyn club, and was out of the minor league trouble for the time. Perhaps the weakest feature of the schemers is the position held by foxy Hanlon, who is bound to get badly mixed up while trying to manage major and minor league ball with one set of brains. The tail-end position of the Brooklyn club is plain evidence that Hanlon is paying more attention to Baltimore than to Brooklyn.

The argument that Mr. Griffith gave the Atlanta club was that unless the Southern league joined the men who were willing to become outlaws they would come South and take the players for nothing.

This was a weak argument, for the reason that the Southern league is better able to pay good salaries, than the Eastern league, as they do about one-third more business. Then again, the fifteen or twenty classes under the combination might club together and make it very warm for the Eastern league on the same ground that the combination proposed to hamper the American league with, viz, take two players from each club. With the Class A combination fighting organized ball including the major leagues and about fifcluding the major leagues, and about fifbecome a good deal like a boy's ear between the thumb and forefinger of a kind, but strenuous papa.

There is no room in baseball for the man who is willing to talk baseball war at this season of the year. The public are now ready for the players' exhibition on the ball field, and would no doubt imprison the trouble makers could they get hold of them in some of the cities of the country. Howard Griffith better go back to Jersey City and look after his law practice, which must be going to the dogs, if he was originally of any use. Tebeau and Stallings should be busy getting their ball teams into shape, while Ned Hanlon must now get a move on, since Charley Ebbets has full control of the Brooklyn club and wants to see Eddie earn his reduced salary. War is a bad thing in ball, and to win out one needs a big barrel to start with.

There is no need of a scrap, and the wrongs are all manufactured for a hidden purpose. If the minors could be whipped into line and follow the lead to be engineered by Howard Griffith the plot could be worked to very good satisfaction, but this cannot be done, and the scheme can never be a success.

At the bottom of the present mix-up among the minors are one or two National league magnates who can never rest easy with the American league eagle flying high in the ethereal waves of a sentimental success.

How long can a man play ball fast enough to hold his end up in major league company is a problem interesting the professional ball player of the present time.

I had a very interesting discussion on the subject with Charley Farrell of the Boston club a few days ago.

This is Farrell's eighteenth straight year as a major league ball player, and from all appearances this famous catcher looks in much better form than for several years at this time of the season.

I contend that by strict attention to every phase of life during the twelve months of each year that Farrell might have added several years in fast company, for example, a strict attention to diet, regular hours for sleep and refusal to indulge in the slightest form in malt or spirituous liquors, in this way keeping off an overabundance of fat and always within range of fast work at short notice, instead of often growing extra heavy during the playing season, and year after year beginning the training season fully forty pounds overweight, making it a perfect hardship to get down to playing form, and often going well into the season before being in the best form as the result of failing to live the severe but simple life.

Duke Farrell argued that he felt this spring as well as he had for a number of years, and fully believed that he could not have improved his present condition as a ball player by different methods from that which he has indulged in for the last seventeen years.

"A man should never attempt to keep down fine during the entire year," said the duke, "any more than a race horse, as one would grow stale just when the supreme test was called for. Certainly disease will set a player back, but I believe it's necessary to put on weight in the winter time to get the best work in the summer for any length of time after a man passes the 30 mark in life.

"If I were to start all over again, I don't think I would do a bit different than I have since starting out with Chicago in 1888, and all that I have ever thought of was dieting at times when I found that I was slowing up with weight. The older a man grows the harder it is to get in condition, and for that reason a man is about all in in baseball at 40 years of age."

WHITE IS MODEST

Englishman To Meet Britt Does Not Look the Fighter.

Commenced Boxing in 1894 When He Weighed 84 Pounds.

San Francisco, April 1.—Jabez White, the lightweight champion of England, who has been matched to fight Jimmy Britt this month, is a modest chap. White was born in 1876, but not of fighting stock. White would pass for a well dressed bank clerk, his quiet-looking face having none of the boxer's trademarks about it.

The casual observer would not take White for a pugilist. In street atture he suggests anything but a boxer. But when the Briton strips it is another story. He is muscular, wiry and very strong looking. White is of the lanky build. He has thin legs, long sinewy arms, a hatchet-like countenance, but broad shoulders, has light hair and a very pale complexion.

White was born on Sept. 17, 1875. He stands 5 feet 7½ nches and weighs, in condition, 130 pounds. White has been fighting for ten years. His style is more that of the American than the style of his own country. When White began his career, he elected to mingle with American pugilists. He got his first training when he became the sparring partner of Mike Sears of Boston, who fought in England. Then White joined hands with Dick O'Brien and other native boxers and soon got onto their tricks. White is best known for his two victories over Spike Sullivan, when the latter was supposed to be at his best.

Mitchell has great confidence in White's ability to whip Britt. "I think that he is the best man of his weight England has produced in many a day," said Mitchell, "and if he is beaten, Britt will know that he has been fighting. White is clever, shifty and can punch hard with either hand. He is also an excellent general and no doubt will surprise his detractors. At any rate I will back him for a big sum.

Ben Benton, who has seen White in all his principal fights, echoes what Mitchell says, and adds:

"White will make a lot of friends; he will also make good here. He is as clever as Britt, or in fact any lightweight in the world. When he lands that long left of his there will be something doing."

Jabez keeps a hotel near Birmingham, the "Fox and Goose." In this country it would be called a roadhouse. There is a bar, of course, but he says that he seldom goes into it, for he doesn't drink or smoke. He has four interesting dogs and two horses, and then he has been married six years and has "two little kids" to earn a living for. The "simple life," with a fight thrown in now and then by way of spice, suits him.

Since winning the championship his only chance to fight at all has been at the old game of meeting all comers in the music halls. While following this he has sometimes knocked out four or five opponents in a night; but he modestly refuses to take much credit for that, as they were "second raters."

Some sixty fights are on White's record books. A very large majority of his rivals he knocked out. Two or three lost the decision to him. One, James Curran, the middleweight, fought twenty rounds to a draw. None of them ever succeeded in either knocking him out or taking a decision from him—he never lost a fight.

He has held half a dozen English champions at different weights. Asked for a short outline of his fighting career, Jabez said:

"I was with the Cook's tour people when I first thought of fighting. Then I left their office and started to learn a trade. It was carpentering. I used to put on the gloves with the other boys. Soon I found that I had some knack of boxing. So when I was 18 I started fighting. I weighed 6 stone 12, the lightest fighting class, and in a little while I won the championship of England. Then I took the 8 stone 4 bantam, the 8 stone 10 feather, the 9 stone 7 (123 pounds) and the 10 stone titles. After I won the 6 stone 12 not a boy in England would fight me and I had to wait until I grew into the 8-stone class.

"I haven't had a big fight for about a year, but I've been going around England meeting all comers of late, and have been pretty busy. Have I seen any Americans? Oh, yes, I've seen them all. McCoy, Sharkey, Ruhlin, O'Brien, Jackson, Dixon, Neil, and I guess all that ever came over. Yes, I used to train with them all the time and know the American style pretty well. It differs greatly from the English style. We employ mostly straight blows, while the Americans use swings, upper cuts and all sorts of wild punches. No, I don't think that I fight the real English style. I rather modified my fighting and am a half and half. That is, I have mixed the English and American and studied it to fight with it.

"I think I will put in at least a month training. I will do light work for a few weeks and then finish up strong. I don't want any draw decisions. I hope the fight does not go to the limit, and if my ideas are right it won't."

A stone, by the way, is fourteen pounds, so, according to his statement above, White started his fighting career at 96 pounds and fought up to 140. On leaving England he weighed 136. The scales in an uptown resort registered the same weight in his street clothes.

WITH THE PUGILISTS

Decker and O'Leary, and Corbett and Sullivan Fight Draws.

Milwaukee, April 1.—The eight-round bout between George Decker of Philadelphia and Young O'Leary of Milwaukee, before the Milwaukee Boxing club, last night, was declared a draw by Referee Hogan of Chicago, while the crowd almost to a man shouted their dissent and were of the opinion that the Philadelphia boy had won the bout by a wide margin. Only in the fifth round did the Milwaukee boy have a shade. The first and third were an even break, while the other rounds were easily Decker's. Decker was far the more clever and finished without a mark, while O'Leary was pretty well battered up about the head. Decker finished strong and O'Leary very tired.

Baltimore, April 1.—Young Corbett and Kid Sullivan fought ten rounds to a draw here last night. Corbett claimed a foul in the second round. Referee O'Hara refused to allow it, but gave the Denver boy five minutes in which to recuperate.

Denver, April 1.—Martin Judge of Scranton, Pa., was defeated in his fight with Rube Smith of Denver last night, before the Democratic club. In the fifth round Judge was floored two times, and in the sixth took the count five times, the bell saving him from a knockout. He was so badly beaten, however, that he was unable to continue when the gong sounded for the seventh.

SAYS HE WILL WIN THE RACE

Cuban Runner Expects To Win Marathon Race in 2:05:00.

St. Louis, April 1.—"No run a mile. Me run twenty-five miles," said Felix Carvajal, the Cuban long-distance runner, who will represent Missouri athletic club in the latter's Marathon race in May, when asked how fast he could run a mile. Continuing, Felix said: "Run twenty-five miles, every mile in five minutes. Keep this up twenty-five miles. Run no slower."

Carvajal is one of the most unique runners ever seen in America. Unique in that he trains, not according to the ideas of Americans, but according to his own fixed plan. That he is "wise" according to his lights is known to all who have come in contact with him.

Instead of running three, four or five miles indoors, the Cuban runs by the hour, half hour or three-quarters, and sometimes he will run fifteen minutes above an hour. It is nothing unusual for Felix to travel ten miles in 59 seconds; in fact, he does this continually, and last Wednesday night he covered the ten miles in 56 seconds, the fastest ever run on a twenty-two-lap track.

Every particle of Carvajal's training is original. In order to relieve the monotony of his work, of the steady tramp around a small saucer-shaped track, the Cuban has a number of bells attached to a belt which he wears around his wrist, and which he wore while serving Gen. Garcia in the Cuban revolution as courier. The jingle of the bells as the Cuban encircles the track reminds one of the cold days of winter, but a glance at the smiling countenance of the Cuban is sufficient to warm the coldest heart.

When he becomes too warm from exertion, and the perspiration begins to collect in beads upon his brow, he will take his handkerchief, holding it by its corners, elevate it above his head, allow it to flap against his forehead, thereby raising a breeze, which cools his brow.

Of the many odd things Felix does while on the track, none is more peculiar than his side-wheeling in taking the corners. Instead of running around the corners with his weight thrown on his left leg, Carvajal turns his back toward the interior of the circle and then goes around the corner cross-legged, that is, crossing one foot over the other like a skater would in making a turn. What effect this really has on a man is unknown, unless it be that it takes the strain off his left leg.

That the Cuban is a great runner, probably the best distance man in the world, there can be no doubt. He does not run upon his toes, like an American boy; neither does he take a long stride, like some distance runners, but he runs upon his heels, and his stride is short and choppy. Occasionally he will lengthen his stride to relieve the monotony of his gait, and then gradually drop back into the short, choppy gait.

Felix competed in the Marathon race contested at the Olympic games last summer. Before the race he had no athletic costume to wear, and not caring to travel the twenty-five miles over the dust-covered course, he resorted to heroic measures, and cut his "ducks" at the knees. He wore no light shoes, but had on a pair of heavy road shoes, which must have weighed about four pounds. As he traveled over the course, he had a smile for everybody, and tipped his hat whenever the spectators clapped him as he ran along. Then, when he found some friendly person who would talk with him, he would stop by the roadside and converse with them.

VANDERBILT ARRESTED.

New York, April 1.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt is the latest to fall into the hands of the police for alleged violation of the speed laws. In a powerful automobile he led a bicycle policeman a hot chase for thirteen blocks in Madison avenue yesterday, and would have escaped arrest then if his automobile had not become stuck in the mud. He was arrested and released in $200 bail, which was given by a man who was riding with him.

ATHLETIC EXHIBIT

Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Give Excellent Entertainment of Work.

Acrobatics and Gymnasium Work Constitute Interesting Program.

The interest taken by Duluth people in the work of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. was evidenced by the full house which greeted the exhibition given in the Lyceum last evening, by the members of the two associations.

It is possible that many in the audience went to the exhibition more for the sake of showing their endorsement of the work of the associations, than with the idea of being amused, but they were very agreeably surprised by witnessing nearly three hours' of an excellent entertainment.

The Y. W. C. A. girls, under the direction of Miss Ruth Roberts, made only two appearances, in a fancy drill and a dumb-bell exhibition, but in their pretty blue and red costumes, and the manner in which they went through the drills, made a hit with the audience.

The remainder of the evening was taken up with the work of the boys' department and the senior Y. M. C. A. The boys gave a very clever flag drill. They were all dressed in white waists and the Y. M. C. A. trousers and made a very neat appearance. This was followed by a tableau of several different pyramids of boys. The Indian club drill by eight of the boys had to be passed over on account of the length of the program, and the business men's class of the Y. M. C. A. then gave an exhibition of the regular class work of the association, such as is gone through every evening in the gymnasium.

George Proff, the young man who is trying to loop the loop on roller skates, and William Wendtlandt, gave two very clever acts. The first consisted of some tumbling feats and the second of some work on the flying rings. The young men have a regular costume for the act, and bear more the appearance of professional performers than amateurs. Their work also was much above the average of the amateur gymnast. Proff brought the second act to a close by a double somersault in the air from the flying rings.

The exhibition of apparatus work was of a high order. A class of eight young men, William Olson, William Becker, Albert Olson, Elliott Finch, Lawrence Larson, E. Grouchau, Chas. Raymond and Lief Johnson, went through some difficult feats on the horizontal bar, the parallel bars and the horse. The regular class work on the apparatus was followed by some special feats, which each performer had prepared himself. Lawrence Larson brought this act to a close by the "giant swing" around the horizontal bar.

The high jump was won by J. D. Deighton, who cleared the bar at 5 feet 2 inches, with apparent ease. William Olson won the high dive, plunging over the bar at the height of 5 feet 7 inches. L. Larson won the pole vault, defeating Bert Wheeler, who kicked the bar off at 9 feet. The spring board high jump and the long dive had to be passed over on account of the length of the program.

J. Romieux, the fencing master, and one of his pupils, William L'Estrange, gave a very clever exhibition, and shortly after they commenced the wrestling bout between George Oldham and Charles Kiene was begun on another part of the stage. The wrestling match lasted ten minutes and was declared a draw.

Two "colored lightweights," whose color consisted of lamp black, and whose names are a dark secret, brought the entertainment to a close by a bout with the gloves. It was the opinion of the "sports" present that the match was "fixed," for after about three minutes' lively work the pugilists clinched and fell to the floor pummelling each other promiscuously while the curtain was dropped.

During the evening the Y. M. C. A. orchestra played a number of selections, under the direction of William Anderson and Charles Raymond, a clever acrobat, added to the merriment in his difficult role of clown.

SEVEN WINNERS

Of Rich Suburban Handicap Stabled at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., April 1.—Seven winners of the Suburban handicap are now doing stud service in this section. They are Troubadour, Salvator, Henry of Navarre, Ben Brush, Kinley Mack, Alcedo and Gold Heels. Troubadour is the oldest, he winning the great race when a 4-year-old in 1896, which now makes him 23 years old. Salvator is the next in age. He won the great race as a 4-year-old in 1890, so he is now 19 years old; Henry of Navarre won it as a 4-year-old in 1896; Ben Brush was the same age when he won it in 1897, as was also Kinley Mack. Alcedo and Gold Heels when they won the event in 1900, 1901 and 1902, respectively. Imp, the only mare that ever won the Suburban, is also in the stud in this state. She was 5 years old when she won the noted race in 1899. Two horses that ran second in the Suburban are located in the stud here, namely, Sir Walter and Ethelbert, while Lamplighter, which was twice third in the race, and Tenny, Ogden and Blues, all of which also ran third, are all in the stud in Kentucky. Delhi is probably the best horse yet sired by a Suburban winner.

MARVIN HART WOULD FIGHT JIM JEFFRIES

MARVIN HART.

Last Tuesday night at San Francisco, Marvin Hart of Louisville and Jack Johnson, the colored heavyweight champion, met in a twenty-round battle, and Hart secured the decision. Although neither Hart nor Johnson showed championship form, the former has challenged Jeffries for the heavyweight championship and a match will probably be arranged.

Manager Kelley Discusses Brainless and Brainy Men.

At Jasksonville the other day Manager Joe Kelley of the Reds gave a little talk on "Brainy and Brainless Catchers." He said:

"Brainy catchers are good people to have on a team, but at the same time they are not essential, as the public has been led to believe.

"The brains of the battery always is and always must be the pitcher. The brainiest catcher in the business cannot make a success of a stupid pitcher. I have seen the experiment tried, and it never yet has turned out to be a success.

"The pitcher must be able to think for himself—must know his batsmen even better than does the catcher, and must know just what he can do to minimize the danger that confronts him when he is facing a heavy hitter.

"Of course, the catcher is essential in signing the pitcher what sort of a ball to pitch when there are men on bases, for he can see what the base runners are about to do—whether they intend stealing or will wait for the batsman to hit out the ball.

"But when it comes to deciding what is his most effective delivery against the batsman, it is the pitcher, and not the catcher, who must display brains."

TWENTY YEARS

Maximum Age Limit of High School Football Players.

Chicago, April 1.—At the annual conference of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools here yesterday, the maximum age limit for football players in high schools was fixed at 20 years.

The report on athletics, which was adopted, included a recommendation against the employment of professional coaches. Among a hundred prominent educators attending today's meeting were President James of the university of Illinois; President Harlan, Lake Forest university; President Maclean ,university of Iowa; Dean Albion W. Small, university of Chicago, and Edwin A. Birg, university of Wisconsin.

GUIDES ARE OUT.

Spalding and American League Guides Are Issued.

Spalding's official baseball guide for 1905 has been issued.

This is the twenty-ninth year for the guide, and as usual is edited by Henry Chadwick, the "father of baseball." The book contains pictures of all the league clubs in the country, no less than 2170 players being contained in the pictures. There is also an interesting article by A. G. Spalding on "What is the Origin of Baseball?" and the usual lists of statistics and the rules of the game.

The Chicago Sporting Goods company has also published a book this year, containing statistics of the American league.

DONOVAN WINNER

Of the Wrestling Match at Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The wrestling match between T. W. Donovan, formerly of Minneapolis, and Kid Fandrie of Green Bay, Wis., at the Star theater last night, was won by Donovan. The match was a stubbornly contested affair, best two out of three falls, catch-as-catch-can, two points down, strangle hold barred. Donovan took the first fall in eighteen minutes, by a hammerlock hold. Fandrie took the second fall in ten minutes, on a crotch and half Nelson hold. Donovan won the third bout and match in thirteen minutes. Fandrie challenged Donovan to a return match for $100, and Donovan accepted. It will be pulled off next Wednesday night.

BRITT AND NELSON

Are Washing Dirty Linen Instead of Boosting the Game.

Looks As If the Two Would Meet Again Soon.

San Francisco, April 1.—When pugilists and managers of pugilists fall out the public is let into the secrets of the guild. This is a new reading of an old adage.

For days past the Britts and the Battling Nelsons have been delving to their armpits in a dirty linen wash. Charges of crookedness have been made, the most pointed accusation being that Willie Britt wanted Battling Nelson to throw a fight to Jimmy Britt.

This Mr. W. Britt indignantly denies. He says the story was trumped up by Manager Nolan, who showed lack of managerial tact in letting the Britt-Nelson contest slip through his fingers, and who wanted to spring something sensational in order to cover his own deficiency as a matchmaker.

The wrangle is one of the most unseemly that has marked the progress of ring sport in this city. Nolan in particular has been bitterly emphatic in his denunciation of those who have thwarted the plans of himself and his durable Dane. In contest with stating that the Britts wanted to prearrange the Nelson-Britt fight he asserts that the Gans-Britt contest was a swindle.

It is a good thing—or may be bad thing—that the people who were behind the Ralston bill did not know of the mass of incriminating evidence he had in his possession. They would surely have used him in their fight against a continuance of the fistic game.

As matters stand now, even, many are wondering whether Nolan will content himself with what he has said so far. If he can a tale unfold which will show when and where the Gans-Britt plot was hatched out and by whom he will relieve himself of the suspicion of being merely a disgruntled fighter's agent who is talking at random.

In order that the circumstances leading up to the malodorous squabble may be understood, it should be stated that prior to the Nelson-Young Corbett contest Britt and Nelson were matched to box before the Yosemite club. After defeating Corbett, Nelson, according to Nolan, became dissatisfied with the terms mentioned in the articles. He had signed to box for 55 per cent. He heard that Britt was to get 10 per cent additional, and he insisted that he be treated similarly, or that new articles calling for 65 per cent for the fighters be drawn up.

Matchmaker Coffroth of the Yosemite club, refused to change the conditions and the match fell through. Then Coffroth closed a deal with Jabez White of England, through Tom O'Rourke of New York.

There were mutterings from the Nelson camp when it was announced that the English boxer was being brought here, and on the day White arrived in New York the storm broke. It was then that Nolan told of being approached by Willie Britt. If White had been drowned in midocean and the Nelson-Britt match had come on the boards again Nolan might have carried the secret to the grave with him.

To a clear-thinking person it looks as though Britt and Nelson will surely meet, and that before very long, providing always that the Nolan disclosures do not result in an official investigation of some kind and the squelching of pugilism by the authorities. Law or no law, the whole business rests on a very flimsy foundation, and it would be no trick for a few determined taxpayers to formulate a scheme for knocking the prize fight industry higher than a kite. They could adduce the testimony of the warring scrappers and their managers to show that the sport of the glove should be stopped and in the light of existing conditions there would be no cause for tears if the bottom did fall out of sluggerdom.

To return to Britt and Nelson. The match in which White is to figure has been arranged, but there is nothing to prevent the Dane and the native son getting together as soon as the White-Britt affair is worked off. Nelson says he "would rather box Britt than anybody." Britt says he intends to do a lot of fighting and that Nelson will have the very first call on his services. Under the circumstances it might be a wise move for Jimmy and Bat to give their respective managers a day out and arrange the terms of their contest themselves. If necessary they could appoint a board of arbitration to decide how the money should be apportioned.

Uiecre Olism 129.ile .cmfwyp vbgkqjxzfi

The best that can be said for Jabez White is that he is coming to San Francisco under particularly adverse circumstances. Nearly every sporting page in the country has blazoned the news that he has been out of the ring for years and that he was little short of a fancy sparrer at the best of times.

He has all this to live down. He will have to look "every inch a fighter" as he stumbles up the ferry apron with his luggage and he will have to show something really impressive in his training in order to ingratiate himself with the ring followers of this Western burg.

At the outset it is said that Charlie Mitchell purposes having White do his work behind closed doors. A move of that kind would be fatal to all prospects of a "bumper house." To begin with the notion is not original. Bill Rickards of Chicago was the latest to inaugurate the closed-door system. When the crowd at Woodward's saw Sam Berger rap Rickards on the jaw they understood why Bill did not wish anyone to see him work.

It is intimated that Mitchell desires to keep White under cover, because he intends to bet heavily on him. It's a shrewd scheme. Charley old boy, but it smacks of the time when men fought for stakes and gate money was unknown.

In these degenerate days glove contests need advertising the same as other attractions that are dependent on the public for support. The promoters have to plaster the dead walls and place pictures of the contestants in front of the cigar stores. The pugilists assist in the good work to the extent of camping in quarters that are accessible, and having chairs and benches for the visitors who come to watch them.

Mitchell is a smart fellow, and he will soon decide that the closed-door system will not do here. If he is tardy in sizing up the situation the Yosemite club will jog his perceptive faculties. Coffroth isn't likely to buy a pig in a poke.

W. W. NAUGHTON.

MANY STAKE ENTRIES.

Chicago, April 1.—Tabulations of the twelve stakes of the Chicago Jockey club which closed last week have been announced. The lists show a total of 1,098 entries, an average of over ninety for each fixture and a substantial increase over the total for 1904, when 1,005 nominations were made for the same events.

The failure of last year's crop of 2-year-olds is well illustrated in the nominations to the 2-year-old stakes of this year, especially the Chicago Derby. The latest event, which will be the principal stake for this division in this section, carries $10,000 in added money, but only fifty-three nominations were received as against eighty last year. The full list for this stake is as follows:

Captain Sam,	Dr. Leggo,
Big Beach,	Ram's Horn,

An encouraging symptom is the increase in the entries to the four 2-year-old stakes. In 1904 these fixtures drew 435 nominations. With conditions unchanged, they have attracted 484 for this year. The Juvenile and Competition stakes, each of which is decided over a route of five and one-half furlongs, closed with 138 entries each.

Noticeable in the list are performers like Dr. Leggo, who won the California and Ascot Derbies; Ram's Horn, the star of Captain Williams' string; Angleta, who galloped away from King's Trophy in the Arkansas Derby, and Flaxman, Kurtzman, John Smulski, Jack Lory, Pinkerton, Far West, Big Beach and Silverskin, most of whom earned laurels on Chicago tracks last summer.

A comparative table of the events, showing the chief conditions and the number of nominations for each in the two years, is as follows:

	Distance.	Nominations	Added.	1904	1905
Northern handicap..	1¼	$5,000		81	82
Superior handicap...	1½	2,000		65	67
Flight stakes	⅝	1,500		83	87
Prairie stakes	1⅛	1,500		41	129
Monadnock stakes...	1⅛	1,500		81	76
Chicago Derby	1¼	10,000		80	53

PECULIAR PREDICAMENT

Caused Montgomery to Kick on Outlaw Rule.

Chicago, April 1.—The American Turf association seems to be winning whatever glory and honors there are in the present turf war. It has finally emerged from the New Orleans fracas with a clear field for the rest of its meeting, and has, indirectly, stirred up an awful peck of trouble for its opponents at Memphis.

It seems that the "outlaw" ruling, promulgated so grandly by the Western Jockey club, has not found a very ardent supporter in Mr. Montgomery, owner of the Memphis track, because it includes several of his personal friends, among them Capt. Brown, Pat Dunne and other prominent owners. He has practically decided to allow these gentlemen to run their horses at his course, sublimely regardless of the obnoxious ruling, and the officials of the Western Jockey club can do as they like about it. Having won one fight from them on the subject of closing up the Crescent City track at New Orleans, Mr. Montgomery seems to have a good chance of being equally victorious in his second attempt, which will ultimately split the "outlaw" rule wide open and subject its makers to no little humiliation.

St. Louis will open, as usual, April 15, but there seems no possible chance of their running later than June 15, the day on which the new law, fathered by Governor Folk, prohibiting betting, and virtually killing racing in that state, goes into effect. The governor has given it out flatly that he means business, and such being the case the Missouri racing magnates may as well bow to the inevitable.

Tennessee has followed Missouri with a similar law just passed by both branches of the legislature, and this year, it is feared, will see the last of racing in that state. With two great horse-breeding commonwealths legislating against one of their biggest and oldest industries Kentucky may as well get in line and do likewise.

SURE WAY TO BEAT THE RACES

It Won the Wild-Eyed Man a Quarter and the Wise Guy Was Satisfied.

A red faced man, whose clothes might have been rather loud if his diamond shirt stud had given them half a chance, stepped up to the ticker in a Third avenue saloon the other afternoon, says a New York correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"Anything from the last race, yet?" he asked.

The shabby, wild-eyed little man who had the tape passed it over to him.

After a hurried glance the man behind the shirt stud threw down the tape with a growl of disgust.

"It's a hard game to beat unless you know how," sympathized the wild-eyed man. "There's only one really sure way. Now, if I had the backing—"

"Wire tapper, eh?" ventured the red-faced man. "Sorry, but I've got an important date to meet a sick engineer over in Jersey City."

The man with the untamed optics looked hurt.

"Come, come; I was only fooling," said the red-faced man with a wink at the bartender. "Come over to the table here and tell me about it. What will you have?"

"You seem like a man of education and understanding," said the shabby one, doubtfully taking a seat at the table. "And since the fickleness of fortune renders it imperative that I should share my great secret with some one, I don't know that I could do better than confide it to you. I beg pardon. Oh, whisky, please.

"As you undoubtedly know," he continued when they had filled their glasses, "there is a difference in time between New York and Chicago of about one hour. That is to say, when it is 6 o'clock here it is only 5 o'clock in Chicago.

"In the same way in San Francisco, which is three times as far west of us as is Chicago, so that there is three hours difference in time. That is, when it is 6 o'clock here it is only 3 o'clock in San Francisco. Do you follow me?

"The further West we go the greater difference in time. If we go eight times as far west as San Francisco we naturally gain eight times three hours, or, roughly speaking, a whole day.

"But where is eight times as far West as San Francisco? Why, sir, it's all the way 'round the world to New York again."

The shabby man paused and drew back to watch the effect.

"In other words," suggested the red-faced man, "if you've been 'round the world in the meantime today is really yesterday."

"Precisely. But to put it in a more practical way," continued the shabby man in an impressive whisper, "if you send yourself a telegram around the world, westward, "you'll get it the day before you write it."

"But what has all this to do with beating the races?" asked the man with the white light district on his shirt front.

"Why, don't you see? Take today's list of winners, for example. If I had the money I'd immediately telegraph it to a friend of mine in Chicago, it would reach him an hour ago by Chicago time.

"He'd wire it on to a friend in San Francisco. It would reach there three hours ago by 'Frisco time. The 'Frisco man would cable it on to a friend in Honolulu and so on all the way 'round the world until it reached me again just twenty-four hours before I'd sent it in the first place.

"The minute I received the telegram I'd start out to make the rounds of all the poolrooms and back each winner for all they'd take on him. After that 'twould only be a matter of sitting down and waiting until it was time to cash in.

"You look incredulous. It seems too easy to be true, you think. Why don't I keep such a good thing to myself, you ask? Sir, it is with pain that I confess that I haven't even the entire amount of the telegraph costs, to say nothing of the amount necessary to back the horses.

I had hoped that you might take sufficient interest in the scheme to furnish the backing, but since you still seem to entertain some doubts, I'll tell you what we'll do. If you'll advance merely enough to make up the costs of telegraphing—" the shabby man glanced at the 25 cents lying on the table—"about 25 cents, say—"I'll immediately wire the results of today's races around the world. Then, if we get them in time to play them it is agreed that you will furnish the backing for tomorrow's races, all profits to be equally divided. Does that seem fair?"

"Perfectly," said the red-faced man, shoving over a quarter.

The shabby man, his eyes wilder than ever, pocketed the money and started for the door.

"Hold on there!" his patron called after him. "When will I meet you here? Tomorrow afternoon?"

"Bless me, no!" answered the shabby man from the door. "Why, today's races would be over by tomorrow. Make it yesterday morning. I'll see you then. Ta-ta."

"Well," murmured the red-faced man when he had assured himself that his diamond stud still shone for all from its accustomed place, "it was worth a quarter anyhow."

ATTELL TELLS

A Characteristic Story About Young Corbett.

Abe Attell tells a story characteristic of Young Corbett. When Attell first started out he acted as sparring partner to Corbett, and was with him in that capacity for nearly a year. In talking of Corbett's gambling propensities Attell said:

"I have seen reckless gamblers, but Corbett is the king of the bunch. There is no game that he is afraid to tackle, and he will make a bet on anything that comes along. In my first three or four fights I was in preliminaries in Denver, and when I went to collect my winning end I was told that Corbett had already collected the money, and a search would find him in some faro bank. On one occasion he had not paid me anything for several weeks, and I even needed shoes, so after he had fought I tackled him for some money. He said he had several debts to pay first, and when they were settled he had just $6 left. I asked him for half, but he told me he would play faro with the $6, and he ran it into over $300. Then I felt sure of my end, but he said he would give me mine in the morning. The next day I went up to his bedroom and saw forty empty champagne bottles strewn around. I awoke him and asked for some money, and was told to go and get some out of his pocket. I looked there and found just $5, the rest having been blow in during the night. That disgusted me and I quit him that day for good, going back to San Francisco, when I raked up the money."

DULUTH'S NEIGHBORS.

Mesaba

Mesaba, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. L. Gagne and children Paul and Adelena are visiting friends and relatives in Duluth this week.

County Superintendent of Schools S. W. Gilpin visited the school here Wednesday between trains.

Mrs. N. G. Peterson and children, August and Marie, were at Aurora visiting friends, Saturday last.

M. Gibeau spent Sunday with friends and relatives in Duluth.

John Henry from the Stevens was in town on business Tuesday.

Mrs. E. J. Stokes and little sister Mattie from the Stevens mine were in town Wednesday.

John Besler was in from the Molman on Tuesday.

Mrs. C. Latour from Duluth is now visiting relatives here.

P. Norman has moved his family at Rice River, where he has been employed as section foreman for the past year.

Georgiana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Gibeau, had a slight attack of la grippe this week, but is very much improved now.

A. F. McRae of Aurora, but formerly of this town, left for Swanville, Minn., his old home, and will visit his relatives and friends.

S. Happnes, an employe of the section, visited his sister and cousin in Two Harbors last week.

Cass Lake

Cass Lake, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. H. Cornwall, who has been employed as a sealer under the direction of Superintendent of Logging O'Neil, during the past winter, tendered his resignation on Monday, and it is understood that he will hereafter be employed on special work for the department of the interior, probably in connection with the officials of the local United States land office.

Mrs. G. E. Marshall and little son have been the guests of Major Scott at Onigum during the past week.

Andrew Ambrose, one of the stalwart homesteaders on Leech river, in eastern Cass county, was in town on Monday and proved up on his claim.

Frank Gorenflo went to Walker on Monday morning, where he appeared before United States Commissioner De Lury in a case relating to his townsite at Ball Club. He was accompanied by Mr. Funk, who has been associated with him in his venture at Ball Club. It was a test case and will be appealed to the highest courts, in order to determine the rights of a person buying deceased Indian allotments. The outcome of this case will be watched with great interest, as there are a large number of people who are similarly involved.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cass Lake fire department will be held at the fire hall next Tuesday. Among other business to be transacted will be the election of a secretary to succeed A. G. Rutledge, resigned. At the last meeting of the department a committee was appointed to recommend a successor to Mr. Rutledge, and it is understood that the name of H. B. Lange will be presented to the department.

Regular semi-monthly meeting of the village council will be held next Wednesday evening.

John Culnane, machinist at the Great Northern round house, has gone to Superior, having been transferred from Cass Lake to work at the Head of the Lakes. It is said that Ben King will also be transferred to Superior.

Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Jones, who have been living in Bemidji during the past winter, passed through Cass Lake Monday morning enroute to Park Rapids. The doctor has organized a medicine show and will make all of the towns between Park Rapids and St. Paul.

The Cass Lake tent of Maccabees will give a dance on Monday night, April 24, (Easter Monday). John Sitzer, H. B. Lange and Homer Dugas have been appointed as the committee on arrangements.

Mrs. William Cobb and little daughter, and Mrs. Cobb Sr., mother of Mr. Cobb, left on Wednesday morning for Minneapolis, where they will visit for several days with relatives and friends. Mr. Cobb is now in Spokane, Wash., where he expects to locate permanently, in which case his wife and mother will soon join him at that point.

The baseball fanatics of the village got together last Sunday and "rushed the season" by playing a red-hot game that resulted in a victory for the nine called the "government" club, being employes of the bureau of forestry and the logging camps, their opponents being taken from the village. Joe Finnessey pitched for the government crowd, while John Oman did the twirling for the town boys.

Eugene Compo, who has been employed as setter in the J. Neils sawmill for several years, has accepted a similar position at Bemidji and will leave for that place during the coming week.

T. A. Harris, the housemover, was over from Crookston the first of the week. Mr. Harris bought a house while here, and it is understood that he will spend the summer here with his family.

County Commissioner Burns states that the next regular meeting of the board will be held on the 10th inst., when considerable business will come up for consideration, among which will be the appointment of an assessor and a pathmaster for this district.

G. E. Godfrey, a homesteader in the eastern end of the county, was over from his home in town 144-25, the first of the week.

O. C. Gilbert and Harry Oakes, who live in town 144-25, eastern Cass county, were in Cass Lake Tuesday. Mr. Gilbert was before the United States land officials looking after the disposition of an isolated forty in the vicinity of his home.

Mrs. Rutledge and little son Earl were over from Bemidji the first of the week, visiting relatives and friends.

Walker

Walker, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new fraternal insurance order has established a foothold in Walker and gives promise of becoming popular. Walker Assembly No. 962, Loyal Americans of the Republic, was organized Wednesday evening by Deputy P. G. Falardeau of Fargo, who has been at work here for three or four weeks. Following are the first officers of the local assembly, who hold office for the remainder of the current term and until the July election: A. B. Wood, ex-president; A. A. Oliver, president; Mrs. Bissonette, vice president; J. R. Williams, chaplain; L. Nelson, sergeant; Frank Kinkele, secretary and treasurer; H. Straight, orderly; Lulu Bissonette and Alice Lavigne, corporals; Everett Bissonette, guard; T. Cashman, sentinel.

Fire about 8 o'clock Tuesday evening destroyed the house, with contents, including $5 in cash, of A. L. Simmons on Cleveland boulevard. Mr. Simmons was away from home at the time and Mrs. Simmons had gone out a short time previously to attend a meeting of a lodge to which she belongs, leaving her little daughter with Mrs. Walter Spencer.

"A Legend of Leech Lake" is the title of a very handsome little booklet that has just been published by R. H. McGarry for the purpose of letting everybody in the United States know of the beauties of Walker and its surroundings and the attractions of this place as a summer resort.

F. M. Baker of Vinton, Iowa, writes that he is shipping his goods this week to the farm he recently purchased near Backus. Mr. Baker is an expert blacksmith and will probably do a general business in that line as well as work his farm.

Harry McCabe is preparing to get the steamer Flora in shape for business as soon as the ice goes out of the lake. The Flora has been bought by the Mueller Lumber company and will be used in rafting about 8,000,000 feet of logs cut by that company north of Walker to Pokegama dam for the drive down the river. It is also likely that a contract will be made for handling the 11,000,000 feet banked by the Northland Pine company.

The ladies' aid society will meet next Wednesday with Mrs. Michael.

A tribe of Red Men was organized at Pine River Wednesday evening.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Persons, last Tuesday morning, a baby girl.

One of our old residents, Silas J. Wright,

OUR YOUNG FOLKS CORNER

"This being the first of April, we intend
To launch out on our theme without a fetter;
And All-Fool's Day to fookery being friend.
Really, the more absurd we are the better."

Heigh-ho, children, this is April, with its freakish weather—"first sunshine, then tears." Perhaps, that is the reason that on the first day of this month all kinds of deceptive pranks are played.

Children bound out of bed, with hearts full of frolic and fun, bent on fooling somebody. They wrap empty boxes with particular care, drop them on walkways and hide in some nearby place to enjoy the April fool of somebody. Papa's morning nap is disturbed by some merry voice shouting: "A messenger boy with a telegram." Mamma is sent to the parlor to see a neighbor who has called on urgent business. Mrs. Smith is told she is wanted at once at Mrs. Brown's.

Children await with gleeful delight the results of their innocent deceivings. The ripple of laughter and the spirit of good humor become contagious. The older hearts grow warm with happiness and turn to the burdens of the day with an added cheerfulness.

Antiquaries are not agreed as to the origin of this manner of celebrating the first of April, but they have found it quite universal. Hindoos, Persians, French and English and others enjoy it in much the same way.

This day and month was specially devoted to Venus, the goddess of love and laughter, by the Romans.

It is well to have such days for cheerfulness is the salad of life.

And now comes Easter Eve, with its egg-dyeing. Again little fingers are busy and little hearts happy. This year Easter falls on the 23d of April. To all Christendom it is a sacred festival, commemorating the resurrection of the Christ.

But most of the nations or peoples of the earth have held festivals at this season or a season that corresponds. It is the awakening of all nature to newness of life—a resurrection of bud and blossom after a winter's sleep.

The old Teutons celebrated it in honor of Eastre, their Goddess of Spring. The worship of Eastre was part of the Saxon life in Britain and many of the customs peculiar to her worship still survive.

Of all customs peculiar to this season, the use of eggs is the most universal. In France it used to be the custom to gather all the largest eggs and present them to the King. After the celebration of Easter high mass baskets of gilded eggs decorated with green foliage of some kind were brought into the chapel of the Louvre and there blessed before the King by the chaplain and distributed to the members of the court.

In German nursery lore we find a pleasing story of the Easter hare. To children who were good, obedient, truth-loving and kind the white hare will come on Easter Eve and bring eggs of many colors. The children try to stay awake to see the white hare, but, like Saint Nick, he never comes until he is sure the children are fast asleep. The eggs are hidden here and there.

On Easter morn the old folks join in the search. We can imagine with what eagerness the dear little souls peer into every corner, nook and basket, and the outbursts of delight when a bright-colored Easter egg is found.

The old, old custom of egg-rolling has a survival in the egg-rolling on Easter Monday on the White House grounds at Washington.

In Scotland, we are told, the youths and maidens went out before breakfast on Easter morning to search for the eggs of wild fowls, the finding of which was considered great good luck.

The Easter card is said to be of American origin, suggested, no doubt, by our wonderful postal system.

To the Jews the egg was a symbol of life, and at their great festival of the Passover the Pasch egg was a conspicuous feature.

The Persians believed the earth was hatched from an egg at a season that corresponds to our Easter season.

Long ago in old England for a week before Easter children went from house to house—making the knockers dingle, dingle—asking for eggs, which they got, or money instead.

So through all the ages of Easter or spring lore we catch the sound of the rolling egg and the ripple of youthful mirth and joy.

The Tale of the Twins.

BY CHARLES LINCOLN PHIFER.

Uncle Jack scratched his head and seated himself. Edith curled herself at his feet and leaned over his knee. Little Johnny climbed on his other knee. Now they were all ready for the story. Uncle Jack looked up at the ceiling and began:

"Once upon a time there were twin boys, named Henry Hoodoo and Micky Mascott."

"Why, how in the world could that be, Uncle Jack, when their last names were different?" asked Edith.

"They were born on the same day, child," answered Uncle Jack.

"But their names?"

"Well, they had different parents."

"Different fathers and mothers, both?"

"Yes."

"Then how could they be twins?"

"Why, they couldn't help it, for they were born on the same day."

"Oh, Uncle Jack!"

"See here, are you going to let me tell the story or not?"

"Oh, yes, yes. Please go on."

"They looked exactly alike, except one had black hair and one had light; one was freckled and one was fair; one had a small nose and one had a straight one; one was chunky and the other slim; but they looked just alike—straight out of their eyes."

"Uncle Jack, you are making fun of us," interrupted Edith.

"No I am not. Now let me go on with my story. They were as nearly alike as two potatoes, except that one was born unlucky and the other lucky."

"Which one was lucky, Uncle Jack?"

"Why, Micky Mascott, of course. But he didn't look like it when he was born; he didn't have a stitch of clothes on his back."

"And did Henry Hoodoo?" lisped little Johnny.

"Not a rag. But he has had nothing but rags since. He was very unfortunate in the selection of his parents. If there is anything a child ought to be most careful about, it is to select a rich father."

"Oh, Uncle Jack; how could he?" inquired Edith.

"Well, Mickey Mascott did, and as a result he got to go to school, and after that to college, and so soon as he was through with that he had a place open for him, and after he had worked at it a while he was given money with which to start in business for himself. Now, Henry Hoodoo neglected this simple matter of selecting a rich father, and what was the result? Well, part of the time he didn't have proper books and clothes to go to school, and part of the time he had to work and couldn't go. As a result he did not get much education. He had no influence to get him where he could learn business, and no one to set him up in business even if he had known how to run it, and as a result he had to work hard for small wages."

"And yet you say they were twins?" persisted Edith.

"Certainly I do. Were they not born on the same day, and were they not both children of the same heavenly Father?" This was a new view of the case and silenced Edith for a time.

"But this was not the only way in which Henry Hoodoo was unlucky or Mickey Mascott lucky. Because he had money and was successful, Mickey Mascott was welcomed to the best of society, and while the society itself was not very entertaining, it gave him acquaintance with rich and powerful people and brought him many an opportunity that Henry Hoodoo couldn't reach even by long-distance telephone. Mickey, being wealthy, was familiar with the best modern appliances; being widely known, he was sought for public places and had honors thrust upon him; being a man of affairs, he traveled and saw much of the world. But Henry Hoodoo had no chance at any of these things. He did marry a bright and pretty little woman; but he was not able to provide her a home of their own, and the poor, faithful wife and mother worked hard and with small encouragement, and died before her time, leaving her babies only half grown."

Once upon a time there were twin boys.

"What became of them, Uncle Jack?" asked Edith.

"Yes, tell us what happened to zem," begged little Johnny, cocking his head to one side in a very comical way.

"What do you suppose could happen to people who are named Hoodoo?" queried Uncle Jack, in return.

"Don't you know, Uncle Jack!" said Edith, "I believe that was what was the matter all along, he had such a funny name."

"Probably it was," returned Uncle Jack. Didn't I tell you he was unfortunate in the selection of his parents, and doesn't the Bible say, 'A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches?'"

"Oh, that isn't what it means, Uncle Jack."

"Perhaps not. But which name would you rather have, Wise or Dunce?"

"Why, Wise, of course."

"Then you see that a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches. Remember that, Edith, when you get married. Now, suppose Henry had chosen the name Mascott instead of Hoodoo, don't you think he would have been more lucky?"

"Uncle Jack, there isn't any such thing as luck. Teacher told me so."

"And it is so—for some men. Now, there was no luck for Henry Hoodoo, just as I have been trying to tell you."

"But is that all the story, Uncle Jack?"

"No; it was that way over and over and over again."

"And did nothing else happen to them?"

"Yes; they died. I don't know what happened after that."

"Uncle Jack, I don't think you are a bit good at telling stories."

"Tell us something from Mother Goose," lisped little Johnny.

And a moment later Uncle Jack was trotting them, one on either foot, singing in loud, if not melodious, tones, "Ride a cock horse to Banberry Cross," while their peals of laughter gave evidence that it was the kind of literature that appealed to them more than stories with a purpose.

Mickey Mascott and Henry Hoodoo looked just alike, straight out of their eyes.

Authors of Familiar Hymns.

Sarah Flower Adams, of England, wrote "Nearer, My God, to Thee." She was a well-known literary woman of her time. She died in 1849.

Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg wrote the well-known hymn: "I Would Not Live Alway."

In 1819 Reginald Heber, son-in-law of the great divine, Dr. Shipley, wrote, in less than an hour, the beautiful hymn: "From Greenland's Icy Mountains."

On the day of his conversion (May 21st, 1738), it is said Charles Wesley wrote "Oh For a Thousand Tongues to Sing." He was converted while ill with pleurisy.

Sir John Bowing, scholar, member of Parliament and governor of Hongkong, was the author of two well-known and popular hymns: "Watchman, Tell Us of the Night," and "In the Cross of Christ I Glory."

Little Mother.

BY LYNDON BURKE.

Sis was out in the bedroom playing with the baby, who kicked and laughed and gurgled in an ecstacy of life. The two-year-old was a roguish fellow, and, as his mother was too busy to devote much time to him, Sis was . is principal caretaker. They called her Little Mother. How baby loved her! Sometimes he was a bit tyrannical, and kept her playing with him and nursing him when she would rather have played with dolls; but, on the whole, she liked his merry ways, and made him a substitute for the ordinary girl's doll life.

"Do it adin'" gurgled Baby, as Sis played her face on his little round breast and caused him to scream from the tickling. With a series of baby words, which no one can imitate unless talking to a baby, Sis repeated the "eating-up" process while Baby shouted and struggled in glee.

Mrs. Trask was getting ready the breakfast in the room that served as both kitchen and dining room. Mr. Trask was away from the town at work. Above the aroma of boiling coffee it seemed to her she could detect a smell of burning wood. Once she thought she had heard the crackling of flames. She opened the door to the bedroom, but a glance showed her that all was well there.

"Sis, you had better get Baby dressed," she said, as she re-entered the kitchen through the unclosed door.

There was a third room, used chiefly for storage, to one side, and through this the pipe led to the flue in the farther wall. Mrs. Trask opened the door, and was horrified as a volume of smoke and a mass of flames shot into the room. The whole interior was on fire. It required only a glance to tell her that she alone would be unable to quench the flames. She slammed the door shut to cut off the draught.

"Sis, the house is on fire!" she shouted. "Wrap the baby in a blanket and take him down stairs. Quick!"

"Opening the door to the hall, she gave a cry of fire; then hastily closing the draughts in the stove, she gathered hurriedly a few clothes in a bundle to carry down stairs.

In the meantime Sis had carefully bundled baby in the bedclothes, her aim not only being to save him, but also as much clothing as possible. She had all she could lug down the long flight of stairs to the street. As the cold of the outside broke in on them baby screamed and kicked, deeming it a treat, and in doing so he loosened some of his wrappings. The end of a blanket fell to the ground and tripped Sis, who fell headlong. But the Little Mother was too loyal to her charge to let him be hurt, and held him so that when she clambered to her feet he was gurgling with delight at what he deemed was a splendid frolic. Her side hurt, but she carried her little brother to Mrs. Carson's, up stairs half a block away, where she laid him on the bed to rest herself.

Meanwhile the other dwellers in the house had turned in an alarm of fire, but ere the department came they had the fire put out. When Mrs. Trask went to Mrs. Carson's, after it was all over, to get her baby, she noticed Sis holding her side, with a drawn expression on her face.

"Are you hurt, Sis?"

"My side hurts," she said.

A doctor was immediately summoned, and he found that Sis had broken a rib in her fall.

"But the child is safe," he said. "Madam, this little girl—this Little Mother—is a heroine."

"No, not that," said Sis, blushing.

"Yes, just that," answered the doctor; "and to show you that I mean it and appreciate your deed I shall give you my services for nothing, little girl."

A Catastrophe.

Wiggle-waggle went a worm,
A woolly worm was he,
Crawling in the green grass
Underneath a tree.

A sparrow on a leafy bough
Sang a merry tune;
Looked down and saw the worm;
'Twas then about noon.

"Dinner time," chirped sparrow,
"Time for me to eat;"
He lighted in the green grass,
Found Woolly quite a treat.

A cat was dozing in the sun
And saw the sparrow light;
One leap—then all was over—
That bird was out of sight.

JINGLING JIM.

CUT-OUT PUZZLE PICTURE.

This is a picture of a very funny old man familiar in song and story. By cutting out the pieces, correctly joining and pasting them together, you will find out who he is. Answer next week.

Don'ts for Boys and Girls.

Don't lose your temper because it rains on a day when you have planned for an outing. The elements cannot postpone work, but you can postpone pleasure.

Don't risk meeting with accident to prove yourself brave. Many persons are seriously hurt through foolhardiness and a desire to "show off."

Don't laugh nor talk loudly in public places, nor in any way attract undue attention. It is vulgar to force one's self on the notice of others.

Don't grow old too rapidly. The world is sweeter in youth than old age.

Don't ape the manners of the blase man or woman. It is sad to see those living who no longer take a keen interest in life. The world is full of beauty, change and goodness.

Don't linger in the hall or at the door when taking leave of host and hostess. Your call is ended when you rise to depart and you should "stand not upon the order of going, but go at once."

Don't ask, "Is Miss Mary in?" It should be, "Is Miss Mary within?"

Don't say, "I live on Dash street." It should be, "I live in Dash street."

Don't write social letters on a typewriter. Only business letters should be "machine made."

Don't think it smart to be sarcastic. Rudeness is often mistaken for wit.

Cranium Crackers.

The Square: First, a drink; second, to devour; third, having devoured.

The Diamond: First, the second letter; second, a wager; third, two animals; fourth, to make an effort; fifth, the letter of plurals.

Answers given next week.

Conundrums.

1. Why is life like a good conundrum?
2. Why is a hog better than a goat?
3. Why is arithmetic like a dentist?
4. When is a cup not a cup?
5. What is it that looks, barks, trots and plays like a dog, and isn't a dog?

Beheadings.

1. Hearty and make a drink.
2. A kind of soil and make to recline.
3. To depart and make a part of a house.

ANSWERS.

Conundrums: 1. You have to give it up.
2. Itroots and won't butt in.
3. It extracts the root.
4. When it's full (fool).
5. A puppy.

Beheadings: 1. Hale, ale. 2. Clay, lay. 3. Leave, eave.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT STARTS ON TWO MONTHS VACATION IN THE SOUTH

Will First Attend Reunion of Rough Riders In Texas.

Will Make Several Speeches In Cities on His Way.

Great Wolf Drive Is Being Arranged In Oklahoma.

Washington, April 3.—With cheers and good wishes resounding at the Pennsylvania depot, the president at 9:05 a. m. today on special train started on a trip through the South. Among those at the station were many friends of the president, including Postmaster General Cortelyou and Secretary Metcalf of the department of commerce and labor.

The special train, which is one of the finest the Pennsylvania road ever has sent out of Washington, consists of three cars, the president's private car, Rocket, the Pullman sleeper, Forest and the combination baggage and buffet car, Viceroy. Attached to the train to be run as far as Baltimore as a buffer, was a day coach. The train is handsomely fitted and contains every known appliance to insure the comfort and safety of the passengers. The train was scheduled to leave at 9 a. m. but it was a minute after that hour when the president arrived at the station. He had been delayed at the White House for a few minutes in signing some important papers. Even after he boarded his car, some papers were handed to him for his signature. It was just five minutes after the schedule time of departure when the train drew out. In the party besides the president were Secretary Loeb, Gen. S. M. B. Young, Alex Lambert, M. C. Latta and J. L. McGrew, stenographers to the president; H. A. Storhmeyer, photographer and representative of the press.

The trip is being made primarily to enable the president to attend the reunion of his old regiment, the Rough Riders, which is to be held at San Antonio, Tex., next Friday and to hunt big game in Oklahoma and Colorado. Incidentally the president will deliver notable addresses at several places enroute. His first important stop will be at Louisville, Ky., tomorrow morning, where he will be the guest of the city for three hours. He will go from Louisville direct to St. Louis and thence, via the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad to San Antonio, stepping at several places on the way, among them Sherman and Dallas, Tex.

After leaving San Antonio, the president will go to Oklahoma for a wolf hunt and proceed thence to Colorado to hunt big game in the mountains. Unless it should be necessary, on account of unforeseen circumstances, to curtail the trip, the president will be absent from Washington about two months. Definite plans for the trip, after he shall leave Oklahoma, have not been made. While he expects to be in the wilds of Colorado for a considerable time, he will keep in constant touch, by means of couriers to the nearest telegraph station, with Washington and thus will be enabled to attend to such important business as may demand his personal attention. Dr. Lambert, who accompanies the president, was his physician in New York, and has hunted throughout the country which the president will visit.

GREAT WOLF DRIVE

To Be Arranged For Benefit of the President.

Lawton, O. T., April 3.—Although the president seeks isolation from the world in planning to hunt wolves for a week in the 480,000 acre pasture reserve in Southern Oklahoma, the citizens of that section of the territory have demanded that he shall view and participate in one of those rousing, stupendous wolf drives for which the Southwest country is noted.

To this end arrangements are now being perfected for the biggest drive since the history of the West. The president will be given a horse and will take part in the final rush after the wolves have been corraled. In order that the plans may be carried out it will be necessary to get consent of the president's manager who has decreed that during the president's seclusion amid the fastnesses of the Indian reserve, troops of cavalry from Fort Sill will patrol the fences and permit no one to enter.

TO ENTERTAIN PRESIDENT.

Vinita, I. T., April 3.—Great preparations are being made here for the entertainment of visitors who will come here Wednesday morning to see President Roosevelt, as he passes through here on his Southwestern trip.

The Vinita Commercial club met last night and made arrangements for receiving the president and also for entertaining the excursionists and other visitors.

MILL FAILS TO START.

Sharon, Pa., April 3.—The Greenville Rolling mill of the Carnegie Steel company did not start today as expected, but the management states that the plant will resume tomorrow. It is said that the Carnegie Steel company will import enough men to work the mill.

OVERRULED BY BOULIGAN.

Moscow, April 3.—Interior Minister Bouligan has overruled the decision of the assistant minister of the interior, prohibitting the holding of the cholera congress, whose program can now be carried out.

STATE LEGISLATURE LISTENS TO SPEECH BY SENATOR NELSON

Says Railroads Need Not Fear Anything From Rate Legislation.

Duluth Garbage Plant Bill Is Passed By the Senate.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU

St. Paul, April 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—United States Senator Knute Nelson this morning told the Minnesota legislature, during a brief talk made by him before a joint convention of the house and senate, that there is hope that congress will pass railroad rate legislation. He said that there would be a special session in October to consider this and tariff revision. It was hard to say what would be done, especially on the tariff, because that is largely a local issue. There will probably be some kind of railroad rate legislation, though whether it will go to the extent of the Esch-Townsend bill he could not foretell. He did not think the railroads need fear anything from such legislation. Minnesota has had practically the same thing on her statute books, and the railroads had not been oppressed. Enterprises so nearly public as railroads should be subject to governmental supervision. Referring to the work of congress, he said that it was more limited than that of the legislature, few general measures having passed. Perhaps the most important was that repealing the forestry scrip law. Several important measures, like the statehood bill and the Esch-Townsend bill, failed to pass because the senate and house could not get together. He said that reports of friction between the senate and president are much exaggerated. They grew out of the senate's action on the arbitration treaties. The Southern Democrats wanted all such treaties submitted to the senate, for fear the repudiated Southern state bonds might be made the subject of suits under treaties. The Southern Democrats also opposed the San Domingo treaty, and defeated it. Praising the capitol and the work of the capitol commission, he said he was interested because the initial legislation on it arose during his first gubernatorial term. Then St. Paul wanted a new capitol, the farmers wanted a country elevator law, and the Red River valley farmers wanted drainage money. He worked to get these three elements together, and all three bills were passed and became successful laws.

* * *

The sessions of both houses were quiet this morning. J. H. Dorsey of McLeod county apologized to the house for his remarks about Senator Gjertsten's lobbying for the chiropractic bill Friday, which, he said, were made in the heat of passion and he was sorry for them. The apology was accepted by the house.

* * *

Attorney General Young gave his opinion that the Dorsey bill prohibiting corporations from making campaign contributions was constitutional, provided it was limited to corporations for pecuniary profit, cutting out civil federations, etc.

* * *

The senate passed the Lewis bill permitting Duluth to build a garbage consuming plant on the installment plan.

* * *

The senate made the Perley bill divorcing the university and normal schools from the board of control a special order for tomorrow afternoon, when it will probably be passed.

* * *

The senate killed Senator Wood's bill extending the primary election system to state officers.

* * *

The senate passed a bill fixing the insurance commissioner's salary at $4,500 a year and turning the fees into the state treasury, effective upon its passage.

* * *

Other bills passed were:

Laybourn—Regulating consolidation and reinsurance of life, accident or health insurance companies.

Wilson—Amending the Torrens law.

Rider—Doubling the punishment for robbery in the first degree.

* * *

Opposition developed to the Stock bill in the house requiring druggists, after Jan. 1, 1906, to have two years' experience and a diploma, regardless of whether they have certificates from other states or not. Henry McColl of St. Paul said it was asking too much to require a diploma. The bill was laid over a day.

* * *

The following bills were recommended to pass by the house in committee of the whole:

Dorsey—Putting the state superintendent in charge of the construction and altering of schools in other than independent districts.

Cole—Requiring the state drainage committee to prepare a comprehensive plan of draining all state lands needing it.

Adams—Making the Minnesota society for the prevention of cruelty a state bureau of child and animal protection.

Rachie—Taxing freight line companies 4 per cent on their gross earnings in the state, including a proportion of interstate business.

Laybourn—Providing for the employment of road foremen in St. Louis county.

ALL IS IN READINESS FOR THE LAKE SEASON

All Labor Contracts Aboard Ship Signed and Others Pending.

Cleveland, April 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Everything is now in readiness for the lake season of 1905 which is expected to break all records. All labor contracts aboard ship have been signed and all other contracts will hold over pending renewal. The dock managers have been in continuous session for the past three days with the delegates of the Longshoremen's association, representing the coal and ore handlers of Lake Erie ports. The principal thing demanded by the workmen is the reduction of the hours of labor from eleven to ten. This, however, is a concession that the dock managers feel they cannot grant, especially in a season of such activity as the present one is going to be. The great weakness in the handling of lake commerce has always been the congestion at the docks and if the hours of labor were reduced this congestion would of course become more severe. Extraordinary efforts are being made on the part of the railways in constructing additional tracks and adding additional cars to care for the ore movement this year. The more ore that can be got into the cars and away from the docks the less congestion there will be and the dock managers feel that the ten-hour day cannot be granted. In point of fact this demand for a ten-hour day is not a new one. It has been advanced every season and the dock managers say that they would gladly have granted it long ago if they could possibly have done so. Last season the shovelers and hoisters accepted a reduction of 7½ cents over the wage schedule of 1903. They are now de-

WOULD-BE ASSASSIN DEAD.

Assailant of Commissioner Never Regains Consciousness

Lodz, April 3.—The would-be assassin of Police Commissioner Szabalowicz of the Second district (who was seriously injured Saturday afternoon by a bomb which was thrown at him in the street) is dead. He never regained consciousness after being cut down by the policeman who arrested him.

Considerable excitement was caused at midnight by two Cossacks, who attacked four pedestrians, killing two and wounding the others.

The governor general has prohibited the sale of revolvers. The gun dealers have been ordered to enclose all revolvers in sealed cases and to hand them over to the police.

SIOUX FALLS WINS A WATER VICTORY.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 3.—City Attorney Keith was officially advised today that Sioux Falls had won a victory in the federal circuit court of appeals over the South Dakota Water company in a suit involving the right of Sioux Falls to complete and operate its own system of waterworks. A twenty-year contract with the South Dakota Water company terminated in April of last year. The water company will probably carry the case to the United States supreme court.

CARRIAGE MAKERS STRIKE.

Chicago, April 3.—A general strike of union carriage and wagon builders against members of the Carriage and Wagon Manufacturers' association, began here today. More than 100 plants are effected. It was reported that the demands of the union providing a 2 per cent increase in wages and exclusive employment of union workmen had been agreed to by the nine firms giving work to 800 men.

ZEIGLER'S NON-UNION MINE BLOWN UP; TWENTY KILLED

RENEWAL OF FIGHTING IS EXPECTED SHORTLY

Concentration of the Russian Army Is Now Complete.

Japanese Are Screening Their Movements Well By Cavalry.

Is Hard to Locate the Bulk of Their Army.

Gunshu Pass, April 3.—A renewal of fighting is expected shortly. The concentration of the Russian army is complete with its advance lines south of the station of Sipinghai, seventy-four miles south of Tie Pass. The Japanese are screening their movements well by means of cavalry and it is hard to locate the bulk of their army. A heavy movement seems to be in progress on the Russian flanks. The railroad station at Changtufu, forty to fifty miles above Tie Pass, is occupied by Japanese artillery, but so far as ascertained it does not cover a large body of troops.

A two-wheeled cart of the Russo-Chinese bank, containing more than $500,000, which was lost during the retreat from Mukden, has been found, but the cash chest of the Ninth regiment of artillery which was also lost, is still missing.

A movement of Chinese bandits led by Japanese officers through Mongolia in the direction of Tsitsihar, 300 miles west of Harbin, has been reported, and pressure is being brought by the Japanese in China for an open alliance with Japan. Khansi Kai, governor of Pechili province, and Gen. Ma, commander of the Chinese troops on the frontier, are said to be at the head of this movement. Gen. Linevitch's headquarters are in Gen. Kuropatkin's old train.

St. Petersburg, April 3.—Gen. Linevitch in a dispatch dated April 2, says:

"The situation remains unchanged.

"A Russian patrol during the night of March 31 surrounded a Japanese patrol consisting of six dragons in the village of Baichanchentse on the extreme Russian left. Five of the Japanese were killed. A sergeant was captured."

Tokio, April 3, noon.—A part of the Kaiyman force drove the Russians from Mienhuachieh and occupied the village and Northern heights, March 31.

The situation in other directions is unchanged.

CONSTANT SKIRMISHING

Kept Up Between Mistchenko's Troops and Japs.

Gunshu Pass, April 3.—Gen. Mistchenko has moved forward into close touch with the Japanese and keeps up a constant skirmishing. Gen. Mistchenko, when he learned of the beginning of the panic during the retreat from Mukden, though an unhealed wound forbid his walking, drove in a carriage to his force and assumed command, which he has since retained, but has been unable to ride over the deeply mired roads, which are beginning to dry. Native reports, which may be taken for what they are worth, state that the Japanese are leaving before the Russian front only a screen, capable with the help of the Mukden and Tie pass fortifications and garrisons, of holding in check Gen. Linevitch and are transferring the bulk of their five armies to Vladivostok and by means of a wide movement through Mongolia to Tsitsihar. Considering the great distances involved, the plan appears too bold and almost impracticable, but Japanese intoxication from continued success, bold initiative and determined perseverance must be regarded. The situation affords an opportunity for Russian cavalry, which thus far has played an insignificant role, to distinguish itself by ascertaining the Japanese intentions.

Gen. Linevitch has ordered the resumption of drills, keeping the soldiers occupied in the daytime and music in the bivouacs at night. An energetic regime is being instituted.

The soldiers are much attached to their new commander on account of his unaffected, soldierly style of living.

Reports that beri-beri has been prevalent among the Russian troops at any time are unfounded. No case has been reported. The army is being resupplied with equipment for the summer, which the officers especially need, several regiments during the retreat throwing away all the officers' baggage.

JAP SCOUTS RETURN

After a Dangerous Trip Commencing In January.

With Gen. Kuroki's Army in Field, April 3.—(Via Fusan.)—Two detachments of Japanese cavalry have returned to the army after the most extensive and dangerous scouting exploit of the war. The detachments were sent north early in January under the leadership of Col. Naganuma and Maj. Sasegawa and numbered each 150 men. Only 100 men of each detachment returned. They explored the Russian positions west of Mukden. They encountered and eluded many forces of Russian cavalry and penetrated Gen. Mitchenko's line. Then, going northward, they crossed the railroad, cutting the road and the telegraph line during the battle. Afterward they visited Kirin and explored that place and finally returned to the army north of Kaiyuan.

AGED PORTER RESIGNS

When He Sees Osler's Name on Register.

Chicago, April 3.—Chauncey, the gray-haired porter in the bar at the Wellington hotel, who has held his position since the hotel was started, tried to resign yesterday. He was told by some of the bellboys that Dr. Osler had come to Chicago for the purpose of chloforming all men over 60 years of age.

Chauncey, who is past 70, started for the hotel office and looked over the register. He found the name of "M. M. Osler, Philadelphia," and sent in his resignation.

"Mr. Gage," he said, when he found him, "I'm wanting to leave you. I ain't going to stay in the same house with a man who wants to use chloroform. I may be over 70 years old and I may be colored, but I'm good for something yet, and I'm not going to stay here any longer."

Mr. Gage, the proprietor, assured the porter that Mr. Osler was not the man who originated the chloroform idea.

"This is not the first time I have been mistaken for my cousin," said Mr. Osler, when the story was told to him. "All through my Western trip I was asked if I was a relative of the doctor."

PRESIDENT NAMES MEMBERS OF THE NEW CANAL COMMISSION

Shonts, Magoun, Wallace, Endicott, Hains, Ernst and Harrod Chosen.

Salaries From $30,000 a Year to $7,500, With Traveling Expenses.

Washington, April 3.—The personnel of the new isthmian canal commission is as follows:

Theodore P. Shonts, chairman; Charles E. Magoun, governor of canal zone; John F. Wallace, chief engineer; Rear Admiral M. T. Endicott, U. S. N.; Brig.-Gen. Peter C. Hains, U. S. A., retired; Col. Oswald M. Ernst, corps engineers, U. S. A.; Benjamin M. Harrod.

These names were announced at the war department today and in connection with the announcement Secretary Taft gave out for publication a statement showing the allotments of salaries to the new commissioners and his own letter to the president and one from the latter explaining the plan of organization; the reasons therefor and the particular duties to be assigned to each commissioner. The first reads as follows:

"The president has made an order allowing a salary of $7,500 with traveling expenses to each member of the commission and to the chairman of the committee, the additional compensation of $22,500 to the chief engineer, the additional compensation of $17,500 and to the governor of the zone the additional compensation of $10,000. The head of each department is allowed the use of a furnished house upon the isthmus, and his traveling expenses when traveling on the business of the commission.

"The total is $102,500. The salaries and allowances under the former commission amounted to $120,000. The total compensation of the governor of the zone and the chief engineer are in effect unchanged.

"Prof. William H. Burr and William Barclay Parsons, civil engineers, will be appointed as members of the consulting board of engineers."

Secretary Taft's letter to the president is as follows:

"War department, Washington, March 30, 1905:

"Mr. President.—In the matter of the re-organization of the machine by which the Panama canal is to be built, I beg first to call your attention to the extreme importance of fixing a definite plan with respect to which you may feel reasonable certain, first, that it can be practically executed and will result in a navigable canal, and, second, that the navigable canal will be the one best adapted to the demands which may be made upon it by the commerce of the world.

"The act of congress evidently contemplates a canal with locks, the cost of which shall be in the neighborhood of $200,000,000, including the money already expended. It is quite within the bounds of possibility that the best form of canal will be a sea level canal with a tidal lock only at one end and that the cost of it may exceed the $200,000,000 in the mind of congress by at least $100,000,000 more.

"The work of the engineering department of the present commission has been largely devoted to obtaining the data on which the plan of the canal must be determined. These data include topographical measurements, borings, the character of the soil, the flow of water in the rivers—all stated with sufficient exactness to secure the closest calculations by experienced engineers. It is probable that within the next few months, these data will have been so fully ascertained by the chief engineer, Mr. Wallace, and his assistants that they may be submitted to a board of engineers of the highest standing for recommendation as to the best plan on which to proceed with the work.

"It also has been made apparent, by the reports of Mr. Wallace and the commission that whatever plan is likely to be adopted, work of excavation and construction which would have to be done under any plan may proceed without waste of energy for a period quite long enough to enable you to decide which is the best plan.

"I suggest, therefore, that the first work to be done is the appointment of an advisory board of engineers, say seven or nine in number, to be selected from the engineers having especial knowledge of hydraulic engineering and canal construction, to whom shall be submitted all possible information with respect to the projected canal, both that obtained by the French engineers before our purchase of the plant and the data obtained by the chief engineer of the present canal commission, together with all projects suggested for the solution of the problem which the canal commissioners deem reasonably possible and practicable, that the advisory board be invited to Washington for the purpose of agreeing on the recommendations in the premises and that if possible such recommendations be made before the regular meeting of congress in December, that the recommendations be submitted to the canal commission as then constituted for its approval or modification and with the recommendations of the canal commission be submitted to the president for his action and transmission to congress. As already suggested this work of securing the best plan and its approval by congress need not delay in any way the preliminary work adapted to any possible plan or the highly critical work of sanitation, the extreme importance of which have already been emphasized in your previous instructions to the canal commission.

"It is conceded, even by its own members, that the present commission has not so developed itself into an executive body as to give hope that it may be used successfully as an instrumentality for carrying on the immense executive burden involved in the construction of the canal and it remains for the president, in the failure of congress to act, to reorganize the commission, both by change in personnel and by certain instructions as to its internal procedure and distribution of powers and authority to secure greater rapidity and efficiency in the doings of the work.

"It is not to be supposed that congress intended that the commission was personally to do the work or come nearer the direct agencies in doing the work than the directory of a railroad comes to the construction of railroad work, and we may assume therefore that it was within

OPERATION ON PRINCE OF WALES

London, April 3.—The Prince of Wales underwent an operation this morning at Marlborough house the nature of which was not divulged in the official statements issued. The public was assured that nothing serious was the matter, by Sir Francis H. Laking, and Sir Frederick Treves, the court physicians whose signatures are appended to the statement as follows:

"Owing to a slight operation today, the Prince of Wales will be confined to his room for a few days. As his condition gives rise to no uneasiness no bulletins will be issued."

As further evidence that nothing alarming is the matter with the prince, he yesterday attended church and visited an artist's private studio.

JOKE ON MAXIM.

Watch Loaned To Conjurer Is Badly Smashed.

Paris, April 3.—Sir Hiram Maxim is so fond of telling a good story that he must do so even when the laugh is against himself. He writes from Nice saying that Professor Ben Ali Bey, a conjurer performing in the Montboron Palace hotel, asked some one to lend him a watch, which he wished to smash and afterward return intact to the owner. Sir Hiram handed the "magician" his own valuable ticker. The smashing was accomplished with complete success, but the professor's skill was not equal to returning it intact to the owner, so Sir Hiram now has his smashed watch and also his instructive experience.

Catastrophe Said to Be Due to an Explosion of Gas.

Suspicion Exists That There May Have Been Another Cause.

Troops Have Been Recently Withdrawn From Blockade.

Carbondale, Ill., April 3.—A report from Zeigler, Ill., sixteen miles from here, says twenty miners were killed and eighteen wounded in a gas explosion in the Joseph Leiter coal mine at that place.

According to reports received here, the entire opening of the mine at the surface is wrecked. Although the explosion is attributed to gas, suspicion exists that there may have been another cause. Only non-union men are employed in the mine since the strike for increased wages some months ago, resulting in riots and the presence of militia and armed guards. The last of the troops were recently withdrawn, although reports were current that there had been attempts to bribe officials to permit outsiders to gain entrance to the mine, the supposed object being to make the mine unworkable. State Mine Inspector Atkinson reported at his last examination of the shaft that 108 men were employed in two shifts. The explosion is reported to have occurred as the two shifts were changing today.

Benton, Ill., April 3.—The Leiter mine, at Zeigler, was blown up today. One man is said to have been killed and thirty miners, whose fate is yet unknown, to have been entombed. The mine is badly wrecked. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Chicago, April 3.—It is reported here that an explosion has occurred in the Joseph Leiter mine at Zeigler, Ill., and that sixty men are entombed. Mr. Leiter said that he had received no advices from the mine and that he did not believe that there was any truth in the story, as if there was any truth be the first to be advised.

STREET CAR AND AUTO COLLIDE

Machine Gets the Worst of It, Injuring Occupants.

Philadelphia, April 3.—Three prominent residents of Pittsburg were severely cut and bruised and a well-known manufacturer of this city was dangerously hurt, when an automobile in which the party was riding collided with a street car. The party consisted of Charles S. Fishmuth, president of the Homer Brass company of this city; Archibalt McCrea, president of the Union Spring Manufacturing company of Pittsburg, and James McCrea, vice president of the Pennsylvania Coal company; W. B. Schoen of the Schoen Steel Wheel company of Pittsburg, and L. G. Wood, president of the banking firm of Melton & Co. of Pittsburg.

The four men are in St. Agnes' hospital. Mr. McCrea has a deep wound in the scalp. Mr. Schoen was cut and bruised about the head, and Mr. Wood was bruised. The chauffeur escaped uninjured.

In addition to their bruises and cuts the other members of the party are suffering from shock, but it is believed they wil be able to leave the hospital.

PROMISED LAND.

Plateau on Which Sickness Has No Place.

New York, April 3.—A London cable to the Herald says: A wonderful land of promise, the land where one cannot be ill, has been discovered by Maj. A. St. John Gibbons, who was in charge of the commission sent out to examine the tract of country in East Africa offered by the British government for the purpose of a Zion Hebrew settlement.

Maj. Gibbons, who has just returned to England, says it consists of what is known as "Gues," W. Guishu, and is a plateau comprising 5,000 square miles. There are no settled natives on the plateau.

No more healthful country exists in the world. It seems impossible to be ill there, and is an ideal region for a white settlement. Children can be reared with perfect safety. There are no mosquitoes and fine pasture lands abound.

MRS. J. J. HILL IS SOMEWHAT IMPROVED.

Washington, April 3.—The special car bearing James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, and Mrs. Hill, reached here this afternoon from Jeykls Island, Ga., attached to the regular Florida and New York limited on the Seaboard Air line. A special train was made up at once and the car started to its destination, Lakewood, N. J., over the Pennsylvania road. Mr. Hill stated that Mrs. Hill had borne the trip well and was somewhat improved.

ALL READY FOR POLLS

Chicago's Spirited Political Contest Comes to a Close.

Chicago, April 3.—One of the most spirited political contests of recent years was wound up in Chicago today. Municipal ownership of street railways has been the issue. The leaders on the opposing sides are the candidates who will be voted upon tomorrow for the mayoralty of the city. Judge John M. Harlan, son of Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court, is the Republican candidate.

Judge Edward F. Dunne of the circuit court here is the Democratic nominee. Both candidates stand pledged for municipal ownership but by different methods.

Besides Harlan and Dunne, Oliver W. Stewart, Prohibitionist, and John Collins, Socialist, are active candidates. The Republican managers claim the election of Harlan by 20,000 plurality. The Democrats, on the other hand, seem confident that Dunne will have anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000 plurality.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Coburn Convicted of Grand Larceny After Three Trials.

NORTH DAKOTA.

La Moure—After a trial lasting ten days, the jury at 3 o'clock Saturday morning, returned a verdict of guilty against Frank Coburn, charged with grand larceny. A stay of sixty days was granted, and a new trial will be asked for. This is the third in a series of prosecutions arising out of what is believed to be an organized system of horsestealing. Coburn was twice tried in Brown county, South Dakota, charged with stealing five horses. No verdict was reached in the first trial, and an acquittal was secured in the second. Coburn is also under indictment in Sargent county, South Dakota, charged with selling one of the horses he has just been convicted of stealing in this county.

Jamestown—Judge Burke is holding court in La Moure county and a girl is being tried on a charge of setting fire to wheat stacks, causing the owner's total loss. The terms begins at Carrington on Monday, the first jury in several years.

The conviction of thre blindpiggers in wells county is causing much comment throughout the state, as it had been generally reported that no blindpigger could be convicted in that county. In all cases that were tried convictions were found, and in one case the jury consisted of eight Russians, three Norwegians and one Scotchman, not one of whom was a prohibitionist.

Devils Lake—The farmers of Ramsey county have decided to build a flourmill and elevator. A stock company capitalized at $30,000 will be organized. The building will be completed by fall.

The city council met in special session today to complete the annexation of outlying additions, which will add several hundred thousand dollars to valuations and 900 to the population.

Rolla—M. Coghlan was sentenced to the penitentiary for thirteen months for assault with a dangerous weapon.

The Methodists will build a $5,000 church. $2,000 for which has already been subscribed.

A chapter of the Eastern Star was organized here and Mrs. Woods installed as chief officer.

Grafton—Mrs. E. D. Peter died of heart disease, aged nearly 75. She had lived here twenty-five years. Before coming here she resided in Albert Lea, Minn.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Flandreau—Sunday morning the little 2-year-old daughter of Mrs. Abe Hayes died from the effects of drinking lye. On a post-mortem examination it developed that the lye had eaten through the oesophagus, and the soft food given the child to alleviate the pain, while it was conscious and alive and suffering terribly, was found lodged alongside the lungs. Suspicion was aroused that there might have been foul play, and an inquest was held, but no verdict arrived at. It was brought out at the trial, however, that the mother of the child and her sister are bitter enemies, and that the child at the time of its death was in custody of the sister.

Sioux Falls—In accordance with the wishes of the relatives and neighbors of Frank Ritter, a prominent Bon Homme county farmer, who was found dead at his home last January, under circumstances which indicated that he had committed suicide, the authorities of the county have had the body exhumed for the purpose of holding a post-mortem examination.

The organs of the body were removed and have been sent to Chicago for an analysis by experts.

Those who believe that Ritter was the victim of foul play think he was poisoned. No marks of violence were found on the body. The Chicago experts have not yet made a report as to the result of their analysis.

Vermillion—C. K. Solberg of this city, president of the State Luther league, issued the official call for the eighth annual convention of the society, which will be held in Howard beginning May 24. All delegates and others who plan to attend the sessions are urged to notify Miss Carrie Hegdahl, Howard, S. D., in order that proper arrangements can be made for taking care of the city's guests.

One of the most important matters to be considered will be the naming of a new president. Rev. Mr. Solberg can hardly accept the presidency again, as he is soon to become pastor of Zion Lutheran Church of Chicago. It is expected that Rev. Luther M. Keems, general secretary of the Luther League of America, will be present at all sessions of the convention.

Judge Jared Runyan was run down by an automobile and carried home in a serious condition. He was standing on a crosswalk unmindful of the approaching auto, which could not be stopped in time to prevent giving him a hard jolt. It is not believed that he is seriously injured.

The April term of circuit court for Clay county will open in this city on Tuesday, with Judge E. G. Smith on the bench. The term will not be a long one, as there are few important cases. The only one of interest is that of The State vs. Stefani, who is alleged to have sold diseased meats.

FOR PROMISE OF WEALTH.

Gypsy Queen Gets All the Man Possesses.

Chicago, April 3.—Louisa, queen of the gypsy camp at Forty-seventh street and Western avenue, came to grief last night. If the policeman who arrested her had not interfered, Mrs. John Lundberg of 5217 Wentworth avenue would have attacked her.

During the last two years the aged woman, according to Mrs. Lundberg, has separated her husband from his $1,200 savings and his steady job in a street car barn.

"Two years ago my husband visited the camp, and this gipsy woman told him he was a great man and would have much money, and he gave her $50," said Mrs. Lundberg. "And we so poor. But I knew nothing of it, and I know nothing of the many times he has gone to ask her how to get rich—not until she promised him a farm and got the last money he had in the bank. And now he is out of work and there is nothing to eat for the children."

"Lock the 'queen' up," ordered Capt. Clancy.

GLORIOUS TIME

How Woodsmen Brought Jag Down to "Reliever" Stage.

Jailed For Pawning "Turkeys" Belonging to Other Woodsmen.

Bringing a jag down to the "reliever" stage is the merry game that was played by John Torbison and Thomas Shaw, for five glad, giddy days last week.

The ordinary Duluth citizen may not know what the expression means, but this is the way it is worked. The woodsman comes in with anywhere from $25 to $100 in his pocket. The money "lasts quick" when he strikes the Bowery and in anywhere from two days to a week he finds himself broke. Then he turns to his "turkey." It goes to a second-hand dealer for from twenty-five cents to $2 according to the amount of clothing he carries in it. The money is good for another day in the booze shops.

Then the woodsman goes back to the second-hand merchants. He is wearing a good new suit of "store" clothes.

"How much will you give me for the clothes and thorw in a second-hand suit?"

"Two dollars," says the generous dealer, for he knows the next step in the game.

The deal is quickly consummated, and the woodsman is relieved of his clothes, to walk out with a suit of old clothes and two dollars in his pocket. The money lasts him for another day and the next morning he is back again.

"What will you give me for the clothes, and let me take any old thing that will cover me?"

"Fifty cents," says the merchant, and with four more drinks of whisky in sight, the woodsman walks out of the store clad in garments that would make any self-respecting scarecrow sick of his job.

This was the game practised by the two woodsmen, according to the story they told in court this morning, where they were arraigned on a charge of petty larceny. It was claimed that they were not content with "soaking" their own "turkeys," however, but secured the sacks belonging to two other woodsmen and put them in pawn. Otherwise they might be still free, dead broke and happy. As it is they will spend thirty days on the hill.

"I don't know whether I stole them or not," said John Torbinson. "I've been drunk ever since I came down from camp."

Shaw told much the same story. He stated that he came from the woods with $25 in his pocket.

"Most of it went for booze, I suppose," said Assistant City Attorney McKeon.

"All of it," was the answer.

Both sacks were recovered, and Judge Cutting gave the two men the minimum sentence for petty larceny.

CAPT. WILLIAM OSBORN, Well-Known Duluth Man Who Died Saturday.

MRS. ASTOR REFUSES

To Stick to Vegetarian Diet For Complexion.

New York, April 3.—A World cable to the World says: After a fortnight of the gayest dissipation in town, Mrs. John Jacob Astor has flown off to Paris to spend a couple of weeks before leaving for Carlsbad, to go through the cure.

She looks wonderfully well, but the strain of accepting the invitations that poured in upon her has left her overwrought, and she wished to go to Carlsbad before visiting Paris, but Lady Saville warned her she certainly would need a second cure after the Paris galties, so she would better go through them first.

She tried a diet of vegetables, cheese and bread and butter, but she wearied of it after a few days, declaring that not the finest complexion in the world would tempt her to continue it. She now confines herself to fish and white meats, but it is not likely that even this will be kept up in Paris.

HAS CASH ENOUGH

Some of City Funds Are Low But Not Depleted.

Monthly Report of City Treasurer Voss Is Filed.

The city has a cash balance of $333,853.33 according to the monthly report of City Treasurer Voss, which has just been filed.

While the balance in some of the funds is running pretty low, it will be sufficient to keep all needs until the next apportionment of taxes is due. The general fund has the smallest balance on hand it has had for many months, only $394.93 being available. Some liquor licenses are due to come in this week, however, and this balance will be augmented. The public works fund has a good balance on hand, but it will all be needed for the spring work.

The following is a summary of the report, prepared by City Treasurer Voss, showing the condition of each of the seventeen funds:

TRIALS NOT YET ENDED

Two Civil Actions Are Still Before District Court.

The trial of two civil actions begun last week, were resumed in two rooms of district court, this morning. In Judge Dibell's room a jury is hearing the testimony of the plaintiff in the suit brought by George H. Crosby against the Scott-Graff Lumber company and in Judge Ensign's room the court is still taking evidence in the action of Mrs. Anna Wilkson and John Klamola, administrator of the estate of John Wilkson, deceased, against John Maki and his wife, Hulde Maki. This is an action to have set aside a deed to a forty acre tact of land in Midway.

Judge Cant will be in Carlton, tomorrow to open the April term of district court of Carlton county.

BADLY HURT IN RUNAWAY

William McGoy Thrown Out of Rig When Vicious Horse Bolts.

William McGoy, 72 years of age and living at 1608 West Michigan street, was injured in a runaway this afternoon at West Duluth so that he will be laid up for some time and may have bones broken which have not yet been found. The old gentleman was sitting in a rig of a downtown mercantile company at Fifty-fourth and Gosnold and the driver, W. W. Metcalf, had just gotten out of the rig and was right beside the horse's head.

The horse, which was a young one, suddenly looked around and leaped about ten feet, the driver hanging onto the bridle. Then the horse shied, threw the driver several feet onto the sidewalk and bolted. At Fifty-fourth and Ramsey the horse took the corner sharply and upset the rig. Here Mr. McGoy was thrown onto the paving on his head and back and quite seriously hurt.

His principal injury is through the hips, but Dr. D. Graham who is attending him has not yet found any broken bones. He was taken to his home.

VISIT MURDERER.

Women Pet Man Condemned For Killing Wife.

Peoria, Ill., April 3.—Otto Botts, sentenced to hang for the murder of his wife, gets more attentions from the women than any man in Peoria or the surrounding country. Within the last two days he has been visited by more than 500 women.

Not only do the fair visitors express sympathy for the condemned man, but they bring him gifts of many kinds. Among his presents have been flowers, cigarettes and Bibles.

Several of the women, who were not permitted to see the prisoner, pleaded with tears in their eyes and even hysterically to be allowed to visit him.

WILL BUILD COAL DOCKS

M. A. Hanna & Company Are Securing a Site Here.

The big Cleveland firm of M. A. Hanna & Co., vesselmen and coal dock dealers, are negotiating for a site for some new coal docks to be built in the near future at the Head of the Lakes. The company has already secured options on property on the bay front in Duluth and Superior, and it is expected that some decision will be reached shortly where the new docks will be located.

The options to the bay front property were secured through the office of John A. Stephenson of this city, but none of the details as to the options, the time they expire or the sites in view are to be given out just at the present time.

It is learned that the Cleveland firm contemplates the erection of some coal docks on a large scale, which will involve the expenditure of a considerable amount of money, and which will be one of the most important projects planned for the Head of the Lakes this season.

OUT AGAIN, IN AGAIN

Engebert Moe Has But Brief Glimpse of Freedom.

Within two days of the expiration of one sentence of forty days in jail for drunkenness, Engebert Moe, who lives on Garfield avenue, was arrested again for drunkenness and sentenced to sixty days in jail by Judge Cutting.

On Feb. 19 Moe was brought into court on a charge of drunkness. He had a bad record on the police court books, and was claimed to have abused his wife and neglected to provide for her support. Judge Windom gave him a forty-day sentence.

The sentence expired Saturday and Moe dropped into police headquarters to speak to Capt. Resche, whom he regards as the only friend he has in police circles.

"Look out," said the captain. "You don't want to get drunk now, or you'll be going down home and raising a row again, and this time the judge won't stand any fooling."

Moe said there was no danger of it, but yesterday morning, when the police captain came down to headquarters, Moe was in jail. The officer who arrested him claims he went home when drunk and began raising a disturbance with his wife.

He was given a sixty-day jail sentence by Judge Cutting this morning.

While Moe was serving his last sentence his wife entered a suit for divorce against him in the district court.

LESE MAJESTE PAYS.

It Provides Bed and Board In Germany.

New York, April 3.—A Berlin cable to the World says: Lese majeste is now committed by tramps and other destitute persons ambitious of free lodgings in jail.

Hartmann, a house painter, has become a habitual offender in this way. He is a chronic sufferer from that tired feeling and would not commit any mean, disgraceful or violent offense, so he goes up to a policeman and confides to him a highly unflattering opinion of the kaiser's character.

He has just been arrested in Stettin for informing a policeman that the kaiser was "making an ass of himself as usual and poking his nose into what did not concern him in Morocco." He got six months' imprisonment.

Hartmann says lese majeste is a German institution of the highest value, as it enables him to commit any number of offenses without compromising his character or losing his self-respect.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Body of Donald Tellier Found After Many Months.

Wauceedah—The sequel of the Nowship murder at Wauceedah the night of Nov. 26 last year is the finding of the body of Donald Tellier in a clump of brushwood about 100 yards from the house where Nowship was killed, and everyone is satisfied that Tellier killed Nowship and at once committed suicide. Nowship's house is about a mile and a half from Wauceedah. His lifeless body was found inside, with the door open, the morning after the commission of the crime. The murder was committed with a gun, and the evidences pointed to the conclusion that Nowship was shot down by a man standing in the doorway while he was stooping over to light a fire in the stove. Tellier was missing immediately after the murder, and was suspected of the deed, but no trace of him was obtained until this week, when his body was discovered so near the house of his victim. A cheap double-barrel gun was found near the corpse in a position indicating suicide. The charge of buckshot entered Tellier's breast.

Gladstone—Gladstone has more politics than other upper peninsula town of the size this spring, with three tickets in the field. The Republicans are prepared to present a solid front for the re-election of Mayor Mason, but the other tickets are also assured of good support.

Menominee—The young people who attend school at the Menominee high school building have good water, the supply being obtained from a well that was recently sunk to a depth of 304 feet. It is said that good water was encountered at a much less depth. It is proposed to sink similar wells at all the other schools. Menominee has considerable water trouble from time to time, and it is proposed to safeguard the school children against epidemic on account of the water supplied in the schools.

Escanaba—During the electrical storms lightning struck the home of Eugene Cabllot in North Escanaba, wrecking several of the rooms, but fortunately not injuring any of the members of the family. The bolt entered a room on the second floor, tearing a great piece from the side of a bed on which a boarder was sleeping, threw two large bricks from the chimney into the room and sent a shower of plaster over the floor, and the boarder was not awakened. In six different rooms the plaster was torn from the walls and ceiling. Bricks were torn from their bed of mortar and hurled several feet. Chimney thimbles were torn from their places and thrown into the rooms in which they were placed, followed by great clouds of soot. Pieces of furniture were overturned in the different rooms, and the home presented a generally wrecked appearance The bolt entered the roof near the chimney and, following to the base of the brick work, sent forks of electricity in every direction. No fire accompanied the bolt, and the damage was confined to the furniture and walls of the different rooms. All of the members of the household were sleeping soundly when the lightning struck the home, and all were awakened with the exception of the one to whom death had come the closest. He slept on peacefully until the head of the house went to his room and awakened him.

GUN CLUB STARTS

Will Also Have Boats Represented In New Organization.

Activity at Sawmills—One Starts and Breaks Down.

The men who have signed as members of the proposed rod and gun club will meet tonight at the Commercial club rooms to form an organization and elect officers. At this meeting the whole matter of the formation of the club will be gone over in detail as far as possible.

The club starts out with great promise of success and if the plans come out as they are made the club will prove an important factor in the progress and future of West Duluth. It is proposed to build a club house and thus do away with so many independent boat houses for instance, these boat house marring the appearance of the West Duluth shore. Efforts will be made to get people from West Duluth and down town as well who have boats at West Duluth, to come into the club houses at different points along the shore. If the club is formed there will be a fleet of about 20 launches and many more sail and row boats included. At the present time there has not been a business man in West Duluth but one to whom the matter has been presented who has not signed. It is predicted that the club will have fully 150 members within two weeks.

As to the boats in connection with the proposed club, a great number of people in West Duluth own either launches, sail boats or rowboats and more are getting such for the coming season. Among those who have new launches for this year are:

Neil Nelson, who has a 22-footer; Arthur Jacoby, a 22-footer; F. H. Wade, 22-footer; Robert Weddel, 16-footer; G. Johnson, 28-footer; William Mallough, 18-footer; Fred Helmberg, 16-footer. George Foote of the Blast furnace is putting a new 10-horse power White engine in his launch and will make her one of the fastest crafts on the river and bay.

BREAK AT MILL.

Red Cliff Lumber Company Has an Accident.

Activity is to be found about the saw mills at West Duluth and the West end these days. The crews are getting the mills into shape for running and pretty soon the hum of the saw will be heard in all of them. The Red Cliffe Lumber company's mill began operations this morning but after running about an hour and a half, had a break which will tie it up until tomorrow when it will resume operations. This morning one of the saw carriages got away from the optrator and smashed things up some and one man was hurt but not very seriously.

The Merrill & Ring mill will begin sawing next Monday and the Alger-Smith people expect to start their West Duluth mill about April 12. The St. Louis Lumber company mill will begin operations in a few days now on its sawing contract for W. F. Bailey of Virginia.

ROCK CRUSHER STARTS.

Wants Product Hauled By Street Railway Company.

The rock crusher on the hill at West Duluth began operations this morning and will work probably from now on during the season. The company which owns the rock crusher and of which C. P. Frank is manager, has applied to the city council for permission to have the street railway company haul rock for them at nights. The rock, it is proposed, in case the city will allow them, will be taken down on Missabe trains to Grand avenue and from there loaded onto street railway freight cars and hauled to whatever part of the city it is to go.

The city attorney has reported that there is no legal objection and the matter is now in the hands of the common council committee on railways.

SMALL BOY DROWNS.

Herman Prasgalla Loses Life Through a Fit.

While standing looking into Keene's creek in West Duluth, about 10 o'clock this morning, little Hermann Prasgalla's 10-year-old boy was suddenly seized with an epileptic fit, and losing his balance, fell into the swift current and was swept away from sight.

The lad had been out playing beside the creek at the corner of Sixty-second avenue west and Bristol street. He was intent on watching the swift torrent, swollen by the heavy spring rains, and had ventured out on the ice to the very edge of the water.

He has for some time past been subject to epileptic fits, and it is the belief that he was suddenly seized with such an attack, for he was seen to suddenly fall forward into the swift torrent.

Some of the boy's companions gave the alarm, but before assistance could reach him, he had disappeared from sight.

M. J. Filiatrault, the undertaker, and several police officers, commenced dragging the bed of the creek for the body, but up to 2:30 o'clock this afternoon their efforts had been fruitless. It is the belief of the men who were trying to recover the body that it has long since been swept down the creek by the swift current and carried out into the bay, where it may be found when the ice goes out and allows it to rise to the surface of the water.

The boy is of Polish descent and his parents reside in West Duluth.

MR. BARNES REPORTS

To West Duluth Republican Club of Inauguration.

The West Duluth Republican club held a meeting Saturday night and listened to the report made by Alderman L. A. Barnes, who was elected the club's delegate to the president's inauguration, March 4. Mr. Barnes made a detailed report of the inauguration ceremonies which he and his wife witnessed from a point of vantage, of seeing the two houses of congress in session, of his meeting with the president and the greeting sent by Mr. Roosevelt to the West Duluth club, and of his own visit to Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon. Mr. Barnes made a full and excellent report, and was complimented and thanked by the club for his observation.

Deputy United States Marshal Mallory also addressed the club, telling of his recent visit to the West. He spoke glowing of that part of the republic, but said that Duluth is always Duluth to one of its citizens, and nothing better can be found.

Overhauliug Steamers.

Crews of steamers lying at and near West Duluth are arriving, some of the advance guard coming several weeks ago, and are putting their boats in shape for the opening of navigation, which is expected almost daily. The A. B. Wolvin, the largest steamer on the lakes, which is lying at the Zenith Blast Furnace company's docks, is being overhauled, and will soon be ready for operation. The steamers James H. Hoyt and D. G. Kerr of the Provident Steamship company will be prepared to go out as soon as the ice breaks up at West Duluth.

ENLARGES PLANT.

E. G. Wallinder's sash and door factory at West Duluth has been remodeled and about $5,000 has been expended in additional equipment and repairs. A new brick and cement boiler and engine house has been built, a dry kiln has been erected and a considerable amount of new machinery has been installed.

Mr. Wallinder is employing about fifty men and the plant is working overtime right along. Mr. Wallinder has brought the business up from quite a small affair some years ago to one of the most important industries in the city.

Napoleon Sayan has purchased lots 10 and 11, in block 196, Third division of West Duluth, and is erecting a house thereon. This property is on North Fifty-fiifrst avenue west, and the consideration was $600.

A special meeting of the W. C. T. U. has been called for tomorrow afternoon to meet at the residence of Mrs. C. R. Keyes. The business is said to be important, but the ladies will not say what the nature of it is. Asked as to whether or not another crusade is being planned, Mrs. Keyes said this morning that such is not the case, but the businesss of the meeting will be divulged later.

Carl Weaver has returned from Minneapolis.

Fred Meyers is down from Virginia.

David Jenes has gone to Minneapolis.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Plymouth Congregational church will take place at the home of Mrs. Swangie, Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

Can Have Your Cake and Eat It Too

If You Happen to Have Dyspepsia—But the Possession Is Not a Pleasant or Desirable One—A Certain Way to Cure the Trouble.

Fruit cake, meat cake, nut cake, sinkers—anything and everything that the stomach of a healthy fourteen-year-old boy will digest are digested, one and all, in a natural, safe and positive way by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They possess the same properties and act the same way as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids of a healthy stomach do. They cause no disturbance and are followed by no bad results, because they are natural in their workings and effects. No matter what the condition of the stomach is, their work is just the same. They act in their own natural way without regard to surrounding conditions.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, by relieving the stomach of its work, enables it to recuperate and regain its normal health and strength. Nature repairs the worn and wasted tissues just as she heals and knits the bone of a broken limb, which is of course not used during the process of repair.

A Wisconsin man says: "I suffered the pangs of dyspepsia for ten years. I tried every known remedy with indifferent results until I was told of the remarkable cures of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I bought a box, began taking them and forgot I had a stomach. Three boxes cured me completely. I have had no trouble whatever for a year and have an appetite like a harvest hand and can eat anything that is set before me without fear of bad results."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. The druggist never fails to have them in stock because the demand for them is so great and so pronounced that he cannot afford to be without them. People who could not get them of one druggist would go to another and would get in the habit of buying their other drugs there as well as their Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

the congressional intention that the commission might, for convenience and rapidity of action after formulating the general plan of work, delegate to a committee or committees, the doing of the work in detail, the result to be reported subsequently of course, to the full commission. The commission should, therefore appoint an executive committee to be constituted and empowered as hereafter stated."

The secretary then states in details, plans for the division of the work into departments and the reasons therefore, all of which details are accepted and set forth in the president's order. The letter concludes as follows:

"The change of headquarters and power from Washington to the isthmus will doubtless require a radical change in the office of the commission in Washington. I am quite sure that greater economy and more satisfactory methods of accounting can be secured than now exist. Machinery for purchase of supplies and a force sufficient to maintain a duplicate set of acts and the necessary correspondence must, of course, be maintained in Washington, but very little else is needed. But these changes may be safely left to the commission and executive committee as newly constituted.

"I beg to submit herewith the resignations of all the present canal commission, to take effect at your pleasure.

"I respectfully recommend the appointment of a new commission and a designation of the chairman of the commission, the governor of the zone, and the chief engineer and the issuing of an executive order embodying the recommendations herein. "Respectfully yours,

WILLIAM H. TAFT,
Secretary of War."

The president's action is indicated in the following reply:

"The White House, Washington, April 1, 1905. The practical result of the operations of the Isthmian canal commission appointed and acting under previous executive orders has not been satisfactory and requires a change in the personnel of the commission and in the instructions for its guidance. The commission will hold quarterly sessions the first of January, April, July and October of each year at the office of the governor on the Isthmus of Panama, and will continue each session as long as public business may require. Further notice of such meetings shall not be necessary to their regularity. The commission may hold special sessions at the call of the chairman.

Four members shall constitute a quorum and the action of such majority shall be the action of the commission.

"The commission, under the supervision and direction of the secretary of war, and subject to the approval of the president, is charged with the general duty of the adoption of plans for the construction and maintenance of the canal, and with the execution of the work of the same; with the purchase and delivery of supplies, machinery and necessary plant; the employment of the necessary officers, employes and laborers and with the fixing of their salaries and wages; with the commercial operation of the Panama Railroad company, and its steamship line as common carriers; with the utilization of the railroad as a means of constructing the canal; with the making of contracts for construction and excavation and with all other matters, incident and necessary to the building of a waterway across the isthmus of Panama as provided by the act of congress of June 28, 1902.

"For convenience, and to secure the uninterrupted course, an executive committee of not less than three members of the commission shall be appointed by the commission to act in place of the commission during the intervals of the meetings of the commission and to report its doings to the commission at the next regular meeting. A report of every transaction of the executive committee shall be made and one copy of the report shall be forwarded to the secretary of war and another transmitted for the consideration of the commission at its next meeting. Regular meetings of the executive committee shall be held at the office of the governor on the isthmus of Panama at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each Monday and Wednesday of every week, and further notice of such meetings shall not be necessary to their legality. A majority of their number shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at such meetings. The action of such majority shall be the action of the executive committee.

"For convenience of executing the work to be done, there shall be constituted three executive departments:

"A—The head of the first department shall be the chairman of the commission, who shall have direct and immediate charge of construction.

"1—The fiscal affairs of the commission.

"2—The purchase and delivery of all material and supplies.

"3—The accounts, bookkeeping and audits.

"4—The commercial operations in the United States of the Panama railroad and steamship lines.

"5—He shall have charge of the general concerns of the commission subject to the supervision and direction of the secretary of war, and shall perform such other duties as may be placed on him from time to time by the secretary of war.

"The head of the second department shall be the governor of the zone with the duties and powers indicated in the executive order of May 4, 1904, which includes in general:

"1—The administration's enforcement of law in the zone.

"2—All matters of sanitation within the canal zone and also in the cities of Panama and Colon and the harbors, etc., so far as authorized by the treaty, the executive orders and decrees of Dec. 10, 1904, between the United States and the republic of Panama relating thereto.

"3—The custody of all supplies needed for sanitary purposes and such construction necessary for sanitary purposes as may be assigned to this department by the committee.

"4—Such other duties as he may be charged with from time to time by the secretary of war.

"5—He shall reside on the isthmus and devote his entire time to the service, except when granted leave of absnce by the secretary of war.

"The head of the third department shall be the chief engineer. He shall have full charge of the isthmus:

"1—Of all the actual work of construction carried on by the commission on the isthmus.

"2—The custody of all the supplies and plant of the commission upon the isthmus.

"3—The practical operation of the railroad on the isthmus with the special view to its utilization in canal construction work.

"4—He shall reside on the isthmus and devote his entire time to the service except when granted leave of absence by the secretary of war.

"All officers and employes shall be appointed and their salaries shall be fixed by the head of the department in which they are engaged. Their appointment and salary shall be subject to the approval either of the commission or, if the commission is not in session, of the executive committee. The employment of laborers, where the contract of employment is made in the United States or outside of the isthmus, shall be negotiated and concluded by the chairman of the commission, subject to the approval of the executive committee."

KING OUTWITS EMPEROR.

Considerable Politics In Princess Patricia's Weddirg.

New York, April 3.—A Paris cable to the World says: The engagement of Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden to Princess Patricia of Connaught turns out to be not idyllic as was at first imagined, now that the facts are coming out. Princess "Patsey," as her intimates call her, didn't meet her prince charming by chance, but the Cairo encounter was carefully arranged by King Edward of England.

The king's object, it is said, was to checkmate Germany, which desired to get Sweden and Norway under its influence. The kaiser hoped by a naval and military understanding to arrange for a new confederacy, with a view to its ultimate absorption.

The Norwegians especially were opposed to the kaiser's scheming, and an English princess is to take some day her place on the Swedish and Norwegian thrones, when British influence will replace German, royal uncle having outwitted imperial nephew.

Aronson-Jones.

A pretty wedding took place Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Eugenia Aronson, 410 Fourth avenue east, the contracting parties being her daughter, Miss Christine M. Aronson, and Capt. Albert M. Jones. The house was handsomely decorated in carnations and roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. S. Rice, pastor of the First Methodist church. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Jones left over the South Shore road for a visit at New York, Washington and other Eastern points. They will be at home after May 1, at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Treasury Experts Busy Casting Up Excess of Expenditures.

Talk of Tariff Changes to Produce More Revenue.

New York, April 3.—The Washington correspondent of the Herald sends his paper the following:

So great is the difference of opinion as to the probable treasury deficit for the next three or four years that the best experts at the direction of the secretary are now at work on an important line of figuring which will enable the administration officials to get at some idea of the government housekeeping expenses.

The system of taking account of stock has already been in operation for three weeks and may go on for a month more. It is the most thorough in every respect that has ever been undertaken at the treasury department.

Representative Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the house ways and means committee, said Saturday: "In my opinion there will be no deficit at all next year. This year the deficit will be about $20,000,000. There are no plans and no understanding at present on the subject of tariff revision so far as I am aware."

Mr. Payne is far more hopeful than the officials of the treasury department about the deficit. Already the excess of expenditures over the receipts for the present fiscal year, which ends June 30, is $24,793,307. Three months yet remain. Instead of predicting that this excess of expenditures will diminish in that time, administration officials believe it will increase to very nearly $30,000,000.

Saturday, the first of the last three months, shows an excess of expenditures over receipts of $315,188. There is no prospect of any extraordinary receipts during April, May and June, and no one can be found here, except Mr. Payne, who will predict that the deficit will grow less.

The accounting now going on in the treasury will enable the secretary to make an estimate on the receipts and expenditures for this time, and the fear is that each year will show a growing deficit, unless congress shows a better appreciation of the situation and cuts down its appropriation bills.

Until there is a very considerable paring some kind of revenue legislation will be made absolutely necessary, if not in the next congress, certainly before the end of President Roosevelt's term.

The American Protective Tariff league has already begun a campaign in favor of revision of the tariff up to meet the deficit instead of down, as appears to be the desire of the administration. It does not seem possible that this campaign can have any serious effect on congress, because it is the generally accepted theory among public men who have studied this question, except possibly Representative Dalzell, that a reduction of the tariff would increase imports and therefore the revenues of the government.

Representative Payne would not commit himself as to whether he was for immediate revision or not, but when asked if there would be a necessity for a tariff tax on coffee in order to raise more revenue, he said: "I don't see any such necessity."

In discussing the probable revision of the Philippine tariff, he said. "There we can make some reduction of duties. When the time comes in 1909 for a conclusion of the agreement that Spain shall have the benefit of the same duties that we have, I will be in favor of giving free trade between the Philippines and this country. As it is now the Philippines are never likely to produce manufactured articles, and a free exchange of products of the two countries could not result except beneficially.

"Of course there would be no danger under such a provision of any goods from foreign countries making their way into this country. What the Philippines want is a tariff that will produce revenue for them."

Real estate is a good servant, but a poor master. You can make your real estate work for you if you improve it—and then advertise.

"Here's a great cry and little wool," as the fellow said when he was shearing his hogs. And a want ad., placed in the wrong medium, may be little more resultful.

In house, office, store or factory one careless or negligent employe will cost you as much as your taxes. A little firmness and a little want advertising will remedy the matter.

TARIFF CASE

Concerning Philippines Decided By Supreme Court.

Washington, April 3.—Justice Holmes of the supreme court of the United States today delivered the opinion of that court in the case of Henry W. Peabody & Co., and Warner, Barnes & Co., vs. the United States, in opposition to the contention of the government.

These suits were brought to recover duties from the firms on goods shipped to Manila in 1899, when the ratifications of the treaty with Spain were exchanged on Oct. 25, 1901. The decision followed the lines of the judgment of the court in the fourteen diamond rings case, in which it was held that after the title passed to the United States there was nothing in the Philippine insurrection of sufficient gravity to give the islands the character of foreign countries within the meaning of the tariff act.

EVENING COURT

Judge Windom Will Hold Late Session to Hear Motion.

Taking of Testimony In Manslaughter Case Is Finished.

An evening session of the municipal court will be held tonight for the purpose of hearing the arguments of the attorneys on motion to dismiss the case against Beverley Jones, the boy who is charged with manslaughter.

Owing to the fact that both attorneys concerned in the case are busy in the district court today and tomorrow, Judge Windom consented to hold court at 7 o'clock this evening to listen to arguments on the motion.

Hilda Dahlman, the 12-year-old girl who claimed the boys had pointed the gun at her, was placed on the stand by County Attorney McClintock, and Attorney Baldwin made efforts to impeach her testimony.

The girl stated that the boys had pointed their guns at her and that she had told them that if they fired at her "they would be sorry." She claims the Jones boy then turned and making the remark that he would "shoot a bird in that tree" fired. She says she heard the scream the Thompson boy gave, and heard Jones exclaim after he fired, "I didn't do that."

Mrs. Francis Wood of 4419 Regent street and Miss Lena Brown, a teacher in the Lakeside school, were placed on the stand by the defense to testify as to the girl's reputation for veracity was not good. Mrs. Wood was asked what she knew of the girl's reputation, but on objection by the county attorney, she was not allowed to answer.

The evidence of the Jones boy and of Harry Briggs, his companion, was to the effect that the Jones boy had stopped to remove the cartridges from his gun, and that as he held it his hand caught on the trigger, and accidentally discharged the weapon. Both boys claim they did not hear the victim scream and did not know of the tregedy until some time later.

Mr. Baldwin then entered a motion to dismiss the case.

Judge Windom stated that he was willing to hear arguments on the motion, and stated that personally he would like to see the boy liberated, because he did not believe any wrong was intended. He said that the issues of negligence were what he was called upon to pass on, and he was not clear on his authority in the matter, and declared himself open to arguments from both attorneys.

The argument will be heard this evening.

LUMBER TRADE OF CANADA

Did Not Experience Prosperous Conditions Last Year.

Washington, April 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. R. Holloway, consul general at Halifax, N. S., in a communication to the department of commerce and labor, says that the Canadian lumber industry did not have a prosperous year in 1904, according to the annual review in the February number of the Canadian Lumberman. This authority on Canadian lumber trade says:

Uncertainty characterized the lumber trade of Canada during 1904. Confidence was lacking on all sides, and there was a strong inclination toward conservatism. The record, therefore, is unfavorable in comparison with 1903. The two most important influences were the commercial depression in Great Britain, which was more severe in lumber than in many other commodities, and the presidential election in the United States.

Lumber prices in the British market declined steadily during the first six months of the year, and shippers who had contracted for stock at the higher prices ruling in the winter of 1903-4 were face to face with very small profits, and in some instances with actual loss. The result was an early decision to restrict shipments as far as possible, which action was responsible for a partial recovery in the British market toward the close of the year. The import into the United Kingdom from all countries was 9,396,278 loads, as compared with 10,108,564 loads in 1903. The London import was exceptionally light, being more than 8,000,000 pieces less than in the previous year.

The presidential election ceased to be a market influence early in the autumn, but during the summer months the lumber demand in the United States reached a low point, and the manufacturers, in order to preserve their home market, exported largely to Canada. This competition was keenly felt in the West, and in many instances the imported lumber was sold below the cost of production.

The exports from the state of Washington are an indication of the extent to which American lumber was shipped into this country. The shipments via the Canadian Pacific railway were 19,622 cars of lumber, as compared with 632 cars in 1903 and 823 in 1902. Calculating on 10,000 feet to the car, the Canadian Pacific railway brought into Canada last year from Washington alone 19,626,000 feet of lumber.

The export trade of the year shows a considerable decline in the shipments from Montreal and other St. Lawrence ports, being 152,000,000 feet less than in 1903. New Brunswick is responsible for a falling off of 30,000,000 feet, and British Columbia for approximately 220,000,000 feet.

LEFT THE MONEY

Two Thieves Daringly Attempt to Rob Omaha Ticket Office.

W. G. Ulrich Frightens One Into Dropping Envelope With $160.

Two unknown men made a daring attempt to steal an envelope containing $160 from the city ticket office of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railroad company, corner of Superior street and Third avenue west, late Saturday afternoon. While one held the attention of W. G. Ulrich, assistant city ticket agent, the other climbed over the counter and picked up the envelope, but before he could get back again was detected by the agent, and to make his escape had to drop the money.

Mr. Ulrich was alone in the office at the time. The office, located at one of the busiest corners in the city, has large plate glass windows extending across the front and part down each side, so that passers-by may easily see what is going on inside. The idea of any one climbing over the counter, which is more than waist high, for the purpose of robbery, particularly in broad daylight, and in so public a place, never entered Mr. Ulrich's mind as he counted out the money and placed it in an envelope addressed to the Pullman company.

A stranger stood in the front of the office, looking at a folder. Evidently he took note of what the young man was doing, for a few moments later another man, evidently an accomplice, walked to the far end of the counter standing lengthwise in the room and asked concerning rates to Chicago. During the brief conversation the envelope was allowed to remain on the desk just inside the shorter counter which extends across the front of the office, at right angles to the other. While Mr. Ulrich was talking with the man his back was partially turned toward the older of the two.

Hearing a slight sound behind him, the agent turned just in time to see the thief, with the envelope in his hand, stepping on a chair to get back over the counter. With a sharp cry Mr. Ulrich dashed in his direction. As the man stepped on the chair, in a hurried attempt to escape, the chair, fitted with casters, slipped suddenly backward and he fell sprawling across across the counter. The hand containing the envelope struck the sharp corner of the wood and the money dropped to the floor, inside the counter, and from there he quickly made his way through the door and onto Superior street, walking rapidly westward. The accomplice escaped just as quickly through the side door into the hallway. As Mr. Ulrich was alone he could not well follow them and leave the office with no one in it, so he did the next best thing and informed the police department of what had occurred.

The two men have not yet been apprehended. Both were fairly well dressed. The one who engaged the agent in conversation was young looking, while the other, described as a heavy-set man, weighing more than 200 pounds, and wearing a mustache, was older. They did not have the appearance of common thieves.

LEAVE FOR EAST.

Range Road Officials Will Inspect New Locomotives.

W. A. McGonagle, first vice president and manager of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, in company with W. G. Wallace, superintendent of motive power, H. S. Bryan, superintendent of motive power for the Duluth & Iron Range, and A. Headly, general foreman of car repairs for the same road, left Saturday for the East to inspect the new locomotives and cars that are under construction for the two roads.

Twelve new locomotives are being built for the Missabe at the Pittsburgh plant of the American Locomotive company, and nine new locomotives are being constructed for the Iron Range by the Baldwin company at Philadelphia. The Missabe is also having built 1,200 new steel cars, while the other road has ordered 500 ore cars of the same pattern. The officials will be absent for about ten days.

DEMAND IS GOOD

Three Men Are In Duluth Looking For Broken-Down Horses.

Are Worth Little After Hard Winter's Work In the Woods.

Broken down horses, worn out by a hard winter's work in the woods, are in active demand in Duluth, and are being sold as rapidly as they are placed on the market. Much the same condition of affairs exists in several other of the Northern Minnesota towns which are located near the logging districts.

The lumbermen are always anxious to sell the animals in the spring and they may be purchased at a very low price. The buyer rests them up for a month or two, turning them loose in a pasture when the grass begins to sprout, and later selling them at a good margin of profit to himself. For several days past there have been at least three such buyers, acting for themselves or representing regular companies, in the city for the purpose of picking up the dispirited horses. The demand, in fact, greatly exceeds the supply, and the result is that the loggers are obtaining better prices than is usually the case.

Only in rare instances do lumbermen, particularly the larger companies, make any pretense of keeping their horses through the summer months, unless they engage in summer logging. Their one object is to get all of the work possible out of the animals during the season, and when spring comes they are anxious to dispose of them for almost any price. It not infrequently happens that a horse, sound in limb and body when he enters the woods in the fall, will come out a ruined animal in the spring, useless for any purpose, and in almost every case they are dispirited and worn out. Few lines of work are so hard on a horse as logging.

One of the would-be buyers has gone to Grand Rapids to bid on a bunch of horses just in from the woods, while the other two are said to be still in the city, although practically all of the logging camps directly tributary to Duluth have broken up for the season, and the outfits have arrived in the city. Most of the buyers looking for the logging horses are from from the Dakotas. They ship the animals out to the ranches and farms and a few weeks of complete rest on good feed works marvelous changes in their general condition. They become plump and healthy to look at, their spirits are revived and they are again in fine condition for work, either on the farms or for heavy work in the cities. They then command a good price, often as much as two or three times what they were purchased for at the end of the logging season.

A QUEER COUNTRY.

Some of the Peculiarities of the Thibetans.

If there is any place in the world odder than the country described by Percival Landon in "The Opening of Thibet," published and copyrighted by Doubleday, Page & Co., explorers ought to be set upon its trail, says the New York World.

The country begins at the level of the top of Pike's Peak and runs much higher. It is so high that tea boils more easily than on the plain; that sores on horses' backs heal with diculty; that the natives, and even visitors, are made ill by air pressure when they go down to the plains.

The highest town in the world is Phagri, whose inhabitants are also the dirtiest of people. It is too cold to keep clean. A battle was fought in part 19,000 feet above the sea, where it is almost impossible even to walk.

Lhasa is a city in the clouds. The Lama's palace is a "skyscraper" 900 feet long. It is seventy feet higher than the golden cross of St. Paul's cathedral; far taller than any building in New York.

Game birds are tame in Thibet, even when nominally "wild." The same birds that are gun-shy in Hindoostan, where the Englishman has introduced "sport," are not afraid of man in Thibet, whose religion forbids the taking of life.

Perhaps the prayer-wheels are as odd as anything. You gain merit by reciting "Om mani padmi hum." It is easier to write it out many times, inclose the writing in a rattle like a watchman's and twirl it as you walk. Easier still to print it in fin etype an the thinnest paper and stuff with these prayers a great water-wheel eight feet in diameter. Every time it turns all those millions of prayers are prayed.

The Thibetan tells an arriving guest to "sit and stick to the carpet." The going guest is asked to "walk slowly."

The Thibetans believe that when the country was young Buddha saw it and observed that the people were all monkeys. Why, he asked, were they not men and good Buddhists? What chance was there in such a country, they asked in reply, for men to cultivate bodies, let alone their souls? Then said Buddha: "If you will promise to become men and Buddhists I will give you a good and fertile land to live in." Of course, they promised, and Thibetans say Buddha made good, but visitors doubt it.

The Thibetans have discovered that the present Czar of Russia is a reincarnation of Tsong-kapa, the reformer; but this, though an odd role for the Czar, is not half so odd as the reincarnation which they have thoughtly arranged for the late queen Victoria. She is really Paldenlhamo, a dark-blue" lady with three eyes, who sits upon a chestnut mule, drinking blood from a skull and trampling under foot the torn and mutilated bodies of men and women. Her crown is composed of skulls, her eye teeth are four inches long, and the bridle, girth and crupper are living snakes kept in position by the dripping skin of a recently flayed man." By this reincarnation idea the Thibetans mean to convey "the highest possible personal compliment."

If a Thibetan woman marries a man she marries also his younger brothers, but not older ones. Under this system, which has not its like anywhere else in the world, population steadily declines.

When there is an earthquake the Thibetans know just how it happened. There are evil spirits; "some of them are gigantic brutes a mile in height, with tiny mouths which prevent them swallowing even the smallest crumb; naturally they suffer from hunger, and in their agonized writhings they are the immediate cause of earthquakes."

If you had a contract to let you would read the bids submitted before closing the matter—wouldn't you? Now that you must buy a raincoat, isn't it a good plan to read the "bids" submitted by our advertisers before making the purchase?

Y. M. C. A. MEN

Moving Forward With the Japanese Army In Manchuria.

Approved By the Officers and Popular With Soldiers.

New York, April 3.—With ten Japanese and two American secretaries at the front the Y. M. C. A. is moving forward with the Japanese army, and the Japanese war department is transporting supplies, furnishing and equipping buildings for their headquarters. Gen. Terauchi, the Japanese minister of war, says of it: "I had slight interest in the matter, thinking that, like many other propositions, it would pass over with little result. The opinion of myself and the men at the front and in Tokio is that it has proved successful beyond expectation."

The Japanese secretaries are busy from morning till night writing letters for the soldiers. Lieut. Col. Miyazaki says: "There can be no better form of recreation and diversion for the soldiers, with hardships and privations unnecessary to mention, than the association offers, with its newspapers and magazines, musical instruments, writing materials and graphophone. Since the place has been opened it has attracted most of the garrison when off duty."

Tents and headquarters have been established at Antung, Wiju, Chinampo, Eiko, Fengwangcheng, Yenkow, Liao Yang and Dalny. The association is now known from Chinampo to the outposts beyond Mukden, and its secretaries called "soldier comforting foreigners." Two American secretaries, Hibbard and Gleason, are at the front with eight Japanese secretaries. The head secretary at Dalny, Dr. Fukuda, is a graduate of Edinburgh university. Mr. Ochiai, who is army field secretary for Manchuria, is a graduate of an American college.

At Fengwangcheng an entertainment swamped the place. In three days the attendance was 1,500. The popular tunes on the phonograph were "Hurrah, Boys," and "Manhattan Beach." One of the young officers remarked with dry wit: "We had a phonograph at Dalny—a very good one—but the Russians, with characteristic lack of foresight, failed to provide Japanese records." Hoojo association headquarters had 3,000 visitors in a week, and over 2,000 letters were written on the correspondence tables, while 300 men did their laundry work there. The secretaries were kept busy at Dalny, giving gramophone and magic lantern entertainments and lectures at the hospital and before classes of soldiers. Gen. Kuroki and Gen. Fukushima welcomed the association at the front, giving the secretaries permission to visit freely within the limits of the army, where the secretaries provided the soldiers with stationery, graphophones and articles for social entertainment. For their cheer and encouragement they are appreciated more than material supplies by the men in the hospitals and bodies of troops leaving for the firing line. At Hoojo a file of a doenz men in full marching order, ready for departure for the front, came to the association rooms for a quiet place to pray.

Hot water is supplied to soldiers to wash their clothing, and the two Japanese bathtubs are used even more than the barber shop, where free haircuts are given all comers. The Jap soldier has his joke. A wag of a barber who used the clippers left a single wisp of hair on the heads of scores of men after the fashion of the Japanese mothers, and the joke had made some progress before it was discovered.

Over 3,000 men have been visited in the hospitals, and 20,000 special New Year's postal cards were issued, together with material for over 20,000 letters in a few weeks. Nearly 4,000 copies of the gospels provided by the American Bible society were eagerly received by the soldiers, and bible classes and meetings are popular. A Japanese colonel said: "There are a lot of men about headquarters who all pray to some divinity. I tell you when a man comes to the battlefield he thinks a lot about religion." Invariably the men listen well at the meetings. Many of the Japanese officers are Christians. Bishop Haris, writing from Tokio, says: "The Y. M. C. A. is the John the Baptist of Christian work in the Empire, and especially in the army in Manchuria and Korea. The associations is worthy of the support of all who believe in doing good unselfishly. The government and the people have the utmost confidence in it."

Money has been raised in Japan for this work. The people of Osaka and Kyoto are attempting to provide $2,000 to equip the post at Dalny.

A concert in the interest of the work, held recently at the Imperial Conservatory of Music at Tokyo, was attended by H. I. H. Princess Kanin and the British, German and Italian ministers. The preparations were made with the assistance of Marchioness Oyama, Marchioness Nabishima and other ladies of the nobility. Prince Fushima, who recently visited America, Princess Kanin and other prominent Japanese are among the contributors. Baron Mitsui, the head of one of the largest firms in Japan, has contributed $1,250. The international committee of Young Men's Christian associations, 3 West Twenty-ninth street, New York city, is attempting to raise $20,000 this year from America toward this work in the Japanese army.

OTHER KINDS OF FLOUR.

The Chinese cook stuck the end of an ivory chopstick into a small brown biscuit, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Taste, sir," he said.

The biscuit was warm, crisp, rich; it was light, well salted, nutritious—a biscuit, in a word, of a peculiar excellence.

"This biscuit, sir, is made of flour of lentils," said the Chinaman. "You know lentils? Little green pellets, slightly flattened, like split peas. Lentils are considered the most nutritious of all the foods of the earth. This one lentil biscuit, sir, is equal in nourishing power to a pound and a half or roast beef."

"Again taste," he said.

The little cake was rich and good.

"It is made, sir, of the flour of almonds," said the cook. "Fresh, sweet almonds, ground into a white powder between two millstones. Such a flour is a finer thing than your flour of wheat, eh?"

Then he lifted a great lid and revealed some thirty or forty compartments, one filled with a pink flour, another with a yellow one, a third with a brown one, a fourth with a white, a fifth with a pale green, a sixth with a blue, and so on.

"All these are Chinese flours," he said. "In China, sir, we make over fifty kinds of flour. We make flour out of rice, out of peanuts, out of beans, out of potatoes, out of sweet potatoes, out of peas, out of cocoanuts, out of millet, out of pulse, out of oats, out of bananas—the fact is, sir, we make flour in China out of everything but wheat. For in China, sir, we eat no bread, and therefore the coarse, dry, tasteless flour of wheat is useless to us."

The East end Bible class will meet tomorrow afternoon with the leader, Mrs. J. D. Morrison at her home on East Superior street.

The thirteenth artist recital, under the auspices of the Matinee Musicale of this city, will be presented tomorrow evening at Steinway hall by Rudolph Ganz. Mr. Ganz has appeared in concert this season with great success. The Chicago Chronicle says of his work:

"It may be said at once that the piano recital by Rudolph Ganz yesterday afternoon in Music hall, listened to by a very large and demonstrative audience, despite the weather, was a pronounced artistic success. Its only serious fault was the not uncommon one of offering too much.

"In the early numbers, Beethoven's thirty-two variations in C minor and the Brahms intermezzi and rhapsodies, his playing seemed somewhat lacking in warmth, but for this he made ample amendments by the unfailing brilliance of his work, and in the showy and charming scherzo in F sharp by D'Albert his playing was felicitous and charming in the highest degree. The prompt and insistent applause that followed compelled a partial repetition, and his playing of the Chopin etudes immediately after was no less delightful, and again the insistent applause drew a Chopin waltz in response.

"The second half of the program was chiefly devoted to the nine movements of Liszt's first—Switzerland—'Year of Pilgrimage.' This curious descriptive music of Mr. Ganz gave a broad, genuinely artistic interpretation, the varying emotions vividly suggested, and the great technical difficulties of some of the movements conquered with consummate skill. He closed his remarkable program with as fine and broad an interpretation of Liszt's arrangement of the 'Love Death' from 'Tristan and Isolde' as the piano seems capable of."

LET ADMIRATION RULE.

Henry Van Dyke's Works Contain Much Wisdom.

One of the most powerful sermons I ever read I found in one little admonition given by Henry Van Dyke, as a "guide-post on the footpath to peace." It was this: 'Be governed by your admiration rather than by your disgusts.'

Scientists today are proving that thought that emotion leave their definite impress upon the body, that the chemicals of the body are actually changed by one's thinking. Your physical structure registers with unerring accuracy your dominant mental status, says the Cincinnati Tribune.

Admiration is positive and constructive. Disguest is negative and corrosive. The person whose prevailing emotions are those of love or admiration is healthier and happier than the one who indulges in dislikes or disgusts.

The critical life is not the radiant life. The analyst who dissects people and experiences so closely that he fails to find anything to admire is to be pitied for his unfortunate failing rather than to be praised for his discrimination.

The man who encourages his disguet repels the best in life and experience. It is the man or woman of many admirations that draws the greater nutriment from life. Under the influence of a glowing admiration the best in yourself as well as the best in others is revealed.

He Got Last Word.

Men who complain that they cannot have the last word in an argument with their wives should take a lesson from the father-in-law of Martha Washington, by her first marriage to Daniel Parke Curtis, John Curtis, the wealthy citizen of Williamsburg, who held the office of king's councelor in the government of Virginia, married Frances Parke, who, though beautiful, was so "wayward, ill-tempered and self-willed" that everybody warned him he would never be able to live with her happily. It is related that their honeymoon ended with a war of words that only ceased with her life, which was terminated by smallpox, relates an exchange. Tradition says that her husband was no more a saint than she, but she usually managed to have the last word. He came out winner, however, by providing in his will, on pain of disinheritance, that the following be inscribed on his tombstone:

"Under this marble slab lies the body of the Hon. John Curtis, Esq., of the city of Williamsburg, and Parish of Bruton, formerly of Hungary Parish, on the Eastern Shore of Virginia and County of Northampton, aged 71 years, and yet lived but seven years, which was the space of time he kept a bachelor's home at Arlington, on the Eastern shore of Virginia."

BY THE HILL ROAD

By Julia Triutt Bishop.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The young woman, sitting on a log in the summer shade, was conscious that some one was coming up from the hill road, and that the bushes at the edge of the road had parted. She saw that a man was looking out of the tangle, but his interest seemed to attach to her so slightly, and to center on everything else within view so strongly that she did not move. In a moment he pushed the bushes aside a little more and came out into the open.

"I beg pardon if I have disturbed you," he said courteously, removing his hat. "But I used to be familiar with—with this—some years ago, and I am trying to recall the place. It is so much changed that I can hardly realize it is the same."

The young woman followed the direction of his eyes. He was looking at a disordered heap that had once been a chimney, and at overthrown and rotting blocks of wood that had once been the pillars of a house.

"Time seems to have made many changes here," she said quietly, without any embarrassment. He looked around again, with a lingering glance, and sat down on the other end of the log. His hat was still in his hand. She saw that the brown curls on his temples had begun to take on threads of silver, though his face was young. She saw that it was the face of a man who had fought hard battles, and had been in the habit of winning.

"This was the house where I was born," he said, thoughtfully, after a silence. "It has been a long time since I saw it last. But my boyhood was all passed here. Right about over there was my room. There was a rose vine over the window—my mother planted it—see—a wild branch of it is growing yet. And that old chimney! I couldn't realize that the old house would be gone when I came again. If you know what it means, I believe I have a heartache because the old house has fallen down."

"You must have been very happy here," she suggested, with a swift glance into his face.

"If so, it was because a boy will not let himself be made unhappy by anything that comes," he said. "My mother died, then my father—and those who came after were not greatly troubled about me, I believe. 'And yet—I have always turned back to this old place as home, in all my thoughts. The little scraps of happiness I found here must have struck deep root—but I think I had a pretty forlorn time. I have been trying for a year to get my business into such a shape that I could come back here and see the old place—and now I sit here and grieve because it has rotted into the ground."

The girl's eyes rested softly on the decayed chimney.

"I was wondering—before you came," she acknowledged, "if those who used to live here had forgotten all about the old home—or had grown too rich or too proud to think of it. I was thinking that I would like to know something about them—about their lives since they left this place, and of all they had accomplished. You came like an answer to my question. I am merely a summer boarder over at Farmer Gray's, and have heard a little about—about you, I think—and some of the others."

There was a long silence before he answered her. Then he spoke as one who communes with himself.

"I found out very early that I must go out and make my way in the world," he said, a little sadly. "There was no one interested enough to make it for me—and—ah, yes, it was best, anyhow. I had hard work the first five years. There was no drudgery I did not do—no kind of despair that did not come upon me—but things began to come my way at last. I could build a beautiful home above this ruin, if I wished—and I was thinking as I came out here that I would like to do that—but now—I am not so sure. I am afraid it would be the loneliest place in all the world—haunted with ghosts. Everything I ever loved here is gone."

"You speak, perhaps, of the dogs—or is it the cows and horses?" she asked, with a little quiver in her voice. She was not looking at him.

He was still communing with himself. "I spoke more especially," he said, "of a tiny girl that I used to call my little sweetheart. Where is she now, I wonder? How the years rob us as they go! I was a great, rough, country boy, and she was the dearest little mite—the last time I saw her I carried her on my shoulder across that little creek at the foot of the hill. It was the day before I went away. I heard afterwards that her mother died and she was adopted by wealthy people and taken away; and I don't know what became of her."

The girl turned and looked at him. Her eyes were very blue, and the lashes were long and dark.

"But doubtless the years gave you far more than they took away," she said steadily. "One finds it that way in life. A man loses the baby sweetheart he thought he loved, but after all did not love enough to ask where she had gone—and the years make him a present of a wife and children, and he is all the happier for his loss. Beg pardon—it is almost dinner time with the Grays, and I must go."

"But—wait a moment!" he cried, greatly perturbed, as she was going past him. "I asked—I asked again and again—and when I found that she was to be an heiress—and I was a mere drudge in a hardware house, with grimy hands and ill-fitting clothes, I did not ask again. And besides—the years have been a little chary of their gifts to me—because I have not asked much of them, no doubt. They have given me no wife; and so I have a perfect right to sit by the ruins of my old home and dream of the baby sweetheart I lost so long ago."

She had paused. She stood now, half turned away, the ruffled white sunbonnet hanging back from her face and framing it in.

"I have no doubt you have even forgotten how she looked," she said presently, in the lowest of low voices.

"She had a world of golden hair," he said, smiling at her with that note of regret running through the words. "Her name was Elsie—and there was a dimple in each cheek when she laughed. Perhaps you have heard the Grays speak of her. They were very fond of her, once."

"Yes, she said, moving slowly toward the opening in the tangled brushwood. "I have heard them speak of her. She was adopted, as you say, and was educated, and had the world at her feet, one might say. And yet I heard—it seems to me that some one told me—she came back here not long ago—to look at the old home—and to cross the creek at the old place—"

He had one fleeting glimpse of her as she looked back at him from between the leaves. A flood of rosy color had swept up over either cheek, and in the midst of the rose was a dimple.

A look of amazed comprehension flashed into his face—but before he could speak she was gone.

He had always been swift of foot, however—and besides—

He knew the way to Farmer Gray's and the way led across the little creek at the foot of the hill.

LAST HOPE VANISHED.

When leading physicians said that W. M. Smithart, of Pekin, Ia., had incurable consumption, his last hope vanished; but Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, kept him out of his grave. He says: "This great specific completely cured me, and saved my life. Since then, I have used it for over 10 years, and consider it a marvelous throat and lung cure." Strictly scientific cure for Coughs, Sore Throats or Colds; sure preventive of Pneumonia. Guaranteed, 50c and $1.00 bottles at all druggists. Trial bottle free.

INSPECTING JAY GOULD.

Purchase of L. M. & L. S. Line of Boats May Result.

The morning paper published on Sunday an item to the effect that negotiations are under way for the purchase of the steamers Jay Gould, Osceola and Peerless of the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior line, and that John Coventry, resident manager of the Booth company, was having them inspected for somebody other than the Booth company. Mr. Coventry denies the truth of this and says that he received a request from H. H. Brigham, manager of the Booth company at Chicago, to have the Jay Gould alone examined and that is all there was done. Mr. Coventry would say no more about the matter and would neither deny or admit that the Booth company was figuring on purchasing the Jay Gould. If any one is inspecting the other two steamers of the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior fleet here, Mr. Coventry say, he knows nothing about it.

It is claimed that some Chicago parties are figuring on buying the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior fleet, and that examinations are taking place or have, and that news of a transfer may be expected soon.

CANADA IS SEEKING

To Divert Immigrants From United States to Dominion.

Czar to Pay the Doukhobors For Property Seized.

Ottawa, Ont., April 3.—A movement is being promoted to encourage immigration to Canada via the United States. The project embraces the establishment at New York of a comprehensive exhibit, showing the varied resources of the Dominion, and an information bureau where European immigrants to the United States, upon landing in New York, may learn of the advantages the Dominion offers.

A company with this object in view is being formed under the name of "The Canadian General Service and Colonization company," with a capital of $100,000. A building will be obtained in New York for the exhibit. The movement originated from the conviction that thousands of immigrants are settling annually in the United States who are ignorant of the opportunities offered by Canada, and it is believed an institution of the sort proposed will have a marked effect in diverting immigration to the Dominion.

It is understood the Russian government will make restitution to the Doukhobors in Canada for the confiscation of their property in Russia after they had emigrated from that country to Canada some three years ago. A small deputation from the Doukhobor colony in the Canadian West, headed by Peter Veringin, interviewed the government here, and subsequently laid the case before the Russian consul at Montreal, with the result that it is announced the czar's government will pay the Doukhobors for all the property taken from them in Russia.

The Doukhobor colonists, handicapped by their curious customs and poverty, have prospered in their new home at Yorkton, N. W. T. Two years ago the colony was virtually penniless. Today it has thousands of acres sown in wheat and other grain, the most modern agricultural appliances, and cattle and sheep in great number. The colony now numbers 8,000 persons, and is prospering in every way. There are fifty-seven villages, which are made up of forty homesteads each and having 160 acres to a homestead. All these homesteads work in community and possess all property and goods in common.

According to the report of the fisheries department, just presented to dominion parliament, the fisheries of the dominion are shown to be the largest in the world. They extend over an immense sea coast line, besides innumerable lakes and rivers. The total value of fish caught and fish products prepared in Canada during the last fiscal year aggregates $23,101,878. With the exception of 1901, when the phenomenal catch of salmon in British Columbia swelled the total value beyond $25,000,000, last year's catch was the largest on record for this country. There were 79,134 men engaged last year in the fisheries, not including the thousands of persons employed in the lobster branch of this industry.

The war of extermination waged against the dog fish in Atlantic waters is referred to as approaching a satisfactory result. The dog fish, which is a species of small shark and most voracious and destructive to fishing gear, is the greatest enemy of the fishermen.

ODD WILL

By Which Estate of $15,000,000 Is Bequeathed.

London, April 3.—Sir Blundell Maple, Britain's furniture king, who died worth $15,000,000, bequeathed his fortune to his only child, Baroness von Eckardstein, on condition that she forfeit it if she should not spend 240 days of every year in England. The baroness, whose husband is chancellor of the German embassy here, asked the supreme court to nollify the condition, but the court refused. She pleaded that it might be necessary for her or her children's health to winter abroad, but the judge replied that she should rely on the consideration of her trustees. She intends to appeal to the house of lord.

TESTIMONIAL TO FLAATEN

Third Regiment Band Gives Excellent Concert at Lyceum.

The testimonial concert given yesterday at the Lyceum by the Third Regiment band for its director, J. H. Flaaten, was well attended despite the exceedingly bad weather which prevailed. The features of the program were an overture "Queen's Secret" by Le Roy Thomas, a vocal solo by Miss Harriet Nobles of Superior, a violin solo by Dexter Ostergren, and a cornet solo by Charles Helmer.

Mr. Thomas' overture is tuneful and shows superior talent in musical composition. It brought from the audience a very enthusiastic encore and the band then played a pretty intermezzo, which also received a hearty burst of applause. The grand selection from "Les Huguenots" was also well received. Miss Nobles' solo, "Fleeting Days," was well rendered and an insistent encore brought Miss Nobles back to give "Sing Me to Sleep, Love," which was applauded persistently but the soloist would only bow in return.

The violin solo by Dexter Ostergren was Hauser's "Czardas Ungerscher" played by request. Mr. Ostergren by his undoubted talent, pleasing appearance and unassuming manner won his audience instantly and an encore was heartily given which was responded to with Musin's "Mazurka." This, too, proved a favorite, and Mr. Ostergren, after repeated recalls had to satisfy the appetite of the audience with "Sounds from Home." Each number was well given and the young man proved the hit of the afternoon. The next number was also a solo, Charles Helmer playing "The Commodore Polka" on the cornet. This is a difficult number but was excellently given and Mr. Helmer, always a favorite, was compelled to respond by playing "Conx Me" from "The Isle of Spice." This too, was well received.

The program closed by the band playing a beautiful arrangement of "My Old Kentucky Home."

The band will leave Wednesday for Hibbing where it will open a concert tour of the range in the Power Opera house. Excellent patronage is assured at each place where the band is billed. This is the first of a number of tours the band will take in the state throughout which this organization has been steadily gaining in fame. The band will be here for its usual Sunday evening concert next Sunday.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

St. Louis, April 3.—Samuel Schram, aged 43 years, died from a self-inflicted bullet wound today, after having shot himself in the mouth. Domestic troubles led to the shooting.

Scrofula

It is commonly inherited.

Few are entirely free from it.

Pale, weak, puny children are afflicted with it in nine cases out of ten, and many adults suffer from it.

Common indications are bunches in the neck, abscesses, cutaneous eruptions, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, rickets, catarrh, wasting, and general debility.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Eradicate it, positively and absolutely. This statement is based on the thousands of permanent cures these medicines have wrought.

"My daughter had scrofula, with eleven sores on her neck and about her ears. Hood's Sarsaparilla was highly recommended and she took it and was cured. She is now in good health." MRS. J. H. JONES, Parker City, Ind.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both old and new addresses.

A DECENT ROAD NEEDED.

A matter that ought to receive the early attention of the city council is the thoroughfare between Duluth and West Duluth. At present there is no decent roadway between the two points. Third street and Grand avenue used to form a very decent road, but the constant wear of heavy trucks and the ruin accomplished by the laying of gas pipes have combined to make the road a very poor one. Superior street through the West End is also in very bad condition, while Michigan street between Eighth and Fourteenth avenues west, is in deplorable condition.

With these streets in such condition, there is no encouragement for people living west of the point of rocks to own driving horses, while a considerable amount is added to the cost of all the material hauled on drays between the two points. The draymen must charge enough to make up for worn-out horses and broken wagons. It is now almost an impossibility to handle a good-sized load without causing some damage to horses, harness or wagons.

A number of automobiles are being purchased by city residents. The owners of these as well as the owners of driving horses should be provided with a decent roadway to the western limits of the city. They will get tired of running on London road all the time, which is now practically the only good driveway in the city, outside of the boulevard.

London road was resurfaced at the expense of the whole city, the money being taken from the general fund. Residents of the West End and West Duluth believe that portions of the route between Duluth and West Duluh should be treated in like manner. There is justice in their contention that the improvement of that roadway would be of even greater benefit to the whole city than the improvement of London road.

THE VENEZUELAN CASE.

The decision of the superior court of Venezuela in the case of the New York & Bermudez company, otherwise the asphalt trust, renews the charge that agents of the company used company funds in large amounts to inaugurate and promote the recent revolution known as "Libertadora," headed by Gen. Matos.

Suit was brought by the Venezuelan government against the company for damages on account of its connection with this revolution. Robert Kemp Wright, the resident representative of the company, sought to have the suit dismissed on the ground that even if the charge of collusion with the Matos revolution was true, which he denied, there was no ground for action because under Article 123 of the penal code in cases of crimes against the national powers any and all proceedings cease upon the re-establishment of public order. This phase of the case went to the superior court on appeal and the court has decided that the case will not be dismissed.

Now the matter will probaly be tried on its merits, and until it is finished it will be well to reserve final judgment. But it is evident that the company in endeavoring to have the suit dismissed on a technicality, does not particularly care to have it tried on its merits.

If this company has been guilty of promoting an insurrection, the Venezuelan government will be fully justified in revoking its franchises and confiscating all its property. Besides that, if justice were done, the conspirators would be shot or sent to jail for good long terms. And if President Castro has reason to believe that the company conspired with Gen. Matos to overturn the government, then he is fully justified in seizing the property of the concern until the truth or falsity of the charge is finally determined by the courts.

In his effort to take this matter out of the hands of the Venezuelan courts and submit it to an international tribunal, President Roosevelt is in error. If a like happening had occurred in this country the American people would resist to the last drop of blood any attempt at foreign interference. So President Castro was quite correct in saying that there is nothing to arbitrate because there is no issue between the United States and Venezuela. The dispute is between the asphalt trust and the government of Venezuela and the place to try that issue is in the courts of Venezuela. The United States should keep its nose out of the affair.

BOYS WITH GUNS.

Little Peter Thompson is dead, his life snuffed out as a result of the careless handling of firearms. While his taking off was an accident, that is poor consolation to his grief-stricken parents, because it was an accident that might have been prevented by observance of the law against discharging firearms within the city limits and observance of the moral law which forbids the carrying of firearms by immature youths when unaccompanied by parents or other proper guardians.

There has been altogether too much laxness in regard to this matter in Duluth. The authorities have been lax in their enforcement of the law and many parents have been particularly derelict in permitting their boys to violate the laws of the city and the moral law.

It is rather remarkable that there have not been more fatal accidents as a result of this pernicious practice. There have been many narrow escapes and the worst part of it is that when these things occur the authorities rarely do anything. The police do not hesitate to haul a drunken man off the streets, but they do hesitate to make complaint against boys who transgress with firearms, and certainly the latter are much more dangerous to the peace and welfare of the community than the ordinary drunk.

The law forbids the carrying of firearms by boys under 14 years of age unless attended by older persons. The age limit should be at least 16. There is no need and no sense in boys younger than that going about with guns on their shoulders, especially in cities. But if the laws as they are should be rigidly enforced the danger would be greatly minimized, and they should be rigidly enforced.

This is a class of law violation that ought to receive the special attention of the authorities. People do not like to complain of their neighbors' children, even when they do transgress. The chief of police has admitted that it is a duty of his department, by issuing a special order to the force instructing them to be especially watchful in future. This order should be strictly obeyed.

Parents, too, who have been lax in this matter should profit by the warning given through the untimely ending of the life of Peter Thompson. They should remember that one of their own children may be the next target if this gun-carrying habit is not stopped. A great responsibility rests upon the parent who permits his boy to go "hunting" before he knows enough to be careful, and most boys under 16 years of age do not know enough.

RATHER TOO SWEEPING.

In raising his voice against the appointment of Professor Hollander of Johns Hopkins university as special commissioner to investigate the financial and governmental conditions in Santo Domingo for the information of the Washington government, Senator Cullom makes a sweeping charge of incompetency against the members of the teaching profession.

Senator Cullom's idea is that such a commissioner should be a man of national distinction, whose report would be given attention and command respect. "A school teacher," said the senator, "is the last person in the world who ought to be selected for a mission so important, because school teachers are fundamentally the worst men in the world to undertake any sort of business that is disconnected from their own sphere." But the protest was unavailing and Prof. Hollander will proceed with his investigations.

The Indianapolis Sentinel, in making protest, says that if the senator's theory is right then a mistake has been made. How many, however, will agree with his opinion? Certainly the teachers will object to such a public proclamation of their incompetence outside of the schoolroom. The question is to be considered entirely apart from Prof. Hollander, for the accusation is general and not exceptional. The Sentinel continues:

"It is to the credit of school teachers who take up the profession as something more than a temporary employment that they are determined to concentrate their energies upon the work, but this does not mean that they know nothing about anything else. A really successful teacher is usually a man of wide general knowledge. He knows what is going on in the world and comes as near knowing why it is going on as anyone else. He certainly should know his geography and more history than is found in the school editions. If he doesn't know 'figgers' he will not long remain a teacher. If he is lacking in correct definitions of civil government—even of the mixed kind practiced in Santo Domingo—his training is undeniably defective. And, finally, if a thoroughly wide-awake teacher couldn't see with half an eye that Santo Domingo is hopelessly bankrupt and always has been, and that it has no government to speak of and never has had, then the teaching profession is not what it is cracked up to be."

If it is true that school teachers are incompetent outside of their own particular sphere, then it is time that an effort was made to educate teachers along different lines. But the chances are that Senator Cullom's sweeping indictment was the result of opposition to the appointment of this particular teacher and because he had in view some other man whose appointment he would have preferred.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

The city council of Wabasha has gone about the matter of stopping the cigarette nuisance in a practical way. It has ordered the arrest of all boys under 18 caught using tobacco. If the use of tobacco or liquor is wrong, the user should be punished, not the vendor alone.

In his answer to H. H. Rogers the Rev. Washington Gladden reaches the kernel in the nut. Because certain immoral practices may not be forbidden by the law does not make them right.

Chicago will be saved again tomorrow. The main question is whether the municipality shall own and operate the street railways. In the meantime the business streets continue to be cleaned by private enterprise and there is reason to believe that every department of the city government is permeated by graft.

Hotel Gossip.

"Two or three years ago, when there was a very heavy demand for iron ore from the ranges, the different mines and roads were not properly equipped to handle all the business, so as much ore could not be hauled as would otherwise have been the case," said James Dowling of Eveleth, at the Lenox.

"A different condition of affairs exists at the present time, however. There is a vast amount of ore to be handled, and the proper machinery, locomotives and rolling stock is here, or will be here shortly, to handle it. The consequence is that this will doubtless be the best season the range towns have ever had, and the ore shipments will eclipse any made in a corresponding period of time heretofore. Not only are the mines themselves more numerous and better equipped for getting out ore than they were a few years ago, but the railroads are also in better position for business, and are steadily adding to their equipment.

"Even now the Missabe road is having twelve new locomotives and 1,300 new steel ore cars built, and the Duluth & Iron Range has ordered nine new locomotives and 500 new steel ore cars. Full crews will be employed at the mines through the summer, as well as on the railroads, and all indications point to an unusually prosperous season for all concerned."

"Chicago is planning on a big automobile meet to be held on the last three days of May," said J. D. Warner of Chicago at the Spalding. "A prize of $1,000 in gold will be given to the man winning the 10-mile race, and in addition to this a certain sum, either $50 or $100, willl be given for every second clipped off the world's record during the meet.

"It is expected that a large number of Eastern autoists will be on hand to participate if the plans are carried out on the scale anticipated. Among the number will be Barney Oldfield. I should think the Duluth automobile club might arrange for races over some of the local roads, or perhaps there are not enough machines in the city as yet to make the idea of use. Why wouldn't the boulevard be a good place for an auto race? The only objection I can see is that, in case of a runaway devil wagon, the driver might land in the lake, or on top of the Torrey building, before he knew where he was at."

"Few people in Northern Minnesota realize the money-making opportunities that lie at their very doors," said Edward Anderson of St. Paul at the St. Louis. "The cheap lands of Minnesota offer unsurpassed chances for investment, for poor and rich alike. The way things are arranged now, any man who is working on a salary, or who has an income from other sources, may become the owner of the cheap lands scattered through this territory, for they may be purchased on the easy-payment plan. Men, particularly young men, are foolish for not taking advantage of these opportunities.

"There can be no doubt that the value of these country lands will increase rapidly. One thing is sure, they will never be worth less than they are now. By investing in them one cannot lose, and, according to my way of figuring, he is sure to win. This is more than can be said of the stock market, and mining investments, which so many young fellows seem inclined to monkey with. Of course, if you win in a mining or stock deal you win more and quicker money than if you had invested in real estate, but these are always chances of a heavy loss. Any land, I do not care where it is located, will be in active demand in the course of time if it is good for farming purposes. Even now, in many sections through Northern Minnesota, country lands have doubled and trebled in value within the last three or four years."

THE COURT.

Puck: The Emperor yesterday issued instructions to the Weather Bureau to let spring begin and to continue the month of April on the calendar as usual. It has not yet been decided whether May or June will follow, but the chances are that for the present there will be no change.

It is a court secret that Prince Kermit is preparing a box of caramels stuffed with cayenne pepper and marshmallows filled with cotton to be sent to the Russian Ambassador on the 1st of April.

Charles Marquis of Fairbanks called upon the Emperor yesterday, but was received by the Equerries of the Imperial Saddlerie, the Emperor at the time being engaged in the study of jiu-jitsu with Mr. Tackawhacka, the Japanese Envoy.

The report that Lord High Admiral Morton is prostrated with sea-sickness as a result of a midnight canoe trip on the Potomac with the Emperor is a malicious falsehood. Admiral Morton is a stanch sailor, as those who have crossed the North river with him on a ferry-boat can readily attest.

Count von Pennypacker, Viceroy of Pennsylvania, has requested the Emperor's permission to hang sixteen Philadelphia editors and boil two cartoonists in oil for the crime of lese Pennypacker. The request has been referred to the Emperor's Attorney-General, Lord Moody, of Massachusetts, with power.

A general order has been sent to the viceregal court at Utah stating that while the Emperor will be glad to receive the Dukes and Princes of Salt Lake City, they must not bring more than one of their Duchesses or Princesses at one time. This rule will be vigorously enforced during the reign of Theodore the First.

LAWYERS.

Milwaukee Sentinel: lawyers is men wich git foaks in trubbel & then charge the saim whether thay git them out or not. lawyers is of 2 kinds.

1. good lawyers.
2. cheep lawyers.

the cheep lawyers cost you more than the good lawyers, the only trubbel is that you never know the good lawyers til you try them and then maybe thay aint vary good after all.

lawyers is made in 2 ways. One kind goes to college and plays foot ball & the other kind works for A lawyer & studies law books at nite. Mister Lincoln was the last kind and the first kind is easy to find anywhare, you can git them to try a case & lose it for you any day. Sum of them is good, tho, but not a grate many.

lawyers git mad at eech other when thay are trying a case, but after the case is over thay call eech other Old Chap and say Lets go in & have a drink. Then thay stay thare till they have 8 moar drinks and then thay call eech other "dere old chum."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Pine County Courier: When the people of a county, without an important exception, desire to rid themselves of an unbecoming and untrue name the legislature should have no difficulty in determining the right course to pursue. There is no good reason why we should longer carry an unnecessary burden. 'Twere better to expend the energy in some other direction. There is something in a name; that is why we want to be in Clover.

Cloquet Independent: P. Ellard Dowling, representative in the state legislature from St. Louis county, is putting Public Examiner Johnson through a few stunts that are, to say the least, highly enjoyed by the friends of Bob Dunn. And yet——

Norman County Herald: The lumber industry of this state indulged in what might be termed pernicious activity against the Adams bill which provided that "thin" lumber should be properly "labeled." The retail dealers were called upon to get out and secure signatures to petitions remonstrating against the measure—and they got the signatures.

Fergus Falls Journal: Ex-Oil Inspector Schiffman informs the legislative committee that the present oil inspection system is a farce. This will not be news to anyone who has occasion to burn kerosene the year round.

Elk River Star-News: The anti-pass bill has been defeated in the senate by a large majority. This indicates that the senate will be the graveyard of all anti-railroad legislation.

Rochester Post and Record: Governor Johnson has vetoed the Horton bill which takes the care of the state capitol out of the governor's hands and places it in the hands of capitol commissioners. As the Post and Record has before remarked, this bill is a specimen of about as small and mean politics as has come under its observation, and it is worthy of the ward politician who introduced it, whose name it bears. It is a direct insult to the governor, a gentleman who was elected by the popular vote of the party with which Horton attaches himself. Ever since Minnesota has been a state the governor has been custodian of the capitol, and were the present executive a member of the majority party no one would have thought of making any change. The bill can have no political effect whatever; it simply fills a sensible man with disgust that such a measure should even be presented and that a body composed of intelligent men, as the legislature is supposed to be, should consider it, much less pass it. The Post and Record has no sympathy whatever with the politics of Gov. Johnson, but it respects him as a cultured, dignified gentleman, and the position he fills should place him above such petty insult as this bill has given him. It is to be hoped the legislature will see the mistake it has made and allow the veto to stand.

Isanti News: The Standard Oil company is sending letters to publishers throughout the country asking that efforts be made to check the opposition to that corporation. The Standard will get little sympathy in Minnesota while it continues to supply the present grade of kerosene.

St. Paul Globe: The unkind comment that has been indulged regarding Mr. Rockefeller and his donation of $100,000 to the missionary board will not deter that great and good man from laboring on behalf of the heathen. He is good to make his salvation slush fund of a size to compel the attention of St. Peter if he has to boost the price of oil to a dollar a gallon.

Rush City Post: Governor Johnson was right in vetoing the Horton bill. The bill was a political dodge of partisan nastiness, indecent, insulting and uncalled for. Politically we were opposed to the election of Governor Johnson, but inasmuch as it was accomplished and brought about by many of the advocates of the Horton bill, we don't believe in violating a precedent of long standing to gratify a hog.

Description of an Explosion.

Argonaut: Shortly after the explosion of one of the big guns on the Massachusetts a year ago, a sailor, who was injured by the accident, was asked to give an account of it. "Well, sir," replied the jackey to his questioner, "I reely can't say that I knows very much about it. I was standin', you see, with me back to the gun, a-facin' the port side. All of a sudden I hears a hell of a noise; then, sir, the ship physician, he says, 'Set up an' take this.'"

Kept Him Stuffing.

Argonaut: An Ohio man who was recently elected to congress, went to Washington to look around and see what his duties were. He was hospitably received, and was wined and dined a great many times by his colleagues. Before he went home he said to his friends: "By George, I have had a good time! I have had dinners and breakfasts and suppers galore given to me. In fact, I haven't had my knife out of my mouth since I struck town."

J. T. Moulton, the elevator builder, has arrived from Chicago with details for the new houses, and he will go to work on them at once.

LINES TO A LAUGH.

Philadelphia Bulletin: "Now," chortled the amateur Sherlock to his lady partner, "it is easy to see that gentleman yonder is not married."

"Pray, how can you tell?"

"By his neglected air, his frowsy appearance. No woman would let a man go about like that. His coat lacks two buttons, you perceive, and he is not brushed."

"Still," said the lady, "he is married."

"You know him, then?"

"I am his wife."

Chicago Tribune: "Doctor, my husband is dreadfully troubled with sleepness. What is good for it?"

"You might try reading him to sleep, madam."

"What would be the use of that, doctor? I try to talk him to sleep every night, and it doesn't do a bit of good."

Philadelphia Press: "I must confess," remarked Mrs. Crabbe, "I don't believe there ever was a really perfect man."

"Well," replied Mr. Crabbe, "Adam would have been perfect, I suppose, if Eve had only been made first."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, she would have bossed the job of making Adam."

Philadelphia Ledger: He: Pardon me, dear; I know I'm late; but, as you see, I was detained a couple of hours by an old friend who had just got back to town, and I had to talk him all I knew.

She (bitingly): But why should that have kept you so long?

Philadelphia Press: "Your bookkeeper seems to be a bright young woman."

"Yes, but she has some very eccentric ideas."

"Yes?"

"Yes. She enters our messenger boy's wages as 'running expenses.'"

LUNGS OR LAW.

The Cardinal, published by Wisconsin university students, says: Legislation that bears on coffin nails, tuberculosis, adulterated apricots and the dark brown taste has ceased to frighten the great sovereign power, the people, into anything more strenuous than a sigh and a cynical smile. We admit the legislative virtue that is discernable in an effort to minimize the consumption of cigarettes by the knee pants population. It is to be regretted that with the grown up slaves of muslin bags and papers the legislation will simply transfer a portion of their disregard for laws, that are in a poor way to be enforced. It is something accomplished when the younger Americans are forced to trail the older Americans that no discarded "butt" may remain neglected. The law encouraged this practice which is not an uncommon thing under present liberal laws of tobacco vending.

It is a patent fact that juvenile humanity and not a minority of adult humanity find adulation in smashing to smithereens the ethical theories of men who are trying to legislate humanity into a purgatory of self-denial with the hope of qualifying humanity for the golden stars of physical perfection The law will be more harmful of course to college men than a free and unlimited sale of tobacco. We are all going to smoke just as much. We are going to pay twice as much for what we smoke at Wisconsin and we are going to get for our money cigarettes that (if or made as they must necessarily be) were always somewhat obnoxious to followers of Durham and many times more harmful.

We are looking at this cigarette bill too seriously when we remember past observation of such legislation. Although we trust our serious attitude will be warranted by strict enforcement, we find that there is not within the limits (and we claim to be average Americans) the capacity to believe that the law will cause any considerable flurry after the Milwaukee correspondents and the fatherly editorial to which this Horton attaches himself. Ever since Minnesota has been a state the governor has been custodian of the capitol, and were the present executive a member of the majority party no one would have thought of making any change. The bill can have no political effect whatever; it simply fills a sensible man with disgust that such a measure should even be presented and that a body composed of intelligent men, as the legislature is supposed to be, should consider it, much less pass it. The Post and Record has no sympathy whatever with the politics of Gov. Johnson, but it respects him as a cultured, dignified gentleman, and the position he fills should place him above such petty insult as this bill has given him. It is to be hoped the legislature will see the mistake it has made and allow the veto to stand.

BAITING THE NEGRO IN OHIO

Atlanta, Ga., Constitution: We notice from the dispatches that the village of Dent, Ohio, near Cincinnati, is all torn up because a negro—a real live negro from the South—has rented a farm in the vicinity and is trying to make an honest living from the soil like any Ohio farmer. No sooner was it learned that the negro, Gray by name, had rented the farm and moved his family thereon, than the natives of Dent and his white neighbors began to show their displeasure by calling a mass meeting and formally adopting resolutions demanding that he "leave the township instanter." A copy of the resolutions was served on Gray by a committee, which assured the negro that no harm would come to him if he made haste to "pull his freight." The unoffending but objectionable negro, who is said to be "honest, peaceable and law-abiding," could not see it that way and threatened to appeal to President Roosevelt. At last accounts he was still holding the fort a virtual prisoner in his own house, and the Dentites were swearing mob vengeance.

The Cincinnati Post thus reports the affair:

"Since the notice to leave, Gray says he is afraid to eat, lest he be poisoned; afraid to sleep, lest he be shot down, and afraid to leave his home, lest he be ambushed.

"Citizens of Dent say he need not fear if he promises to leave. Gray has armed himself and has a bulldog.

"Gray was told he was not personally objectionable, but that since a white woman was assaulted by a colored man, the edict had gone out that no colored person can live in Green township.

"Gray has made a proposition to leave, if the expense of moving is defrayed and arrangements made to get his lease annulled.

"Gray has a wife and one child. He moved to Dent to take up an old farm and improve it. He hoped to save enough money to buy it. As the time limit draws near the people are getting more restless, especially since Gray shows no signs of moving."

The incident is interesting in showing to what lengths Northern race prejudice against the negro will go. As the Constitution has often charged, this violent, unreasoning prejudice causes the average Northern community, when crime is committed by a negro in the locality, to make war upon the whole negro race rather than to be content with the punishment of the criminal. Time and again we have seen this exemplified in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, where the entire negro population of towns have been driven from their homes or outrageously maltreated because of the crime of one of their race.

In the present Ohio instance no recent act of negro criminality is responsible for the whitecap spirit of the community. Because a white woman was assaulted by a negro years ago in Green township, where the negro Gray seeks to make his residence, the mob edict that no negro shall live in the township has been strictly enforced. Gray is made to suffer, not so much because of another negro's old crime, but because of his race. The fact that he is a negro arouses a violent prejudice in the breasts of those Ohio villagers that can only be likened to the anti-Semitic rage of the ignorant Russians.

The Louisville Times, speaking of the Dent affair, says:

"In their treatmeent of the colored brother, Northerners are invariably more brutal than the former slave owners of the South, but there are few cases upon record which evidence such unjustifiable prejudice as exists in Dent. In the South, where assaults are frequent, the assailants are often lynched, but respectable negroes are rarely interfered with, and in no instance has an entire community become inflamed against one law-abiding negro."

This is true. If the people of the South showed the same disposition to avenge the crime of the individual negro upon the negro race, there would be innumerable townships and counties in the South where the population would be exclusively white. Southern people have a finer sense of justice than this, no matter how sorely they are tried by negro criminality, and negro crime has never goaded them to unreasoning race prejudice. The "good negro" is safe in the South under any circumstances and his residence among white people is encouraged by fair and kindly treatment.

Before our friends at the North tender their advice on the solution of the "race problem," they might learn a wholesome lesson from the South in the matter of race prejudice.

We Are Chloroforming Grandpa.

We are chloroforming grandpa,
In our laboratory snug,
For we've been to Dr. Osler,
Who has furnished us the drug.
Grandpa hates asphyxiation
And is kicking up a roar;
Though he ought to die contented,
Since his useful days are o'er.

We are chloroforming grandpa,
'Tis a dire and fatal plunge,
But we're sure the old man needs it.
(Willie, run and get the sponge.)
Grandpa's such a hale old fellow,
If he wasn't put away
He would still continue working
Twelve or fourteen hours a day.

Little Johnnie (such a bright boy!)
Runs a railroad and a bank;
Baby Jim conducts a journal,
And a senator is Frank.
Boys of sixteen, eighteen, twenty
Now direct the human race—
What's the use of having grandpa
Merely loafing round the place?

We are chloroforming grandpa—
Dont' you hear his feeble moan?
Grandpa is a nice old fellow
And its' sad to have him groan—
Shall we take him out, my brothers,
Ere he dies beneath the lid?
No! we've talked with Dr. Osler
And he says it must be did.

—WALLACE IRWIN, in Life.

His Accumulation.

Harper's Weekly: A friend of the late James McNeil Whistler saw him on the street in London, a few years ago, talking to a very ragged little newsboy. As he approached to speak to the artist, he noticed that the boy was as dirty a specimen of the London "Newsy" as he had ever encountered.

Whistler had just asked him a question and the boy answered:

"Yes, sir, I've been selling papers three years."

"How old are you?" inquired Whistler.

"Seven, sir."

"Oh, you must be more than that."

"No, sir, I ain't."

Then turning to his friend, who had overheard the conversation, Whistler said: "I don't think he could get that dirty in seven years, do you?"

His Idea of Gems.

Boston Herald: In a schoolroom the first primary grade was listening to the teacher reading a description of Columbus' first voyage to America. The history was written in words of one syllable.

The teacher reads: "Queen Isabella sold her gems to help Columbus."

"Now children," she said, "who can tell me what gems are?"

Instantly Robert sprang to his feet, his hands waving frantically and his eyes flashing.

"Well, Robert," she said.

"Biscuits!" yelled Robert.

TROUBLE EXPECTED

Over Sub-Leasing of Osage Oil Lands.

Guthrie, O. T., April 3.—Frank Frantz, the rough rider captain, whom President Roosevelt named agent for the Osage Indians, is here, conferring with United States Attorney Horace Speed relative to expected trouble between the Illuminating Oil company, a branch of the Standard and its sub-lessees in the Osage reservation. The company recently secured a renewal blanket lease and with the beginning of the new year yesterday raised the rental on the sub-lease from $1 to $15 per acre. The sub-lessees are organizing for mutual protection and trouble is anticipated.

ENGINEERS HEAR GRAND CHIEF STONE

National Head of Locomotive Men Addresses Gathering at Lyceum.

Makes Deep and Favorable Impression on His Associates.

Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers from four states, together with their wives and families, crowded the Lyceum last evening to listen to the address of W. S. Stone, the grand chief of the order.

In addition to the address of the head of the brotherhood, the program last evening included several other speeches and a list of musical selections. It was the closing meeting of a two days' session of the brotherhood, which opened Saturday afternoon in the Elks' hall. The meeting Saturday, and the one held yesterday morning, were secret sessions of the order, held under the auspices of the lodges in Duluth, Superior, Ashland, Two Harbors and Proctor. Special trains were run on the two range roads yesterday to bring the wives and families of the engineers to the open meeting last evening.

W. S. STONE,
Grand Chief of Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The meeting was presided over by J. S. Brown of Proctor. Mayor Cullum in a brief and witty speech welcomed the visitors to the city.

"I won't apologize for the weather," said the mayor. "That is not the administration's fault, but is entirely the fault of the United States government. I have made vigorous protests on behalf of the city, hoping to secure weather that would be suitable for such a gathering, but they have had no effect."

Grand Chief Stone, who was the principal speaker of the evening, is a very direct, rapid and forceful speaker. He made an excellent impression by his evident earnestness and total lack of the arts of the demagogue.

"A labor leader is always supposed to talk on organized labor," he said, "and his speeches are thus always confined to one groove. But he could talk for hours on that subject and then only touch a few of the principal points. The history of labor is the history of the world. Everything in our modern civilization is the result of hard and unremitting toil.

"In ancient ages the workman had his position rigidly fixed either by law, custom or religion, and from that position he could never hope to rise. The history of those ages is composed of the doings and sayings of the kings and rulers. Of the vast multitude of men who lived, toiled and died we hear nothing.

"In early history the workmen were slaves. Later they were known as serfs, who enjoyed a certain amount of freedom in their private lives, but who were still chained to the soil.

"The history of organized labor begins with the gradual emancipation of the serf. The average workman has given up the dream of his childhood, that some day he will be rich. Instead of that he wants his reward given him now in the form of increased wages. Alone and unassisted he was unable to secure his just share, so he combined with his fellow workmen in the same craft to form a labor union. The idea that labor unions are unfriendly to the general public is not correct.

"There is no necessary strife between capital and labor nor between the capitalist and the laborer. Capital is saved and materialized.

"Many do not believe in labor unions, but labor unions have elevated the standard of living among the American workmen, have increased his efficiency, diminished accidents, and done much to alleviate the curse of child labor, one of the worst curses of modern civilization.

"The greed for gold takes the child of tender years, who should be in school or under his mother's care, robs him of his childhood, places him in the mine or the factory to work for long hours in the dirt and grime of the mines or the hot reeking air of the factories, and then dwarfed in mind and body it turns him out undersized, uneducated and stunted in morals to become a citizen of our country. The result is we are building more prisons, and jails and asylums and poor houses every year. How can you expect such a man to become a good citizen, he who does not know the meaning of the word 'liberty' or understand the first principles which the flag represents?

"There is nothing handicaps a boy or a girl in the fight for success, like the lack of an education. I may understand that word to mean something different from what others do. This world is full of men who can do many things poorly. The man who can do one thing well is the man who succeeds. Educate your boy to become a good citizen. You can't make a first-class man out of a fourth-class boy.

"Perhaps no one thing has done so much to place our country in the first rank of the nations of the world, as our railroads. We have 210,000 miles of railroad, employing 1,250,000 men, and furnishing support through other allied industries to over 7,000,000 people.

"Our order was founded in 1863, when twelve men met in Detroit and determined to form an association to better their condition. From that it grew until we now have 676 sub-divisions and 49,000 men. The success is due to the fact that the order is founded on right principles. We have tried to make the golden rule our motto. Ninety per cent of the best engineers in the United States, Canada and Mexico belong to the order. We try to give to the 172 railroads with which we have contracts honest, sober and competent engineers, on whom the companies and the public can rely. Next to this, our success is due to the untiring efforts of that great labor leader, who for thirty years was at the head of our order, E. M. Arthur.

"If I could have my wish it would be to have you all live the lives of good men, Christian men, if you please. It doesn't matter what creed or faith you hold, if you live up to it. There is no class of men who should live better lives than the engineers. No one of us who goes out on a trip ever knows if he will return. The question for you then is, are you living your religion 365 days in the year."

Previous to the address of Mr. Stone, Heber McHugh of Superior spoke on the idealism of toil. He took his subject from Edwin Markham's poem, "The Man With the Hoe."

"To the man who has no aspirations life and toil are a continual drudgery," he said, "but in so far as he enjoys his labor and throws around it a halo of idealism, every moment he works is one of joy."

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney also gave a short address, in which he spoke highly of the engineers, stating that they are a class of men who stand high in the opinion of the outside world.

The program also included a number of excellent musical selections by Flaaten's orchestra, a piano duet by the Misses Morton, a vocal duet by Miss McGraw and Mr. Bonham, a piano solo by Miss Cotter, a vocal solo by Master Mitchell, two selections by a young men's quartet, a song and recitation by Master Perkins, a vocal solo by Miss Goodman, and a violin solo by Mrs. Vinson. All of the numbers showed excellent amateur talent, and the two young boys received an enthusiastic reception.

A DAREDEVIL RIDE often ends in a sad accident. To heal accidental injuries, use Bucklen's Arnica Salve. "A deep wound in my foot, from an accident," writes Theodore Schuele, of Columbus, O., "caused me great pain. Physicians were helpless, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly healed it." Soothes and heals burns like magic. 25c at all druggists.

manding that this schedule be restored to the basis of 1903. It will probably be a day or two yet before agreements are concluded but there is no reason to anticipate other than a satisfactory outcome.

It is extremely interesting to note in connection with the ore trade that the Pittsburg Steamship company has notified the owners of the 10,000-ton boats that they cannot expect to get cargoes of 10,000 tons of a single run of ore. The result of this announcement is that two bulkheads are now being constructed on the steamer J. C. Wallace giving her three compartments of over 3,300 tons carrying capacity each. Her cargo hold is 407 feet long and, like the Wolvin, was of continuous construction, that is, it was an uninterrupted open space from engine room to deck house. The conditions which have operated to make this decision imperative is the problem of unloading the ore at the furnace. A cargo of 10,000 tons of ore would fill 225 railroad cars. Each furnace uses from seven to eight kinds of ore and the storage yard is so arranged as to accommodate the unloading of not more than twenty-five cars at each separate pit at once. To unload 225 cars would, therefore require nine shifts and the necessary maneuvering would result in the serious delay of other trains. For this reason the steel corporation will not attempt to handle 10,000 tons of a single kind of ore at once.

Some very striking facts are contained in the report which Dennis Sullivan has drawn up for the Chicago River Improvement association. There has been a falling off in interest on the part of the people of Chicago in the improvement of the Chicago river, due in part undoubtedly to the fact that the tunnel question is now regarded as practically settled. It is true that the river is in much better shape now for navigation than it was five years ago, but the situation of the city of Chicago in its relation to lake trade is nevertheless an alarming one. During the past few years the commerce of the lakes has grown with such amazing strides that the facilities offered by Chicago as a port are inadequate to care for it. Ten years ago almost all of the large ships could enter Chicago harbor and river and were limited in their draught only by the tunnels. Today the largest vessels on the lakes cannot get through Rush street bridge owing to the narrowness of the draw, and some of them, owing to their draught, cannot navigate the river at all. Ten years ago the largest vessel on the lakes did not exceed 350 feet in length and 45 feet in beam. Today the larger ships are from 545 feet to 569 feet in length and from 55 feet to 60 feet in beam. With this great increase in the size of vessels every center pier bridge becomes an obstruction to navigation. The city of Milwaukee has been wise in providing that the navigable draw in every bridge in that city shall not be less than 75 feet in width, yet the city of Chicago has draws less than 55 feet.

Statistics show that the enormous decline of commerce of the Chicago river is not offset by the tonnage at South Chicago, as the total for the two harbors in 1904 is less than that of the Chicago harbor alone in 1899. The trade of Duluth increased from 6,525,351 tons in 1895 to 17,966,718 tons in 1903 and the tonnage of Sault Ste. Marie canal increased from 10,796,572 tons in 1893 to 25,961,146 tons in 1902. These figures are especially significant when it is considered that from 1889 to 1904 the population of Chicago has more than doubled; that during this period the deepening of the channel of the lakes has brought large ships into being, reducing materially the cost per ton of carriage by water and notwithstanding these improvements in general, the waterborne commerce of Chicago has declined nearly 50 per cent in these fifteen years.

It is expected that the Steel corporation will place orders for 75,000 tons of merchant iron during the coming week. In a general way iron and steel conditions in the West are without appreciable change. Except in one or two products buying is light, the market being keyed up to its high-strung condition by the extraordinarily heavy volume of specifications. This condition is most marked in the demand for heavy products and agricultural works materials. Makers of steel bars are literally swamped with requests for quick deliveries from implement manufacturers whose season has opened this year earlier than usual, which they are wholly unable to meet and are falling behind in deliveries. A like condition exists among manufacturers of wire products. The mild weather that has prevailed during March has stimulated the spring buying of fencing materials, and the demand for these is continually to the full capacity of mills. Structural steel cannot be shipped within three to four months from the date of placing order, while on plates the Western producer has practically withdrawn from the market. No diminution is noted in the demand for heavy rails. During the week past the Chicago mill turned over to the Carnegie Steel company orders for nearly 30,000 tons, in addition to booking 10,000 tons which it was compelled to accept by reason of having previously bid on this lot. The buying of light rails is improving, though prices are neither strong nor uniform.

RAIN WILL STOP

With Close of Monday and Sun Will Again Shine.

Ice Closes the Superior Entry—Moving About In Bay.

Forecaster Richardson reported today that 74-100ths of an inch of rain fell up to this morning, and that more showers may be expected today, with probable snow flurries tonight. After that, however, fair weather is scheduled to smile upon Duluth, and it will begin tomorrow, and possibly—remotely, of course, but possibly—today. Tomorrow morning Mr. Richardson feels sure that he will be able to switch off this bad weather and turn on the shine tank. The wind will continue to blow from the northeast though, and this will keep the ice at this end of the lake.

The ice in the lake today is backed along Minnesota Point and the south shore, so that the Superior entry to the harbor is closed up. The Duluth entry is open, and so is the lake leading to and from this entry. The ice in the bay is moving about restlessly, as though it knows its finish is near, and Mr. Richardson says he believes boats can navigate through it up into St. Louis bay if they care to. The thermometer is keeping slightly above the freezing point, but may possibly get below it tonight, which will make very little difference, however, as the thermometer will rise again tomorrow and will do things to the ice.

The tug Record bucked the ice Saturday, as announced in The Herald. The tug got as far as Howard's pocket and rammed the congealed ice there for a while, but the ice was too heavy and the tug quit for the present. The object was to release the tug Islay, for use in getting to and from the vessels anchored up in the bay. The tug Zenith of the Great Lakes Towing company will be put in commission today and will begin towing about the harbors tomorrow, taking boats to the elevators and ore docks for loading. No word has been received from the Soo for a few days, and nothing therefore is known about navigation conditions there. All vesselmen are anxiously awaiting news from this vital point in the artery of traffic, hoping to hear of an early opening of the river.

John F. Hayes, chief engineer of the Wolvin line, is back from a visit to the lower lake ports. He says chances for an early opening are good, and that fitting of boats is about complete.

LITTLE BOY BLUE

His Mother Blows His Horn.

A lady living in Illinois writes about food to a friend whose little girl has a delicate stomach, and we are privileged to quote from her letter:

"The best way to advise you in little Bessie's case is, I feel, to tell you what I did for my little Boy Blue. He was, like your daughter, very fond of white bread, potatoes and the usual food of the everyday table. His appetite seemed good and he ate freely, but, like little Bessie, he didn't seem to get the proper amount of nourishment out of his food, was puny in body and, lacking strength, was peevish and half sick most of the time.

"I was very much worried about him, because I couldn't find the right sort of food for him—the ordinary breakfast foods didn't seem to answer. At last, a few months ago, I determined to try Grape-Nuts. I confess I was almost in despair, and had but little hope that it would prove any better than the other prepared foods.

"The result was most surprising. Boy Blue took to the Grape-Nuts food and it did him good from the beginning. He has gained steadily in weight, strength and good spirits, and has taken on a complexion like a wild rose. His eyes fairly dance with health and happiness—his peevishness is all gone.

"Then husband and I both began to to eat Grape-Nuts food, and with the best of results. He finds it especially beneficial as a brain food. You know that one with his sedentary habits needs something specially adapted to such conditions—much nourishment in small bulk. He finds it in Grape-Nuts food, and he says he does better work since he began to eat it than ever before.

"Give your baby Grape-Nuts and I'll guarantee the results." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

WOODSMAN DROPS DEAD

Expires Suddenly While Seated In House Near Floodwood.

While seated in Cumberland's house about two miles from Floodwood, Sakaris Ivala, a woodsman about 65 years of age, fell from his chair to the floor and when picked up by his companions was dead.

Ivala had just handed his last nickel to his friend, August Wuotila, who was starting for town, and requested that he purchase some tobacco for him. A minute later he fell dead.

Ivala had been employed by William Cumberland, a tie contractor. He had been in Floodwood Friday, and is said to have been drinking heavily.

The body was brought to Duluth yesterday by Durkan & Crawford, and was viewed by Coroner McCuen last evening. A post mortem will be held today to determine the cause of death, which was probably heart failure brought on by excessive drinking.

Ferry Car Is Again Running on Schedule.

Running as smoothly as a Pullman car, and with no sign of any jarring motion, the ferry car yesterday commenced its regular trips again, after the drum had been adjusted to the satisfaction of the engineers.

A regular ten-minute schedule was maintained throughout the afternoon and evening, and large crowds were attracted to the bridge in spite of the unfavorable weather conditons.

TAXPAYERS MAKE A KICK

Virginia Citizens Object to Tax Levy For Library.

Some of the taxpayers at Virginia strenuously object to being taxed $1,000 a year for the maintenance of a public library to be erected from a $10,000 donation by Andrew Carnegie, and have taken steps through Judge J. M. Martin of that city, to enjoin the city council from proceeding any further in the matter.

The application for the restraining order was made by Patrick Coffey of Virginia, and it is directed toward the City of Virginia, Mayor M. L. Fay, the city council and the library board.

Judge Ensign granted a temporary restraining order on the application, and a hearing will be had Saturday of this week.

Judge Martin says there is in existence at Virginia, a petition signed by fifty-six taxpayers, requesting the city council to submit the tax levy proposition to a vote of the people. He claims that under the law the council must respect the petition and cannot arbitrarily go ahead and make the levy.

OLD RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

Captain William Osborn Succumbs to Chronic Bright's Disease.

Capt. William Osborn of Park Point died at 10:30 o'clock last evening at St. Mary's hospital, of Bright's disease.

Capt. Osborn was 58 years of age at the time of his death. He has lived in Duluth since 1884, coming here from Stratford, Ont. For a time after coming to the Head of the lakes, he was employed as a fisherman, but later invented a sand scow which effected a great saving of time in handling material, and at the time of his death was engaged in operating scows constructed under his patent.

He is survived by his wife, two sons and several brothers and sisters. The sons are Arthur S. and Robert L. Osborn. Three brothers, Samson, Frank and John live in Bay City, and Robert, formerly of Duluth, now lives in Portland, Or. The sisters are Mrs. H. Hamilton of Iowa City, Mrs. Matilda Hall of Portland, and Mrs. Jeremiah Robbins of Bay City.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from St. Paul's Episcopal church at 2:30 o'clock, and the body will be shipped to Bay City for burial.

Many of the dead man's friends viewed the body for the last time today, as it lay in Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms. Capt. Osborn was a member of the A. O. U. W. lodge, No. 10, and was at one time president of the Duluth Fishermen's association.

CURLERS TO DINE.

Annual Meeting of the Duluth Curling Club.

The curlers will dine this evening at the Commercial club, and following the banquet will hold their regular annual meeting to discuss plans for the coming year.

The banquet will begin at 6:15 o'clock, and following it addresses will be made by Mayor Cullum, President W. E. Magner, Rev. T. H. Cleland and Rev. H. S. Webster.

The presentation of trophies will follow, and at 8 o'clock the business meeting will begin

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM — Tuesday and Wednesday, Creatore's Band.

DONNA TROY COMPANY.

This evening at the Metropolitan, the Donna Troy company will open for a number of popular plays. This evening the bill will be "A Desperate Crime," a play that is said to be of great interest and that never fails to please. Vaudeville stunts will be presented between the acts and the performance will be a continuous one. The company is said to be a very capable one.

CREATORE'S BAND.

Creatore and his Italian band, who have been visiting the Pacific coast, will stop in this city on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week to give concerts at the Lyceum on those evenings, with a matinee on Wednesday. On these occasions Sig. Sodero, the Neapolitan harpist, will assist in solos of peculiar merit. Creatore and his musicians are too well-known here to demand any lengthy description or comment. They have never failed to give enjoyable entertainments wherever they have appeared, and have always left a profound and satisfying impression upon their audiences—an impression which has proven a veritable education to thousands of those who either know music thoroughly, or who would if they could.

THE EXPERIENCE OF ARCTIC EXPLORERS.

The experience of men taking part in that most hazardous and fatiguing work, Arctic exploration, has proven that the use of alcoholic stimulants retards and makes more difficult the work of exploration. Those men who do not touch liquor on the expeditions are the ones who outlast those who depend upon it for that false strength which afterwards leaves them weaker than before. It is also true that in the treatment of disease or in strengthening the constitution, purifying the blood and rendering the body impervious to the attack of disease germs it is best to take a safe remedy which is guaranteed to contain neither alcohol nor deleterious drugs. An alcoholic remedy stimulates the appetite and the brain but usually leaves the body weaker than before and most susceptible to outside germ attacks. That is why Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the very best blood purifier and spring tonic that is made. Dr. Pierce does not believe in alcohol and guarantees that his "Golden Medical Discovery" for the blood, stomach and lungs does not contain a particle of alcohol or other harmful ingredients. On the other hand it contains the virtues of medicinal plants grown in this country. Dr. Pierce's laboratory where this medicine is made is open for inspection to the public. It is most carefully run by experienced chemists and physicians.

A visit is worth while if only to witness the excellent methods by which each applicant for aid, whether he be correspondent or a patient at the hospital, receives the care of eminent specialists in medicine and surgery.

When these things may be personally inspected it must be acknowledged by even the most skeptical that the "patent medicine" businesses are not frauds but distinct advancements in medical science.

A RECOMMENDATION BY A CITIZEN.

"I feel that I owe my good health to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Samuel Caldwell, Ex-Sheriff of Erie County (now in Department of Public Works), of No. 43 Spruce Street, Buffalo, N. Y. "I had a bad liver and did not improve under the physician's care. Was distressed with heart-burn, stomach was weak, nauseated, could not eat any rich food and was very wretched. I am happy to state that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery entirely cured me. I wish to state also that I shall always recommend your Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, for I know of many very obstinate cases that have been made to yield to your very skillful treatment."

"I feel it my duty to write you as I have received so much benefit from the use of your medicines," says Mrs. R. Sando, of Elon, Iowa. "I was troubled with torpid liver, indigestion, and nervous prostration, for about eighteeen months and lost strength so that I was unable to do my work. Consulted several doctors but without receiving help. They advised me to have an operation for gall stone, which I thought would be the very last step that I would take. I then sat down and wrote to you for advice, some five or six months ago, and have since been taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Can now say I am well and able to do all my work, besides doing lots of weaving. In the last two months I have woven about four hundred yards of carpet and feel now that I will keep on with it as I like the weaving business so well. I took only eight bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

"I will be glad if I can say anything to those who are suffering as I did."

Given away. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. The book contains 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations and several colored plates. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-bound book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

RESIGNATION OF INSPECTOR

Who Made a Loan From the Storey Cotton Company.

Philadelphia, April 3.—George C. Holden, the inspector in the United States postal service, attached to the inspection division, who admitted that the Storey Cotton company, most of whose officers are fugitives from justice, advanced $1,100 to him as a loan for a few days, has sent his resignation to Washington. Holden declared that he received the money and paid it back a few days later without any understanding or agreement with the Storey company that he was to protect the company against investigation by the postoffice department. He, however, admitted that in accepting the loan from the company he was indiscreet, and thought it best, in view of the revelations in the case, to send his resignation to the postal authorities.

The discovery that Holden had received a loan from the Storey Commission company was made Thursday, but not made public until Saturday night. A record of the loan was made while Assistant District Attorneys Stuart and Swartley of this city were making an examination of the defaulting officers for the purpose of gathering further evidence against Stanley Francis, who is under arrest charged with being an officer of the concern. The loan was entered in the general cash book, and read:

April 29, 1902—George Holden, $1,100.

When the entry was shown Holden he was greatly surprised to find that it had been entered on the books.

He believes, he said, that the loan was placed on the books to do him injury. Since the loan was made, he says, he has sent three separate reports to Washington recommending that fraud orders be issued against the Storey concern.

Inspector Holden last night, in an interview, told how he came to accept the loan from Storey. He said he had been sent to the offices of the Storey Cotton company to make an investigation as the result of a complaint. While there he met Storey. Holden was about to leave the office when, in conversation with Storey, he (Holden) incidentally mentioned that he had to go out and raise some money quickly to tide himself over in a stock transaction. Storey told him he would lend him the money, and Holden replied that he could not accept a loan, as he might have to investigate the company at a future time. Storey, holden says, assured him that the company was doing a legitimate business, and that he would never again have occasion to look into the affairs of the concern. Storey insisted, he said, in helping him out, and Holden finally accepted the draft. Holden says he realized a few minutes later that he had acted indiscreetly, and made every effort to pay the loan back as quickly as he could. This he did in a few days.

The Philadelphia Record says that Inspector Holden declares that Harrison J. Barrett, formerly of the department of justice, Washington, and nephew of the late James Tyner, who was involved in the postoffice scandals, was the attorney for the Storey Cotton company while he was actually connected with the department of justice. Asked if it was true, as Holden contends, that Barrett was responsible for the failure of the postoffice department to issue a fraud order against the Storey company, and that he was their lawyer, United States Assistant District Attorney said last night:

"I can only say the investigation into the Storey affairs and the discovery of certain papers seems to partially bear out that contention. I know what he got."

FEARED HE IS DROWNED

Edward Decker, Jr., Disappears From Pere Marquette Ferryboat.

Algoma, Wis., April 3.—Edward Decker, Jr., of this city, mysteriously disappeared while en route from Ludington to Manitowoc Saturday night, on the Pere Marquette ferry, No. 18. It is supposed he was accidentally drowned. The last seen of Mr. Decker was when the boat was about fifteen or twenty miles out of port. He complained of sick headache, took a powder to relieve him, and retired to his stateroom. Charles Schau, his companion on the trip, on going to the smoking room as the boat neared Manitowoc, attempted to call Mr. Decker, but receiving no response, called the steward, and entering the stateroom found Mr. Decker's hat, cuffs and grip, but no trace of Mr. Decker. It is presumed he stepped to the boat's rail to obtain fresh air, and becoming faint, fell overboard and was drowned.

Mr. Decker practically was the head of the Decker financial interests in this region, which consists of some eight banking houses and two newspapers, the Green Bay Advocate and the Algoma Record, several manufacturing concerns and railroad interests. He was 33 years old and had held a number of offices.

DROP IN PRICE.

Coal Is 50 Cents Cheaper Than Last Month.

There has been the usual drop in the price of coal, beginning April 1. Anthracite has fallen off 50 cents a ton. Egg, stove and nut have been selling at $7.75, and the price is now $7.25. There is a corresponding drop in the price of cargo pea. It is supposed that this low price will prevail during the month of April, although the coal men have not yet been notified that there will be a raise in price May 1. For several years the price has advanced at the rate of 10 cents a month, beginning May 1, until Sept. 1. This will bring the coal up to the winter price again.

DRY STOCK SCARCE

Lumber Companies Have Cleaned Up Their Miscellaneous Sorts.

Last Sales Aggregated In Neighborhood of 4,000,000 Feet.

The larger part of the remaining stock of dry lumber at the Head of the Lakes has been cleaned out and there is said to remain a few thousand feet of miscellaneous sorts scattered here and there at the various sawing plants. The last sales were made by the Merrill & Ring company and aggregated about 4,000,000 feet, much of the good lumber in these being taken by the Red Cliff Lumber company. No important sales of lumber are said to be underway at the present time.

Owing to the large amount of extension work that is being planned throughout the Northwest by rival telephone companies, this season, there is said to be prospects of an unusually good demand for poles, and dealers in that class of business are hustling in their efforts to get control of big stocks. The tie market is also said to be stronger than for some time owing to a great deal of new construction work planned this year.

The ruins and warm weather are fast putting the ice in the upper bay in condition for an early breakup this spring, when the sawmills will get busy. Repairs are said to have been practically completed and the mills are ready to start as soon as the ice goes out.

John Edblom has started up a small sawmill at Rice River, near the town of Ashawa. The mill has a capacity of about 10,000 feet per day and its product is for local consumption by the settlers going into that part of the country. It is the first interior mill plant to be started along the line of the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road.

The Duluth & Iron Range road has practically completed its log hauling business for the season, with the exception of a few logs that come to it off the Duluth & Northern Minnesota road. As soon as the ore hauling traffic starts up the Iron Range road ceases log hauling over its main line as the ore traffic needs all its facilities. The road has been doing a big log hauling business this past winter, though not quite up to its highest record mark. Besides the logs, it has handled an immense amount of mine timbers, pulpwood, ties, cordwood, and other timber.

One of the buyers of cutover land of the Alexander & Edgar Lumber company at Iron River, has been in Duluth and Cloquet, this past week in conference with the Turpentine Manufacturing company in reference to putting in a plant at Iron River.

It is said that some of the Northern Minesota logging contractors were just able to pull through their contracts within the last few weeks, by dint of night hauling from the skids. Where this method was employed the crews slept during the day and began work about six o'clock in the evening when the atmosphere fell to the freezing point. Snow was then hauled on the roads and the log hauling went forward all night.

The Edward Hines Lumber company has bought the season's cut of the two mills owned and operated by N. Ludington Lumber companl, at Marinette, Wis. The quantity of lumber involved in the deal was about 70,000,000 feet, valued at $1,500,000. This is said to be the biggest trade yet effected for 1905 lumber product. The lumber will be handled to the East by both water and rail routes.

The Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company, at Scanlon, is said to be contemplating the extension of its logging road, the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota line, to New Duluth with a view of having a point where it can deliver its product at the docks for lake shipment. The St. Louis river is navigable to lumber boats to New Duluth.

Reports from the upper Mississippi river district indicate a very low stage of water for this time of the year and the boom companies are much concerned. Low water means a tedious undertaking to get the logs down to Minneapolis mills. A rise in water cannot be brought about from any other source as the snow has melted. The boom companies will have to depend now on the spring rains.

TO BANQUET COL. GRAVES

Two Banquets Before He Leaves For His New Post.

Before leaving Duluth for Washington Col. C. H. Graves, who was recently appointed minister to Norway and Sweden, will be tendered two congratulatory banquets at the Commercial club, the first by local business men and friends next Saturday evening, April 8, and the second by Duluth Scandinavians, Friday, evening, April 14. He will leave for the East Monday, April 17, and will sail for Stockholm April 27 from New York.

For neither banquet has the program been fully arranged as yet, but it is known that there will be a number of prominent speakers in attendance. For the second function it is already known that United States Senator Knute Nelson, Fred W. Lonegren, Hon. Joseph B. Cotton and John J. Moe will be speakers. A program committee consisting of Prof. K. A. Ostergren, N. A. Linderberg, C. W. Ericsson and Jens Flaaten has been appointed. The general arrangement committee for the same affair is made up of the following men: Dr. J. J. Eklund, John Brandt, E. G. Swanstrom, H. B. Knudsen, Prof. K. A Osctergren, Jens Flaaten, C. W. Eriésson, Odin Halden, J. J. Wagenstein, Dr. J. M. O'Tufte, Otto Gafvert, Gust Bergquist, Thomas Olafson, J. W. Nelson, C. F. W. Hegg, O N. Lundberg and N. A. Linderberg.

Judge Cant Makes Order In Shea Damage Case.

At the conclusion of the argument on the motion of the Cloquet Lumber company to have set aside the $3,000 verdict verdict rendered against it in favor of W. H. Shea, and a new trial granted, Judge Cant made an order Saturday afternoon, granting the motion unless Mr. Shea will accept judgment for $1,200.

In three trials of his suit for damages for alleged malicious prosecution, Mr. Shea has received successive verdicts in the sums of $4,500, $4,000 and $3,000, the court, by the last order holding the amount assessed by the jury to have been also excessive.

SETTLEMENT IS NOW SOUGHT

M. W. McDonald Again a Litigant In District Court.

M. W. McDonald, has brought two suits in district court against C. A. Smith, a wealthy Minneapolis lumberman and a partner of the former in the pine and iron land business, for a division of interests. Mr. McDonald claims a half interest in all the company's pine land, wild land and certain iron lands, some of which are said to be of great value. One of the suits relates to the lease of the Iroquis iron mine at Mountain Iron, Minn. Mr. McDonald claims a large interesct in this lease, which is now controlled by Rogers, Brown & Company, of Buffalo. Mr. Smith is said to claim one half of McDonald's interest in this lease.

In a statement made Saturday Mr. McDonald is quoted as saying that he placed the Iroquois company with a company of men representing himself, Mr. Smith being one of the corporation, Smith and his friends acquiring 250 shares of the stock and a controlling interest. Mr. McDonald claims that he owns every share of this stock and a half interest in certain pine, wild and iron lands, but that Smith has no interest in the McDonald holdings in the lease of the Iroquois, nor any share in the interests in the Chemung, Bliss or Twins properties. Mr. McDonald says his individual iron land interests are held by the Blue Ore Mining company and it is this company that is suing Mr. Smith.

The second suit, Mr. McDonald says, is to compel Mr. Smith to turn over to him the half interest in the other departments of the partnership business, to which McDonald claims to be entitled. The partnership business covered a period of seven years and the transactions in pine lands alone are said to have been not less than $500,000.

Mr. McDonald says that Mr. Smith owns with himself, a half interest in the Nelson-McDonald property west of Hibbing, also that a has a large interest in the Moose mine and a half interest in the Decree property.

We Offer $5,000

As a Guarantee on Liquozone. The First Bottle is Free.

A great deal is said in these days about Liquozone.

Millions are telling of the good it has done; for one home in five—wherever you go—has some one whom Liquozone has cured.

This remarkable product has become the talk of the world. In the past two years the sick of nine nations have come to employ it.

But so great a good could not be done to humanity without harming the interests of a few.

The consumption of medicine has immensely decreased. The popularity of the few physicians who cling solely to drugs has diminished. And in numberless homes where Liquozone is in daily use, sickness has been almost banished.

These facts have injured some interests. And a few of the injured—to serve a selfish interest—seek to disparage that which has done the good.

The usual method is to insinuate that Liquozone itself is a medicine; that, despite our claims, it is a compound of acids and drugs.

Such statements are oft repeated; and we cannot doubt that some are led to believe them.

Our answer to all is this:

The virtues of Liquozone are derived solely from gas, by a process requiring immense apparatus and from 8 to 14 days' time. The gas is made, in large part, from the best oxygen producers.

Nothing whatever enters into the product, save the gas and the liquid used to absorb it, plus a touch of color.

And, to emphasize this answer, we offer $5,000 to any one who can disprove it.

In this business, methods which are subject to criticism are most carefully avoided. We permit no misrepresentation; no claims which have not been fulfilled. Our product is too vital to humanity to be laid open to prejudice.

What we say about Liquozone is true. What we claim it can do has, again and again, been done. And in any disease which we claim that Liquozone will help, we assume the whole risk on a two-months' test with every patient who asks it.

Before we bought the rights to Liquozone, it had been tested for years in thousands of the most difficult cases obtainable. We found that diseases which had resisted medicine for years yielded at once to it. Sickness which had been pronounced incurable was cured.

The value of the product was placed beyond possible question, before we staked our fortunes and reputations on it. It was amply proved that, in germ troubles, Liquozone did what medicine could not do.

Then we gave the product away—gave millions of bottles, one to each of millions of sick ones.

We have published no testimonials; no evidence of cures. We have never asked a soul to buy it.

Our method has been to buy the first bottle ourselves; to let the sick try it without the cost of a penny; to let the product itself prove its power.

Most of you know the result. There is no neighborhood—no hamlet so remote—but knows some wonders which Liquozone has wrought.

And Liquozone is probably doing more to cure sickness, and to prevent it, than all drugs, all medicines combined.

How petty is that self-interest which would have you go back to the old methods—to the days before Liquozone! Back to the time when the very cause of disease was unknown, or when no one knew how to meet it!

What Liquozone Is.

The greatest value of Liquozone lies in its germicidal powers. It is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill.

Yet it is absolutely harmless to the human body. Not only harmless, but helpful in the extreme. Even a well person feels its instant benefit.

Liquozone is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be given internally. Medicine is almost helpless in dealing with inside germs.

But germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—the very life of an animal—is deadly to vegetal matter. This fact—above all others—gives Liquozone its value. There is no other way to directly end the cause of any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. Nearly all forms of all these diseases have been traced to germs, or to poisons which germs create.

These are the diseases to which medicine does not apply, for drugs cannot kill inside germs. All that medicine can do is to act as a tonic, aiding Nature to overcome the germs. But those results are indirect and uncertain. The sick cannot afford to rely on them. And no one needs to now.

Liquozone alone can destroy the cause of these troubles. It goes wherever the blood goes, so no germ can escape it. The results are almost inevitable. We have seen them so often in every disease in this list that we have come to rely on them. Liquozone has proved itself so certain that in any stage of any of these diseases, we will gladly send to any patient who asks it an absolute guaranty.

All diseases that begin with fever—all inflammation—all catarrh—all contagious diseases—all the results of impure or poisoned blood.

In nervous debility Liquozone acts as a vitalizer, accomplishing what no drugs can do.

50c Bottle Free.

The way to know Liquozone, if you have never tried it, is to ask for a bottle free. We will then send you an order on a local druggist for a full-size bottle—a 50c bottle—and will pay the druggist ourselves for it. This applies only to the first bottle, of course—to those who have never used it.

The acceptance of this offer places you under no obligations. We simply wish to convince you; to let the product itself show you what it can do. Then you can judge by results as to whether you wish to continue.

This offer itself should convince you that Liquozone does as we clam. We would certainly not buy a bottle, and give it to you, if there was any doubt of results. You want those results; you want to be well and to keep well. Then be fair with yourself; accept our offer today. Let us show you, at our expense, what this wonderful product means to you.

SERIOUS RIOTS AT WARSAW

Four Killed and About Forty Wounded During Demonstrations.

Warsaw, April 3.—A serious conflict occurred at 7:30 o'clock last evening in Dzika street, where a Jewish Socialist society, known as the Bukiw had organized a demonstration. The troops were called to disperse the gathering and fired into the crowd, killing four persons and wounding forty others. Other disturbances are reported to have occurred.

The street had been patrolled throughout the day, the authorities having anticipated trouble. Conditions here are causing much uneasiness and nervousness.

The trouble in Dzika street began when under the pretext of holding a memorial meeting for a late Jewish Socialist leader, a crowd of more than 1,000, mostly Jews, carrying red flags, marched into Dzika street and was met by a mixed police and military patrol of twenty men.

The police declare the Socialists fired shots from revolvers at them, the leaders inciting the mob to attack the patrol, which thereupon fired several volleys into the crowd. The crowd removed all but nine of the wounded, two of whom were women. These were taken to the hospital. It is expected that several of the wounded will die. The dead and wounded were all Jews. The police made many arrests.

Hand printed proclamations have been found in the streets warning the public against walking near government buildings and other places as bombs would be thrown in these places.

Several parents whose children are attending school in defiance of the school strike, have been warned by letter to withdraw their children as the school buildings would be blown up.

Representatives of the party of violence (it is not quite clear whether they are Revolutionists or Socialists) are visiting private persons and levying contributions for "ammunition."

They produce lists of names with the amounts to be collected from each and request their contributor to sign his name opposite these assessments, which range from $2.50 to $50.

When Governor General Maximovitch arrived here ten days ago to assume his official duties, he ordered that the Cossack detachment meeting at the station be retired, saying he did not require an escort. Driving through the city yesterday, however, the governor general's carriage was surrounded by twenty Cossacks.

Governor General Maximovitch received them in the most friendly manner, and talked with them on various subjects freely.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The jury in the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Morrison, charged with the murder of Richard Flanegan near Butte on June 23, 1904, brought in a verdict of manslaughter Sunday and recommended that she be sentenced to serve three years in the state penitentiary at Deer Lodge.

Four men were killed and Freight Engineer Reed was fatally injured Sunday in a head-on collision between the through freight and fast passenger train on the Southern Railway, near Badham, S. C. It is asserted that Freight Engineer Reed's watch was thirty minutes slow and that this was the cause of the wreck.

A series of forest fires in the suburbs of Baltimore almost encircled the city with flames, the territory to the north only being exempt. In several cases there was considerable damage done to handsome estates.

A Slavish christening resulted in a tragedy Sunday at Jamison mine, No. 2, at Latrobe, Pa. M. Kalifosky is dead and several other men are in a critical condition. The festivities started Saturday night and ended Sunday afternoon in a general riot.

Jockey Otto Wonderly, who was thrown from a horse at the race track at Memphis Saturday died Sunday after an operation in a local hospital. The young man's skull was fractured and a blood clot developed on the brain.

THE TUNNEL IS BLESSED

First Trains Pass Through the Great Simplon Cut.

Rome, April 3.—The Simplon tunnel, the longest in the world, was inaugurated yesterday morning and from the Swiss and Italian sides the first trains passed through, meeting at the center, where there was the iron door which originally prevented the overflow of a torrent of hot water, and which was yesterday opened for the first time. The weather at the entrance to the tunnel was springlike, though the surrounding mountains were covered with snow; but once inside, the temperature became very high. Engineer Brandau, who had directed the work on the tunnel, conducted the Italian train, which part of the way was lighted by miners with lanterns. The train from the Italian end was the first to reach the iron door, but a little later the train from the Swiss end was heard on the other side of the door. There was a brief time spent in communicating through the door by means of hammering and finally the door was knocked down amidst frantic applause and cries of, "long live Switzerland," and "long live Italy;" bands played the Italian royal march and the Swiss anthem, and the two parties embraced and kissed each other. Engineer Brandau shook hands with Engineer Rosemund, the director of the work on the Swiss side, and the Italian Bishop Noveara embraced the Swiss Bishop Sion. The latter then preached a short sermon, in the course of which he said: "The church blesses progress." In the name of God, he then blessed the tunnel.

TENDENCY OF GOVERNMENT

Is "Back to the People," Says William J. Bryan.

Des Moines, April 3.—"Back to the people' is the phrase that best describes the tendency that is manifesting itself in the nation and in most of the states," said William J. Bryan Saturday night in an address at the Jefferson banquet of Iowa Democrats.

"For years the tendency was toward corporate domination," he continued, "and the voice of the people grew weaker and weaker in comparison with the influence of money, but the tide has changed and we see evidence everywhere of a determination on the part of the masss to assert themselves in the management of the parties and in the conduct of the government."

In support of these statements Mr. Bryan cited the agitation in favor of primary laws in Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota and elswhere, the recent action of the Kansas legislature in defying the Standard Oil company and the general agitation in favor of government regulation and control of railroad rates. Continuing, Mr. Bryan said:

"This tendency to restore to the people their lost rights and to put them in possession of their own affairs is not going to stop with the trust question or with the railroad question. It will extend to every issue.

"When applied to the tariff question it will put an end to the system that has been in vogue for a quarter of a century, under which the manufacturers have been permitted to write the schedules and determine the amount of the collections that they must take from the people through the operation of high tariff laws. The application of this principle will bring together the capitalist and the laborer.

"Even the financial question, which has not only been overshadowed by the question of monopoly, but has lessened in importance by the increased volume of money—this question also will feel the impulse of the movement back to the people.' The doctrine that a few financiers can safely be permitted to dictate the financial policy of the nationn will be overthrownn with the overthrow of the doctrine that railroad magnates can safely be allowed to control the traffic of the nation, or trust magnates the industries of the country.

"The Democratic position is being vindicated, and the Democrats face the future with hope and courage. The last election proved the folly of the attempt to make the Democratic party a conservative party or a competitor with the Republican party for the favor of the trusts and syndicates. The aggressive and progressive element—the radical element, if you please, of the Democratic party is again in control of the party. The Democratic party is again united, and it is united upon the basis of a forward movement.

"As today organized, the Republican party is under the control of the corporations. The reform element in the party is protesting and demanding that this leadership shall be overthrown.

"Public sentiment is gradually crystallizing to the proposition that the people have a right to have what they want in government, and this, I need not tell you, is the Democratic position. To deny either the capacity of the people for self-government or the right of the people to regulate their own affairs and to deal with all questions that concern them is treason to our theory of government, and this treason is about to be rebuked by a revival of faith in the people."

ANDERSEN'S CENTENARY IS BEING CELEBRATED.

Copenhagen, April 3.—Hans Christian Andersen's centenary is being celebrated throughout Denmark under royal patronage. Several foreign countries have sent delegates to Odense, the birthplace of Andersen. Foreign Minister Levetzau gave a grand fete Saturday night, which was attended by King Christian and members of the royal family, diplomatic corps and American colony. King Christian yesterday placed a laurel wreath on Andersen's monument in the royal gardens. The celebrations include dramatic performances and the exhibition of relics.

The town of Odense was beautifully decorated. A monument to the author was unveiled on the wall of the town near the cottage where Andersen was born.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC.

Pull a hair from your head—if it is plump and rosy it is healthy, but if it is white and shrunken it is certainly diseased—and diseased hair is the short road to a bald head. Few people can afford a bald head, for a bald head is a serious handicap. In these days when youth is a moving factor, when a man has to make his mark at thirty-five or be dubbed a "has been"—when business houses pension the man we used to call "middle aged," rather than allow their lagging influence to intrude upon the modern rush—you will certainly believe us in saying a bald head is a serious handicap. Few people can afford a bald head. Even those who can—those who are "fixed" socially financially and matrimonially have no desire for bald heads. But whether we can afford it or not, thousands of us are bald, either partially or wholly. What caused the baldness, whether an inherited tendency, undue mental effort, sickness, dandruff or other scalp disease, makes no difference. What we want is to grow new hair.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is a positive cure for all hair and scalp troubles. It is not sticky nor gummy, will not thicken on the hair, does not become rancid, has no disagreeable odor. It is clean, agreeable and pleasant to take.

It is a hair dressing of the highest order, and when a purchaser considers that we take all the risk in making such strong statements, is there any risk in giving it a trial? We want you to try on our personal recommendation one bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We will sell it to you on the broad and liberal Rexall guarantee of "Your money back if you are in any way dissatisfied." We do this of a desire to sell our customers just the remedies that give them value for their money. All we ask is the return of the empty bottle. Price, 50c. a bottle.

Rexall "93" Shampoo

A fragrantly perfumed toilet preparation, that will make the scalp cleaner than any other shampoo—and keep it clean—is put up in large capped jars, twenty-five cents each. Guaranteed too.

MORE VIEWS OF GLADDEN

Concerning Business Robbers Who Give Liberally For Religion.

Columbus, Ohio, April 3.—"Some of the most gigantic robbers that the world has ever known—men who have accumulated hundreds of millions by wicked methods, are by some persons praised and flattered for their liberal gifts to churches and colleges and missions. Such an estimate does not represent the Christianity of today."

This statement was made yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden during the course of an address at the First Congregational church. Dr. Gladden said in part:

"The Christian of today is beginning to get a new idea of what it means to carry his religion into his business. He has found out that it signifies an earnest effort to make his business not only a means of gain, but an instrumentality of help and service to all his fellowmen.

"Andrew Carnegie said some years ago, for instance, that a man may be as selfish as he pleases in the accumulation of a fortune, if he will only be benevolent in the distribution of the fortune after it is made.

"That is not the best theory of the business man's responsibility. His greatest opportunities of benevolence are those which come to him in his business. While making his fortune, not after it is made, that he must prove himself a Christian.

"Gifts, no matter how munificent, which have been heaped up by extortion and trickery, are not Christian benefactions.

"The Christian of today distinctly says that the Christianization of the great realm of industry and traffic, is the most urgent problem now before them. It is a tremendous undertaking, but not too arduous for the all-conquering grace of Him who has banished infanticide, abolished slavery and lifted women to an equality with man.

"The state is just as truly a divine institution as the church is, and the governor, the mayor, the superintendent of police, the member of the legislature, or the city council or the school board, is just as much a minister and servant of God as I am.

"I have just as good a right to use my opportunity in this church to enrich myself, or to push my personal ambitions as they have; if the scandal in the case of a pastor would be greater than in that of a public servant it is only because our notions about the service of the state have been terribly perverted."

GIRL STABS MAN NEAR THE HEART.

Lancaster, Pa., April 3.—Ralph Kline, 26 years old, an attorney, was stabbed by Jennie Good, aged 18. Kline and Miss Good were members of a partw who were fishing in the Little Conestoga. Kline and the girl had a quarrel, during which Miss Good threatened to cut out his heart. Thinking that she would not execute her threat, Kline threw out his chest and told her to stab. She did, plunging a knife into his breast, near the heart. The girl fled and has not yet been arrested.

CHEATED DEATH.

Kidney trouble often ends fatally, but by choosing the right medicine, E. H. Wolfe, of Bear Grove, Iowa, cheated death. He says: "Two years ago I had Kidney Trouble, which caused me great pain, suffering and anxiety, but I took Electric Bitters, which effected a complete cure. I have also found them of great benefit in general debility and nerve trouble, and keep them constantly on hand, since, as I find they have no equal." All druggists guarantee them at 50c.

CUT WIFE'S THROAT AND THEN HIS OWN.

Pittsburg, April 3.—John C. Walton killed his wife last night by cutting her throat with a razor, and then, after cutting his own throat, walked to the office of a physician, 300 yards distant and expired, just as police officers were about place him under arrest. The couple were married about ten years ago and had four children.

About two years ago Mrs. Walton left her husband, but was reconciled through the good offices of her mother, Mrs. Hackett. A bitter quarrel several months ago brought about another separation. Mrs. Walton and children returning to her mother's home.

When Walton's 8-yearlold daughter, Bessie, answered the bell to let the father in the house last night, he was heard to kiss the little one and send her for her mother. Mrs. Walton fearing no trouble, went to meet her husband. In about five minutes a shriek from the woman brought the family to the dining room, where they found Mrs. Walton lying on a couch with her head almost severed from her body.

RHEUMATISM ROBS LIFE of PLEASURE

Rheumatism does more than any other disease to rob life of pleasure and comfort. It is so painful and far-reaching in its effects on the system that those afflicted with it find themselves utterly unable to enjoy bodily comfort or any of the pleasures of life. Some are bound hand and foot and suffer constantly with excruciating pains, swollen, stiff joints and muscles, and often distorted, crooked limbs, while others have intervals of freedom, during which they live in constant fear and dread of the next attack, when, at the least exposure to damp weather, or slight irregularity of any kind, the disease will return. The cause of Rheumatism is a sour, acid condition of the blood, produced by food lying undigested in the stomach, poor bowel action, weak kidneys and a general sluggish condition of the system. External applications, such as liniments, oils, plasters, etc., do not reach the cause and can only give temporary relief. The blood must be cleansed and purified before a cure can be had. S. S. S. attacks the disease in the right way—it neutralizes the poison and filters out every particle of it from the blood, stimulates the sluggish organs and clears the system of all foreign matter. It cures the disease permanently and safely because it contains no harmful minerals to derange the stomach and digestion. Book on Rheumatism and any advice you wish, without charge.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

I had been troubled with Rheumatism for two years, had been under the treatment of physicians, and tried everything recommended to me, but all to no avail. My knee and elbow joints were so stiff that I could not use them. I was unable to do my household work, and was truly in a pitiable condition. S. S. S. cured me after using it for awhile, and I unhesitatingly give it the credit it so much deserves.

FAILURE TO GET

Divorce Worth $50,000 to Indiana Man, Weary of Romance.

He Learns Wife He Had Forsaken Is an Heiress.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 3.—Because he failed in his efforts to secure a divorce from his wife, to whom he had been married but a few months, Dr. Edward R. Orahood, formerly of Camden, Ind., now finds himself to be worth $50,000. The judge of the court, who refused to allow the plea for a divorce to the young physician, has scored a decided triumph with the doctor.

It all came about in this manner:

About eighteen months ago Dr. Orahood was a clerk in a drug store in the little town of Camden, located a few miles north of Flora, Ind. He had been graduated from a medical college, but had decided to work as a drug store clerk for a few months before he intended to engage in active practice.

One beautiful summer's afternoon, when he was in a recipient mood for anything touching upon the romantic, he was engaged in unpacking boxes of chewing gum.

Now, ordinarily, there is nothing savoring of a romance in the matter-of-fact work of unpacking boxes in stores and preparing their contents for the show case.

But in this instance the task of unwrapping chewing gum packages proved to be very romantic.

As he carefully went ahead with his work, little thinking of the impending romance, the young doctor noticed that one of the packages of gum had been wrapped with peculiar care. His attention was then and there attracted to it; just why, he could not tell.

Unwrapping the package, he found a delicately-perfumed note, on which was inscribed in a dainty handwriting the name, "Miss Edna Wharton, Louisville." Below the name, written in the same dainty hand, was the following kind note:

"Will the finder of this be kind enough to write to the girl whose address is here given, just for the fun of the thing."

"Now, Dr. Orahood is one of those boys who is always in for anything that promises to afford some fun."

So, "just for the fun of the thing," he wrote to the girl. Just what he wrote is not a part of this story. Suffice it to say, however, that he wrote such a delightful little note, that "Miss Edna Wharton" was so pleased that she forthwith answered it.

A correspondence was then and there established.

It finally developed in the course of their correspondence that Miss Wharton had relatives in Camden. Then at the urgent request of the young doctor, nothing would do but that she journey to that little village to spend a few days with her relatives, whom she had not visited for so long.

Well, she made the visit.

She and the doctor met.

Really it was fine, thought they, that they should meet in this manner simply through the address which Miss Wharton had placed in the package of chewing gum "just for fun."

They were not long in concluding that they had each met their affinity. Hence it was but natural that a proposal of marriage should follow. It was accepted.

They began their wedded life at Hartford City, Ind., where, in the meantime, Dr. Oraford har secured the position of manager of a drug store, having given up his place in the drug store at Camden.

At first all went well in the home of the newly wedded couple. Before long, however, the flame of love ceased to burn as brightly as it should. There was a coldness between the two.

Orahood decided to give up his position in Hartford City, and to send his unhappy young bride to his own home in Camden until he could obtain another position.

His bride was received coldly by Orahood's parents, who had at no time been in favor of the marriage of their son to a girl about whom he knew so little. Then, too, it hurt their pride to think their beloved son, Eddie, would do such a thing. During this time the wife was compelled to bear her own expenses.

As soon as he had placed his wife under the parental roof, Orahood left for parts unknown. He was not heard from until a short time ago when it was learned that he had gone to Sioux Falls, S. D., the Mecca of all those who desire to rend asunder the bonds that hold them to some one in a state of unhappy wedlock.

In the meantime, a child had been born to Mrs. Orahood. Notwithstanding the fact that her husband had made her life unhappy and had even gone so far as to make application for a divorce in the celebrated Sioux Falls divorce courts, she still loved the man who was her husband and the father of her child.

As soon as she heard of the suit that was pending, she appeared and contested it with the result that the judge who heard Orahood's plea for a divorce refused to grant it. And on this refusal hangs a tale.

Soon after Orahood's failure to secure his divorce, the fact developed that Mrs. Orahood was worth in her own right $50,000, while her father was rated at several hundred thousand dollars. Of this fact she had never told her husband. Had she done so, no doubt, all would have gone happily in thir home for it is an undeniable fact that men love to be the husbands of women who are wealthy.

If there are exceptions to the rule, Orahood certainly is not one of them. As soon as he discovered the fact that his wife was worth a few thousand dollars in cold, hard cash, he no longer desired that the divorce be granted.

Since the discovery that their daughter-in-law is an heiress, the family of Orahood has withdrawn its objections. By this withdrawal it has also been shown that Dr. Edward Orahood is not the only Orahood who loves money. They have no objections to the girl now. She is wealthy. Hence she is no longer received coldly under the Orahood roof. Instead, she is welcomed with open arms, and they think that she is just the best daughter-in-law that the parents of any son could possible have.

The girl's father is still willing for his daughter to remain the wife of the man who had once deserted her. He has now appeared and has offered to set the son-in-law up in business if he would agree to support his wife.

DOG'S LOVE IS PATHETIC

Fox Terrier Daily Caresses Stuffed Body of Her Mother.

Chicago, April 3.—Pathetic devotion displayed by a fox terrier pup for the body of its mother, "Slim," which has been mounted and placed on top of the desk of Jailer John L. Whitman, is attracting attention at the county jail. For years the mother of this pup was a friend of everybody in the jail. Unlike most fox terriers, she would make friends with everybody and she had brightened many a cloudy day for the prisoners by keeping them company when confinement was severe punishment. Not long ago the jail pet died and left a number of puppies. One of these, named Nellie, Jailer Whitman saved, and she has taken the place of her mother.

Jailer Whitman thought so much of the old dog that he had her stuffed. Slim's favorite position in her last days on earth was lying stretched out with her forefeet crossed. In this position she has been mounted and looks so natural that visitors to Mr. Whitman's office draw back away from the desk, fearing they may get "snapped."

Ever since the mounted terrier has been placed on the desk Nellie, the puppy, has recognized the carcass as that of her mother. Every morning she jumps up on the desk and licks the nose of her dead mother, as a child might kiss its mother when arising from its bed.

"Nellie whines sometimes while looking at the dead dog, as much as to say, 'Why don't you play with us as you used to do?'" said Jailer Whitman. "The puppy knowns that is her mother, but she does not seem to understand what is really the trouble with her. It is actually pathetic at times to hear the little dog beg her to come down and play.

"Slim was the most intelligent dog I ever knew. She knew as much about the jail as I did myself. She seemed to think that her presence among the prisoners was a necessity. It brightened their spirits and they fondled her at all times. She would make friends readily with any prisoner, but had no use for strange visitors in my office. 'Murderers' row' was a favorite spot for Slim. She would visit the cells of the condemned murderers several times a day. She formed a great friendship for Adolph Luetgert, who was convicted of killing his wife.

"Emil Rollinger, the wife murderer, was also a great favorite with Slim. The dog whined to see him after the death warrant had been read and we turned her into his cell for a while. She licked his hand and actually seemd to realize that something was wrong. Chris Merry was another one Slim was fond of. She spent many days in his cell playing with him before he was executed, August Becker was another."

Slim's death was brought about in a peculiar way. An old icebox in the jail was found to be undermined with rats. Jailer Whitman sent for Slim and Nellie to exterminate the rodents. The two dogs killed nearly 100 and Slim was exhausted from the work and never recovered, dying about two weeks later. She was about 10 years of age and had been in the jail since a pup less than 3 months old.

MRS. HAMMOND,

Formerly of Duluth, Passes Away In Nebraska.

Hastings, Minn., April 3.—News has just been received here of the death of Mrs. Hammond, a former resident of Hastings, and mother of S. B. Hammond, now of De Land, Fla., which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Julia Draper, Rushville, Neb. Mrs. Hammond was 105 years old and was the ranking senior member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The national congress of the order recently voted Mrs. Hammond a medal. She also was the possessor of a beautiful souvenir from the Duluth chapter, D. A. R., in which she held her membership.

PURE FOOD GAME

The Motives of Those Engaged Are Being Questioned.

Manufacturers of Food Products and Whisky Men Milked.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 3—(Special to The Herald.)—There are members of congress who are inclined to question the motives of some of those most actively engaged in promoting the "pure food" campaign of the past few years, and who entertain the opinion that under the pretext of working in the interest of the public, these promoters have exploited "pure food" for their personal profit. This impression is gaining strength as the facts connected with the manipulation of the so-called "pure food congresses" and the "pure food" exhibit at the St. Louis exposition gradually leak out. Learned articles in leading magazines from the pense of those most prominently identified with the "pure food" movement, while they have added to the government salaries of the writers, have also created much severe criticism because of the persistence with which "bottled-in-bond" whisky is thrust forward in them. Scarcely an article of the many which are apeapred on this subject from certain government officials fails to contain some reference to whisky asperses "blended" and exploits "bottled-in-bond" whisky, while much prominence has also been given to alleged statements of Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief chemist of the department of agriculture, in which he has been represented as charging that 95 per cent of American whisky is adulterated.

If it had not been that the secretary of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments admitted receiving more than $3,000 for the endorsement given "bottled-in-bond" whisky by the pure food congress at St. Louis, the prominence given this whisky in the numerous articles appearing in the magazines would not have attracted so much attention here nor so much unfavorable criticism. The impression also prevails that the articles on the "pure food" experiments conducted under the auspices of government officials, and at the expense of the United States treasury, have been made attractive to periodicals almost solely because of the official positions of the writers and their access to information denied to the unofficial author or correspondent, and that, in same cases, at least, this information has appeared in the magazines before given to the public through the medium of official reports.

It has lately developed that in addition to working the "bottled-in-bond" whisky combination, the "pure food" enthusiasts set out to milk the manufacturers of food products, and did so handsomely. Over $13,000 was extracted from them in return for a quasi-indorsement of their product by the late "pure food" congress, in addition to the $3,000 put up by the whisky trust. It costs money to run a "pure food" congress, and as the whisky trust would not put up enough to pay the expenses and leave a profit for the promoters, another scheme was devised. This consisted of issuing a so-called "official report" of the proceedings of the convention, containing the committees, the resolutions, and the proceedings in general. Interlarded were to be the advertisements of food products, it being understood that the public would assume that the appearance of an advertisement in a book containing the names of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture, as a member of the committee on resolutions, R. M. Allen, secretary of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments, and other state and national officials, with high sounding titles and more or less reputation as food experts, would be sufficient guarantee that the aggregation indorsed the "foods" so advertised. In recounting his part of the proceeding, Mr. Allen recently remarked somewhat naively, that 'exploiting the International Pure Food congress in soliciting advertisements made the investment a paying one for the report, and a paying one for the convention." He might well have added and "for the promoters of the convention" who divided the balance of the $16,000 contributed by the whisky trust and the food manufacturers, after paying the expenses of the convention.

No report has been made so far as known, as to how $13,000 of this fund was expended, further than Mr. Allen was allowed $500 for a European trip, including Great Britain, Germany and France. No information has yet been vouchsafed as to what Mr. Allen accomplished on this trip, as although the congress was called an "International" Pure Food congress, its energies were confined principally to exploiting bottled-in-bond whisky.

Mr. Allen is at present engaged in working up a "Pure Food congress" for the Portland exhibition, and has sent a circular letter to the members of the national association asking their views. He neglects to state whether the whisky trust and the manufacturers will pay the expenses of this meeting, but as he does not ask for contributions, it is presumed he has made his arrangements.

* * *

The campaign for properly ventilated street cars, which is being made by national, local and state health officials, is meeting with favorable results. As has been noted, experiments are in progress in various laboratories throughout the country, and some very interesting statistics have just been received by Surgeon Gen. Wyman of the United States marine hospital service, from Detroit, where the local board of health has made an exhaustive investigation into the subject through the city sanitary engineer and the chemist of the board. It appears that in order to make the investigation as thorough and as fair as possible, the officials took samples of air from all sorts of cars in the early morning hours and in the evening; when travel was heavy and when it was light; when the cars were almost full and when containing only a few passengers. Samples were taken from city and from suburban cars, from smokers and ordinary coaches, some with all windows and doors closed and others with the doors open. Altogether nineteen samples of air were taken and the results were startling. The vitiated condition of the air in the street cars of Detroit can be fully realized from the fact that the standard adopted by the Detroit board of health for the city schools is not to exceed nine parts of carbon dioxide in 10,000 parts of air, while in the street cars the lowest percentage found was 14.6 parts and the highest was 51.2 parts.

In other words, the purest air found in the cars contained 75 per cent more carbon dioxide than the standard for the schools, while the highest contained nearly six times that limit. Only five samples of the nineteen analyzed below twenty parts carbon dioxide, while nine exceeded thirty parts. One sample was taken from a car on the Woodward line, at 7 o'clock in the evening. This was a large car with only twenty-three passengers and had the rear door open, yet the analysis showed that the air contained 17.4 parts carbon dioxide, or nearly twice the healthful limit. Two samples were taken from Wyandotte cars, one at 4.50 p. m. and another at 5:25 p. m. The first, from a suburban car, contained twenty-three occupants and the air analyzed 19.6 parts carbon dioxide, while the air of the second, a local car with thirty-three passengers, showed 23 parts.

It would naturally be thought that in the early morning hours the air would be purer than later in the day. To test this a sample was obtained from a Michigan car with thirty-nine passengers at 5:20 a. m. Somewhat to the surprise of the officials, the test showed that the air contained thirty-two parts of carbon dioxide or three and one-third times the mixmum allowed for the public schools. This was exceeded, however, in the case of a Third street car, which contained thirty-two passengers and where the sample was taken at 7:45 a. m. The analysis in this instance gave 40.3 parts carbon dioxide.

One of the most interesting tests was with the air of a Pontiac ordinary car and with that of a Pontiac "smoker." In the former, with thirty-five passengers, there were 38.8 parts carbon dioxide, while in the "smoker" with only eleven passengers, the percentage ran up to 51.2 parts.

As a result of this series of tests the board of health formally requested the Detroit common council to compel all the companies operating street or suburban cars in the city of Detroit "as soon as practicable to properly and sufficiently ventilate all of their said cars." The board of health also notified the council that it had drawings made of a model system for ventilating street cars which it was thought would answer all purposes. It is understood that the drawings were prepared in the office of the sanitary engineer and it is probable a set will be forwarded to the Marine hospital service for inspection.

It is understood that the health authorities of Boston, Philadelphia, Indianapolis and other cities expect to have similar reports ready soon. In Brooklyn, where the campaign for pure air in street cars was inaugurated, little progress is apparently being made, owing it is said, to the opposition of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company to changing the design of their cars because of the expense involved. On the other hand, the Philadelphia lines have expressed their willingness to co-operate with the health authorities to any reasonable extent.

BABES IN AWFUL PLIGHT.

Eight Rescued From Extreme Poverty In Wisconsin.

Marinette, Wis., April 3.—Rev. Fred C. Brayton, agent for the Children's Home society, has just rescued eight children from a wretched home near Tigerton. The children's ages range from 3 to 16 years. When they were taken by Mr. Brayton they were really just like dumb brutes.

Two years ago the mother died. Since then the oldest girl has kept house. They lived on the bread the girl made. For weeks before reported by Tigerton officials to the Children's Home officers, the family lived on common corn, ground in a coffee mill and made into gruel. They had never tasted butter. They had no potatoes, and meat was a treat which came so rarely as to be forgotten between times. Then it was salt pork.

Their situation was summed up by Rev. Mr. Brayton, trustee of the Children's Home, who took the children to Appleton, when he said: "They were in a most wretched state of poverty and degradation that I have ever seen in my life."

The father drank. He used to earn some little money by chopping wood, and the oldest boy, aged 16, did too. None of the family really wore clothes. They were covered with such rags as they were given or could take. Rev. Brayton said that when he got the children at Clintonville the baby had on one garment. The others were veritable rags.

MOTHERHOOD

Actual Sterility in Women Is Very Rare—Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes.

Many women long for a child to bless their homes, but because of some debility or displacement of the female organs they are barren.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound more successfully than by any other medicine, because it gives tone and strength to the entire female organism, curing all displacements, ulceration and inflammation.

A woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution. Is not that an incentive to prepare for a healthy maternity?

If expectant mothers would fortify themselves with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for thirty years has sustained thousands of women in this condition, there would be a great decrease in miscarriages, in suffering, and in disappointments at birth.

The following letters to Mrs. Pinkham demonstrate the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such cases.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice-President of Milwaukee Business Woman's Association, of 614 Grove Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I was married for several years and no children blessed our home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. For months I took his medicines, trying in vain for a cure, but at last my husband became disgusted and suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; this I did, and I improved steadily in health, and in less than two years a beautiful child came to bless our home. Now we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs Mae P. Wharry, Secretary of the North Shore Oratorical Society, The Norman, Milwaukee, Wis., writes.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I was married for five years and gave birth to two premature children. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me, and I am so glad I took it, for it changed me from a weak, nervous woman to a strong, happy and healthy one within seven months. Within two years a lovely little girl was born, which is the pride and joy of our household. Every day I bless Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the light, health and happiness it brought to our home."

If any woman thinks she is sterile, or has doubts about her ability to carry a child to a mature birth let her write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., whose advice is free to all expectant or would-be mothers. She has helped thousands of women through this anxious period.

Women suffering with irregular or painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacement, ulceration or inflammation of the womb, that bearing down feeling or ovarian trouble, backache, bloating or nervous prostration, should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of woman's ills, and accept no substitute.

Many Women Have Been Benefited by Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Medicine.

FOR INSULTING HIS WIFE.

Cleveland Man Kills One and Wounds Another.

Cleveland, April 3.—Because of an alleged insult to his wife, while he was temporarily absent from her side last night, William Hill shot and instantly killed Ralph M. Lewis and fatally wounded James H. Huff.

The shooting took place while Hill and his wife were boarding a street car. According to the police Huff and Lewis had made slighting remarks to Mrs. Hill while she was in a restaurant. When her husband returned the couple went to take a street car home. Huff and Lewis were going to take the same car when Hill, it is alleged, pulled a pistol from his pocket and fired upon the two men. Hill was placed under arrest.

FIVE MEN KILLED

By an Explosion In United Verde Mine.

Prescott, Ariz., April 3.—As the result of an explosion in the United Verde mine at Jerome, owned by Senator Clark, five men are dead and five others seriously injured.

The accident appeared just as the shifts were being changed and all the men except twelve had been raised to the surface. On account of the recent heavy rains, surface water found its way to that portion of the mine where fire has been smouldering several years, and steam thus generated caused the explosion, blowing out the bulkheads erected to keep the fire from spreading. The men were suffocated by smoke and heated steam.

ENTRIES ARE LARGE

For the Kentucky Futurity For Foals of 1905.

Lexington, Ky., April 3.—Secretary Horace Wilson of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association, has completed the compilation of the mares entered in the Kentucky futurity for foals of 1905 and the total is 1,123.

The largest nominator is the Great Walnut Hall farm of L. V. Harkness, Donerail, Ky., which named sixty of its mares in foal to Moko, Mobel and Walnut Hall. The next is the Patchen Wilkes' farm of Peter Duryea and W. E. D. Stokes with fifty-seven mares, most of them in foal to the futurity winner, Peter the Great, 2:07¾. Next comes the Empire City farms of William Simpson & Son, with twenty-eight mares in foal to McKinney, Cresceus, Dan Patch, Direct Hal, the Bondsman and The Tramp.

Among the nominators are C. K. G. Billings and A. C. Maynard of New York. There are 416 nominators in all, 524 of the mares were named in lots of one to three showing a widespread interest among small breeders in the futurity.

WHEAT HAS ADVANCE

Market Opens Weak But Weather Predictions Give Strength.

Freezing Temperature Expected In the Winter Wheat Country.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 3.—The wheat market started out weak this morning under the influence of large Northwestern receipts and world's shipments of good proportions but it turned stronger after an hour or so and finally closed with a good advance and at the top prices for the day. The strength came from the predictions of freezing weather in Nebraska and Kansas tonight and generally colder weather through the winter wheat belt. The Liverpool market closed ¼@½d lower, Berlin ⅜c lower and Budapest 2¾c lower.

The May option in Duluth gained 1⅝c, in Chicago it lost ⅝c, in Minneapolis it was 1⅜-½c higher and in New York it was unchanged. July wheat in Duluth advanced ⅞c in Chicago ¼-⅜c, in Minneapolis ⅞-1c, and in New York ¾c.

Broomhall reports that the exportable surplus of Australia is officially estimated at 32,000,000 bus., or about 8,000,000 bus. more than previously figured on.

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the week previous and the corresponding week of last year were as follows:

	WHEAT. Last week.	Previous week.	Last year.
America	1,312,000	688,000	1,760,000
Russia	1,936,000	2,032,000	1,792,000
Danube	512,000	664,000	768,000
Argentina	2,616,000	4,464,000	3,232,000
India	1,480,000	792,000	960,000
Australia	1,368,000	984,000	1,128,000
Austria-Hungary		80,000	40,000
Various	120,000	112,000	172,000
Total	9,344,000	9,744,000	9,872,000
	CORN.
America	3,568,000	2,112,000	1,248,000
Russia	20,000	60,000	300,000
Danube	20,000	34,000	608,000
Argentina	120,000	60,000	197,600
Total	3,740,000	2,266,000	2,209,000

The amount of wheat on passage last week decreased 1,544,000 bus., and corn increased 736,000 bus.

Car receipts at Duluth were 10, against 28 last year, and at Minneapolis 466, against 570 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 569, against 398 last year. Chicago received 31, against 15 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 705,752 bus., last year 575,629 bus. Shipments 211,169 bus., last year 369,585 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 93,969 bus.

The visible supply of wheat last week decreased 490,000 bus., and is now 32,327,000 bus., against 31,727,000 bus. last year.

The visible supply of corn last week decreased 889,000 bus., and is now 8,790,000 bus., against 9,679,000 bus. last year. Corn in the Liverpool market closed ½d lower. In the Chicago market May corn closed ¼-⅜c higher. May oats closed ⅛-¼c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 939,180 bus., last year 989,700 bus. Shipments 635,126 bus., last year 282,300 bus. Clearances were 636,155 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was dull. The May option opened ⅝c lower at $1.03 and fell to $1.02⅝ in the first five minutes. It then bulged to $1.03⅝ at 10:15, fell back to $1.03¾ a couple of minutes later, and then sold to $1.05⅛ at 12:05. Following that it slipped back to $1.04¾ at 12:30, and bulged to $1.05¼ at 1:07, and closed there, an advance for the day of 1⅝c. The July option ranged between $1.02¾ and $1.01 and closed at $1.02½, a gain of ⅝c.

Cash wheat continued on the basis of 1c under May for No. 1 northern and 3½ to 7c under for No. 2.

Flax was dull and stronger, the May option having an advance of 1c early in the day, but closing only ¼c higher at $1.37¾. The October option lost 1½c, closing at $1.26½.

Oats advanced ¼c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Liberal Receipts Create Bearish Sentiment In Wheat.

Chicago, April 3.—Liberal receipts in the Northwest and larger world's shipments than expected created bearish sentiment in the wheat pit here today. The market opened quite weak, following a decline at Liverpool. Later a steadier tone developed on covering by shorts and buying by commission houses. Predictions of freezing temperatures in Nebraska and Kansas were mainly responsible for the steadier tone. July opened ⅜c to ⅝c lower at 8c to 87¼c and advanced to 87½@⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 540 cars against 548 cars last week and 413 cars a year ago.

Later in the day the market became quite strong, July advancing to 88¾c. A better demand was in evidence and offerings were not large. The close was firm with July up 1⅝@⅜c at 87⅝@88c.

Lower cables and liberal receipts caused weakness in corn. July was in good demand from shorts. July opened ⅛c to ⅜@¼c lower at 47c to 47@⅛c. After advancing to 47¾@⅝c, the price settled back to 47¼@⅜c. Local receipts were 560 cars, with 28 of contract grade.

The market held steady the remainder of the day, July closing a shade higher at 47¼c.

In sympathy with other grains and partly as the result of liberal local receipts, the oats market was rather weak. The volume of trade, however, was very light. Prices made some recovery on buying by elevator interests. July opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 29¼c to 29⅜c, and sold up to 29½@⅝c. Local receipts were 193 cars.

Provisions were a trifle easier, owing to a decline in the price of live hogs. Weakness of grains also had considerable effect. July pork was off 5c at $12.67½. Lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $7.27½ to $7.30. Ribs were a shade lower at $7.17½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.14; July, 87¾@88c; September, 83¼@¼c. Corn—April, 46⅝c; May, 47¼@⅜c; July, 47¼c; September, 47⅜c. Oats—May, 29¾@⅞c; July, 29½@⅝c; September, 29⅜@⅞c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—The prospect of a radical change in temperature throughout the winter wheat belt checked the early decline and made a strong market, until realizing the last hour caused some reaction from best prices. The May was uniformly strong. Rains were general over Sunday, and a period of freezing weather now would arouse some apprehension. Estimated receipts for Wednesday, 36 cars.

Corn—The news prior to the opening indicated lower prices. Receipts overran the estimate by nearly 100 cars, and Liverpool was weak. However, offerings proved very light, particularly of the May, and prices firmed almost from the start. The tendency was to advance throughout the day, with some setback prior to the close. The May was in relatively better demand than the deferred months, selling at ⅛c premium over the July, with considerable spreading of the two deliveries. Argentine weather was privately reported unfavorable for the maturing and movement of the crop. The cash market was strong and a quarter higher, with the industries free buyers. The weakness at Liverpool reflected larger shipments than anticipated. Estimated cars for Wednesday include Tuesday inspection on two of the largest roads handling Nebraska corn, 60 cars.

• • •

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The action of the market seems to bear out our contention that trade is pretty well sold out. The weak spells in the market so frequent it is true, but prices have a way of rallying very sharply, leaving the impression that selling pressure is less pronounced. Considering the sentiment and adverse conditions that bulls are working under, the action of the market is not at all bad. We still feel much caution should be used in becoming too enthusiastic on the selling side. A forecast of colder weather in the Southwest undoubtedly contributed somewhat to the better feeling. The deferred futures do as if they would respond very sharply to any change in weather conditions.

Corn—Throughout the session while not showing much snap market seemed to act as if it needed but little encouragement to bring higher prices. The larger world's shipments undoubtedly cooled the enthusiasm some, as did also larger receipts and large estimates for tomorrow. Considering these ordinarily bearish factors we feel the market did very well to maintain what little strength it had. On the whole the market acts well and seems to give promise of doing better.

Oats—The discouraging cash situation reflected by the increase in visible apparently had no effect on price making. While the market shows some strength, we still feel the cash situation must make greater inroads.

• • •

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—The market for wheat was active and developed sufficient strength after the opening to advance prices 1 to 2⅝c. Conditions are changing and are now strongly in favor of helping prices work higher. The situation favors a broadening out of the trade and eventually return to prices nearer the level at which the crop was bought, but on quick bulges like we had today think wheat should be sold and bought back again on quick temporary declines.

• • •

E. W. Dennis, Chicago: Play the long side of wheat now on all the breaks. Plenty of chance to play scenery again the last half of May and the first half of June.

ERRATIC CLOSE

To the Stock Market, But It Was Fairly Firm.

Industrial Shares Were More In Demand Than Railroads.

New York, April 3.—The stock market today opened strong and active, with a continuance of the recent large demand for the minor industrials. United States Steel, Union Pacific and New York Central were bought in large blocks, but their gains were limited to moderate fractions. Brooklyn Transit and Atchison were slightly lower. Biscuit jumped 2⅜, Twin City Rapid Transit 2⅛ and Smelting, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, People's Gas and Canadian Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio 1 to 1¼.

Railroad stocks weakened a trifle owing to the meager demand, but betrayed a steadier tone at 11 o'clock. Higher prices prevailed for a large number of industrial specialties, with the activity centering in those not so well known. Sloss-Sheffield Steel got up 2½ and Tennessee Coal, Smelting preferred, Enamneling, Pressed Steel Car, Leather preferred certificates, Cotton Oil and Kansas & Texas preferred 1 to 1¼. Colorado Fuel, which closed Saturday at 57¼, was quoted ex rights and sold between 54¾ and 56. The rights brought from 2½ to 3⅛.

A large demand for stocks was stimulated by lively movement in the Erie, followed by advances in Union Pacific and New York Central. Erie rose 1¼, the first preferred 2, the second preferred 3. Union Pacific 1⅝. New York Central 1¾. Great Northern preferred 4¾. Other active railroad stocks were lifted fractions. Northwestern, Delaware & Hudson, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Ann Arbor preferred, Gas Virginia-Carolina Chemical, Federal Mining preferred and Snuff preferred gained 1 or more; Peoria & Western 1¼, Philadelphia Rapid Transit 2½, United States Reduction 2 and preferred 4½. There were losses of about 2 in Lackawanna, Rubber Goods preferred, American Telephone and Distillers preferred. Bonds were firm at noon.

The activity of the railroad list was not prolonged beyond midday and there were recessions reaching a point in Erie second preferred. Meantime some of the industrials were rising buoyantly. Cotton Oil gained over 3, the preferred 2, Tennessee Coal 2½, Virginia-Carolina Chemical 2¼, General Electric 1¾ and Locomotive preferred. Woolen preferred, the Chicago Terminal issues, Lake Erie & Western and St. Louis Southwestern and Illinois Central a point. Lead was sold heavily and lost 1⅞ as did United Railroad Investment preferred.

When the advance late in the day had amounted to 6 points in Tennessee Coal and 6 in Sloss-Sheffield Steel the market suddenly weakened on reports indicating further delay in the Northern Securities case. Reactions of a point or more occurred in some specialties and New York Central, Union Pacific and St. Paul dipped sharply. Later a report that the case was finally disposed of caused a substantial rally in which Union Pacific touched 132¾ or more than 2 points above last week's close. St. Paul & Soo and Republic Steel moved up 1 and the preferred 2. The United States Steel stocks were in much better demand, but gained only fractionally. Brooklyn Transit continued weak and lost a point.

Union Pacific rose to 133¼ and Tennessee Coal advanced again to 105. The new gains were amongst specialties including International Power, Knickerbocker, Car preferred, Locomotive preferred, Tobacco preferred, Bag preferred and Westinghouse Electric, in gains extended from 1¾ to 2¾. Delaware & Hudson rose 2½; New York, Chicago & St. Louis 2; Wisconsin Central preferred 1¼ and Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville & Nashville and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred 1. Lake Shore sold at 215 for 100 shares compared with a preceding price of 347 for a full share lot. Realizing carried prices off in the late dealings. Sloss-Sheffield Steel reacted 3 and other stocks a point or more. The closing was erratic.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been strong and active today. Industrials have been more in demand than railroads, although the latter have been strong on the Northern Securities decision, which was positively in favor of the Hill party, and which seems to promise surely the distribution of Northern Securities assets immediately after April 17. The market showed considerable irregularity late in the day, but closed fairly firm. Money did not get above 4 per cent.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, April 3.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $142,268,721; gold, $70,715,637; silver, $25,636,126.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 3.—The cotton market opened quiet and steady at a decline of 1 point on June, but generally unchanged to 5 points up, which was considered a fair showing on indifferent cables, favorable weather reports and indifferent spot markets. Trading was very quiet, but improved somewhat a little later, while prices advanced about 6 to 7 points over Saturday on a private estimate showing a reduction of 22 per cent in acres and in 25 per cent in use of fertilizer. There was considerable profit-taking on the advance, causing a partial reaction after which the market was irregular, 2 or 3 points net higher.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 8.15; middling gulf 8.45; sales, 1,400 bales. Futures closed quiet; April, 7.53; May, 7.68; June, 7.56; July, 7.57; August, 7.64; September, 7.64; October, 7.68; November, 7.71; December, 7.75; January, 7.78.

CHANGES IN THE TARIFF

By Lowering Many Schedules Favored By Senator Nelson.

St. Paul, April 3.—United States Senator Knute Nelson arrived in St. Paul yesterday from his home in Alexandria, where he has been since the adjournment of congress. He said:

"Not much general legislation was enacted during the last session, but that which was enacted is of great importance to the country. I regard the repeal of the timber and stone law and the forest reserve lieu scrip act as one of the most important pieces of legislation in recent years.

"I think, however, that this legislation should be supplemented by the repealing of the stone and timber act. A bill repealing this act was introduced in the senate, but it failed to pass the house. Under its provisions many thousand acres of good agricultural lands have been entered as unfit for cultivation and bought up at $2.50 an acre.

"Just before I left Washington I had a long interview with the secretary of the interior concerning the existing land laws. I suggested to him at that time that all of our land laws should be revised and codified. I should classify all public lands in the manner:

"First—All agricultural lands that do not need the assistance of irrigation should be entered only under the homestead law without the right of commutation. That is, no one should be allowed to prove up a homestead within fourteen months, but should be compelled to reside upon his home for the regulation five years. In this way such land would always be reserved for actual settlers.

"Second—All lands unfit for agriculture which are good forest lands should be held by the national government. The land should never be sold; but provision should be made for the sale of the mature timber upon it. In this way our public forests will always be reserved for the people and will be strengthened and maintained.

"Third—All lands that are neither forest nor agricultural, but are adapted to grazing should be used for that purpose and leased out by the government to stock raisers.

"Fourth—Lands that need irrigation should be disposed of under the provisions of the reclamation act. All the other land laws should be repealed with the exception of those that apply to mining lands.

"Before I left the secretary of the interior advised me that the public land commission will draft a bill along the lines of my suggestions and I expect to see such a bill introduced at the next session of congress. If such a bill is passed, such frauds as have startled us all within the last year will be obviated and our public lands will accrue to the benefit of the people to whom they belong.

"With regard to the extra session, I think the chief items of legislation will be railway rates and tariffs. Both these items are deserving of very grave consideration by congress, and I think that the committee of the senate which has been empowered to investigate and hold hearings on the subject of railway rates, during the recess, will arrive at some very practical conclusion and I have no doubt that the next session will enact some very important and fair legislation on this subject."

"There is no doubt in my mind that many important changes are needed in the tariff. Many of the schedules are too high and should be lowered. Just what form tariff legislation will take I am not prepared to say. The interests affected by tariff legislation are so diversified and scattered throughout the country that no man can make a forecast. But I think tariff will be revised.

"There is no truth in the statement seen so often nowadays in the public press that the senate is hostile to the president."

PRESIDENT AT HARRISBURG

Shakes Hands With Large Crowd Gathered at Station.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 3.—"I don't exactly say that I need a rest, but I am going to take one in the open, under God's blue heaven," said President Roosevelt today, standing on the platform by his special train at the Pennsylvania station and conversing with Congressman Almsted, United States Attorney McCarroll and United States Marshal Leonard, in the presence of a great crowd that gathered at the station to meet him. It was suggested to the president that things would go along in a smooth manner, even if he were absent.

"Oh, things will be all right," he said, "I have left Taft sitting on the lid keeping down the San Domingo matter."

Later he said: "I am going to have an outing. I am going to get away where I won't even think of a fourth-class postmaster."

When the train came in, the crowd was in the station balcony and gave the president a cheer as the train stopped. He stood on the rear platform waving his hand to the crowd and fairly beaming with good nature. When the train stopped the president stepped from the platform with the remark to a secret service man: "Pass right along now, and if this crowd is not too big I'll shake with all of them."

At this there was a rush to shake hands with him. When some little girls were handed up to him, he said: "God bless the children," and then turning to Congressman Olmstead he said: "You know, I believe in these children." To one old soldier with a button on his coat the president said: "How are you, comrade?"

It was 1:07 as the train moved off, and one man proposed three cheers for "Teddy," which was given with a will, and the president laughed heartily at the familiarity.

His last remark, as the train got up speed was a hearty "So long, boys, goodbye."

VISIONS OF MURDER.

Skeleton Found In Place Indicated By Spirits.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 3.—From the spirits of the dead Mrs. A. E. Baker of this city claims to have discovered the cause of the sudden disappearance of Frank S. Richardson, a prominent farmer living near Audubon, six years ago.

Through her visions she claims to have seen a murder and has actually directed excavations near an old tree on the Richardson farm, which have resulted in the finding of a human skeleton, believed to be that of the missing man.

When Richardson disappeared there was quite a sensation, and though many murder theories were evolved, no trace of the man could be found. Recently his brother was in Des Moines and met Mrs. Baker. He asked her to assist him.

A few days ago she went to Audubon, and two days after her arrival the skeleton was found. She is now here and states she will return to Audubon in a few days, to the spot where she believes she may get in communication with the spirit of the man she believes was murdered.

NEW INDICTMENTS AGAINTS MACHEN ET AL.

Washington, April 3.—The federal grand jury returned indictments against William G. Corbett, August W. Machen and George E. Lorenz, on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the purchase of straps for mail pouches.

An indictment under the same charge was returned against the same individuals in 1903, at which time the name of Mrs. Lorenz was included with the others. The present indictment differs from the former only in the omission of the name of Mrs. Lorenz.

DOCK MANAGERS MEET WITH LONGSHOREMEN.

Cleveland, April 3.—Dock managers representing all lake ports met in conference here today with the wage committee of the longshoremen's union, to fix a wage scale for the season. It was stated that there were no great differences and that, as a result, an agreement would probably be reached without much delay.

OCEAN STEAMSHIPS.

New York, April 3.—Steamer Zealand, from Antwerp, reported thirty miles east of the Nantucket lightship at 6:30 a. m. The vessel will probably dock about 8 a. m. Tuesday.

LUNCHED WITH CZAR.

St. Petersburg, April 3.—Gen. Batjanoff, the recently appointed commander of the Third Manchurian army, who lunched with Emperor Nicholas today, discussed with his majesty the military situation in the far East. He says the emperor did not mention the question of peace.

CLAIM PAPERS ARE INVALID

As Governor Was Out of State When Smith's Case Came Up.

Cincinnati, April 3.—The hearing of the suit in habeas corpus, which was instituted to prevent the return to New York of J. Morgan Smith and wife, under indictment for conspiracy with Mrs. Smith's sister, Nan Patterson, in the Caesar Young case, was set for today before Judge Frederick Spiegel of the common pleas court. The trunks of the Smiths which were seized by the police by search warrants, contained a large number of letters which have been sent to New York by express. However, the particular letters which led to the clash between Mrs. Smith's attorney, Col. Shay, and Detective Akin, are understood to be still in charge of the local police, although Akin has started for New York.

One of the chief contentions from the attorneys of Morgan Smith and his wife when the matter of the habeas corpus came up, was that the extradition papers served at Columbus last week, were invalid, the governor having been out of the state and the papers having been issued over his signature, when, in fact, the law required that in such matters the must pass on each application in person.

STORM AT MADISON.

Madison, Wis., April 3.—A severe electric storm struck this city suddenly today, doing damage particularly to electric light wires. The ice house of the Faurbach Brewing company was struck and badly damaged. There was a heavy rainfall.

WORKS BOTH WAYS.

Good Stiff Punches Sometimes Revives Fighters.

Can a pugilist who has been dazed and sent groggy with a punch be brought back to his normal condition with another blow in a fight? Australian Jimmy Ryan says yes, and his own experience to prove it, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. Ryan, a few years ago, was regarded as one of the best middleweights in the business. He fought Joe Walcott, Tommy West, Joe Choynski and some of the fastest men in the ring, and if he failed to win the worst he received in the majority of the contests was a draw.

About seven years ago, when Wyan was in excellent form, he met Joe Choynski in Butte. Owing to the reputation of the men a large crowd turned out to see the combat, and the receipts of that affair, according to Ryan, exceeded over $5,000.

"That fight is indelibly impressed on my mind," said Ryan the other night to a party of friends, the conversation having drifted to some old-time ring battles. "Everybody knows that Choynski can punch, in my opinion, he is one of the stiffest hitters in the game. When I took Choynski on I knew that I was up against it, but as I was in fine condition for all there was in it I took a chance. It was in the eighth round of the mill, I remember. We were fighting pretty even up to then, and although I was in poor condition I was getting along very well. After a clinch, Choynski aimed a right hand swing at me. I saw it coming and ducked out of the way. But before I could get set Choynski was after me like a bull after a red rag, and before I knew it I was backing toward the ropes. Before I could get up my guard Joe landed a heavy right hand blow, and it fell on my jaw. I was sent spinning on the ropes and my head began to rattle, leaving me. I felt my legs sink beneath me, my hands give way and my mind become a total blank. The crowd I could see slowly rising up to the ceiling. The lights changed places and glimmered from below. I imagined I could hear the referee start to count me out and the crowd cheer the winner.

"All of a sudden things began to change, but only after Choynski had sent over a left hand blow on the other jaw. My vision was slowly but surely being restored. I had that sensation of passing into the light, the same as a person feels when he awakes from a pleasant dream. The lights rose slowly to the ceiling. The spectators took their positions in the auditorium, the use of my limbs returned and I was myself again. Mind you, all this consumed the space of a few seconds. But it seemed like hours to me. I got to my feet and intuitively rushed at my opponent. I waded in as I never did before. I seemed to be endowed with unnatural strength, and my friends say that I fought harder after those two blows that I did at any time during the combat.

"I really cannot account for the phenomenon except that perhaps the nerves of the brain after being jarred by being punched on one side of the jaw were quieted by the smash on the other side. I have asked many pugilists if they had had such an experience and they frankly admitted that they had not.

"I remember on another occasion, when I fought Tommy West, that one blow that came in the first round made me do things just the reverse of the regular principle in life. I realized what was going on, but for the love of me I could not do things in the proper way. After the mill I boarded what I thought was a car going up town. Instead I went the wrong way. I began to walk backward, put my hat on backward and do everything in the opposite direction. I was in this condition for several hours. I suppose my brain got so jarred that it was out of gear for a while."

INSPECTION OF MILITIA

Regimental Fund Will Depend on Number of Men Inspected.

Members of the Duluth militia, Companies A and C, are in readiness for the annual inspection, which will be held at the Armory this evening. Col. Gerlach of St. Paul, the regular army officer, who will have charge of the inspection, arrived in the city today. The Third Regiment band will also receive the attention of the colonel.

The companies will assemble at the Armory tonight fully uniformed and equipped as though for a cross-country march. Their clothing and general equipment will be carefully inspected, and the details and markings will be entered in the annual report. It is believed the standing of both companies will be high. Each one must have a minimum of forty-six men, and for every man that is in line the companies will receive $7 from the state for the regimental fun.

The inspection on drilling will not occur until next summer, at camp, owing to the fact that most of the armories through the state are too small for extensive drills.

SAYS IT IS SCANDALOUS.

Exceptions to Complaint In Federal Court Suit.

In the suit of Pearl H. Smith of Superior against Mabel Evans, G. A. Flinn, I. C. Patterson, C. S. Wilson, E. E. Baker and State Auditor Iverson, on state mineral leases, several documents were filed today with the clerk of the United States court. One was a bill of exception to the complaint and among the exceptions taken was one to the following alegation which is decared to be scandaous, impertinent, immaterial and unnecessary:

"And that while he and said Flinn were holding the offices named, they became interested in a number of mineral leases and mineral contracts issued by the state auditor, which they fraudulently took out in the name of Mabel Evans, and a number were issued to said Mabel Evans and said Flinn and Patterson, and they used her name as a shield and protection to enable them to avoid the probabilities of said statute, etc."

A similar objection is made to the following:

"Which fact was well known to the said land clerk, George A. Flinn and said state auditor, and said George A. Flinn as such officer, deceived and misled your orator by falsely stating to him that the state had no authority to issue said mineral lease, and practiced such deceit and misrepresentation for the purpose and with the intention of securing said lease for the use and benefit of himself and his co-conspirator, said I. C. Patterson, etc."

Japanese Minister Calls on Secretary Taft.

Washington, April 3.—Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, was at the war department today and had a long talk with Secretary Taft, who is the head of the government in the absence of the president. He talked of the possibilities of peace and of the general situation in the Far East, but he had no proposals to make, as far as he made it known the object of his call appears to have been to get in touch with the secretary in his new capacity.

Mr. Takahira learned from Mr. Taft that there was no change in this government's attitude.

PATRICK HEALY DEAD.

Chicago, April 3.—Patrick J. Healy, president of the pioneer music house of Lyon & Healy, died here today of pneumonia. Mr. Healy was 65 years old.

SECURITIES CASE

Finally Settled By the Opinion of Supreme Court.

Mandate of Court Will Be Issued on April 17.

Washington, April 3.—In the supreme court of the United States today the chief justice handed down the opinion of the court in the case of Harriman vs the Northern Securities company, the decision in which was announced several weeks ago. The motion for the immediate issuance of the mandate was denied, the date for issuance being fixed for April 17.

After stating the case at length the chief justice said:

"In the present case complainants seek the return of property delivered to the Securities company pursuant to an executed contract of sale on the ground of illegality of that contract, but the record discloses no special considerations of equity, justice or public policy which justify the courts in the relaxing the rigor of the rule which bars a recovery. The circuit court decrees and the action of the attorney general of the United States put at rest any question that the ratable distribution resolved on, was in violation of public policy.

"And it is clear enough that the delivery to complainant of a majority of the total Northern Pacific stock and a ratable distribution of the remaining assets to the other security stockholders would not only be in itself inequitable, but would directly contravene the object of the Sherman act and the purpose of the government suit.

"The Northern Pacific system, taken in connection with the Burlington system is competitive with the Union Pacific system and it seems obvious to us, the entire record considered, that the decree sought by complainants would tend to smother that competition. While the superior equities as against complainants present claim of the many holders of securities shares, who purchased in reliance on the belief that they thereby acquired a ratable interest in all assets of the Securities company are too plain to be ignored.

"The illegal contract could not be made legal by estoppel, but the ownership of the assets, unaffected by a special interest in your complaints, could be placed beyond dispute on their part by their conduct in holding the Securities company out to the world as unconditional owner.

"And, without repeating in detail what has already been set out, it is plain that right of rescission of the executed contract of Nov. 18, 1901, even if rescission could have otherwise been sustained, had been lost by acquiescence and laches at the time this bill was filed.

"Since the transfer of that date Securities stock had passed into the hands of more than 2,500 holders, many of them in Great Britain, France and other parts of Europe; nearly a year after thefiling of the government bill, 75,000 were sold for cash, complainant Harriman concurring; some months after, Harriman and Pierce and the Oregon Short Line company pledged their 824,000 shares to the Equitable Trust company. Notwithstanding the decree of April 9, 1903, they stood on their rights as shareholders, and it was not until after March 22, 1904, when defendants' board of directors resolved upon a ratable distribution that complainants undertook to change an election already so pronounced as to be irrevocable in itself in view of the rights of others.

"We regard the contention that complainants are exempt from the doctrine in pari delicto because the parties acted in good faith and without intention to violate the law as without merit. With knowledge of the facts and of the statute the parties turned out to be mistaken in supposing that the statute would not be held applicable to the facts. Neither can plead ignorance of law as against the other, and defendant secured no unfair advantage in retaining the consideration voluntary delivered for the price agreed.

"With a full knowledge of the intention, the proceedings of the two companies followed in November, 1901, and the absolute sale and purchase as we hold the transaction to have been.

"We find no evidence of any express agreement that complainants should be entitled to the new common stock and it was certainly not the natural increase of the old stock, but the result of the exercise of the right of subscription. The purchase by the Securities company was on its own account and not in trust, and cannot be disturbed of illegal purpose at the clamor of the parties in pari delicto. And there is here no offer of the restoration of the status quo if that were practicable.

"Doubtless it became the duty of the Securities company to end a situation that had been adjudged unlawful and this could be effected by sale and distribution in cash or by distribution in kind, and the latter method was adopted and wisely adopted for the forced sales of several thousand shares of stock would have involved disastrous results. In fine, the titles to these stocks have intentionally been passed, the former owners or part of them cannot reclaim the specific shares and must be content with their ratable proportion of the corporate assets.

"Decree affirmed. Cause remanded to circuit court with a direction to dismiss the bill."

COTTON IN CHINA

Seventeen Steam-Driven Mills In China and Hongkong.

The Industry Has So Far Proved a Comparative Failure.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Cotton Mills in China," discussed by J. W. Jamieson, British commercial attache in that country, is a subject of unusual importance, especially to the cotton manufacturers of the United States, 40 per cent of whose annual exports are marketed in China. The following is an abstract of the report in question, a copy of which has just been received by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics. According to the report, dated March, 1905, there are seventeen establishments in China and Hongkong operated by means of steam-driven machinery, their total number of spindles being 619,648. Of these, nine establishments, with 325,000 spindles, are located in Shanghai alone, and one at Hongkong, with 55,000 spindles.

The spinning of cotton into yarn, says Mr. Jamieson, and the weaving of that yarn into cloth are industries which, while not anterior to the manipulation of silk and of hemp fibers, have existed in China for over one thousand years. Carried on practically throughout the whole empire, their great center has for centuries been th country where cotton is grown to the best advantage, that is to say, the seaboard round the mouth of the Yangtze and the Hangchow bay and the level plains of the provinces of Hupei. And it is there where have been established the various mills for treating raw cotton by means of steam-driven machinery. The initial experiment on modern lines was made in 1891, when a semi-official Chinese syndicate started at Shanghai. Its originators claimed for themselves a quasi monopoly and prohibited outsiders, who were not prepared to pay a fixed royalty for the privilege, from engaging in similar undertakings. Although certain Chinese accepted this onerous condition, foreigners resented it as an undue interference with their treaty rights, and it was only when Japan, in 1895, after her war with China, inserted in the treaty of Shimonoseki an article providing for the freedom of Japanese subjects to engage in all kinds of manufacturing industries in the open ports of China, and permitting them to import machinery for such purposes, that outsiders were afforded an opportunity of exploiting the rich field for commercial development thereby thrown open.

The Hong Kong Cotton Spinning, Weaving, and Dyeing company was started in 1898, with a view to catering for the wants of Southern China, and hoped to find in Borneo a source of supply of raw material. Such hopes, however, were not realized, and in 1900 it got into serious difficulties. A reorganization on the basis of writing down its $100 shares to $10 each followed, and it has succeeded in paying a dividend on its reduced capital. This mill obtains its supplies duty free, as against an import duty at the rate of 1 haikwan tael per 222 pounds on cotton from abroad. The counts it spins are low, chiefly 10's, and such of the output as is not disposed of locally goes principally to Amoy and Fuchau. The Chinese customs statistics record the imports of Kong Hong yarn into China as having been 894,000 pounds in 1901, 816,300 pounds in 1902, and 1,230,400 pounds in 1903.

Four of the mills at Shanghai represent £500,000 of European capital sunk in cotton mills after the Japanese war, on the assumption that with the aid of cheap labor, skilled management, and abundant supplies of excellent cotton a handsome profit thereon would be earned. They all paid small dividends in 1897-98, but have been struggling to keep their heads above water ever since. One of the Shanghai establishments (the Shanghai Cotton Spinning company) is under Japanese management and control, the present owners having bought it at half the cost price from a foreign bank, into whose hands it fell through inability to discharge its financial obligations. It was originally Chinese-owned.

In the report of the China mission of the Blackburn chamber of commerce, which visited Shanghai about the time when the mills under foreign management were in their infancy, will be found certain speculations with regard to their future and to the manner in which they are likely to affect imports from abroad. One of the conclusions at which the members of the commission arrived was that while the new mills could not be considered as directly competing with the productions of the United Kingdom, so favorable were the surrounding circumstances and conditions to the expansion of trade, that Lancashire must eventually suffer serious indirect loss.

As experience has demonstrated that in the majority of cases cotton mills in China have, from a financial point of view, far from fulfilled expectations, there is small likelihood of additional capital being embarked therein until some means of making them pay shall have been discovered. In 1902 500,000 spindles were continually at work, and their aggregate production may be put down at 93,000,000 pounds. China's imports of yarn in 1903 exceeded those of 1902 by 38,730,250 pounds, and amounted to 365,126,400 pounds as against 132,242,800 pounds in 1893. In 1872 yarn constituted 6 per cent of the total value (currency) of all cotton products imported; in 1882 it has risen to 42 per cent, and in 1903 it reached no less than 52 per cent, valued at £8,814,500. Spinning and weaving of cotton are in China entirely intrusted to women; silk, on the other hand, being woven by men, and the finer and more even thread of machine-spun yarn, as compared with homespun yarn, is doubtless a strong recommendation in its favor. Ample supplies of cheap and good yarn having relieved the female population from the necessity of spinning, they have all the more leisure to devote to weaving.

The conversion of foreign spindles and looms finds its market practically at the doors of the mills, some native mills taking in raw cotton from the country people and delivering a stipulated quantity of yarn in exchange. Exports to a distance pay a duty—in the nature of excice—on the basis of the import tariff of 1898, which, in the case of yarn, amounts to seventy Haikwan taels per picul. China's imports of cotton yarn since 1898, the year in which the increased spindle power first commenced running, have been as follows:

Classification 1898.	Pounds.	1901. Pounds.	1903. Pounds.
British	9,146,333	7,007,500	2,244,000
Indian	186,657,333	228,931,000	250,788,000
Japanese	64,699,200	66,415,467	110,854,000
Hongkong		694,400	1,230,400
Total	260,501,866	303,048,367	365,126,400

The main factor which is said to have adversely affected the fortunes of the Chinese mills has been their failure to obtain supplies of raw cotton at reasonable prices and in good condition. The estimates made at the time when foreign capital was about to embark on the new enterprise were founded on the belief that cotton would never go beyond 11.50 taels per picul, as for years its price had remained stationary at 11 taels. In cherishing an expectation of this kind those responsible were, however, grievously in error, as rings and combinations on the part of Chinese middlemen have gradually forced up prices, until now cotton has to be bought at 90 per cent over the figure on which the original calculations were based.

Steam-ginned cotton, the best grade of the Chinese staple, has increased from 14.7 taels per picul (133 1-3 pounds) in 1899 to 18.9½ taels in 1902 and 21.9 in 1904, up to June 30.

The price of yarn has advanced in sympathy with cotton, a 400-pound bale of press-packed bale of 14's yarn being 68.4 taels in 1899, 83.1 taels in 1902, and 92.4 taels for the six months ending June 30, 1904.

As cotton possesses a "world value," the fall in the price of silver has, of course, materially contributed to this rise, there being a difference of 24 per cent between the prices of 1896 and 1902.

Another very serious drawback with which the mills have to contend is the dishonest practice of adulterating cotton with water. An attempt has been made to stamp out this evil with the aid of official support. Other reasons why the cotton-spinning industry in China has hitherto proved a comparative failure are to be found in the lack of experience, everything at first being more or less in the nature of experiment.

Chinese labor is becoming more efficient year by year; it is more amenable to discipline and shows a greater disposition to keep steadily at work, the working day lasts 13½ hours, night shifts working 10 hours extra. Many mills in Shanghai pay by piecework, and the average amount earned is 12 cents a day. Elsewhere much lower rates of wages are obtained.

THE SPIRITUALIST MEDIUM'S EYES.

Dr. Maxwell of Bordeaux has observed tiny spots in the iris of the eyes of all mediums with whom he has come into contact, says Annals of Psychical Research. It is not a question of different colors; the spots he has observed in all his good mediums have generally been round black marks bearing a vague resemblance to a cat's head, a bird's head or cat's paws. Sometimes letters appear to be traced on the iris; and Dr. Maxwell knows a medium in whose left eye the letter M is very clearly and distinctly marked. Dr. Maxwell now asks for further information. There seems good reason for asking, at any rate, whether abnormalities of the iris might not be responsible for the medium's hypothetical power of seeing things which other people cannot.

INTERNAL CLEANLINESS.

In all the published accounts of visits which European surgeons have made to the Japanese hospitals stress is laid on the immunity from the after effects of wounds which has resulted from the Japanese soldiers' care of the body, within and without, says the London Post. "The Japanese soldier," says one observer, "has been taught how to treat his inside, and consequently his inside is now treating him with equal consideration," and in addition to this, dies of wounds, owing to the national cleanliness, have healed very quickly.

NO CORPORATION CAN CONTRIBUTE TO FUNDS OF POLITICAL PARTIES

According to the Dorsey Bill Passed By the House.

Lund Anti-Private Bank Bill Revived By the Senate.

FROM THE HERALD ST PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house, by a vote of 79 to 17, this morning passed the bill by J. H. Dorsey (Dem.) to prohibit corporations from contributing to campaign funds. It was amended so as to apply only to corporations organized for pecuniary profit and under public supervision, meaning principally railroads, and also to cut out the words "and anything of value," so as to permit the issuance of passes and free newspaper notices.

There was a heated debate on the bill, Representatives Flower, Lennon and others arguing for it and Anderson, Washburn and others against it. Lennon said corporation money helped to down the free trade heresy, and he appealed to Republicans to kill the bill.

* * *

The senate this morning turned down the report of its banking committee, killing the Lund private bank bill, and by a vote of 32 to 18 adopted the minority report placing the bill on general orders. It prohibits private banks after next February.

* * *

The Ware bill making 2½ cents instead of 3 cents the maximum passenger fare was sent back to the railroad committee from the calendar, on motion of Wichman, on the ground that it might interfere with bills proposed by the rate investigation committee. Ware protested that that committee did not look into passenger rates, but the house sent the bill back to the committee, 47 to 23, and that will be the end of it, it is said.

* * *

The Cole bill directing the state auditor to advertise state land sales and boom the state to attract immigrants passed the house.

* * *

The Frater-Swanson joint resolution asking congress to open for settlement the reserve lands in the Chippewa reservation passed both houses.

* * *

Senator Schaller introduced a bill providing that the state railroad and warehouse commission may appear and prosecute complaints before the interstate commerce commission in behalf of Minnesota citizens who file complaints.

* * *

Senator Fitzpatrick made an eloquent plea for his bill for the March election of judges, and got it resurrected and placed on general orders.

* * *

The Perley board of control bill was passed by the senate, 46 to 9.

* * *

The bill putting the governor's secretary on a salary basis instead of a fee basis was amended so as to become effective at the end of the present incumbent's term, and was then laid over.

* * *

George Spencer, W. E. McEwen, L. B. Manley, Frank Crasweller, R. D. Haven and John Jenswold are here working with City Attorney Fesler and T. T. Hudson for the electric light bond issue bill. There is no change in the situation. An attempt is being made to get a meeting of the Ramsey county delegation this afternoon.

WHITEWASH APPLIED TO DUNN AND IVERSON

Dowling's Committee Exonerates Past and Present State Auditors.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU

St. Paul, April 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of P. E. Dowling's public accounts and expenditures committee on the state auditor's office came in this morning, and, as expected, it is a complete exoneration of Dunn and Iverson. It was read, ordered to be printed in the Journal and laid over until the members can read it. Jefferson, Frazer and Carl of the committee refused to sign the report, but presented no minority report. It states that the auditor's office has not had money enough to employ the necessary number of state cruisers to protect the state's interests. Dunn collected $2,600,000 from timber sales, more than all former auditors together. As to the recording of bark marks, conditions made it impossible to comply with the letter of the law, but the non-compliance was technical and involved no loss to the state.

On timber trespasses, the report says that where timber was seized and sold, less was collected than when the auditor made settlements. The committee says that while double and treble stumpage value was not always obtained in settlements, Dunn and Iverson made the best settlements possible, the state getting much more than the timber's value, thus proving it was a gainer instead of a loser. As to Congressman Buckman's trespass case, the committee found that Dunn made due efforts to collect from Buckman.

The mineral leases are touched lightly. The committee finds the state was paid legal fees for all leases issued, and the state has lost nothing. As to the issuance of leases to employes, there was no evidence before the committee to warrant the assumption that the state has been unlawfully deprived of any of its mineral lands by state employes. The leases issued to relatives of employes were paid for legally.

From the evidence the committee was unable to discover a single instance where the commissions of Dunn or Iverson lost the state a single dollar and this statement is corroborated by the evidence of former Public Examiner Johnson. Nor can the committee, in justice to the people, proclaim that there has been under either any substantial evidence of incompetency, neglect or dereliction of duty. On the other hand, the state has benefited from the discretionary acts of the auditors. The rigid and drastic penalties of law were not enforced in all cases, but there is no evidence to show the state's interests were affected detrimentally thereby. As to Johnson's examination of the auditor's office, mere expertness in accounting was not sufficient and Johnson's men had no knowledge of timber and mineral matters. The examiner made no attempt to get information from the auditors that might have cleared up apparent discrepancies in the books and records. The state auditor should have more means to protect the state's timber lands.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

GETS CONTROL OF COMPANY

John Hays Hammond Ousts Opposition Clique of the Oroville.

San Francisco, April 4.—The Call says today: John Hays Hammond, the well known mining engineer and representative of the Guggenheim syndicate, has secured the control of the Oroville Gold Dredging and Exploration company by ousting an opposition clique, which heretofore has maintained the direction of this company's affairs. Mr. Hammond came West several weeks ago with the avowed purpose of contesting the control of this corporation, in which he and his associates are largely interested, and he finally succeeded in purchasing a block of 10,000 shares, which gave him and his party a majority of the company's stock. The opposition party which was defeated was headed by Fred W. Bradley, president of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mines, and the Tacoma Smelter, and W. H. Crocker, the banker.

Hammond's representatives in the new board of directors of the company, as now arranged, are J. E. Doolittle, a well known local mining expert; Jesse W. Lillienthal, a leading lawyer of this city, and James H. Jennings. The minority in the board consists of Fred W. Bradley and W. H. Crocker. Among the Eastern people who are associated with Mr. Hammond in the Oroville enterprise are J. Cass Canfield of New York, J. Kennedy, Todd & Co., James Houghtaling, C. M. McCormick, F. B. Peabody, E. A. Wiltz and O. W. Johnson.

The Call further says that before leaving for the East on Saturday last, Mr. Hammond, as the representative of the Guggenheims, completed the long pending negotiations for the purchase by the smelter trust of the Selby Smelting and Lead works. It is expected that the new owners will begin to direct the control of the Selby works next month. The sale will include the Selby plant at Vallejo Junction and its lead works and assay office in this city.

HIBBING WONAN DIES.

Mrs. Thomas Brady, Wife of Judge Brady, Dead.

Hibbing, Minn., April 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Thomas Brady, wife of Judge Brady of this city, died this morning after an illness of considerable time, due to an abscess from which she has been a long sufferer. She was about 30 years of age and prominent in the society circles of Hibbing. She leaves three children. The time for the funeral has not been fixed, but it will be held under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias, of which Judge Brady is a member.

PRESIDENT STOPS AT LOUISVILLE, KY., AND MAKES SHORT SPEECH

Introduced By Governor Beckham and Delivers Address.

Louisville, Ky., April 4.—President Roosevelt and party arrived in Louisville today on schedule time, the train coming to a stop at Third and A streets at 9 o'clock. The trip over the Louisville & Nashville road from Cincinnati was without incident. A moment after the train stopped a detail of state militia stationed in the horse show building, two miles from the place where the executive left his train, fired the presidential salute of twenty-one guns. A crowd of several thousand, including 2,000 children from several institutions, surrounded the train and as the president made his appearance he was greeted with hearty cheers. The weather was cool, but the sky was only thinly overcast.

The president was welcomed to Louisville by Acting Mayor Paul C. Barth, in the absence of Mayor Grainger, who is ill, and by Hon. Logan C. Murray, chairman of the general committee. The president responded briefly and was then escorted to his carriage a few steps away, where he was seated with Secretary Loeb, Governor Beckham and Mr. Murray. Preceded by a detail of mounted police and by a mounted civilian escort, bearing the president's colors, the president's carriage moved forward, the procession being under way in a few moments, with Gen. John B. Castleman acting as grand marshal.

Immediately following the president were carriages containing members of his party and citizens of Louisville assigned to accompany them. Then followed carriages with members of the Loyal Legion, Grand Army of the Republic and Confederate Veterans, acting as special escort to the president.

The judges of the court of appeals of Kentucky were next in line and following them was a detachment of mounted Woodmen of the World. Bringing up the rear of the imposing procession were fifty carriages, two abreast, containing the general reception committee and invited guests. A glimpse of the South in springtime greeted the eye of the president as the party proceeded down Third street.

The grass had already assumed its summer hue, and beds of jonquins, hyacinths, violet and pansies formed striking spots in a long succession of well kept lawns and hedges. Magnolia and fruit trees in full bloom between the imposing homes and in the side streets gave great spashes of delicate color to the scene and rows of maples in full foliage made a stately and reposeful border to either side of the splendid boulevard. The houses were decorated but little, but what was lacking in bunting and flags was more than made up by the natural beauty of the street.

The president was cheered at frequent intervals by a continuous line of people from the time he left his train until the party neared the business section, where the greeting grew into a popular ovation.

Drawn up on Broadway, between Third and Fourth, were the George B. Eastin camp, United Confederate Veterans, two posts of Grand Army men, and the Spanish War Veterans' association. Louisville has but a single camp of Confederates, but it is a large one, and its members were out in full strength numerically, with Gen. John H. Leathers in command.

As the head of the escorting column moved on to Broadway, the civilian escort, with the president's colors, moved rapidly forward, and the representatives of the Blue and the Gray swung into line, in column of fours, directly in front of the president's carriage, and acted as his guard of honor for the remainder of the parade.

On the south side of Broadway directly across from the president were massed about a thousand pupils of the boys and girls high school who were banked along the walls and terraced lawns of the Young Men's Christian association home. Flags were waved as a welcome to the evident pleasure of the president whose carriage a moment later turned into Fourth street. The retail district was black with people. Every window along Fourth street had its occupants and the roofs of buildings were occupied while the street below was a mass of humanity.

The decorations on Fourth street were lavish, the custom house being especially attractive as was the headquarters of the local committee, which is arranging for the entertainment early in June of the Confederates' annual reunion.

The president arrived at the speaker's stand at 10 o'clock. He was introduced in a few words by Governor Beckham.

The crowd around the speaker's stand was limited to the lines of buildings on the various streets and at times seemed beyond the control of the police. Not one-fifth of those in sight of the president could hear his remarks. The president spoke less than fifteen minutes and was heartily cheered.

Introducing the president Governor Beckham said:

"Not only the people of Louisville, but the people of all Kentucky rejoice today in welcoming among us the president of this great republic. Regardless of all political differences, we are here to do honor, not only to the chief magistrate of this country but also to Theodore Roosevelt, the man.

"We recognize his eminent patriotism, his integrity, his fearlessness and we all believe him to be a friend of the great common people throughout this country. We also look forward to him during the next four years as the ruler of this republic, to obliterate the last faint line of sectional differences that may exist in this country. (Applause.) I believe that it is in the power of this great man, more than any president since the big brained and big hearted Lincoln, to hold the affections and the confidence of the people of this country—I say, I believe it is more in his power than in the power of any other man to establish beyond question the fact that there is no north, no south, no east and no west in this country."

As the president stepped upon the platform and the crowd saw him, a prolonged cheer went up. The president tried to speak, but good naturedly waited until the applause had died out. Then he said:

"Governor Beckham, and you, my fellow Americans: (Applause.) Surely any man would indeed be gratified to

WICKES' SON GETS BUT $500 A YEAR

Chicago, April 4.—Under the will of Thomas H. Wickes, vice president of the Pullman Car company, just filed in the probate court, the largest legacy goes to Hugh P. Walden, a nephew. Mr. Walden's share in the estate includes the residence in Prairie avenue, valued at $15,000, an additional $30,000, twenty-one lots in Hammond, Ind., and various personal effects, aggregating nearly $60,000. The estate is valued at $250,000. Thomas H. Wickes, Jr., of Kansas City, only son of the testator, is bequeathed an annuity of $500, that will cease at his death. The daughters, Laura, Annette Wickes Felt, and Florence Wickes Johnston, will divide the income on $100,000, less the $500 annuity bequeathed their brother. A number of legacies are given to other relatives and charitable institutions.

MINNEAPOLIS GIRL BRUTALLY ROBBED

Knocked Down With a Billy and Purse Taken Away From Her.

Minneapolis, April 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rosella Helmer, a 15-year-old girl, was the victim of one of the most brutal robberies in the record of Minneapolis last night, and now lies in a delirious condition at her home, 514 Fifth street south.

The girl, with her 13-year-old sister and a girl friend, was on her way to a grocery store when the assault occurred. They were returning from the Lumber exchange, where Rosella Helmer's brother gave her his month's salary to carry home. He asked her to stop at a grocery store and pay a bill on the way.

As the girl was walking along Sixth street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, she stopped to tie her shoestring. The other girls kept on walking. As the girl bent over, two men, who were following her, stepped quickly forward.

One of the two men struck her a terrific blow on the head with a billy and the other grabbed the purse as the unconscious girl fell to the sidewalk.

Her companions were too surprised to cry out until the men began to run away. Their screams brought aid and the injured girl was carried to her home.

It is thought that the two men saw the brother give the money to his sister and followed her.

The child is in a serious condition from the effects of the blow. Her mother, Mrs. Alice Helmer, is very ill from heart trouble and a baby brother is seriously sick with pneumonia. The younger girls were able to give a good description of the thugs.

DEMOCRATS CONFIDENT OF ELECTING DUNNE AS MAYOR OF CHICAGO

Republicans Voting Very Slowly In Some of the Wards.

Voters Aroused In Morning By Cannon Crackers and Bells.

Close Contest In Ward Where the Leading Candidates Live.

Chicago, April 4.—Ownership by the city of the street railways of Chicago is the principal issue in the municipal election held here today. Franchises estimated to be worth $200,000,000 are involved. John M. Harlan, Republican candidate for mayor, favors a tentative arrangement with the traction companies providing for ultimate municipal ownership, while Judge Edward F. Dunne, the Democratic nominee, stands for immediate ownership by the city. A number of other important issues also were decided. The day opened with cloudy skies and a chilly northwest wind, accompanied by occasional light showers.

Democratic enthusiasts developed increased hope as the balloting progressed. The basis was slow voting in some of the Republican wards. Republicans admitted that the slow voting was against them, but ridiculed claims that the Democrats would carry any wards normally Republican.

Democratic and Republican workers kept up a lively pace in the Twenty-first ward, the home of both John M. Harlan and Mayor Harrison. The result there was said to be decidedly in doubt. Harrison in the last municipal election carried the ward, but Democrats conceded it would be hard for Dunne to poll as large a vote in the ward, handicapped by Harlan's residence there. This was held to be particularly true in the fashionable Lake shore drive portion of the ward.

In the First ward, usually controlled by the Democratic alderman, Michael Kenna, familiarly known as "Hinky Dink," a novel method was utilized to get the lodging house voters to the polls. Squads of men armed with bunches of cannon crackers were sent along the streets and soon there was a din sufficient to discount genuine artillery. The inmates of the lodging houses were speedily organized into platoons of four and voted as rapidly as possible. The workers, however, seemed to be unusually cautious in marshaling this class of voters. Alderman Kenna declared that negro residents and the Italians, who usually vote the Republican ticket, were supporting Dunne.

A cowbell was used to arouse sleepy voters in the Twenty-fourth ward. The bell was rung in hallways and, when the voters appeared, they were told not to forget to vote.

Workingmen who voted the Socialist and labor tickets in the Thirtieth ward last fall, appeared to have decided today largely in favor of the Democratic nominee for mayor, although the Harlan supporters declared that Harlan was more than holding his own. The voting in this ward was heavy—two-thirds of the total vote being reported cast before noon.

In the so-called silk sock Twenty-fifth ward, which Harlan carried in an independent fight four years ago, predictions were made by Republican leaders that the Republican ticket would poll a plurality of from 3,500 to 4,000 votes over Judge Dunne, notwithstanding that the ward is the one in which Judge Dunne lives, and that the judge's neighbors' end of the ward have been conducting a hot campaign in Judge Dunne's behalf.

IN WISCONSIN.

Municipal Elections Being Held Throughout State.

Milwaukee, April 4.—Municipal elections are being held in many towns throughout Wisconsin today. In addition a justice of the state supreme court and a state superintendent of schools are being voted for. In the state, interest centers chiefly in the election of a state superintendent of schools, Charles P. Cary, the present incumbent, and Albert Salisbury of Whitewater are running for this office on non-partisan tickets. John B. Winslow has no opposition as justice of the supreme court. Only a few minor offices are to be filled in Milwaukee. The early vote is very light.

La Crosse, Wis., April 4.—Municipal elections are being held in La Crosse and a half dozen larger cities of the state today and a general state election is being held for members of the supreme court and superintendent of public instruction. In La Crosse the issue is the closing of the gambling houses, which the Republican party has taken up. A heavy vote is being polled with the mayoralty in doubt between William Torrance, Democrat, and George W. Bunge, Republican.

IN KANSAS.

Local Issues Only Involved In Municipal Elections.

Kansas City, April 4.—Municipal elections were held today in most cities in Kansas. Bright cool weatner was general. As a rule, only local issues were involved and the election was quiet. In Kansas City, Kan., however, one of the most enthusiastic campaigns in years was conducted. In that city were four tickets in the field. T. B. Gilbert, Republican, sought re-election as mayor, and the Democrats worked to elect W. W. Rose on a platform of "cheap gas, pure water and no graft."

IN NEBRASKA.

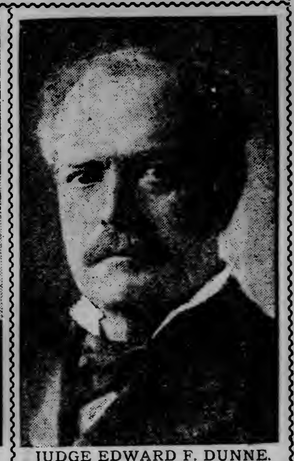

Elections Held In All Towns Excepting Omaha.

Omaha, April 4.—City and village elections are being held today in all towns in Nebraska, outside of Omaha, which is governed by a special charter. The interest is generally local and no party lines are drawn. Nebraska being a local option state, the principal issue is that of license or no license. On this issue a hard campaign has been waged in several larger cities, principal among which are Lincoln, York, Nebraska City and Fremont.

RUSSIANS BASE HOPES ON PACIFIC SQUADRON

Victory By Rojestvensky Would Change Entire Aspect of War.

McCormick Says There Is General Desire to Continue Fight.

New York, April 4.—Robert S. McCormick, the newly appointed American ambassador to France, says he is surprised at the reports that there was a desire to conclude peace at any price manifested in official circles, cables the Paris correspondent of the Herald. According to Ambassador McCormick, no such desire exists in St. Petersburg.

"On the contrary, in official circles there is," he said, "a general desire to continue the war to the bitter end, and there are great hopes that Admiral Rojestvensky will meet the Japanese fleet and gain a victory, which may in one day change the entire aspect of the war.

"All the hopes of Russia are now centered in that fleet and its encounter with the Japanese squadron is looked forward to with confidence.

"Reports of American intervention in the war are without the slightest foundation."

PREPARATIONS CONTINUE.

Russians Not Countermanding Orders For Supplies.

St. Petersburg, April 4.—War Minister Sakharoff, in an interview today, declares that the reports of Russia countermanding orders for war material abroad are baseless and grow out of the declination of foreign offers with which the war office and admiralty have been swamped. He insists that there has been no relaxation in the preparations to continue the war, but says there will be no new mobilization at present, explaining, as stated in these dispatches, that 140,000 troops of the last mobilization have already started for the front and that instead of mobilizing new troops these will be followed by a portion of this year's conscripts.

Gen. Sakharoff denied emphatically that he ever intrigued against Gen. Kuropatkin, affirming that he gave the latter the most loyal support. At the same time, in discussing the battle of Mukden, Sakharoff declared the men and material of the Russian army were equal to the Japanese, forcing the reluctant conclusion that the Japanese generalship was superior to the Russian.

In denying the popular impression that a large proportion of army reserve men were sent to the front, Sakharoff made the important admission that reserve men were only sent in the early stages of the war, "before we had assurances from Europe," which is interpreted as a confession that an arrangement was made with Germany for covering the frontier of Poland.

IS STEAMING NORTH.

Rojestvensky's Fleet Is Bound For Vladivostok.

St. Petersburg, April 4.—A letter from Vice Admiral Rojestvensky to his wife, which has just been received here, indicates that the departure of the second Pacific squadron from Madagascar waters is final and that it is now on the way to Vladivostok. The admiral writes that the sailing of the squadron had been fixed for March 19, but naturally he avoided mention of the route which it was intended to follow on the voyage eastward.

The admiralty admitted knowledge of this determination of Admiral Rojestvensky and stated that no contrary orders had been sent him. It is understood that a rendezvous with Admiral Nebogatoff's division of the Baltic squadron is now contemplated.

PRINCE AND PRINCESS HENRY GUESTS AT THE CZAR'S PALACE

St. Petersburg, April 4.—Prince and Princess Henry of Prussia arrived at Tsarskoe-Selo this morning. At the Germany embassy attempts to give a political character to Prince Henry's visit and to connect it with the situation created by Emperor William's Tangier speech were ridiculed, it being explained that the visit of the princess to her sisters, the empress and the Grand Duchess Sergius during the latter's period of mourning was announced before Emperor William left Germany. The idea of an acute crises in German-French relations was scouted at the German embassy. Princess Henry will remain for some time at Tsarskoe-Selo but the prince will return to Berlin in a few days.

There has been a persistent rumor that the Grand Duchess Serfiius who is still crushed by the murder of her husband will shortly retire to a convent and devote her life to the church of which she is a very devoted member.

Berlin, April 4.—No significance whatever is attributable to the visit of Prince Henry of Prussia to Russia as it was announced some weeks ago that he and his wife were going to visit the widow of Grand Duke Sergius, who is a sister of Princess Henry.

Negro Seeks to Recover Damages From Restaurant Keeper.

Claims Waitress Refused to Serve Him Because of Color.

The suit of Henry C. Richardson, the negro who is attempting to recover damages from B. J. Cook, the restaurant keeper, is again being heard in the municipal court today, before Judge F. L. Cutting.

The suit was brought by Attorney J. H. Whitely last fall. It was claimed that Richardson entered Cook's restaurant on the evening of Sept. 3, in company with Claude A. Berry, a clerk in the employ of P. J. Neff, the attorney. The two men sat for some time without being served, and they claim that when they asked to have their orders taken, the waitress informed them that she was not compelled to serve "a nigger."

The two men assert that they waited a little while longer and then despairing of getting anything to eat, got up and left the restaurant.

Richardson brought suit to recover damages to the amount of $495 against the proprietor of the restaurant, for the injuries done to his feelings by the manner in which he was refused service before the eyes of all the people in the restaurant.

Attorney Albert Baldwin defended the proprietor, and on his motion Judge Windom dismissed the first case, on a technical point in regard to the construction of the statute, which says that restaurant keepers shall not refuse to serve any person on account of age or color or sex.

The case was appealed by Mr. Whitely, and the district court judges reversed the ruling of Judge Windom.

The case was again commenced in the municipal court and it is being heard today by Judge Cutting.

Richardson was placed on the stand this morning and told his story. He claimed that the waitress refused to serve him and that they appealed to Mr. Cook, but he said he could do nothing for them.

The claim is made by the proprietor that his employes were all union hands and that had he ordered the waitress to serve the negro, he would have had a strike to contend with.

The case will probably last during the greater part of the afternoon, as there are a number of witnesses to be heard.

Drinks Solution of Strychnine at Camp Table.

Marinette, Wis., April 4.—"Well, goodbye, boys; here's the last of it." were the words of Sam Windsor of Amberg, as he stood before his fellow employes at the table in camp where he was working and drained a tin cup which they supposed to contain medicine. Then he sank to the floor and in fifteen minutes he was dead. The cup had been half full of a solution of strychnine. The men ran to him and one of them asked:

"The last of what, Sam?"

"Strychnine," he answered.

"What did you take it for?"

He gasped that he was no more use on earth and was dead in a few minutes.

ELECTION IN MARQUETTE.

Mistake In Printing Official Ballot Cuts Plurality.

Marquette, Mich., April 4.—As a result of an error in printing the official ballot for Marquette county, Joseph B. Moore, Republican candidate for supreme court justice, has carried Marquette county by probably only 500 majority, whereas otherwise it would have been about 2,500. The name of the justice appeared on the ballot as "James B. Moore," the error was not noticed until about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and by time election commissioners had notified the officials of such precincts as could be reached a large proportion of the county vote had been cast.

In Marquette, City Alderman Walter Ward, was elected mayor by 350 majority, defeating Rush Culver, one of the wheelhorses of the Democracy in Northern Michigan. Partisan lines were not drawn, however, nor was there any especial issue unless it had to do with the overthrow of the faction which has ruled municipal affairs for several years. Peter Byrne, candidate for treasurer on the Culver ticket, won out by 300 majority, defeating E. Bertrand.

LAITY AND CLERGY

District Conference of Methodist Episcopal Church In Session.

Remains of Young Herman Braskella Not Yet Recovered.

The district conference of the Methodist Episcopal church opened this afternoon at Asbury Methodist church, at West Duluth, and it is expected that about fifty pastors and a number of lay delegates will be present. Rev. E. C. Clemans, D.D., presiding elder of the district, will have charge of the conference, and the program which has been prepared will take up all of this afternoon, this evening and all of tomorrow, beginning at 8:30 in the morning and ending in the evening. A great many addresses will be given by the clergy at this conference, and it is expected that much help will be received by those attending.

This afternon's program opened at 2:30, with devotional services, conducted by Rev. C. F. Adams of Biwabik, and this was followed by a discussion by Presiding Elder Clemans of "The District Outlook." Rev. J. W. Powell of the Endion church, Duluth, is speaking as The Herald goes to press on "What to Read and How to Read It," and following this will come an address on "The Distinctive Doctrines of Methodism," by Rev. F. G. Clark of the Asbury church. This evening, at 7 o'clock, Rev. John Blackhurst of Barnum will conduct devotional services, and Rev. M. S. Rice of the First Methodist church of Duluth will deliver the sermon. The program for tomorrow follows:

8:30 a. m.—Devotional exercises, R. W. Bell, Floodwood.
9:00 a. m.—Business session, conducted by E. C. Clemans.
10:30 a. m.—"Our Sunday School, Its Strength and Weakness," S. G. Briggs, Oneota church.

GUN CLUB FORMS.

Has Sixty-Two Members and More Coming.

The West Duluth Rod and Gun club was organized last night at the Commercial club rooms, under the name given. It started out with sixty-two members and $124 in the treasury, and it is believed that this will be added to materially before many days. The idea has taken root and is being enthusiastically fostered.

The matter of erecting a building will be considered in a few days, as soon as the club has gotten into working order. The next meeting will be held Monday evening, at the Commercial club rooms, and at that meeting a committee on grounds and buildings appointed to consist of sites, etc., and consisting of Jack Schuler, C. T. Fancett and L. Deatherage, will report. A site which has been proposed is at the foot of Seventy-second avenue west, on the point. Many consider this ideal, but the matter will be further discussed Monday night.

The following officers were elected: President, F. R. Holmberg; vice president, E. E. Moseman; field captain, L. Deatherage; field lieutenant, Jack Schuler; secretary-treasurer, F. H. Wade; committee on constitution and by-laws, F. H. Wade, Dr. C. R. Keyes and J. A. Scott; executive committee, F. R Holmberg, F. H. Wade, I. Deatherage, George Cruikshank and E. J. Zauft.

BODY NOT FOUND.

Remains of Herman Braskella Still Under Ice.

The search for the body of little Herman Braskella, who was drowned yesterday in Clear Creek, West Duluth, went on yesterday until darkness prevented any further search. This morning boys were at work at the creek with pike poles, endeavoring to locate the body, but without avail, and this afternoon Lieut. Briggs and the relatives of the drowned boy will continue an organiedz drag of the creek, in the hope of finding the poor little body.

The creek has been searched, from Sixty-first avenue west and Gosnoid, where the child fell in, right down to the bay, but there is no indication of a body, and it is feared that the strong current has swept its victim out into the bay, and that it will not be found until the ice disappears.

The relatives of the child are suffering heart-rending grief, and the sympathy of everyone in West Duluth is extended to them.

RESERVOIR PLANNED.

Land Purchased and Construction Starts Soon.

The city council last night appropriated $600 with which to buy two blocks of land in Lloyd's division of West Duluth, the land to be used for the construction of a reservoir into which water will be pumped from the Lakewood station, and it will be distributed in West Duluth by gravitation, the elevation being enough to make pumping unnecessary. The work on the reservoir is expected to start soon and will cost about $55,000.

Meetings For Young Women.

A meeting is being held in the West Duluth Baptist church this afternoon at which Mrs. Feetham, secretary of the Y. W. C. A. is speaker. This meeting is largely attended by women interested in the furtherance of Y. W. C. A. work. Mrs. Feetham is endeavoring to extend the work of this organization to West Duluth and with this object in view is trying to organize a series of Sunday afternoon meetings for young women to take place in the various churches.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

A series of special revival meetings are being conducted in the West Duluth Baptist church this week at which Rev. Arthur J. Hoag, the pastor, is speaker. Last night, however, Rev. S. C. Davis of the First Baptist church addressed the audience and a number of people from Duluth attended. The meetings, it is believed will result in a great deal of good and are an important part of the wave or religious revival now going over the country and in fact over the entire world.

Edward Pearce will leave today for Portland, Or., where he has procured a position with the management of the Lewis and Clark exposition to take place there this year.

REVOLTING SIGHT

Lungs of Cow Afflicted With Tuberculosis and Killed.

Animal Was Claimed By Her Owner To Be Healthy.

Those who doubt the efficiency of the tuberculin test for cattle, or the fact that cattle do contract tuberculosis, would be convinced by a glance at the diseased lungs of a cow which are now on exhibition in the office of the health commissioner.

The lungs, which were taken from a cow killed in one of the local dairies, are filled with the most revolting yellow pus, and covered as they are with little sores, present a most nauseating sight.

"They were taken from a cow in one of the best dairies in the city," said one of the inspectors this morning. "The veterinary applied the test, and the cow's temperature rose. The owner refused to believe that his cow was afflicted, claiming she was one of the best animals in his herd, and insisting that we had made a mistake. The cow was in fact a fine, fat, healthy-looking animal, but when we killed her and showed him what her lungs looked like, he was convinced.

"If any person should take a look at those lungs, and then think that he might have been drinking milk from the cow from which they were taken, he would no longer doubt but that the ordinance just passed by the city is a good thing."

Meanwhile the inspectors and the veterinarian are going steadily ahead with the work of inspecting the cattle, and as soon as they have completed their task, the licenses will be issued to the different dairymen in the city. After the licenses have been issued, each dairyman will be compelled to exhibit the number of his license on his wagons, and no person will be allowed to sell milk in the city who does not have a license.

It is hoped to have the ordinance in force in the city on or shortly after May 1.

The work of testing the cattle in the dairies supplying milk to the city is in charge of Dr. McKay and Herman Moeller, the dairy inspector.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Defense Not Allowed to See Galvins Ante Mortem Statement.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—An interesting point of law was brought up in the preliminary trial of E. P. Farnham and W. C. Torrence, who are being held for the murder of Richard Galvin. The attorneys for the defense demanded that they be permitted to see the evidence as dictated by the dying man. This was refused and the state's attorney asserts that there is no law that can compel him to submit this statement. Farnham's attorneys demanded that the justice of the peace, Judge Colman, be taken before the judge of the circuit court on a writ of mandamus to show cause why the state's attorney should not bring into justice court the dying man's last statement. It is likely that the trial will not come berore a jury until the fall term of court. Farnham and Torrance are in jail here.

Redfield—Judge Whiting has decided that the council must divide the city into four wards and thus provide for eight aldermen. When the change from three to four wards is accomplished, Redfield will become a city of the second-class.

The redistricting of the city may not be made at once, however, on account of the difficulty in finding a plan satisfactory to all the council, or even to a majority. Each alderman wants a division that will not affect his tenure of office or his likelihood of re-election. For that reason what pleases one will not please all, and some of the schemes would make the city look like a dissected map of Europe.

Andover—The second annual meeting of the Northern Educational association will be held in Andover, April 6 and 7. The association comprises all the counties north of and along the line of the Chicago & Northwestern, running through Gettysburg, Faulkton, Redfield, Clark, Watertown and Gary. Reduced rates will be made on all railroads. An excellent program has been prepared.

On account of the artesian well not having sufficient pressure for fire protection, Andover will put down a new 4½-inch well. The old well is 1,070 feet deep.

Andover voted license by 17 majority. All of the neighboring towns voted likewise.

Pierre—At the time of the Taylor defalcation $90,000 of the money lost belonged to the state school fund, and to make this loss good, the state issued bonds which were sold on the market. State Treasurer Collins has now called in the last of this issue, $52,000. The state bonded indebtedness is $237,000, with nearly $200,000 in the bond sinking fund to apply on this debt if the holders of the bonds can be persuaded to surrender them before they are due. One issue of bonds of $4,500 is due May 1, 1907, and another of $153,500 will not be due until May 1, 1909. If the holders of these securities can be persuaded to release them by Jan. 1, 1906, the bonded debt of the state will be wiped out.

George Miller, a laborer, is under arrest on the charge of shooting at his wife and then attempting suicide. He has been out of work and despondent.

Articles of incorporation have been filed for the Palatine Telephone company, Palatine township, Aurora county, with a capital of $24,000. Incorporators, A. D. Dougan, John Saville and others of Plankinton.

Another bank was added to those in the Rosebud country by the incorporation of the Rosebud bank at Herrick, with a capital of $8,000. Incorporators, James E. Russell, Herrick; William T. Russell, Edwin J. Russell of Fullerton, Neb.

Governor Elrod has appointed as fish and game warden for Day county, Edward Browder of Waubay.

Montrose—Relatives are alarmed over the mysterious disappearance of Frank A. Fisher, and it is feared he may have been the victim of foul play. His wife is almost distracted. His family relations were pleasant. He is about 25, slight build, has light brown hair and gray-blue eyes.

Arlington—Word was received yesterday that D. W. McCaskell of this place, an electrician and civil engineer, was drowned in the White river in Arkansas, falling from a boat and being dragged under the propeller. He was on a pleasure trip through the South.

Spearfish—The business men have arranged for a grand carnival the last week in April. A carnival company has been secured, and athlectic contests with outside clubs will be held.

Lead—James Northey, who is said to have turned the first wheel of the Homestead Mining company's machinery, is dead.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—There will be a hot contest between Casselton and Fargo over a county fair association. Casselton seems to be in the lead. When the state fair controversy was settled, with Fargo and Grand Forks to have it on alternate years, the locals decided to have a county fair on the years the state fair is held at Grand Forks. They were slow in perfecting the organization, and Casselton has organized, laid out grounds and arranged the dates. Under a new law the county commissioners can assist the fair associations by making a levy. Casselton wil make the application, and it is not probable that both towns can secure county aid. If Casselton wins, Fargo will have to bear the expense of its county fair without county assistance.

The pure-food law against meat preservatives will be enforced this year more rigourously than ever. Commissioner Ladd has issued a warning to the dealers. Last year twenty-one dealers were convicted. In most cases the manufacturers of the preservatives had promised to stand by them in case of arrest, but failed to do so. This year they are again asserting they will bring test suits to prove the present law is unconstitutional. Some of the manufacturers have written Commissioner Ladd defiant letters, and insist they will continue the sale of their goods in the state. The only way to reach them is through the dealers.

A. E. Leadbetter, a prominent farmer living north of Fargo, was stabbed by Amel Touscany, an employee. The men had trouble over some work. Touscany is in jail.

The Fargo building trades have organized and all the branches are represented. The builders propose to adopt a uniform scale of wages on certain class of work. They have never had any serious trouble with their employes over union matters, but will be prepared for it in the future. George Rusk is president; W. J. Price vice president, T. H. Powers, secretary, and H. T. Alsop, treasurer.

The annual meeting of the Eagles of the state will be held in Fargo May 12. The local organization will entertain the visitors, and it is expected 1,000 will be in attendance.

Contractors have begun work on the new settling basin. Since the recent heavy rains the water is very black and filthy.

Larimore—James H. Mathews was shot at by D. I. Read in the Elk Valley bank Monday morning. The bullet grazed his head and the powder singed his hair. In a misunderstanding regarding the renting of land for which Mathews was agent, the lie was passed and Read twice struck Mathews in the face. Mathews clinched and Read shot to kill. Men endeavored to overpower Read, but were unable to do so until assistance came. Mathews is prminent in the state.

Fissette LIQUOR CURE

A cure discovered by myself after years of suffering and constant tortures brought about by a never ceasing craving for liquor.

The cure is simply composed of the extract of a root which I have called God's Tree Root, and which can not possibly cause the least damage to any part of the human system.

I GUARANTEE TO CURE

any drunkard of the appetite for any liquor except wine in two weeks' time or to remit the price of the Cure during its introduction—$25—which shall have been deposited with a bank or some responsible person mutually agreed upon.

The patient will also have to stay two weeks with me, and from the first medicine that you take you will lose your appetite for liquor—also the conceit you would have that it would not cure you. It will cure only the same as those it has cured, which is a permanent cure.

A CONTRACT,

Guaranteeing to cure will be given every patient. Several habitual drunkards for years have been cured by my treatment, and stand ready to testify to my claims.

Hoping to receive the patronage of sufferers from the dreadful habit which I call disease, I remain,

Your servant,
JOHN B. FISSETTE,
Victoria Hotel,
1125 West Michigan Street,
Duluth, Minn.

"I hereby testify to having been cured of the drink habit by Mr. Fissette. I was a slave to the habit for six years, and was entirely cured in two weeks. The cure was very simple, pleasant to take and it did not interfere with my work. I cannot say enough in favor of Mr. Fissette's cure, and I highly recommend it to any who are cursed with the drink habit.
"MR. JOHN CHARRIER,
"1824 West Second Street."

Duluth, Minn., April 4, 1905.
"I also was entirely cured of the miserable liquor crave by Mr. John B. Fissette's treatment, and sincerely hope that others in the lamentable situation will give it a trial.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

A JUDGE'S WIFE

PAIN IN THE BACK AND SIDE

MRS. MINNIE McALLISTER.

Quickly Cured by a Short Course of Pe-ru-na.

MRS. MINNIE E. McALLISTER, wife of Judge McAllister, writes from 1217 West Thirty-third street, Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any.

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged.

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured.

"Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna, I enjoy that now."

Pain in the back, or on the right side. How often a physician hears this complaint!

Over and over we hear women say: "I have a pain in the small of my back. I have a pain in my right side, just below the ribs."

These symptoms indicate pelvic or abdominal catarrh.

They indicate that the bowels are not acting properly—that the liver is out of order—that the pelvic organs are congested.

Pelvic catarrh—that is the name for it.

Peruna cures pelvic catarrh, when all of these symptoms disappear.

The catarrh may be all in the abdominal organs, when it would be properly called abdominal catarrh.

At any rate, it is one of those cases of internal catarrh which can be reached only by a course of treatment with Peruna.

We have on file thousands of testimonials similar to the above. It is impossible here to give our readers more than one or two specimens of the number of grateful and commendatory letters Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving in behalf of his famous catarrh remedy, Peruna.

But the evidence of the witnesses who have gone before will have enlightened you as to my husband's character. You will have seen how different his character was from mine—how small was the possibility of our being able to get on together."

"How, then, did you come to love Dr. Secchi, who was so much older than you were?" queried the judge.

Linda again broke into a fit of weeping. "I had known Dr. Secchi ever since I was a young girl, and I confess that I felt great sympathy for him," she said. "Nothing more—great sympathy, not love. I did not know what love was when I was his pupil as a child. On my marriage day I swear that I had forgotten all about Dr. Secchi. He was no longer in my mind. I loved the count and no other.

"Eight years after my marriage a friend of mine, the Marchioness di Rusconi, invited me to her house, and there, as a surprise, without announcing to me beforehand whom I was to meet, she ushered me into the presence of Dr. Secchi. I was ill both in body and mind. My life was a martyrdom to me.

"I yearned for a confidant, for a companion who would understand me, and I quickly found that Dr. Secchi was the companion I had wanted so long. He knew my misfortune. He knew it by public repute, as, indeed, everybody did. He knew the real, the great difference that existed in everything, that existed between my husband and myself.

"My husband was always saying wicked things to me of my family. He had taken my mother, and this did not make me like him any the better. I was very ill, and almost blind in my right eye. Dr. Secchi encouraged me and gave me hope. He sustained me in a moment of great moral weakness."

She denied there was a conspiracy against her husband's life and said his death came only while he was making a deadly assault on her brother, who killed him in self-defense.

BLIGHTED LOVE

Led to Murder, Says Countess Linda Murri Bonmartini.

Necessary Culmination of Count's Attack on Her Brother.

Turin, April 4.—The examination of the Countess Linda Murri Bonmartini has been the most dramatic feature of the great murder trial in progress here.

The countess was taken out of the cage, and supported on either side by a carabineer. She appeared at the bar of the court looking extremely pale and sad, and weeping bitterly.

Her face was white. Some one in court audibly remarked that she looked like a handsome young nun at the point of death. She sank into her seat weeping bittely, and a great wave of pity for the woman went up from the public. Even the barristers in court were moved with pity.

"Linda Murri, how old are you?" asked the judge.

"I am 32," answered the countess.

"You are accused of complicity in the murder of Count Bonmartini, your husband. Explain how you came to be connected with the murderer, and let us know what you have to say in your defense," said the judge.

Linda, still weeping, raised her head, and in a faltering and feble voice made answer: "Your honor, I swear before God ond before you that I am innocent, and that of the many things of which I am accused the only one of which I am guilty is that I did not strictly carry out my duty to my husband."

After saying this Countess Lindi fell into another fit of weeping. The other prisoners followed suit. After a few moments she recovered partial control of herself, and began the story of her married life.

She related her story in a melodious and sympathetic voice. Her accent was sincere, and her phrases were well turned. She is evidently not only an intelligent but also an intellectual woman. She told of her early love for Count Bonmartini—a love which she said lasted only for the first three months of her married life.

"I married the count to find a companion and comrade for life, and at the time of my marriage I loved Count Bonmarini with my whole heart and soul. I loved him with that exaggerated and true love which a young and innocent girl feels for the man whom she is to marry.

"I forgot the difference—the very great difference—of character between us. Soon after our marriage I found that my husband and I took very different views of life and that we were not destined to live in harmony of spirit together."

"Were your husband's faults so great that you could not get on with him?" asked the judge.

"I will not say that because I do not wish to libel my dead husband," replied the countess. "Remember that he was the father of my children. If he had faults, I also had faults. If he was to blame, I was equally to blame.

KATHRYN KIDDER

Is Betrothed to Youth Whose Papa Objects.

New York, April 4.—Kathryn Kidder, the actress, aged about 45, and Louis K. Anspacher, son of Leopold H. Anspacher, aged 27, are engaged to be married, and Louis' papa is said to be "hopping mad" thereover.

This is what the elder Anspacher said, when interviewed:

"I have objected to the marriage, of course. Somehow, theatrical people don't look upon marriage as a very serious proposition, but more as a business arrangement, or momentary infatuation. I don't mean for a moment that Miss Kidder comes under that head—oh, no! She is fine—truly a great artist. Although I never have met her personally, I think she is a fine woman. My serious objection to the union is that while my son is only 27 years old, I understand Miss Kidder is much older—ahem! Forty-five, I am told."

Kathryn Kidder is now playing in Trenton, and young Anspacher also is there. The story of their love is a romance of manuscript—"sides," as the actors call their parts. Young Anspacher, who was graduated from Columbit university in the class of '02, wrote several plays. He always had admired Miss Kidder and had her in mind when he wove their plots. When the plays were completed, he sought Miss Kidder, and seated at her knee, read them to her. When he wasn't reading he was gazing into her eyes. Finally he wasn't reading any more. Cupid scored up a big mark, and soon another jeweled circlet appeared on the third finger of Miss Kidder's left hand.

Miss Kidder, who is a native of Newark, N. J., has been a stage favorite for years. Some of her best work was leads with Frank Mayo and Joseph Haworth and as co-star with Louis James, Frederick Warde and Charles B. Hanford. She created the role of Dearest in "Little Lord Fontleroy."

ROBBERS ON ROOF.

New York, April 4.—When Martha West, a maid employed by Dr. A. W. Newfield o. the Manitou apartment house, went to the roof of that building to brush the doctor's spring clothes, which she had just taken from his wardrobe, she was approached by two tall men, the spokesman of whom stepped before her, saying:

"We want those two suits right away."

"You certainly can't have them," replied the maid, thinking an April fool's joke was being perpetrated upon her.

Thereupon one of the men, drawing a revolver, stood guard over the woman, while his companion stepped behind a chimney and, divesting himself of his ragged raiment, donned one of Dr. Newfield's new gray suits. Then, taking his turn at guarding the maid, he allowed the other man to get into the second suit. They escaped over the roof to an adjoining apartment house.

COUNTY CAMP TO HOLD ITS MEETING

Modern Woodmen to Hold Convention at West End.

Will Elect Delegates to State Convention at St. Paul.

Tomorrow morning, at 11 o'clock, the county camp of the Modern Woodmen of America will meet in bi-annual session at Columbia hall with Duluth camp, No. 2,341, which is the largest camp in St. Louis county. Adjournment will then be taken until 8 o'clock in the evening, when the business of the session will be transacted. This county camp will elect delegates to the state camp, which will meet in St. Paul during the first week of May, and the state camp, in turn, will elect delegates to the head camp, which is the national convention of the order, and which will meet in Milwaukee during the first week in June.

The latter body is the legislature of the order. The state camp cannot enact legislation for its members, but can merely recommend legislation for the head camp to consider. The county camps cannot take action either, but can recommend legislation to the state camp for its consideration for recommendation to the head camp. The convention system of the Woodmen is much on the same order as the election of party delegates from a county to a state convention, which in turn elects delegates to a national convention to nominate a candidate for president. All the action that can be taken outside of the election of delegates is an expression of opinion or desire. So this county convention tomorrow will elect delegates, and possibly recommend to the state camp some legislation for its consideration, which, if decided in its favor, will be recommended to the head camp.

The county convention tomorrow will elect five delegates to the state camp, which is on the basis of 500 members, or major fraction thereof, in the county. It is likely that three of these will be from Duluth and two from the county outside of Duluth. There are several candidates for election as delegates to the state convention from Duluth, among being S. W. Hill, N. N. Ole, William Bernard and M. L. Frazer.

The reasen the county camp meets with Duluth camp, No. 2341, is that the order requires the county camp to meet with the largest camp in the county, and No. 2341, with its 943 members, commands that position. This camp for a long time held the banner as the largest camp in the state, and is now second only to a camp in St. Paul, which has something over 1,100 members. The Duluth camp meets in Columbia hall, at Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, and there the county camp will be held. There are 716 camps in the state and an enormous membership. The basis of representation of the state camp at the head camp in Milwaukee will be one delegate for every 1,500 or major fraction thereof.

The basis of representation of each camp in the county tomorrow is one delegate for each twenty-five members or major fraction thereof, so that the number of delegates expected to be here tomorrow is 166, divided among camps as follows:

No. 5455, Biwabik, 1; No. 2439, Buhl, 1; No. 5068, Canosia, 1; No. 9665, Chisholm, 2; No. 10515, Columbia Junction, 1; No. 2206, Duluth, 12; No. 2341, Duluth, 37; No. 4649, Duluth, 2; No. 6217, Eveleth, 2; No. 10681, Floodwood, 1; No. 7621, Hermantown, 2; No. 4454, Hibbing, 6; No. 7750, Iron, 1; No. 9468, Kelsey, 1; No. 10713, Midway, 1; No. 7962, Mountain Iron, 1; No. 2396, New Duluth, 2; No. 7221, Proctorknott, 2; No. 6404, Skibo, 1; No. 6021, Soudan, 1; No. 8670, Sparta, 3; No. 4629, Tower, 4; No. 2955, Virginia, 5; No. 1555, West Duluth, 12; No. 4332, Winton, 2.

The total membership in the county of the M. W. A. amounts to 2,523, divided as follows:

Biwabik, 15; Buhl, 16; Canosia, 12; Chisholm, 48; Columbia Junction, 29; Duluth No. 2206, 291; Duluth No. 2341, 922; Ely, 65; Eveleth, 48; Floodwood, 22; Hermantown, 39; Hibbing, 143; Iron, 19; Kelsey, 14; Midway, 20; Mountain Iron, 23; New Duluth, 61; Proctorknott, 61; Skibo, 22; Soudan, 14; Sparta, 66; Tower, 95; Virginia, 118; West Duluth, 290; Winton, 60.

C. J. Anderson, W. L. Bernord, J. D. Coning, Charles E. Dice, M. L. Fraser, A. E. Halverson, S. W. Hill, G. M. Jensen, Alex Kennedy, W. H. Leonard, Edwin Lowe, George P. Miller, A. J. McCullough, Joseph Nylander, N. N. Ole, L. T. Pare, Thomas A. Pinto, T. W. Preston, L. T. Ryler, Charles Shogren, D. Shesgreen, Jr., Richard C. Sloan, W. Beckman, Thomas Strand, D. E. Stevens, John Stewart, T. Theveson, B. J. Gregan, Jasper Stiltz, F. E. Stevenson, Charles Coombs, J. C. Quade, C. J. Traff, Dr. G. W. Davis, O. H. Oredson, Reuben Johnson and A. B. Johnson.

The alternates are: B. Olson, O. Olson, R. E. Schrigley, John Germeroth, James Dunlap, Gus Johnson, C. J. Marsh, Oliver Gerow, Swan Hanson, Louis Larson, M. J. Ness, Chris. Sundby, T. F. Schiltz, J. J. Schaller, Thomas B. Perry, A. Nelson, Erick Jackson, Joseph Neville, J. P. Monaghan, W. Fergman, H. Stevens, O. G. Hulberg, Charles Mork, George Lang, George Stevenson, E. J. Sundberg, Charles Baxter, J. R. Olson, M. A. Fedje, C. Spencer, Ambrose Sauer, Harry Hanson, Harry Armstrong T. T. Olson R. R. Forward, D. F. Esse and Fred. Marlow.

The list of delegates from other camps has not yet been turned in.

West End Wanderings.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Mathison are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Berglund of the West end. Mr. Mathison is engineer in a sawmill at Skibo.

The Knights of Pythias lodge at the West end worked the first and second ranks on two candidates last night.

Oscar Dufort went to Thomson today to work on the Highland canal dam at that point.

Beta council of Modern Samaritans initiated a class of 25 at Columbia hall last evening. After the initiation a program was given and refreshments were served.

Mrs. William Lawson of Grand Rapids, Minn., is visiting with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ayres.

A good many of the West end marksmen who are members of the Highland Gun club are anxious to have the weather clear up so that they will be able to do a little trap shooting. It was expected that a shoot would take place last Sunday, but the weather was so bad that it had to be postponed.

The West end merchants reports business as first-class these days and look for considerable activity during the coming summer.

PRESIDENT STOPS AT LOUISVILLE, KY., AND MAKES SHORT SPEECH

be greeted in this way by such an audience, and be introduced as you have introduced me, Governor Beckham. (Applause.)

"As the governor has so well said, upon all the important questions, the questions that infinitely transcend mere partisan differences, we are fundamentally one. (Applause.)

"For the questions of foreign and internal politics, the points upon which there can be no proper division on party lines, infinitely exceed in number those upon which there can be such division and, Governor Beckham, I shall do all that in me lies to justify the hope to which you have given expression and to try to show myself the president of all the people of the United States. (Prolonged applause.)

"And, naturally, I feel particularly gratified at seeing here today, joined in this procession, the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the gray (laughter and applause.) In the dark days—now, keep just as quiet as you can; you won't be able to do anything more than see me, anyhow, (laughter and applause.) In the dark days, each of you fought for the right as it was given him to see the right, (a voice, 'That's right.') and each of you has left us the right to feel pride not only in your valor, but in your devotion to what you conscientiously believe your duty. (Applause.)

"And now we are all one. (Great cheers and long continued applause.) And in coming to this great beautiful city of yours, I wish to congratulate you upon the historic part that is found here. I am glad as I say of the spirit that makes you wish to dedicate statues like this of Jefferson, like the great statue of Clay. It is a fine thing to keep to a sense of historic continuity with the past, and there is one statue that I wish the members in the national congress from Kentucky to see is put up by the national government and that is a national statue of Andrew Jackson, and the victors of the battle of New Orleans. The fight at New Orleans was one in which the whole nation has a share, as far as the glory and the profit went, and the whole nation and not any one state should join in putting that statue up.

"Now, I am going to say goodbye, because there is a little movement there and it will be better for the women and the small people if I let you get away. Goodbye."

As the president descended to the platform from the speaking stand, the voices of two male German singing societies burst forth with the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home," the president remaining uncovered until the famous song had been concluded. Then he spoke to the singers as follows:

"Gentlemen: I want to thank you for coming here to sing today, and I want to say just one thing suggested by your presence: We as a people are composed of men of many different stocks from the Old World. Each stock can contribute something of great value to our national life. The people of German origin who have come here have contributed much in many different ways, and not the least of what they contributed has been the power to know what the joy of living means. (Applause.) There is one word I wish it were possible to translate, but as it is not possible, I wish we could adopt it absolutely as it is—gemuethlichkeit, for gemuethlichkeit is a most valuable asset. I only hope as missionaries you will be able to teach us what it means and how to practice it all through. Goodbye." (Laughter.)

The president and party again entered their carriages and after a short drive through several streets in the business district arrived at the Louisville hotel. The streets were massed with people. The president stood up in his carriage bowing from right to left in response to the cheering which was hearty and continuous.

In the parlors of the hotel occurred one of the prettiest incidents of the day—the presentation of souvenirs to the executive. Those consisted of a massive silver flagron containing water from a spring on the old Lincoln homestead in Larue county; an inkstand of oak that shaded the spring at which Lincoln drank when a lad, and a beautiful silver vase filled with orchids. The president was visibly touched by the gifts as it was a complete surprise. The presentation was made by Col. R. T. Durrel, for twenty years a friend of the president and in whose library Mr. Roosevelt, years ago, spent many hours gaining information as to the history of Kentucky and data as to the Lewis & Clark expedition.

The president made a feeling response, saying that he felt more than ever that he was the president of all the people—North and South, East and West.

A hurried departure was taken, the president arriving on board his train at exactly 11 o'clock.

A few minutes later, with the executive standing on the rear platform of the car, with cannon thundering a farewell salute, less than a block away, and to the music of deafening cheers, the train moved out of the Seventh street station and a half hour later was speeding across Indiana on its way to the Southwest.

JOHN SAYS

"More of the New Coffee, Please."

A lady from the "Land of the Sky" in N. C., says:

"This winter while on a visit further down South, where everybody seems to be a slave to coffee, I one day found my hostess prone on the couch. 'So giddy, and Oh! how my head aches!' 'Coffee,' I said warningly. She supposed so, and what else could she drink? 'Why, Postum,' I replied. 'But that is so insipid and John does not like it. He calls it dish water.' I thought of the kind of Postum the darkey cook had served, and asked her if I might make her a cup. So into the kitchen I went and made Postum as we have it at home—rich, clear and fragrant, after good long boiling to bring out the flavor.

"I brought it to her in one of the daintiest cups, and she drank under protest, declaring it might make her head worse. She exclaimed, 'Why how nice this is. You don't mean this is Postum?' I told her the difference was only in the making. She had had it before, boiled only a few minutes, and now she had it made according to directions that are plain enough on each package.

"In about an hour's time she sat up and laughing a little, said her head felt nearly well and the giddiness was almost gone.

"The next morning we had Postum (made right) for breakfast. We told John it was a new coffee we wanted him to try. He called for a second cup, and the next morning called for some more of that new coffee.

"Quite a while after we had been serving it regularly, John spoke of feeling so much better. He had gotten over his nervousness, and only then did we dare tell him he had been steadily using the once despised Postum.

"Before I left off coffee my complexion was bad, and sometimes my temper worse. The complexion has cleared up in a most remarkable way. I had better refer to the other members of the family for a testimonial as to a change in temper, leastwise we all abandoned coffee about two years ago for it affected us more like liquor, and every member of my family showed the effect of it in nervous, trembling sensations, occasional dizzy spells, and more or less complaint. All of these symptoms have disappeared since we made the change to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A WOODSMAN IS STRICKEN

Death Overtakes Him as He Enters Northome Saloon.

Bemidji, Minn., April 4.—A woodsman known as "Scotty" dropped dead at Northome Saturday morning just as he was entering the saloon of J. McIntosh in that city. Death was due to pleurisy, combined with pneumonia and exposure. The man has been around Northome for the past two weeks, but made few acquaintances. He has been drinking heavily of late and his condition was known to be quite serious several days before his death. An examination of the remains was made by Deputy Coroner Ward of Itasca county, but no papers were found to identify the man. It is thought that he has a borther at Deer River and an effort is being made to locate him. The dead man was employed in a lumber camp near Deer River during the winter. He was about 42 years of age.

Installation By Northern Pacific of the Block Signal System.

Total of 613 Miles to Be Put In Operation This Year.

President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific road has authorized important improvements tending to increase public safety, which it is claimed, will place this system second on the list of American railways in the installation of block systems for the current year.

The contemplated new improvements will afford continuous signal protection over all the principal districts of heavy traffic from the Eastern terminus through to the Pacific coast. Construction has already commenced and will be rushed forward to completion. The districts over which the new block system will be afforded are as follows:

	Miles.
Minneapolis to Staples, Minn.	131
Livingston to Logan, Mont.	50
Garrison to Dixon, Mont.	118
Spokane to Pasco, Wash.	156
Pasco to Ellensburg, Wash.	127
Seattle to Tacoma, Wash.	42
Total	613

The total of 613 miles of new block signal will be exceeded only by the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg this year. Following the Northern Pacific in order of amount of new block signal improvements for the year are the Great Western with 434 miles and the Southern Pacific with 333 miles.

Three years ago the Northern Pacific had no block signal protection except between St. Paul and Minneapolis. All its more important line mileage is now covered or is to be immediately supplied with efficient safeguards to traffic and travel.

The block system being installed is what is known as the "telegraph block," a manual block system operated pursuant to the rules of the American Railway association, already found satisfactory on other long stretches of Northern Pacific main line. The usual double-armed semaphore is utilized, the signals being operated from block signal stations in charge of operators. The adoption of the system requires the employment of additional telegraph operators and the stringing of special telegraph wires connecting the block signal stations.

Under the system protection against collisions is safeguarded by the watchfulness of the block signal operators and the care of the trainmen. An error cannot be made without the concurrent oversight or carelessness of two signal telegraph operators.

Railroad Notes.

The Great Northern road is now getting material in Duluth to be used in the annual advertising book, showing places of interest and chances for profitable investment along the line. Duluth will be shown up to unusual advantage this year, and will be given a prominent place in the booklet.

Fred. Hope, for six years manager of the Superior flour docks of the Great Northern road, leaves today for Seattle, Wash., where he will assume the duties of a similar position for the same road. Mr. Hope was formerly agent for the Northern Steamship company in Duluth, and is well known here.

J. R. Michalks, assistant superintendent of the Minnesota division of the Soo line, has been appointed superintendent of the Winnipeg branch, with headquarters at Glenwood. George Baxter, chief dispatcher of the Wisconsin division, has been promoted to trainmaster, with headquarters at Gladstone.

C. D. Thompson, general agent of the Great Northern in Duluth, who, it is expected, will soon sever his connections with the Great Northern to accept a position with the Great Western in Duluth, returned from the Twin Cities this morning. He says there is nothing new regarding the change, and that no definite decision either way has as yet been reached. It is said that the Great Western is looking for a suitable office in this city. Mr. Thompson states that he does not know who will be likely to succeed him in his present position.

SHOWING IS EXCELLENT

Annual Inspection of the Two Duluth Militia Companies.

Local militiamen, Companies A and C, stood up well under the inspection of Col. William Gerlach of St. Paul at the Armory last night. The equipment was inspected during the afternoon, and it did not meet with the approval of the colonel, who is now on his annual tour of inspection through the state.

He was well satisfied with the appearance and actions of the men themselves, however, and said that the two local companies are as good as any in the state. The colonel also complimented the men on the manner in which they have mastered the new infantry drill. He did not blame them for the condition of their equipment, saying that it was well cared for but was worn out.

In inspecting the kits of the men the colonel discarded forty-four pairs of trousers as unfit for further use, and various other articles were also turned down. These will be sent to St. Paul and new ones will be forwarded to replace them.

The response to the roll call was as follows: Band, twenty-eight men; Company A, fifty-two men; Company C, fifty-one men. For each man mustered his company receives $7 from the state appropriation. The band made an excellent showing.

Battalion officers were also inspected as follows: Battalion adjutant, Third battalion, Lieut. Col. C. C. Salter; Major H. V. Eva, battalion adjutant Second battalion; Lieut. Col. Carl Weaver and Rev. E. C. Clemans, D. D., presiding elder of the Duluth district and brigade chaplain.

MARK TWAIN'S

"Cat Came Back" After Day's Wandering.

New York, April 4.—Mark Twain was busy yesterday reading the riot act to Bambino, his erring cat. Bambino had an attack of wanderlust Friday and fled from home. Clemens gave him up for lost, but offered $5 reward for the return of an "intensely black cat with thick velvety fur." Early Saturday evening, Mr. Clemens' secretary, Miss Lyon, met Bambino and took him home. The humorist slapped Bambino on the wrist and gave him a handsome supper.

THE BLOOD RAN

In the Streets In Baku Where Hundreds Were Killed.

Cossacks Stood By Offering No Aid While Tartars Butchered.

London April 4.—The true story of the Baku massacre, is a tragedy with which the atrocity of Kishineff alone of recent years may be compared, Armenians at Baku taking the place of the Jews at Kishineff.

"For four days," in the words of the Bakinskia Isvestia, "a savage bacchanalia raged in which the passions of homicide, outrage, arson and plunder were let loose."

The paper goes on to say that during those days no less than 2,000 persons lost their lives as victims to the cold-blooded machinations of the St. Petersburg authorities. The latter attributed the outbreak to the sudden development of an internecine feud between the Mussulmani and Armenian inhabitants, but those acquainted with the relations of the Christian and Mussulmans know this to be false.

The truth is boldly asserted by the Bakinskia Isvestia, which it must be remembered, like all Russian papers, is published under the supervision of the censor. The Isvestia says it has not the slightest doubt that the massacre was organized by the same blood-guilty persons who planned the butchery at Kishineff.

It proceeds to describe how, after the first outbreak at St. Petersburg, rumors were circulated by mysterious agents among the Mussulmans throughout the Caucasus, especially at Baku, to the effect that the Armenians were arming themselves with the object of massacring the Mussulmans. Similar fears were spread among the Armenians about the Mussulmans and thus a nervous suspicion was engendered.

On February 19th a prominent Mussulman was shot dead near an Armenian church. It is significant that it has been impossible to discover who fired the shot which was the commencement of four days of indescribable horror.

Tartars armed to the teeth careened through the city firing at every unarmed Armenian they saw. Houses were burned and women and children perished in the flames or were cut to pieces while attempting to escape. One Armenian, a well-known petroleum magnate, killed sixty Tartars while defending his life and the lives of his family. His house was burned and he and his wife and children died in the flames.

While such scenes were being enacted all over the city, Cossack pickets in the streets did not raise a hand to prevent them and looked on while the victims rolled over dead within fifty paces of where they were standing.

Nothing could show more clearly how this bloody work was instigated than the dramatic manner in which it was ended. On the very first day of the massacre Armenian and Mussulman notables alike petitioned the governor to allow them to have a joint procession through the town. Telegrams arrived from all the towns in the Caucasus in which Tartar and Armenian notables and priests jointly urged the representatives of both nations to put a stop to the slaughter, but the government prevented their efforts until the Sheik Islam, the religious head of all Mohammedans in Russia, came from Tiflis, gathered the priests and notables together and then proceeded without protection to a spot where the most blood had been shed. There the Sheik addressed the multitude in stirring words.

"Fellow Mohammedans," he cried, "The blood freezes in my veins when I think of the punishment awaiting you at the judgment seat of God. You have shed the innocent blood of your own brothers, the Armenians.

"Perfidious and abominable accusations instigated you to lift your hands against your brother Armenians who were in no way guilty. I recognize that it is our enemies who have triumphed, who have at last succeeded in destroying the brotherly relations that have so long existed between the two peoples But we must not allow them the full measure of triumph. Stretch forth brotherly hands, repent of your crimes and with the Armenians console and assist the orphans, convinced that the horrors which have happened here between you will last for centuries, come and live together in brotherhood and God will bless you."

The last words of the Sheik Islam were drowned by the sobs of the crowd and the Tartars threw down their firearms and went over to the Armenians in tears.

There followed a significant incident. A memorial service for the victims was held in the courtyard of the Armenian cathedral at Tiflis and for the first time in history were seen the mufti (official expounder of Mohammedan law) and the Sheik Islam with their mollahs and thousands of Mohammedans participants in a Christian service. There were 45,000 persons present. On the balcony stood the venerable catholikos of the Armenian, between the mufti and the Sheik Islam.

The mufti spoke of their "common enemy who had brought on this madness." The Sheik also referred to "that wily spirit that inspired the Baku Mohammedan to perpetuate shameful murder. He uttered his curse upon them. He appealed to the people to swear that they would not listen to the devil," whereupon the Armenians, Mohammedans and Georgians, 45,000 of them, exclaimed with one voice, "we swear not to listen to the devil."

The Armenian bishops then made speeches in the Mohammedan mosques, but did not allude to the devil, the spirit of darkness, which is well understood to be a pseudonym for the Russian government.

Correspondence just received from Baku gives a vastly fuller account of the horrors of the recent massacre there than the Russian censors allowed to be transmitted by telegraph.

Nearly every street in Baku contained its ghastly litter of victims, stretched out just as they had fallen, the inhabitants being too terrified even to cover up the faces of the dead. Since the English resident at Baku sent a photograph of one of these scenes, "What do you think of it?" is the inscription which he has placed beneath it. If it were a massacre of Armenians by Turks various religious bodies in London would now be clamoring for vengeance against Abdul the Damned, and demanding interference by the British government. But as the atrocities occurred in Christian Russia and were virtually sanctioned by the authorities, who did absolutely nothing to suppress the disturbances, they will be passed over as a regrettable incident.

The Armenians did not by any means submit to being slaughtered like sheep and in more than one instance exacted a terrible retribution of their assailants. In Zerkovsky street the Tartars besieged a house occupied by Adamoff, an Armenian tradesman. He had been known only as a shopkeeper with a well merited reputation for driving uncommonly shrewd bargains, but he had in him the stuff of which heroes are made. When the Tartar mob swooped down upon the house like a pack of wolves, he stationed himself on a little projecting balcony with a magazine rifle and opened fire upon them. He was a good marksman and he had the pluck that commands a steady nerve and a cool head though he knew that his own death was inevitable. Despite the shower of bullets that spattered around him he aimed with as much deliberation as if he were engaged in target practice. None of his shots were wasted. Thirty-three men feel before he went down himself.

If there had been more in the house as brave as he was the inmates might have been saved. But with that gallant defender killed the infuriated crowd were free to wreak their vengeance. Petroleum, which as everyone knows is the great product of Baku, supplied them with the means. A barrel of it was rolled against the house and after the entrance had been saturated, it was fired. In a few minutes the house was ablaze. Death by fire or by the weapons of the besiegers was the grim alternative offered the occupants. Most of them chose cremation. Nineteen persons, most of whom were women and children, perished in the house.

And this was only one incident of the massacre. In other parts of the city scenes just as ruthless and terrible were enacted and the military and the police raised not a finger to stop them. For four days the murdering and plundering went on on unchecked. It is this that lends confirmation to the rumor current in Baku that for a month or more the authorities had been seeking a pretext for getting the Mohammedan element of the population against the Armenians with a view to diverting a great socialist rising that had been expected.

Death Lurks In Sick Kidneys

The kidneys are the weak link in the chain of life, and are daily carrying thousands of victims to untimely graves. Ninety men and women in every hundred have kidney trouble and don't know it, because it's only when the trouble reaches an advanced stage that it's recognized as kidney disease.

We imagine we have dyspepsia, heart disease, nervous prostration and a hundred and one ills, but nine times out of ten the real trouble is that the kidneys are so weak and diseased that they are utterly unable to carry the waste matters out of the body, and the uric acid accumulates in the system, and slowly but surely paves the way for Bright's disease, diabetes, blood poisoning and a horrible death in convulsions. Ask your doctor if this is not good, solid, common sense.

EXAMINE YOUR URINE

It's the infallible test of kidney trouble. If your morning urine, on standing still 24 hours, contains a sediment, is cloudy, or shows floating particles, your kidneys are seriously diseased and must be treated at once.

There is only one remedy that can be used with absolute safety and confidence, Warner's Safe Cure, put up for years at Rochester, N. Y., by the Warner's Safe Cure Company, and sold at all drug stores, 50 cents and $1 a bottle.

Warner's Safe Cure is used by leading physicians, and in hospitals, as the one certain cure for all diseases of kidneys, liver, bladder and blood—the remedy that cures when all else fails, and leaves no bad after effects. Get a bottle today; it will save you years of suffering.

"Safe" Pills move the bowels gently and aid a speedy cure.

MARCH BEHAVED WELL.

Better Than the Average For That Month.

Weather Forecaster Richardson has just issued his vindication of March and a rebuke to those who have been declaiming against the late lamented thirty-one days. He calls this his "monthly meteorological summary," and it is very formal in appearance. But as one peruses its highly interesting columns, March, just deceased, looms out as a sort of benefactor rather than anything else. The month, as shown by Mr. Richardson, was considerably warmer than the ordinary March. One might find a March, like in 1904, that was pretty bad, but not so for March, 1905. That was a pet March. Its mean temperature—that is, not its nasty temperature—but its mean temperature technically speaking—was 26 deg. above zero, while the average mean temperature in March is 23.9. The mean temperature last year was really and truly mean. It was 19, while two years ago it was 30, but nothing need be said about that.

On the 26th of March just past the thermometer got up to 63 deg. above zero, but then, on the 11th, it had made a record of 14 deg. below zero, and the 26th was evidently an attempt to show an inclination to reform.

The prevailing winds were from the northeast during the month, and there was a total movement of 9,866 miles with an hourly average of 13 miles, and a maximum velocity for five minutes, on the 28th, of 43 miles an hour. There were only 2 clear days, 13 were partly cloudy and 16 were all cloudy. There was a thunderstorm on the 27th, and sleet and fog on the 3rd, 15th and 31st.

WILL GO TO PRISON

Court Denies Gus Maki's Motion For New Trial.

He Must Serve Out His Four-Year Term.

Gus Maki, the Buhl saloonkeeper, who shot Victor Maki in a saloon fight last December, inflicting a painful wound in the muscles of the back, will have to serve out his sentence of four years at hard labor in the state penitentiary.

Judge Cant filed an order in district court yesterday afternoon, denying the motion of Maki for a new trial, notwithstanding his conviction on an assault charge.

Maki was tried during the January term of court and has been in the county jail since the first of the year. The authorities claim that he has brooded a great deal over his troubles and that there have been indications recently that if he is not very soon removed to the penitentiary, where he will have some occupation to keep his mind from his troubles, he is likely to become mentally unbalanced. Maki's friends on the range have been making every effort in his behalf and Maki himself is said to have put about every dollar that he posses into the effort to gain his freedom on a new trial.

The motion for the new trial was based on an objection to that part of the court's charge relating to self-defense, especially to the burden assumed by the defendant in such a case.

In his memorandum Judge Cant says that whether the charge was correct or not, was, in his opinion, error without prejudice for two reasons: First, because self-defense was not relied on by Maki at the trial, and, second, even if the shooting had been intentionally done, the circumstances were insufficient to warrant the use of a deadly weapon.

In discussing the first reason, the court calls attention to Maki's testimony that "I did not intend to shoot him, however, but it must have been loaded when it went off." The court believes the record of evidence relieves the case from a self-defense feature.

In discussing the second reason Judge Cant says that the precipitate resort to the use of a deadly weapon and the firing at a vital part, under the circumstances and among such people as were present when defendent committed this offense, was quite out of proportion to the injury to be appreciated by him.

"When a deadly weapon is used by the defendant," says the court, "the evidence by way of justification must go so far as to show that there is a reasonable doubt at least as to whether the defendant had reason to believe that he was in imminent peril of great bodily harm to himself. This evidence must come from him. No one but himself can testify as to his belief; no one but him is interested in developing that thought. In reference thereto he has the burden, unless we are afraid of using that term. But if we say that it is sufficient if in reference thereto he raised a reasonable doubt of his guilt, we still leave the burden of the whole case upon the state. Whatever the defendant does, the state must still, under both expressions, to warrant a verdict of guilty, prove the guilt of the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt. If, upon the evidence, a reasonable doubt has been raised of the guilt of the defendant, as is stated by many of the authorities, he must be acquitted; and this is the effect of the instructions given in this case."

NARROW ESCAPE.

Gas Nearly Suffocates People in Their Beds.

Mrs. Shields of 332 East Superior street had a narrow escape from asphyxiation at an early hour this morning. Gas, which is supposed to have come from a defective connection in the wall of the building, filled the house, and the occupants were nearly stifled in their beds before they discovered the fumes.

Dr. Boyer was summoned, and after working some time over the victims, succeeded in recusitating them, and no ill effects have resulted, beyond a feeling of nausea. Mrs. Shields had the narrowest escape of any of the occupants of the building.

HAS LEGAL STATUS

Charter Provision For Justice of Peace Declared Constitutional.

Justice of Peace Flack Must Be Paid Legal Costs.

According to a decision handed down by Judge Dibell, the office of justice of peace of West Duluth has legal status under the state laws as well as the city charter and the county must pay the legal expenses to which any justice court outside the city is entitled.

Judge Dibell filed with the clerk of court, yesterday, his findings in the matter of the appeal of J. B. Flack, justice of peace of West Duluth, from the disallowance of a claim of $2.30, by the board of county commissioners. The court finds that the allegations made by Mr. Flack in his complaint are true and that he is entitled to judgment against the board of county commissioners in the sum of $2.30.

While the amount involved is small, the case was brought with the consent of all parties to question the constitutionality of the charter of the City of Duluth in establishing the office of justice of peace.

The board of county commissioners disallowed the claim on the ground that the charter commission in submitting a draft of the charter for the City of Duluth exceeded its power and authority in providing for the office of a justice of peace and that the section providing the same is unconstitutional and void.

The question of paying the bills from the West Duluth court has been discussed time and again by the commissioners and Justice Flack has been anxious to have any uncertainties done away with.

That portion of the city charter providing for a West Duluth justice court is known as section 487 and it says that the voters of that part of the city west of Thirty-third avenue west, prolonged to the city limits, shall at the first election held after the adoption of the city charter, and biennially thereafter, choose one of their number for a justice of peace with an office in the territory for which he is elected.

It is this section that the court, in his findings for the justice of peace holds to be constitutional.

Mr. Flack came into office under the provisions of section 15 of the city charter which says that the council shall have authority to appoint a person to fill a vacancy, when it shall occur. Mr. Flack received his appointment on the resignation of Robert Stone, former incumbent, March 28, 1901.

The amount of money at issue in this case was the costs certified to the county auditor in the case of Brian Scalley who was arrested for a misdemeanor, tried and sentenced by Justice Flack.

The court filed no memorandum with his findings.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Two Men Supposed to Have Been Drowned Off Point Aux Pines.

Sault Ste. Marie—Frank Daigle and James Poppas are supposed to have been drowned off Point Aux Pines, by falling through the ice. A searching party has left for the scene.

Michael Kane, who was arrested recently at the Soo and pleaded guilty to raising a check from $4.55 to $94.55, has been sentenced by Judge Steere to from one to fourteen years in the Ionia house of correction.

Menominee—Joseph Kubiak, a Menominee man employed near Wabeno at one of the camps of the Bay Shore Lumber company, met death last week. Kubiak was on board of a train riding into Wabeno and fell off or was upset while jumping, rolling under the wheels. Both legs were cut off, and he died shortly after the occurrence of the accident.

The Spies public library was dedicated at Menominee last Thursday night. Augustus Spies, the donor, handed the deed over to Mayor Haggerson. The attendance was large, taxing the capacity of the building and Quivron's orchestra furnished a program of music. Illustrated souvenirs were a feature of the event. An oil portrait of Mr. Spies was received in time to be hung in the library for the opening.

Escanaba—Ludington street property owners appeared before the council at Escanaba last week and protested vigorously against the use of cedar block in paving that thoroughfare. These property owners want some other material used. It was agreed that there should be a fruther hearing in the matter April 18. If the majority of the property owners are favorable to some other material than cedar blocks it is likely that their desires will be acquiesced in by the council.

Manistique—Dr. O. C. Bowen, mayor of Manistique, assisted by Dr. A. Nelson, performed an operation on James Enos, who was found on the Soo Line track near Whitedale with a bad cut in his head. Several pieces of skull were removed from the wound, relieving the pressure on the brain, thereby giving Enos a fighting chance for his life. The patient being without friends and unconscious, the case has been turned over to the county, who will stand the cost of treatment. Enos' condition has been improved somewhat by the operation, but his chances for recovery are not of the best.

ASK STAY OF SENTENCE.

Motion to Be Argued Before Court of Appeals.

Cincinnati, April 4.—Judge Francis J. Wing counsel for Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, and United States District Attorney Sullivan arrived here today to appear before the United States circuit court of appeals to argue the motion for a stay of sentence, which Mrs. Chadwick's attorneys are prepared to make. Arguments for a new trial will follow later, but the motion for a stay of judgment is the first step. Judge Wing said today that several new questions of law were involved and it might require some time to present the matter fully.

PLAN RACE CIRCUIT

To Include Duluth, Ashland, Iron River and Rhinelander.

County Fair Association Takes Up Matter at Annual Meeting.

If plans which are now being considered should mature, Duluth will be in the Northern racing circuit this coming season, the circuit to be comprised of this city, Superior, Ashland, Iron River, Ironwood and Rhinelander.

The matter received some consideration at the annual meeting of the directors of the St. Louis County Agricultural and Driving Association at the Commercial club last evening, at which time Capt. D. E. Stevens and Henry Gujer were appointed a committee to go to Ashland, April 6, where a meeting will be held at the Knight hotel of horsemen from all of the cities mentioned.

Negotiations looking toward the establishment of a Northern circuit with the cities named have been going forward for some time and there is said to be good reason to believe that the plan will be perfected at the Ashland meeting. A tentative proposition submitted the Duluth association was that the circuit open here at Duluth and close some time in September, at Rhinelander, Wis., giving six weeks of racing with a three days' meet at each city.

It is the belief of the horsemen here and in the other cities that some such plan would prove eminently successful, and that a fine string of racers could be procured if the owners can have assurance that there is another place that they can go after finishing the racing in one city. The trouble in getting good horses to any one of the cities mentioned has been the fact that it was too long and expensive a trip for horsemen to come from any distance, with no other races scheduled nearby.

There is said to be a project on foot in Superior, which city is without a track at the present time, to procure a property at Billings Park, near the old steel plant, where a new and up-to-date half-mile track may be constructed.

St. Louis county will very likely have a fair this coming fall, a committee of S. W. Clark, S. E. Peachey and Capt. D. E. Stevens, being selected to map out the plans and submit a report at another meeting to be held at the Commercial club next Monday evening.

This committee will decide on the date and general character of the fair and will have something definite to present the directors for consideration, the idea being to avoid the usual unsatisfactory discussions and indefinite conclusions resulting from meetings in the past. The committee will, it is said, take into consideration a number of things in deciding on a date, one of them being the inclination of the county commissioners not to vote an appropriation if the fair is to be held as early this season as in the past. The latter fund it may be doubtful, if the fair is held later, whether the weather conditions will be as favorable, or whether the association can get as good horses for the cities mentioned.

The treasurer's annual report, presented by H. E. Gujer showed that the total receipts of last year, exclusive of the county appropriation of $500 for premiums, were $1,520.03. The disbursements were the same, the association being practically out of debt.

The association's lease of the present fair ground site in the West end will expire with this season. Whether the lease is renewed for another term of years or another piece of land is selected for improvements contemplated by the association will, it is said, depend largely on the inclination of the owner of the property.

It is the general sentiment of the men back of the association that hereafter there will not be a week of the county fair, but that it will extend over a period of not more than three days, just experience having demonstrated that three days patronage is about all that a fair in this part of the state can draw.

FRANCE DETERMINED

So Pursue Civilization and Development of Morocco.

Paris, April 4.—An official note this afternoon, relative to the meeting of the cabinet ministers today, does not mention Morocco, but unofficial statements have been published to the effect that the government is resolutely determined to pursue the work of the civilization and development of Morocco, at the same time maintaining the principle of the open door for the commerce of the entire world.

This accords with the general sentiment in official quarters, but the government refrains from adding fuel to the controversy by specific declarations of its plans and purposes.

TERM OF IOWA OFFICIALS

Will Be Extended For Another Year.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 4.—The Iowa supreme court today handed down a decision sustaining the amendment to the state constitution, providing for biennial instead of annual elections.

By the adoption of the amendment there will be no general election in Iowa this fall, and all officers whose terms expires then will be extended.

MONTANA ELECTIONS

Resulted Generally In Favor of Democrats.

Butte, Mont., April 4.—Municipal elections in Montana have resulted generally in favor of the Democrats. In Butte, John MacGinnis, the anti-trust candidate, was elected mayor, while the Democrats elected a city treasurer. In Anaconda a Democratic mayor, three Democratic aldermen and three Republican aldermen were elected.

At Helena four Democratic and four Republican aldermen were elected.

At Great Falls the Democratic candidate for mayor was elected, while at Missoula the municipal league party was a winner.

THE HOBO SEASON

In Indiana Ended and Sons of Rest Are Unhappy.

"Easy Marks" Are Now Few and Far Between.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 4.—The hobo season is over and hoboes that have done so flourishing a business in Terre Haute since the first sign of winter appeared are beginning to look downcast and to wonder how they will live through this summer without the least bit of physical labor, which proves so painful to them.

As two of the type so frequently seen along Wabash avenue striking everybody that looks the least bit sympathetic for enough to get them a bite to eat or a bed as "I have just got into town and haven't been able to get a "job" walked down the street yesterday afternoon their bearing was particularly woe-begone and they bore the appearance of having lost their last friend. As they reached the corner of Fifth and Wabash avenue and stopped for a moment to see "what was doin'," suddenly both their faces brightened. Both had seen an easy mark, a man who never is able to resist the plea of a man, no matter how stalwart and hearty he looks, if he begs for something to eat on the plea that he is hungry, and the fraternity can spot them at a glance. One of the "vags" stepped out and waiting until the man got within reach, he stopped him and in a voice trembling with "fatigue" and husky with "suffering," asked him for a little money to get him and "my pardner" a bite to eat. But the weather has had its effect and Mr. Easy Mark was hard as rock. Persistence failed and the effort to penetrate his stony hard heart was abandoned.

Between Fifth and Sixth streets the other one tried his hand and met with a similar fate. One more effort was made at the corner of Sixth and Wabasha avenue, where a number of well-groomed men were waiting for cars and when that met with dire failure, as bad as the others, the look of gloom was so heavy on the faces of the two "knights of the never work kingdom" that it would almost have touched the heart of a policeman, and as they stood on the corner Knight One said to his compatriot: "The weather is fixing us. If it keeps on like this there won't be a thing doing in our line. We haven't been able to get a piece of money all day," and the knight here bewailed the weather for several minutes before they strolled on down the street to confirm their beief that there was no more luck for them this year.

These were two of a large number of men who have made Terre Haute their headquarters since the first cold night of last fall and their presence in the community has been a source of enormous expense. In cases without number they have been arrested, fined and sent to jail, but that does no good for all they want is shelter and the jail affords them that. In as many more cases they have been released and ordered out of town. This is likewise unavailing for they stay until they get ready to go and in most cases they don't get ready at all. Besides the immense amount of money that has been spent on their account from the public treasury their weight on the private purse has been by no means light, for either through kindness or a desire to escape their persistent appeals the pedestrians have so frequently given them the alleged price of something to eat, but in reality a piece of money to be invested at one of the numerous saloons made the "hangout" of the fraternity, that the business of street bumming has become profitable here and the members of the profession will admit if questioned that Terre Haute is easy.

SMITHS' CASE

Again Postponed In Cincinnati Police Court.

Cincinnati, April 4.—The case of J. Morgan Smith and wife arrested here in connection with the Nan Patterson-Young case in New York, came up again in police court today, but was once more adjourned, this time until April 7, the postponement being required to await the action of the common pleas court on the writs of habeas corpus.

New York, April 4.—Five packages of letters believed to contain the correspondence found in the possession of J. Morgan Smith and his wife, the long sought witnesses for Nan Patterson's trial when they were arrested in Cincinnati last week, were delivered by the postal authorities to District Attorney Jerome today. From the size of the packages there seems to be at least a hundred letters in the lot. Neither Mr. Jerome nor Mr. Rand, the assistant district attorney who has had charge of the prosecution of the Patterson case, would say anything about them.

AMERICANS HURT AT MONTE CARLO.

Monte Carlo, Monaco, April 4.—Frank Stevens and Louis Hay, two Americans who live in London have sustained severe injuries as the result of an automobile accident. Messrs. Stevens and Hay who have been visiting here were making a fast run yesterday in an automobile from Nice to Monaco when protruding rails in a street threw their machine against a street car. Mr. Stevens was thrown violently into a ditch and is in a dangerous condition according to the attending physicians. The condition of Mr. Hay is serious.

BUYS ANOTHER PAPER.

Chicago, April 4.—John C. Eastman, owner of the Chicago Journal, today confirmed the announcement from Columbus, Ohio, that he had added the Evening Dispatch of Columbus to his newspaper holdings. "The formal transfer of 75 per cent of the stock was made to me Wednesday of last week," he said. "It was a cash deal. No change in the policy or management of the Dispatch will occur."

The request program of the year was presented yesterday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Matinee Musicale held at Steinway hall and the hall was filled with the members of the club and their guests. The program was one of exceptional merit and was greatly appreciated by the hearers.

The opening number was the "Concerto in D minor, Op. 70" by Rubenstein, so splendidly interpreted by Grace Senior Brearley at one of the regular programs that it was almost universally requested for yesterday's program. Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw was the soloist for the afternoon singing "Autumn Storms" by Grieg and two Schuman songs, "Widmung" and "The Talisman" and the numbers were enthusiastically received. Mrs. Clarence B. Miller played two Chopin numbers, "Andante Spianata" and "Polonaise" and responded to an encore and the closing number of the program was the Tanhauser overture, played by Mrs. J. A. Stephenson, Miss Hartman, Mrs. J. N. McKindley and Mrs. Gough.

Following the program a business meeting of the active members of the society met and the officers and directors for the next year were nominated, the election taking pace at the next meeting. The following officers were nominated:

President, Mrs. C. B. Miller; vice president, Mrs. J. N. McKindley; recording secretary, Miss Berenice Crowley; corresponding secretary, Miss Ruth Markell and Miss Simonds; treasurer, Miss Winnifred Holmes; librarian, to be appointed; directors, (three to be chosen), Mrs. Grace Senior Brearley, Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker, Mrs. James McAuliffe, Mrs. Leo Ball, Miss Sybilla Hartman and Miss Bradshaw.

But one more meeting of the society will be held at which time the "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn will be presented and following the program the election of officers will take place.

The meeting of the executive board of the Twentieth Century club was held yesterday morning at the club room of the library. This was the first meeting of the board since the election of officers and Mrs. F. L. Barrows, first vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Miss Statham. The office of corresponding secretary was left vacant owing to the withdrawal of Mrs. W. D. Underhill and Mrs. H. C. Marshall was elected. The delegates to the Women's council will remain the same at least until the return of the president. The representatives of this club in the council now are, Miss Statham, Mrs. A. W. Bradley and Mrs. F. L. Barrows.

The folowing were elected heads of departments: Mrs. J. D. Morlson, philosophy and science; Mrs. George A. Elder, art and history; Mrs. A. W. Bradley, philanthropy and reform.

The following committees were appointed:

Music—Mrs. W. H. Northmore, Mrs. F. O. Davidson and Mrs. Elliott.

House—Mrs. Edward Hazen, Mrs. George Buck and Mrs. F. A. Armstrong.

Printing—Mrs. H. C. Marshall, Mrs. M. B. Baldwin and Mrs. Z. D. Scott.

Constitution—Mrs. R. N. Marble, Mrs. J. H. Crowley and Mrs. L. H. Corcoran.

Remember Little Things.

If you are desirous of making true and devoted friends, and keeping them, cultivate a memory for little things, says the Pittsburg Gazette. This advice is humbly offered after due observation of one of the most attractive women ever placed on this earth. She remembers the favorite dish, the favorite color, the small penchants and peculiarities of everyone. She never neglects to ask for absent friends and relatives. For a sick friend she has a bunch of flowers—heliotrope, on which the invalid dotes. She will say, "What a pretty frock you are wearing—and how well you looked at Miss So-and-So's tea the other day. That touch of blue is becoming to you." She remmebers birthdays with some small gift—a box of homemade candy, a bunch of flowers, a jar of delicious preserves, made by herself and wrapped carefully in gay tissue paper. She is thoughtful of elderly people, giving them the small attentions which they so much appreciate. And the best of her is that these things are done naturally and gracefully. Were they assumed they would lose half their charm and sweetness.

Had Not Suspected It.

Brooklyn Eagle: This isn't a new story. At least the incident is not of recent origin, but the story has not heretofore found its way into print. A Brooklyn woman was entertaining some friends from the Middle West a week or two ago, and reminiscences were in order one evening, when expositions—that of St. Louis in particular—had been the general subject of conversation.

"One of my keenest recollections of the Centennial exposition of 1876," said the Western woman, "is in connection with a picture, entitled 'Ulysses and His Companions,' which was prominent in the art display. Circe, naturally, was in the picture, and as I was looking at it one day I heard a masculine voice, with a twangy accent, right behind me, raised in comment.

"'Ulysses and His Companions,' read the newcomer. 'Wal, that beats anything I have heard yet about Grant.'"

CONFESSED

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Ashleigh glanced questionably across the teatable at his wife. That "bright particular star," who for the past two years had been the faithful custodian of his Lares and Penates—as well as of his loyal heart—answered him with smiling eyes.

"Well?" she queried, her soft hands fluttering like white butterflies above the Dresden.

He did not reply at once, and Francesco leaned coaxingly across the tea-tray curiously, and a tiny, dawning shadow coming into her face, "I hope it isn't anything unpleasant—"

"Oh, no—not exactly; not in the way you mean." Ashleigh laughed, tilting back in his chair in a little contemplative way, and regarding her with a dubious expression. "I was just wondering," he pursued, "whether you would rather go to that ball this evening or remain at home with me? I find that I shall be somewhat late, but perhaps Kendrix—"

"Kendrix, indeed! Why, you silly boy, will you ever outgrow your infancy? Which do you suppose I would rather do?"

"That settles it, then. I was a bit worried for fear you might be disappointed."

A little laugh that sounded to Ashleigh like the music of gurgling water bubbled up to her lips.

Francesco left her chair and, going over to where he sat, rested two soft, pink palms on his shoulders. "I don't believe there are any two people in the world quite as happy as ourselves," she said, letting her hands slip up till they touched his cheeks. After a moment he rose and kissed her for answer. A servant came to clear the table, and they went back to the cozy little sitting room, where the light from pretty, rose-skirted candles glowed warm and mellow.

Ashleigh gave his attention to some accounts he had brought up from the office, and Francesco went to the piano. A half hour passed and tiring of her music, she went over to the firephace and threw herself into a prodigious leather chair that almost swallowed her up. She stretched out the tips of her slippered feet to the brass fender, and watched the sleepy bed of pink and purple coals with musing eyes.

After awhile, Ashleigh put aside his papers, and drawing up a hassock, sat down beside her, laying one of his strong brown hands over her dainty white one that rested enticingly on the arm of her chair.

For some time neither spoke. Presently he gave her fingers a playful little pressure. "Penny for your thoughts," he said, smiling up into her half-closed eyes.

"Are you just awfully anxious to know?"

"I am."

"Make a guess."

"Me?" he asked.

They both laughed. Francesco did not answer immediately, and he shook his head half deprecatingly as he looked toward her for corroboration. Her lips smiled, but he fancied that her eyes were a trifle grave.

"Yes," she responded after a little, "I was thinking of you. I always am, and I was wondering"—her voice faltered a bit—"if happiness like ours could—last."

Ashleigh threw her a startled glance, vaguely conscious of some sudden, indefinable change.

"I don't understand," he said almost harshly, as though under a sting.

She made no verbal response, but the shadow faded momentarily from her face. Then, after a while:

"It occurred to me," she began reflectively, "that most of the married people I have seen seem—after a time—to grow weary and indifferent, if not actually discontented and unhappy and—"

"Don't talk that way," he interrupted somewhat impatiently; "it's foolish and—and not natural. You are not yourself. Of course we shall always be happy, happier and happier as the years go by."

"If things were always what they seemed," she persisted absently.

"Well, and if they are not? What do appearances—what does anything matter so long as it is the one real love?"

Francesco had drawn a little away from him, and looking at her closely, he noticed that the brightness of tears was in her eyes, and the pink quite gone from the delicate curving cheek. He had never seen her that way before, and a wave of apprehension swept over him.

"I wish you would tell me what it is is worrying you tonight." He leaned toward her suddenly, touching the loosened heap of shining brown curls with gentle, persuasive fingers. "What is it, Francesco? What is the trouble?"

There was complete silence for a moment. An almost imperceptible glow overspread her face, losing itself abruptly in a quick rush of pallor. She winced involuntarily, but forced a smile to disguise the deep shadows that clung insistently to her eyes. "Nothing," she returned, "nothing at all—unless, perhaps—I am a little out of gear." Her voice broke, but he did not appear to notice her emotion. She sat very still and silent for a long time. Once or twice she drew in her breath in a little sharp way, and averted her head, lest he should see, and read some of the tragedy of her face.

A long time passed. When she looked toward her husband again there was a certain bitter determination in her eyes. "I have been thinking of a story," she said mechanically. "Shall I—do you think you would care about—hearing it?" She gave him a quick, tentative glance. "Don't look at me that way, Dick. You—you vex me. I'm nervous and—and silly, I suppose." She tried to smile at him through stubborn tears.

Ashleigh drew a deep sigh of relief, answering her with obvious interestedness.

"Not many years ago," she commenced in a low tone, to hide its meaning, "there lived a girl who was young—very young, and innocent and credulous. This girl had a mother who was all that was devoted and kind, but—ambitious, and withal perhaps a little bit shrwise. After one or two attempts she managed to—marry her daughter to a man with a stolen title—no name at all. When the money—the girl's money—was all gone, the man disappeared. A short time after there came on the scene another woman—his wife. She—the girl—was crushed, but still self-respecting. She tried to put it all out of her life forever. Everyone—everyone has a right to a little happiness in the world. Two years later she married—someone else who loved her for herself alone—who—he—" She broke off miserably and covered her face with both hands. But in a second she pulled herself together and looked up with her old brave expression.

Ashleigh glanced at her a little strangely and something queer stirred in his heart. "Well?" he asked gravely.

"That is all—except that he—the last one—never knew." She had risen and was leaning listlessly against the mantelpiece, her face the color of ashes.

He looked up at her slowly, wonderingly, comprehendingly, and all at once his eyes filled.

"Do you think she did wrong?" she asked, trying hard to keep her self-control. Her voice quivered suddenly, under its veneer of calm.

Ashleigh rose quickly and drew her into his arms. He felt her sobs against his coat, almost convulsive. "What does anything matter," he repeated, "so long as it is the one real love?"

Kathreen ..... Miss Laura Winston

Members of the Donna Troy Stock company made a fair impression on the occasion of their first appearance at the Metropolitan theater last evening, opening a two weeks' engagement. The play was "A Desperate Crime," and the large audience appeared well pleased with the efforts of the several actors. It is along the lines of the thrilling melodrama and offers opportunity for several exciting situations.

The specialties introduced between the acts were most of them new to Duluth. W. Van Dyke, apparently the youngest actor in the company, came in for the most vigorous applause, and was recalled again and again. Nina, the fire dancer, was also very popular.

There will be a change of bill every third night during the company's stay in the city.

Miss Donna Troy is herself a charming actress. She is the original cowboy girl whose picture was used on the Cow Boy Girl calendars issued by the Chicago & Alton railroad.

GIVES UP POSITION

On Account of Health. S. M. Moore So Testifies.—Traveling Man's Life a Hardship.

The coming of spring brings with it more joy to the traveling man than to almost any other citizen of our community. Never before have those traveling in this section suffered as they have this winter. Many traveling men have been forced to give up their positions because of what cold rooms, damp sheets and general poor conditions have done to their health. The one most prevalent disease of all this winter among traveling men has been catarrh.

Our reporter, in speaking of this matter with Mr. S. F. Boyce the other day, was more than interested in the letter shown which we publish below:

"Some twelve months ago I had to give up my position as a traveling salesman for a large wholesale grocery firm in Richmond, Va., on account of catarrh, which the best doctors in several places told me had penetrated my whole system, and I could not be cured by quitting the road. After I returned home I tried many fine remedies to no effect. I wrote a friend of mine to send me a bottle of your Mucu-Tone. I began taking it with no faith in it, but after I had taken the entire bottle I began to mend. I wrote for four more, and took them, and now I can sincerely say I am a well man and weigh one hundred and fifty pounds. I never felt better in my life, and I am cured, sound and well by your wonderful Mucu-Tone, which I can assuredly appreciate. It is wonderful, and I have advised all my friends to get it.

"Many thanks for your wonderful cure. It is the greatest cure of the present age. You can use this testimonial as you see proper. Most gratefully yours, S. M. Moore, Basic City, Va."

It is very evident from what Mr. Boyce said that this letter is only one of the many testimonials he has of Mucu-Tone. These testimonials vary in the range of diseases which Mucu-Tone benefits. Although Mr. Boyce claims that Mucu-Tone is primarily a catarrh cure—it was not manufactured with the purpose of curing other diseases—but those who have been benefited by its use have recommended it to so many of their friends for other troubles, that it is now almost as well known as a general tonic as it is a catarrh cure.

S. F. Boyce is selling a large trial bottle for fifty cents, which he guarantees will give satisfaction or he will refund the money.

FIVE MILLIONS

To Be Divided Among Descendants of Gisby.

Vancouver, B. C., April 4.—Sidney Bisby, a young man working as a clerk in a law office, has received word from England that the lost will of Jacob Gisby, dated May 25, 1795, has been found, bequeathing an estate of $5,000,000 to his next of kin. The dead man was the great-great-great-grandfather of the Vancouver boy. The fortune has been in chancery since 1795 and Gisby's father is in England taking steps to recover it.

Here Is a Sure Cure For Constipation

FIRST BOTTLE FREE.

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It causes indigestion, dyspepsia, lung, liver and kidney disorders, makes bad blood and will undermine the strongest constitution. Nothing will pull you down quicker than constipation.

Neither pills nor any physic will cure, and they are dangerous. You know this by experience. Mull's Grape Tonic never fails to make a cure. It is not a physic. No watery and unsatisfactory stools that weaken and make you worse when you use this great remedy.

Mull's Grape Tonic is a soothing remedy which exerts a strengthening and stimulating influence over the muscles and organs of the alimentary tube. Constipation means that the undigested food is rotting and fermenting in the alimentary canal. From this fetid mass there arises foul odors that find their way into the blood, causing bad health. Remove this and you will be well. Mull's Grape Tonic cures.

If you are constipated, we want you to accept our free offer of a a bottle. We give it unconditionally to any person who has not used Mull's Grape Tonic. We know Mull's Grape Tonic will cure you, and are willing to give you the first bottle to prove it. Send your name today to Mull's Grape Tonic Co., 207 Third avenue, Rock Island, Ill., and receive an order on your druggist for a free bottle.

The $1.00 bottle contains nearly three times the 50c size.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

The reorganization of the Panama canal commission by President Roosevelt has been accomplished, and it is probable that the slow progress that was making in practical construction, will give way to more decided action. The reorganization of the commission and the instructions for its guidance are designed to give Chief Engineer Wallace a freer hand in the prosecution of the work. He is given complete charge on the isthmus of all the actual work of construction, the custody of all the supplies and plant and the practical operation of the railroad. Being thus left free to push the work as rapidly as possible, the chief engineer will be required to show results, or his resignation will be speedily called for by the president. Of course he is subject to the direction of the chairman of the commission, Mr. Shonts, who is given "direct and immediate charge of construction." With these two men acting together and working in concert, the country may look forward to rapid progress being made in the construction of the waterway uniting the two oceans.

The question of the plan to be finally followed is still unsettled. Whether it shall be a sea-level canal—or, rather, a one-lock canal, as sea-level is impossible—or a canal with several locks is undecided. Congress voted $200,000,000 for a canal with locks, while what is known as a sea-level canal would probably cost $100,000,000 more. Inasmuch, however, as a sea-level canal would be the one best adapted to the demands of the commerce of the world, it is preferable. The point to be decided is whether the sea-level canal is practicable and can be constructed for about $300,000,000. For the purpose of settling this point, the chief engineer is to secure as soon as possible all the necessary data for submission to an advisory board of engineers to be selected from those having especial knowledge of hydraulic engineering and canal construction. Chief Engineer Wallace is an ardent advocate of a sea-level canal, and so were Messrs. Parsons and Burr, who recently made an elaborate report on that issue. Both these gentlemen, it is announced, will be appointed members of the consulting board of engineers, and it is evident from the correspondence between Secretary Taft and President Roosevelt, that the administration is inclined to favor the sea-level plan. Mr. Wallace has estimated that a sea-level canal would require twenty years for the building and cost $300,000,000. But, while this point is being considered, much work can be done. In either case there are millions of cubic yards of earth and rock that must be excavated and removed to a considerable distance, the Culebra cut being the most formidable proposition in the whole engineering scheme. With the improved methods of operation employed with the work in American hands, it is expected that the expense will be much less than when the French company was in charge and that the work will proceed more rapidly.

GERMANY AND MOROCCO.

The declaration by Emperor William of Germany to the representatives of the sultan of Morocco at Tangier is due notice to France and England that their harmony and exclusive ideas are not accepted by him. The kaiser is reported to have asserted that he "would maintain the absolute equality of German economic and commercial rights and that he would not allow any power to obtain preferential advantages." In other words, he is determined that there shall be "an open door" in Morocco and if France and England attempt to close it against Germany there will be trouble.

In the French chambers a few days ago, Minister Delcasse assured an interpellant that France was proceeding in Morocco strictly along economic lines, and no change had been effected by the astonishing arbitration pact with Great Britain just one year ago. But when the treaty with the ancient English foe was ratified it was the comment of the day that France had interests which supported a peaceful penetration into Morocco, and it was given forth that Germany had none which would embarrass. The kaiser's sudden visit to Tangier and his laconic announcement regarding maintenance of the integrity of Morocco and the assertion of Germany's rights commercially have given a different aspect to the situation. There are German interests in Morocco which would be embarrassed by the Anglo-French treaty, and the kaiser is evidently fully determined to protect them. What England and France will now do is doubtful, but the most reasonable supposition is that they will quietly yield to the kaiser's demands and German traders will be placed on equality with the English and French at Tangier.

THE WOLF OR WEALTH?

It is often said that when the wolf comes in the door, love flies out the window. Extreme poverty is a great trial, and it is true that Cupid sometimes is powerless to battle against it, and captulates. But often it only makes the bonds of love grow stronger, when hearts are true and there is good sense in the heads of husband and wife.

But the acquirement of sudden riches, too, often severs the bonds of love. How many times have we read of man and wife, who lived happily together while they were poor and struggling, but became as strangers in their own house after they had acquired wealth that made them independent?

A story of this kind was told in the courts of New York the other day, when Mrs. Teresa Ittner asked the supreme court for a divorce from her husband, John J. Ittner, on the ground that since the latter rose from a $9 a week clerkship to a position of independent wealth and the spender of $10,000 in one week, her life with him had been unbearable.

It was about a year ago that wealth dashed in through the window and love crept out through the door. The Ittners had then been married two years.

Previous to that, working for a salary of $9 per week in a grocery store, Mrs. Ittner says her life with her husband was idyllic. Her mother helped out with a few extras, and not a cloud marred their happiness.

Then Ittner's father died, and a change came over the place. The young man fell heir to about $70,000, and at once began a career of extravagances, evil in itself, but intolerable because it entailed the burden of insult and ill treatment upon the young wife. She shared in none of his pleasures, Mrs. Ittner says, but instead, his love for her suddenly grew cold, and from neglect he turned to abuse, and because she would not agreed to divorce him, he pointed a revolver to her on one occasion and on another threatened to poison her.

The acquirement of wealth suddenly as often unsettles the marital relations as does sudden poverty; in fact the proportion of homes ruined by money is probably greater, because there are so many who become poor and so few who grow rich.

The devil finds employment for idle hands, and this was probably the case in this affair. When Ittner was compelled to toil to earn his daily bread he was a model husband; when wealth brought idleness his entire nature was changed, and he became a tyrant at home.

Work is the salvation of the race, and that may be the reason that so many people are poor.

SCANDINAVIAN DISUNION.

As far as internal affairs are concerned, Sweden and Norway are practically separate states at the present time and entirely independent of one another, while there is unity of the reigning house as well as diplomatic representation. Lately there has been much agitation in Norway for separate diplomatic representation and some of her people go so far as to demand the establishment of an entirely independent republic.

Wentzel Hagelstam carefully discusses the situation of affairs in Sweden and Norway in a Paris paper. He says that opinion is very much divided in Norway, although there are three principal parties. Of these parties, the first demands the dissolution of the Union; but a plan which modifies the treaty of union can not be presented before 1906, while such a plan could not be voted until three years later. This scheme, which is advised by Bjornstjerne Bjornson, is considered by the majority too slow and far from sure. Another party wishes the storthing to pass the law providing for separate consulates. If this law be not approved by the king, it would have to be sent back to the storthing. If, however, after general elections have been held twice, the bill should be passed by the two different storthings which were the product of these elections, then it would become law, notwithstanding the veto of the king. The third party wishes the storthing to pass the bill providing for separate consulates and also the amount of money needed to carry them on. If the king refuses his approval, he will be told that he is acting in contravention to the constitution, his authority would not be recognized, and a provisional government would be appointed.

One factor that has been stronger than any other to keep the Scandinavian countries united has been a fear of Russian aggression, but many Norwegians believe that this danger may be averted by placing their republic under English protection.

Sweden contains many Socialists and this party is constantly growing. Because of their well-known belief in democratic rule they are lending much encouragement to the Norwegians in their aspirations for the formation of a republic, believing naturally that when this is accomplished Sweden would soon fall into line.

But for that false patriotism which usually rests in the breasts of conquerors and which protests against the segregation of territory once acquired, the Swedish people would be just as well satisfied with a separation and establishment of independent republics. It would be much better, however if the people of both countries would lay aside their passions and prejudices and unite under one government, republican in form.

Hotel Gossip.

"The rivers of Northern Minnesota are now opening up, and within a week or two these highways of the settler will be in good condition for him to travel over," said G. S. Clark of Bemidji at the St. Louis. "In many sections through the northern part of the state the homesteader depends almost entirely upon the river to carry him to and from the towns. Even in the winter he makes his roads, if he has any roads at all, along the river beds, and if he travels by snowshoe he still follows the windings of the river, as offering the least obstruction, and offering the easiest walking.

"The Big and Little Fork rivers are boated on quite extensively, and nearly all the supplies used in the tributary country are brought in by this means, although probably within a year or two the provisions will be sent in by the Minnesota & International road, provided the extension toward Ripple is completed as soon as is expected. It is hoped to have the road built through to Ripple, located on the banks of the Big Fork, before winter comes again.

"A curious freight steamer has been built especially for use in the shallow Little and Big Fork rivers. It is so constructed as to draw very little water, and still carry a large load. Modern steamers are now plying along the Rainy river. The lands through that country are being settled up rapidly. I think there are now five or six big river steamers operating along the big stream. A great many people in Bemidji own government claims up around the Big Fork, and they have been visiting them during the winter while the road across the big swamp was good traveling.

"The settlers not only depend upon the rivers as a means of travel, but they also get a considerable portion of their food supply from them, in the way of fish. Every spring the sturgeon run up the Big Fork by the thousand, and when they are passing the rapids at Ripple it is an easy matter to spear them. Great big fellows some of them are, too, and they make fair eating when smoked and dried. It takes the river resident only a very short time to lay in a supply that will last him all winter. The procuring of meat of any kind causes the settler little worry, for it is to be had in plenty, and in great variety.'

"I heard the honking of a large flock of geese flying north the other night," said J. J. Titus of St. Paul at the Spalding, "and it brought back to mind the old days out in the Dakotas, when you could almost kill the big birds with a club, they were so numerous. There is no sport, to my notion, which equals wild gooso hunting. I am afraid that it will not be a great while before there will be no wild gees to hunt. They are gradually becoming more scarce, in spite of the game laws framed for their protection, and with the way the country is being settled up, and with all the new improvements in guns, they cannot last much longer.

"The League of American Sportsmen, with headquarters at New York, has done a great deal for the protection of game, and is now putting up a strong fight against the use of the repeating shot gun, better known as the pump gun, for hunting purposes. The move is in the right direction, and every sportsman should help it along. A man that cannot get enough birds to satisfy his tastes with a double barrel gun is a hog, and ought to be thrown in the pen.

"The ordinary repeater, worked by a lever and shooting six times without a refilling of the magazine, was bad enough, but now there are different styles of automatic guns on the market, that work something on the principal of the machine gun used in war. The hunter does not have to work any lever. All he has to do is to press his finger on the trigger when he wishes to discharge the weapon, and it will shoot as fast as he works the finger. The recoil of the discharged cartridge throws out the empty shell, puts a loaded one in the barrel and cocks the gun, so that it is all ready for another shot in a moment. A good shot can get in five or six shots before a flock of prairie chickens can get out of range, and with disastrous results to the birds."

"There are lots of pretty places in the South, but Pensacola, Fla., takes my eye more than any of the rest," said A. B. Arson of St. Louis at the McKay. "It is quite a shipping port, in addition to its attractions as a place of residence. Its harbor is a splendid one, about the finest on the Southern coast, I imagine. The bay is twenty-four miles long and about two miles wide at its widest part, with about 150 square miles of anchorage, and the docks are only eight miles from the gulf. The shores of the bay are lined with fine, white sand, and an ancient legend says that if anyone gets this sand in his shoes he will be sure to return to Pensacola. The entrance to the harbor is strongly defended by Fort Pickens, which was the only fortification in the South over which the Stars and Stripes floated continuously during the Civil war. The ancient fort has been much strengthened by water batteries of disappearing guns, while on the other side of the channel similar fortifications command the entrance to the narrow harbor, so that no hostile fleet could possibly pass through."

INSANITY AND ITS CURE.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The spread of insanity in the United States is becoming so serious that specialists of the medical profession are giving it great attention just now.

The cause?

Dr. H. N. Moyer of Chicago, an expert in mental diseases, has advanced this theory:

"There is no doubt about the cause for the increase in insanity. City life causes insanity. Poor food, poor homes, with no sun and bad air; improper clothing, worrying because people are behind in the rent, drives people crazy."

And the cure?

"Live in the country," says Dr. Moyer. "It is the coming to the city, grinding and pinching and failing to make both ends meet that drive people crazy; the cure for insanity is: Live out of doors and laugh—even if you cannot put cash in the bank."

Ponder these words of the Chicago scientist.

Are you burning the candle at both ends?

Are you breathing foul air and neglecting the sunlight?

Are you putting all your thoughts upon business and money-getting?

Are you disturbing nature by irregularity of habits?

Are you spending in reckless dissipation or ceaseless dollar-hunting the hours that should be used for sleeping?

Are you starving your body in order that you may suffer your purse?

Are you wearing out your brain with worry?

Are you giving more heed to the exhausting demands of the golden calf than the exhilarating joys of nature?

Are you forcing yourself to carry on your shoulders more than your strength can stand?

Are you compelling your wives and children to stay in pent-up rooms, to stagnate or to fade?

Are you pinching and grinding your employes, injuring them physically and weakening them with anemia?

If so, you are helping to fill the insane asylums and augment the ranks of degenerates. You are doing your part to destroy the human race.

Change your ways, you who are doing any of these things. Go out into the country. Fill your lungs with fresh air. Send your wives and children into the sunlight. Make your clerks and workmen go where it is green. When you feel like worrying smile. When you feel like smiling, laugh. Banish worry from your lexicon forever.

Figures themselves show that American people must do something to change the conditions. As gathered and presented by Dr. Moyer they establish the fact that New York's insanity ratio is one out of every 340 persons; Boston and New England have one in every 320 persons; Chicago has one in every 400.

Will you join in remedying the evil? The formula is simple:

"Live out of doors and laugh!"

SHOULD END ALL WAR.

Baltimore American: The frightful slaughter in the East, though not greater proportionately than in other wars, appears somehow to have been brought closer to the knowledge of the people; and the popular mind, moreover, seems to have been receptive to the horrors rather than to the glories of the conflict. The public has learned more in detail of the actual fighting, and when war is stripped bare in all its nakedness and ghastliness, there is precious little glory left, not enough to go round and cover the unsightly gaps in the ranks of humanity.

If the war between Russia and Japan should cause the nations of the earth to abandon barbarity and brutality for humanity and common sense it would not have been fought in vain. Revolutions sometimes come suddenly, though deep down in a human heart the soil may have been prepared during many years. Some supreme event open the eyes and reveals the truth. This war crtainly ought to be such an event. The peace congress, which will speedily follow its conclusion, ought to be ripe for business. It ought to see the necessity of casting aside the solemn platitudes and sophistries with which governments have heretofore wilfully blinded themselves, and doing something to bring the nations of the earth in their relations to each other on a level with the people who form those nations. A child is whipped for slapping its companion and a nation ought at least to be on a moral plane with a child.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A woman never loses faith in her lucky star, even when her hair begins to turn gray.

When a man is a coward you can scare him by telling him there is nothing to be scared of.

A girl has an idea that being president of the United States is almost as nice as chocolate creams.

A boy could have as much fun getting a tooth pulled as following the advice of his Sunday school teacher.

A woman is more afraid of what the milkman says about how much she uses than of her husband's bank rating.

Give Me the Eyes.

Give me the eyes that look on mine,
And, when they see them dimly shine,
Are moister than they were,
Give me the eyes that fain would find
Some relics of a youthful mind,
Amid the wrecks of care.
Give me the eyes that catch at last
A few faint glimpses of the past,
And, like the arkite dove,
Bring back a long-lost olive bough,
And can discover even now
A heart that once could love.

Twenty Years Ago.

Taken From the Columns of Duluth Papers of This Date 1885.

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce, D. G. Cash, B. Silberstein, George Spencer, Z. D. Scott, C. F. Johnson and C. P Bailey were elected directors, and these, with J. H. La Vaque, constitute the new board.

Col. Chichester, superintendent of the water company, will use two miles each of water and gas mains for extensions the coming season.

Duluth has been, according to the records of the police court, a pretty good town for the last three months. The court report for the quarter shows 81 arrests and $223.50 paid in fines. For the entire year the arrests numbered 725; amount of fines paid, $5,228.50.

The elevator companies have let the contracts for material for the new houses. Duluth firms got most of it. For the lumber, the Duluth Lumber company gets the larger bill, some 2,700,000 feet, and Wisdom & Fox of Moose Lake, get the smaller house, 2,600,000 feet. All the oak for both elevators comes from Kimberley. J. J. Costello furnishes all the hardware to be used in the superstructure of both houses.

Mrs. George M. Smith returned last night from a long visit in the East.

Walter Marvin returned last night from Chicago, where he has been on a purchasing expedition.

C. B. Atwater returned last night from Springfield, Mass., where he has been on a visit to his parents.

The many friends of Capt. R. B. Montague are very much pleased to see him about once more. The captain has had an extremely severe illness, and for months his life was despaired of.

Frank Lawler died this morning after an illness of a week, aged 52 years. He was one of the oldest settlers of Duluth. He leaves quite a family, all of whom are grown up.

FOOD FOR LAUGHTER.

Philadelphia Ledger: "You heard that new opera the other night, didn't you?"

"No." "Why, I understand you were there." "So I was, but I was in a box party."

Chicago Journal: Grayce—Edythe was born with a silver spoon in her mouth.

Gladys—Judging by the size of the aperture one would say it was a trifle.

Dorcas—If you've ever noticed her table manners you'd swear it was a knife.

Brooklyn Life: Jack—Darling, I have a favor to ask. I want you to consent to a secret wedding.

Maud—Oh, Jack, I'd love to, if you are sure you can arrange to have it leak out.

Princeton Tiger: "Watch out," warned the pickpocket, as he palmed the gentleman's timepiece.

Town and Country: "If your husband were to die, would you pray for him."

"Of course, but at the same time I'd pray for another."

Puck: Knicker—A fool and his money are soon parted.

Bocker—Yes; but it's awfully hard to part two fools without any money.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: "Ah" began the pen on the reporter's desk, "I am mightier than the sword."

"Oh, but look at me," retorted the editor's blue pencil.

"Huh! Of what use are you, pray?"

"Well, to make a long story short."

Philadelphia Ledger: Knicker—I couldn't for the life of me remember why you tied the string around my finger.

Mrs. Knicker—Just to remind you to bring yourself home.

Cleveland Leader: "All clever men are conceited."

"Oh, I don't know. I'm not a bit that way!"

Two tiny tree toads (this tale is true)
Three thisties tried to travel through.
Till they turned tail
Toward the trail.
"This trip's too thorny!" trilled the two.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Peter Herald: No one is surprised at the action of the senate in killing the anti-pass bill. It was expected of them and they did not fail of expectations. But it is surprising that the people of Minnesota were able to find so many small-calibred men to elect to that body.

Sauk Center Herald: Governor Johnson has vetoed the Horton bill. His friends are commending and his opponents condemning his action. All we care to say is, if we had been in his place we would have taken the same action.

Moorhead Citizen: The swinging of the "big spade" would just now please more people than the swinging of the "big stick."

Madison Independent-Press: Governor Johnson is to be congratulated upon his veto of the Horton janitor-spittoon bill. When the state reaches the point where the people will submit to the governor being insulted and humiliated just because he happens to be a Democrat it is time to make a few more places in the capitol for Democrats or any other old thing except a Republican.

Roseau County Times: It is asserted by a Washington correspondent that Senator Nelson is marked for defeat by the railroad corporations. The statement savors of demogoguism. Senator Nelson is antagonized by railroad interest no more than he is by the people. He ably represents the whole state of Minnesota and all its great interests and no sane man will believe for a moment that his defeat can be accomplished by railroad corporations or that his defeat is desired by the corporations. Senator Nelson is not a demagogue and his record in the senate is one of eminent fairness to all. He stands on his record and that will reelect him.

You Are Full:

J. F. Conrad in National Magazine: When you get so you can't hear your feet light on the sidewalk, don't try to take more'n another one.

When you are walking along the street and every person you meet looks like someone you have met before, it's a good time to look for the road home.

When you go home at night an' go to bed, if you reach down an' get hold of the bottom of your nightshirt, an' pull it aroun' your neck, an' think it's the sheet, it's a sure sign you're good an' drunk.

If you get up in the mornin', an' put on one shoe an' then pick up the other one, an' look at the sole of it, to see which foot it goes on, you had better go up the river an' fish awhile before goin' to work.

These ain't all the rules I know of by which you can tell when you're full, but they are sufficient for a new beginner.

The Calamity Howler.

Secretary of War Taft, at a dinner in Washington, referred with a smile to a certain pessimistic senator.

"He is always awaiting the fall of some unforseen evil," said Secretary Taft. "He can never see the bright side. He is as incorrigible a pessimist as old Elisha Howard of Zoar.

"I was born in Ohio, and in my boyhood I saw Elisha now and then. His farm was near Zoar. It was a large and prosperous farm, but Elisha would never have admitted such a thing. He was always grumbling and groaning. The corners of his mouth continually hung down.

"I remember, once, there came a banner year for the Ohio farmers. The wheat crop had never been so fine and good, and prices had never been so high. Elisha's wheat surpassed all others', and it was known that he had marketed it skillfully. Nevertheless, when a neighbor asked him one day how he had made out with it, he whined:

"'Well, I didn't get as much for it as I expected, and I knew I wouldn't all the time!'"

A Welsh Rarebit Reporter.

Brooklyn Eagle: "Do you believe," said the assistant editor to the editor, "that the method of deduction that Sherlock Holmes employs is probable and practical?"

"Why, yes," the editor replied. "Here's a case right here. This envelope which I received in this morning's mail contains 'copy' from a reporter I sent out yesterday afternoon to cover two assignments, a musical recital early in the evening and the food show later.

This is what the assistant editor read:

"Miss —'s voice was as clear and sparkling as Sodatine; as flexible and as elastic as shredded cod and it was remarkable to see with what ease and grace she held her audience, frail as she was. The evening had not progrssed very far before it was seen that she had completely captivated her hearers with her pancakes and her demonstrations, particularly with 'Indian meal lyrics' proved that when properly done they will take with any audience of taste and refinement. The audience fairly shrieked 'More! More!' It seemed never to get enough. Her encores were delicious. As a show, the recital was a success; 59 grocerymen were present. The eggs there could not be beat—they were made of candy."

INSPECT BOOKS

Water and Light Board Asks Council For Investigation.

Request Is Made In Answer to Some Criticisms.

The council last evening:

Received request from the water department for investigation of its books.

Received recommendation of the building inspector for revision of building ordinance.

Received request of mayor to revoke license of saloonkeeper convicted of running poker game.

Received recommendation of fire commissioners that the city pay expenses of injured firemen.

In reply to the statement claimed to have been made by W. B Silvey at a meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, that if a proper system of bookkeeping were adopted by the water and light department, it would be found to be losing money, Manager Case, representing the board, last evening requested the council to appoint some reliable firm of auditors to make a thorough audit of the books of the department.

"Similar reports are being circulated by enemies of municipal ownership," the communication read. "It is claimed that no amount is charged off each year for depreciation of the plant.

"The board has said in reply to all critics that the books are open to inspection and suggestions in regard to managing the plant or keeping the books will be welcome."

In answer to the claim that no amount is charged off for depreciation, the board stated that the greater part of the equipment consists of pipes When a section of pipe breaks, it is replaced with an entirely new section, and the amount is charged up to maintenance.

The board stated that the plant resembled a railroad in this respect, and that railroads did not charge off a sum for depreciation of the roadbed where it was maintained from year to year.

The communication was referred to the committee on auditing and county conference and the committee on light and water.

* * *

A complete revision of the building ordinance and some new amendments to it were requested last evening by Building Inspector Keilley. In a communication read last evening, Mr. Keilley stated that the different sections of the present ordinance not only conflict with each other, but with the provisions of the charter. Mr. Keilley claims that there is much work now being done in the city that cannot be handled under the present ordinance, and he recommended that during the compilation of the ordinances now in progress, special attention be given to the building ordinance.

Remonstrance against the crossing of Michigan street, at Twenty-fourth and Thirty-third avenues west, by the proposed new railroad, was filed by seventy-three East End citizens. In the petition submitted to the council they assert that the crossing at Twenty-fourth avenue will be especially dangerous, and they state that in their opinion the railroad should run entirely below Michigan street.

* * *

Mayor Cullum, in a communication to the council, stated that Charles Roberts of the firm of Swanson & Roberts, which operates a saloon at 621 West Superior street, had been convicted of running a poker game by the judge of the municipal court. The mayor requested that immediate steps be taken to revoke his license.

The communication was referred to the committee on police and license.

* * *

A recommendation was received from the board of fire commissioners that the hospital expenses of the firemen injured in the Zenith Paper company's blaze be paid out of the general fund. The expenses of the men injured while on duty will amount to about $300, which includes doctor's fees, hospital bills and other medical expenses. The board stated that aside from keeping their names on the payroll, no provision had been made for them.

The matter was referred to the proper committee for a report.

* * *

In order to prevent leakage of water from the fire hydrants, the board of public works suggested that the council order the wheel valves removed from the hydrants, leaving them so that a wrench will be necessary to turn on the water. The members of the fire department and the sprinkling contractors could then be supplied with the proper style of wrench. This would prevent small boys and others who have no right to touch the hydrants from tampering with them. The board stated that the only objection to the plan had come from the chief of the fire department.

The matter was referred to the committee.

* * *

The board of park commissioners called attention to the manner in which the poles and wires of the telephone and telegraph companies are destroying the shade trees. It is claimed that the companies place their poles too close to the trees, and the council was requested to provide some means whereby control could be exercied over them.

* * *

The contract for the paving of First avenue west from the railroad to First street, as awarded to Sang & Preston for $5,943 was approved. Two sewer contracts in East Fourth street, from Eighteenth to Twenty-third and from Twenty-third to Twenty-seventh were also approved. The first amounting to $3,225 was awarded to J. A. Johnson and the second amounting to $2,407.89 went to M. Fitzgerald & Co.

* * *

The council confirmed the purchase of two blocks of ground in Lloyd's division, West Duluth, for $600.

* * *

The rearrangement of block 120, Portland division on a basis which would call for lots 25x100 feet was objected to by Alderman McEwen, and it went over for a week.

For Looting Pesthouse.

Charles A. Hall of Hawthorne, Wis., has been arrested and bound over to superior court for trial, in Douglas county, on a peculiar charge, that of burglarizing the pesthouse at Lake Nebagamon. It is alleged that Hall carried away from the pesthouse a quantity of blankets and bed clothing which he concealed, the same being discovered by a man named Linberg. Hall was recently arrested and convicted of shooting deer out of season.

ABSOLUTE EQUALITY

Of Germany's Rights Will Be Preserved In Morocco.

London, April 4.—The correspondent at Tangier of the Times asserts that the correct version of Emperor William's conversation with representatives of the sultan of Morocco is as follows:

"The emperor declared that he had come expressly to Tangier to assert that he would maintain the absolute equality of German economic and commercial rights, and that he would not allow any power to obtain preferential advantages. The sultan, he said, was the free sovereign of a free country, and Germany would insist on always carrying on her affairs direct with him, and would never allow any power to act as an intermediary. The present was an unsuitable time to introduce reforms on European lines, and all reforms should be founded on Islamic laws and traditions. What Morocco required was only peace and quiet, and he would find means later on for making his opinion known on questions of detail. Finally, the emperor declared that he had made these views quite clear in a conversation with the French charge d'affaires."

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

At Cass Lake Was Dedicated on Sunday.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The First M. E. church of Cass Lake, was dedicated on Sunday, and despite very inclement weather, there was a large audience in attendance at both the morning and evening services. The program as announced for the occasion was carried out, with the exception that Rev. Dr. Dodds, presiding elder of the Crookston district, offered prayer in the morning, and Rev. J. W. Robinson of Grace church, Duluth, preached the sermon at the morning service. The church was dedicated at the evening service, by Dr. Doods, assisted by Rev. Robinson of Duluth, and Rev. W. L. Singer, pastor of the local church. An offering was taken at the evening service. When Rev. Singer stated that the church, with its many improvements, was entirely paid for, with the exception of small amount, it took but 10 minutes to raise the necessary sum.

Word has been received from Chicago that Miss Maud Shoars, who was recently bitten by a dog afflicted with the rabbies, and later sent to the Pasteur Institute for treatment, has entirely recovered.

GROWING UP

There's something the matter with the child that fails to grow up. A child that grows up too much, however, without proper filling out of flesh, is almost as badly off. Nothing will help these pale, thin "weedy" children like Scott's Emulsion. It supplies the rounding out of flesh and the rich inward nourishment of blood and vital organs which insures rapid growth a healthy and uniform development.

FINISHES SERVICE.

Court Stenographer T. H. Wolford, of Superior, Dies.

The funeral of Taylor Henry Wolford of Superior, who died Sunday morning at his home in Old Superior, will be held from the residence tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mr. Wolford has been for the past thirty years circuit court reporter for the eleventh judicial district of Wisconsin, having successively held his position under Judges Newton, Clough, Barron, Marshall and Vinje. He was a graduate of Cornell university and came to Superior in 1895. Deceased leaves a wife and three daughters.

Mr. Wolford was a man with a wide acquaintance and was actively identified with the Superior lodge of Elks.

BEDES ON SEA TRIP.

Visit West Indies and Then Extend Trip.

Washington, April 4.—Representative Bede and wife, who went to Porto Rico and other West Indian islands with the river and harbor committee on the transport Burnside, decided they would extend their sea trip to New York when the vessel arrived at New Orleans. They will leave on the Burnside today, arriving at New York Monday next. While in the South, the transport made a five-hour stop at Santo Domingo, and Bede and his associates had a short close-range peep at the situation in that island.

TIMBER LAND FRAUDS.

Wholesale Indictments By Federal Jury In Montana.

Helena, Mont., April 4.—When the United States court convenes here on April 10, there will be called for trial the fifty-three cases known as the "Western Montana lumber suits." Several hundred thousand acres of lands are involved, and to recover these the government has instituted suit against United States Senator W. A. Clark, on the ground that R. M. Cobban, who purchased them from the alleged settlers was his agent. The demurrers of Clark and Cobban have been overruled and the cases are the first on the docket. In addition to Cobban, fifty-three others have been indicted on charge of subordination of perjury, and include persons in all walks of life. The cases promise to be the most interesting in the history of the state. Special government counsel will prosecute the cases.

BABY TUCKER'S WONDERFUL CURE

CURED BY CUTICURA FOR FIVE DOLLARS

Mrs. George H. Tucker, Jr., 335 Greenfield Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., is a grateful mother. "When six months old," she says, "my little girl weighed a pound and a half less than at birth. When one month old a scab formed on her face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up, and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure, and now my child is as large, strong, and healthy as any child of her age. The doctor's and drug bills were over one hundred dollars, and my baby grew worse all the time. Then we spent less than five dollars for Cuticura and cured her."

CUTICURA A BLESSING

To Skin-Tortured Babies and Tired Mothers.

The suffering which Cuticura Soap and Ointment have alleviated among the young, and the comfort they have afforded worn-out and worried parents, have led to their adoption in countless homes as priceless curatives for birth humours, milk crust, scalled head, eczemas, rashes, and every form of itching, scaly, pimply skin, and scalp humours, with loss of hair, of infancy and childhood. Guaranteed absolutely pure.

CURLERS DINE

Members of the Duluth Club Hold Annual Banquet.

Annual Election and Business Meeting Follows the Feast.

Curler to the number of seventy-five rubbed their knees together under the festive board, at the Commercial club last evening. It was the occasion of the tenth annual banquet and business meeting of the Duluth Curling club, and it proved to be the most enjoyable affair of its kind in the history of the club.

The club has just brought to a close a most successful year, and the officers last evening took occasion to congratulate the members on the record made during the year.

"IN THE SOUP" PEA

President Magner commenced the speech-making, and set an example which was followed by the others. He wandered from his subject at the very beginning and became hopelessly entangled in a maze of good stories, from which he was unable to extricate himself, and he kept the curlers in a roar of laughter with his running fire of jokes and wittiisms.

Dr. T. H. Cleland, the chaplain of the club, followed the president, and even outdid him a little in the story-telling line. His speech was something like the plot of a musical comedy, rather hard to locate, but he succeeded in keeping his audience in a state of continuous merriment from the time he arose until he sat down. He started in to tell why the ministers didn't win any trophies. One of the reasons was that they were "hoodooed" by a lawyer in their ranks. Another claim he made was that they were in business—for their health, and that they did not care for trophies anyway. He also referred to internal dissensions caused by the presence of an Episcopalian, a Congregationalist and a Presbyterian. Here he wandered into another series of stories and did not emerge again until his time was up.

Mayor Cullum confessed that he did not know much about curling although he could boast of a grandfather who spoke with a strong Scottish accent.

"As the fox said when the trap closed on him, 'this gets me,'" said J. M. Oldham, who was called upo nto respond for his rink, which captured the Manley-McLennan agency trophy. But he rose to the occasion nobly, and made a brief and witty speech.

President Magner attempted to pass over Ron Smith, whose rink won the Herald trophy, and called upon John Pugh, one of the members of the rink to respond.

"As one of the common ordinary sweeps in the rink, I object," said Mr. Pugh. "This scheme of pretending that Ron Smith isn't here is either a put up job between our skip and the president or an intentional slur on our skip. Now it's up to the president to explain which."

The president dodged the issue and called upon Ron Smith, but the latter refused to rise from the seat he had modestly chosen at the farthest end of the table.

Vice-president A. H. Smith spoke on behalf of the MacKenzie rink, which he skipped to victory in the Universal Mill contest. He told how the old theory that four skips can't play together, had been exploded at Winnipeg, and urged the members to all boost for the bonspiel of the Northwestern association which will be held in Duluth next winter.

E. F. Burg said that next year he was going to give more time to curling and less to politics.

Secretary Alex. MacRae was very brief in his remarks, and expressed his pleasure that his rink had succeeded in winning second prize in the Universal contest.

A. W. Frick said he had gone to California when he thought his rink had been thrown out of every contest in the club, and had returned to find that they had won the Dover handles. He said he was unable to account for it, and promised it wouldn't happen again if he had anything to say.

P. S. Anneke, whose rink won the St. Louis trophy, expressed his pelasure at being represented among the winning rinks.

Rev. H. S. Webster was on the program, but owing to illness was unable to be present, and Clarence B. Miller was called upon in his place.

Mr. Miller said he had been inclined to poke fun at curlers, but since joining the club he had the disease as badly as anyone.

Colin Thompson, armed with the bagpipes, then led the march to the assembly room, where the prizes were awarded, and the annual election of officers held. Little change was made in the officers. W. B. Magner was re-elected president, Alex. MacRae secretary, and C. F. West, treasurer. P. S. Anneke was chosen to succeed A. H. Smith as vice-president, and Rev. Alexander Milne was elected chaplain to succeed Dr. Cleland. These officers together with Frank Crasweller, R. J. MacLeod and S. H. Jones will constitute the board of directors. Donald Morrison and I. Pitblado will be the representatives to the Manitoba branch of the Royal Caledonia Curling association.

The following is a list of the members who sat down to the banquet tables:

W. E. Magner, Mayor Cullum, Rev. T. H. Cleland, A. B. Black, C. B. Woodruff, W. E. Richardson, H. S. Newell, J. G. Vivion, J. T. Hickman, G. F. Smith, Colin Thompson, F. A. Currier, W. B. Dunlap, D. JONES BOY BOUND OVER

Motion to Dismiss Case Is Denied By Judge Windom.

After hearing the arguments of both attorneys, Judge Windom last evening held Beverley Jones, the 14-year-old Lakeside boy, to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree.

He released the boy on his own recognizance, trusting to his parents to produce him when the time for his trial arrives.

In ruling on the motion Judge Windom stated that if the Dahlman girl's story was true, the defendant might be deemed guilty of the offense, and that there was, therefore, a question for the jury to decide, as to whether the girl or the boys were telling the truth.

He said he had no alternative but to bind the boy over. The girl had proved a good witness, and had no motive or interest in the case, and that he could not adjudge her guilty of perjury by allowing the boy to go free.

Attorney Baldwin maintained that the state had not proved any case against the boy, and had not produced evidence sufficient to warrant his being bound over.

County Attorney McClintock claimed that the Dahlman girl's story was unshaken, and was contradicted only by the defendant's own testimony, and that there was sufficient evidence to warrant an investigation by the grand jury.

Judge Windom therefore decided the motion to dismiss and the case will go to the grand jury.

SAVE YOUR HEALTH.

It Is Worth Saving and Some Duluth People Know How To Save It.

There are some people who take their lives in their hands by continuing to neglect their kidneys when they know these organs need help.

Sick kidneys are responsible for an immense amount of suffering and ill-health, but there is no need to suffer or to remain in danger when all diseases and sufferings arising from sick kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Here is the statement of one Duluth person who has reclaimed good health by the use of this remedy:

A. Ebmer of 331 Fifth street east, Duluth, Minn., says: "My experience has demonstrated the fact that Doan's Kidney Pills are a remedy of exceptional merit, and one that can be relied upon in treating different phases of kidney trouble. Six years ago I suffered from a most distressing, dull, heavy pain in the small of the back and through the loins. It broke my sleep at night, and in spite of the various remedies I used from time to time I had obtained no relief. At length I got Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them with the most gratifying results. In a short time I found a cure, and this has proved lasting and permanent. I am an earnest advocate of Doan's Kidney Pills and have already recommended them in the local newspapers."

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT

And Talk of New Evidence In the Koch Case.

New Ulm, Minn., April 4.—The presence of Dr. G. R. Koch's attorneys in this city has renewed interest in the case, which is to be retried at Mankato this month.

Questioned as to what the defense would have to offer, Mr. Abbott said: "We have, without question, a very strong case. We have added new evidence that makes the case such that there can be no question as to an acquittal for Dr. Koch. Aside from this, we have had detectives at work on clues that are much more conclusive than the one that led to the arrest of Dr. Koch."

What these clues are Mr. Abbott would not say, further than that they had found evidence of a man who had several times threatened the life of Dr. Gebhardt and who had been in New Ulm at the time of the murder. Detectives are at work to find this man.

Dr. Koch has fully regained his health and spirits. He spends all his time at his office, where he is kept busy. He says he has been made the victim of some conspiracy, and that if the truth ever comes to light, it will be found that the person who committed the crime purposely set about to throw the guilt upon him.

At the time of the obstruction of the North-Western track at Mankato last week, one of the through trains having passengers for Mankato brought them to this place, where they had to remain for a train going over the other line to take them home. Most of them took occasion to visit Dr. Koch simply out of curiosity. Dr. Meleis, successor to Dr. Gebhardt, occupying the rooms in which the murder was committed, says he daily does work that is not needed for persons who want to see the room where the murder occurred.

The state has not been idle and declares it will place witnesses on the stand whose testimony cannot fail to convince the jury of the guilt of Dr. Koch. What new evidence it has secured no person is able to say, as the attorneys have given out nothing.

The story that the state has had detectives at work since the last trial is denied by the attorneys. There was a story to that effect in Mankato, also that a detective for the defense had been working there, representing himself as employed by the state. Both stories are without foundation.

THREATENS LIFE

Of Daughter Who Would Marry a Widower.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 4.—Louis Steichen, who resides in the vicinity of Dent, has been bound over to the grand jury on the charge of aiming a loaded gun at his daughter and threatening to shoot her. Failing to give bonds in the sum of $1,000, he has been lodged in the county jail.

Mr. Steichen's difficulty is due to his objections to the marriage of his daughter to a widower residing in the neighborhood of their home and it was understood that he drew the gun and informed her that her marriage would be quickly followed by her death.

Some of the neighbors evidently sympathize with him, as it is reported they waited on the prospective bridegroom and informed him that he must leave the neighborhood.

MONROE IN TROUBLE

Since He Revealed Hiding Place of Gold.

Council Bluffs, Ia., April 4.—James Monroe of Woodbine, when he thought he was dying, told the hiding place of $2,700 in gold. Now he has recovered and bitterly rues the day he told the secret. He willed his farm to two friends and contracted with a monument firm of Council Bluffs to build a $2,000 shaft on his grave. To pay for this, he told his beneficiaries where to dig and they unearthed the gold.

But Monroe didn't die. His first grief arose when the county treasurer demanded $109 taxes on the buried money. His next setback came when he attempted to cancel the order for the monument. The contractors had begun work and refused to settle for less than $1,000, which he has just paid.

WOMEN WHO WORK

Need Strong, Vigorous Nerves.

The life of women and girls who work is at best a hard one and even under the most favorable circumstances the results often show shattered nervous systems and broken down health. To meet the conditions required of her, to sustain the extra strain and nervous tension of duties never intended for her in the plan of nature, she must use every endeavor to preserve the vitality of her nerves and the regularity of the female functions. No remedy ever offered the world has accomplished the wonderful results obtained from the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. By supplying the nerves and blood with the elements necessary to their life and activity, they cause a steady increase of natural strength to body and mind, brighten the eyes, clear the complexion and instead of a depressed, wornout feeling, there will be one of buoyancy and life. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills make life worth living.

Mrs. Anna Doretz, of No. 919 Cleveland Avenue, Niagara Falls, N. Y., says:

"I was overtaxed with work and completely tired out. I used to go to bed to think and worry and could not sleep as a result, and I was nervous during the day. Hearing of the good effects of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills in such affections, I determined to try them. I got a box and they were a complete success. They toned me up quickly, I got over the nervousness and sleep finely and restful again. I am sure I am glad to recommend them." 50c a box, at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. WILL NOT ACCEPT

W. H. Shea Refuses to Accept Reduction of Last Verdict.

Will Go to Fourth Trial of the Damage Action.

"I will not accept the reduction made by the court of $3,000 verdict given me by the jury in the last trial of my suit against the Cloquet Lumber company," declared William H. Shea, one of the Cedar Island Lake settlers, who sued the lumber company for damages in the amount of $25,000 for alleged malicious prosecution, and who has been rendered three successive verdicts, two having been set aside, and the third to receive the same treatment, unless Mr. Shea will accept judgment for $1,200.

"You may say that as soon as Judge Cant files his order directing that I take $1,200, or the verdict will be set aside for a new trial, that notice will immediately be given by my attorney for another trial to come on during the May term of court. Furthermore, if I am successful in getting another verdict and the court sets it aside as being excessive, a fifth trial will be called for the September term. I intend to keep on in this fight until the court sees fit to abide by the decision of the men who constitute the jury.

"I am both surprised and disappointed that the court has not let the last verdict of $3,000 stand. I am not looking for lawsuits nor for 'blood money.' All I seek is justice, but I am compelled to say that I have had my doubts as to whether I am going to get it through the courts.

"This is a fight that the Weyerhauser interests have brought on themselves by following out the tactics that they have always employed since they operated in the Northwest, that of gaining their own ends by overriding the opposition of anybody or anything that comes in their path. It is a question now of principle, whether the law will continue to countenance such high-handed proceedings or whether the rights of the people are to be protected and the lumber company be punished by judgment on a verdict that is large enough to be a punishment and which will in the future deter it from making an attempt that it has to override the rights of myself and the other settlers at Ely Lake by going on our lands in spite of our protests and cutting off the timber.

"The fact that I have been given three successive verdicts at the hands of three separate juries, and the fact that the last court has by his order admitted that I am entitled to something, has fully demonstrated that there was a clear case of malicious prosecution of a private individual by a larger and powerful corporation and it strikes me that when thirty-six men who have served on juries and one judge have held that I was entitled to damages in a sufficient amount to constitute a punishment for the lumber company, the verdicts should be permitted to stand. It seems very unusual that there should be thirty-six men so influenced by passion and prejudice that they cannot fix the amount they believed I am entitled to.

"In the three trials that have been had, verdicts have been successively returned in my favor for $4,000, $4,000 and $3,000. The first verdict was set aside by the state supreme court on the ground of errors, not because it was excessive. The second verdict was set aside by district court on the ground that it was excessive, and now the court says the verdict must be reduced or a new trial will be granted on the same ground. The last two trials were had absolutely without error, as the courts will admit.

"When the Cedar Island Lake settlers went on their land they did so in good faith and with the ultimate hope and expectation that they would acquire title. The lumber company came along and deliberately and in spite of protest on the part of the settlers or their request to wait the outcome of the litigation, began cutting off the timber. The company was successful in taking the timber until it came to my lands and, because I used every lawful means to stop the trespass, they had me arrested and brought to Duluth to get me out of the way so the company's employes could go ahead and strip the land of timber while I had my hands tied. The charge against me that I was a dangerous man and threatened to kill the men, failed entirely and I was released. That I was not put in jail or sent to prison was no fault of the Cloquet Lumber company. Instead of doing any personal injury to the lumber company's employes, I twice had them arrested and jailed for trespass, although I had to search the range for a justice of peace to issue the warrants, who was not under the company's influence.

"There are now some six or seven suits somewhat similar to this one pending the disposal of this action, which is, in fact a test suit. All the settlers ask is justice."

The costs of the three trials, outside of the costs of the hearing before the state supreme court, are said to be larger than the amount which the court now fixes that Mr. Shea must accept or go to another trial. In any event, whether the case were settled now or continues on indefinitely, the costs will eventually fall on the loser.

The following men comprised the last jury that tried the Shea case: M. S. Burrows, John F. Killorin, William Beck, George H. Winchester, Lewis R. Birch, Richard P. Sloan, S. C. Smith, Joseph Miller, Steven M. Lester, John Engberg, Edward Edholm, G. E. Dixon.

SUIT BY MOYER.

Asks Punishment of Former Governor Peabody.

Denver, April 4.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, filed a complaint in the United States circuit court against J. H. Peabody, former governor of Colorado; Sherman H. Bell, former adjutant general, and Bulkeley Wells, who is now adjutant general, who was military commandant in Telluride when that city was under martial law. The complaint recites that the complainant was subjected to disgrace, hardships and indignity by the defendants without legal process.

The confinement it is alleged greatly impaired the plaintiff's health by reason of the extreme dampness and unwholeness of the cell. The complaint asserts that the defendants were guilty of malice and that they should be imprisoned according to law.

Moyer was held as a military prisoner. Damages are asked in the sum of $100,000 from each of the defendants.

STUPEFYING IN EFFECTS

Suspect That "Dope" Is Contained In Jamaica Ginger.

Philadelphia, April 4.—Alarming reports of the effects of the use in certain parts of the state of a product sold as Jamaica ginger have been made to State Dairy and Food Commissioner Warren, who has ordered an investigation. From the reports received of its effects the liquid seems to partake of the nature both of "dope" or knockout drops, and of wood alcohol. Its effects, as described to the commissioner, are of the stupefying and deadening nature ascribed to the former, and, on the other hand, some of the peculiar properties inherent in the sight-destroying wood alcohol, the use of which has recently been marked by many fatalities in this city, New York and elsewhere. These conditions have led to the suspicion that the latter deadly drug forms one of the constituents.

The matter has been brought to Dr. Warren's attention by several reputable and well-known citizens of Phenixville, some of whom declare the ginger is being used by individuals as a beverage.

Agents of the department were immediately instructed to procure samples of the product and these have been submitted for analysis to two chemists of the commission. Prof. C. B. Cochran of West Chester and Prof. Charles La Wall of this city. Commissioner Warren says that he does not believe that the chemists will find wood alcohol in the so-called Jamaica ginger, but that from the reports that he has received from his informants he would not be surprised to find that the stuff is made of chemical junk, including capsicum, and that it is wholly a bogus compound.

The department officials believe that the retailers who are handling this sort of product are doubtless deceived by the manufacturers as to its quality.

Naval Recruiting Party Here Offering Inducements to Enlist.

Large Increase In Navy Necessitates 3,000 More Tars.

The naval party which has opened headquarters in the government building where an endeavor is being made to induce able-bodied men to enter Uncle Sam's blue-jacket service, consists of the following:

Lieut. S. I. M. Major, U. S. N., has charge of the party. With him are Assistant Surgeon A. H. Wise, U. S. N.; W. H. Belknap, chief master-at-arms; W. B. Jernigan, chief yeoman; J. H. McGibbon, hospital steward, G. A. Backers, yeoman; R. C. Floyd, seaman; Thomas Smith, chief boatswain's mate; William Leuhart, chief machinist's mate; A. W. Johnson, chief master-at-arms; C. W. Ross, yeoman; F. M. Frederiksen, hospital apprentice; B. A. Copeland, hospital apprentice.

Lieut. Major was in Duluth in charge of a recruiting party for a few days last September and since that time has been as far south as Vicksburg and as far east as Columbus, Ohio. There are three naval recruiting parties out at present, the others being one on the Atlantic coast and one on the Pacific coast. The navy department is very anxious to procure more men and is offering every inducement for physically and mentally sound men, particularly young ones, to enter the service. Congress has just allowed an increase of 3,000 in the navy and that number must be filled before long. The tremendous increase in the navy will demand more and more men for the battleships and cruisers and the navy department is anxious to make the service attractive.

Each battleship and the larger type of armored cruisers take about 600 men. When one considers that there are at this time under construction thirteen battleships and thirteen armored cruisers in the different navy yards one will realize the demand there is for men in the navy. The thirteen battleships being constructed range in tonnage from 16,000 to 13,000 and the armored cruisers are rated at from 14,500 to 9,700. These a little better than double the power of the navy for, while there are more than twenty-six ships in the navy, the tonnage and greater fighting capacity of the new ships on the average, will more than make up for the deficiency in numbers. And more ships will be built from now on as Uncle Sam proposes to be ready for any of the big fellows and will have his Big Stick where he can reach it handily.

The recruiting party wants to get men between the ages of 17 and 25 for apprentice seamen; and also men between the ages of 25 and 35 as mechanics, for instance, machinists, electricians, boilermakers, coppersmiths, plumbers, blacksmiths, painters, carpenters and the like, going almost entirely through the range of the skilled trades; also all classes of men in the engineer's department of a steamer, firemen, oilers, water tenders, etc. In the mechanics' and engineers' department men are paid just about the same scale in the navy as they are in civil life, and in some particulars are paid more. Uncle Sam wants none but the best men, and each applicant is put through a rigid physical and mental examination which he has got to pass up to standard to get in. It is true in this case that many are called but few are chosen.

Recruits are sent to the Norfolk navy yard in West Virginia, from which point the mechanics, firemen, etc., are assigned to ships as needed, and in the meantime are given instruction at the yard. The apprentice seamen are given some preliminary instruction at the yard and are then assigned to one of the several training ships and sent out for a six-months' cruise north into the Baltic or into the Mediterranean sea. Among the best-known training ships is Admiral Farragut's old flagship, the Hartford. There are also the Alliance, the Minneapolis, the Dixie and others.

Lieut. Major, who is in charge of the party, only a year ago returned from three years' service on the China station. He was in Manchuria just before the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war and was at a point on the Yalu river with a gunboat and a body of sailors guarding the American consul and other Americans there. Just previous to going to China he served three and a half years in South American and West Indian waters and went from South America direct to China through the Suez canal route without coming to this country, so that he was absent from his native land almost seven years.

The World Wants Peace.

In the war with Russia, Japan has shown a progressive spirit, and while victory has been largely on their side yet they are disposed to bring about peace honorable to both parties. Russia still refuses, then the nations of the world intend to demand that the war cease. In the battle against disease, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been most successful, always driving it out and fortifying the system so that it cannot return. It is prompt and efficient in its action in cases of poor appetite, bloating, heartburn, indigestion, dyspepsia, costiveness, cramps, female disorders or malaria, fever and ague. It is especially good as a recuperant when the system has been weakened by a severe cold or attack of grippe. We urge every sick man and woman to try a bottle at once. It always cures.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

J. Frank Cordova, the former pastor of the South River M. E. church, who eloped with Miss Julia Bowne, was taken to state's prison Monday to serve a term of four years for abandoning his wife and assaulting her. He was taken to the station handcuffed and followed by a big crowd. Cordova's case is before the supreme court on appeal.

Three men were killed by an explosion of a small tank used for the storage of nitro glycerine at a dynamite manufacturing plant near Bay City, Mich., Monday.

James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, arrived at Lakewood, N. J., on a special train Monday afternoon, accompanied by his wife. It had been reported that Mrs. Hill was seriously ill, but Mr. Hill reported that his wife's sickness was not serious.

"I don't want to go to school," were the last words of Merl O'Brien, 18 years old, who shot himself at Lincoln, Neb., and will die. The family moved there recently from York county, in order that the children might go to school. The father of the boy says Merl was homesick for the farm and the old home scenes and had been despondent for days.

The motion for a new trial for Charles L. Tucker, convicted of the murder of Mabel Page, at Cambridge, Mass., is denied in a decision rendered Monday by Judges Sherman and Seaman, who presided at the trial. The decision of the court will be referred to the circuit court.

Kid Wilson Monday night knocked out Paddy Lane of rBooklyn in the first round at Cincinnati. The fight was scheduled to go fifteen rounds.

Monday, the day set for his trial on the charge of murdering R. W. Malone and Capt. J. L. Veasy in a street fight a year ago, S. M. Nixon, a prominent politician and lawyer of Lockhart, Tex., dropped dead. Death was due to apoplexy induced by nervous collapse. On the dockets were two suits for $50,000 each filed by the widows of the dead men.

Fire today destroyed the main building of the I. O. O. F. widows' and orphans' home at Corsicana, Tex., together with all its contents. The loss is $100,000, with $38,000 insurance. Three little girls jumped from a window of the second story, one of whom is in a critical condition.

Work on the new postoffice building in Chicago was practically suspended Monday on account of a strike of 150 members of the building trades employed in finishing work. They quit work in sympathy with the steamfitters, who struck last week because the contractors attempted to replace union men with non-union men.

The New York assembly Monday night unanimously passed the bill making the term of office of the mayor of New York four years instead of two.

Frank Noyes of Boston, aged 60, shot and fatally wounded his wife Katherine, aged 58, Monday night and then shot himself. A daughter died recently and it is said that her death affected his mind.

CORBETT AND ERNE SPAR IN POOR FORM.

Philadelphia, April 4.—Young Corbett and Young Erne of this city sparred six rounds at the Washington Sporting club last night. Corbett fought wildly, frequently misjudging his distance and many of his blows landed on the back of his opponent's head. Erne, while active, was timid, and much of the time was wasted in clinching and hugging. In the third round Erne was cut over the eye and in the sixth, Corbett's mouth was bleeding. In the same round Corbett rushed Erne though the ropes. Erne landed the greater number of blows. He jabbed Corbett frequently and ran away from the swings of his opponent. Corbett tried to stop Erne repeatedly and several times countered on Erne's jaw but his blows lacked strength. Under the law no decision can be given in this city, but the spectators appeared to be of the opinion that the fight was a draw.

Discoveries Made By Young Minister In Family Bible.

Bangor, Me., April 4.—"Don't you find something new in the Bible every time you look into it?" asked a Calais lawyer of a preacher as they were seated together on a train coming into Bangor.

"Every time," said the young minister. "I never open the book but I find some new food for thought, and speaking of food for thought, I must tell you what I found in the Bible last week," and the minister smiled a regular orthodox smile.

"You see a family moved into Saint Stephen this fall, and the first Sunday they came to our church and I found they wanted to join us on a letter from their former church. I appointed a time t. receive them and give the right hand of fellowship, but when the time came it had to be postponed, because they could not find the letter from their former church.

"The woman said she had mislaid the letter. I called at the house twice and they had not found it.

"The woman said she was sure she had laid it somewhere, but could not find it. I was anxious to get them into our church out of the cold, so I suggested different places for them to hunt for it.

"Finally I saw a Bible on the table, and I suggested that maybe they had it in the Bible. The woman said maybe, but if it was in there it was lost, because they never could find anything in the Bible.

"I took up the Good Book and opened it at the New Testament, and in the first chapter of Matthew I found a paper and opened it, the brother and sister looking over my shoulder. Opening the paper, I was about to read it, when the woman said that was not a letter; it was only a receipt for making face powder.

"I let up on that and turned over a few leaves, when I found an envelope, and opening it, I learned how to make mixed pickles. In Luke I struck pay dirt, turning up an old Confederate $10 bill, which was good for its face in two years after the acknowledgment of the Southern Confederacy.

"There were a couple of long hairpins in Luke, also a piece of black courtplaster. In Genesis I found a remedy for rheumatism, and a little farther along was a formula for preparing a gargle for sore throat, and over a leaf were two blocks all patched ready for a silk quilt and the tail of several neckties.

"When I opened on Deuteronomy I thought I had the letter. There was an envelope with something in it, and I opened it, but it wasn't a church letter. It was ten shares of stock in the Reverend Mr. Jernegan's salt water gold mine at Lubec, and on the back of the envelope was written in pencil 'the greatest fraud on record!'

"Deuteronomy didn't pan out any more except a recipe for making a salve, but when I struck Leviticus there seemed to be a grand field for research. There was a new white kid glove, with the thumb half torn off and a lock of curly hair, which brought tears to the eyes of the brother and sister, who were aiding me in the search, and I knew it was from the head of their darling who had been taken away from them.

"On the next page was a recipe for making preserves of watermelon rinds and a root beer recipe, with ginger in, and a chromo from a tea store.

In Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians I ran on a recipe for making soft soap, and a clipping from an agricultural paper telling how to start a balky horse, beside a formula for an insect powder.

"The search was becoming interesting. When I got to Chronicles new beauties were open to me, and I found a porous plaster and a photograph of Langtry. Proverbs contained a recipe for sauerkraut.

"I tackled Revelation and after reading a glowing account of how to wash flannels so they wouldn't shrink, we found the letter we were looking for in an envelope with a prepared mustard plaster. So I think I have shown you that he who searches the scriptures, in the ordinary family Bible, will find much that will make him tired."

TELEPHONE TO MASTHEAD.

Communication With Everybody Aboard the Ship.

Philadelphia, April 4.—Until recently the telephone has not been adopted for use on shipboard for the reason that the great amount of vibration encountered in the boats under headway has mitigated against its successful operation. It is thought that these difficulties have been overcome in one way or another and two very elaborate telephone systems are being installed on the steamer Dakota, now under construction for the Great Northern company. One is an exchange of the ordinary private plant type, which places the occupant of each room in communication with 150 other stations in different parts of the boat and the other is an intercommunicating system which is made use of in the boat's administration. The officers in making use of the latter do their own switching. It will largely supplant the gong and jingle systems and the marine telegraph. It extends between the navigating and engine-room stations.

The stations are the bridge, the after bridge, crow's nest, port and starboard engine spaces, wheel-house, chief engineer's room, chief electrician's room, central electric station and the dynamo shelf. The six exposed stations have waterproof instruments. The holding case is of copper. The talking and listening part are connected, so that all the officer, or sailor, has to do is to put the receiver to his ear. A great deal of ingenuity has been exercised in the construction of the instruments in such a manner as to exclude the water and moisture of the air.

Under the new order of things, when the lookout, high up in the crow's nest, sights an object on the sea, instead of raising the cry as he did formerly, he will simply open a copper telephone box and transmit the intelligence over the wire.

PRICE IS EASIER

Copper Metal Slightly Lower and Tone Not So Strong.

Walker Attributes This to Weakness In Prices of Stocks.

George L. Walker reports the copper metal price as slightly easier, with a fractional decline. He believes it is to be only a passing phase of the market, however, induced by the setback in stock prices. His weekly letter says:

"The tone of the copper metal market is a shade easier at the moment. Lake is said to be obtainable at 15¾ cents and electrolytic at 15¼ cents per pound. This conditions is believed to be wholly due, however, to the slight hesitation in business circles occasioned by the reaction in stock market prices. Consumers are refusing to buy any more copper at these prices than their actual immediate needs demand, and a few small producers have recently shown indications of nervousness and offered copper for future delivery an eighth of a cent below what have been the going prices.

"It is understood that there have recently been some very large sales of copper for delivery two to four months ahead at full prices. Some of this has been for export and the remainder for home consumption.

"The fact that exports of copper so far this year have not held quite up to last year's average is causing pessimistic talk in some quarters. As nearly as can be ascertained the falling off in exports has approximated 20 per cent and foreign statisticians are talking of a 25 per cent decline in "apparent" British, French, and German consumption. A careful investigation makes it plain that the falling off is more apparent than real.

"The heavy exports during the early months of last year were greatly encouraged by the fact that copper was then obtainable for 12 to 13 cents per pound. European consumers saw indications of a coming business revival, and also the probability of an outbreak of hostilities between Russia and Japan. The situation was such that shrewd European business men were convinced that copper prices could not possibly go any lower, and they bought and added to their private stocks until prices advanced. At the time mentioned there were some accumulated stocks of copper in the hands of producers and speculators, and it was those stocks that made possible the heavy shipments of the first half of 1904.

"The mistake of the European statisticians at present is their assumption that the copper bought by English, French and German consumers early last year actually went into consumption at the time of shipment. Instead of this, however, empty bins were being filled and provision made for an improvement in business conditions that was then only beginning. It is therefore probable that European imports of copper in that period greatly exceeded the then current consumption. At present Europe's imports are less than its consumption, as bins are being emptied, the supply of old metal has increased as a result of higher prices and, wherever possible, the low grade mines of foreign countries are temporarily increasing their production.

"Foreign trade authorities declare that engineering and electrical trades continue active both in Great Britain and in Europe. It seems that a considerable portion of the copper recently shipped to China was for coinage purposes. It is competent opinion that whether or not the Russ-Jap war terminates, Russia has an internal war on its hands that will likely last and consume copper for years to come. All indications are that the foreign demand for copper will continue strong. Therefore, notwithstanding the high level of prices.

"In the United States business is much more active than it was a year ago. It is estimated that the domestic consumption of copper has been 15 per cent to 25 per cent heavier in the first quarter of this year than last. Copper producers are said to be well sold well ahead, not a little of the metal contracted for delivery still remaining undisturbed in the mines. As there is no surplus supplies to draw from, and home consumption is so much increased, therefore, it would be impossible to maintain last year's phenomenal export record. We simply haven't the copper to ship.

"Copper producers are still working with consumers to prevent a further advance in metal prices, knowing that the ultimate influence of an abnormal price level is always bad. As the matter stands, therefore, production and consumption are traveling hand in hand, and consumers readily buy all the copper produced at prices which are giving producers phenomenal profits.

COPPER SHARES.

"The decline in the New York stock market, the temporary weakening tendency of London metal quotations, a bad bread in the "Bisbee" coppers which are traded in at "the Lake," persistent selling of and lower prices for Trinity, Daly-West, Mass and Centennial were among the depressing influences under which Boston's coppers have staggered along this week. Notwithstanding all these, however, prices, as a whole, have been splendidly maintained, so well, in fact, that it is now considered certain, in well informed circles, that there is steady absorption of copper stocks for powerful New York interests. Utah, Bingham, United States Mining, Boston Consolidated, and one or two other coppers are now quite as high as they were before the general selling movement in the New York list began. This seems to furnish conclusive evidence that someone besides the public is buying coppers.

"The prospect is that as soon as the present selling movement in the New York market is over, Amalgamated will be taken in hand and made the leader of a big advance speculative movement. The interests behind Amalgamated will take a prominent hand in the local market through Utah, Parrot, United States Mining, Greene and the other coppers in which they have recently become heavy holders. This will result in the long deferred copper boom. The best of the coppers should be bought at this level of prices."

EQUITABLE AFFAIRS

Are Being Investigated By State Superintendent of Insurance.

Done at Request of Both President and Vice President.

New York, April 4.—The most important development in the Equitable Life Assurance society's affairs yesterday was the announcement last night by Governor Higgins at Albany and by President James W. Alexander of the society in this city, that the state superintendent of insurance, Francis Hendricks, had begun an investigation of the company's affairs.

This was followed by the introduction in the state senate of a resolution providing for a legislative investigation of the Equitable.

Mr. Hendricks returned to Albany after several days spent in conference with those interested in Equitable matters in this city. The governor's announcement came less than twelve hours after the superintendent had reached his Albany office, and was followed by a formal announcement from Mr. Hendricks' office in this city last night to the same effect.

This action by the state authorities follows a request made by Mr. Alexander to Supt. Hendricks by letter, Feb. 21, and by Mr. Hyde in a later letter, announcement of which was made last Saturday night.

In an authorized statement—the first Mr. Alexander has made since the state superintendent was called into the controversy—the president of the Equitable says that the investigation by Mr. Hendricks "is now in progress."

"Its result," he adds, "will establish the truth or falsity of many matters which are now being alleged on the one hand and controverted on the other." He also takes occasion to deny some of the statements made formally by Mr. Hyde last Saturday night. Mr. Alexander's statement follows:

"It has been my settled purpose to avoid, as far as possible, a discussion in the public press of the merits of any phase of the controversy now existing within the Equitable Assurance society. It is properly a matter of concern with me to avoid any expression which will embarrass the board of directors in the discharge of its duties or that will give rise to premature judgments on any matter affecting the society or any individual. I am confirmed in this resolve by the fact that an examination of the society was asked for by me through a letter addressed to the superintendent of insurance on Feb. 21, 1905. This examination is now in progress. Its result will establish the truth or falsity of any matters which are now being alleged on the one hand and controverted on the other.

"In a signed statement issued by the vice-president of the society, James H. Hyde, on Saturday, April 1, 1905, certain statements were made which I cannot allow to pass unchallenged. He says that the charges that have been made against him have their origin in an effort by individuals to obtain control of the Equitable society and its assets. On the part of myself and the other officers of the society who are associated with me in this movement, I desire to deny that our action is influenced by any motive except a desire to discharge our duty as officers of the society.

"Mr. Hyde further says that he has exercised no power except with the president's concurrence. In reply, I assert that Mr. Hyde's usurpation of the president's authority and his habitual action without the consent or the knowledge of the president of the society are among the subjects of serious criticism against his conduct as an officer of the society.

"Mr. Hyde's request for an examination of the society's affairs by the superintendent of insurance must be viewed as an acquiescence in my course in this respect, which a few days ago Mr. Hyde was disposed to regard as taken without authority.

"I have his formal denial of the frequent assertions that as one of the trustees of the voting stock, I am invested with the voting power upon it. The trust specifically provides that no votes shall be cast upon the Hyde shares at any election by the three trustees, except for persons approved by Mr. James H. Hyde, who is also one of the trustees."

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET

Easily Elected In Michigan By a Large Majority.

Detroit, April 4.—Judge Joseph B. Moore of Lapeer, the Republican candidate, was yesterday elected to the supreme court by a majority of about 75,000. The Republican candidates for regents of the state university, Arthur Hill of Saginaw and Dr. W. H. Sawyer of Hillsdale, and the Republican candidate for the state board of education, W. J. McKeon of Calhoun, were also elected by the same majority. As is usual at spring elections, the vote was rather light. The weather was rainy throughout the state. The election and the principal interest in the balloting was in the local contests in the different cities and counties. Gustave Helene, Democrat, was elected mayor of Greater Bay City, the first chief executive of the consolidated cities of Bay City and West Bay City.

In Flint, D. D. Aikin, Republican, defeated the present Democrat mayor, and at Sault Ste Marie, Frank Perry, Republican, defeated the present Democratic mayor. One of the surprises in the state was the defeat of Judge Howard Wiest for re-election as circuit judge of Ingham county. Judge Wiest presided at the trials of the members of the state military board who were implicated in the military clothing frauds at the close of the Spanish war. He was beaten by Judge Quincy A. Smith, who defended Eli R. Sutton, one of the members of the military board.

In the twenty-eighth judicial circuit Judge Chittenden of Cadillac, who was beaten for the nomination in the Republican convention, was elected on an independent ticket.

Neither Detroit nor Grand Rapids, the largest cities of the state, elected mayors.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

Driving Crew Locates Near the Cameron Dam.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., April 4.—The advance guard of a driving crew has been sent to the Cameron dam on the Thornapple river and is lodged in a camp where the members of the sheriff's posse are said to have been fired at by John F. Dietz last April. Deitz means to stand out for $10,000, demanded from the lumber company, before he is willing to consider peace. Such a treaty is out of the question and the lumber company feels it is up to the United States authorities to perform their duty and remove Deitz and thus carry out the edicts of the courts.

SAPOLIO

IMPORTANT ISSUE HANGS

On the Final Decision In the Hugh Funk Case.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Great interest is being taken in the outcome of the appeal which will be taken from the decision of Judge Loehren, of the United States district court, in the case of Hugh Funk, charged with selling liquor to Indians and also introducing liquor onto the land over which the government is claimed to have jurisdiction, by virtue of same having at one time been an Indian allotment. Funk was found guilty, before Judge Loehren, last Friday, and was remanded to the custody of the deputy United States marshal. He at once gave bonds, and the case will be appealed to the United States court of appeals, and, if another adverse decision is rendered, then the case will be appealed to the United States supreme court, for a final decision. The case was in the nature of a friendly test of the rulings of the department of Indian affairs, in which it was claimed that, although the land on which the saloon was located fone mile west of the station of Ball Club, about thirty-five miles east of Cass Lake) had been purchased as a deceased allotment and title had been given to the purchaser, Frank Gorentlo, the property was still subject to the laws governing Indian lands, and no intoxicating liquor could be sold there. Gorentlo rented a building to Hugh Funk, and the latter started a saloon therein. He was warned to stop the sale of liquor, and in order to test the law in the matter and ascertain if land on which a person has received a title is still subject to the laws of the Indian department, had the present suit brought.

Local interest in the case is great, as there are those who claim that if the decision of Judge Loehren holds good, the land on which is located the present village of Cass Lake is in the same condition as that at Ball Club. The land embraced in the townsite of Cass Lake was purchased at public auction, from the government, and it is far from likely that the same law will apply here. Saloons have been established in Cass Lake, to the number of twenty or more, and they have been conducted as such during the past four years. The new townsite of Richards, as well as any other towns that may have been established on deceased Indian allotments is affected by this decision, and the outcome of the Funk suit will be watched with great interest.

RICH STAKE

Won By Brown's Agile In Tennessee Derby.

Memphis, Tenn., April 4.—Captain S. S. Browns' handsome bay colt Agile, by Sir Dixon, dam Alpena, ridden by Jack Martin, romped home an easy winner in the Tennessee derby at a mile and an eighth yesterday afternoon, defeating John Smulski, the Ellison candidate, and Jack Lory, representing the stable of John W. Schorr, by five lengths. Ramshorn and Whippoorwill, the entry of Capt. W. S. Williams, were withdrawn. Agile was a prohibitive favorite in the betting.

The race was run over a muddy course. The start was a good one and Agile soon showed his superiority by assuming the lead at will. Down the back stretch the son of Sir Dixon never faltered and turning for home was two lengths to the good. Martin held Agile in gentle restraint in the flight to the wire and won in easy fashion. The finish for second place was plrited between John Smulski and Jack Lory, the former winning out by a length.

Yesterday's derby was probably the richest stake ever offered in the South, the gross value being $10,535, of which $8,830 went to the winner.

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF FOREIGN WILL.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, March 20th, 1905.

In the Matter of the Estate of Elizabeth McGinniss, Deceased:

Whereas, certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of Elizabeth McGinniss, late of Cuyahoga County, Ohio, deceased, and the probate thereof in the probate court of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, have been delivered to this court;

And, whereas, Joseph H. McGinniss has filed therewith his petition, representing among other things that said Elizabeth McGinniss lately died in said county of Cuyahoga testate, possessed of certain real estate, situated in said county of St. Louis, and that said petitioner is one of the executors of said estate, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to him and W. S. McGinniss issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court at the probate office in said county, on Monday, the seventeenth day of April, A. D. 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at the city of Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 20th day of March, A. D. 1905.

NOTICE OF EXPIRATION OF REDEMPTION PERIOD—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss.

To H. Jova:

Take notice, that the following described piece or parcel of land, situated in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, to-wit: Fractional lot fourteen (14) except the part taken for Grand avenue, block twelve (12) West End addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, was on the fourth day of May, A. D. 1896, bid in for the State for the sum of eighty-five dollars and forty-eight cents, pursuant to a real estate tax judgment entered in the District Court in the said county of St. Louis on the twenty-first day of March, A. D. 1898, in proceedings to enforce payment of taxes delinquent upon real estate for the year 1896, for the said county of St. Louis, and was on the twenty-eighth day of March, A. D. 1905, sold by the state of Minnesota for ninety dollars. That the amount required to redeem such lands from such sale exclusive of the cost to accrue upon this notice is the said sum of ninety dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of one per cent per month from said twenty-eighth day of March 1905, to the time of such redemption. That said amount required to redeem calculated to the date of this notice is the sum of $90.03, and the time within which said land can be redeemed from said sale will expire sixty days after service of this notice and proof thereof has been filed in the office of the county auditor in and for said St. Louis county, Minnesota, in manner prescribed by section 37 of chapter 6, General Laws of Minnesota, for the year 1877, and amendments thereto.

Dated, Duluth, this twenty-ninth day of March, A. D. 1905.

MARKET IS DULL

Closing of Chicago Market Greatly Restricts Trading In Wheat.

May Option Changes Very Little and July Is Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 4.—That Chicago is dominating the wheat market at the present time was shown today, for with the Chicago market closed because of the election in that city, trade was so restricted in the Duluth and Minneapolis markets as to be little better than nothing. It was practically impossible to trade in the May option in Duluth, and the Minneapolis May was not a great deal better. The May option in Duluth closed unchanged, in Minneapolis a shade firmer and in New York ⅛c higher. The July option in Duluth closed ⅛c lower, in Minneapolis ⅛c lower and in New York ⅛c lower.

The Liverpool market closed ½d lower, Berlin ⅜c lower and Budapest unchanged. In Liverpool corn closed ¼d higher.

Northwestern cars were again heavy, showing 20 at Duluth against 70 a year ago, and 209 at Minneapolis against 127 a year ago, making a total of 229 against 197 last year.

In the Duluth market trading was very dull. The May option opened ⅛c lower at $1.05, sold at $1.04⅞ at 9:44 and then worked up to $1.05¾ just before the close and closed there, unchanged from yesterday. The July option ranged between $1.02 and $1.03⅞ and closed at $1.02, a loss from yesterday of ⅛c.

Cash wheat was very slow and prices continued on the basis of 1c under May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was very dull. The May option advanced ⅛c to $1.38¼ and closed at $1.38. The October option closed 1⅛c lower at $1.25.

Oats and rye were unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No 1 northern, $1.04¼; on track No. 1 northern, $1.04¾; No. 2 northern, 88¾-$1.01⅝. Durum, No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 89c; May, $1.05¼; July, $1.02; September, 84¾c. Flax to arrive, $1.39; on track, $1.38; May, $1.38; October, $1.25. Oats to arrive, 28½c; on track, 29½c. Rye to arrive, 77c; on track, 77c. Barley: Feed, 33@37c; malting, 37@44. Cars inspected: Wheat, 20; last year, 70; oats, 38; barley, 12; flax, 25; last year, 106. Receipts: Wheat, 15,489; oats, 26,103; flax, 11,356. Shipments: Wheat, 12,633; oats, 2,560.

WHEAT YIELD AT N. S. W.

Sydney, N. S. W., April 4.—The season's wheat yield for New South Wales totals 16,463,680 bushels, an average of 9.3 bushels per acre. About 8,460,000 bushels are available for export, of which 4,252,638 have already been shipped.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN.

Liverpool, April 4.—Wheat—Spot, steady; No. 1 California, 6s 9d¾; futures, easy; May, 6s 8½d; July, 6s 8⅝d; September, 6s 8⅞d. Corn—Spot, steady; American mixed, new, 4s 4d¾; American mixed, old, 4s 1½d; futures, quiet; May, 4s 3¼d; July, 4s 3d.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat was firm and about unchanged from yesterday. There was not much in the news. It appears, however, that in view of the lower foreign cables an increase of 8,000,000 bus. in the Australian surplus, favorable Argentine weather and better crop reports in India, that European markets are not excited over future supplies as it was expected they would be. It is possible too that here in our own market there has been altogether too much of a desire to follow after the bull clique in the May operations especially at Chicago. That month is now near at hand with contract stocks larger than a year ago as a result of the general saving of this grade of wheat in anticipation of fancy prices. Receipts keep up strong and are unaccounted for except on the theory that farmers held back in the Southwest to see how the crop started and in the Northwest for the spring outlook. It is our opinion that extreme caution should be exercised in making purchases on bulges whether it is the old or new crop that is dealt in but for scalping returns think it al right to buy on fair breaks.

• • •

Chicago Record-Herald: Continental European buyers of new crop wheat are in much the same attitude toward the American market as they were a year ago. They will take wheat freely on weak spots but leave the United Kingdom buyers to stand around and haggle over differences. Not much further decline in the markets of the Southwest is needed to start a good export business in wheat with the continent.

• • •

Chicago Record-Herald: Ely Bernays, the New York grain exporter, was evidently well handled by the Minneapolis press agent. He comes back from the Northwest an enthusiast over that section in general and Minneapolis in particular. "It is the great coming market," said he. "It is the center of a vast and growing country and will have a future as a handler of coarse grains as well as wheat. I have traveled from Constantinople to Belfast, from Naples to Copenhagen, and in all my life I have never seen a market like it. Its merchants are men of great commercial capacities and resource and will surely make a great future. Grain pours in there in vast quantities daily and the manipulater of markets there must have plenty of money. Besides, it is a milling proposition to some extent and the manipulator must work at a disadvantage."

• • •

Chicago Tribune: The leading speculative feature in July wheat was heavy covering by James A. Rankin, who has been one of the most persistent and successful bears on the recent decline of nearly sixteen cents. He covered a line of about 1,000,000 bushels, and has joined the ranks of other bears who believe the market is so heavily oversold that it is due for an upturn on speculative conditions solely. So far yesterday's rally of 1⅜c is about as pronounced a reaction as the market has had at any time on the long decline.

• • •

Chicago Inter Ocean: Crop conditions in Ontario, Canada, according to a cash grain broker who has just returned from a trip down through the Niagara peninsula are about as promising as they are in this country. They raise red winter wheat in that province, and the outlook is good on a liberal acreage with the season one to two weeks earlier than usual. These conditions have had a depressing effect on the flour trade, and millers who were large buyers of Manitoba wheat last winter because of the failure of the Ontario crop last year are discouraged by present prospects. Some of them not only loaded up with cash wheat, but bought May wheat in Winnipeg as high as 10 cents above the present price.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today showed no noticeable fluctuations, holding strong all through the session and showing every indication of going higher. Osceola was sold down on strike news, but found good buying around 98 and rallied quickly to 99. United States Mining are being accumulated. The offerings of Copper Range are very small. Old Dominion has been very inactive lately, but ought to sell higher.

Peoria, Ill., April 4.—One hundred elders and ministers of the German Reformed church from all parts of Illinois, Iowa, North Dakota and Minnesota, are in the city today attending the annual conference which will last through Friday.

GOVERNOR BRADY ASKED TO RESIGN.

Washington, April 4.—A conditional request has been made upon Hon. John L. Brady, governor of Alaska, for his resignation.

The suggestion was forwarded by Secretary Hitchcock under the direction of the president, and, notwithstanding it was dispatched about a month since, no response has yet been received.

The request grows out of the fact that Governor Brady is identified with a mining company which is extensively engaged in advertising its affairs.

CONGER LEAVES CHINA.

Pekin, April 4, Afternoon.—Edwin H. Conger who has just vacated the post of American minister to China, upon his appointment as ambassador to Mexico left for America today via Hankow. Representatives of all the foreign legations assembled at the station to bid him farewell. The approach to the station was lined by Chinese troops.

TWINE PLANT BILL VETOED.

Lincoln, Neb., April 4.—Governor Mickey today vetoed the Ernest bill, authorizing a $200,000 bond issue for a twine plant at the state prison. He declared that the scheme was bad business policy.

THE STEEL STOCKS

Are Again the Favorites, Making New High Prices.

Market Closed Irregular But Industrial Group Showed Strength.

New York, April 4.—The opening movement of prices today was indeterminate and showed both gains and losses, with a majority of gains and the industrial stocks well represented. Running sales of 5,500 shares of Tennessee Coal were made at 106½ and 105½, compared with 105 last night. International Power advanced 1½, United States Reduction preferred 1⅞, Colorado Fuel a point and Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Twin City Rapid Transit and Federal Mining preferred large fractions. People's Gas fell ⅞ and Union Pacific and Rock Island ran off large fractions.

Movements of the standard railroad stocks were narrow and hesitating. Free sales of Tennessee Coal lowered it to 104¾. A rally to 106½ followed, with another dip to the lowest at 11 o'clock. Fractional losses among the railroad leaders were made up but were not well held. Although there were many substantial advances in the specialties, a few weak spots developed. The Republic Iron and Steel stocks, Sloss-Sheffield and Rubber Goods preferred declined 1 to 1¾. Federal Mining rose 6, the preferred and the Enameling stocks 2 and Pressed Steel Car preferred, Twin City Rapid Transit, Bag preferred, Vulcan Detinning, Car, Delaware & Hudson and New York, C. & St. L. 1 to 1.

The erratic fluctuations in Tennessee Coal kept the market unsettled and induced a sharp selling movement all around. Tennessee Coal dipped to 103⅜ and came up again to 104¾. Prices generally got a fraction under last night. Northwestern and Smelting lost 1½ and Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Kansas ity Southern and Brooklyn Transit a point or more. Knickerbocker Ice dropped 2. Railroad stocks in the Southern group came into active demand, Southern Railroad rising a fraction, Atlantic Coast Line 1⅞ and Louisville & Nashville 1½. This pulled up the general list again. Car preferred rose 1½ and Steel Foundry preferred 2¼. The trading was fitful and movements inconstant. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Stocks which seldom figure in the dealings except when there is an excited speculation continued to be the features of interest. Leading railroads were heavy, reflecting the transfer of interest to other quarters. Big blocks of United States Steel preferred were bought after 12 o'clock, advancing it to 93¾. The common stock improved only a small fraction. Railway Steel Spring gained 1½ and Knickerbocker Ice recovered its early decline of 2 points.

The strength of the United States Steel stocks did not prevent a relapse in railroad stocks to about the lowest. United States Steel preferred touched 93¾. New York Central fell 7⅞. Rubber Goods preferred lost 3. United States Rubber preferred 2, Pullman and National Railroad of Mexico preferred 1. Twin City Rapid Transit reacted 2⅜. There were gains by United States Reduction of 3¼, Central Railroad of Jersey 1½ and Railway Investment preferred 1¼. The trading was extremely dull.

United States Steel preferred rose aggressively 2 points with moderate effect on the general list. The demand became active for Copper up to 81½. Rock Island was lifted a point and the preferred 1½, but railroads generally were inclined to sag. New York, Chicago & St. Louis rose 2¼ and the second preferred, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred and Lead a point, Reading and O. & W. lost 1. In the late dealings, Union Pacific ran off 1⅛ below last night. Railroad stocks ran to the lowest. Industrials were sustained better and the closing was active and irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market closing rather irregular, but on the whole stocks show quite a little strength in the industrial group. Steel stocks are again the favorites, with the railroad list inclined to sag. Railway equipment shares have been active, car construction stocks being the favorites in this department. The erratic course of Tennessee Coal and Iron tended somewhat to unsettle the general market in early dealings. A large short interest is supposed to exist in this stock with stock now being loaned at a premium. The action of the railroad list, particularly Union Pacific and New York Central, would indicate selling under cover of strength in the Steel shares. United States Steel was bought aggressively, making new high prices for this movement. The character of trading and manipulation in Tennessee Coal and Iron seems to be the one bad feature in the market.

• • •

Wortley to B. E. Baker: The feeling on the floor is rather bearish in regard to the high-priced railroad stocks.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 4.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of one point on June, but generally unchanged to 3 points higher on better cables than expected and some talk that wet weather in the belt was delaying new crop preparations. Big receipts checked buying, however, and the market ruled very quiet after the opening with prices working up to a net gain of about 4 to 5 points on moderate covering and a little support from local bulls.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 8.35; middling gulf, 8.40; sales, 38 bales. Futures closed steady: April, 7.75; May, 7.71; June, 7.78; July, 7.59; August 7.62; September, 7.67; October, 7.72; November, 7.75; December, 7.80; January, 7.83.

Boston & Duluth Farm Land Company,

J. L. WASHBURN, President.
JOHN G. WILLIAMS, Vice President and Treasurer.
EDWARD HAZEN, Secretary.
A. W. KUEHNOW, Sales Agent.

This company still has for sale about 65,000 acres of the best land in Carlton and St. Louis counties.

Choice lands in the Holyoke, Floodwood, Prairie Lake and Cromwell regions.

These lands are selling themselves at from $6.00 to $10.00 per acre. Our settlers are satisfied and the opening of farms in Northeastern Minnesota has begun in earnest. We have sold about 200,000 acres. We would be glad to make a few sales in tracts of 5,000 acres or upwards and will make the prices attractive.

We would be especially glad to sell some lands to citizens of Duluth. Let our own people show their faith in lands and do something towards carrying on the work in which for four years we have been engaged, and at the same time make handsome profits.

LAHORE VISITED BY A VIOLENT EARTHQUAKE.

London, April 4.—A dispatch to a news agency from Lahore, British India, says:

"A violent earthquake has occurred here accompanied by serious loss of life and great damage to public and other buildings. The town hall is almost razed and the cathedral and Juma Marsjid, one of the finest mosques in India, are seriously damaged. Other big buildings are cracked and disfigured. Many houses in the native quarters collapsed.

TO ASK FOLK HOW TO GET RID OF LOBBYISTS.

New York, April 4.—Assemblymen Alexander, Colby and Robbins of the New Jersey legislature will, it is reported, start for Missouri in a few days, as a committee to ask Governor Folk to suggest the best manner of barring lobbyists from the house. Lobbyists have been worrying New Jersey legislators for years and it is now proposed to get rid of them if possible.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT VISITS POPE PIUS X.

Rome, April 14.—The pope today received in private audience the duke and duchess of Connaught and their daughters, Princesses Margaret and Patricia. The duke recalled his former visits to Pius IX and to Leo XIII. The pontiff thanked the duke warmly for his visit and sent his greetings to King Edward, whom he admires as a ruler.

The report that the pope has sanctioned the marriage of the king of Spain with Princess Patricia of Connaught is unfounded.

WIZARD OF FLOWERS

California Woman One of the First Known Hybridists.

Started With No Technical Knowledge of Growing Plants.

San Francisco, Cal., April 4.—The work of Luther Burbank is known to every schoolboy in California; few know, however, that California boasts another wizard of flowers, whose gardens are each year furnishing new and distinct plants wonderful in their development in the same way that the flowers and fruits of Burbank are wonderful.

Perhaps, after Burbank, the most successful plant hybridist is Mrs. Theodorsia B. Shepherd, whose gardens are located on the sloping hill of Ventura by the sea. Her name is known to every large florist of the world.

The creating of plants, according to Mrs. Shepherd, offers no serious difficulty even to the most ignorant. She would have it a morning occupation for every woman. She began her work with no technical education, not even a student's knowledge of botany. Her key to the creation of plant forms she declares to have come from observation and experiment.

The method which Mrs. Shepherd follows in her work is a simple one.

"The great majority of women," says she, "destroy a flower if it differs from the type. I destroy all other flowers and allow the different one to reach maturity.

"The making may be different, or the coloring; instead of five petals there may be six, arranged slightly different from those of the type. This is the flower which I preserve. Then I take its seed and plant them. The variation may not appear, or it may appear in two or three flowers. All others I destroy.

"Change is but a manifestation of a natural force which is seeking an expression. In course of time the change will become fixed and a new type has been created."

In hybridization proper, the methods are simple; a tiny camel's hair brush or the finger tip is used for pollenation. The pollen touched to the pistil of the prepared flower does the work. The result is a flower with a fringed edge, where previously there had been but flowers with latticed and plain edges. Stems are lengthened and shortened, color is taken away and added, flowers that stand upright are made to droop. In fact almost anything that fancy may dictate is brought about by the artificial union of different types. Among the members of the same family no limit can be placed upon the extent of these changes. But outside of this even the skill of the expert hybridist fails, for it is only among the members of the same plant family that hybridization can take place.

The success of Mrs. Shepherd's work is a vindication of her method. The cosmos is practically her creation. From the three colors of the original stock she has now in her garden thirty-five varieties. The colors vary from pure white to a dark red. The edges are plain edged, ruffled and even pleated as regularly as if by a machine. From a flower scarcely two inches across, she has developed them into blossoms five, six and seven inches in diameter.

A new poppy, "The Golden West," is a result of careful selection. The distinctive feature of the poppy is a large orange blot at the base of the plant, forming, with the other petals, a distinctly marked Maltese cross.

Roses, nasturtiums and begonias of almost every type and conceivable variation have been created through her skill. It was in hr garden that the Marporie Daw begonia was grown. The bush in her greenhouse was the largest in the world, measuring 15 feet high and as many feet across. At one time 150 clusters of blossoms were counted upon this bush.

Mrs. Shepherd's gardens are a witness to her taste. Around the house begonias were growing in profusion. Further away stretched lines of purple heliotrope and beds of belladonna, amaryllis, dazzling in the richness of their superb color. Myriads of carnations were in bloom. Over huge frame and across lath houses, veils of magnificent blossoms were thrown. The air was heavy with the perfume of the flowers. In the contrast with masses of glossy foliage were long, trailing, graceful branches brilliant with flowers of a flaring yellow, or the more subdued blue. A multitude of poinsettias scattered in many parts of the garden added still more color to the picture.

LITTLE BUSINESS TALKS.

You can't read all of the ads. all of the time; but, if you are wise, you will read all of the ads. some of the time, and some of the ads. all of the time.

It is an axiom that an intelligent person is never misled by an advertisement; and in Duluth a merchant who would publish a misleading advertisement would commit business suicide.

In the stores the opportunities to secure some things come only occasionally. When they come they are advertised. There is no other way by which you can learn of them than by reading the ads.

You can waste lots of time in shopping, and sorely try your patience, if you have not first read the store ads.

Every woman has a secret yearning to be "a little extravagant" in some particular thing at some particular time; and she can afford to be if she reads the ads. carefully in planning her regular expenditures.

HYMN BY JOHN HAY

Read By Lyman Abbott In Brooklyn Church.

New York, April 4.—Preaching Sunday in his old pulpit in Plymouth church, Brooklyn, the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott spoke of Secretary of State John Hay as a great statesman, and recited a hymn which Mr. Hay had once given him for the Plymouth collection.

"I am sure you will agree with me," said Dr. Abbott, "that for the last six or seven years John Hay has led the diplomacy of the world and has been a power in international affairs—the strong man who has put this nation in the lead among the nations of the world. This hymn, which he wrote many years ago, and gave me permission to put into the Plymouth collection, gives the secret of his power:"

Not in dumb resignation, we lift our hands on high:
Not like the nervous fatalist, content to do and die,
Our faith springs like the eagle's, who soars to meet the sun,
And cries exulting unto thee, "O Lord, Thy will be done."

When tyrant feet are trampling upon the common weal,
Thou dost not bid us bend and writhe beneath the iron heel.
In thy name we assert our right by sword, or tongue, or pen,
And even the headsman's ax may flash Thy message unto men.

Thy will! It bids the weak be strong; it bids the strong be just;
No lips to fawn, no hand to beg, no brow to seek the dust.
Whenever man oppresses men beneath the liberal sun,
O Lord, be there; thine arm made bare, thy righteous will be done.

TAKING UP OPTIONS

Lake Superior & Southeastern Road Buying Right of Way.

First Full Settlement With Owner of Property Is Made.

The proposed Lake Superior & Southeastern road is beginning to take up its options on property within the city which it has held for some time. These options are on property along the line which will constitute the road's right of way through the city west from Eleventh avenue west and it is evident that the road means business and that the money is here to buy the property and condemn the rest on which options are not held.

The people who gave options to Mr. Gillis for the road have been notified that the road would take up the options on April 1 and the first settlement in such cases was made today, Hutchinson Bevier receiving $4,000 for lot 254, block 20, Duluth proper, second division. This property has a house on it and that is why such a high rate was paid. The house, of course, as in many other cases, will have to be removed. Mr. Bevier was the first one to apply for his money on the option he gave Mr. Gillis and the road will within the next few days settle up with as many of the option givers as apply and if any should not, will hunt them up and settle.

Of course in all such railroad projects there is a good deal of discussion as to whether matters will ever pan out, and there has been on this, but with this latest move on the part of the promoters of the road, that doubt is likely to be dispelled. The settlements are being made at the office of William Getty, in the Manhattan building, and the money is ready for any of the option givers who wish to call and get it.

There is a good deal of mystery as to what this road is to be established for, or as to where it is going to terminate away from Duluth. It has been generally rumored that it is a new road to Chicago, and that Duluth will find herself connected up with one of the biggest railroad systems in the country. That, of course, is as yet problematical.

TWO ARE INJURED.

Men Building Ore Dock Meet With Injuries.

Two slight injuries happened this morning to men employed by Barnett & Record on the building of the ore dock extension at Thirty-third avenue west. One, Charles McKinnon of Superior, was chopping a piece of woodwork on the dock. The ax slipped and was driven into his left foot, inflicting a painful and deep wound. Dr. Graham of West Duluth attended him and sent him to his home in Superior. The doctor says the wound is not necessarily serious.

Julius Newman, while at work on the ore dock, had his left leg caught between two beams, and it was crushed slightly. He was taken to his home, 2911 West Third street. Dr. Jern attended him and says that the bruise is more painful than serious.

CITY BRIEFS

Lawyers' briefs. North Land Printery.

In The Herald last evening, in the notice with reference to the coming of Rudolph Ganz, the pianist, who will appear here under the auspices of the Matinee Musicale, it was stated that the concert would be this evening. This was an error, the correct date being tomorrow evening and the place Steinway hall.

The Duluth Real Estate exchange members had dinner at the Commercial club this noon and held a brief business meeting afterwards. Nothing special importance came up for consideration.

Quite a lot of ore is now being shipped to the Head of the Lakes docks. It is expected that the work at the docks will be in full swing by the end of the present week.

The Bon Ami came in this noon from Grand Marais and intermediate points. She brought in about 100 passengers and a good deal of freight. She is expected to go out tomorrow or next day on another trip, and next week will take a trip to Port Wing, on the south shore.

This evening the Duluth Sunday School association will meet at the First Christian church, corner of Fifth avenue west and Fourth street. The feature of the program will be a model Sunday school meeting, conducted by Rev. J. K. Shellenberger, pastor of the church. There will also be music by the Mer-rize quartet.

SCHOOL TEACHER

Accused of Killing Child While In Washington.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 4.—Sheriff Sawyer left for New York Mills Saturday, and arrested Miss Dessie Allen, a young lady residing a short distance from that village, on the charge of being a fugitive from justice, the arrest being made on telegraphic information from the State of Washington to the effect that she is accused of murdering a child there.

Miss Allen taught school in this county for some years and then went to the state of Washington, where she took up a claim, and also taught school. She commuted her claim and returned home a short time ago, and has just received the final papers giving her title to the homestead.

Miss Allen and her people were taken completely by surprise when the sheriff arrived with the warrant. She declared in piteous terms that she was innocent of the crime with which she was charged, and begged her parents to believe her. They had never suspected that there was anything wrong, and were too shocked to fully realize the position in which she is placed.

She was brought to the country jail here, and the Washington authorities have been notified by wire that she is in custody. The complaint comes from Douglas county, Wash.

Miss Allen has numerous friends in this city, who are confident that she is the victim of a terrible mistake.

ALL STAKED ON ROJESTVENSKY

Russians Think He Will Be Able to Defeat Togo.

St. Petersburg, April 4.—The announcement that President Roosevelt has left Washington on a vacation trip is accepted here as evidence that the efforts to draw Russia and Japan into peace negotiations have come to grief for the moment. No definite explanation of exactly what happened is forthcoming, but the general impression is that Japan either declined to treat upon the Russian basis or demanded a direct avowal that there was a pacific disposition. At any rate the advocates of a continuation of the war seem secure of their position, and everything indicates that the hope of an immediate change of fortune is staked on Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, whose squadron, according to the best information is now actually on its way to meet the Japanese. The admiralty is greatly encouraged by the prospects that Rojestvensky will be able to defeat Admiral Togo owing to the splendid reports which have just arrived here from Rojestvensky dated from the Island of Madagascar, recounting in detail the condition of the ships and personnel and the results of the target practice of the squadron and of the maneuvers in which the warships have been drilling for three months.

EQUITABLE DIRECTORS TO MEET ON THURSDAY.

New York, April 4.—A meeting of the directors of the Equitable Life Assurance society has been called for Thursday afternoon, when the question of accepting or declining the two-year mutualization plan proposed last Saturday will come up for consideration.

A staff of accountants and clerks from the state insurance department started work today on the books of the Equitable society.

RECEIVER WANTED

For the Mutual Home Fire Insurance Company.

Cleveland, April 4.—An effort is being made by Attorney General Wade Ellis of Ohio in common pleas court here, to force the Mutual Home Fire Insurance company of this city into the hands of a receiver. Proceedings were commenced today by R. J. Mauch of Columbus, representing the attorney general's office. The petition for a receiver alleges that the liabilities of the company exceeds the assets.

RESIGNATION

Of Alexander May Be Forced By Hyde.

New York, April 4.—A persistent report was current today that James W. Alexander was to be forced from the presidency of the Equitable Life Assurance society by Mr. Hyde and his supporters at the meeting of the board of directors of the society to be held next Thursday. Mr. Hyde and his friends, through their control of the company, it is declared, have it in their power to enforce the demand for Mr. Alexander's resignation, if they deem it advisable.

COMBINE IS STRONG

That Controls the Organization of the House Force.

Illinois Will Have Speaker and Pennsylvania the Clerk.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Now that it is definitely announced that the president will call an extra session of congress early in October, the old time members of the house of representatives have been quietly dropping into Washington ostensibly to look after the interests of their constituents, but really to hold conferences over the organization of the official force of the fifty-ninth congress. So far as can be ascertained there is little likelihood of any change in the officers of the house and the existing organization seems powerful enough to resist all attacks. The "hog combine," as the combination of state delegations which has rendered the existing organization possible, is still intact. Made up as it is of the delegations from Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Michigan, New Jersey and Wisconsin, with a total vote of 131, five more than a majority of the Republican caucus, it is plainly futile for any ousider to break into that powerful combination. Illinois, of course, will have the speakership. Pennsylvania will name the clerk of the house and there is no other thought than that the veteran Major McDowell, former member of congress, and who has filed the position since the fifty-fourth congress, will again occupy his accustomed place. New York will name the doorkeeper and Frank B. Lyons, who has been an employe of the house since the fifty-fourth congress, and who received the unanimous nomination for the office, will undoubtedly be retained by the New York delegation. Mr. Lyons has made a most efficient officer. He is polite and courteous and if he can do a friend a favor he does not hesitate to go to the front. As doorkeeper he has a number of "fat" places under him and these are eagerly sought for. He has distributed these places with such discernment over the country and in consequence has a strong following outside of the "combine" which has run the house, so far as the officers are concerned since the fifty-fourth congress.

Ohio will keep Captain McElroy, a civil war veteran and long time politician, in the postmastership. New Jersey is thoroughly well satisfied with W. J. Browning, who has been chief clerk since the fifty-fourth congress and Representative Harry Loudenslager's political adviser. Mr. Browning is probably the most generally liked man in the lower house. He is exceedingly affable, easily approachable and is "business" from the ground up. It is doubted if the office of chief clerk has ever been filed by a man who has given more universal satisfaction than Mr. Browning. His duties are multiferious in character. He not only carries important messages to the senate which is really but a minor feature of his work but makes purchases for everything about the south side of the capitol. He buys every piece of furniture for every room set aside for representative purposes. He buys every typewriter, and the coal and in fact everything which is not looked upon as permanent in character. He handles hundreds of thousands of dollars annually and during the years he has filed the position of chief cerk has not lost a dollar, a record of which he may be justly proud.

Wisconsin will name the sergeant-at-arms and no one dreams of suggesting other than Colonel Henry Casson, former secretary of state of Wisconsin and who has held the position since the fifty-fifth congress succeeding Benjamin F. Russell. It is claimed for this distribution of the officers of the house that it is on geographical lines. Now and then kicks are registered against this division, particularly by the younger members. But they avail nothing and the "combine" goes right ahead getting fatter and fatter.

* * *

It was announced in Eastern newspapers the other day that the governor of Kansas had announced his intention of having the new battleship Kansas christened with crude petroleum that has recently added to the fame of that state. In some quarters here the matter has been taken seriously and an official of the navy department, speaking of the governor's intention to use oil instead of wine, said: "It is absurd to talk of christening a new battleship with oil instead of champagne. No sailor man would think that she had ever been properly launched were the custom omitted. In fact, I doubt if you could get a boy of 'Jack tars' to sail in her. The launching of a ship is a serious business and as a class sailormen are the most superstitious people to be found anywhere. If a ship were christened with oil, they would swear that she was bent on sliding into the arms of 'Davy Jones' the first time a squall hit her and the sailormen would be powerless to keep her afloat. Personally, I do not believe that the governor of Kansas ever contemplated christening the new battleship to be named after the sunflower state with oil, and even if he had contemplated such an innovation the navy department would refuse the request if made. The old 'sea dogs' who are at the head of the various bureaus of the navy department know the superstitions of sailormen better than anybody, and they never would think of sending a ship into the arms of 'old ocean' christened with oil instead of wine. I look upon the suggestion that oil be used as a huge joke growing out of the action of the Kansas legislature to erect an oil refinery of its own in that state and forcing the Standard Oil people to look elsewhere for its market."

* * *

At the annual dinner of the Five O'clock club, a famous dining club of the Quaker City, held the other evening, a number of exceedingly funny things occurred. The Five O'clockers are anything but serious-minded folk, and they endeavor in a quiet way to make their guests feel perfectly at home by interrupting the speakers and holding conversations with them to the enjoyment of everybody but the speaker. Senator Gamble of South Dakota was one of the distinguished present. It was Mr. Gamble's first appearance in the club life of Philadelphia, and he knew little or nothing of the ways of these Easterners, who get humor out of every wind that blows. Mr. Gamble mounted his legs to tell them something about South Dakota, incidentally remarking that the state which he represents in the senate is richer per capita than any other state in the Union. That it was remarkable for its mines, its scenery and its general intelligence.

"Yes, and remarkable too for the number of its divorces," said a red-headed fellow sitting across the table from him."

"Yes, and a great many of our clients come from Philadelphia," replied the senator. He had made good and was allowed to finish his speech without any more interruption.

Senator "Tom" Carter of Montana was there, as was ex-Senator Thurston of Nebraska, Weather Bureau Moore, Director of the Census North, Steamboat Inspector Uhler, Frank P. Sargent, chief of bureau of immigration; Doctor Harvey Wiley of pure food fame and other department chiefs from Washington. When Thurston arose to talk, the little red-headed fellow said: "You ain't going to reproduce your speech made at the Swayne trial, are you, John?"

Thurston proceeded with his speech, but had not gone very far in plucking the feathers out of the "eagle's tail" when the persistent red-headed cuss said: "You sing better than you talk, John," and Thurston was compelled to sing the rest of his speech. And that is the way it went from 8 o'clock until midnight. The fellows who didn't talk said it was a "bully dinner."

CITY FENCED IN

By Claimants of Land on Staten Island.

New York, April 4.—Golden City, on Staten Island, is being fenced in to keep its tenants out. Golden City is a plot where, tradition has it, Melville Wyant, the livery-stable man, several years ago found a bag of gold and immediately built several houses around the site and gave the locality the romantic name.

Wyant owns the houses. Of that there is no question at present. The question is, does he own the land?

The heirs of John Bodine, who have a title dating from a royal grant in the eighteenth century, say they own it, and Saturday began the fencing process. They built a mile of fence. Yesterday, with several men, they laid more. The heirs say when the fence is completed they will give notice of dispossession to the tenants of the Wyant houses and sue them for trespass if they attempt to climb the fence.

MOB ATTEMPTS TO LYNCH THREE NEGROES.

Fulton, Ky., April 4.—A mob twice attempted to force the jail here in an effort to lynch three negroes who are charged with shooting Officer Baker. Mayor Wall, members of the city council and prominent citizens, defended the prisoners and defeated the mob. The negroes will be taken to Hickman for safe keeping. The report had been circulatd that they were lynched, but his was a mistake.

One of our salespeople says:

I'm never so happy as when I hear the delighted "Ah!" that a Gidding garment brings to the lips of her who has gone through life fitless!

Our new tailored Suits and Coats are for the woman who can see beyond buttons and braid, inches and seams—they're for the cultivated eye who knows what style is and won't take a feeble flicker of it!

The "Redingote," the "Swagger," and the "Boulevard" are styles that breathe the true air of the "Metropolis"—$25.00.

They're as "New-Yorkish" in fact as anything can be 1,500 miles from Broadway and Fifth avenue!

It's well to know that while our styles are up to snuff, our prices are right down to low water mark—brought about by careful and systematic management of our business, and by eliminating much of the heavy expense in the running of a "general" department store. Buyers, of course, are quick to appreciate this fact, as is shown by our constantly growing trade!

New things by every express—

For tomorrow, beautifully tailored Covert Coats, full of snap and style; fine cloth, richly lined—$15.00.

Also several new models—$10.00 and $12.50.

Also some very handsome Silk Shirt Waist Suits—tomorrow, $15.00. Of chiffon taffeta and beautifully made. $20.00 would be more like it.

O'BRIEN'S BODY FOUND IN ST. CROIX RIVER.

Stillwater, Minn., April 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The dead and decomposed body of Harry O'Brien, son of Michael O'Brien of South Stillwater, was found last evening in the St. Croix river, a short distance below Lakeland, by Adolph Groff. A sensation was caused by his disappearance during the Christmas holidays. He was 24 years old. On Dec. 26 he left Hudson shortly before midnight in a fierce blizzard for Lakeland.

He was recognized by his clothing and articles in his pockets.

LANDS

Duluth and Superior consume $7,000,000 worth of farm produce annually; all of it is shipped in from a distance.

If the Southern Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa farmer can sell us his produce so as to allow the commission man at the other end a profit, the railroad that hauls the goods a profit, the commission man at this end a profit, the refrigerator car trust a profit, the man who delivers the goods a profit,

AND STILL MAKE MONEY,

How much money can you make raising a better class of produce and more of them to the acre at the door of the consumer when you can deliver the goods yourself?

But in order to make eight times as much profit you need the best land—it is the cheapest. If you don't think we have it, look the other fellow over and then come and see us.

No stone, sand, etc.; $6.00 per acre up, $1.00 per acre down, balance to suit. You should buy your land before everybody finds out that the best land near Superior and Duluth is worth $80 per cent more than we are asking for it. 75,000 acres.
